In a case under S. 366, Penal Code, in view of the fundamental importance of the question of age of the girl concerned, it is the duty of the Judge to obtain the evidence of the medical witness with the utmost precision and to have it brought out clearly whether the witness was prepared to stake his opinion that the girl could not be of the age of sixteen or over. A.I.R. 1946 Cal. 493=47 Cr. L.J. 325=233 Ind. Cas. 44.

—S. 366—Evidence of age.

Apart from the statement of the kidnapped girl's father as regards her age, there was the evidence of the doctor, who examined the girl, to the effect that she was under 16 years of age. All the evidence on the question of age including the deposition of the girl herself—which suggested that she was more than sixteen—was placed fully and fairly by the Judge before the jury who had the girl herself before them. On consideration of that evidence, the jury definitely found that she was under 16 years of age :

Held, that in the circumstances, the verdict could not be assailed in any way. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 315=42 Cr. L.J. 649=195 Ind. Cas. 12.

—S. 366—In order to prove the charge of kidnapping, it is incumbent on the prosecution to prove that the person kidnapped was under 16 years of age. A.I.R. 1939 All. 708=1939 A.W.R. 693=1939 A.L.J. 980=41 Cr.L.J. 142=I.L.R. (1939) All. 871=185 Ind. Cas. 271.

—S. 366—In a prosecution for abduction, the onus of proving the girl's age is on the prosecution and no conviction can be sustained if the evidence is inconclusive. A.I.R. 1937 All. 353=1937 A.L.J. 547=38 Cr. L.J. 621=1937 A.W.R. 203=168 Ind. Cas. 833.

—S. 361—Ossification.

Although it may be recognized that ossification is an important test for determining the age, yet having regard to the practical difficulties which would attend the application of this test, it cannot be said that ossification is an indispensable test for determining the age of a girl. A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 263=38 Cr.L.J. 673=18 P.L.T. 535=15 Pat. 817=169 Ind. Cas. 48.

—S. 366—Before the accused is convicted of the offence of kidnapping, it is necessary to prove that the person kidnapped, if a female, is under 16 years of age. A.I.R. 1934 Sind 119=36 Cr.L.J. 62(2)=28 S.L.R. 285=151 Ind. Cas. 984.

—S. 366—In a prosecution for kidnapping, the age of the girl must be proved by the prosecution.

A doctor's opinion as to age is not of much value. A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 401=32 P.L.R. 98=32 Cr.L.J. 1041=133 Ind. Cas. 560.

2. Applicability.

—S. 364—Applicability and scope—Murder in consequence of abduction or abetment of murder. See PENAL CODE, Ss. 302 AND 364. 224 Ind. Cas. 435=A.I.R. 1947 Cal. 35.

—Ss. 364 and 302—Prosecution alleging that accused murdered person abducted or abetted his murder—Accused should be charged under S. 302 or Ss. 302 and 109—No charge under S. 364 can be framed.

Where the prosecution case is that accused murdered the deceased or abetted his murder and that the murder was committed in consequence of the abduction of the deceased by the accused, the charge can be framed only under S. 302 or S. 302 read with S. 109. The case cannot be dealt with under S. 364 which is mainly a special case of enhanced punishment for particular type of abetment of murder. The enhanced punishment will be applicable even though the murder is not committed in consequence of the abduction. But when murder is committed S. 364 cannot apply. 224 Ind. Cas. 435=A.I.R. 1947 Cal. 35.

—S. 361—Exception.

The exception to S. 361 simply is that the section does not extend to the act of any person who in good faith believes himself or herself to be entitled to the lawful custody of the child. There is no question whatever or any authority to remove the girl from the control of her lawful guardian. A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 475=39 Cr. L.J. 751=176 Ind. Cas. 456.

—S. 364—Section 364 provides for the punishment of a specific offence and is not intended as an indirect method of punishing persons who are suspected but not proved to have committed a murder. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 578=I.L.R. (1937) 1 Cal. 484=39 Cr. L.J. 31=171 Ind. Cas. 944.

3. Completion of offence.

—S. 363—Offence of kidnapping—When completed.

It is well-settled that the taking away of a minor from the lawful custody is not the same thing as keeping the minor out of such custody; the act of taking away is completed as soon as the minor is taken out of his or her guardian. 231 Ind. Cas. 457=48 Cr.L.J. 799.

—S. 366-A—If the accused kidnapped or abducted the woman with the necessary intent, the offence is complete whether or not the accused succeeded in effecting his purpose, and even if in the event the women in fact consented to the marriage or the illicit intercourse taking place. A.I.R. 1933 Rang. 98=11 Rang. 213=34 Cr.L.J. 696=143 Ind. Cas. 872 (F.B.).

—S. 366-A—Where A and B induced a girl to go with them offering to take her to her destination but with the real object of selling her for illicit intercourse and afterwards C and D took her from one place to another with the object of selling her but there was no evidence to show that C and D offered any inducement to the girl or to any act with the intention that she may be or knowing to be likely that she will be forced to illicit intercourse:

Held, that the offence, under S. 366-A was complete when A and B induced the girl to leave her place and what happened afterwards did not constitute a fresh offence under S. 366-A either against A and B or against any other accused who just took her from one place to another and passed her on from hand to hand. A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 555=33 Cr.L.J. 675=33 P.L.R. 727=138 Ind. Cas. 597.

—S. 363—Removal of girl by A with consent of guardian—Subsequent removal by C without consent—Liability of C.

A came to her mother's house one day and took her sister B who was living with their mother, for helping her in carrying flour to the village mill. A's husband C put B on a camel and rode away with her. C was charged an convicted under S. 363. It was contended on his behalf that the offence of kidnapping must be deemed to have been completed when the girl was removed by her sister from the lawful guardianship of her mother and that her subsequent transportation by the accused was not an act of kidnapping punishable under S. 363:

Held, that though kidnapping is not a continuous offence, on the facts of the case the act of kidnapping took place when B was taken away from the custody of her sister A, and the accused was properly convicted under S. 363. A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 53=32 Cr.L.J. 615=130 Ind. Cas. 782.

—Ss. 359 to 369—A person who finding the girl below 16 years of age takes her away from guardianship to make use of her for his own purposes, is guilty of the offence and the offence is completed the moment he takes away the girl. 7 O.W.N. 499=126 Ind. Cas. 510=1930 Cr. C. 582=A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 289.

—S. 363—The question has to when the offence is completed is a question of fact.

Whether the kidnapping is complete or not, is a question of fact and must in each case be decided upon the evidence. Where the finding is that the accused took part in the actual removal of the girl immediately after she was taken out of the house of her guardian, his conviction under S. 363 read with S. 114 is correct.

Where A enticed a girl to come out of her house to the road and then to the motor car in which B was sitting, who took the car to the village in order that he might kidnap her.

Held, that B committed an offence under S. 363 and that kidnapping was not already completed at the moment when the girl entered the car but it was completed by A driving her off in the motor-car. 104 Ind. Cas. 436=6 Pat. 471=28 Cr.L.J. 820=A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 159.

—S. 363—Offence is complete as soon as minor is actually taken from the lawful guardianship.

The offence of kidnapping from lawful guardianship is complete when the minor is actually taken from the lawful guardianship. It is not an offence continuing so long as he is kept out of such guardianship. 2 C.W.N. 81; 27 Cal. 1041 and 26 Mad. 454, Foll. 95 Ind. Cas. 392=5 Pat. 536=7 P.L.T. 812=1926 P.H.C.C. 176=27 Cr. L.J. 792=A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 493.

—S. 361—When the offence is complete—Kidnapping—Completion of the offence—Abetment.

The offence of kidnapping is complete as soon as a girl under 16 years of age is actually taken out of the custody of lawful guardian and it does not continue until she returns to her guardian; therefore there is no abetment of the offence by conduct if it commences only after the minor has once been completely taken out of the keeping of the guardian.

38 All. 664=14 A.L.J. 765=17 Cr. L.J. 498=36 Ind. Cas. 466.

—S. 363—When the offence is complete.

Whether 'the taking' of a minor girl out of the custody of her lawful guardian is or is not complete at a given moment is a question depending on the circumstances proved in each particular case. 55 P.L.R. 1916=25 P.W.R. 1916 (Cr.)=17 Cr. L.J. 236=34 Ind. Cas. 652.

—S. 361—When the offence is complete—Abduction of a woman passed from man to man—Liability of all concerned.

Where a woman is passed from man to man in the course of abduction all such men are equally liable. 54 P.L.R. 1916=17 Cr. L.J. 284=47 P.W.R. 1915 (Cr.)=34 Ind. Cas. 1004.

—Ss. 361 and 366—When the offence is complete—Abduction—Nature and essentials of—Continuing offence—Intent essentials.

A girl is being abducted not only when she is first taken away from a certain place but also when she is subsequently removed from place to place. Abduction is an offence only when it is committed under certain conditions mentioned in chapter XIV of the Penal Code. The mere taking of a girl to the house of an immigration recruiter is not an offence under S. 366. 12 A.L.J. 91=15 Cr. L.J. 154=22 Ind. Cas. 730.

—S. 361—When the offence is complete—'Keeping'.

The question as to when an act of kidnapping is complete is a question of fact to be determined according to the circumstances of each case. So long as the minor can at will take advantage of the guardian's protection and place herself within the sphere of its operation, the relation between minor and the guardian implied by the word 'keeping' is not dissolved. 7 S.L.R. 17=14 Cr. L.J. 439=20 Ind. Cas. 599.

4. Consent of guardian.

—S. 361—Married girl of 14 years, held was in "keeping" of not her husband but of mother.

Where a minor leaves the immediate custody of her lawful guardian for a temporary purpose, such as a visit to friends, she will no doubt be deemed to be still in his keeping for the purposes of S. 361. There must obviously, however, be a point after which it could no longer be held that the girl, while out of the immediate custody of the guardian, could still be deemed to be in his keeping. The real principle to be followed in dealing with such cases is that the Court must consider all the facts, and see whether they are consistent or not with the continuance of the legal guardian's possession of the minor. If they are not inconsistent, the minor must be held to be in the legal guardian's possession or keeping even though the actual physical possession should be temporarily with a friend or other person.

Where the minor girl aged 14 years who had been married seven years ago, had been staying with her mother as she had not attained puberty, and there is nothing to show that the girl had ever lived in her husband's house for any extended period and the attempts of the husband to take away the girl on her attaining puberty were foiled by the mother on some pretexts, the girl must be deemed to have been in the "keeping" not of the husband, but of the mother. Hence, if the mother was a consenting party to the girl's being taken away, no offence of kidnapping can be said to have been committed. A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 212=44 Cr.L.J. 590=22 Pat. 263=207 Ind. Cas. 420.

—S. 361—Where a girl originally goes to an institution with the consent of her mother who is her guardian but the mother subsequently changes her mind, the detention of the girl by the institution does not constitute an offence of kidnapping. A.I.R. 1939 Sind 152=40 Cr.L.J. 698=I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 760=182 Ind. Cas. 710.

—S. 366—Mother of minor girl along with accused taking her from lawful guardianship of her father.

The mother of a minor girl went in the company of the accused from her house to the house of the accused's brother with the intention of marrying her daughter to the brother's son of the accused. It appeared that while she wanted to marry the girl to that boy, her husband objected to her so doing:

Held, that as the mother of the girl was not acting in good faith and that as she and the accused removed the girl from her father's house for the express purpose of marrying her without the father's consent and hereby deprived the father for ever of the guardianship of his minor daughter and that this act amounted to a taking out of the keeping of the lawful guardianship of the father, the conviction under S. 366 was right but that in the circumstances, the sentence might be reduced. A.I.R. 1934 Oudh 89=11 O.W.N. 30=35 Cr.L.J. 469=147 Ind. Cas. 670.

—Ss. 359 to 369—Consent of Guardian—Lawful guardian (father) pledging daughter to creditor who pledged her to another—Father without demanding his daughter recovering her with the help of police—No offence under S. 361.

The pledging of a girl to secure a loan a legal contract and may not be enforced in law but if a minor is retained in the custody of a person with the consent of the lawful guardian he will not commit the offence of kidnapping in S. 361. It does not matter whether the consent is given for consideration or not. If after having obtained custody of a minor in a lawful manner with the consent of guardian the minor is married or disposed of in such a manner as to make it impossible for the lawful guardian to get back the custody of the minor, an offence under S. 361 would be committed and the temporary guardian doing any such act would be liable under S. 361 but so long as nothing is done which would render the restoration or exercise of the custody of the child by the lawful guardian impossible, the mere fact of transferring the guardianship by the temporary guardian would not constitute an offence.

C the lawful guardian of his minor daughter pledged her to J for a sum due. J pawned the girl to N for a loan. C hearing that his daughter was sold by J went in search of her and found her in N's house. He got her back after lodging information but without demanding her either from J or N.

Held, that as it was not proved that the girl was retained in the custody of either of the accused J or N after the guardianship temporarily created in favour of J was terminated no offence of kidnapping was committed by any of the accused. 119 Ind. Cas. 72=10 P.L.T. 326=30 Cr.L.J. 980=1929 Cr.C. 97=A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 316.

—S. 366—Third person in charge for a limited purpose and for a limited time—Consent of such person is insufficient.

A girl under 16 years of age, living under guardianship of her mother, was sent by the latter with a female friend of hers on a visit to her sister at Dalepur and on her way there, the two petitioners kidnapped her and took her to their own village and there she was married to one of them without the consent of her mother.

Held: the petitioners were guilty of an offence under Section 366. The mere fact that the mother allowed the girl to be in the custody of a certain person for a limited purpose and for a limited time only does not determine the mother's rights as guardian or her legal possession of the minor for the purpose of the criminal law. The consent of such a person who has no authority to give a consent, does not affect the question in any way. 68 Ind. Cas. 620=3 Lah. 213=23 Cr.L.J. 588=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 380.

—S. 361—Consent of guardian—Kidnapping—Taking with consent—Subsequent improper marriage of minor without consent.

Where a minor is removed with the consent of the guardian and subsequently married improperly without the guardian's consent, such marriage would not itself amount to kidnapping. 36 Mad. 453=15 Cr.L.J. 24=22 Ind. Cas. 168.

—S. 361—Consent of guardian—Kidnapping from unlawful guardianship—Taking with the connivance of guardian.

Where there is no taking of the girl and the taking is with the connivance of the mother and not without her consent but the accused falsely denied that the girl was at a particular place.

Held, that such denial cannot be construed into a prevention of the girl's returning and that no charge was sustainable under S. 363 of the Code. (1912) U.B.R. 36=14 Cr.L.J. 190=18 Ind. Cas. 669.

—S. 361—Kidnapping—Girl driven out of the house.

Where a minor girl was driven from her father's house, by her father and was found some days afterwards in the company of the accused,

Held, that no offence of kidnapping was committed. To constitute that offence, the girl must have been taken by the accused from the keeping of her father; in this case the father himself had driven her away from the house. (1912) M.W.N. 538=13 Cr.L.J. 598=16 Ind. Cas. 166.

—Ss. 361 and 363—Consent of guardian—Kidnapping—Essentials—Consent—What is.

To constitute an offence under S. 363 it is sufficient to show that the minor was taken away without the consent of lawful guardian. The consent of the guardian given subsequent to the commission of the offence is not sufficient. Motive has nothing to do with the offence though it may be a consideration in awarding punishment. Even if the accused thought that the lawful guardian, would not have objected to his taking him yet, if in facts there was no consent the offence would be committed. Where the temporary guardian is in collusion with the other party, and the taking away is accomplished under such collusion, the consent of the lawful guardian is not the consent of as contemplated by the section. 31 All. 448=6 A.L.J. 682=10 Cr.L.J. 295=3 Ind. Cas. 480.

5. Consent of minor.

—S. 366—Where a girl over 14 and under 16 years of age and in lawful custody, consents to illicit intercourse with a man and is persuaded to elope with him for the same purpose, an offence is committed under S. 366. A.I.R. 1944 Bom. 159=46 Bom. L.R. 203=45 Cr.L.J. 750=214 Ind. Cas. 231.

—Ss. 366 and 420—Married girl of 14 years married by accused to another person on taking bride price from him—Girl's mother consenting party—Offences under Ss. 420 and 366, held committed.

A girl N, who was aged about 14, had been married seven years previously to one H. As she had not attained puberty, she did not go to live with her husband, but remained in the house of her mother, who was a widow. The accused B and D who were close friends of N's family took away N from her house, told her that they were going to marry her to a rich man so that she would be better off and would not have to go back to the first husband and actually got her married to M at a certain village. The mother of the girl was a consenting party to all these matters. The accused did not disclose that N was already married. M paid certain amount to the accused as bride price which was handed over by them to the mother of N:

Held, that the accused were guilty under S. 420 Indian Penal Code.

Even if the girl went with the accused willingly, she could not be said to have done so with the knowledge that she would be committing a criminal offence by undergoing a second marriage. Her consent could only have been under a misapprehension and hence was no consent in the eye of the law. The element of deceit was, therefore, present. A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 212=44 Cr.L.J. 590=22 Pat. 263=207 Ind. Cas. 420.

—Ss. 366 and 376—Girl below 14.

If it is proved that a girl who is alleged to have been kidnapped was at the time under the age of fourteen, her consent is immaterial. A.I.R. 1934 Oudh 32=10 O.W.N. 1274=35 Cr.L.J. 498=147 Ind. Cas. 759 (2).

—Ss. 359 to 369—Underlying policy is to throw production over minor girls—Consent of girl does not exonerate seducer.

Section 366 is an aggravated form of S. 363. The consent of the girl does not exonerate the seducer. The underlying policy of the section is to uphold the lawful authority of parents or guardians over their minor wards, to throw a ring of protection over the girl themselves and to penalise sexual commerce on the part of persons who corrupt or attempt to corrupt the morals of minor girls by taking improper advantage of their youth and inexperience. 120 Ind. Cas. 433=31 Cr.L.J. 85=1930 Cr.C. 35=A.I.R. 1930 All. 19.

—Ss. 366 and 376—On a charge under Ss. 366 and 376, the question of the age of the girl is very material and if the girl is less than 14 years of age, although she may have been love smitten and wrote love letters, her consent to acts referred to in Ss. 366 and 376 is in law immaterial. 51 C.L.J. 352=129 Ind. Cas. 834=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 437.

—S. 366-A—Consent of minor does not prevent commission of offence under S. 366-A.

The aim of the provisions of S. 366-A is to prevent immorality and the provisions are framed more with the desire of the safeguarding the public interest of morality than the chastity of one particular woman. The consent therefore of the minor against whom the offence is committed is immaterial. The consent might have been induced and any reason given by the accused to move the girl from one place to another is sufficient inducement. Once the offence of inducement is proved, the girl's subsequent willingness will neither prevent the offence nor reduce the gravity of the offence. 119 Ind. Cas. 14=30 Cr.L.J. 985=10

—S. 366—Custom of rakshasa marriage and subsequent consent by the girl does not prevent the acts technically constituting the offences.

The fact that the rakshasa form is in vogue among the Gonds and the subsequent consent by the girl to the marriage, cannot prevent the previous acts of taking away the girl by force, having sexual intercourse with her, and removal of her braceless to prevent the girl going away, from constituting the offences of wrongful confinement and robbery when they are committed; and it does not even reduce their culpability, but under these circumstances there is no necessity for a heavy sentence. 103 Ind. Cas. 195=28 Cr.L.J. 659=A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 279.

—S. 366—In a case under S. 366, the consent of the girl makes no difference to the offence but it has bearing on the sentence when she is not altogether a child although legally a minor. 95 Ind. Cas. 931=27 Cr.L.J. 851=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 547.

—S. 363—Consent of minor is no defence—But accused should not be severely punished if other circumstances justify.

Although consent of the person kidnapped is no defence to a charge under S. 363 where the accused and the girl are neighbours and for this reason become fond of each other and when her marriage was about to take place the accused decided to take her away and she agreed:

Held, that it is not a bad case of kidnapping though technically it amounts to such and that the accused should not be punished severely. 96 Ind. Cas. 874=27 Cr.L.J. 1018=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 677.

—S. 366—Where a fatherless Muhomedan girl of about 10 or 11 years of age was taken away with the consent of her mother and married against the wishes of her brother who was her guardian for marriage and against her own will.

Held, an offence under S. 366 was committed. In such a case it is unnecessary to consider whether the girl had any right to act of her own free will in the matter. 84 Ind. Cas. 434=26 Cr.L.J. 290=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 578.

—Ss. 361 and 366—Consent of minor—Kidnapping—Consent.

There is no offence under S. 366 where a girl of 15 years is kidnapped out of British India with her consent for unlawful intercourse. 42 Bom. 391=20 Bom. L.R. 372=19 Cr.L.J. 602=45 Ind. Cas. 506.

—Ss. 361 and 90—Consent of minor—Misrepresentation—Evidence Act, S. 3.

If a minor is taken out of the guardian's keeping without guardian's consent, the offence of kidnapping is committed, though the minor consents to his being taken. Consent given under misrepresentation of fact is one given under misconception of fact. Misrepresentation as to intention in taking away is misrepresentation of 'fact' within S. 3 Evidence Act. 17 P.R. 1916 (Cr.)=18 Cr. L.J. 18=36. Ind. Cas. 850.

—S. 361—Consent of minor—Girl under 16 leaving her husband's house of her own free will—Abduction or kidnapping.

Where a girl under sixteen, left her husband and father-in-law out of her own free will and meeting the accused on her way, voluntarily stayed with him for a few days without any fraud or force being practised on her, the accused was neither guilty of abduction nor of kidnapping. 12 A.L.J. 265=15 Cr.L.J. 265=23 Ind. Cas. 473.

—S. 361—Consent of minor—Girl going away of her own free will.

The offence under S. 363 is committed if the accused takes away a minor girl who leaves her parent's house for her infatuation for the accused and asks him to go with her, provided the girl had no intention of not returning to her parents. 11 Cr.L.J. 81=4 Ind. Cas. 901 (U. Bur.).

6. Consent of person kidnapped.

—Ss. 361 and 363—Consent of person kidnapped, obtained by false representations.

The accused induced certain woman (the complainants) to leave British India for Ceylon on the misrepresentation that they were to be married to his sons after arriving at Ceylon. He engaged them as coolies on Tea Estate.

Held, that the women must be held to have been taken without their consent and that the accused was guilty under S. 363. (1910) M.W.N. 262=8 M.L.T. 91=11 Cr.L.J. 368=6 Ind. Cas. 503.

—S. 361—Consent of person kidnapped—Abduction of married woman—Elopement—Elements of offence.

Where evidence for the prosecution, as to a married woman of 20 or 25 years of age being abducted against her will, was not strong and where there were circumstances tending to show that there was elopement, conviction under S. 366 was not justifiable, especially where one of the accused claimed the girl as his fiancée and where she was perhaps dissatisfied with her husband. 2 Lah. L.J. 536.

7. Continuing offence.

—S. 366-A—Offence under, is a continuing offence.

The offence under S. 366-A is a continuing offence. The differences between S. 366 and S. 366-A merely concern the manner of the inducement and the age of the girl and are irrelevant for the question of continuing offence. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 850=38 Cr.L.J. 474=39 P.L.R. 365=167 Ind. Cas. 847.

—S. 366-A—Continuing offence—Forum for prosecution.

An offence under S. 366-A is a continuing offence. Where the offence and abetment is committed at different places by the participants the accused may be jointly tried in the place where the offence was first committed. 53 All. 140=131 Ind. Cas. 246=A.I.R. 1931 All. 55=1930 A.L.J. 1485.

—Ss. 359 to 369—When after inducement offender offers girl to several persons, fresh offence is not committed at every fresh offer of sale.

An offence under S. 366-A, is one of inducement with a particular object and when after inducement the offender offers the girl to several persons a fresh offence is not committed at every fresh offer for sale. Several offers for sale evidence the criminal intention of the offender just as much as one offer for sale. If a person is convicted of seducing the girl he cannot be convicted over again for the same seduction unless in a case where the girl had returned to her parents and then subsequently there had been a fresh seduction. 118 Ind. Cas. 384=1929 A.L.J. 800=10 L.R.A.

—Ss. 362 and 366—Abduction is continuing offence—Each fresh removal is offence.

Certain persons conspired together to induce a Muhammadan girl of about 18 years to accompany them. Their intention was to make her over to the accused for marriage to accused's brother. The girl was brought to a certain place when the accused arrived on receiving a pre-arranged communication. The girl was not made over to him there, but they all started by train towards another direction and at a certain other Railway station got out of the train and told the accused to take charge of the girl. The girl, however, was not ready to accept the company of the stranger, got out of the train and refused to reenter it. The accused thereupon caught hold of her hand and dragged her.

Held, that the accused could not be convicted of abetment of the original offence of abduction. His was a separate offence of abduction when he tried to compel the girl by force to go along with him from the railway station in question. Abduction is a continuing offence. The abduction was not completed when the girl was removed from her home. Every fresh removal of her constituted an offence of abduction. The girl was unwilling to accompany the accused and he was compelling her by force to do so, so he abducted the woman. 86 Ind. Cas. 71=12 O.L.J. 27=2 O.W.N. 17=26 Cr.L.J. 695=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 328.

8. Conviction.

—Ss. 366 and 376—Abduction of girl of 15 years with intent to compel her to marry against her will or to have illicit intercourse—Accused can ordinarily be convicted under S. 366 and not S. 376 unless evidence of that offence is forthcoming. 4 A.I. Cr.D. 642.

—Ss. 366 and 366-A—Two persons charged one under S. 366, for kidnapping only and the other under both parts of S. 366-A—Former acquitted—Conviction of latter for concealing woman knowing her to be kidnapped or abducted.

Where two persons are charged, one under S. 366, for kidnapping a woman and there is no charge of abducting against him, and the other under both parts of S. 366-A for concealing the woman knowing her to be kidnapped or abducted, and the former is acquitted of the charge under S. 366, the latter cannot be convicted of concealing a woman knowing her to be kidnapped, and the case of confining the woman knowing her to be abducted should not go before the jury, the former accused not being charged for abducting a woman. A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 432=49 C.W.N. 533.

—S. 366—Conviction under, when can be challenged.

The conviction on the kidnapping charge can only be challenged on grounds of law. The only ground of law possible in a case of jury trial would be that there was misdirection in the charge to the jury. But where no misdirection is alleged, nor is the Court able to find any, the High Court cannot interfere in appeal with the conviction. A.I.R. 1941 Nag. 94=1940 N.L.J. 565=42 Cr.L.J. 154=A.I.R. (1941) Nag. 157=191 Ind. Cas. 371.

—S. 366—Essential for conviction under.

A conviction under S. 368 can only be maintained if the accused could be charged with the knowledge of the fact that an offence under S. 366 had been committed in respect of the girl abducted. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 180=41 P.L.R. 45=40 Cr.L.J. 684=182 Ind. Cas. 520.

—Ss. 366, 376—Charge under Ss. 366 and 376—Acquittal under S. 376 but conviction under S. 366—Propriety.

There is no necessary inconsistency in jury's acquitting the accused of the main charge of rape under S. 376 and convicting him of abduction under S. 366. The offence of abduction under S. 366 is made out as soon as the accused persons takes away a woman. But, when he has committed the offence of abduction under S. 366 the further question to be decided is whether, when he has had illicit intercourse with the woman, that fact amounts to rape as defined by S. 375. Where a man has illicit intercourse with an adult woman, with her consent it is not rape under the law. In such a case the accused person will be held guilty under S. 366 but not guilty under S. 376. A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 460=39 Cr.L.J. 674=176 Ind. Cas. 104.

—Ss. 364 and 307—Held, accused could not be convicted under S. 364, but under S. 307.

Held, after considering the evidence that there was no evidence to show whether the deceased had died or was alive when he was dragged towards another town and if he was dead, he could not be said to have been abducted as there could not be abduction of a dead person under S. 362. Even if he was alive and was abducted, it was very doubtful if it could be said that he was abducted in order that he might be murdered or might be so disposed of as to be put in danger of being murdered. The nature of the assault made on him showed that the accused did intend to murder him but this assault was made before the abduction and there was at least a possibility that the deceased should have been taken for the sake of concealment. Consequently, the accused could not be convicted under S. 364, Penal Code.

In a case under S. 366, if the object of the accused was to bring pressure to bear on the husband of the woman, it cannot be said that they knew it to be likely that she would be forced or seduced to illicit intercourse.

Where it appeared that by the Judge's direction to the jury, the jury were likely to be misled, that is they were likely to believe that what they had to find, was not that the woman was abducted for illicit intercourse but that she was abducted for the purpose of bringing pressure to bear on her husband, and they brought in a verdict of guilty on this understanding the conviction under S. 366 ought not to stand. A.I.R. 1935 All. 665=(1935) A.L.J. 670=36 Cr.L.J. 826=1935 A.W.R. 695=155 Ind. Cas. 662.

—Ss. 359 to 369—Conviction and sentence.

Where it was not stated in the complaint that the girl alleged to be kidnapped was a minor, nor were other necessary ingredients of an offence under S. 363 disclosed in the evidence led by the prosecution, but the Magistrate suo motu framed an additional charge under that section and convicted the accused who is already convicted under S. 498 at the same trial.

Held, conviction under S. 363 cannot stand. 110 Ind. Cas. 794=11 A.I.Cr.R. 35=29 Cr.L.J. 762=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 898.

—Ss. 366 and 376—Though the offences under, S. 366 and S. 376 may appear to overlap each other they are essentially distinct from each other. This being so, separate conviction under the two sections are perfectly correct. A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 88, Foll. 109 Ind. Cas. 213=10 A.I.Cr.R. 216=29 Cr.L.J. 485 (Lah.).

—Ss. 366 and 376—Where the proved facts in the case established two distinct offences falling under Ss. 366 and 376, respectively the accused can be convicted separately for each offence. A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 88, Foll. 107 Ind. Cas. 388=29 Cr.L.J. 248 (Lah.).

—Ss. 363 and 365—Where persons are kidnapped with the object of holding them to ransom the kidnapper is guilty under S. 363 or S. 365 but not under S. 364, Indian Penal Code. 91 Ind. Cas. 240=27 Cr.L.J. 64 (Lah.).

—S. 368—Section 368 refers to some other party who assists in concealing any person who had been kidnapped and does not refer to the kidnappers, and therefore, a kidnapper cannot be convicted under S. 368; 6 W.R. 17 (Cr.), Foll. 97 Ind. Cas. 960=2 Luck. 249=13 O.L.J. 739=3 O.W.N. 687=27 Cr.L.J. 1200=A.I.R. 1926 Oudh 560.

—S. 363—A boy under 14 years of age was kept in charge of the applicant who was to teach him Quran and feed him with the money of the boy's father. The applicant ran away with the boy to a distant place with the object of teaching him painting scenes.

—Ss. 361, 364 and 365—Abduction to extort money—Confinement.

When a person is abducted in order that money may be extorted from his relatives S. 364 would not apply as danger to life of the abducted person does not follow as a matter of course. A conviction under S. 365 is justifiable because the abductor had the interest to secretly and wrongfully confine him. 6 L.B.R. 160=14 Cr.L.J. 167=6 Bur. L.T. 77=19 Ind. Cas. 167.

—Ss. 361 and 363—Kidnapping—Motive—Punishment.

For a conviction under S. 363, it was sufficient to prove that the minor was taken away from the custody of a lawful guardian without his consent. Motive had nothing to say to the offence of kidnapping (see S. 361, Indian Penal Code) though it might have much to say to the punishment. Consent given by the guardian after the commission of the offence would not cure it. (1909) 6 A.L.J. 682=31 A. 448=3 Ind. Cas. 480=10 Cr.L.J. 295.

9. Defence.

—S. 366-A—Profit by conveying girl to other persons.

Where a girl who is already seduced by some but left alone is taken away by the accused, with a view to profit from her sex and her youth by conveying her to some man other than her original seducer, he cannot claim immunity from a conviction under S. 366 in respect to this young and helpless girl on the ground that other men had previously taken advantage of her. A.I.R. 1937 All. 353=1937 A.L.J. 547=38 Cr.L.J. 621=1937 A.W.R. 203=168 Ind. Cas. 833.

—S. 366—The unchastity of the kidnapped girl before her abduction is no defence. 1935 M.W.N. 358.

—S. 366—Unchastity of woman.

There can be seduction even in the case of a woman who had at one time surrendered her chastity provided that at the time of the abduction she had returned to a life of chastity. The question whether the life of chastity to which she returned was the result of her enforced separation from her lover or was voluntary, makes no difference in law for the purpose of attracting the provisions of S. 366. 160 Ind. Cas. 255=18 N.L.J. 49=37 Cr.L.J. 270.

—S. 366-A—The fact that the accused bona fide believed or had reasonable grounds for believing that the girl was over the prescribed age is no defence to a charge under S. 366-A, nor is the fact that the accused did not know that the girl was married, a valid defence. A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 555=33 Cr.L.J. 673=33 P.L.R. 727=138 Ind. Cas. 597.

—S. 361—If it turns out that the girl was under 16 years of age, the accused, even if he honestly believed her to be over 16, cannot protect himself as he must be deemed to have acted at his peril. 113 Ind. Cas. 765=1929 A.L.J. 114=10 L.R.A. Cr. 40=11 A.I.Cr.R. 257=30 Cr.L.J. 218=A.I.R. 1929 All. 82.

—S. 366—Illicit intercourse does not cease to be one, merely because it is repeated. If the intention is to kidnap the girl in order to seduce her to illicit intercourse, the fact of previous intimacy with her is wholly immaterial. 113 Ind. Cas. 765=1929 A.L.J. 114=10 L.R.A. Cr. 40=11 A.I.Cr.R. 257=30 Cr.L.J. 218=A.I.R. 1929 All. 82.

—S. 361—Section 361 is framed in such terms as to make it immaterial what the offender took the age of the girl or victim to be. S. 76 has no application in such a case. 1929 Cr.C. 379=A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 651.

—S. 366—Although girl has lost her chastity she can be seduced.

It is not a correct proposition that once a girl has lost her chastity, she cannot be seduced since she has no chastity to lose. On each occasion that a woman is persuaded to indulge in illicit intercourse, she is being tempted into sin and so seduced within the meaning of S. 366. 99 Ind. Cas. 98=21 S.L.R. 356=7 A.I.Cr.R. 181=28 Cr.L.J. 66=A.I.R. 1927 Sind 104.

—S. 366—Fact that the girl intended to have illicit intercourse is no defence.

One object of the section is not only to protect the rights of parents and others having the lawful guardianship of girls under the age of sixteen, but also to protect the girls themselves and to prevent persons taking improper advantage of their youth and inexperience. The facts that the girls, at the time they were enticed away from their home by the accused had the intention of having illicit intercourse with him is no defence to the charge under S. 366. 72 Ind. Cas. 379=49 Cal. 905=24 Cr.L.J. 379=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 508.

10. Essentials and Scope of offence.*—S. 361—Ingredients of offence—"Taking"—Meaning of—Abandonment of guardian by minor girl—What constitutes.

In order to support a conviction of kidnapping a girl from lawful guardianship the ingredients to be satisfied are:—(1) that the girl was under 16 years of age, (2) such minor was in the keeping of a lawful guardian, and (3) the accused took or enticed such person, out of such keeping and such taking was done without the consent of the lawful guardian.

The word "taking" as used in S. 361, Indian Penal Code, does not mean a continuing or continuous act. The "taking" which constitutes an offence is completed as soon as the girl is removed from the keeping of the lawful guardian. The mere fact that a minor leaves the protection of her guardian does not put her out of the guardian's keeping. If, however, it is proved that a minor had abandoned her guardian with no intention of returning back she cannot, thereafter, be deemed to continue in the keeping of the guardian. What will be deemed to be sufficient to constitute an abandonment of a guardian by a minor girl depends on the facts of each particular case. It cannot be that whenever a child being taken to task by the guardian leaves the guardian's house with the mental reservation that he or she will not be returning back to be under that guardian it must in the eye of law be taken to put an end to the protection of the guardian at the sweet will of the minor. If it is shown that such conduct is due to a mere petulant outburst in consequence either of a quarrel with her relations or because of the guardian reprimanding her for her conduct that will be a relevant question to be considered for deciding whether her conduct was sufficient to put an end to the ties of guardianship.

Even where there is some evidence that the girl, at the time when she left the protection of her guardian, did not intend to come back to her father's place but the evidence further discloses that but for something which the accused consented to do and did ultimately do the minor would not have, in the natural course of events, left the house of her father then these would be a sufficient taking by the accused in the eye of the law for attracting the provisions of the section. A.I.R. 1950 Cal. 406=54 C.W.N. 329=51 Cr.L.J. 1486.

The most essential ingredient of the offence under S. 361, Indian Penal Code, is that the minor should have been "taken" by the accused "out of the keeping" of his lawful guardian. If, therefore, a minor girl voluntarily leaves the roof of her guardian and when out of his house comes across another, who treats her with kindness, or at least without employing any force or practising any fraud on her, he cannot be held guilty under the section. I.L.R. (1950) A. 787=1950 A.W.R. 98=A.I.R. 1949 All. 710=51 Cr.L.J. 29.

—S. 364—Ingredients of offence.

In order to establish a charge of abduction in order to murder, when the case is one of abduction by deceitful means, it is not enough for the prosecution merely to prove certain circumstances under which the abducted person was induced to go, nor even to prove a mere misrepresentation. They must prove that there was a misrepresentation, that particular misrepresentation was the result of a plan to murder and that it was one by which the abducted person was himself deceived and was induced to go. 41 C.W.N. 287, applied. 1 D.R. 169=A.I.R. 1949 Dacca 21=50 Cr.L.J. 1008.

—S. 366-A—Scope—Essentials—Intention and knowledge.

If a person induces a girl to go from one place to another for the purpose of seducing her himself, the offence is not one which comes within the purview of S. 366-A. The section is aimed at procurers. The prosecution must prove that the accused intended that the girl would be forced or seduced to illicit intercourse with some one other than himself or that the accused knew that it was likely that she would be so forced or seduced. The existence of this specific intention or knowledge is most important element in the constitution of the offence under S. 366-A and it is the duty of the Judge to ask the jury to consider the evidence and to decide whether the evidence conclusively proved such intention or knowledge. A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 432=49 C.W.N. 533.

—S. 364—Essentials to be proved to establish offence under S. 364, stated.

To establish an offence punishable under S. 364, it must be proved that the person charged with the offence had the intention at the time of the abduction that the person abducted would be murdered or would be so disposed of as to be put in danger of being murdered. Even if after the abduction the accused person placed the abducted person in danger of being murdered, that would not establish the charge of abduction punishable under S. 364 against him. It would be necessary for the Crown to establish that he intended at the time of the abduction to place the abducted person in a position which would put her in danger of being murdered. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 561=71 C.L.J. 597=42 Cr.L.J. 285=192 Ind. Cas. 352.

—Ss. 361 and 363—If should be read together.

Per full Bench (Beaumont, C. J. dissentiente.):—Section 361 must be read with S. 363 and the offence of kidnapping from lawful guardianship penalised by the latter section is the offence which is defined in the former. Consequently, such an offence can be committed only when the person kidnapped is under 14 if a male and under 16, if a female. The offence punishable under S. 363, in the case of minors is that contemplated in S. 361, and not one comprising all minors in lawful guardianship. A.I.R. 1933 Bom. 417=57 Bom. 537=35 Bom. L.R. 886=34 Cr.L.J. 1239=146 Ind. Cas. 248 (F.B.).

—S. 366-A (As amended in 1923)—Under S. 366-A, the person who induces a girl of an age between the years 16 and 18 without force or fraud to go from any place with the intention that she will have illicit intercourse with himself does not commit any offence. The new section, however, makes it an offence in the case of such girl if she is induced by a person to go from any place with intent that she may be or knowing that it is likely that she will be forced or seduced to illicit intercourse with another person. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 362=37 C.W.N. 317=34 Cr. L.J. 341=142 Ind. Cas. 308.

—Ss. 359 to 365—The inducement to leave must have for its object seduction by another person and not by the person who himself induces the woman to leave. 1930 A.L.J. 1113=125 Ind. Cas. 577=A.I.R. 1930 All. 497.

—S. 366—It is not necessary for a conviction under S. 366 that the accused should know definitely who the guardian of a minor girl is, whom he finds wandering about and makes use of her for his own ends. 81 Ind. Cas. 529=27 O.C. 32=25 Cr. L.J. 913=A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 335.

—Intent specified in S. 366 may be inferred from circumstances and subsequent conduct of parties.

There are two ingredients of an offence under Section 366. First there must be a kidnapping or an abduction as defined in Section 361 or Section 362 of the Penal Code, and secondly the kidnapping or the abduction must be done with the intent or with the knowledge or with the object that certain things will happen as specified in Section 366. The intent with which a woman is abducted or kidnapped is more or less a matter of inference. There may be some cases in which the matter is capable of direct proof, but very generally one has to infer from the circumstances of the case and the subsequent conduct of the accused as to what was the intention with which the kidnapping or the abduction had been brought about. But the circumstances of the case which though incriminating to outward appearances may yet be capable of a perfectly good and reasonable explanation and may be fully compatible with the innocence of the accused. In such cases it would be for the accused to explain away the incriminating circumstances and to prove that he had no improper or sinister object in view. 67 Ind. Cas. 731=3 L.L.J. 574=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 323.

—Ss. 361 and 366—Essentials of the offence—"Married woman"—Abduction.

Abduction of a married woman comes under S. 366, the word 'marriage' meaning merely observing a form of marriage irrespective of the actual validity or otherwise of the marriage. 45 Cal. 641=22 C.W.N. 695=27 C.L.J. 436=19 Cr. L.J. 640=45 Ind. Cas. 688.

—S. 361—Essentials of the offence—Kidnapping from unlawful guardianship—Abetment.

For an offence under S. 361 there must be established (1) a taking or enticing, (2) the girl's age was less than 16, (3) she was in the keeping of the lawful guardian, and (4) absence of consent by the guardian to her removal. The offence is not a continuing one but is complete as soon as the minor is enticed or taken out of the keeping of the lawful guardian. The Code makes a distinction between taking and returning and between taking and detaining and concealing. When there is no evidence that he co-accused did not act in concert before the girl was taken, the former cannot be convicted of abetment. 15 O.C. 351=14 Cr.L.J. 93=18 Ind. Cas. 653.

—S. 361—Essentials of the offence—Kidnapping—Elements of.

Evidence that the minor was taken out of the keeping of its lawful guardian without his consent is necessary to establish the offence of kidnapping. 6 Bur. L.T. 21=14 Cr. L.J. 149=19 Ind. Cas. 149 (F.B.).

—S. 361—Essentials of the offence—Mere carrying off a woman by force, if amounts to abduction.

To constitute the offence of abduction, a mere carrying off a woman by force is not enough; there should further be evidence of an intention to marry her against her will or to force her to illicit intercourse. 12 P.W.R. 1911 (Cr.)=193 P.L.R. 1911=12 Cr.L.J. 393=11 Ind. Cas. 577.

—Ss. 366 and 109—Kidnapping from lawful guardianship—Kidnapping not a continuing offence—Abetment.

The offence of kidnapping minor is complete as soon as he or she is entered or taken out of the keeping of his or her lawful guardian. The taking of a minor from lawful custody is not the same as keeping the minor out of such custody and therefore during the time the minor is kept out of the custody of his other guardian, the offence of kidnapping does not continue; consequently a person who assists a person who kidnapped after the enticement in keeping the minor cannot be convicted of abetment of kidnapping unless the kidnapping was itself the outcome of a preconcert. 19 A. 109 and 2 C.W.N. 81, Foll. (1903) A.W.N. 233=26 A. 197.

11. Evidence and Proof.

- (a) Evidence of abducted woman—Value of.
- (b) Proof necessary.
- (c) Sufficiency of evidence.
- (d) Miscellaneous.

—S. 366—Proof of offence—Evidence of abducted woman—Value of.

In a case under S. 366, Indian Penal Code, the evidence of the abducted woman is no doubt important, but it has to be received with caution. I.L.R. (1949) A. 237=A.I.R. 1949 All. 139=50 Cr. L.J. 158.

—S. 366-A—Conviction—Proof—Evidence of victim—Corroboration—Necessity—Victim's evidence found false in some respects—Recovery of girl from house of accused—Conviction—Sustainability.

It cannot be absolutely laid down that in cases under S. 366-A Indian Penal Code, the evidence of the girl always needs corroboration. But where it is found that the girl in question has been definitely lying on important points in her story, it is unsafe to rely on other parts of her evidence to convict any person of a criminal offence unless that evidence is corroborated on material points. The presence of the girl in the house of the accused and the fact that she was recovered from that house cannot be taken as a material point for the purpose of corroboration of the evidence of the girl. 13 B.R. 350=229 Ind. Held, that the abduction was not proved and that the conviction must be set aside. 100 Ind. Cas. 357=27 P.L.R. 747=28 Cr. L.J. 277=7 A.I.Cr.R. 408.

(c). Sufficiency of evidence.

—S. 363—Section 363 is a penal statute and not a mere rule of morality or ethics and must be strictly construed. The mere fact that the girl was found in the company of the accused is not sufficient to establish the prosecution case. The prosecution must prove that the accused either took or enticed the minor girl from her home. 42 P.L.R. 25.

—S. 364—Evidence for conviction.

An accused was convicted under S. 364, Penal Code. There was no evidence of the commission of this offence, except the statement made by the accused to the Sub-Inspector of Police. Moreover, the whole of this statement was not admissible under S. 27, Evidence Act. The sole evidence relevant under S. 364 was that of the mother of abducted person who merely said that the accused accompanied her son just before his abduction :

Held, that there was no legal evidence for conviction under S. 364. A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 593=1939 M.W.N. 519=(1939) 2 M.L.J. 487=40 Cr. L.J. 849=50 L.W. 518=184 Ind. Cas. 99.

—S. 366-A—Selling girl for immoral purpose.

There mere circumstance that the accused accompanied a person who was alleged to have raped the girl or that he was trying to sell the girl possibly for immoral purposes, may be suspicious but is not sufficient to establish the essential ingredient of the offence under S. 366-A. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 684=40 P.L.R. 903=39 Cr. L.J. 967=177 Ind. Cas. 938.

—Ss. 366 and 367—Mere presence at time of kidnapping.

Where there is no evidence to show that a person did any overt act in furtherance of the act of kidnapping or took or enticed the minor within the definition given in S. 361, the mere facts that he happened to be present when the minor was kidnapped, that he followed the kidnapper and was present in the house where the minor girl was married, do not, taken either singly or collectively, establish a charge against him under S. 366. A.I.R. 1933 Oudh. 62=9 O.W.N. 1049=34 Cr. L.J. 337(2)=142 Ind. Cas. 813.

—S. 366—Seduction resulting in abduction need not be proved to be separate from that resulting in illicit intercourse.

In order to have conviction under S. 366 it is not necessary to establish by independent evidence that the girl was seduced to illicit intercourse and that such seduction was separate from and independent of the original seduction which resulted in her abduction. The proximity of both the events is an important factor and so long as the Court is satisfied that the effect of inducement which was the cause of abduction continued till the time of the illicit intercourse, it is legally open to it to hold that the girl was seduced to illicit sexual intercourse. 101 Ind. Cas. 189=28 Cr.L.J. 413=8 A.I.Cr.R. 41=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 370.

—Ss. 359 to 369—Evidence and proof—Incriminating evidence not inconsistent with innocence of accused—Conviction is not proper.

In a prosecution under S. 364, where there was no incriminatory evidence whatsoever against the accused beyond the fact that he and the deceased left together and were last seen together, and that the one returned without the other :

Held, that although circumstances lead to a high degree of suspicion against the accused, they cannot be said to be inconsistent, with any reasonable theory in accused's favour other than that the accused lured the deceased away for the purpose of having him murdered, or being exposed to the danger of being murdered, and hence no conviction could be safely had. 103 Ind. Cas. 838=8 A.I.Cr.R. 575=9 L.L.J. 396=28 Cr.L.J. 758=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 658.

—Ss. 359 to 369—Evidence and proof.

A woman, while going to her home, was met by two ruffians, one of whom caught hold of the woman by her arm and dragged her a short distance, when she was rescued by her neighbours. There was no evidence to indicate as to what their real intention was.

Held, that under these circumstances the accused could not be convicted under S. 366 but under S. 354. 109 Ind. Cas. 127=10 A.I.Cr.R. 207=29 P.L.R. 444=10 L.L.J. 325=29 Cr. L.J. 479.

—S. 366—B having lived at D for some time came back to M where his wife was living and told her that as he had got work at D, she should go with him to D to cook for him. In that way he induced her to leave M for D. When they reached D, they were met by one S and they all went together to the house of a woman K. When B's wife went to the house of K, she was told by K that her husband had sold her to S, for Rs. 150 and that S would give her presents and make her happy. S also told her the same thing and asked her to come and live with him. B, S and K were all charged under S. 366.

Held, that the question was not merely whether the jury was satisfied that S made immoral proposal to the woman at D or whether the jury were satisfied that K was a woman who kept a house of a disorderly and disreputable character but the question which the jury had to answer was whether it was shown that the offence of the husband under S. 366 was abetted by S and K under S. 107; and the only way in which that could be made out was to see whether there was sufficient proof that before the husband left D for M he had a bargain with these people to that effect, that they knew that the girl could not be brought to D except by deceitful means and that, therefore, they abetted the offence under S. 366. 99 Ind. Cas. 236=44 C.L.J. 317=28 Cr. L.J. 108.

—S. 368—Evidence, that the accused said that they wanted to sell the girl is not sufficient for a conviction for an offence under S. 368. The prosecution has to prove that the accused concealed the girl or kept her in wrongful confinement. 93 Ind. Cas. 1050=27 Cr. L.J. 554=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 384.

—S. 366—Evidence—Jury—Question of sufficiency of evidence to justify finding of jury—Conspiracy Act No. XLV of 1860 (Indian Penal Code), S. 366.

One Kandhai meeting of young Ahir girl outside the Fort at Allahabad, took her against her will into the Fort, and there had forcible connection with her. Immediately after this, Rahmatullah, an ekka driver and two other persons, Bhagwan and Madho, appeared on the scene with an ekka, and took the girl off to a sarai in the city, and there the three had, or attempted to have, forcible connection with her. The girl was taken for the night to the house of Rahmatullah, but was brought back in the morning, and apparently returned to the custody of Kandhai and she spent that day, if not the following night, in his house. All four of the persons concerned had work about the Fort, and they were all previously acquainted with each other.

Held upon these facts that it could not be said that there was no evidence upon which a jury could find a conspiracy to kidnap against all four men. (1902) A.W.N. 143.

—S. 368—Benefit of doubt.

Where the whole story of kidnapping or abduction has been disbelieved and the account given by the accused himself of the presence of the girl in his house is not an incredible story, and it is quite possible that it is at any rate partially true, the accused is entitled to the benefit of the doubt. 157 Ind. Cas. 168=1935 A.W.R. 788=36 Cr.L.J. 1089.

—S. 366—Cohabitation—Presumption of marriage.

When the law presumes the affirmative, then the negative is to be proved. Thus, where it is admitted by the complainant that there had been sexual intercourse between a man and a woman, the mere cohabitation affords an inference of greater or less strength that a marriage has been solemnized between them. The law, therefore, presumes against vice and immorality and on this ground, the presumption is strongly in favour of marriage; so under S. 366, is the duty of the prosecution to prove the negative. A.I.R. 1934 Sind 119=36 Cr.L.J. 62(2)=28 S.L.R. 285=151 Ind. Cas. 984.

(c) Knowledge and intention—Presumption.

—Ss. 362, 364, 365 and 366—Offence of abduction.

S. 362, Indian Penal Code, merely defines what "abduction" is. It does not define an offence. Abduction becomes an offence only when it is accompanied by one of the three intentions described in Ss. 364, 365 and 366, Indian Penal Code. 51 Cr.L.J. 408=A.I.R. 1950 Assam 37.

—S. 366—Mere abduction without criminal intent of one of the kinds specified in the Penal Code is not recognised as an offence. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 227=35 Cr. L.J. 1386=151 Ind. Cas. 741 (2).

—Ss. 366 and 354—Outraging modesty.

Abduction is in itself no offence. It is only when the intention of either marrying the woman against her will or forcing her to subject herself to illicit intercourse is proved that abduction becomes an offence under S. 366. Otherwise the mere act of assault and outraging the modesty of a woman is covered by S. 354 and not by S. 366. A.I.R. 1934 Pesh. 69=35 Cr.L.J. 1273=151 Ind. Cas. 103.

—S. 365—Section 365 makes punishable the offence of abduction with intent to cause the person abducted to be secretly and wrongfully confined. 92 Ind. Cas. 213=7 L.L.J. 520=26 P.L.R. 733=27 Cr.L.J. 229=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 614.

—S. 362—Abduction in itself constitutes no offence and only becomes an offence when certain criminal intents are proved. 75 Ind. Cas. 297=24 Cr.L.J. 921 (Lah.).

—S. 366—Abduction—No improper object—Offence.

Abduction per se is not an offence under the law of India when unaccompanied by any of the intentions mentioned in S. 366. (1901) 6 C.W.N. 209=L.R. 29 I.A. 9=4 Bom. L.R. 238=12 M.L.J. 73=29 Cal. 154 (P.C.).

S. 366-A of the Penal Code would be applicable only if at the time of the removal of the girl there was an intention on the part of the accused to have sexual intercourse with her. 1947 A.W.R. (C.C.) 56=230 Ind. Cas. 144=1947 O.W.N. 180=1947 O.A. (C.C.) 56=1947 A Cr.C. 109=48 Cr.L.C. 542=A.I.R. 1948 Oudh. 1.

—S. 366—Intention and knowledge.

Married girl of 14 years married by accused to another person on taking bride price from him. There could have been no intent to marry the girl against her will since there could be no legal marriage; there was certainly an intent that she should be seduced to what would be in the circumstances, illicit intercourse, and at the lowest the accused certainly knew that it was likely that the girl would be forced or seduced to illicit intercourse. All the elements, therefore, necessary to constitute an offence under S. 366 were established. A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 212=44 Cr. L.J. 590=22 Pat. 268=207 Ind. Cas. 420.

—S. 365—Husband, if can compel his wife to leave her parents' home and join him.

The intention of persons charged under S. 365 at the time of abduction can be deduced only from what they subsequently did.

Under the Indian Law, a woman is not a slave and there is no justification for the suggestion that a husband is entitled to use force to compel his wife to leave her parents' house and join him. A.I.R. 1936 All. 360=1936 A.L.J. 340=1936 A.W.R. 441=37 Cr. L.J. 827=163 Ind. Cas. 301.

—Ss. 363 and 368—Kidnapped child left with accused.

The accused's brother having kidnapped three children left one of them with the accused and disappeared with the other two. The accused, finding it difficult to maintain himself, sought the help of a neighbour who, finding out who the guardian of the child was, sent it to the guardian. The accused was charged under S. 363, Penal Code:

Held, that mere knowledge that his brother kidnapped the child could not bring home the offence to the accused, and that he was not liable under S. 363 or under S. 368. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 392=34 Cr.L.J. 1177=146 Ind. Cas. 42.

—Ss. 366, 366-A—Ingredients.

The essential ingredient of an offence under S. 366 or 366-A is that the accused intended or knew that it was likely that the abducted woman might or would be compelled to marry a person against her will or that she might or would be forced or seduced to illicit intercourse. In the absence of evidence as to such intention or knowledge on the part of a person, he cannot be held guilty of the offence under S. 366, however reprehensible his conduct might have been otherwise. A.I.R. 1933 Oudh 45=9 O.W.N. 1181=34 Cr.L.J. 220=141 Ind. Cas. 741.

—S. 361—Intention to marry child in contravention of Child Marriage Restraint Act.

An intention to give a child in marriage in contravention of the Child Marriage Restraint Act, 1929, is an "unlawful purpose" within the exception to S. 361, Penal Code, on the ground that if the purpose is carried out, the person giving child in marriage is liable to conviction and punishment for a criminal offence.

—Ss. 361, Excep. & 366—Intention—Gist of offence.

The intention of the accused is the basis and gravamen of an offence under S. 366, Penal Code. Hence, in considering whether an offence has been committed under this section, the volition, the intention and the conduct of the woman are nihil ad rem, except in so far as they bear upon the intent with which the accused kidnapped or abducted her.

Normally where a little girl under twelve years of age is taken out of the keeping of the guardian without the guardian's consent, the act of the accused would arouse suspicion and where it also transpires that the child, within two months of being kidnapped, is given in marriage by the accused, it would not require a great stretch of imagination for the jury to conclude that the accused, when he kidnapped the little girl intended to compel her to marry wilfully and in spite of her opposition. But to hold, that where the accused had kidnapped a little girl under twelve years of age with intent to give her in marriage a presumptio juri et de jure arises that the accused kidnapped the child with intent to compel her, or knowing that it to be likely that she will be compelled to marry against her will, would be to travel outside the ambit of S. 366.

Before the accused can be convicted of an offence under the first part of S. 366 the Court must be satisfied as a matter of fact upon the evidence that the accused, when he kidnapped or abducted the woman, whatever her age might be, did so with intent to compel her or knowing it to be likely that she would be compelled to marry against her will, that is to say, in spite of her opposition; and unless such an intent is proved, the accused is entitled to be acquitted. —S. 366 is only an aggravated form of the offence created by S. 363, and where the girl kidnapped from lawful guardianship is under the age of 16 years, the intention of the accused in kidnapping her is the material matter and not the consent or willingness or otherwise of the kidnapped girl and if the intention of the accused is to give her in marriage, conviction under S. 366 is right. 93 Ind. Held, the intention of the party on carrying away the girl was not merely to bring pressure to bear on her grandmother but was to force the girl to marry accused. 77 Ind. Cas. 997=4 L.L.J. 322=25 Cr. L.J. 533=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 410.

—Ss. 361, 366—Abduction with intent to defile a lady—Offence.

(c). Knowledge and intention—Presumption.

—S. 364—In a case under S. 364, depending on circumstantial evidence, the question of motive, is of great importance, and where there is absence of motive it is the duty of the Judge to emphasise this absence of motive which is a circumstance in favour of the accused. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 561=71 C.L.J. 597=42 Cr. L.J. 285=192 Ind. Cas. 352.

—S. 366—Where an accused charged under S. 366 suggested that his intention was to lawfully marry the girl and it was admitted that the parties being of different castes could not marry according to Hindu Law, and also that the girl being below 21 years of age, they could not marry under Special Marriage Act, without the consent of her lawful guardian, i.e. her father :

Held, that the marriage not being practicable, the accused must have contemplated illicit intercourse. A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 551=39 Cr.L.J. 835=42 C.W.N. 896=177 Ind. Cas. 29.

—S. 366—Presumption as to intention.

Even a forcible abduction does not amount to an offence under S. 366, Penal Code, unless there are other ingredients, namely the intention either that the girl should be seduced or forced to illicit intercourse or that she should be compelled to marry against her will. In a case under S. 366, there can seldom be direct evidence as to the actual intention of the abductor and that intention must be inferred from the circumstances. Section 114, Evidence Act, provides that the Court may presume the existence of any fact which it thinks likely to have happened, regard being had to the common course of natural events, human conduct and public and private business, in their relation to the facts of the particular case. Human nature being what it is whenever one finds a young man abducting a girl of marriageable age, the first and natural presumption must be that he has abducted her with the intention of having sexual intercourse with her, either forcibly or with her consent after seduction or after marrying her. If he has any intention other than that which is suggested by the natural circumstances of the case, the burden lies upon him under S. 106, Evidence Act, to prove that intention. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 474=40 P.L.R. 730=39 Cr.L.J. 844=177 Ind. Cas. 97.

—S. 366—Intention can be inferred from conduct of accused and circumstances of case.

In a case under S. 366, it is the duty of the prosecution to prove that the abduction took place with the intention mentioned in the section ; but then the intention can also be inferred from the conduct of the accused and the circumstances of the case. Ordinarily it is not possible for the prosecution to establish the intention except by proving the conduct. A girl of about 14 years was forcibly abducted by the accused.

Held, that no inference except of the intention such as is mentioned in S. 366 is possible. 123 Ind. Cas. 528=1930 Cr. C. 20=31 Cr.L.J. 529=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 52.

—S. 366—Presumption—When woman is kidnapped it is with one or other intents mentioned in S. 366.

It is practically impossible for the prosecution in case of kidnapping and abduction to establish affirmatively the intention with which a woman is abducted. But it is a fair and justifiable presumption that when any woman is kidnapped or abducted it is undoubtedly with one or other of the intents specified in S. 366. The intention is more or less a matter of inference though there may be cases where the matter is capable of direct proof. It is for the accused to explain away incriminating circumstances. 120 Ind. Cas. 606=1930 Cr.C. 171=31 Cr.L.J. 131=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 163.

—Ss. 359 to 369—Intention—Persons selling girl with knowledge or intention that she would be subjected to illicit intercourse are guilty—It is not necessary that accused should know that girl is married.

D having quarrelled with her husband left her house with the idea of going to her grandfather. She met S and N on the way who offered to escort her. Instead of doing so, they tried to sell her and being unsuccessful concealed her in the house of S where she was later on traced by her relations. It was contended that S did not know that D was a married girl.

Held, that even assuming that S did not know that D was a married girl, his attempt to sell her clearly made him liable under S. 366-A. The manner in which S tried to dispose of D was clear indication of his intention or knowledge that the girl would be subjected to illicit intercourse. The conduct of N also showed his guilty knowledge and intention. 1930 Cr.C. 531=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 463=127 Ind. Cas. 159.

—S. 366—Intention under S. 366 is a matter of inference from the circumstances of the case and subsequent conduct of the accused after the abduction has taken place. A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 323, Foll. 110 Ind. Cas. 99=10 A.I.Cr. R. 429=29 Cr.L.J. 643 (Lah.).

—Ss. 361, 366—Presumption of intent or knowledge to abduct.

13. Jurisdiction.

—S. 366—Order for custody of girl after trial is over.

After trial is over, order for custody of girl with reference to whom the offences were committed is wholly without jurisdiction. A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 756=38 C.W.N. 1211=36 Cr.L.J. 231 (1)=152 Ind. Cas. 973.

—S. 361—Jurisdiction to try the offence—Place of offence.

A person charged with having committed the offence of kidnapping at a place outside British India, cannot be tried by a Court in British India though the person kidnapped may be concealed or detained in British India. 20 C.W.N. 62=17 Cr.L.J. 128=33 Ind. Cas. 304.

—S. 361—Order of Magistrate—Ultra vires.

An order by a Magistrate making over a minor girl to the maternal uncle on certain conditions and entrusting her to a trustee until fulfilment of those conditions, is ultra vires. 1 O.L.J. 416=15 Cr.L.J. 640=25 Ind. Cas. 840.

14. Interpretation.

(a) Against the will and without the consent of.

(c) Deceitful means and illicit intercourse.

(g) Keeping.

(h) Seducing to illicit intercourse.

—S. 366—Though every act done “against the will” of a person is done “without his consent” yet an act done “without the consent” of a person is not necessarily “against his will”, which expression imports that the act is done in spite of the opposition of the person to the doing of it. A.I.R. 1933 Rang. 98=11 R. 213=34 Cr.L.J. 696=143 Ind. Cas. 872 (F.B.).

—S. 368—‘Concealment’, meaning of.

“Concealment” means a withdrawal from the actual observation of others of the person kidnapped or abducted and not merely taking her away to a long distance so that her father or guardian would not know where she was.

Where a kidnapped girl is taken to a well where she is allowed to move in the neighbouring fields, it cannot be said that she is concealed. A.I.R. 1939 Lih. 26=41 P.L.R. 162=40 Cr.L.J. 277=179 Ind. Cas. 874.

—S. 368—It is doubtful whether it is possible to read into the words “the offence of kidnapping or abduction” the words “wrongfully concealing or keeping in confinement a kidnapped person”, and although the punishment under S. 368 is the same as that under S. 365 the offences are not the same. 46 All. 138=21 A.L.J. 912=5 L.R.A. (Cr.) 49=25 Cr.L.J. 552=A.I.R. 1924 All. 454.=81 Ind. Cas. 40.

(c) Deceitful means and illicit intercourse.

—Ss. 362 and 366—“Deceitful means”—“Illicit intercourse”.

Held, (1) that the expression “deceitful means” as used in S. 362, is wide enough to include the inducing of a girl to leave her guardian’s house by means of a representation that the person to whom she went would either marry her himself or arrange for the marriage; (2) that the words “illicit intercourse,” as used in S. 366 mean merely sexual intercourse between a man and a woman who are not husband and wife. (1907) A.W.N. 199=4 A.L.J. 482.

—S. 361—The expression “enticing” involves that, while the person kidnapped might have left the keeping of the lawful guardian willingly, still the state of mind that brought about that willingness must have been induced or brought about in some way by the accused. 109 Ind. Cas. 907=27 M.L.W. 683=29 Cr.L.J. 635=1 M.Cr.C. 65=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 585=54 M.L.J. 456.

—S. 362—“Force”—Meaning of.

The word “force” in S. 362, Indian Penal Code, means actual force and not merely a show or threat of force. I.L.R. (1950) A. 787=1950 A.W.R. 98=A.I.R. 1919 All. 710=51 Cr.L.J. 29.

—S. 366—The word ‘forced’ as used in S. 366, is used in its ordinary dictionary sense and would include forced by stress of circumstances. 50 C.L.J. 593=1930 Cr.C. 209=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 209=57 Cal. 1074=125 Ind. Cas. 656.

—S. 362—“To induce” means “to lead into,”; it connotes a leading of the woman in some direction in which she would not otherwise have gone. There must be a change of mind caused by an external pressure of some kind. A.I.R. 1934 Sind 164=36 Cr.L.J. 231 (2)=152 Ind. Cas. 1061.

—Ss. 359 to 369—The word “induce,” is used in its ordinary meaning of any words of inducement flowing from one person to the girl. 1930 A.L.J. 1113=125 Ind. Cas. 577=A.I.R. 1930 All. 497.

(g). Keeping.

—S. 361—“Keeping”—Meaning of—Minor married girl leaving husband’s house after a quarrel to seek temporary shelter with a relation—If continues in the keeping of her husband’s guardianship.

A married girl under 16 years of age who leaves her husband’s house of her own accord after a quarrel and is proceeding to the house of a near relation with the idea of seeking temporary shelter with him, does not cease to be in the keeping of her lawful guardian and a person who induces her at the time to go with him is guilty of kidnapping. Her seeking protection with a near relation is not at all inconsistent with the continuity of her being in the keeping of the guardianship of her husband. The minor does not cease to be in the keeping of the guardian unless the guardian himself abandons the minor or the minor having attained years of discretion voluntarily and definitely abandon the protection of the guardian. I.L.R. (1949) Cut. 194=A.I.R. 1949 Orissa 22=50 Cr.L.J. 650.

—S. 361—Lawful guardian — Meaning of—Keeping—Temporary absence.

The word 'keeping' in S. 361 connotes the fact, that it is compatible with independence of action and movement in the object kept. It implies neither apprehension nor detention, but rather maintenance, protection and control manifested not by continual action but as available on necessity arising; the control of the guardian is not put an end to, by the fact that the minor has temporarily left the guardian's house. 6 Bom. L.R. 785, Foll. 6 S.L.R. 71=13 Cr.L.J. 736=16 Ind. Cas. 768.

—Ss. 363, 368—Keeping of the lawful guardian—Possession—Kidnapping—Lawful guardianship.

A girl under sixteen years of age was going to a vegetable market in search of work. On her way she met another woman, who asked the girl to accompany her under a promise of obtaining work for her. The woman took the girl to her house and kept her there all evening, when she was removed by the accused in a closed carriage to a solitary bungalow far away from the town. The accused kept the girl there for two days and two nights after which she was permitted to return to her home.

Held, that the accused were guilty under S. 368 of the offence of wrongful concealing a minor knowing that she had been kidnapped. In S. 363, the Legislature has advisedly preferred the phrase "keeping of the lawful guardian" to the word "possession" which frequently recurs in the Code in connection with inanimate objects. The word "keeping" connotes the fact that it is compatible with independence of action and movement in the object kept. It implies neither apprehension nor detention but rather maintenance, protection and control manifested not by continual action but as available on necessity arising. And this relation between the minor and guardian is certainly not dissolved so long as the minor can at will take advantage of it and place herself within the sphere of operation. (1904) 6 Bom. L.R. 785.

—S. 366—Committing the first act of sexual intercourse, if seducing.

The term 'seduce' in S. 366 is used in the general sense of enticing or tempting, and not in the limited sense of committing the first act of illicit intercourse. The substantial offence in the section is the act of kidnapping or abduction; and the intention or knowledge that the girl may be forced or seduced to illicit intercourse raises it to an aggravated form of the main offence of kidnapping or abduction and punishable with greater severity. The material words in the section are "illicit intercourse" rather than "forced or seduced." It is the illicit nature of the intercourse for which the kidnapping or abduction takes place that constitutes the aggravation of the offence and not the priority in point of time of such intercourse. A.I.R. 1935 Bom. 189=59 Bom. 652=37 Bom. L.R. 176=36 Cr.L.J. 1509=158 Ind. Cas. 1048.

—S. 366—Seduced to illicit intercourse, meaning of.

The expression 'seduced to illicit intercourse' in S. 366 is not to be intended to be restricted to an inducement to a woman to surrender her chastity for the first time but it cannot be deemed to include a case where a man takes back a woman with whom he had been living until very recently for a period of several months during which he had been indulging in illicit intercourse with her. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 170=35 Cr.L.J. 814=15 P.L.T. 229=148 Ind. Cas. 791.

—Ss. 366, 368, 109—"Seduced to illicit intercourse" in S. 366—Meaning of—Whether restricted to inducing a girl to surrender her chastity for the first time—Abettor not shown to have guilty mind—Conviction for abetment—Legality of.

The expression 'seduced to illicit intercourse' in S. 366, Indian Penal Code, is not restricted in meaning to inducing a girl to surrender her chastity for the first time. The expression means "induced to surrender or abandon a condition of purity from unlawful sexual intercourse." Therefore, as accused cannot be convicted of this offence unless it is proved that the girl was leading a life pure from unlawful sexual intercourse at the time when the kidnapping took place. This does not mean that it is necessary to prove that the girl has never, at any time, surrendered her condition of purity from unlawful sexual intercourse. She may have surrendered it in the past, and thereafter, have resumed a life of purity. On the other hand, if she is already leading a life of indulgence in unlawful sexual intercourse at the time of the kidnapping, it cannot be said with any reason or sense that she was kidnapped "in order that she might be seduced to illicit intercourse" within the meaning of the section. In such a case, the accused could not have kidnapped her in order that she might be led astray in conduct, or drawn away from the right course of action into a wrong one, because she was already astray, and was pursuing a wrong course at the time of the kidnapping. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 718=35 Cr.L.J. 307=38 C.W.N. 71=60 Cal. 1457=147 Ind. Cas. 79.

—S. 366—The phrase 'seduced to illicit intercourse' implies two distinct stages in the act of the accused, the seduction and the illicit intercourse. They must be two distinct acts, though they may follow in immediate sequence. The words or actions of the accused which induced the girl to submit to the illicit intercourse must precede the actual act. The term "seduction" can only properly be held applicable to the first act of illicit intercourse, unless there be proof of a return to chastity on the part of the girl meanwhile, or unless possibly there is an intention on the accused's part that the girl should be seduced by some different man.

The act of seduction alleged must be subsequent to the kidnapping in order to make S. 366 applicable. A.I.R. 1932 All. 409=1932 A.L.J. 483=33 Cr.L.J. 669=54 All. 756=138 Ind. Cas. 609.

—S. 366-A—The expression "illicit intercourse" in S. 366-A means sexual intercourse between a man and a woman who are not husband and wife. A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 555=33 Cr. L.J. 673=33 P.L.R. 727=138 Ind. Cas. 597.

—S. 366—'Seduced' includes subsequent seduction for further acts of illicit intercourse.

The word 'seduced' as used in S. 366 should not be taken to have that narrow meaning of inducing a girl to part with her virtue for the first time but that even though a girl may have by the first act of seduction surrendered her chastity, subsequent seduction for further acts of illicit intercourse is also meant to be included. 50 C.L.J. 593=1930 Cr.C. 209=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 209=57 Cal. 1074=125 Ind. Cas. 656.

—S. 366—Words "seduced to illicit intercourse" do not refer to first act of seduction only.

The words "seduced to illicit intercourse" do not refer to first act of seduction or surrender of chastity but they refer also to subsequent cohabitation as well.

The object of the section is to punish not the seduction by itself but the kidnapping of the kidnapped. 10 Bur. L.R. 196, Foll. 1929 Cr.C. 379=A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 651.

—S. 366—Per Kincaid, J. C. (Kennedy A.J.C., doubting). Seduction is not to be confined to the first connexion with an unmarried girl.

It is not a correct proposition that because a man has induced a girl, while in the custody of her parents, to surrender her chastity, he does not commit further act of seduction to illicit intercourse, when he persuades her to live with him to a condition of concubinage not sanctioned by marriage. 10 Bur. L.R. 196 and Rex. v. Moon, (1910) 1 K.B. 818, Foll. 96 Ind. Cas. 188=27 Cr.L.J. 1292=A.I.R. 1927 Sind 97.

—361 S.—“Takes any minor”—Meaning of.

Mere passive consent on the part of a person in giving shelter to a minor married girl does not amount to taking or enticing of the minor girl. But if he actively brings about her stay in his house while she is proceeding to the house of a near relation after leaving her husband's house of her own accord, by playing upon her weak and hesitating mind, it amounts to his taking the girl within the meaning of S. 361, Indian Penal Code.

It cannot be maintained that taking which is requisite to kidnapping must be constituted by a single act. A whole series of acts might together constitute the process of taking and when actually the taking is complete and in that sense kidnapping has been committed is a question of fact. 5 P. 536, referred to. I.L.R. (1949) Cut. 194=A.I.R. 1949 Orissa 22=50 Cr.L.J. 650.

—S. 361—The expression “taking” in S. 361 is not confined to mere physical taking. There is such a taking as is indicated in the common expression: “If you will come along, I shall take you.” The expression taking out of the keeping of the lawful guardian must, therefore, signify some act done by the accused which may be regarded as the proximate cause of the person going out of the keeping of the guardian or in other words, an act but for which the person would not have gone out of the keeping of the guardian as he or she did.

Where it was found that the girl, alleged to be kidnapped by the accused, had written letters in which she was desperately calling for him to come and take her away and she was soon after discovered to be with the accused or under the control:

Held, that from these two facts it is legitimately open to a Court of law to assume that he finally yielded in the solicitations and made it possible for her to get away and that is sufficient “taking” in law for the purposes of S. 363, Indian Penal Code. 109 Ind. Cas. 907=27 M.L.W. 683=29 Cr.L.J. 635=1 M.Cr.C. 65=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 585=54 M.L.J. 456.

15. Lawful custody.

—S. 366—Where a minor leaves the immediate custody of her lawful guardian for a temporary purpose, such as a visit to friends, she will no doubt be deemed to be still in his keeping for the purposes of S. 361. A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 212=Cr.L.J. 590=22 Pat. 266=207 Ind. Cas. 420.

—Ss. 359 to 369—Where the mother from whose custody a Mahomedan minor girl was removed by the accused was proved to have married in a stranger family and consequently lost her right of guardianship.

Held, that the conviction under S. 363, Indian Penal Code, could not be sustained. 51 C.L.J. 476=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 665(2)=128 Ind. Cas. 181.

16. Lawful Guardian.

(b) Lawful Guardian—Meaning of.

(c) Lawful Guardian—In the keeping of.

—Ss. 363, 361, Explanation—Parents of girl, held lawful guardians and accused guilty under S. 361.

The reasonable and proper construction of the Explanation to S. 361 should be to regard the expression “lawfully entrusted” as signifying that the care and custody of a minor should have arisen in some lawful manner so as to show as if the person having the custody of the minor had been entrusted with the care and custody of the minor. The entrustment may be by a legal guardian; it may be written, oral express or implied. In the absence of a legal guardian, the entrustment may be presumed from the course of conduct of the person actually taking upon himself the duties of the care or custody of a minor. Guardianship connotes maintenance, protection and control of a minor. The word used in the explanation is “lawful” and that must be distinguished from the term “legal.” A guardian may be lawful without being a legal guardian. The expression “lawful guardian” must be liberally construed.

A girl of 14 years who was married at the age of 3 and had lost her husband before attaining puberty was living with her mother and putative father. All the time she was living with her parents. According to the custom, a married girl could not leave her parents' house before attaining puberty and the husband was not entitled to her custody until she attained maturity. The father-in-law of the girl never cared to exercise his right and was not willing to undertake the responsibility of a guardian. The girl was kidnapped by the accused while thus living with her parents:

Held, that the parents never lost their guardianship as the girl did not attain puberty and even if they had lost it by her marriage, that was revived in consequence of the failure of the father-in-law to take up the responsibility of a guardian. At all events, the father-in-law must be deemed to have “entrusted” the guardianship to the parents as was clear from his course of conduct. The accused was, therefore, guilty under S. 361. A.I.R. 1941 Nag. 66=I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 34=41 Cr.L.J. 356=1940 N.L.J. 203=186 Ind. Cas. 660.

—Ss. 363, 361—Entrustment, proof of.

The entrustment required by the explanation to S. 361, may be proved not only by oral evidence but also by surrounding circumstances and the conduct of the parties concerned. A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 263=15 Pat. 817=38 Cr.L.J. 673=18 P.L.T. 535=169 Ind. Cas. 48.

—Ss. 359 to 369—Lawful entrustment means acceptance of the trust.

To bring a case within the purview of the expression "lawfully entrusted" in explanation to S. 361 it must be clearly shown that not only the mother of the girl requested the alleged guardian to take the girl under his protection but that he accepted the trust. 1930 Cr.C. 649=A.I.R. 1930 Sind 164=126 Ind. Cas. 55.

—S. 361—Per Meredith J.—Though the explanation to S. 361 may extend the accepted definition of the words "lawful guardian" under the civil law, yet, as against a person who, in fact, is the civil law guardian of the minor, mere de facto guardianship cannot be set up so as to convict the real civil law guardian of an offence under S. 361. A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 109=43 Cr.L.J. 918=203 Ind. Cas. 163.

—S. 361—The words "lawful guardian" in S. 361, include a de facto guardian. A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 212=44 Cr.L.J. 590=22 Pat. 263=207 Ind. Cas. 420.

—S. 361—The words "lawful guardian" in S. 361 are used in a wide sense. They are made by the explanation to that section to include any person lawfully entrusted with the care or custody of a minor. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 170=35 Cr.L.J. 814=15 P.L.T. 229=148 Ind. Cas. 791.

—Ss. 359 to 369—Lawful guardian.

In case of a girl whose parents are dead and who is below 16, her brother though not over 18 years of age is deemed to be her lawful guardian. 1929 Cr.C. 563=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 835.

—S. 361—The test of lawful guardianship is that the infant or minor should be in a position to apply to his guardian for protection. It is not necessary and the law does not require that the Crown should prove that a minor has been taken actually from the actual custody of his guardian. 1929 Cr.C. 543=A.I.R. 1923 Sind 249.

—S. 361—Lawful guardian, meaning—Removing minor from custody of nearest male relative.

Though a person happens to be the nearest male relative of a Hindu minor girl, it does not give him the absolute right to the custody of the girl. If he takes her away without the consent of the person in whose custody she was, he is guilty under S. 361. Only the natural guardian of a minor could raise the technical plea that the legal relations of ward and guardian did not exist between the minor and the person from whose custody she was taken away. 18 A.L.J. 64=2 U.P.L.R. (H.C.) 76=21 Cr.L.J. 50=54 Ind. Cas. 402.

—S. 361—Lawful guardian—Meaning—Essentials of offence.

By the explanation added to S. 361, Indian Penal Code the accepted and general meaning of the term lawful guardian has been extended so as to include a person lawfully entrusted with the care or custody of a minor. The section and the explanation are express and exhaustive and to constitute an offence there must be in fact a duly, properly and legally proved taking or enticing away of a minor from the custody of the following persons: (1) the natural guardian, (2) the legal guardian if the natural guardian be dead or (3) a person lawfully entrusted with the care and custody of a minor. The term 'lawfully entrusted' means a declaration of trust and the handing over or the giving or entrusting of a minor to the care and custody of another by a person competent to do so unaffected by any illegality or impropriety coupled with the assent, express or, implied of the person in whom the trust is vested or imposed. Neither the declaration of the trust itself nor its acceptance need be necessarily in writing; it is sufficient if the declaration is verbally made and given or if it arises from a course of conduct consistent only with the existence of such antecedent declaration and accepted verbally or by necessary implication arising from the conduct of the party so entrusted with the duty imposed. S. 361 has no application to self-constituted guardians, nor to persons who are taken up and maintained by charitable institutes. The mere relationship per se of master and servant does not constitute the latter, the lawful guardian of a minor servant in his employment nor can such master of such minor, in the absence of proof, be deemed to be a proper person lawfully entrusted with the care and custody of such minor. 4 Pat. L.J. 74=(1919) P. H.C.C. 33=20 Cr.L.J. 161=49 Ind. Cas. 481 (F.B.).

—S. 361—Lawful guardian, meaning of—Kidnapping—Guardianship.

A married woman under 16 being dissatisfied with her mother-in-law left her husband's home for her maternal uncle's. On the way she was deceitfully taken to Aligarh where she was kept in the house of K's brother. Her negotiations were set on foot by K to pass the girl as a jat, but on the girl disclosing her identity to some woman there, K left the village. Thereupon K's brother took her to Thana, and pending enquiry by the police she lived for a month at his place.

Held, that K was guilty of kidnapping though the girl left home of her own accord she did not cease to be under the guardianship of the husband, her lawful guardian, but K's brother was not guilty as he was not one of the conspirators. 14 A.L.J. 792=17 Cr.L.J. 532=36 Ind. Cas. 580.

Where the accused was charged with kidnapping a girl from the lawful guardianship of her maternal uncle and it was found that the mother of the girl was present with the accused when he was leading the girl away and consented to it.

Held, that the maternal uncle's guardianship ceased and the guardianship of the mother revived and that taking with her consent was no offence under S. 366. 16 Cr.L.J. 237=27 Ind. Cas. 909 (Mad.).

—S. 361—Lawful guardian—Meaning of—Kidnapping—Lawful guardian of a Hindu widow.

Where the widow was residing with her husband's mother, with the consent, express or implied, of her deceased husband's brother, the husband's mother was the lawful guardian of the girl for the purposes of S. 361. 27 P.R. 1915 Cr.=16 Cr.L.J. 780=43 P.W.R. 1915 Cr.=31 Ind. Cas. 380.

—Ss. 361, 363—Lawful guardian—Meaning.

Where in a divorce suit a decree was passed dissolving the marriage and ordering the wife to deliver up the son born of the marriage to the husband and the decree was forwarded to the High Court for confirmation under S. 17 of the Act IV of 1869, the husband obtained custody of the son, but soon after the wife removed him from the husband's house before confirmation of the decree by the High Court, the wife could not be charged with kidnapping as, till the confirmation of the decree the parties were still husband and wife. 41 Cal. 714=18 C.W.N. 484=15 Cr.L.J. 72=22 Ind. Cas. 424.

—S. 361—Lawful guardian—Meaning of.

Where a girl lived with the maternal uncles for more than a year and the paternal uncles who claimed an interest in the properties in her name, forcibly carried away and married the girl to somebody.

Held, that they were rightly convicted. 1 O.L.J. 416=15 Cr.L.J. 640=25 Ind. Cas. 840.

—S. 361—Lawful guardian—Meaning of.

The term 'lawful guardian' does not include a person who has himself gained possession of the minor by committing an offence under S. 361, but it does include a person with whom the minor resides by the express or implied consent of those possessing higher legal rights. 7 P.R. 1911 Cr.=31 P.W.R. 1911 Cr.=12 Cr.L.J. 211=154 P.L.R. 11=10 Ind. Cas. 97.

—S. 361—Lawful guardian—Meaning.

The term 'lawful guardian' includes a de facto guardian of a minor whose guardianship is not against the wishes of the husband of the minor. 12 Cr.L.J. 239=10 Ind. Cas. 281 (Mad.).

—Ss. 361, 363, 366—'Lawful guardian'—Parents—Possession continues though physical possession temporarily with another.

P's daughter went to the house of her sister, who with her husband, lived with her husband's uncle K. While there with K's consent certain people took the girl away and gave her in marriage to one to whom P had objected to their knowledge and K.

Held, that though they could not be convicted of kidnapping S from the guardianship of N, yet they should be tried for kidnapping from the guardianship of P. The word 'include' in S. 361 does not limit the protection given to parents and minors, but extends it by including in the term 'lawful guardian' any one lawfully entrusted with the care or custody of the minor. The parents' possession continues even though physical possession is with another for a limited time and for a limited purpose. (1900) 24 M. 284=10 M.L.J. 405.

(c) Lawful guardian—In the keeping of.

—S. 366—Where a minor abandons the house of her guardian of her own accord and has no intention of returning to the house, she cannot be held to continue in the keeping of her lawful guardian. A.I.R. 1941 Oudh 567=1941 O.W.N. 874=42 Cr.L.J. 728=1941 A.W.R. 260=17 Luck. 128=195 Ind. Cas. 371.

—Ss. 368, 363—Wife turned out by husband.

Where a minor is living with a lawful guardian, but is taken or enticed away from a street or some other place of resort, the position is that the guardian retains the care and custody of the minor even though the latter is not actually in the house. But, where the guardian abandons the care and custody of the minor and allows her to go anywhere she likes, she cannot be considered to be in his care or custody. Where, therefore, a person takes away a minor girl who has been turned out by her husband and allowed to be free to go anywhere, there is no case of kidnapping from lawful guardianship. A.I.R. 1937 All. 182=38 Cr.L.J. 401=1936 A.W.R. 1065=167 Ind. Cas. 676.

—Minor—Control of guardian—Termination.

The mere fact that the minor leaves protection her guardian does not put her out of the guardian's keeping. But if the minor abandons her guardian with no intention of returning she cannot be held to continue in the guardian's keeping. Which principle should be applied to a particular case depends on the facts of that case. 87 Ind. Cas. 513=30 C.W.N. 215=26 Cr.L.J. 977=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 467.

—S. 363—Lawful guardian—Meaning of—'Keeping'—'Taking.'

So long as the minor can at will take advantage of the guardianship and protection and place herself within the sphere of its operation, the relation between the minor and guardian implied by the word 'keeping' is not dissolved. 55 P.L.R. 1916=25 P.W.R. 1916 Cr.=17 Cr.L.J. 236=34 Ind. Cas. 652.

—S. 361—Lawful guardian—Meaning—Kidnapping—Child passing out of keeping of guardian.

A little girl who with no intention of starting life independently leaves her house for living with another relation, cannot be considered to have passed out of the keeping of her natural guardian, until she has by some overt act passed into the keeping of some one else. A person who induces her to accompany him shortly after she leaves her house is guilty of an offence under S. 366. Where the accused removed a girl to a place far away from her house, and deprived her of all independent judgment and will power by threats and inducements, she is confined because she is not conscious of the desire to escape. 8 S.L.R. 182=16 Cr.L.J. 117=27 Ind. Cas. 181.

—S. 366—Mother is lawful guardian for the purpose of S. 366 even though the minor is illegitimate child. 1935 M.W.N. 358.

—S. 361, Expln.—Removal from custody of de facto guardian for and with consent of civil guardian, whether offence.

Although the Explanation to S. 361 is intended to extend the meaning of the words "lawful guardian" beyond their ordinary scope so as to include any person lawfully entrusted with the care or custody of the minor, it cannot be used to mean that as against a person who, in fact is the civil guardian of the minor, mere de facto guardianship can be set up so as to convict the real civil guardian of an offence under S. 361.

Where a minor boy was taken away from the de facto guardianship of the complainant by the accused in association with and on behalf of the boy's paternal aunt who was alleged to be the civil guardian of the boy at law:

Held, that the accused could not be convicted without coming to a conclusion whether the paternal aunt was the guardian of the boy at civil law, merely because the boy was admittedly in the de facto guardianship of the complainant. A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 446=35 C.W.N. 195=32 Cr.L.J. 888=58 Cal. 897=132 Ind. Cas. 246.

—S. 361—The husband of a Mahomedan girl, who has not attained puberty, is not the lawful guardian of her person under the Mahomedan law. Her lawful guardian is ordinarily her mother and if the mother is dead, the mother's mother. 73 Ind. Cas. 936=27 C.W.N. 531=37 C.L.J. 329=24 Cr.L.J. 712=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 672.

—S. 361—Karta of joint Hindu family, position of.

The position of a karta in a Hindu family is a unique one and even though one need not go so far as to say that a person would necessarily be the lawful guardian of a minor within the meaning of S. 361, by the mere fact of his being a karta, it is safe to say that very slight evidence of the consent of the natural guardian would be required to hold that the karta of the family was in fact the guardian of a minor who is being brought up under his care. A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 263=15 Pat. 817=38 Cr. L.J. 673=18 P.L.T. 535=169 Ind. Cas. 48.

—S. 361—Dual guardianship.

The conception of a dual guardianship is, by itself, not repugnant to law and it is not difficult to conceive of cases where there may be more than one guardian. The guardianship of the father does not cease while a minor is in the possession of another person who had been lawfully entrusted with the care and custody of such minor by the father. Again, there is nothing in law to prevent the father or the mother of a minor, who may be his or her lawful guardian for the time being, from entrusting lawfully the care and custody of such minor to more than one person at a time.

A person should be regarded in the eye of the law as having been lawfully entrusted with the care and custody of a minor, if he has acquired control over the minor lawfully and in such circumstances as would imply trust even though he may not have been formally entrusted with the care and custody of the minor by a third person. A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 263=15 Pat. 817=38 Cr.L.J. 673=18 P.L.T. 535=169 Ind. Cas. 48.

—Ss. 366, 368—Guardianship of husband.

In a charge of kidnapping a woman from lawful guardianship of her husband, the prosecution must prove a legal marriage between the woman and the alleged husband. In the absence of such a proof, there would be no legal guardianship and consequently, no enticement from her lawful guardian and no offence under Ss. 366 and 368, would be committed. A.I.R. 1935 All. 566=1935 A.W.R. 515=36 Cr. L.J. 1031=156 Ind. Cas. 914.

—Ss. 359 to 369—Guardian and Ward—Minor cannot be guardian of his sister.

A minor cannot be the guardian of his sister. So he cannot institute a complaint of kidnapping of his sister. 67 Ind. Cas. 831=3 L.L.J. 588=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 316.

17. Minor—Meaning of.

—S. 361—Minor—Meaning—Kidnapping girl over 16 years of age—Delay.

The accused was charged with having kidnapped a minor girl from the guardianship of her father. The girl was over 16 at the time when she disappeared and there was delay in making a report to the police.

Held, that the accused were not guilty of an offence under S. 363. The extraordinary delay in making the first information report was very suspicious and the fact that she was over 16 strengthened the belief that she went of her own accord. 19 Cr. L.J. 1011=48 Ind. Cas. 351 (Lah.).

—S. 361—Minor—Meaning—Minority—Guardianship—Unmarried Mahomedan girl—Kidnapping, when completed.

According to Mahomedan Law, attainment of puberty determines the minority of a Mahomedan girl. For the purpose of S. 363, Indian Penal Code, regard must be had to the definition of 'minority' in S. 3 of Majority Act.

Where the girl alleged to have been kidnapped was unmarried and her father was dead, the lawful guardianship is undoubtedly her mother's. 37 Mad. 567=16 Cr.L.J. 169=27 Ind. Cas. 553.

18. Offence under

(b) Offence—When not committed.

(c) Miscellaneous.

—S. 366—Applicability—Woman arrested under warrant and released—Person standing surety for her appearance against her will keeping her in confinement forcibly—Offence. See Criminal Procedure Code, S. 499. 49 Cr. L.J. 1=A.I.R. 1948 All. 72.

—S. 362—In the case of a grown up woman, it would be an offence to carry her away by force against her own will even with the object of restoring her to her husband. A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 89=43 P.L.R. 680=43 Cr. L.J. 588=I.L.R. (1942) Lah. 470=199 Ind. Cas. 870.

—S. 368—Proof of kidnapping.

Section 368 pre-supposes that the offence of kidnapping or abduction has taken place, so that anyone wrongfully concealing or confining the person kidnapped or abducted is guilty of an offence under S. 368. But where kidnapping is not proved, wrongfully confining or concealing does not constitute an offence under S. 368. A.I.R. 1937 All. 182=38 Cr. L.J. 401=1936 A.W.R. 1065=167 Ind. Cas. 676.

—S. 366—Girl not removed from lawful custody—Her marriage by brother—Offence.

The girl was not physically removed from the custody of her mother, because she had already been taken out of that woman's custody by the Court.

Held, that the marriage itself of the girl by her brother could not be treated as a constructive form of kidnapping because her brother was the person who was entitled to give the girl away in marriage. Hence no Criminal Offence was committed. A.I.R. 1935 All. 920=1935 A.W.R. 939=36 Cr.L.J. 1498=158 Ind. Cas. 1047.

—S. 364—There can be no offence of kidnapping if a person of age is conveyed from one part of British India to another. What has to be seen is whether the accused, by deceitful means, induced him to go from one place to another. 137 Ind. Cas. 290=9 O.W.N. 243=33 Cr.L.J. 514 (2).

—Ss. 359 to 369—What constitutes Offence—The substantial Offence under S. 366 is abduction or kidnapping—Not seduction in the sense of loss of chastity for the first time.

A conviction under S. 366 is not bad therefore merely for the reason that the accused has had intercourse with the woman even before she was kidnapped. Rex v. Emily Moon (1910) 1 K.B. 818, held inapplicable. 1930 M.W.N. 905=A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 980.

—Ss. 359 to 369—Offence under.

One P who was formerly a Christian changed her religion and became a convert to Hinduism. She left the house in which she was living during the absence of her husband who had gone to another place. When the latter came back he demanded his children, but they were not handed over to him.

Held, that on these facts there is no question of an offence under S. 363. 41 Cal. 714. Foll. 102 Ind. Cas. 209=28 Cr. L.J. 513 = 8 A.I.Cr.R. 187=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 496.

—S. 362—Attempt to abduct.

Where the accused came on to the roof of a house and awakening the woman who was sleeping there, with her husband asked her to accompany them and on her refusal they lifted her up in order to carry her away, when she raised an alarm, and the accuser dropped her on the roof and ran away.

Held, that under S. 362 of the Penal Code, the accused were not guilty of the offence of abduction inasmuch as the woman was not compelled to go from the place where she was, but was merely lifted up and that the action of the accused amounted to an attempt to abduct. 86 Ind. Cas. 1007=26 P.L.R. 119=26 Cr.L.J. 943=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 512.

—Ss. 366 and 366-A—Where the accused took a girl under 18 years of age about from place to place with the intention of seducing her to illicit intercourse but force or deceitful means were not used:

Held, that no offence under S. 366 but one under S. 366-A was committed. 88 Ind. Cas. 463=2 O.W.N. 445=26 Cr. L.J. 1151=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 454.

—S. 362—Girl led by accused to his house by false representations—Accused is guilty of abduction.

When the appellant met the girl, she had ceased to be a kidnapped woman in the strict sense. She was then a free agent but she would not have gone with the appellant but for his false representations to her as to his being a police constable and the inducement held out by him that he would take her to the police station.

Held, his action therefore amounted to abduction as defined in S. 362, Indian Penal Code. 73 Ind. Cas. 510=24 Cr. L.J. 622=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 158.

—S. 365—Where the appellant intended to and actually did confine a girl wrongfully while he negotiated with her relatives for the payment of a sum of Rs. 600 which was practically her ransom,

Held, his act therefore fell under S. 365, Indian Penal Code. 6 L.B.R. 160, Foll. 73 Ind. Cas. 510=24 Cr. L.J. 622=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 158.

—S. 361—To constitute the offence of kidnapping the intention to prevent the kidnapped person from returning to his guardian is not necessary.

Where a minor runs away from lawful guardianship the person with whom he takes refuge is not "taking him" within the meaning of the law. But inducing a minor to run away or giving him encouragement would constitute the offence, and any question of intention would be relevant only as regards the sentence. 69 Ind. Cas. 444=23 Cr. L.J. 716.

—Ss. 361, 366—Removing girl from legal guardianship.

The accused who induced a girl under 16 to go with them and kept her with them in boy's garb, were guilty of abduction, having taken her away from lawful guardianship. 40 All. 507=16 A.L.J. 445=19 Cr.L.J. 645=45 Ind. Cas. 837.

—S. 361—Essentials of the offence—Minor girl—Kidnapping—Selling minor.

A Chamar girl of 14 years left the custody of her husband and his parents and voluntarily stayed with the accused for a month who then made her over to certain other persons who made her look as much as possible as a Jat woman. After changing hands several times she was finally made over to a person to be married to his brother.

Held, that the accused was guilty neither of the offence of taking or enticing a minor out of the keeping of her lawful guardian nor of the offence of selling a minor with the intent that such minor should be employed for the purpose of prostitution. 2 All. 694; 12 A.L.J. 265, Foll. 37 All. 624=13 A.L.J. 848=16 Cr. L.J. 663=30 Ind. Cas. 647.

—Ss. 361, 363—Mahomedan girl before puberty—Husband's custody—Onus.

The taking away of a minor Mahomedan girl before puberty by her mother or her agent from the custody of the girl's husband or of any one on his behalf will not constitute the offence of kidnapping from lawful guardianship. The onus of proving that the girl had attained puberty is on the complainant. (1904) 32 C. 444=2 Cr L.J. 328.

—S. 366—Conviction under—Proof required.

To convict a person under the later part of S. 366, Indian Penal Code, it is essential that he is found to have practised some "criminal intimidation" or employed "any other method of compulsion." If, therefore, a girl had gone out of her father's house and gone out with the accused willingly and without anybody having exercised any compulsion on her, no charge under that section can be made out against him. I.L.R. (1950) A. 787=1950 A.W.R. 98=A.I.R. 1949 All. 710=51 Cr. L.J. 29.

—S. 366—If a girl is carrying on an intrigue up to the time of abduction and then the accused takes her away to continue that intrigue, S. 366 does not apply. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 227=35 Cr. L.J. 1386=151 Ind. Cas. 741 (2).

—S. 366—Illicit intercourse going on before kidnapping.

Where illicit intercourse has been going on between the girl and the accused before she left home and probably had been going on for sometime before the kidnapping, it cannot be said that the accused kidnapped her in order that she might be seduced to illicit intercourse and he cannot be convicted under S. 366. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 718=35 Cr.L.J. 307=38 C.W.N. 71=60 Cal. 1457=147 Ind. Cas. 79.

—S. 366—Previous intrigue.

Section 366 cannot be applied to a case where the accused is said to have been carrying on an intrigue with a girl under 16 while she is in the custody of her lawful guardian, and goes away with her because obstacles are thrown in the way of that intrigue, even though when he so goes away with her it is with the intention of carrying on that intrigue or in other words, with the intention of continuing illicit intercourse. A.I.R. 1932 All. 409=1932 A.L.J. 483=54 All. 756=33 Cr. L.J. 669=138 Ind. Cas. 609.

—S. 366—Probability of girl eloping with accused—Conviction is bad.

Where it was not unlikely that the girl herself eloped with some of the accused and on missing her, her parents got up the story to recover her and to bring her paramours into trouble.

Held, that a conviction under S. 366 was improper. 6 L.L.J. 622=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 274.

—Ss. 366, 368—Persons not taking active part are not guilty.

Where the accused appeared to have helped merely in getting the kidnapped girl married and nowhere had he taken any part in keeping the custody of the girl and he was simply carrying out orders of the other accused and took no active part in concealing or confining the girl.

Held, the accused was not guilty of the offence. 81 Ind. Cas. 529=27 O.C. 32=25 Cr.L.J. 913=A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 335.

—S. 362—Where the circumstances rendered it more probable that the girl had eloped with the accused rather than that she was abducted.

Held, that the accused should be acquitted. 5 L.L.J. 38=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 274.

—S. 366—If a minor girl leaves her husband's house without any persuasion, inducement or blandishment held out to her by a man, so that she has got fairly away from home, and then goes to him, he cannot be deemed to have infringed the law, even if he does not restore her to her lawful guardian. 73 Ind. Cas. 260=24 Cr. L.J. 654=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 330.

(c). Miscellaneous.

—Ss. 366, 376—Sexual intercourse with girl near her own home.

To prove an offence under S. 366, it is necessary to show that the girl or woman has been kidnapped or abducted from her lawful guardianship.

A man who commits sexual intercourse with a girl in a field near her own home without having any intention of taking her away with him is not guilty of an offence under S. 366 but a man who has intercourse with a minor girl even with her consent is guilty of the offence of rape. A.I.R. 1932 All. 580=1932 A.L.J. 776=34 Cr. L.J. 100=141 Ind. Cas. 127.

—Ss. 359 to 369—Conspiracy to sell girl in marriage—No proof of kidnapping—Offence committed.

Where there is conspiracy between certain persons that a girl should be brought to Sind and sold there to some person who might be willing to buy her and that to such person it should be stated that the girl was a relation of one of the party of the conspirators and it is not proved that the girl was kidnapped from lawful guardianship the offence committed falls under Ss. 420 and 511 read with S. 120-B rather than under S. 366 read with S. 120-B. 126 Ind. Cas. 55=1930 Cr.C. 649=A.I.R. 1930 Sind. 164.

—Ss. 361 and 362—Kidnapping is an entirely distinct offence from abduction, the necessary ingredients being entirely different. 104 Ind. Cas. 245=45 C.L.J. 561=31 C.W.N. 940=28 Cr. L.J. 805=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 644.

—S. 365—When there is nothing to show that the whereabouts of the person confined were concealed by the accused from the other relations or from the person interested in the person confined, the offence amounts to one of wrongful confinement under S. 342 and not under S. 365. 92 Ind. Cas. 213=27 Cr.L.J. 229=7 L.L.J. 520=26 P.L.R. 733=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 614.

19. Person of unsound mind.

—Ss. 366, 361—Unconscious person, if of unsound mind.

It may be that S. 361 ought to include persons who have been made unconscious; but an unconscious person cannot be said to be of unsound mind within meaning of S. 361.

Where an accused is charged under S. 366 for having kidnapped a girl of twenty years of age, while she was unconscious as a result of poisoning, the girl cannot be regarded as being of unsound mind so as to bring the offence under S. 366. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 224=41 P.L.

20. Procedure.

(b) Trial by jury.

(c) Miscellaneous.

—S. 366—Alternative charges of kidnapping and abduction—Separate charges—Desirability.

Alternative charges of kidnapping and abduction should not be framed in one charge. It is desirable that there should be separate charges in the alternative for these offences. 223 Ind. Cas. 44=47 Cr. L.J. 325=A.I.R. 1946 Cal. 493.

—S. 364—Scope—Abducted person murdered—Proper charge.

Where the case for the prosecution is that the person abducted was in fact murdered, there can be no scope for a charge under S. 364, Indian Penal Code, and the abductor should be charged either with murder pure and simple or at least with abetment of murder. 2 D.R. 68.

—Ss. 362, 323—Charge.

Where the complaint is that a girl was abducted and ravished and this is supported by medical evidence of ruptured hymen, the charge should not be entered as one under S. 323. A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 71=14 Bom. L.R. 27=43 Cr.L.J. 529=I.L.R. (1942) Bom. 384=199 Ind. Cas. 202 (F.B.).

—Ss. 364, 302—When the case for the prosecution is that the person abducted has been murdered by the abductor, there can be no scope for a charge under S. 364. The abductor should be charged with murder, pure and simple. However, in such cases where the evidence to establish the charge of murder is weak or inconclusive, the prosecution is prone to adopt this device of adding or preferring a charge under S. 364 in the hope that a jury which may hesitate to find the accused guilty of murder on such slender evidence, may be induced to find against him on the lesser charge, but such a procedure is unfair and improper and should not be adopted. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 561=71 C.L.J. 597=42 Cr. L.J. 285=192 Ind. Cas. 352.

—S. 366—Occurrence though single transaction, separate charges held, should have been framed for separate offences.

A married girl whom the jury found to be under 16 years of age, was due to return to her husband's house after a visit to her father in a village. On the way, she passed the house of the accused. He asked her to come inside on the pretext that his wife wanted her. When she went in, he bolted the door and demanded that she should remain with him. In the night, he ravished her. Later on, he took her out and was joined by the other three appellants. They took her away, and according to her story, her ornaments were taken off. All were jointly charged, both with kidnapping and abduction.

Held, that the whole incident could not be regarded as constituting a single offence and though it may be said that the whole occurrence was one single transaction, even in that case separate charges should have been framed for the separate offences which went to make up that transaction. A.I.R. 1939 Cal. 321=40 Cr.L.J. 649=182 Ind. Cas. 322.

—S. 366—Accused charged with offences of kidnapping and abduction in respect of same occurrence—

Charge should be framed under two heads. Trial is not vitiated however in case charge is framed under one head provided thereby accused is not prejudiced. A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 460=39 Cr.L.J. 674=176 Ind. Cas. 104.

—S. 366—Abduction and kidnapping—Separate charges, if necessary.

It is always desirable in proper circumstances, to charge the accused separately for kidnapping and abduction. But the omission of the Judge in splitting up the whole thing into two parts is not sufficient for interference by the High Court unless the omission has caused a failure of justice or the accused was, in any way, prejudiced thereby. When the accused had ample opportunity to meet the evidence of the prosecution on the various points taken in the case, he cannot be said to have been prejudiced. A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 85=37 C.W.N. 1071=35 Cr.L.J. 487=147 Ind. Cas. 828.

—S. 366—Where a person is to be charged in the alternative of kidnapping or abduction of a minor girl, a separate charge must be framed with respect to each offence. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 170=35 Cr.L.J. 814=15 P.L.T. 229=148 Ind. Cas. 791.

—S. 366—The charge under S. 366 which the accused is called upon to answer should mention the words "kidnaps or abducts." A.I.R. 1934 Sind 119=36 Cr.L.J. 62(2)=28 S.L.R. 285=151 Ind. Cas. 984.

—Ss. 366, 368—Misjoinder of charges.

Six persons were jointly tried. The charge on which the first four accused were tried was for kidnapping and abduction. The charge against the fifth accused was for abduction only as mentioned in S. 366. The sixth accused was jointly tried with the other five, for the offence under S. 368.

Held, that a joint trial of this kind was illegal and could not but have, in fact, prejudiced the accused in their defence, and their conviction could not be maintained.

Though the offences of kidnapping and abduction are referred to in the same section of the Penal Code, they are distinct offences and separate charges should be drawn up if it is intended to charge the accused with both the offences. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 563=34 Cr.L.J. 682=144 Ind. Cas. 93.

—S. 366—Where a married woman of 15 years of age had gone outside her husband's hut at night to answer the call of nature and was seized, taken away and raped by accused and they were charged under S. 366, Indian Penal Code for kidnapping.

Held, that the case did not fall within the provisions of S. 236, Criminal Procedure Code, and the accused should not be charged in the alternative for having committed some of the offences. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 676=37 C.W.N. 1074=34 Cr.L.J. 1219=60 Cal. 1394=146 Ind. Cas. 305.

—S. 366-A—A conviction under S. 366-A may be made even though no specific charge is framed. A.I.R. 1933 Nag. 259=35 Cr. L.J. 28=29 N.L.R. 365=146 Ind. Cas. 332.

—Ss. 366, 376—Offence under both sections—No charge under S. 376—Effect.

Where the prosecution evidence discloses an offence not only under S. 366, but also one under S. 376, the case should be committed to the sessions. The order of the trying Magistrate refusing to frame a charge under S. 376 is, in substance, one discharging the accused under that section and both the Sessions Court and the High Court have power to revise it. A.I.R. 1932 Nag. 85(1)=15 N.L.J. 26=33 Cr. L.J. 558=137 Ind. Cas. 904.

—S. 366—Notice of a charge of kidnapping under S. 366 is not a fair, proper or sufficient notice of a charge of abduction under S. 366 because on a charge of abduction the accused has got to meet that charge on facts different from those which would be involved in a charge of kidnapping.

The accused were charged of kidnapping but the jury were led to believe that it was open to them to return a verdict of guilty of abduction.

Held, that it was impossible to say that no prejudice was caused to the accused and the case was fit for ordering retrial. A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 200, Foll. 117 Ind. Cas. 862=32 C.W.N. 1245=30 Cr. L.J. 857.

—S. 366—Where an accused was charged in one head under one charge with 'kidnapping or abduction.'

Held, that the ingredient of the two offences being obviously different, the accused was entitled to know which of the charges he was asked to meet. 104 Ind. Cas. 245=45 C.L.J. 561=31 C.W.N. 940=28 Cr.L.J. 805=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 644.

—S. 361—Charge to be explained clearly to accused.

When a question whether there was kidnapping either with or without persuasion, and a question as to how long the kidnapping has continued, and as to whether at some stage a fresh kidnapping has been carried out, and whether there was a previous conspiracy or conduct amounting to abetment, or whether, there was no kidnapping or share in the kidnapping at all but merely a confidence trick undertaken to cheat a person, it is more than ever the duty of the Judge even though counsel may be engaged, to clear the ground, and to be quite sure that each accused or counsel clearly understand what case they have to meet. 81 Ind. Cas. 80=4 L.R.A. (Cr.) 83=25 Cr.L.J. 592=A.I.R. 1923 All. 285.

—Ss. 366, 302—Trial by jury.

Accused prosecuted under Ss. 366 and 302—Trial under S. 366 by jury—Unanimous verdict of guilty and conviction—Conviction by Judge under S. 302—Appeal against both convictions—Appeal against conviction under S. 366 incompetent—Case such that conviction for murder depending upon conviction for kidnapping—Accused can be allowed in appeal against conviction for murder to challenge facts on which their convictions under S. 366 rest. A.I.R. 1941 Nag. 94=1940 N.L.J. 565=42 Cr.L.J. 154=I.L.R. (1941) Nag. 157=191 Ind. Cas. 371.

—S. 366-A—Misdirection to jury.

In a trial under S. 366-A, the fact that a girl is handsome is no evidence at all to show that the persons with whom she goes away had any intention that she should become an inmate of brothel.

Where the Judge, in dealing with the evidence regarding the intention under S. 366-A, told the jury to look at the surrounding circumstances and he then pointed out that the girl was handsome.

Held, that it amounted to a serious misdirection. A.I.R. 1939 Cal. 290=43 C.W.N. 668=40 Cr. L.J. 660=182 Ind. Cas. 447.

—S. 366-A—Trial by jury.

In case of offence under S. 366-A, the question of age is the crucial one and strict and exact evidence of age is essential. Where, however, there is no exact evidence of age, the Judge should strongly emphasise this feature of the case and clearly direct the jury that if they are not completely satisfied that it had been established that the girl was under eighteen, they are bound to acquit upon that charge.

Where, as in cases of this nature, the law is somewhat complicated and liable to be misunderstood by jury, it is essential for the Judge to say exactly how he has explained it to the jury so that the Appellate Court may be in a position to judge whether he has done so correctly and fully. Where there is no evidence that the girl is under sixteen, the charge under S. 366 depends entirely on the proof of force or deceit. The Judge should explain this to the jury and ask them to consider carefully whether any deceit had really been shown to have been practised upon the girl. A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 536=18 Pat. 698=41 Cr.L.J. 1=20 P.L.T. 898=184 Ind. Cas. 354.

—S. 366—Trial by jury.

Charge under S. 366—Nature of direction to jury indicated—Offence against one not proved—Nature of proper direction stated. A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 475=39 Cr.L.J. 751=176 Ind. Cas. 456.

—S. 366—Omission to direct jury on one of the vital ingredients of offence under S. 366, e.g., about the consent of the girl below the age of 16, amounts to misdirection amounting to miscarriage of justice. A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 440=16 Pat. 413=38 Cr. L.J. 919=18 P.L.T. 607=170 Ind. Cas. 464.

—S. 366—In cases under S. 366, it is the duty of Judges with jury to adopt in part the system which is prevalent in England and that is, to put a specific question to the jury as to the conclusion they have come to in relation to the age of the girl whose maltreatment has been the subject of the charge. It is very doubtful that the jury, unless it is specifically put to them, ever really understand what their duty is under S. 366. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 675=38 Cr. L.J. 176=166 Ind. Cas. 323.

—S. 366—Trial by jury.

The 'will' referred to in the first part of S. 366 means the will of the girl and does not mean the will of her guardian. Hence, a direction to the jury that if the marriage of the girl kidnapped was against her guardian's will, it was against her will within the meaning of S. 366, is a misdirection. A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 442=36 C.W.N. 49=33 Cr. L.J. 512=137 Ind. Cas. 819.

—S. 368—Charge to jury.

A verdict of the jury finding a person guilty under S. 368, Indian Penal Code, must be considered erroneous within the meaning of S. 423(2), Criminal Procedure Code, where the Judge did not adequately bring out the difference between knowledge and existence of grounds for belief or suspicion in his charge to the jury or, at any rate, the jury did not understand the importance of the difference between the two things. A.I.R. 1932 Oudh 28=8 O.W.N. 1325=33 Cr.L.J. 275=136 Ind. Cas. 243.

—Ss. 359 to 369—Seduction is a comprehensive expression and it does not exclude the possibility of deceitful means being used in order that seduction may be practised with effect. Where, therefore, a Judge charges the jury under S. 366, and explains the whole section fully to them, he need not suggest that if they find that the girl was not compelled by force to leave her father's house they should next proceed to consider whether deceitful means had been practised upon her by the accused and whether by such means she was induced to leave her father's house. 126 Ind. Cas. 762=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 433.

—Ss. 361, Expl. 363—Kidnapping minor married girl from father's keeping—"Lawful guardianship"—Misdirection to jury—Failure to place evidence fairly before jury—Retrial, order for—Sentence suffered under conviction set aside.

Where an accused was charged with having kidnapped a married Hindu girl under 16 years age by taking her out of the keeping of her father the father being alleged in the circumstances of the case to be the lawful guardian, what the Judge should have left to the Jury was whether or not the father had been lawfully entrusted with the care or custody of the girl. The judge had charged to the jury as follows. "Now the lawful guardian of a married woman is no doubt her husband. But there is the evidence before you that she came with the consent of the husband into the house of her father if you believe such evidence. Therefore the father, of the girl was her de facto lawful guardian for the time the girl was residing in her father's house."

Held, that in matters of this kind a judge should adhere to the words of the particular section of the Penal Code with which he has to deal and not substitute phraseology of his own. As it further appeared that upon the point of the husband's consent the judge had failed to place before the Jury a fair and proper statement of the evidence on the record, the conviction was set aside and a further trial ordered.

Per Jenkins, C.J.—"I have no doubt should the accused be again convicted, the court in estimating what would be the proper sentence, will have regard to the detention already suffered by him." (1909) 11 Cr.L.J. 9=4 Ind. Cas. 543=13 C.W.N. 754.

(c). Miscellaneous.

—S. 363—Sentence of fine—If must be imposed with sentence of imprisonment.

It is not necessary under S. 363, Indian Penal Code, that a sentence of fine must be imposed along with the sentence of imprisonment. What is essential is that a person convicted of such an offence should be punished with imprisonment and should not be punished with fine alone. With the sentence of imprisonment it is open to the Court to impose a sentence of fine as well. The Court is not, therefore bound to sentence an accused to fine in every case. 1949 A.L.J. 248=A.I.R. 1949 A. 587=50 Cr. L.J. 884=1949 A.W.R. 362.

—S. 366—Commitment for trial under S. 366—Legality of.

Where it is found that the woman alleged to have been abducted was going with the accused persons willingly and that she was above eighteen years of age and there is no evidence that she had been induced to go by any deceitful means and the woman herself has not been examined, the commitment of the accused for trial under S. 366 should be quashed. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 103=160 Ind. Cas. 161.

—S. 368—Offence under, if triable by Sessions exclusively.

Neither on the wording of S. 368 nor on the policy of the Legislature can it be argued that an offence under S. 368 should be tried exclusively by a Court of Session when the girl was wrongly confined or concealed for the purpose of forcing her to illicit intercourse. A.I.R. 1935 All. 63=36 Cr. L.J. 117=1931 A.L.J. 1234=4 A.W.R. 949=152 Ind. Cas. 550.

—S. 368—Duty of prosecution to place first information report before Court.

It is the duty of the prosecution in a case under S. 368, Indian Penal Code, to place the first information report before the Court and if the prosecution does not do so and as the accused does not come to know of this report at an earlier stage it is necessary in the interest of justice, that in an application under S. 428, Criminal Procedure Code, made to the Sessions Judge, additional evidence should be taken by him. A.I.R. 1935 All. 63=36 Cr. L.J. 117=1934 A.L.J. 1234=4 A.W.R. 949=152 Ind. Cas. 550.

—Ss. 366, 373, 498—Complaint under S. 498, Indian Penal Code, was filed by the father of the abducted girl. After the evidence was recorded, the husband of the girl stated that the complaint was filed with his consent.

Held, that there being no proper complaint by the person authorised by law to make, the conviction under S. 498 was bad.

Held further, that the High Court cannot alter a conviction on a charge under S. 498, Indian Penal Code, only to a conviction under S. 366-A or S. 373, Indian Penal Code as these offences are major offences. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 122=36 Cr.L.J. 423=153 Ind. Cas. 721.

—Ss. 366-A, 368—Where the District Magistrate desired an acquittal under S. 368, to be reversed not because it was wrong but because it would preclude a fresh trial of offence under S. 366-A.

Held, that the question was one which ought to be raised in appeal and that the appropriate procedure was to prefer an appeal against the order of acquittal and ask for conviction either under S. 368 or S. 366-A in the alternative. A.I.R. 1933 Nag 259=29 N.L.R. 365=35 Cr.L.J. 28=146 Ind. Cas. 332.

—S. 366—Where the Magistrate finds in a case under S. 363, Indian Penal Code, that there is prima facie sufficient evidence that the girl was enticed away, the Magistrate should examine and decide whether an offence under S. 366 or some other cognate offence against a female of over 16 was committed and should not remain content with finding that the girl was not proved to be under 16. 85 Ind. Cas. 36=6 L.L.J. 318=26 Cr.L.J. 420=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 718.

21. Sentence.

—S. 366—Sentence, held excessive.

The kidnapped girl went away with the accused willingly. The medical evidence indicated that although the girl was under 16 years of age she was accustomed to sexual intercourse.

Held, that in the circumstances, the sentence of 4 years' rigorous imprisonment was excessive and sentence of 12 months already undergone was sufficient as it was not a case of a woman being forcibly compelled or unlawfully induced to leave her home for the purpose of illicit intercourse. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 315=42 Cr.L.J. 649=195 Ind. Cas. 12.

—S. 366—Conviction under Ss. 460 and 366 read with S. 149—No harm done to the girl who was rescued.

Held, that a long sentence was uncalled for. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 15=37 Cr.L.J. 430=38 P.L.R. 323=161 Ind. Cas. 313.

—S. 366—Age of accused, if to be considered.

The fact that the accused is 55 years old does not justify a lenient sentence for an offence of abduction. In such cases, the public interest requires that justice and not sentiment should prevail. (Sentence of one year's rigorous imprisonment raised to five years). A.I.R. 1936 Sind 233=38 Cr.L.J. 114=165 Ind. Cas. 933.

—S. 366—If the girl is a willing party and the accused did not ill-treat her, one year's sentence is quite sufficient. 1935 M.W.N. 358.

—S. 366-A—Sentence of whipping in addition to detention in Borstal School.

Where the accused was convicted for an offence under S. 366-A and sentenced, both to detention at the Borstal School and also to receive 20 lashes.

Held, that the sentence of whipping in addition to a punishment to which he was liable, not under the Indian Penal Code but under S. 25 (1) of Burma Prevention of Crime (Young Offenders) Act III of 1930, was illegal.

Where the accused has given way to his passions detention in a Borstal institution is normally not likely to prove either so efficacious or so salutary a punishment as a whipping, which, in such cases, operates as a wholesome and striking reminder that young men must behave themselves properly in their relations with women and girls and must learn to control their natural instincts. This object is much more likely to be achieved by a whipping than by a period of reflection and detention in a Borstal institution. A.I.R. 1934 Rang. 123=35 Cr.L.J. 903=12 Rang. 349=149 Ind. Cas. 139 (1).

—Ss. 366 and 376—A charge under S. 366 involves different elements and different questions of fact from a charge under S. 376, and therefore separate sentences for offences under Ss. 366 and 376 are not against the provisions of S. 71, Indian Penal Code: 8 Bom. L.R. 120, Foll. 99 Ind. Cas. 344=7 Lah. 484=27 P.L.R. 802=28 Cr.L.J. 136=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 88.

—S. 366—Abduction with a view to effect marriage—No desire to spoil the girl—Sentence was reduced to 2½ years.

Where a girl was abducted forcibly but the accused was a second cousin and the motive for the abduction was evidently to bring about a marriage and that there was no evil desire to spoil the girl's future or to disgrace her.

Held, that the sentence of five years' rigorous imprisonment should be reduced to 2½ years. 101 Ind. Cas. 456=6 Bur. L.J. 25=8 A.I.Cr.R. 33=28 Cr.L.J. 424=A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 336.

—Ss. 362 and 376—Where the real offence is rape and the abduction is an aggravating circumstance separate sentences under both the sections should not be given. 89 Ind. Cas. 912=26 Cr.L.J. 1440=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 114.

—Ss. 363 and 376—If a person abducts a woman with intent to rape her and does rape her, he cannot be awarded separate sentences under Ss. 363 and 376, Indian Penal Code. 92 Ind. Cas. 850=27 Cr.L.J. 338=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 212.

—S. 363—Where the girl kidnapped was not imposed upon.

Held, the sentence of 7 years was too severe. 81 Ind. Cas. 529=27 O.C. 32=25 Cr.L.J. 913=A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 335.

—S. 366—Guardian not quite opposed to the marriage—Offence less serious.

Where a girl of 18, was abducted from the custody of her mother and married to one of the accused who were her near relations and the report made by the mother to the police was to the effect that the accused being the nearest paternal relation had certainly superior right to the possession of the girl but that they had no right to take her away forcibly without paying the mother some compensation to the trouble and expense that she had incurred in bringing up the girl.

Held, that an offence was technically committed and accused was guilty under S. 366, but having regard to the fact that the parties are very close relations and that the mother herself did not take a very serious view of the matter when she lodged the first information report, a nominal sentence was sufficient. 77 Ind. Cas. 606=5 L.L.J. 377=25 Cr.L.J. 430=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 110.

—S. 366—Abduction by several and rape by one of them.

Though the causing of the hurt is not a necessary part of the offence under Section 366 and separate sentences under Section 366 and Section 147 would be justified, yet if the force used is a necessary ingredient for the completion of the offence under Section 366, separate sentence under Section 147 is not justified. 77 Ind. Cas. 997=4 L.L.J. 322=25 Cr.L.J. 533=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 410.

—Ss. 361 and 365—Kidnapping—Abduction of a female in exchange of a girl—Sentence.

The accused abducted a certain woman, merely in order to put pressure upon her friends to restore a young girl whom they had abducted. The girl was abducted and then was also let go. It was found that no harm was done to her.

Held, that under such circumstances heavy sentence of imprisonment on the accused was not necessary. 89 P.L.R. 1916=17 Cr.L.J. 472=36 Ind. Cas. 152.

22. Who can abduct or kidnap.

—S. 366—Husband and his minor wife.

No offence under S. 366 is committed if the husband takes away his minor wife from the custody of her father.

It may well be that, when the husband of a minor girl seeks the assistance of the Civil Court in obtaining the custody of his wife, the Civil Court may, for good and sufficient reason, decline to give him the custody of her and permit her parents to retain her in their custody until she reaches maturity. But it by no means follows that, if such a husband seizes an opportunity that presents itself to him of taking his wife into his own custody, he commits a criminal offence. A husband becomes the lawful guardian of his wife as soon as the marriage ceremony has been performed, and it is immaterial whether or not his wife has then attained puberty. The father ceases to be the guardian of the girl and, when the husband comes across her and insists on her going with him, he does not commit the offence of kidnapping. A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 109=43 Cr.L.J. 918=203 Ind. Cas. 163.

—Ss. 363, 361—Father deceitfully enticing his own child from custody of his mother.

If a person who, in good faith, believes himself to be entitled to the lawful custody of a child cannot commit an offence under S. 361 a fortiori a person who is in fact the father of the child, and, therefore, in law, entitled to the lawful custody of the child, cannot come within the scope of S. 361. In this case it can be said that he did not merely in good faith believe himself to be entitled to the lawful custody of his child, but that he was beyond the possibility of any challenge entitled to the lawful custody of the child, and that, therefore, this act in taking the child from the keeping of his mother by deceitful means, and who was deserted by him and in whose keeping the child was since its birth could not amount to an offence of kidnapping from lawful guardianship. He does not commit any offence under S. 361 and therefore, he cannot be convicted under S. 363. A.I.R.

The phraseology of Ss. 362 and 366 is very comprehensive and fully covers the case. 30 P.L.R. 573=1929 Cr.C. 305=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 713.

One P. who was formerly a Christian changed her religion and became a convert to Hinduism. She left the house in which she was living during the absence of her husband who had gone to another place. When the latter came back he demanded his children, but they were not handed over to him.

Held, that on these facts there is no question of an offence under S. 363: 41 Cal. 714, Foll. 102 Ind. Cas. 209=28 Cr.L.J. 513=8 A.I.Cr.R. 187=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 496.

—S. 361—Who can kidnap—Mother kidnapping child.

A mother can be guilty of kidnapping her child.

Where a married woman goes away with her child from her father-in-law's house, the only person who can be deemed to have kidnapped the child is the mother, and the knowledge of her whereabouts by another person will not make him an abettor of an offence under that section. 56 P.L.R. 1911=58 P.W.R. 1911 (Cr.)=12 Cr.L.J. 94=9 Ind. Cas. 511.

—S. 372—Sale of girl outside jurisdiction of Court—Competency to try accused.

In the case of an offence under S. 372 if the sale of the girl had taken place outside the jurisdiction of the Court, it cannot try the accused. 1948 A.M.L.J. 40.

—S. 372—Where the allegation is that the accused used to hire out her daughter for a certain sum of money to various visitors, proof of an act of hiring between the accused and the various visitors to the girl is necessary to bring the case within S. 372. The mere fact that some of the visitors paid some money to the accused is not sufficient. (1936) 40 C.W.N. 1188=65 C.L.J. 344.

—S. 372—Kidnapping of married woman with a view to sell her as a mistress.

Section 372 penalises the selling of a woman under the age of 18 years with intent that such person shall be employed or used for the purpose of prostitution or illicit intercourse or for any unlawful or immoral purpose. To sell a woman as a mistress of another person, comes within the section, this being an immoral purpose. The section does not involve a distinction between taking a woman as a mistress and taking her to be used as a prostitute. A.I.R. 1934 All. 324=35 Cr.L.J. 571=147 Ind. Cas. 1102.

—S. 372—Disposal connotes control over minor disposed of—Mere direction to minor to go to a brothel is not "disposal."

The word 'disposal' necessarily connotes some control by the person disposing, over the minor disposed of.

The accused, who was a customer of a brothel, came across a girl, that had run away from her father's house, being unable to bear the ill-treatment of her step-mother and directed her to the brothel in order that she may be useful for the business carried on in the brothel. No pecuniary consideration passed nor was any stipulation made with regard to such consideration.

Held, that this was not a case of selling or letting and also that the acts of the accused did not constitute or amount to disposal of the minor, and that the accused was not guilty. 86 Ind. Cas. 804=21 M.L.W. 472=26 Cr.L.J. 868=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 716=48 M.L.J. 594.

—S. 372—Preliminary steps.

The ceremony which consists of tying a talimani to a minor girl, worshipping a basin of water and distributing food may be preliminary step before selling, letting out or disposing of the girl for the purpose of prostitution, but that does not make it an offence under the Indian Penal Code. 89 Ind. Cas. 1050=27 Bom. L.R. 1022=26 Cr.L.J. 1482=A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 478.

—S. 372—Minor girl—Gejee ceremony—Performance of—If an offence.

Performance of a Gejee ceremony on a minor girl does not amount to her disposal within S. 372. 22 Bom. L.R. 894=58 Ind. Cas. 145.

—Ss. 372 and 373—Making over of possession of minor girl under a sale, hire or other similar arrangement.

To constitute an offence under Ss. 372 and 373, Indian Penal Code, there should be a making over of possession of the minor girl either by sale or hire or by a similar arrangement. The performance of the Kanyarikam ceremony by the accused which has the effect of an arrangement by which a person has several intercourse with a girl who had just attained puberty for three days, while the girl remained with her parents, does not render the accused guilty of the offences under Ss. 372 and 373, Indian Penal Code. 35 M.L.J. 157=24 M.L.T. 77=(1918) M.W.N. 484=8 L.W. 253=19 Cr.L.J. 965=47 Ind. Cas. 865.

—S. 372—Dedication to temple.

Dedication of a minor girl to a temple to serve the temple as a dancing girl amounts to disposal for purposes of prostitution, where it is shown that girls so dedicated have led that life. 10 M.L.T. 501=(1911) 2 M.W.N. 479=12 Cr.L.J. 566=12 Ind. Cas. 654.

—Ss. 372, 373—Minor already leading an immoral life—Selling or buying minors for the purpose of prostitution—Application of the section to such minors.

The offence of selling or buying a minor for the purpose of prostitution, punishable under Ss. 372 and 373, is committed even where the minor, prior to such transaction, has been leading an immoral life. (1906) 8 Bom. L.R. 236=3 Cr.L.J. 334.

—S. 372—Disposing of minor for the purposes of prostitution.

The offence made punishable by S. 372 is complete when the person intending that a minor should be employed or used for the purpose of prostitution or for an unlawful or immoral purpose or knowing it to be likely that such minor will be employed or used for any such purpose, intentionally places the minor in a position calculated to bring about the result intended or known to be likely. If such a change in the position or circumstances of the minor has been effected with such knowledge or intention it is quite immaterial whether third persons have or have not observed any ceremonies recognised by custom as necessary to give prostitutes a particular status. The offence consists in the intentional or conscious exposure of the minor to the danger of degradation. (1905) 7 Bom. L.R. 562=2 Cr.L.J. 500.

—S. 373—Girl of 17½ years voluntarily going with accused—Girl free to leave accused at any time—Accused, held not guilty under S. 373.

Section 373, Indian Penal Code, is a mere counterpart of S. 372.

Section 373, in terms, deals with obtaining possession and not merely with obtaining possession from a third person, and because an offence under S. 372 which is aimed at disposing of a girl, necessarily involves two parties to the transaction it cannot be said that S. 373, which is aimed at obtaining possession, must involve two parties.

A girl who was 17½ years of age, went with the accused voluntarily. There was nothing whatever to show that the accused exercised any control over the girl. She was perfectly free to leave the accused whenever she wanted to.

Held, that the accused did not obtain possession of the girl within the meaning of S. 373 and could not be convicted under that section. A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 23=43 Bom. L.R. 847=43 Cr.L.J. 400=I.L.R. (1942) Bom. 7=198 Ind. Cas. 561.

—Ss. 373, 372—Girl running away with accused of her own accord.

Section 373 is not self-contained and should not be read as a self-contained whole without any reference to S. 372. They are correlative of each other, being aimed against what may be broadly described as trafficking in girls under the age of eighteen. On this view, the words "otherwise obtain possession" must be construed ejusdem generis with "buying" and "hiring." The wording of the two sections is extremely close. The word "sells" in S. 372 corresponds with "buys" in S. 373; similarly "lets to hire" corresponds with "hire." It would be a strained interpretation of S. 373 to hold that "otherwise obtains possession" does not correspond with "otherwise disposes of." The effect of the amendment is merely to enlarge the scope of the "intent"; it has, in no way, enlarged the meaning of the words "otherwise obtain possession". The word "possession" implies some sort of control.

A girl ran away with the accused of her own accord. In spite of the fact that she was taken home by her father-in-law, she ran away again and re-joined the accused. There was nothing to show that he had possession of her in any sense of the term or that he attempted to control her movements in any way; and there was nothing to prevent her from leaving him at any moment she chose.

—S. 373—Essentials.

To bring a case within S. 373, it is not necessary that possession must be obtained from a third party. A person who steals a minor girl under eighteen years of age with the requisite intention, obtain possession of such minor within S. 373. It is often said that a man enjoying sexual intercourse with a woman possesses her, but possession within S. 373 means something more. It denotes definite control over the person of whom possession is obtained. Possession in S. 372 indicates possession with a power of disposal. A.I.R. 1934 Bom. 200=36 Bom. L.R. 379=58 B. 498=35 Cr.L.J. 1437=151 Ind. Cas. 877.

—S. 373—"Possession" need not be obtained from third person.

It is not requisite for the purpose of S. 373 that the possession of the minor should be obtained from a third person. It is enough if it is established that the accused in fact obtained possession of the minor with intent that the minor shall be used for the purpose of prostitution. A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 323, Foll. 11 P.L.T. 341=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 219. See also 59 Ind. Cas. 141=45 Bom. 529=22 Cr.L.J. 29=A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 323.

—S. 373—Offence—Possession of minor not obtained from third person.

For an offence under S. 373 it is not requisite that the possession of the minor should be obtained from a third person. It is enough if it is established that the accused in fact obtained possession of the minor with the intention of using her for prostitution. 22 Bom. L.R. 1234=59 Ind. Cas. 141.

—Ss. 373, 372—Obtaining of possession—Sufficiency—Test.

Section 373 must be read in conjunction with the previous S. 372, which is its counterpart. The law does not specify the nature of the possession, nor its duration, nor intensity. It merely specifies the object, namely, prostitution or illicit intercourse. Whether in each case, the possession is such as to be consistent with the purpose or intention or knowledge of prostitution or illicit intercourse, is the only test which in law is necessary and sufficient.

Where a brothel-keeper allows a girl to visit the brothel for two to three hours in the night and she is allowed to prostitute herself to customers for money, it is sufficient obtaining of possession within the meaning of S. 373. 112 Ind. Cas. 209=11 A.I.Cr.R. 221=52 Bom. 403=30 Bom. L.R. 613=29 Cr.L.J. 993=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 336.

—S. 373—Completion of offence.

Where a minor married girl was, with her husband's consent, brought from Kashmir to Bombay at the expense of the brothel-keeper and was kept in a brothel in Bombay.

Held, that what took place in Kashmir was only a preparation for committing the offence under S. 373 which was completed in Bombay. 101 Ind. Cas. 593=8 A.I.Cr.R. 89=29 Bom. L.R. 490=28 Cr.L.J. 465=A.I.R. 1927 Bom. 666.

—S. 373—Burden of proof.

Where all the circumstances went to show that the intention of the accused was to employ a girl as a prostitute as soon as she was physically ready for the purpose.

Held, the burden lay upon the accused of proving that she intended to wait until the age of majority had been reached. 71 Ind. Cas. 232=35 C.L.J. 451=24 Cr.L.J. 104=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 539.

—S. 373, Expl. (1)—Presumption—When arises.

Accused must be a prostitute or brothel-keeper when possession of girl is obtained for raising presumption—Flat not used as brothel by accused until inmate S brought there—Flat, however, used for employing other girls as prostitutes and S encouraged and then compelled to follow their example—Though no presumption under S. 373, Expl. (1), yet presumption arises under Evidence Act, Ss. 14, 15 and 114 and accused held guilty. A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 150=45 Bom. L.R. 281=44 Cr.L.J. 534=206 Ind. Cas. 592 (F.B.).

—S. 373—Intention—Presumption.

If the accused is proved to have obtained possession of a female under the age of 18 years whether by purchase, hire or in any other manner and is proved to be a person who occupies or manages a brothel then he is to be presumed to have obtained possession of that girl with the intent that he shall use her for the purpose of prostitution. 115 Ind. Cas. 65=30 Cr.L.J. 376=30 P.L.R. 414.

—S. 373—Intention—Inference.

Proof of intention or knowledge, must be almost, entirely, a matter of inference from circumstances. 12 Mad. 273, Diss. 71 Ind. Cas. 232=24 Cr.L.J. 104=35 C.L.J. 451=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 539.

—S. 373—Taking of minor for purpose of prostitution—Proof—Adoption by Temple dasi—Intention.

The taking of a minor girl by temple dasi, though unattended by ceremonies of adoption will raise a presumption of guilt under S. 373 throwing on the taker the onus of proving absence of guilty knowledge or intention. S. 373 does not require proof, that the minor would necessarily be employed for purposes of prostitution; it is enough if such is the probable result. The section also does not require proof of intention to employ the minor for such purposes during her minority. 13 M.L.T. 131=24 M.L.J. 211=14 Cr.L.J. 33=(1913) M.W.N. 207=18 Ind. Cas. 257.

—S. 373—Intention.

A prostitute received into her house two girls, one of them being of mature age and, promised to give the elder girl good clothes and ornaments if she lived with her.

Held, that from these facts it might be reasonably inferred that the accused obtained possession of the girls with intent that one or both of them should be employed for the purpose of prostitution or knowing it to be likely that they would be so employed and that the accused were guilty of an offence under S. 373. (1904) 1 A.L.J. 559.

—S. 373—Evidence as to age of girl.

On a charge under S. 373, the prosecution is bound to prove beyond doubt that the girl is under the age of eighteen years.

Where there was no evidence regarding the age of the girl but the Judge told the jury that they might appeal to their own experience and apply that experience to the impression that they had formed on seeing the girl and no caution was given to the jury that such an impression would not be a sure guide.

Held, that there had been a material misdirection to the jury inasmuch as if the Judge had given them caution the jury would have seen that on the question of age, the prosecution evidence left the matter in doubt, and the conviction of the accused could not, therefore, be sustained. A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 417 = 35 C.W.N. 316 = 33 Cr. L.J. 553 = 138 Ind. Cas. 111.

—S. 373—The prosecution must prove in a case under S. 373 of Indian Penal Code, that girl is under the age of 16 years. 71 Ind. Cas. 124 = 26 C.W.N. 972 = 36 C.L.J. 152 = 24 Cr.L.J. 76 = A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 505.

1. Abetment.

—Ss. 376, 114—Rape—Abetment of—Mere gazing—If constitutes.

The mere act of gazing at an act of rape can hardly constitute abetment of the offence of rape. 4 A.I.Cr.D. 469.

2. Alteration of conviction.

—Ss. 376, 323—A conviction under S. 376, Indian Penal Code, cannot be altered to one under S. 323 of the same Code. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 178 = 34 P.L.R. 787 = 35 Cr.L.J. 519 (1) = 147 Ind. Cas. 799 (2).

3. Attempt.

—Ss. 375, 376, 511—Attempt to commit rape.

Where the accused caught hold of a girl, threw her down, put sand in her mouth, got on her chest, and attempted to have sexual intercourse with her and the girl resisting cried out and her screams attracted certain persons on seeing whom he ran away.

Held, that the accused was guilty of the offence of attempt to commit rape. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 1002 =

—Ss. 375, 376—Attempt.

Though rupture of the hymen is by no means necessary in law to constitute a rape the Courts are reluctant to believe that there could have been penetration without that, which is so very near the entrance, having been ruptured.

A lad of 18 was convicted of rape on a female child of 5½ years. The child, stripped of her trousers, was found seated on the naked thighs of the accused, but there was no bleeding from her private parts with the exception of fresh redness at the entrance to the vagina. The girl bore no other mark of injury and her hymen was intact. She also did not cry out.

Held, that this was not merely an indecent assault by the accused but that he attempted, though unsuccessfully to effect penetration and hence the offence was an attempt to commit rape. 100 Ind. Cas. 116 = 28 Cr.L.J. 244 = 7 A.I.Cr.R. 406 = A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 222.

—Ss. 375, 376—Attempt.

Attempt is an act done in part execution of a criminal design, amounting to more than mere preparation, but falling short of actual consummation, and possessing, except for failure to consummate, all the elements of the substantive crime; in other words, an attempt consists in the intent to commit a crime, combined with the doing of some act adapted to, but falling short of its actual commission; it may consequently be defined as that which if not prevented would have resulted in the full consummation of the act attempted.

Where the accused stepped across from his own roof to that of his neighbour at night and caught hold of his daughter, got on to the charpoy with her, undid the string of her pyjama and was seen struggling with her when the neighbour's wife came up in answer to her daughter's cries, and he then ran away.

Held, that he had been rightly convicted under Ss. 376 and 511 : 47 Cal. 190 (S.B.), Foll. 103 Ind. Cas. 199 = 28 Cr.L.J. 663 = 8 A.I.Cr.R. 432 = 28 P.L.R. 575 = A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 580.

—Ss. 375 and 376—Attempt to commit rape must be distinguished from preparation to commit rape and from indecent assault.

An act which amounts to attempt to commit rape does not lose that character merely because the offender does not display a determination to effect his object at all costs. But two conditions are requisite for an attempt to commit the offence. First, there must be an attempt to commit the offence and second, some act must be done towards the commission of the offence. The word "attempt" is not itself defined in the Penal Code, and must therefore be taken in its ordinary meaning. And even if an act has been done towards the commission of the offence that alone does not bring the case within the section. From the moment when the intention is formed to commit an offence every act done which facilitates the commission of the offence, and which is done with that object in view, is in one sense an act done towards the commission of the offence, but the doing of every such act does not constitute an attempt to commit the offence. It must in every case be a question depending upon the circumstances whether a particular act done (with the requisite intention) towards the commission of an offence is sufficiently proximate to its commission to constitute an attempt or is so remote as merely to constitute preparation for its commission.

When a lady who was travelling alone in a train woke up from her sleep, she found the accused sitting on her berth. She jumped up and rushed screaming to the door, but the accused caught hold of her, put his hand over her mouth and threatened her with a revolver and made her sit down. She then managed to get to the window and open it but he caught her by the hair and pushed her on the seat—in a sitting position. He threatened to strangle her if she screamed. Then he began to unbutton his trousers and had unfastened the top button when she made an attempt to reach the communication cord. The accused then caught her by the wrist and in the struggle her wrist-let watch was broken. Then immediately the accused released her and asked her name. She gave it and he apologised for molesting her, saying he had mistaken her for some other lady. It was established on the evidence that the accused entered the carriage with the intention of having intercourse by force is necessary, with a woman whom he then believed to be another than the one actually assaulted.

Held, that the acts were acts of preparation, done towards the commission of rape, but that singly or collectively they did not amount to an attempt to commit rape. They did, however, amount to an assault with the intent to outrage the modesty of a woman or which accused knew to be likely to have that result, and thus constituted an offence punishable under S. 354 of the Indian Penal Code. 96 Ind. Cas. 260=27 Cr.L.J. 916=4 Bur. L.J. 83=A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 247.

—Ss. 375, 376—The fact that the vernacular record showed that the accused put his finger in the private part of the complainant coupled with the absence of semen on the pyjama of the girl and the absence of the marks on the male organ of the accused were held to be sufficient circumstances for conviction for an offence of attempt to commit rape and not for rape. 73 Ind. Cas. 513=24 Cr.L.J. 625=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 167.

—Ss. 375, 376—Boy of ten.

A boy of ten who has attained sufficient maturity of understanding to judge the nature and consequences of his conduct can be convicted of an attempt to commit rape. A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 393=37 Cr.L.J. 94=159 Ind. Cas. 450.

—Ss. 375, 376 and 511—Rape—Attempt—Boy of 12 years.

A boy of 12 years, though incapable of committing rape may be guilty of an attempt to commit rape. 11 Bur. L.T. 135=18 Cr.L.J. 943=42 Ind. Cas. 175.

4. Charge.

—S. 376—Charge—Joinder of charge under, with charge under Sections 366 and 147, is illegal.

The joinder of charge under Section 376 against one of the accused with charges under Sections 366 and 147 against others along with him is a misjoinder which is illegal. 77 Ind. Cas. 997=4 L.L.J. 322=25 Cr.L.J. 533=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 410.

—Ss. 376, 366—Offence falling under Ss. 376 366—Refusal of trying Magistrate to frame charge under both—Sessions and High Court can revise it. A.I.R. 1932 Nag. 85 (1)=15 N.L.J. 26=33 Cr.L.J. 558=137 Ind. Cas. 904.

5. Compensation for false charge.

—Ss. 375, 376—Offence exclusively triable by a Court of Session—Offence tried by a Special Power Magistrate—Order discharging the accused.

Held, that the Special Power Magistrate could pass the order under S. 250, Criminal Procedure Code. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 230=37 Cr.L.J. 773=14 R. 378=163 Ind. Cas. 163.

—Ss. 375, 376—Order of discharge under S. 376, Indian Penal Code, typed with finding that case is false—Order signed by Magistrate—Further order directing payment of compensation typed on same date with same typewriter—Both orders held one and same. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 230=37 Cr.L.J. 773=14 R. 378=163 Ind. Cas. 163.

6. Consent.

—Ss. 375, 376—Where a man has illicit intercourse with an adult woman with her consent, it is not rape under the law. A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 460=39 Cr.L.J. 674=176 Ind. Cas. 104.

—Ss. 375, 376—Consent of the woman.

No offence of rape is committed when the sexual intercourse is with the consent of the woman. 4 Bur. L.T. 136=12 Cr.L.J. 584=12 Ind. Cas. 848.

—Ss. 375, 376—Age of girl.

In rape cases, it is only when consent is the defence pleaded that the question would arise as to whether the girl was of age to give consent in law. A.I.R. 1935 All. 935 = 1935 A.W.R. 1071=1935 A.L.J. 1079=37 Cr.L.J. 247=160 Ind. Cas. 162.

—Ss. 375, 376—Consent.

In a rape case the question of consent does not arise when the girl is under ten years of age. The fact that the accused was found to be suffering from gonorrhoea and the other party was not infected with the disease is by no means conclusive of his innocence. 106 Ind. Cas. 348=9 A.I.Cr.R. 307=9 P.L.T. 186=29 Cr. L.J. 12.

—Ss. 375, 376—Where the girl is over sixteen and there is nothing to support her allegation that the accused had sexual intercourse with her against her will and it is at least possible that he was a consenting party, then the accused cannot be held to be guilty of rape by the mere fact of having sexual intercourse with her. In the absence of any corroborative evidence that the accused had sexual intercourse with her and that if they did so, it was without her consent, the accused ought not be convicted for rape. A.I.R. 1934 Oudh 32=10 O.W.N. 1274=55 Cr.L.J. 498=147 Ind. Cas. 759 (2).

—Ss. 375, 376—Absence of protest by grown-up girl.

Where a grown-up girl was carried about by the accused and subjected to sexual intercourse and now and then left by herself and there was no evidence of protest on her part.

Held, that she must be presumed to have been a consenting party in the elopement and the accused could not be convicted for rape. A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 401=32 P.L.R. 98=32 Cr.L.J. 1042=133 Ind. Cas. 560.

—Ss. 375, 376—Where the accused was convicted of committing rape on a woman aged 20, but there were circumstances to show that the accused was copulating with her, with her consent and when she was caught in the act of copulation, she naturally concocted a story to save her face that accused had carried her into the room by force.

Held, that the offence of rape was not made out. 9 L.L.J. 337=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 858.

—Ss. 375, 376—The fact that the girl was virgo intacta upto the date of the occurrence is very strong proof against the committing of rape with consent of the victim in rape cases. 89 Ind. Cas. 1056=26 Cr.L.J. 1488=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 613.

7. (a) Evidence and Proof—(General).

—Ss. 375 and 376—It is an essential part of the proof in rape that there should have been, not only an assault but actual penetration. The only witness who can prove that is the woman. In practice, a conviction for rape almost entirely depends on the credibility of the woman so far as the essential ingredients are concerned, the other evidence being merely corroborative. Her testimony is vital in a case where the woman is married and the medical evidence in no way corroborates the charge of rape. Even the presence of spermatozoa indicating semen found in woman's genitals or on her saree in the case of a married woman who has been several times a mother, is by no means final. A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 285=43 Cr.L.J. 576=199 Ind. Cas. 742.

—Ss. 375, 376—Finding of spermatozoa on quilt is strong corroborative evidence.

In a trial for an offence of rape, the statement of the girl to her mother and the neighbours shortly after the incident complaining against the accused, is corroborative evidence under S. 157 and Illus. (j) of S. 8, Evidence Act.

Mere finding of spermatozoa on the quilt of the accused may not by itself have much evidentiary value but it is a strong piece of evidence when taken with the evidence given by the girl that the accused had raped her on the quilt. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 461=I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 180=44 C.W.N. 830=191 Ind. Cas. 48.

—Ss. 375, 376—The mere existence of the injury to the vagina does not necessarily and inevitably justify the inference that there had been rape. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 298=39 Cr.L.J. 944=177 Ind. Cas. 710.

—Ss. 375, 376—Girl, mother and eye-witnesses deposing for prosecution—Girl 14 years old—Medical examination after four or five days—Absence of injuries and hymen—Blood stains on dhoti of accused and cloth of girl—Conviction, held proper. A.I.R. 1935 All. 590=36 Cr.L.J. 1095 (2)=1935 A.W.R. 597=157 Ind. Cas. 147.

—Ss. 375, 376—Detection of semen on cloth.

Where in a case of rape the only evidence was the circumstance that semen was detected on a piece of cloth which was recovered from the house of the accused, and that it was also discovered on the silwar which was alleged to have been worn by the woman at the time, and the accused was a young man who was married and the woman was a grown-up woman who admittedly passed the night before making the first information report at her husband's house.

Held, that that was a wholly natural circumstance which did not help the case of either side. 9 L.L.J. 384=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 867.

—Ss. 375, 376—Evidentiary value of refusal to submit to medical examination by woman who brought the charge of rape, pointed out. A.I.R. 1935 Nag. 69=17 N.L.J. 189.

—Ss. 375, 376—Tender child—Examination of, as witness.

Where the Court is of opinion that the child upon whom an offence under S. 376, Indian Penal Code, is committed is unable to give relevant information in the matter by reason of tender years and consequent immaturity of judgment, it should not examine the child at all. 38 All. 49, Foll. 41 Cal. 406, not foll. A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 337=31 P.L.R. 612=127 Ind. Cas. 862.

—Ss. 375, 376—In no cases is it more difficult to arrive at a confident verdict whether evidence is false or true than in cases in which women allege that they have been outraged or that an outrage has been attempted on them. Not only one has to consider the possibility of deliberate falsehood but those who have to arrive at a verdict have to consider the possibility of unintentional mis-statements produced by hysterical conditions which are apt to be found in cases of this nature. 81 Ind. Cas. 629=46 All. 265=22 A.L.J. 162=5 L.R.A. (Cr.) 65=25 Cr.L.J. 981=A.I.R. 1924 All. 411.

—Ss. 375, 376—Circumstances may prove the truth of the rape story.

The fact that the charge of rape was brought against the accused immediately after the occurrence, coupled with the medical evidence and the fact that he was assaulted by Lambardar and arraigned before the panchayat there and then leads strongly to the conclusion that the rape story is no fiction, though the friends of the girl being ignorant rustics may not be wise enough to look for blood for to preserve it as evidence in support of the charge. 38 All. 49, Foll. 76 Ind. Cas. 1037=25 Cr.L.J. 317=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 332.

—Ss. 375, 376—Delay in reporting to police—Enmity—No reliable direct evidence.

In a case of rape there was no direct reliable evidence as to the commission of the offence no blood or semen was discovered on the body of the prosecutrix and there had been great delay in making the first information and there was enmity between the parties. All these circumstances combined to raise doubt in favour of the accused to the benefit of which he is entitled. 17 P.W.R. 1916 (Cr.)=17 Cr. L.J. 150=33 Ind. Cas. 630.

—Ss. 375, 376—Proof of age.

To prove to charge under S. 376, the prosecution is bound to prove that the girl is below the age of 16. A.I.R. 1939 All. 708=1939 A.W.R. 693=1939 A.L.J. 980=41 Cr.L.J. 142=I.L.R. (1939) All. 871=185 Ind. Cas. 271.

7. (b) Evidence and Proof—Evidence of prosecutrix.

—S. 376—Basis of conviction—Uncorroborated evidence of prosecutrix—Girl of seven years of age.

Although permissible legally, it is dangerous to convict an accused in a sexual case on the uncorroborated evidence of a prosecutrix. This rule would necessarily apply whether the prosecutrix were an adult or a girl of only seven years of age. It is a sound rule in practice not to act on the uncorroborated evidence of a child, although under the Indian Law the rule is a rule of prudence and not of law. A.I.R. 1950

Nag. 9=4 A.I.Cr.D. 118=51 Cr.L.J. 244=1949 N.L.J. 520.

—S. 376—Proof of offence—Uncorroborated testimony of girl—Value of.

In a charge of rape the uncorroborated testimony of the girl alone should not be accepted as a sufficient foundation for convicting the accused. I.L.R. (1950) A. 787=1950 A.W.R. 98=A.I.R. 1949 All. 710=51 Cr. L.J. 29.

—S. 376—Proof of offence—Evidence of prosecutrix—Need for corroboration.

The rule of corroboration is meant to be applied to accomplices and a ravished woman is not an accomplice but a victim of the crime. Therefore, corroboration of the prosecutrix in a case of rape is not always indispensable. The thing to be remembered in such cases is whether it is safe to convict on her solitary statement. This depends upon the circumstance of each individual case. Pak. L.R. (1950) Lah. 294=A.I.R. 1950 Lah. 151=51 Cr. L.J. 968.

—S. 376—Proof of offence—Evidence of prosecutrix—Corroboration—Necessity for—Nature of corroboration.

In cases of rape it is a rule of prudence that there should be corroboration of the testimony of the prosecutrix. Such corroboration can seldom be by direct evidence, corroboration of that sort would be almost always impossible; but the testimony should be capable of being tested. A.I.R. 1950 Kut. 9=51 Cr.L.J. 396.

—S. 376—Conviction under—Uncorroborated testimony of girl—If sufficient.

In a case of rape, the uncorroborated testimony of the girl who was the victim of an indecent assault, is insufficient to warrant a conviction, where she made no complaint about it at the time and said nothing about it until questioned by her mother some months later. A.I.R. 1949 Assam 13=50 Cr. L.J. 589.

—S. 376—Evidence of prosecutrix—Corroboration by her own statement made after occurrence—Sufficiency—Evidence Act, S. 157.

It is a rule of prudence that the evidence of the victim of a rape requires corroboration. Under S. 157 of the Evidence Act her evidence can be corroborated by a previous statement made by her after the occurrence. Whether such corroboration should be considered sufficient or not is really a question of fact, and the circumstances under which the statement by the prosecutrix is made and the time which elapses between the occurrence and her statement have to be considered. 1936 Cal. 18; 44 C.W.N. 835 and 41 C.W.N. 641, Not Foll. A.I.R. 1949 Cal. 613=51 Cr. L.J. 153.

—S. 376—Conviction under—Girl's statement coupled with her identification of accused in jail—Sufficiency.

It is a good rule not to treat the girl's evidence as sufficient for recording a conviction in a case under S. 376, Indian Penal Code. But where there is the additional circumstance of the girl identifying the accused in jail, her statement cannot be ignored. 1947 A.L.J. 435=1937 A.W.R. (H.C.) 276=48 Cr.L.J. 851=1947 A.L.W. 526=A.I.R. 1947 A. 393.

—S. 376—In a rape case, the complaint of the prosecutrix is admissible in evidence, not as evidence of the truth of the charge but as corroboration of the credibility of the prosecutrix. It is desirable that a direction should be given to jury about the unsafeness of the conviction on uncorroborated evidence of the prosecutrix. But if the jury consider it safe, they can convict on the uncorroborated testimony. A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 245=1944 N.L.J. 206=46 Cr.L.J. 68=I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 226=215 Ind. Cas. 244.

—S. 376—The law does not require that there should be independent corroboration in the rape of a child aged ten years as to the identity of the culprit. The position is very different where a woman makes an accusation of rape and where a child says that a particular person is a culprit. It is the existence of possible motive for false incrimination which ought to attract the necessity for corroboration and where no such motive can even be suggested, it cannot be said that there is any rule of law or of prudence which makes independent corroboration necessary to the culprit's identity. A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 363=1944 N.L.J. 406=46 Cr.L.J. 371=218 Ind. Cas. 18.

—S. 376—There is no presumption of law which differentiates the evidence of the complainant in a rape case from that of the complainant in the case of any other offence. There can be no assumption, in the absence of evidence, that she is an accomplice. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 461. =I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 180=44 C.W.N. 830=191 Ind. Cas. 48.

—S. 376—Corroborative evidence.

Corroboration is not essential even in a case of an offence of rape. The Court is entitled to accept the uncorroborated evidence of a girl but it should be slow in its acceptance of it. It must scrutinize her evidence very carefully and unless her story convinces the Court so much that it does not possibly stand in the need of any corroborative evidence, it should not accept her uncorroborated evidence. Evidence in corroboration must be independent testimony which affects the accused by connecting or tending to connect him with the crime. In other words, it must be evidence which implicates him, that is, which confirms in some material particular not only the evidence that the crime has been committed, but also that the prisoner committed it. What the girl said after the occurrence is really no corroboration at all. A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 128=40 Cr.L.J. 525=180 Ind. Cas. 936.

—S. 376—Conviction on bare testimony of woman.

In a charge for rape, in the absence of any corroboration, it is not proper to convict the accused on the bare testimony of the woman alleged to be the victim. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 8=35 P.L.R. 638=36 Cr.L.J. 428=153 Ind. Cas. 894.

—S. 376—Charge by woman against man—Testimony of woman—It must be corroborated by independent evidence. A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 7=38 C.W.N. 108=36 Cr.L.J. 796=62 C. 527=155 Ind. Cas. 584.

—S. 376—Cases of rape—Jury must be warned not to accept the evidence of the girl alleged to have been raped unless they find that it is corroborated in some material particulars implicating the accused. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 833=62 C. 534=35 Cr.L.J. 508=38 C.W.N. 52=147 Ind. Cas. 999 (2).

—S. 376—The solitary statement of the complainant that the offence of rape has been committed upon her by the accused is not sufficient to convict him of the offence in the absence of other independent evidence. A.I.R. 1933 Oudh 163=10 O.W.N. 107=34 Cr. L.J. 496=143 Ind. Cas. 73.

—S. 376—Where in a case of rape and sodomy there was no evidence to implicate the accused except the statement of the girl ravished, and there was enmity between the parties and there was much delay in making the report to police even though the police post was very near.

Held, that guilt of the accused had not been established. 28 P.L.R. 235=9 L.L.J. 111=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 836.

—S. 376—It is unsafe to rely on uncorroborated testimony of the woman.

Where in a case of rape the evidence of the Sub-Assistant Surgeon combined with the report of the Chemical Examiner, shows that the complainant had sexual intercourse recently with some one, but shows no more than that there and were no signs of rape.

Held, that it is notoriously very unsafe to rely on the uncorroborated evidence of the woman alone, and to make it an exception to the general rule. 97 Ind. Cas. 180=5 Bur. L.J. 112=27 Cr. L.J. 1284=A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 67.

—S. 376—Uncorroborated testimony of the woman not sufficient—Evidence of resistance a good guide to determine consent.

Where there is no independent evidence in support of the statement of the complainant that she was raped by the accused it would be most dangerous to base a conviction on her uncorroborated testimony alone; the first and foremost circumstance that can be looked for in cases of rape is the evidence of resistance which one would naturally expect from a woman unwilling to yield to a sexual intercourse forced upon her. Such a resistance may lead to the tearing of clothes, the infliction of personal injuries and even injuries on her private parts. Where there is absolutely no evidence on the record of any struggle having taken place nor were marks of any injuries found on the person either of the complainant or of the accused.

Held, that the accused cannot be said to have had connection with the woman without her consent. 75 Ind. Cas. 986=25 Cr. L.J. 74=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 669.

—S. 376—In cases of rape, it would be quite unsafe to convict an individual merely on the accusation of the woman who had been raped. 67 Ind. Cas. 827=23 Cr. L.J. 475=11 P.W.R. 1922 Cr. (Lah.)

—S. 376—Girl, young and innocent—Evidence of the girl is highly valuable—Her statement immediately after the occasion increases her credibility.

When the victim of an offence of rape is an innocent girl of tender age her evidence will carry great weight. A statement made by her by way of disclosure immediately after the occasion will strongly corroborate her credibility and go to prove the consistency of her conduct and also her want of consent. When a person is convicted of rape, his punishment will be proportioned to the greater or less atrocity of crime, his conduct and the defenceless and unprotected state of the injured female whether she is a low native or a high European. 82 Ind. Cas. 142=25 Cr. L.J. 1214=A.I.R. 1925 Nag. 74.

—S. 376—It is hardly possible that any self-respecting woman would come forward in a Court of Justice to make a humiliating statement against her honour, of having been raped, unless it was absolutely true. 75 Ind. Cas. 77=6 L.L.J. 111=24 Cr. L.J. 877=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 291.

7. (c). Evidence and Proof—Medical evidence.

—S. 376—Medical examination of accused—Necessity—Effect of its absence.

In a case where the accused are charged with an offence under S. 376, Indian Penal Code, and the accused deny the charge it is the duty of the prosecution to secure the medical examination of the accused within the period of time when conclusive results could be achieved. Where the evidence led by the prosecution in the case of such an offence is not enough to form the basis of conviction, the absence of medical examination would render it wholly insufficient. 1947 A.W.R. (H.C.) 407=1947 A.Cr.C. 172.

—S. 376—Accused charged with having committed rape—Failure of prosecution to have male organ of accused medically examined—Effect of.

In rape cases if the glands of the male organ is covered by uniform layer of smegma it negatives the possibility of recent complete penetration. If the accused is not circumcised, the existence of smegma round the corona gland is proof against penetration since it is rubbed off during the act of sexual intercourse. The smegma accumulates if no bath is taken for twenty-four hours. In rape cases, therefore, the prosecution must get the male organ of the accused examined. If it was not examined the accused is entitled to say that if a medical examination of the vital or the material parts of his body has been conducted, he would have been in a position to show that the condition of those parts negatived the possibility of recent complete penetration or proved that there was no penetration. The argument that as the medical examination had taken place more than twenty-four hours after the occurrence, the result would have been inconclusive because the smegma accumulates if no bath is taken for twenty-four hours is no answer to the plea of the accused. It is the duty of the prosecution, if, according to the medical jurisprudence, medical examination is capable of yielding conclusive results, to ensure that examination within a period of time when conclusive results could be achieved. A.I.R. 1946 All. 191=1945 Oudh W.N. (H.C.) 334=1945 A.W.R. (H.C.) 287=1946 A.L.J. 86=224 Ind. Cas. 336=47 Cr. L.J. 611.

—S. 376—Evidence.

It cannot be said that medical evidence cannot help the case for the prosecution, because the complainant is pregnant at the time when the rape is alleged to have been committed. 11 L.L.J. 391=1930 Cr.C. 160=30 P.L.R. 662=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 193.

—S. 376—The report of the chemical analyser regarding the presence of semen on the complainant's clothing is not sufficient to prove that the complainant is actually raped. 1930 Cr. C. 160=30 P.L.R. 662=11 L.L.J. 391=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 193.

—S. 376—Evidence not sufficient for conviction.

Where there was no physical proof of the rape, the inference from the medical evidence was that at the time of the alleged offence, the girl was not a virgin, no trace of semen was found on her clothes.

Held, the evidence is not sufficient to support conviction for rape. 82 Ind. Cas. 64=25 Cr. L.J. 1200=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 238.

8. Penetration.

—Ss. 375, 376—Vulval penetration.

There is a distinction between vulval penetration and vaginal penetration. It is not necessary that the hymen should be ruptured in every case. In order to constitute rape, the statute merely requires medical evidence of penetration, and this may occur and the hymen remain intact. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 797=36 P.L.R. 35=36 Cr. L.J. 310=153 Ind. Cas. 218.

—Ss. 375, 376—Vulval penetration is sufficient for conviction under S. 376. 88 Ind. Cas. 705=26 Cr. L.J. 1185=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 536.

—Ss. 375, 376—Partial penetration.

Partial penetration, though not sufficient to cause any rupture or injury to the hymen, is sufficient penetration within the meaning of S. 376 and the offence is not attempt to commit rape but of rape. 100 Ind. Cas. 113=7 A.I.Cr.R. 416=28 Cr.L.J. 241=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 735.

9. Procedure.

—Ss. 375, 376—In rape cases, early medical examination of accused is essential.

It is always desirable that the accused in a rape case should be medically examined as soon as possible. A.I.R. 1944 Nag. 245=I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 226=46 Cr.L.J. 68=1944 N.L.J. 206=215 Ind. Cas. 244.

—Ss. 375, 376—Amicus curiae—Appointment of.

It would be well in serious cases of rape at least in some of them, if the Sessions Judges appointed a member of the Bar as amicus curiae. A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 285=43 Cr.L.J. 576=199 Ind. Cas. 742.

—Ss. 375, 376, 377—Cases of rape and unnatural vice should be tried by Magistrate with S. 30 powers.

Cases of rape and unnatural vice should, as far as possible, be tried by Magistrate with powers under S. 30, Criminal Procedure Code, so that if circumstances call for a heavy sentence, then the same may be given up to the outside limit of seven years. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 256=38 P.L.R. 437=37 Cr.L.J. 474 (1)=161 Ind. Cas. 591 (1).

10. Sentence.

—S. 376—Sentence.

The sentence of transportation is indefeasible for an offence of rape. The ordinary sentence for rape varies from three years to five years. In a very bad case, seven years is sometimes given. Even where the accused happens to be a Police constable, sentence of transportation is excessive, more especially where it is not a case of Police constable being on duty at the time when the offence is alleged to have been committed or a case of a Police constable taking advantage of his official position to rape a woman placed in his charge. A.I.R. 1942 Bom. 121=43 Cr. L.J. 621=44 Bom. L.R. 216=200 Ind. Cas. 261. (F.B.).

—S. 376—Double sentence, legality of.

A boy of 13 years was convicted under S. 376 and sentenced to some stripes of cane and four years' imprisonment in order that he may be sent to Reformatory School. The boy was accordingly detained for ten months. On revision in altering the sentence to one day's simple imprisonment.

Held, that if the sentence of imprisonment were to be remitted and the whipping upheld, the fact would remain that the accused would, for all practical purposes, be receiving a double sentence, namely, imprisonment in addition to whipping, nor could the sentence from four years to the term already undergone be reduced as the punishment suffered in Reformatory School could not be less than four years. A.I.R. 1934 All. 976=36 Cr.L.J. 368=57 A. 395=4 A.W.R. 669=153 Ind. Cas. 582.

—S. 376—Sentence—Offence under S. 376 should be put down with strong hand.

Crimes of violence upon women who are not in a position to defend themselves must be put down with a strong hand and it would be a very sad state of affairs, if criminals were to carry an impression that to criminally assault a woman or to rape her was not a very serious matter and that they could always satisfy their unholy passion if only they were prepared to undergo a comparatively short term of imprisonment. (Five years' rigorous imprisonment was awarded.) 116 Ind. Cas. 883=30 P.L.R. 437=30 Cr.L.J. 699=1929 Cr. C. 150=13 A.I.Cr.R. 97=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 584.

Where evidence showed that the girl who was raped was unchaste the sentence of seven years' rigorous imprisonment was held to be too severe. 100 Ind. Cas. 128=28 Cr.L.J. 256=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 772.

—S. 376—Punishment.

When a person is convicted of rape, his punishment will be proportioned to the greater or less atrocity of the crime, his conduct and the defenceless and unprotected state of the injured female whether she is a low native or a high European. 82 Ind. Cas. 142=25 Cr.L.J. 1214=A.I.R. 1925 Nag. 74.

—S. 376—Rape—Sentence.

The punishment for an offence of rape should be proportioned to the greater or less atrocity of the crime, to the conduct of the criminal and to the defenceless and unprotected state of the injured female. The condonation of the offence, on being paid a sum of money, by the family should not be taken into consideration in determining the punishment to be inflicted. 20 Cr.L.J. 647=52 Ind. Cas. 423 (Nag.).

—S. 376—Sentence—Suicide by complainant.

An inference adverse to the accused in a case of rape, should not be drawn from the fact that the complainant was very much ashamed and even committed suicide owing to the shame brought on her. The fact of the complainant's suicide should not be taken into consideration in passing sentence in case of rape because that is neither the natural nor ordinary nor probable consequence of the accused's act. 19 Cr.L.J. 155=43 Ind. Cas. 443 (L Bur.).

—Ss. 376, 366—Offences under—Separate sentences can be passed.

A charge under S. 366 involves different elements and different questions of fact from a charge under S. 376, and therefore separate sentences for offences under Ss. 366 and 376 are not against the provisions of S. 71, Indian Penal Code: 8 Bom. L.R. 120, Foll. 99 Ind. Cas. 344=7 Lah. 484=27 P.L.R. 802=28 Cr.L.J. 136=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 88.

—S. 376—Where the real offence is rape and the abduction is an aggravating circumstance separate sentences under both the sections should not be given. 89 Ind. Cas. 912=26 Cr.L.J. 1440=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 114.

Carnal intercourse with a bullock through nose is an unnatural offence punishable under S. 377. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 261=35 P.L.R. 73=35 Cr.L.J. 1096=150 Ind. Cas. 320.

—S. 377—"Coitus per os."

Coitus per os falls within the provisions of S. 377. 87 Ind. Cas. 97=19 S.L.R. 327=26 Cr.L.J. 945=A.I.R. 1925 Sind 286.

—S. 377—Attempt.

The offence made punishable under S. 377 requires that penetration, however little, should be proved strictly. Thus an attempt to commit this offence should be an attempt to thrust the male organ into the anus of the passive agent. Some activity on the part of the accused in that particular direction ought to be proved strictly. A mere preparation for the operation should not necessarily be construed as an attempt.

Where there was an intention on the part of the accused to satisfy his lust by a carnal intercourse against the order of nature and he made every preparation to satisfy that lust, but before he could thrust his organ in, he spent himself; then he cannot be said to have done any act which might be construed as an attempt to commit the offence of sodomy. A.I.R. 1934 Sind 206=28 S.L.R. 330=36 Cr.L.J. 718=155 Ind. Cas. 435.

—Ss. 377, 174 and 116—Before a conviction under S. 377-114 can be recorded, it must be proved both that the offence was committed and that the abettor was present. If, however, the Magistrate's conclusion is that the accused was guilty of no more than an attempt, the conviction of the abettor who is present should be under S. 377, read with S. 116. A.I.R. 1935 Sind 78=36 Cr.L.J. 877=156 Ind. Cas. 189.

—S. 377—Duty of Court.

Subordinate Courts should comply fully and carefully with the requirements of S. 377. Every officer who has a judgment to write will do well to set forth the points for decision in such shape that at the first glance, it may be apparent both to himself and also to any appellate tribunal that nothing which is material has been over-looked. A.I.R. 1932 Sind 143=33 Cr. L. J. 900=140 Ind. Cas. 23 (D.B.).

—S. 377—Medical evidence required in the case of an offence under S. 377.

Where the case of the prosecution in regard to an offence under S. 377, Indian Penal Code, is not that the offence remained uncompleted the medical evidence could and should be definite against the accused. Where such evidence is to the effect that no marks of injury on the arms of the boy were found, but as the boy was grown up, there may be no marks of injury, it is somewhat inconsistent and does not go against the accused. Though there might be marks of semen on the dhoti of the accused, it is by no means a decisive factor. (1946) A.W.R. (H.C.) 574=229 Ind. Cas. 301=1946 A.L.W. 582=1947 A.Cr.C. 10=48 Cr. L. J. 376=A.I.R. 1947 A. 97.

—S. 377—Chemical Examiner's Report.

In a charge of sodomy stains of semen constitute important evidence. Great weight must therefore be attached to the Chemical Examiner's report. 122 Ind. Cas. 93=10 Lah. 794=31 Cr. L. J. 343=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 318.

—S. 377—Evidence.

A charge under S. 377 is one very easy to bring and very difficult to refute. Therefore, the evidence in support of such a charge has to be very convincing. 94 Ind. Cas. 257=8 L.L.J. 180=27 Cr.L.J. 593=27 P.L.R. 353=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 375.

—S. 377—Evidence of complainant.

In a complaint for unnatural offence, especially where it is found as a fact that the complainant was a perfectly willing party, it is not safe to convict the accused unless the complainant's evidence is corroborated in material particulars implicating the accused. It is true that in law, such corroboration is not required, but as a matter of prudence, there ought to be no conviction without such corroboration, except in very exceptional cases. 165 Ind. Cas. 707=61 C.L.J. 883=39 C.W.N. 1051=38 Cr.L.J. 70.

—S. 377—Evidence of—Person on whom the offence is alleged to have been committed—Uncorroborated testimony.

In a charge of offence under S. 377, Indian Penal Code, it is as a rule unsafe to convict on the uncorroborated testimony of the person on whom the offence is said to have been committed unless for any special reasons that testimony is entitled to special weight. 73 P.L.R. 1918=38 P.W.R. 1918 (Cr.)=19 Cr.L.J. 946=47 Ind. Cas. 670.

—S. 377—Unnatural offence—Complaint—Uncorroborated testimony—Conviction.

A conviction under S. 377, Indian Penal Code, can be safely based on the uncorroborated testimony of the victim, if it is not doubtful. The prosecution is not bound to produce witnesses who are not expected to speak the truth. 185 P.L.R. 1915=42 P.W.R. 1914 (Cr.)=16 Cr.L.J. 266=28 Ind. Cas. 154.

—S. 377—Whipping.

Sentence of whipping cannot be inflicted under S. 4 (b), Whipping Act in the case of attempts to commit offence. Section 4 (b) does not apply to convictions under S. 377 read with S. 511, Indian Penal Code. A.I.R. 1938 All. 16=1937 A.L.J. 944=39 Cr.L.J. 233=1937 A.W.R. 902=172 Ind. Cas. 905.

—S. 377—Whipping.

The punishment of whipping in case of bestiality e.g., sodomy on a boy of eight years is useful as a deterrent. A.I.R. 1937 Pesh. 22=38 Cr. L.J. 429=167 Ind. Cas. 655.

—S. 377—Sentence.

Where an offence under S. 377 is committed after using violence, a sentence of whipping in addition to rigorous imprisonment is eminently right and proper. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 256=37 Cr.L.J. 474 (1)=38 P.L.R. 437=161 Ind. Cas. 591 (1).

—S. 377—Sentence.

The offence of sodomy is one of those offences for which there can hardly be extenuating circumstances and a sentence of four months' rigorous imprisonment is an over-lenient one. Ordinarily, such cases are committed to the Sessions Court so that the accused might receive condign punishment, the powers of a First Class Magistrate being restricted to giving only two years. A.I.R. 1933 Sind 87=34 Cr.L.J. 618=143 Ind. Cas. 605.

The evidence against accused was that he was standing by the thief. There was no evidence at all to lead one to the conclusion that he was engaged in any conspiracy with the principal offender for the doing of the theft.

—Ss. 378, 379 and 114—Conviction under.

Where an accused person is found to have been a member of an unlawful assembly the common object of which was to commit trespass and theft and it is found that theft was actually committed by certain members of the unlawful assembly and it is not found that that person himself committed any theft by removing any property or that he made any preparation for committing any theft or aided any one in the commission of theft.

Held, that the accused cannot be properly convicted of an offence under S. 379 read with S. 114. (1901) 8 C.W.N. 519.

—Ss. 378, 379 and 511—Attempt.

Where the accused entered a thorned enclosure at the well of the complainant and was about to enter a smaller enclosure in which the cattle were tethered when he was interrupted by the complainant.

Held, that the accused intended to steal the cattle and that he could not carry out his intention on account of intervention by the owner and so he was guilty of attempt to commit theft. 89 Ind. Cas. 848=26 Cr. L.J. 1424=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 147.

—Ss. 378, 379—Where accused was caught at night time in the vicinity of some cattle which had been tethered on the complainant's square and near which complainant and his brother were sleeping.

2. (a) Assertion of right—Duty of court.*—Ss. 378, 379—Bona fide taking of property.

The removal of property in the assertion of a bona fide claim or right, though unfounded in law and fact, does not constitute theft although a mere colourable pretence to obtain or keep possession of property would not avail as a defence. The question whether the claim is bona fide or not must be determined upon all the circumstances of the case, and a Court ought not to convict unless it holds that the claim is a mere pretence. A.I.R. 1935 Sind. 115=29 S.L.R. 121=36 Cr.L.J. 1310=158 Ind. Cas. 282.

—Ss. 378, 379—Theft committed openly—Inference of bona fide claim.

Thefts are not always committed secretly and a bona fide claim cannot be inferred from the fact that the petitioners acted openly while cutting the timber not owned by them. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 491=36 Cr.L.J. 120=1 B.R. 60=152 Ind. Cas. 477.

—Ss. 378, 379—Bona fide claimant.

A person who has a bona fide claim to property, even though it might be unfounded in law or fact, cannot be held to be guilty of the offence of theft unless the claim was a mere pretence. The question whether a person has a bona fide claim to title in the property must be determined on the facts and circumstances of each case. A.I.R. 1933 Oudh 50=9 O.W.N. 1196=34 Cr.L.J. 547=143 Ind. Cas. 208.

—Ss. 378, 379—Claim of right being mere pretence—Jurisdiction of Criminal Court if ousted.

To constitute an offence under S. 379, Indian Penal Code, the determining factor is the intention of the taker and where articles have been removed in the bona fide exercise of a right of ownership which is believed to exist the act does not amount to theft. The mere assertion of a claim is not sufficient to exclude the application of S. 378, Indian Penal Code. Where the claim is no more than a pretence, the jurisdiction of the criminal Court is not ousted.

Per Curiam.—Not uncommonly the Criminal Court is used as a lever to harass an inconvenient adversary. If there is a bona fide dispute as to the ownership in the property itself or as to right of way the straight course is to approach the Civil Court for the determination of the controversial questions of title as may arise between the parties. 1930 A.L.J. 457.

—Ss. 378, 379—In a case under S. 379 where the accused alleges a bona fide claim of right to property to which the offence dealt with has reference, the question to be decided is not whether the alleged right would stand the test in a Civil Court; what is essential to consider is whether the accused establishes the plea as to the bona fide claim of right. 103 Ind. Cas. 840=28 Cr. L.J. 760=A.I.R. 1927 Pat. 385.

—Ss. 378, 379—The removal of property under a bona fide assertion of right does not constitute theft, even though the claim be one which is not valid in law. Where such a claim is raised, the Court has no right to convict unless upon the whole of the evidence it comes to the conclusion that the claim set up is not a genuine one. 96 Ind. Cas. 879=27 P.L.R. 635=27 Cr. L.J. 1023=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 683.

—Ss. 378, 379—Bona fide claim—Complicated question of title.

A clear question of bona fides having been raised in the case, the case was outside the cognizance of the Criminal Court. Prima facie the auction purchaser is entitled to obtain possession of all the lands comprised within the writ of the Court, and every attempt should be made by a Criminal Court to maintain the auction—purchaser in possession of the property unless a clear right to possession is established by any other person. 1 Pat. L.T. 121=21 Cr.L.J. 374=2 U.P.L.R. (Pat.) 53=55 Ind. Cas. 854.

—Ss. 378, 379—Bona fide Claim of right.

Whenever there is an assertion of a claim of right it is the duty of the Court to enquire into the question whether that claim is a bona fide claim or is a mere pretence. If when that claim is actually put forward the Court fails to decide the question whether the claim is a bona fide claim or a mere pretence, the conviction cannot be sustained. 54 Ind. Cas. 992 (Pat.)

—Ss. 378, 379—Dishonest intention—Bona fide claim of title—Conviction—If illegal.

If the accused honestly sets up a title to the property in himself, he could not be convicted of theft. Where a claim of title is honestly made, a Criminal Court's jurisdiction is ousted. 1 Pat. L.W. 155=(1918) Pat. H.C.C. 47=18 Cr.L.J. 507=39 Ind. Cas. 475.

—Ss. 378, 379—Dishonest intention—Theft.

Mere defence of acting under legal rights is not enough. If the Court is satisfied of the bona fides of the accused and that he acted without dishonesty, he should not be convicted. 14 A.L.J. 399=17 Cr.L.J. 295=35 Ind. Cas. 167.

—Ss. 378, 379—Bona fide claim of right, when proper defence.

Where in a charge of theft the accused knew, that he had no possession of the property and gathered the produce grown on it by the complainant, the Courts will not conclude in favour of the bona fide assertion of a right to the property. 16 Cr.L.J. 458=29 Ind. Cas. 90 (Mad.).

—Ss. 378, 379—Theft—Accused alleging right to property—Decision of claim necessary before conviction.

An accused alleging his right to a property cannot be convicted of theft of the property, unless it is decided first that he is not entitled to it. 41 Cal. 433=18 C.W.N. 397=15 Cr.L.J. 298=23 Ind. Cas. 506.

—Ss. 378, 379—Dishonest intention—Question of possession doubtful.

An accused was convicted for dishonestly carrying away the produce of a tamarind tree though the accused claimed ownership of the tree.

Held, the conviction was bad as there was no clear finding as to the ownership of the accused or the possession of the complainant. 8 M.L.T. 118=11 Cr.L.J. 483=7 Ind. Cas. 416.

—Ss. 378, 379—Theft—Claim of title by the accused—Conviction for theft illegal, unless the Court finds the claim to be a pretence.

In a case of alleged theft of fish from a tank which the accused claimed to have been in their possession and not the complainant's.

Held, that if the accused assert a claim to the thing alleged to have been stolen by him he should not be convicted unless the Court is in a position to say that the claim is a mere pretence. (1909) 11 Cr.L.J. 248=5 Ind. Cas. 794=14 C.W.N. 408.

—Ss. 378, 379—Bona fide claim of right.

No conviction can be had for theft unless there is a finding that the accused had an intention to take the property dishonestly out of a person's possession—more so, when the accused set up a bona fide claim of right. (1909) 11 Cr.L.J. 410=37 C. 194=11 Cr.L.J. 438=5 Ind. Cas. 999.

Ss. 378, 379—Civil claim—Theft.

One must be careful to see that the criminal law is not put in motion with a view to assistance in the prosecution of a civil claim. The Criminal Courts should not convict of theft any person who asserts a claim of right, unless it is in a position to say that that claim is a mere pretence. (1905) 9 C.W.N. 974.

—Ss. 378, 379—Bona fide belief of right—Government taking possession itself of land long enjoyed by another.

The possession of a trespasser is no possession within the meaning of S. 8, whether it be a private individual or Government. There can be conviction for theft unless the removal be dishonest, i.e., if the prisoner had bona fide believed he had a right to the property. If a Government officer takes summary possession of a man's land otherwise than under the Land Acquisition Act or other legal authority, his rights are no more affected by such illegal action than they would be by the illegal seizure of his land by a private person. In such a case the Revenue Officers are mere trespassers and there is nothing dishonest in the owner taking possession of his property. So where the Government took possession of A's land as being poramboke and informed him of the fact and A afterwards cut and removed some of the bamboos standing on the land alleging that they belonged to him.

Held, that the Court should find before a conviction (1) that the lands did not belong to A and (2) that he did not bona fide believe in his ownership. (1904) 28 M. 304.

—Ss. 378, 379—Clear plea of claim of right—Summary trial—Inadvisability.

Where there is a clear plea of bona fide title raised in a case under S. 379, Indian Penal Code, which take the case out of the province of the Criminal Court, the Magistrate should leave the parties to have their rights determined by a Civil Court. When from the nature of the dispute and specially from the plea taken by the accused it is clear that a complicated question of right and title is involved in the case, the Magistrate should not try the case summarily. 1 P.L.T. 121=55 Ind. Cas. 854=1922 P.H.C.C. 10=A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 265.

2. (b) Assertion of right—Offence.

—Ss. 378, 379—Removing property with no right to do so in asserting right to the property.

Where, in asserting a right to some property which a person believe to be good, if he does something which he knows he has no right to do, e.g., he takes the law into his own hands and removes the property in question from the possession of his opponent who claims the property for himself, he may be guilty of theft.

Where the complainant, having purchased a tree felled it, cut it up into suitable logs and then the accused, claiming that it belonged to the proprietors of the village removed the timber.

Held, that the act of the accused was unlawful and it could not be said to be covered by a bona fide claim, though the offence committed was of a technical kind. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 481=34 P.L.R. 276=34 Cr.L.J. 843 (1)=144 Ind. Cas. 718.

—Ss. 378, 379—A person may be guilty of theft even if he be asserting a right to property which he believes to be a valid right if, in the assertion of such rights, he does something which he knows he has no right to do. A.I.R. 1933 Sind 90=34 Cr.L.J. 366=142 Ind. Cas. 584.

—Ss. 378, 379—Auction-sale and delivery of possession—Removal of bamboos by person in possession before delivery—Transfer of Property Act, Ss. 3, 8.

The auction-purchaser at a rent execution sale of a holding took delivery of possession and subsequently the persons who were in possession cut and removed certain bamboo clumps standing on the land. They were prosecuted and convicted under S. 379, and in revision it was contended that possession of the bamboos did not pass to the auction-purchaser along with possession of the land.

Held, that when the auction-purchaser acquired the land, he acquired the bamboos too and hence the accused were rightly convicted. A.I.R. 1932 Pat. 344=13 P.L.T. 519=34 Cr.L.J. 355=142 Ind. Cas. 504.

—Ss. 378, 379—Charge of cutting in private forest—Concerted move to create evidence of right—No bona fide claim.

The accused villagers were charged under S. 379 for illegally cutting and removing trees in the private forest of the proprietor. The entry in the Record-of-Rights that the jungle was private was not rebutted and the accused knew that they had no right to cut any trees and that to take without the landlord's consent would be theft. The malu fides of the cutting was evident from the fact that it was in wild excess of any reasonable requirements or of any customary right known. And it was in pursuance of a concerted movement to establish a right or rather to create evidence of a right to the only remaining jungle in the village in view of the approaching revisional settlement proceedings that the accused deliberately defied the law.

Held, that the defence of a bona fide claim of right was untenable as the accused had acted dishonestly. 119 Ind. Cas. 887=30 Cr.L.J. 1100=1929 Cr.C. 254=A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 502.

—Ss. 378, 379—Property in possession of A and A raising crops thereon—Removal of crops by B—Plea not open.

It is a well-settled principle of law that if property is taken under a bona fide claim of right, it will not amount to an offence under S. 379, even though the claim may be ill-founded in law or in fact.

It must, however, be remembered that the claim put forward by the accused must be an honest one and it will be of no avail to him as a defence if it is found to be a mere colourable pretence to obtain and keep possession of the property. The decision on this point will depend in each case on the circumstances of that particular case, but it may be safely laid down as a general proposition that in cases where the alleged theft consists in the removal of crops grown on land, the most vital question to be investigated is as to which of the parties had grown the crops and a decision on this point will in the majority of cases enable the Court to come to a definite conclusion as to whether the claim of the accused is made in good faith or is a mere pretence, but it cannot be laid down as a universal rule that in every case where A removes crops grown by B, A necessarily commits an offence under S. 379, Penal Code.

But where a person is not in actual possession of the land for a number of years and knows that the land is in possession of another person and that other person has grown the standing crops on the land and still removes the crops, he cannot contend that he removed them in a bona fide claim of right. 115 Ind. Cas. 684=10 P.L.T. 57=30 Cr.L.J. 511=12 A.I.Cr.R. 311=A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 86.

—Ss. 378, 379—Disobedience of judicial order.

Where a Magistrate issued an injunction on the accused restraining him from fishing in a certain tank but this he disregarded.

Held, that it was impossible to hold that the accused acted under a bona fide claim of rights. 109 Ind. Cas. 229=10 A.I.Cr.R. 209=29 Cr.L.J. 501 (Cal.).

—Ss. 378, 379—Existence of a bona fide claim—When removal amounts to theft indicated.

It is quite possible that a person may have a claim which he believes to be good and yet in asserting that right he may do something which he knows he has no right to do. For instance he may know perfectly well that his claim is disputed and that if he wishes to enforce it his proper course is to do so by having recourse to the Courts. If knowing that, he prefers to take the law into his own hands by removing the property from the possession of his opponent, knowing that his opponent also lays claim to the property, then his act is dishonest and amounts to theft. He has caused wrongful gain or possession to himself and wrongful loss of possession to his opponent. 109 Ind. Cas. 683=6 Rang. 54=29 Cr.L.J. 603=10 A.I.Cr.R. 290=A.I.R. 1928 Rang. 113.

—S. 378—Bona fide claim of right—'Bona fides'—What amounts to.

Where a person removes a tree under an honest belief that it belongs to him, but in doing so he betrays want of due care and attention, that is, good faith, in ascertaining the ownership of the same, he can be convicted of the offence of theft. Per Aston, J.:—There is a manifest difference between a mere assertion of a claim to property or right and a bona fide belief in such a claim. The mere assertion of a claim of right is not in itself a sufficient plea. (1902) 4 Bom. L.R. 936.

2. (c) Assertion of right—No offence.

—Ss. 378, 379 and 427—Act done in bona fide belief of right—Offence.

What the criminal Court has to ascertain in a prosecution for offenders under Ss. 379 and 427, Indian Penal Code, is not whether the act of the accused was high-handed or misconceived or has resulted in any loss to the complainant, but whether the necessary mens rea was present and was responsible for the acts committed by the accused. Where the parties have been quarrelling over boundary line of their respective properties for a long time, and the act of the accused is not incompatible with the accused's intention not to cause any mischief to the complainant but only to establish what the accused believed to be their right however ill-founded or misconceived it might be, it would not be safe to dismiss the plea of bona fide belief of their right and the Criminal Court must give the benefit of doubt to the accused and absolve them of any criminal intent. A conviction for the offence of mischief and theft in such circumstances is not justified and must be set aside. 16 Cut. L.T. 78=A.I.R. 1950 Orissa 196=51 Cr.L.J. 1333.

—Ss. 378, 379—Both sides setting up claims to, property in dispute—Evidence equally balanced—No preponderance in favour of prosecution—Conviction—Sustainability.

A Criminal Court is of course not concerned with the rights and wrongs of civil claims. At the same time it cannot shut its eyes to the fact that the transaction before it shows that both sides set up claims to the property in question, which is the subject-matter of the offence charged, namely, theft. Where both sides set up claims which are matters to be properly adjudicated upon by a Civil Court and the evidence is evenly balanced and there is no preponderance on the side of the prosecution, a conviction cannot be justified and the accused is entitled to be acquitted. 3 A.I.Cr.D. 538.

—Ss. 378, 379—Applicability—Removal of crops by person growing same—Title to land found to be in another—Absence of evidence of possession—Conviction—Sustainability.

A person pleading a bona fide claim of right cannot be convicted of theft unless it is found that the claim which he puts forward is a colourable pretence. Where it is found that crops which are the subject-matter of the alleged theft were raised and grown by the accused, it cannot be said that the removal of the crops by him was a dishonest act and he cannot be convicted of theft, merely because title to the land on which the crops were raised is found to be in another, in the absence of evidence of possession. 1946 P.W.N. 179=27 P.L.T. 173=229 Ind. —Ss. 378, 379—No dishonest intention.

When a person takes another man's property believing under a mistake of fact and in ignorance of law, that he has a right to take it, he is not guilty of theft because there is no dishonest intention, even though he may cause wrongful loss within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code. Where the finding is that the accused persons thought that they could take away the animal of the complainant, as compensation for the injury done to the accused's animal without committing an offence, it is a mistake of fact in ignorance of the law. —Ss. 378 and 379—Gist of offence.

In order to constitute "theft" the factor of dishonest intention must be present. Intention is the gist of the offence of theft: it is the intention of the taker which must determine whether the taking or the moving of a thing is theft. If the taking is not done dishonestly, it will not amount to theft. As a dishonest taking involves the intention to cause wrongful gain to the taker or wrongful loss to another, it follows that where the circumstances show that property has been removed in the assertion of a bona fide claim or right, a dishonest intention cannot be attributed to the taker. In other words, where a person takes a thing believing genuinely and in good faith that he has a right to take that thing or that the thing is his, it cannot be said that he had the intention of causing wrongful gain to himself or wrongful loss to another. Gain to himself or loss to that other, wrongful or otherwise, may ensue, but the requisite dishonesty of intention cannot be attributed to the taker. —Ss. 378 and 379—Removal of crops attached with defective procedure.

Where certain growing crops were attached in execution of a decree by beat of drum without affixing a copy of the warrant of attachment on the land and another copy on the outer door of the house of the judgment-debtor, as provided by O. 21, R. 44, Civil Procedure Code, and the accused cut and removed the crops on behalf of and with the consent of the judgment-debtor:

Held, that the accused were not guilty of theft as the attachment was irregular and the crops had not passed out of the possession of the judgment-debtor.

Unlike cases of other kinds of movable property in which attachment is made by actual seizure, custodia legis in the case of growing crops is symbolical and is effected only by affixation of warrants of attachment without which the crops do not pass into the possession of the Court. —Ss. 378 and 379—Dhalbhum estate—Right of raiyats to take firewood from jungles for domestic purposes.

Where a *raiya*t of the Dhalbhum estate who had paid his jungle dues took away some fire wood worth about four rupees from a jungle outside his village without a pass or permit issued by the estate and he was convicted of theft:

Held, that in view of the fact that the question of the right of a *raiya*t of the estate to take fire wood from a jungle outside the boundaries of his village was a vexed one and that jungle kar on the rent of the *raiya*ts was in vogue for a generation, the accused could not be considered to have acted 'dishonestly' and not in pursuance of a bona fide claim of right and the conviction for theft was illegal.

Consideration of the expediency of preserving jungle is not only irrelevant to a charge of theft but is nearly always a factor leading to judicial error and it must be strenuously resisted in the Criminal Court. A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 99=32 Cr.L.J. 617=12 P.L.T. 577=130 Ind. Cas. 806.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Claim of right though unfounded is a good defence if the claim is bona fide.

Removal of property in the assertion of a bona fide claim of right, though unfounded in law and fact, does not constitute theft but a mere colourable pretence to obtain or keep possession of property does not avail as a defence. The fact that the things alleged to be stolen were removed secretly and were despatched by railway under wrong description is not sufficient to indicate, that the accused had any dishonest intention in removing them. 81 Ind. —Ss. 378 and 379—Taking under bona fide claim cannot be theft.

If there is a taking under a colour of right or in other words, under a bona fide claim, the taking cannot be dishonest or felonious, that is to say, it is not theft.

It is immaterial whether the claim is good or bad. It may be material in considering as a question of fact whether the claim was a bona fide claim, to consider whether or not there was any right at all. 71 Ind. —Ss. 378 and 379—Removal of property in assertion of bona fide claim of right.

For a conviction under S. 379, dishonest intention to take property out of the possession of another person must be proved. When property is removed in assertion of a bona fide claim of right the removal does not constitute theft, if the claim of right be an honest one, though unfounded in law or in fact. 44 Cal. 66=20 C.W.N. 1270=17 Cr.L.J. 456=36 Ind. —Ss. 378 and 379—Dishonest intention—Theft—Cutting of trees planted by tenant—Bona fide claim.

Where a tenant bona fide believing that he is entitled to the trees planted by him on the holding removes them he could not be convicted of theft. The question whether the trees in a holding are the property of a Zemindar or a tenant admits of considerable doubt and the case is not a suitable one for Cr. Prosecution. 8 Cr.L.R. 275 (All.).

3. Common intention.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Two persons going to steal particular article—One of them actually committing theft not able to find that article, and stealing something else—Both, if guilty of theft.

If two persons go to steal a particular article and one who is actually committing the theft is not able to find that particular article but steals something else instead and they run off together, both must be held guilty of theft inasmuch as the other who did not actually steal the article must be taken to have acted in furtherance of a common intention to commit theft. A.I.R. 1942 Pesh. 50=43 Cr. L.J. 837=202 Ind. Cas. 379.

—Ss. 379, 425, 295, 144 and 143—Hut on agricultural land used as a mosque without knowledge of landlord—Pulling down of such hut by plaintiff—Charges under Ss. 295:

... against a ... cut and removed paddy bona fide from a land which had been delivered to the complainant in execution of a suit.

... to be attached was immaterial.

Held, that where the charges under S. 379 did not refer to the common object of the unlawful assembly but the charges of theft were intended by the Magistrate to refer to the acts of individual accused apart from their doing as members of the unlawful assembly and there was no finding that any of the accused individually took away any of the materials of the hut, the conviction under S. 379 against the accused cannot be sustained. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 492=7 B.R. 785=42 Cr.L.J. 579=23 P.L.T. 81=194 Ind. Cas. 476.

4. Consent.

—S. 378—Licensee cutting timber not covered by license—Removal pass given under mistake—No consent.

Where the licensee cuts down trees in the Government forest which are not covered by his license and where the person authorized to give consent to remove them out of the possession of Government gives it by issuing removal pass and the bill of title to timber on the understanding that timber to be removed was timber covered by the license and thus the consent is given under a misconception of fact there is no such consent as is meant by S. 378 and in such circumstances offence of theft of timber is committed. 122 Ind. —S. 378—Dishonest intention—Removal of property with consent—Onus.

Where a person was charged with theft, i.e., the removal of a box belonging to himself from the possession of the station master of the Railway administration and causing wrongful gain to himself in the form of compensation for the loss of the box, the conviction for theft could not be sustained for the reason that the accused removed the box with the implied consent of the station master when he paid for certain excess charged on him, that there was no dishonest intention and that burden of proving dishonest intention was on the prosecution. 14 A.L.J. 417=17 Cr.L.J. 468=36 Ind. Cas. 148.

—S. 378—Theft—Debtor giving property to creditor—Subsequent knowledge—Debt time-barred.

An essential ingredient of theft is the taking of the property out of the owner's possession and without the owner's consent. Hence where a debtor gave certain property to his creditor, and subsequently found out that the debt was time-barred:

Held, that the charge of theft could not be sustained against the creditor, inasmuch as there was a full and unqualified consent on the part of the debtor at the time of his giving away the property. (1904) 1 A.L.J. 508.

5. Dishonest Intention.

(c) Presence of.

5. (a) Dishonest Intention—Burden of proof.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Dishonest intention—Burden of proof.

“Dishonesty” is an essential ingredient of the offence of theft, and it is initially for the prosecution to prove that the accused acted dishonestly in the act, which is alleged to constitute the offence, so as to come within the mischief of the offence. In the absence of proof of the same, the accused cannot be convicted under S. 379, Indian Penal Code. 12 B.R. 768=226 Ind. Cas. 576=47 Cr.L.J. 992=A.I.R. 1947 Pat. 264.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Dishonest intention—Burden of proof as to.

“Dishonesty” being an essential ingredient of the offence of theft, it is initially for the prosecution to prove that the accused had acted dishonestly so as to come within the mischief of the offence of theft. (1946) 12 B.R. 768=226 Ind. Cas. 576=47 Cr.L.J. 992=A.I.R. 1947 Pat. 264.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Dishonest intention—Not proved.

Where there is a ground to suppose that accused may not have acted dishonestly, accused must be acquitted. 38 All. 40=13 A.L.J. 1058=16 Cr.L.J. 812=31 Ind. Cas. 828.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Dishonest intention—Burden of proof—Bona fide claim of right.

When a person is prosecuted for the offence of theft, the onus is on the prosecution to show that he was acting dishonestly. If there are circumstances to show that he was acting in the assertion of a bona fide claim of right, a dishonest intention cannot be attributed to him. 9 S.L.R. 75=16 Cr.L.J. 715=30 Ind. Cas. 1003.

5. (b) Dishonest Intention—Absence of.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Where persons illegally seize cattle and take them to the pound, they do not commit an offence of theft inasmuch as there is no wrongful gain to persons seizing cattle or wrongful loss to the owners of the cattle even though they would have to incur expenses to get the cattle released. A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 280=1943 O.W.N. 202=44 Cr.L.J. 640=1943 A.W.R. 49=207 Ind. Cas. 374. But see A.I.R. 1946 Nag. 221 under Note.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Owner of cattle driving cattle home from pound.

Where the cattle belonged to and were throughout in the possession of the owners, but they had been taken to the pound, not by the persons whose crop had been damaged, but by one who did not have any connection with the crop (or the land) said to have been damaged and the owners of the cattle came to the pound and drove away the cattle to their home, and were subsequently convicted under S. 379, Penal Code.

Held, that at the time when the cattle were taken to the pound, neither the pound-keeper nor anybody on his behalf was there. The seizure by the person who had no connection with the affair was itself not legal, and it certainly conferred no right of possession either on himself or on persons whose crop had been damaged. This was not a case in which the custody of the animals had passed to the pound-keeper or anyone acting for him. The persons who removed the cattle from the pound were the owners who were in possession, and there could be no theft by an owner of goods belonging to him from his possession. A.I.R. 1939 —Ss. 378 and 379—Land of accused sold in execution of decree and its delivery ordered—Crops raised by accused's lessee after sale not ordered to be delivered—Accused removing such crops is not guilty under S. 379.

The land of the accused was sold in execution of a decree against him and the delivery of the land was ordered; the crop was raised by the lessee of the accused after the court sale and delivery of the crop was not ordered by Court. The accused removed the crop:

Held, that the removal could not be said to be dishonest and the accused could not be convicted under S. 379, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 41=1940 M.W.N. 869=52 L.W. 346(2)=42 Cr.L.J. 294=192 Ind. Cas. 407.

—Ss. 378 and 379—No offence of theft.

Where it was quite impossible to find dishonest intention on the part of the accused in removing the crop of the pahanai land and there was a likelihood of his having a right to do so:

Held, that it was for the Civil Court to determine the rights of the parties and that the accused had not committed the offence of theft within the meaning of S. 378. 166 Ind. Cas. 490=38 Cr.L.J. 223=3 B.R. 174.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Owner reserving cattle attached under warrant—Irregularities in warrant—Jurisdiction of amin to attach if affected—Attachment of cattle not permitted by law—Effect.

Under certain circumstances an owner of property may be guilty of stealing his own property if he takes it out of the possession of another person. Where an amin in good faith and under the authority of a warrant attached certain buffaloes belonging to the accused and the latter subsequently effected reserve of the cattle in the possession of the amin.

Held, that an offence under S. 379, Indian Penal Code had been constituted. In such a case the mere fact that there were certain irregularities in the warrant, namely, that it did not contain particulars of the date or month, or the circumstance that under the law the cattle were not liable to be attached was immaterial.

Per Krishna Pandalai, J.—"Only in cases where an irregularity goes to the root of the authority of the person executing a warrant does that warrant cease to be legal. The omission of the date although an irregularity was not such as to deprive the amin or his jurisdiction to execute the process". 1930 M.W.N. 90.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Suit for possession—Suit decree—Appeal pending—Delivery of possession given to decreeholder—Judgment-debtor cutting and removing crops—Offence under S. 379 is not committed.

The landlord sued A and B for possession of a holding transferred by A (plaintiff's raiyat) to B. The suit was decreed and an appeal was filed by A. In the meantime the landlord obtained delivery of possession but A cut and removed the crops after the delivery was given and he was convicted of theft.

Held, that under the circumstances the accused cannot be said to have any idea of causing wrongful gain to him or wrongful loss to the decree-holder. S. 379 is always of most doubtful applicability to this class of cases in which the question of property is only in course of determination in a civil suit. 99 Ind. Where the complainant and the accused had fields adjoining each other and the accused removed some crops from the complainant's field under the impression that the crops were owned by him and therefore he was entitled to them.

Held, that the accused was not guilty of theft in removing the crops. 72 Ind. Cas. 614=4 P.L.T. 608=24 Cr. L.J. 454=A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 125.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Crops removed by accused thinking them to be his—No offence.

Held, the removal of crops was not dishonest 81 Ind. Cas. 345=2 Bur. L.J. 160=25 Cr.L.J. 809=A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 72.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Where a property is attached by an officer without a warrant for attachment and the accused removed the property.

Where an order under S. 145, Criminal Procedure Code, was made in favour of the complainant, but as a matter of fact the crops had been sown by the accused.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Respectable person taking away another's cycle.

Where the important element of criminal intention has been found by the lower Appellate Court as a fact to be completely absent, and the accused has no criminal intent in taking away another's cycle and he does not take it dishonestly within the meaning of the term as defined in the Penal Code then his taking away of the cycle does not fall within the definition of theft. 161 Ind. —Ss. 378 and 379—Sale of movable—Part of price not paid—Vendor's notice to vendee and removal of property sold.

A woman contracted to deliver a barge to certain person on payment of money. Some earnest money and part payment were made and the barge was brought over to the place of its delivery. The vendee failed to pay the balance. After notices to the vendee the woman took away the barge.

Held, that under the circumstances there was no dishonest intention in seizing the barge and no theft was committed by the woman, when she took away her barge on giving notice to the vendee. 32 Bom. L.R. 1140=129 Ind. Cas. 350=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 488.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Complainant undertaking to repair certain article, but not finishing it in time—Accused removing that article by force is not guilty.

The complainant took some article belonging to the accused for repairs on promise to finish them within 6 or 7 days. Not having finished with complete repairs within the time stipulated, the accused went to his shop and took forcible possession of the article.

Held, that the accused was not guilty of theft as the removal of the article was not dishonest. 90 Ind. Cas. 289=53 Cal. 174=29 C.W.N. 1011=26 Cr.L.J. 1505=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 464.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Accused believing that the property was his and removing it from vendee of his partner—No theft is committed.

The essence of the offence of theft is dishonestly taking of movable property out of the possession of the vendee of accused's partner under a mistaken notion of law, believing that the property belonged to accused and that he had the right to take the goods until the balance of the money due to accused from the vendor was paid, does not amount to an offence of theft. 91 Ind. Cas. 256=52 Cal. 1015=27 Cr.L.J. 80=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 149.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Theft—Guilty intention absent—Offence is not committed.

Accused, an illiterate cultivator applied for Letters of Administration with the will annexed to the estate of his deceased uncle who had made a registered Will in favour of the accused. Before Letters of Administration were granted, but at a time when the accused had no suspicion that a caveat was likely to be entered by the uncle's widow, he removed certain property which was in the possession of the widow but which formed part of the property bequeathed to the accused under the Will. Subsequently, the widow entered a caveat and charged the accused with theft.

Held, that the conduct of the accused did not disclose the presence of a guilty intention and, therefore, he could not be convicted of theft. 85 Ind. Cas. 940=26 Cr.L.J. 652=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 241.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Intention to cause wrongful loss absent—Charge under S. 379—Charge under S. 427 is not sustainable.

Where a Magistrate came to the conclusion that no charge could be framed under S. 379, there being no intention of causing wrongful gain to one person or wrongful loss to another person.

Held, that a charge under S. 427 cannot be sustained. 86 Ind. Cas. 284=23 A.L.J. 21=6 L.R.A. Cr. 60=26 Cr.L.J. 748=A.I.R. 1925 All. 311.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Detaining cow for 24 hours under S. 10—Cattle Trespass Act, is not theft, or any offence.

A person, detaining cow in his custody for less than 24 hours as he is entitled under S. 10, Cattle Trespass Act, is not guilty of offence under S. 379, intention for causing wrongful loss being absent. Where the accused kept the cow in his custody for damages done over night for the purpose of impounding unless he received compensation.

Held, that he was legally entitled to keep it in his own custody for 24 hours before lodging it in the pound. 14 C.W.N. 238, Foll. 68 Ind. Cas. 47=23 Cr.L.J. 511=A.I.R. 1923 Nag. 64.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Forcible removal to realise legal dues—No theft is committed.

It is essential for theft, as defined in S. 378, Penal Code, that the removal of the property in question must have been done with the intention to take that property dishonestly. In other words, there must be an intent to cause wrongful gain to one person or wrongful loss to another person.

A forcible removal of property with a view to realise legal dues, and not with a view to make any wrongful gain out of it or to cause any wrongful loss to the complainant, is not theft. 14 C.W.N. 936 Foll. 63 Ind. Cas. 609=V.T. 583=22 Cr.L.J. 673=A.I.R. 1921 Pat.

A tenant cutting trees on jayati land for which he has executed a Kadapa under which a landlord can claim compensation for trees cut, does not act 'dishonestly' and is not guilty of theft. 1 L.W. 528=15 Cr.L.J. 586=25 Ind. Cas. 338.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Dishonest intention—Passenger not having ticket—Ticket examiner taking hold of passenger's umbrella as security for payment of fare—Charge of theft of umbrella not sustainable.

The accused employed by a Steam Navigation Company to see the tickets of passengers took hold of complainant's umbrella as security for his fare when he did not produce his ticket for inspection. The passenger lodged a complaint of theft against the accused who was convicted thereon.

Held, that the conviction for theft was bad as the accused did not intend either to get any wrongful gain to himself by compelling payment of fare or to cause wrongful loss to the complainant who was bound to pay his fare, only his zeal in discharging his duties to his employer led him to do what possibly he was not entitled to do. 14 C.W.N. 936=11 Cr.L.J. 444=7 Ind. Cas. 257.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Dishonest intention—Removal of property.

Where no dishonest intention can be attributed to the accused there cannot be a conviction for theft merely because the accused had removed the property. 8 Cr.L.R. 445 (Mad.).

—Ss. 378 and 379—Theft—Pledge—Pledgor taking possession of the thing pledged from the custody of the pledgee—Dishonest intention.

The complainant pledged some fishing nets with his creditor, accused 1. The nets remained in possession of the debtor as security for the debt, and the creditor was at liberty to sell the goods if within three years the debt was not paid. The debt remained unsatisfied. On the expiry of three years, the accused in order to assert his right, took away the nets from the complainant's possession.

Held, that on these facts, accused could not be convicted of theft, as it might fairly be contended that they bona fide supposed that they were justified in their act. (1902) 4 Bom. L.R. 56.

5. (c) Dishonest Intention—Presence of.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Illegal seizure of cattle with a view to impound is theft.

The taking for the purposes of S. 378 must be dishonest and according to the definition of 'dishonestly' in S. 24, Penal Code, the taking may be either with the intention of causing wrongful gain to one person or wrongful loss to another. It makes no difference in the accused's guilt that the act was not intended to procure any personal benefit to himself.

Where, therefore, a person illegally seizes cattle belonging to another with a view to impound them he commits theft though he has no intention of causing wrongful gain to himself. A.I.R. 1946 Nag. 221=I.L.R. (1946) Nag. 326=47 Cr.L.J. 348=223 Ind. Cas. 123=1946 N.L.J. 198. But see A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 280 under Note.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Owner removing cattle from cattle pound.

the dishonest intention of saving himself the fee and is guilty of theft; it makes no difference whether the man who so removed is the owner himself or a stranger. A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 18=1930 M.W.N. 529=33 L.W. 205=32 Cr.L.J. 354=129 Ind. Cas. 451.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Complainant buying fish—Accused snatching it away from his hands.

The complainant bought some fish from a local dealer. The accused snatched the fish from the complainant's hand at the same time taking all the fishes of the local dealer. When the complainant protested, the accused, together with others, surrounded him and threatened to assault him. The local dealer was a new comer and the accused who was the leader of the market wanted to maintain monopoly in the matter of purchase from the fishermen :

Held, that the accused clearly infringed the provisions of S. 379 in snatching the fish away from the complainant's hands. A.I.R. 1943 Cal. 73=43 Cr.L.J. 886=202 Ind. Cas. 659.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Theft of crops.

The real test in a case of an alleged theft of crops grown on land is as to which of the parties had grown the crops. —Ss. 378 and 379—Person allowed to remove a certain number of beams removing more.

When a man is trusted by another to go to a place where some of his property is stored, and help himself to a given quantity of material, and the other, taking advantage of the confidence thus reposed in him, takes away something in addition as well, it is more than a merely technical offence. There is an abuse of confidence, and the intention with respect to the property removed in excess is obviously dishonest and a conviction for theft is proper. 167 Ind. —Ss. 378 and 379—Creditor taking property to coerce payment.

A creditor by taking any moveable property of the debtor from the debtor's possession without his consent with the intention of coercing him to pay his debt commits the offence of theft as defined in S. 378. 18 All. 88 and 22 Cal. 1017 (F.B.) But after the calf was so tied the petitioner arrived and at his order the calf was removed elsewhere.

Held, that although the calf was at the time of removal in the neighbour's courtyard, it was still in the possession of X.

Held, further that the facts of the case brought the petitioner within Ss. 23 and 24 and so he was guilty under S. 379 and a sentence of 3 month's rigorous imprisonment was not excessive. 115 Ind. Cas. 895=30 Cr.L.J. 546=10 P.L.T. 483=12 A.I.Cr.R. 360=A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 429.

When a person is appointed guardian of a minor's property his duty is to get into his own hands all the property belonging to the minor that he can. But if it is held against him by others it is not his duty to take forcible possession of it. He should resort to the law Courts. If he allows others to prepare the land, sow and cultivate it and then when the crops are ripe with his companions takes forcible possession, the motive in doing so is clearly dishonest and he is guilty of theft. 77 Ind. —Ss. 378 and 379—Dishonest intention—Removal of trees by tenant—Custom—Onus of proof.

The tenants of a village, removed certain trees, the property of the Zamindar, which had been uprooted by a storm and alleged that, by a custom in the village, they had a right to do so and produced certain extracts from the wajib-ul-arz.

Held, that the extracts from the wajib-ul-arz did not evidence a custom authorising the removal of fallen trees without the consent of the landlord. The accused had failed to prove that the removal was not dishonest, and as the removal caused wrongful loss to the landlord and wrongful gain to the accused, the case fell within the illustration (a) to S. 378, Indian Penal Code. 42 All. 53=17 A.L.J. 974=20 Cr.L.J. 710=1 U.P.L.R. Held, that the tenant was not guilty of theft. 11 A.L.J. 270=13 Cr.L.J. 298=14 Ind. Cas. 762.

6. Evidence and Proof.

—Ss. 378, 379 and 147—Accused charged with rioting and theft.

In the case of theft with rioting, the evidence adduced by the prosecution of a general nature that the accused were present on the scene of the occurrence, is not enough, and unless something specific is mentioned in a rioting case, specially when the accused have also been convicted under S. 379, it is not safe to convict the accused even under S. 147. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 613=22 P.L.T. 765=8 B.R. 312=43 Cr.L.J. 294=198 Ind. Cas. 68.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Accused charged with theft—Only evidence against accused being of person receiving stolen property—Judge, while charging jury, not pointing out unsafety of relying on such evidence with sufficient force—It amounts to misdirection. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 464=1938 M.W.N. 96=47 L.W.

158=(1938) 1 M.L.J. 234=39 Cr.L.J. 580=175 Ind. Cas. 416.

—Ss. 378 and 379—The mere fact that an accused person points out the place in which the stolen property is concealed does not give rise to any presumption under S. 114, Evidence Act, or justify his conviction for the offence of receiving stolen property, still less for the offence of theft. A.I.R. 1938 Bom. 463=Bom. L.R. 927=40 Cr.L.J. 48=178 Ind. Cas. 330.

—Ss. 378 and 379—When the only incriminating circumstance against an accused is that his information led to the discovery of stolen property from places not belonging to him, he cannot be convicted either of being a thief or a receiver of stolen property. The fact that the accused had a previous conviction 20 years back is no ground to hold him guilty. A.I.R. 1934 Nag. 54=16 N.L.J. 246=35 Cr.L.J. 581=147 Ind. Cas. 1188.

—Ss. 378 and 379—As the place where articles lay buried under ground did not belong to the appellant nor was in his possession, the only conclusion that could be drawn from his having shown the place is that he knew that the ornaments were there and not that he had stolen the same or had actually participated in the act of concealing them there. 84 Ind. Cas. 321=5 L.L.J. 325=26 Cr.L.J. 257=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 438.

—Ss. 378 and 379—The mere pointing out by an accused person of the place where stolen property is concealed which place is not in his possession, is not of itself sufficient evidence to maintain a conviction for theft or for dishonestly receiving stolen property. 73 Ind. Cas. 331=5 L.L.J. 87=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 385.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Person found in possession of stolen property shortly after theft—Evidence Act, S. 114, Illus. (a).

Where a person is found in possession of stolen property shortly after it was stolen, the Court may presume that he is the thief under S. 114, Illus. (a), Evidence Act. The presumption, however, is not to be made invariably. The circumstances of each case have to be considered for arriving at the conclusion as to whether the person found in possession of stolen property soon after the theft should or should not be considered to be the thief. The mere fact that there was no direct evidence establishing that the accused had stolen the property will not necessarily warrant the expunging of the charge without going into the evidence. A.I.R. 1934 All. 455=35 Cr.L.J. 1092=150 Ind. Cas. 558.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Evidence and proof.

Accused were seen in the company of deceased on a previous night. Next morning accused were found to be in possession of clothes and other articles belonging to deceased.

Held, that in absence of direct evidence, circumstances, though raising a strong suspicion against accused are not sufficient to convict them either under S. 302, or under S. 392, but they are guilty either under S. 411 or S. 379. 112 Ind. Cas. 212=10 L.L.J. 525=29 Cr.L.J. 996=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 61.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Recent and exclusive possession.

In order to raise legitimately the presumption of theft, the possession of stolen property should be exclusive as well as recent. 111 Ind. Cas. 732=23 S.L.R. 5=29 Cr.L.J. 924=A.I.R. 1929 Sind 9.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Accused not in actual possession—Actual possession of his wife or servant or effective control must be proved.

If the accused is not in manual possession of the stolen article, there must be evidence to prove that the stolen property was found either in the manual possession of the wife, clerk or servant of the accused, or that it was found in a place and under circumstances so as to justify the inference that the accused knew of its existence at that place and that the same was under his effective control. 111 Ind. Cas. 732=23 S.L.R. 5=29 Cr.L.J. 924=A.I.R. 1929 Sind 9.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Conviction against more persons than one on the ground of joint possession of stolen property can be secured only on proving actual possession of each or constructive possession with intention of joint exclusive use.

The secure conviction against more persons than one on the ground that all such persons were in joint possession of the stolen property, it must be proved that the stolen property was either in the physical possession of each one of the accused or else that it was in the possession, physical or constructive, of one or more of them on behalf of and to the knowledge of the other accused persons and that each one of them intended to possess it for their joint use and to the exclusion of persons other than themselves.

Applicants with two other porters and a constable were travelling in a train. At the station the van was searched. A jar containing ghee was found covered with bedding and clothing said to belong to applicants and other porters. On this evidence, the applicants were convicted of theft.

Held, that possession of the jar could not be attributed to any of the applicants, individually or jointly. The conviction was, therefore, bad. 111 Ind. Cas. 732=23 S.L.R. 5=29 Cr.L.J. 924=A.I.R. 1929 Sind 9.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Possession of key of room from which property was stolen.

Where the accused is charged with theft of property from a store house, the mere possession of a false key said to have been used in opening the lock of the room cannot raise a presumption that the accused is the thief or receiver of stolen property so as to throw the onus upon him to show how he came to be in possession of such stolen property. A.I.R. 1931 Sind 154=33 Cr.L.J. 106=135 Ind. Cas. 267.

—Ss. 378, 379, 411—Possession of stolen property—Presumption of guilty knowledge—Property belonging to two different owners—Evidence Act, S. 114, Illus. (a).

Possession after recent theft raises ordinarily a presumption either that the person in possession is the thief, or had dishonestly received the property knowing it to be stolen. Possession of the property stolen from two different owners is a circumstance which under S. 114, Ill. (a) of the Evidence Act must be borne in mind in estimating the probability of guilty knowledge in the accused. (1906) 9 Bom. L.R. 27=5 Cr.L.J. 63.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Statement of accused.

Where, in his statement, the accused, who is charged under S. 379 does not admit, from the very beginning, his dishonest intention and the record of the statement is not a complete record of all that he has said, the statement should not be raised upon as a confession either in form or in substance. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 651=15 P.L.T. 586=1 B.R. 237=36 Cr.L.J. 447=153 Ind. Cas. 922.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Where, in a charge under S. 379, for theft of a crop found to have been grown by R on land included in his patti of which he was in possession and the accused was convicted, but on appeal, the Appellate Court issued his acquittal merely on the ground that there could be no conviction when the evidence did not conclusively prove that the plot in question was in the patti of R :

Held, that the Appellate Court committed an error of law in basing his acquittal merely on that ground and although there would be difficulty in determining exactly who was in possession of the land, that fact did not excuse the Appellate Court from examining the evidence on the point and that the acquittal should be set aside. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 302=35 Cr.L.J. 537=147 Ind. Cas. 1017.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Accused cutting Jhalas in area not included in his right—Absence of right has to be proved by prosecution.

An area of 1,100 bighas was attached and the accused cut jhalas within that area. Prior to the date of cutting the accused obtained delivery of possession of a portion of the attached area extending to about 345 bighas. The Trial Court below assumed, that, unless the petitioners proved that they cut from within the area of 345 bighas of which they got possession they must be considered to have committed theft and they were convicted of offences under Ss. 379 and 143, Penal Code.

Held, that it was for the prosecution to establish all the ingredients of the offence punishable under S. 379. The Crown ought to have shown that the petitioners were not cutting within that area of which they had obtained delivery of possession. 107 Ind. —Ss. 378 and 379—In a prosecution under S. 379, for stealing paddy from a plot, the accused relied on a bona fide claim of right. The complainants were the lessees of six plots of a person from whom the two plots above referred to were bought by the accused.

Held, that it was incumbent on the prosecution to prove that the plot in question was not comprised in the two plots of which the accused were declared to be in possession by the High Court and that in the absence of such evidence conviction cannot be sustained. 103 Ind. Cas. 840=28 Cr.L.J. 760=A.I.R. 1927 Pat. 385.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Identification doubtful—Liability of accused.

When the accused was found in possession of two freshly flayed skins of a goat and kid within 24 hours of the theft and was charged under S. 379, Indian Penal Code.

Held, (Spencer, J., dissenting) that it was absolutely necessary for the prosecution to establish that the skins were those of the goats stolen and that the accused should be given the benefit of doubt when the identification was suspicious. 16 Cr.L.J. 440=29 Ind. Cas. 72 (Mad.).

7. Interpretation—"Taking".

—S. 378—Taking, meaning of—Cutting string of hass (a neck ornament)—And forcing its ends whether amounts to moving.

The act of cutting the string of a hass (a neck ornament), and forcing the ends apart constitute a sufficient moving of the hass so as to bring the act under S. 378. 29 P.R. 1917 Cr.=18 Cr.L.J. 875=37 P.W.R. 1917 Cr.=41 Ind. Cas. 987.

—S. 378—Taking, meaning of.

(Per Sundara Aiyar, J.)—"Taking" means 'reducing to possession'. (Per Benson and Miler, JJ.) The 'taking' means should be 'out of the possession of the owner' rather than reducing to the thief's own possession. 11 M.L.T. 162=(1912) M.W.N. 119=13 Cr.L.J. 131=13 Ind. Cas. 819.

8. Joint ownership.

—Ss. 378 and 379—A co-sharer in possession of a joint property has the undoubted right to remove movable property in his possession and also in the possession of other co-sharers from one spot of the joint land to another spot of the same land.

When certain persons, purchasing a share in the land and structures jointly owned by some co-sharers in execution of a decree against one of them took out possession through Court and utilized some of the old materials of huts belonging to the co-sharers which had been blown away and built a hut on the same land:

Held, that they were not guilty under S. 379 there being no dishonesty on their part or any wrongful loss to other co-sharers. Nor could they be convicted under S. 447 as being part owners of the land. They entered upon it for the purpose of exercising their rights of ownership. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 261=37 Cr.L.J. 747=162 Ind. —Ss. 378 and 379—Joint cultivation—Removal by one joint cultivator.

A joint cultivator removing crops jointly cultivated cannot be convicted of theft, as he must be deemed to have been in possession of the property. 10 A.L.J. 527=14 Cr.L.J. 3=18 Ind. Cas. 146.

9. Master and servant.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Dispute as to property—Servant of one party removing property bona fide believing that it belonged to his master—Servant cannot be convicted of theft. A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 444=19 Luck. 399=1943 O.W.N. 363=1943 A.W.R. C.C. 97=45 Cr.L.J. 386=211 Ind. Cas. 400.

—Ss. 379, 23 and 24—Servant believing property to be his master's taking it away.

The Criminal Court should not convict of theft any person who asserts a claim of right unless it is in a position to say that that claim is a mere pretence.

A person cannot be said to act dishonestly that is, with an intention of causing wrongful gain to himself or his master or wrongful loss to another, when he takes movable property which he believes to belong to himself or his master. In short, if the person taking any movable property does it under a bona fide claim of right, then he cannot be found guilty of the offence of theft unless the claim to a mere pretence.

A servant may well be in a stronger position than his master because a servant might in certain circumstances, honestly believe that his master was the owner of certain property, whereas the master might well know that he was not. A servant should not be held guilty of the offence of theft when what he did was at his master's bidding unless it should have been shown that he participated in his master's knowledge of the dishonest nature of the acts. A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 588, 592=6 B.R. 550=41 Cr.L.J. 509=6 C.L.T. 73=187 Ind. Cas. 825.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Hire purchase—Employees acting on bona fide mistake.

Where, under an agreement of hire-purchase the employees of a company were justified in taking the parts of the machine supplied by them if instalments were not paid, and acting on a bona fide impression that instalments had not been paid, they removed the parts:

Held, that at most the employees acted on a bona fide mistake of fact and that there was no dishonest intention such as is required for a case of theft. 148 Ind. Cas. 892=58 C.L.J. 434=35 Cr.L.J. 761.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Possession, when passes servant in possession on behalf of master, whether can give consent with regard to that property.

Where a motor lorry is given by a company to a person on hire-purchase system under an agreement entitling the company to retake possession of the lorry in case of default of payment of hire by the purchaser, the company or its agents are not entitled, without the consent of the purchaser himself, to retake the possession of the lorry by force or by its removal from the hands of his servants who have no express or implied authority to give any consent on behalf of the purchaser. If the company or its agents do so, they are guilty of an offence under S. 378, Penal Code. The question whether the ownership had or had not passed to the purchaser is wholly immaterial, as S. 378, Penal Code, deals with possession and not ownership. The legal possession of the lorry is vested in the purchaser and the company or its agents are not entitled to recover possession of the lorry, even though default in payment of any instalments had taken place. It is not open to them to re-take possession of the lorry by taking refuge under the clause in the agreement authorising them to re-take possession. The possession of the servants of the purchaser is the possession of their master and they have no power to give any consent on behalf of their master. A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 318=1942 O.W.N. 161=43 Cr.L.J. 578=1942 A.W.R.C.C. 112=17 Luck. 663=199 Ind. Cas. 757.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Servant taking away master's goods in lieu of wages without his consent—Theft is committed.

The accused was employed by the complainant on wages. His wages for several months were due from the complainant and so he took away 15 Baras worth about Rs. 16 belonging to the complainant and refused to give them back until his wages had been paid.

Held, that technically the offence of theft was committed. 102 Ind. Cas. 339=8 L.R.A. Cr. 77=7 A.I.Cr.R. 503=28 Cr.L.J. 531=A.I.R. 1927 All. 470.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Servant knowing his master had no right to complainant's goods and assisting in removing, commits theft.

Where accused, a servant of co-accused knew perfectly well that his master was removing the goods of complainant without even a pretence of right and yet he assisted him in doing so.

Held, that the servant clearly acted dishonestly and was guilty of theft. 90 Ind. Cas. 439=7 P.L.T. 272=26 Cr.L.J. 1559=A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 36.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Servants following their employer's orders.

Where the servants of the daristimrardar cut tree without the permission of the istimrardar in spite of the fact that the istimrardar had pointed out that they could not do it without his permission.

Held, that to follow the orders of the daristimrardar in such circumstances was to take the risk of being visited with the consequences and that in cutting the trees, these men had the guilty knowledge. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 491=1 B.R. 60=36 Cr.L.J. 120=152 Ind. Cas. 477.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Master and servant—Removal of crop by order—Offence.

Where a crop was dishonestly cut out and removed, by the order of the accused, he himself being present, the accused is guilty of an offence under S. 397, Indian Penal Code. 19 Cr.L.J. 116=43 Ind. Cas. 404 (Pat.).

—Ss. 378 and 379—Master and servant.

A person plucking jack fruits in obedience to the orders of his employer from the trees standing on a plot, the right to share in the proceeds of which is desired to be asserted through the agent, is not guilty of theft, as no criminal dishonesty is proved. 18 Cr.L.J. 286=38 Ind. Cas. 318 (Cal.).

—Ss. 378 and 379—Master and servant—Servant obeying master.

A servant acting under the orders of his master cannot be convicted of theft in the absence of proof of his knowledge of his master's dishonest intentions. 15 C.W.N. 414=12 Cr.L.J. 7=9 Ind. Cas. 46.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Servant, act committed by.

The Criminal Courts should not convict of theft any person who asserts a claim of right unless it is in a position to say that the claim is a mere pretence. A servant should not be held guilty of the offence of theft when what he did was at his master's bidding, unless it should have been shown by evidence that he participated in his master's knowledge of the dishonest nature of the acts. There must be some evidence before the Court from which such knowledge on the part of the servant can be inferred. (1905) 9 C.W.N. 974=2 Cr.L.J. 836.

Under a kabuliyat it was provided that if the tenant would cut any trees he would pay to the landlord compensation at a certain rate. It was found that the tenant mala fide cut some trees in order to injure the landlord.

Held, that although the tenant was in the possession of the land he committed theft by severing the trees from the ground, as they were in the possession of the landlord. 27 C.L.J. 228=19 Cr.L.J. 334=44 Ind. Cas. 350.

Removal of trees by tenant when in his possession is not theft though the landlord is jointly interested in them. (1914) M.W.N. 483=15 Cr.L.J. 440=241 Ind. Cas. 176.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Removal of crops by tenant.

The removal by tenant of heaps of grain in his possession and control, is not a theft unless he actually delivers to the landlord only his share of the grain and not the whole. (1914) M.W.N. 106=1 L.W. 178=15 Cr.L.J. 186=22 Ind. Cas. 762.

—Ss. 378 and 424—Zemindar and ryot—Zemindar entitled to share in crops—Removal by ryot without payment to Zemindar—Dishonest intention—Share in property before delivery.

A ryot in a Zemindary-holding on a Varam tenure taking away the crops reaped by him without paying the Zemindar's share is not guilty of theft, as he does not take away anything out of the possession of the Zemindar. But if the ryot remove the crops dishonestly or fraudulently i.e., with a view to defeat the Zemindar's right to be paid a share in the crops, the ryot is guilty of an offence under S. 424, Quacre—Whether a Zemindar acquires property in the share due to him before delivery. —Ss. 378 and 379—Land in possession of complainant—Crops grown by him—Delivery of symbolical possession to purchaser at sale against third party—Whether defence to theft charged.

Delivery of symbolical possession is only effective against the judgment-debtor. It is of no effect as against a third person and his possession is not disturbed or affected in the least by delivery of such possession to a purchaser at a court sale. By the delivery of symbolical possession, he is not dispossessed at all and unless dispossessed physically, no proceedings under O. 21, R. 100, Civil Procedure Code, would be maintainable at his instance.

Where, therefore, the complainant was found to have been in possession and to have grown crops, the fact that symbolical possession was delivered to a purchaser in an execution sale against a third party alleged to be the owner of the land is not proof that the possession of the crops had been transferred to the purchaser. It is no defence to a charge of theft of the crops. A mere claim that the property had passed to him is not enough. (1936) 165 Ind. Cas. 154=39 C.W.N. 1306=37 Cr.L.J. 1098.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Attached goods—Removal—Goods not in physical possession.

possession which depends on the physical possibility of the possessor dealing with the thing exclusively. 43 Bom. 550=21 Bom. L.R. 251=20 Cr.L.J. 391=50 Ind. Cas. 999.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Trespasser growing paddy—Possession given to complainant under decree—Subsequent removal of paddy.

The accused having been a trespasser on the land at the time the paddy was grown he had no right to go upon the land after the complainant had obtained possession under a decree of Court and removed the paddy. Consequently when the paddy was cut, accused had no right to remove it and there was no bona fide dispute. The accused was therefore guilty of theft. 28 C.L.J. 120=20 Cr.L.J. 38=23 C.W.N. 385=48 Ind. Cas. 678.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Dishonest intention—Theft of crop—Actual possession.

Before convicting a man of theft of crop of some and, it is necessary to find out who was in actual possession on that date. Mere order for delivery possession is not conclusive. 17 Cr.L.J. 81=32 Ind. Cas. 673 (Mad.).

—Ss. 378 and 379—Diverting water lowering the door of sluice—If amounts to theft.

A person who diverts more water by lowering sluice in a Government channel without the permission of the officers of Government is guilty of theft of water because water is in the possession of the Government which has taken elaborate steps and employed a large establishment to control the use of water in rivers and channels. ## II. Sentence.

—Ss. 379, 75 and 73—Sentence in case of simple theft—Previous convictions—Effect of—Direction for solitary confinement—When to be made.

Although the fact of previous convictions is an element in determining the sentence, essential regard should be had to the facts of the case, the gravity of the offence and the circumstance in which it was committed in assessing the punishment and the mere circumstance that there were previous convictions should not result in the infliction of a sentence that is far out of proportion to the merits of the main case. In the case of a simple theft without any aggravating circumstances a sentence of rigorous imprisonment for one year would more than meet the ends of justice even though the accused might have been convicted on several prior occasions under S. 379, Indian Penal Code.

A sentence of solitary confinement though legal must be awarded, if ever, only in the most exceptional cases of unparalleled atrocity or brutality. I.L.R. (1948) Mad. 359=60 L.W. 333=1947 M.W.N. 609=A.I.R. 1947 Mad. 386 (1)=(1947) 1 M.L.J. 336.

— S. 379—Cattle theft.

Offences of cattle theft are particularly mean and despicable offences in a community where so much depends upon cattle. They are inspired by no other motive than the ordinary motive of gain which, in many other cases, prompts a thief to steal, and it must be made plain to young men who steal cattle that if they are not going to prison, they will have at least to pay a heavy fine. The fine must be such as to make it clear that cattle-lifting is not profitable. A.I.R. 1939 Sind 33 = I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 88=41 Cr.L.J. 187=185 Ind. Cas. 428.

— S. 79—Cattle theft in Sind—Deterrent punishment is necessary—Summary trial improper.

In Sind, where cattle-thieving is so prevalent and the offences of cattle theft so often go unpunished, it is necessary that deterrent sentences should be imposed, and a Court which decides to try such a case summarily is not exercising its discretion in a proper manner. 105 Ind. Cas. 671=28 Cr.L.J. 959=9 A.I.R. 153=A.I.R. 1927 Sind 257.

— Ss. 379, 454 and 457—When the offences charged are theft and house-breaking, if the Magistrate gives merely a nominal sentence of imprisonment till the rising of the Court, then, although he is complying with the letter of the law, he is, in fact, treating the accused more leniently than if he had applied S. 562 (1), Criminal Procedure Code. But theft and house-breaking are offences for which separate punishments can be given. If the accused is convicted under S. 379, theft, or S. 380, theft in a building, he may, in a proper case, be released on probation of good conduct. If he is convicted of house-breaking with intent to commit theft (Ss. 454 and 457), a sentence of imprisonment is obligatory. When therefore, the accused is convicted under both these sections and the Magistrate considers that it is not desirable to inflict a substantial sentence of imprisonment, his proper course is to direct the accused to execute a bond under S. 562 (1) for the offence of theft and to sentence him to imprisonment until the rising of the Court for the offence of house-breaking. A.I.R. 1938 Bom. 463=40 Bom. ## 12. Subject of theft.

— Ss. 378 and 379—Fish in tidal and navigable river—Lessee of fishery from Government in river—Rights of—Catching fish in such river—If dishonest removal from possession of lessee—Offence—Conviction—Sustainability.

The accused caught fish in a tidal and navigable river without taking the permission of the complainant who was a licensee of the fishery from the Government, and was convicted and sentenced for theft under S. 379, Indian Penal Code.

Held, Though fish in an enclosed space or in a tank closed on all sides might be the property of the owner of the tank, in a tidal and navigable river, it cannot be said that they are property (of any one) until they are caught. The test is whether the fish are confined within a limited space. In a tidal and navigable river the fish can always escape and go wherever they like; they can always come from and go into the sea; they are in a state of ferae naturae, i.e., in a state of nature. The licensee or lessee of the fishery from the Government has nothing more than a right to catch fish in a particular area. The act of the accused in catching fish might amount to an act of trespass or an invasion of the right of the licensee, but it is not criminal trespass and it does not amount to the offence of theft, as there is no dishonest removal from the possession of an owner; the conviction could not therefore be sustained. #### —Ss. 378 and 379—Fish in pond.

As long as water flows in and out of the pond, thereby enabling fish to enter and leave it, the fish are free and in a state of nature; and so no more belong to the owner of the pond than a bird that settles on a tree in a person's garden belongs to that person; but when once the water has fallen to such a level that fish cannot leave it, then they are trapped and consequently, in the possession of the owner of the pond. That being so, any person who takes fish from that pond without the owner's consent with intention to cause him loss, necessarily commits theft. A.I.R. 1943 Mad. 34=55 L.W. 696=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 556=1942 M.W.N. 728 (1)=44 Cr.L.J. 173=204 Ind. Cas. 267.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Fish getting into and out of private fishery into river.

The accused were charged with having committed theft of fish from a tank. It was found that they had been in possession of the plot and of the tank for several years and had been selling fish to various persons. It was also in the evidence that this tank was connected with river and that the fish and water came from the river to this tank and vice versa:

Held, that the fish were ferae naturae and not in "the possession of the complainant." Where fish would get into or out of a private fishery, taking away fish from such a fishery did not constitute theft. The present case was still stronger inasmuch as the land in which the tank was situated was in tenancy and possession of the accused. Ownership of talhar right in running stream does not give such possession of the fish in it as to make the taking away of the fish theft within the meaning of S. 378 and no theft can be committed in respect of such fish. The fish in a private enclosed tank the sluice of which remains closed so that the fish cannot escape are in the possession of the owner of the tank, and are liable to become the subject of theft. (1914) M.W.N. 168=15 Cr.L.J. 77=22 Ind. Cas. 429.

—S. 379—Removal of fish from irrigation tank—If amounts to offence.

Removal of fish from an irrigation tank will amount to an offence if the water is so low that fish could not escape. 36 Mad. 472=11 M.L.T. 23=(1912) M.W.N. 42=22 M.L.J. 184=13 Cr.L.J. 38=13 Ind. Cas. 278.

—S. 378—Fish in open water—Not capable of theft.

Fish in open water are ferae naturae and so not capable of possession and cannot form the subject of theft. 5 S.L.R. 122=13 Cr.L.J. 22=13 Ind. Cas. 214.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Chanks—Subject of theft—Ferae naturae—Property in Chank beds—Palk's Bay—Gulf of Mannar.

Palk's Bay being an arm of the sea land-locked by His Majesty's dominions and the islands in it also forming part of his territories is not to be regarded as an open sea outside the territorial jurisdiction of His Majesty, but is an integral part of His Majesty's dominions. Chanks are not fish. They are not ferae naturae but are dominae naturae and must be placed in the same category as oysters so as to be the subject of theft. The Rajah of Ramnad has the monopoly of taking chanks in Palk's Bay, and he or the person claiming under him must in law be regarded as being in possession of the chank-bed propter impotentiam. A person taking chanks out of the chank-bed in the possession of the Raja removes movable property out of the possession of the Raja and will be guilty of theft under S. 379. The Gulf of Mannar is also similar to Palk's Bay and chanks in the chank-beds of that gulf may also be subjects of theft. (1904) 14 M.L.J. 248=27 M. 551.

—S. 378—Removal of fish from ordinary irrigation tank not theft.

Fish in an ordinary irrigation tank is not in the possession of any person so as to be capable of being the subject of theft. Nor does the removal of such fish constitute any other offence. (1900) 24 M. 81.

—S. 379—Electricity.

Theft of electricity is an offence under S. 379, Penal Code, because of S. 39, Electricity Act. A.I.R. 1936 All. 742=1936 A.L.J. 955=1936 A.W.R. 842=38 Cr.L.J. 53=1.L.R. (1937) All. 102=165 Ind. Cas. 689.

The taking of crop that is grown may cause wrongful loss to the grower and if it be dishonest, a conviction may be had for theft. A.I.R. 1934 Oudh 182=35 Cr.L.J. 797=11 O.W.N. 508=10 Luck. 1=148 Ind. Cas. 937.

—Ss. 379, 424 and 206—Attached movable property.

The case of 22 Mad. 151 is not an authority for holding that after attachment has been effected, dishonest removal of movable property cannot be an offence under S. 206 or S. 379 or S. 424. 1933 M.W.N. 722.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Crops attached by Magistrate—Removal of the crops, knowing attachment, amounts to theft.

Where the Magistrate attached certain crops about which there was a dispute pending between the accused and the other party, and the accused subsequently removed the crops with the knowledge that the crops had been attached :

Held, that the subsequent removal of the crops was a dishonest removal and the offence committed was theft. 105 Ind. Cas. 813=22 S.L.R. 151=9 A.I.Cr.R. 165=28 Cr.L.J. 989=A.I.R. 1928 Sii 68.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Where the property is attached by receiver, any person removing the same with knowledge of such attachment, from receiver's possession without receiver's knowledge is guilty of theft even though he may be a person legally entitled to the property. 95 Ind. Cas. 940=48 All. 368=24 A.L.J. 364=7 L.R.A. (Cr.) 81=27 Cr.L.J. 860=A.I.R. 1926 All. 382.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Buffalo attached—Accused claiming as owner and taking it away by force is guilty.

Where the accused took away forcibly a buffalo which was under attachment:

Held, that he was guilty of theft notwithstanding he claimed the buffalo as his own. If he thought himself aggrieved he was bound to seek his remedy in a lawful way and was not entitled to take the buffalo out of the custody of the Court in which, so long as it was under attachment, it was. 8 A.L.J. 656, Foll. 86 Ind. Cas. 969=12 O.L.J. 159=2 O.W.N. 202=26 Cr.L.J. 905=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 464.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Cash is not property except if it can be identified in specie.

Cash is not, strictly speaking, property except in so far as it is capable of being possessed and identified in specie. If it is certain that the actual coins found on the thieves or receivers of stolen property are the actual coins which have been the subject of theft then it is permissible to treat such cash as stolen property. It is often safer in such cases to inflict a fine and to apply the coins found on the person of the accused towards the payment of fine, and then to apply the amount of fine if necessary to compensation. But in no conceivable way can coins which have been put into circulation and passed on to the public be treated in the same way as stolen coins actually remaining in the possession of the thieves. The principle of caveat emptor never applies to currency coins. 89 Ind. Cas. 259=18 S.L.R. 218=26 Cr.L.J. 1315=A.I.R. 1926 Sind 17.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Currency notes held up for destruction.

A very clear distinction must be drawn between an intention to destroy and to abandon and an actual destruction and abandonment. The very fact that the owner of the property intends to destroy or abandon that property and hands it over to some person to effect those purposes is a clear indication that he still maintains his rights as the owner of that property and that those rights subsist until the abandonment or destruction is completed. As long as the destruction or abandonment is not fulfilled and as long as it is still in the hand of the owner to countermand such destruction or abandonment, the property is still the property of the owner and the taking it out of his possession is theft, and improper use of it is breach of trust. Abstraction of currency note which has been held up by the currency officer for destruction is theft though at the time of abstraction, the process of destruction had partly been done. 83 Ind. Running water not reduced to possession cannot be the subject of theft. (1908) 12 C.W.N. 534=35 C. 437. See also 1908 A.W.N. 55=5 A.L.J. 159.

—S. 379—Clods of earth.

In the absence of a notification from the officers regarding the injury to the pecuniary or other interests of the Government, removal of clods of earth of petty value from public channel beds is not theft unless the clandestine nature of the act imputes knowledge of injury to the Government. 18 Cr.L.J. 632=39 Ind. Cas. 1000 (Mad.).

—Ss. 378 and 22—Moveable property—Stones quarried from the earth.

Any part of the earth whether it be stones or sand or clay or any other component when severed from "earth" is moveable property and is capable of being the subject of theft under S. 378, 4 M. 228; 15 B. 702, and opinion of Brandt, J., in 10 M. 255 followed. (Opinion of majority not followed.) Land and earth are not synonymous and there is a wide distinction between "earth" and "the earth." (1904) 14 M.L.J. 155=27 M. 531 (F.B.).

—S. 378—Human body.

Human body, living or dead, is not capable of theft, it not being 'moveable property' within the meaning of S. 378, and there being no 'dishonesty' in removing it. Human bodies or portions of them or mummies preserved in museums or scientific institutions may be capable of theft. (1902) A.W.N. 191=25 A. 129.

—Ss. 378 and 411—Theft or receiving stolen property—Removal of Chaukidar's Birth Register for producing in Court.

The removal of the Chaukidar's Birth Register without his consent for producing it in Court does not amount to an offence under S. 411 or any other section of the Code. 19 P.W.R. 1914 Cr. = 57 P.L.R. 1914 = 15 Cr.L.J. 522 = 24 Ind. Cas. 834.

—Ss. 378 and 414—Theft or receiving stolen property.

Son of the accused stole away certain jewellery which the accused returned to the owner but refused to disclose the name of the thief. The Magistrate on trial found him guilty under Ss. 414 and 380 for assisting the son in the theft.

Held, that the accused has committed no offence as dealing with stolen property after theft does not amount to theft or abetment of theft. 1 U.B.R. (1910) 8 = 11 Cr.L.J. 493 = 7 Ind. Cas. 465.

—Ss. 378 and 425—Theft of calf and subsequent killing of it.

Where a calf is stolen and then killed, two distinct offences are made out and these two offences are distinct offences and constitute two different acts falling within the definitions of theft as well as of mischief. It cannot be said that simply because the accused has caused wrongful loss to another person by taking away his property without his consent, the subsequent act of destruction of that property would not be an offence because the wrongful loss is already caused by taking it away from its possessor. Separate convictions and separate sentences for the offences are quite legal. A.I.R. 1936 Bom. 172 = 38 Bom. L.R. 164 = 37 Cr.L.J. 553 = 60 Bom. 627 = 162 Ind. Cas. 283.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Theft and Mischief.

Where theft of an animal has been committed the mere killing of it afterwards by the person who stole it, for the purpose of eating it himself cannot add another offence. 84 Ind. Cas. 341 = 7 P.L.T. 36 = 3 Pat. 804 = 26 Cr.L.J. 277 = A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 34.

—Ss. 379 and 429—Where after a thief has stolen and slaughtered an animal, another person joins him in skinning the dead body, the latter is not guilty either under S. 379 or S. 429. 84 Ind. Cas. 341 = 3 Pat. 804 = 26 Cr.L.J. 277 = 7 P.L.T. 36 = A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 34.

—Ss. 379 and 429—Theft or mischief—Killing animal.

A person cannot be convicted separately under Ss. 379 and 429 for stealing an animal and afterwards killing it as the destruction of the animal after theft, simply benefits the offender but causes no more wrongful loss to the owner. 9 S.L.R. 204 = 17 Cr.L.J. 239 = 34 Ind. Cas. 655.

—Ss. 378, Illus. (a) and 425—Theft or mischief—Cutting of trees—Intention to annoy—Offence.

Theft is committed only if the trees were cut with the intention of being removed from the possession of the owner. It is not theft but mischief where the trees were cut merely to annoy the complainant. 16 Cr.L.J. 544 = 29 Ind. Cas. 672 (Mad.).

—Ss. 379 and 426—Theft—Mischief—Separate sentences.

A person who steals a fowl and then kills it cannot be punished separately for the offence of theft and mischief. 1903 5 Bom. L.R. 46.

—Ss. 378, 379 and 392—Removing of property found by chance after quarrel.

Where the inception of the struggle was only a quarrel and it was at the end that the accused found a chance of taking the chaplis and the sheet of the complainant in order to ensure the payment of the money due to him :

Held, that the offence was one under S. 378 and not under S. 392, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1935 Pesh. 49 = 36 Cr.L.J. 894 = 155 Ind. Cas. 952.

—Ss. 379 and 392—Hurt caused to victim by his own resistance in not giving up—Offender, whether guilty of robbery or mere theft.

Where the accused wrested a bundle from the hands of a woman and as the latter did not give up the bundle, she was dragged to some distance and hurt was caused to her :

Held, that the hurt was not caused for the purpose of committing theft and the accused was not guilty of robbery but only of mere theft. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 407 = 35 Cr.L.J. 297 = 35 P.L.R. 186 = 147 Ind. Cas. 99.

—Ss. 379, 392 and 401—A conviction under S. 401 cannot be considered bad in law merely because the evidence on the record would also have justified a conviction of a specific offence under S. 379 or 392. 118 Ind. Cas. 423 = 6 O.W.N. 441 = 30 Cr.L.J. 922 = 1929 Cr.C. 143 = A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 321.

—Ss. 379 and 406—"Larceny" and "embezzlement" in English Law.

"Larceny" and "embezzlement" in English Law are the offences which represent what is known in India as theft, criminal misappropriation and criminal breach of trust. There is no exact equivalent in English Law of "criminal breach of trust". A.I.R. 1941 Rang. 342 = 1941 Rang. L.R. 547 = 43 Cr.L.J. 263 = 197 Ind. Cas. 797.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Difference between offence of theft, cheating, criminal misappropriation and criminal breach of trust.

An easy method of differentiating between the offence of theft, cheating with delivery of property, criminal misappropriation and criminal breach of trust is to find out whether the original taking was honest or dishonest and whether it was with the consent of the owner or without it. In theft the original taking is without honesty and without the consent of the owner, and in criminal breach of trust it is with both. In obtaining property by cheating the taking is dishonest but with the consent of the owner, and in criminal misappropriation it is honest but without the consent of the owner. 106 Ind. Cas. 678 = 9 A.I.Cr.R. 282 = 29 Cr.L.J. 86 = A.I.R. 1928 Nag. 113.

—Ss. 379 and 403—Theft or Criminal misappropriation.

Taking property of another and retaining it without any intention of depriving the owner of the property is not theft. He may be proceeded against under S. 403. 1 Pat. L.W. 416 = 18 Cr.L.J. 564 = 39 Ind. Cas. 804.

—Ss. 379 and 403—Theft or Criminal misappropriation.

Bullocks following cows eluding search of the owner are lost to the owner, and no theft of them is possible but dishonest misappropriation under S. 403 was held a proper charge. 10 Bur. L.T. 261 = 18 Cr.L.J. 300 = 38 Ind. Cas. 332.

—Ss. 379 and 406—Theft or Criminal misappropriation—Property attached and kept with third person—Appropriation by some of judgment-debtor—Offence committed.

Where the property of a judgment-debtor is attached and kept with a third person and subsequently the former takes it himself and appropriates it to his own use he is guilty of theft and not misappropriation. 8 A.L.J. 656 = 12 Cr.L.J. 374 = 11 Ind. Cas. 142.

—Ss. 379 and 405—Thefts or Criminal breach of trust—Harvesting of paddy.

Where the accused were entrusted to watch the paddy crops of the complainant and they cut the crops and disposed of the same themselves, they were guilty of either theft or criminal breach of trust. 36 Cal. 758 = 10 Cr.L.J. 253 = 3 Ind. Cas. 189.

—Ss. 379 and 442—Theft or house trespass.

The mere surrounding of an open space by wall or fence would not convert it into a building within the meaning of S. 442 and a person entering it to commit theft cannot be convicted under S. 457. But he is guilty of an offence under Ss. 379 and 511. 24 P.R. 1914 Cr. = 16 Cr.L.J. 1 = 208 P.L.R. 1915 = 26 Ind. Cas. 305.

Several accused were tried together and fined under Ss. 379 and 447 for stealing fish in the course of the same transaction; they were all separately engaged in fishing and there was no evidence of common object or common intention. They were merely several poachers gathered in the same place at the same time.

—Ss. 378 and 379—Accused acquitted because of incomplete evidence—Subject of theft should not be made over to him—Complainant retaining possession of the property cannot be required to execute bond till disposal of question of title.

It is an ordinary rule of law that when an accused is acquitted of a charge of theft and the property found with him is not found to be the subject of theft he is entitled to recover that property but where the property is found to be the subject of theft and an acquittal is due to incomplete evidence property will not be delivered to him.

There is no authority for holding that a criminal Court is competent to direct the complainant to execute a fresh bond till the disposal of the question of title to the property, which was the subject of theft, by a civil Court. 99 Ind. —S. 379—Offence charged must be explained to jury—Theft case—Removal must be dishonest—“Dishonestly” must be explained to jury.

It is the duty of the Sessions Judge to explain clearly to the jury the offence with which the accused are charged and in doing so the Judge should keep before him the words of the section defining the offence.

In case of theft removal must be done dishonestly and the word “dishonestly,” must be explained to the jury. 97 Ind. Cas. 951 = 24 M.L.W. 415 = 27 Cr.L.J. 1191 = A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 1121.

—Ss. 379 and 215—Applicability to thief himself.

S. 215, Indian Penal Code, is not intended to apply to the thief himself and therefore when a man is convicted of theft he ought not to be convicted also under S. 215. 11 U.B.R. (1914) 43 = 16 Cr.L.J. 421 = 28 Ind. Cas. 997.

—Ss. 379, 403 and 424—Theft or Criminal misappropriation—Conviction for theft, whether can be converted into one under S. 403 or S. 424.

When the necessary ingredients of an offence under S. 403 or S. 424 have not been considered in a trial under S. 379, a conviction for theft cannot be converted into one under S. 403 or S. 424. (1914) M.W.N. 483 = 15 Cr.L.J. 440 = 24 Ind. Cas. 176.

Conviction for a graver offence of extortion cannot stand on a mere charge of theft. 13 Cr.L.J. 597 = 16 Ind. Cas. 165 (Cal.).

—S. 379—Age of the accused—Boy of fourteen years.

A cow strayed away when returning from grazing. An immediate search was made and the animal was found being driven by two brothers A and B of the ages 20 and 14, respectively, about half a mile away. Both were convicted of theft.

Held, that B, cannot be said to have acted with criminal intent as he being a child would naturally do whatever his grown-up brother told him without knowing what was meant. 34 P.R. 1910 Cr.=12 Cr. L.J. 56=8 Ind. Cas. 1166.

— Ss. 378 and 379—Motive immaterial.

The offence of theft is committed if the property is removed from the custody of the owner without his consent whatever may be the motive of the act and the fact that the owner receives compensation does not affect the character of the offence. 5 N.L.R. 17=9 Cr. L.J. 389=1 Ind. Cas. 800.

— Ss. 380 and 454—Applicability—Breaking open lock of another's room and removing his box of jewels without his consent—Offence—Bonafide claim of right—Plea of—Conditions of validity.

Where a person breaks open the lock of a room occupied by another, though his relation, and removes a box of ornaments belonging to that other, without his consent, he is liable to conviction under Ss. 380 and 454, Indian Penal Code, unless he proved that he was not animated by a dishonest intention and was asserting a bona fide claim of right. Such a claim must be an honest claim, albeit unfounded in law or in fact and if it is not in good faith but merely a colourable pretence to obtain or keep possession of property, it will be of no avail as a defence. 4 C.P. Held, that S. 380 could not apply. The money was never in the possession of the complainant; it was in the possession of the bank and was taken from the possession of the bank with the bank's consent. A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 224=45 Cr.L.J. 666=I.L.R. (1944) 1 Cal. 398=213 Ind. Cas. 401.

— Ss. 380 and 395—Dacoity—No resistance from inmates of house—Consequent absence of use of force or show of force.

Where the accused were charged with an offence under S. 395, Indian Penal Code, but they were convicted by the Sessions Judge only for an offence under S. 380, on the ground that probably the inmates of the house did not resist the dacoits seeing their large numbers and the dacoits peacefully and calmly without using any force or show of force, acquired the property:

Held, that the view that any dacoity in which no resistance is offered and no violence required will cease to be dacoity and should be treated as a theft was wrong.

— Ss. 380 and 448—Bonafide claim.

Where coins were unearthed from field and taken possession of by several individuals, without the landlord's consent, and then the landlord's manager exacted by force the coins from many persons by house searches and other means and took the man who had actually unearthed the coins, to the police station to get a statement from him,

— S. 380—Removal of goods from debtor's possession.

Removal of goods from debtor's possession by force to compel the debtor to discharge the debt is theft. 81 Ind. Cas. 138=25 Cr.L.J. 650=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 131.

— S. 380—Removal of goods with dishonest intention.

Accused entered into an agreement with the complainant that the complainant should advance him money up to Rs. 10,000 on the hypothecation of the goods to be deposited by him as security. The accused was entitled to take advances up to 70 per cent of the value of goods. Accused managed to secure somehow the key of the go-down and removed the hypothecated goods which were there and which were then in the possession of the complainant.

Held, that the removal was dishonest and that the accused was rightly convicted under S. 380. 76 Ind. Cas. 654=25 Cr.L.J. 222=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 594.

— S. 380—Property secured in accused's shop—Complainant's possession and bond in form No. 15-A of Appendix E and O. 21, R. 43, Civil Procedure Code—Accused taking forcible possession after judgment in his favour does not commit theft.

Certain articles were attached by the complainant in execution, of a money decree and were in his possession under a bond in form No. 15-A of Appendix E and O. 21, R. 43, Civil Procedure Code. The same were subsequently adjudged to the accused in claim proceedings and he instead of taking delivery thereof through Court broke open the locks of the shop where the articles were and took forcible possession in complainant's absence.

Held, as the accused only took his own property secured in his own shop, it cannot be said that he intended to cause wrongful loss to complainant or wrongful gain to himself and hence he could not be convicted of theft. 72 Ind. Cas. 526=16 M.L.W. 15=24 Cr.L.J. 414=A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 405=42 M.L.J. 490.

— Ss. 380, 201 and 511—Theft—Causing disappearance of document, attempt of.

The accused removed a promissory note from the file of a Court. On being pursued they tore it to pieces.

Held, that they were guilty of an offence under S. 380, Indian Penal Code, and under Ss. 201 and 511 of the Indian Penal Code. 16 Cr.L.J. 791=31 Ind. Cas. 647 (All.).

2. Building.

—S. 380—Building—“Building includes structure whether covered or not and made of any material.”

A building within the meaning of Ss. 380 and 442, includes a structure whether covered or not and made of any materials whatsoever. The limitations imposed by the legislature on buildings referred to in Ss. 380 and 442 are not as to the nature of their structures or the materials of which they are made but to the use to which such structures are intended to be put.

A court-yard attached to the living rooms walled in on all sides and provided by a door leading to the street comes within the purview of the section. 35 P.R. 1879 Cr.; A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 28; 6 N.W.P.R. 307 and A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 117, Foll. 111 Ind. Cas. 459=22 S.L.R. 466=29 Cr.L.J. 875=A.I.R. 1929 Sind 17.

—S. 380—Owner of cattle rescuing them from cattle-pound, consisting of only a fencing, by opening its door—No offence under Ss. 380 and 454 but under Ss. 378 and 441.

The expression “building” must be regarded as indicating some structure intended for affording some sort of protection to the persons dwelling inside it or for the property placed there for custody. Any structure which does not afford any such protection by itself but merely serves as a fencing or other means of merely preventing ingress or egress cannot make the place a building or a house within the meaning of either of those two sections. Therefore, an owner of a cattle who rescues the cattle from such a cattle-pound by opening its door, does not commit an offence either under S. 380 or S. 454. He is guilty under Ss. 378 and 441, Penal Code, in addition to the offence under S. 24, Cattle Trespass Act. 100 Ind. Cas. 120=38 M.L.T. 163=28 Cr.L.J. 248=7 A.I.R. Cr. R. 410=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 343=52 M.L.J. 143.

3. Direction by Appellate Court for prosecution of more serious offence.

—Ss. 380 and 395—Complaint of entry into house and stealing of property—Admission of case under S. 380—During pendency of case direction by Additional District Magistrate to treat the case as a preliminary register case under S. 395 without notice to accused and without hearing him—Legality of direction.

On a complaint alleging entry into the house of the complainant and stealing of some articles, the Magistrate admitted the case under S. 380, Indian Penal Code. When the case was pending the Additional District Magistrate was moved and he directed that the case should be treated as a preliminary register case and proceeded with under S. 395, Indian Penal Code.

On a contention that the order was without jurisdiction.

Held, that when a complaint is made, the trying Magistrate need not admit the case in respect of all the offences mentioned in the complaint. If after enquiry he finds that a more serious offence has also been committed, he can frame a charge and proceed with the trial. Therefore it cannot be said that the order of the trying Magistrate amounted to a dismissal of the complaint under S. 395, Indian Penal Code, to justify the order by the Additional Magistrate; for can it be said that in a case like this a prosecution nor a more serious offence can be ordered by an Appellate Court without notice to the accused and without hearing him. 1947 M.W.N. 492=49 Cr.L.J. 30=A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 95=(1947) 2 M.L.J. 137.

4. Evidence and Proof.

See also Note 6 under Ss. 378 and 379.

—S. 380 and Evidence Act (I of 1872) S. 114 (a)—Explanation as to possession of stolen articles—No proof of guilt—Conviction on presumption—Legality.

If the accused gives an explanation as to how he came by the possession of the stolen articles which explanation may possibly be true, the onus, still lies on the prosecution to prove the guilt of the accused. It should not merely rest content by asking the Court to draw the presumption under S. 114 of the Evidence Act. Where the prosecution does not discharge its onus and the only evidence is the production of the stolen articles by the accused with an explanation he cannot be convicted under S. 380, Indian Penal Code, by drawing a presumption under S. 114, Evidence Act. 63 L.W. 593=A.I.R. 1950 Mad. 778=(1950) 1 M.L.J. 792.

—S. 380—Persons found with stolen property—Inference.

Where certain persons are found the day after the burglary has taken place, with stolen property in circumstances suggesting that they were dividing up the booty, it is reasonable to infer that they are persons guilty of the burglary. Such an inference, however, is not one of law but one of fact based upon the common course of events and human conduct. A.I.R. 1944 All. 281=1944 A.W.R.H.C. 249=1944 A.L.J. 411=1944 O.W.N.H.C. 198=46 Cr. L.J. 155=I.L.R. (1944) All. 694=216 Ind. Cas. 248.

—S. 380—Stolen articles removed from accused's house—Identity of articles strictly proved.

Conviction under Ss. 380 and 457 read with S. 109 of the Penal Code cannot be based on the ground that certain stolen articles were recovered from accused's house, unless their identity is strictly established.

The distinctive name of stolen cloth should be mentioned in the list of stolen articles. 2 P.L.T. 125=A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 499.

—Ss. 380, 411 and 457—Proof of offence.

A person was charged under Ss. 457 and 390. There was however no direct evidence to prove house breaking and theft but the accused after some days surrendered the stolen goods. He is guilty of an offence under S. 411 and not under Ss. 457 and 380. 17 Cr.L.J. 179=33 Ind. Cas. 819.

—S. 380—Theft from a railway van—Property found in an adjoining van wherein four railway coolies were travelling.

On suspicion of theft of certain articles from a running goods train, a van on the train in which four railway coolies were travelling was searched. The property missed was not found, but, hidden under a heap of clothing belonging to the four coolies, were discovered 10 thans of cloth, which on investigation were ascertained to have been abstracted from the next van.

Held, that none of the four coolies travelling in the van where the 10 thans of stolen cloth were found could be convicted of the theft of the cloth in the absence of evidence to connect one or more of them individually with the possession of the cloth. 1901 A.W.N. 103=23 A. 306.

5. Sentence.

—Ss. 380 and 457—Passing of separate sentences.

It is quite possible to commit the offence of lurking trespass without stealing anything at all just as it is possible to commit theft in a building without committing lurking house trespass. The offences are, therefore, quite distinct and hence separate sentences can be passed for each offence. A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 330 = 58 L.W. 75(1) = 1945 M.W.N. 106(1) = (1945) 1 M.L.J. 179 = 47 Cr.L.J. 157 = I.L.R. (1945) Mad. 896 = 221 Ind. Cas. 304.

—Ss. 380 and 457—Accused breaking house at night and committing theft :

Held, that there is no connection between S. 457 and 380 and hence the accused can be convicted under both the sections. A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 214 = 1941 O.W.N. 1365 = 43 Cr.L.J.W. 252 = 1942 A.W.R.H.C. 5 = 17 Luck. 513 = 197 Ind. Cas. 710.

—Ss. 380 and 457—There is nothing to prevent the Court from passing separate sentences for offences under Ss. 380 and 457. But the question is not of much practical importance as in an overwhelmingly large number of cases the punishment provided for any of these two offences will be sufficient and if the Court of Appeal finds that the trial Court has wrongly passed two separate sentences but the sentences taken together are not excessive, they can be consolidated. A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 349 = 40 Cr.L.J. 751 = 5 B.R. 907 = 20 P.L.T. 736 = 183 Ind. Cas. 217.

—Ss. 380 and 457—Sentence—Separate sentences under both are bad.

Separate sentences cannot be passed under S. 457 and S. 380 of the Indian Penal Code for housebreaking followed immediately by theft. 2 W.R.(Cr.) 63 ; 8 W.R.(Cr.) 31 ; 6 W.R.(Cr.) 49 ; 6 W.R.(Cr.) 92 and 5 W.R.(Cr.) 49 ; Foll. 96 Ind. Cas. 528 = 5 Pat. 464 = 7 P.L.T. 794 = 7 A.I.Cr.R. 3 = 27 Cr.L.J. 976 = A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 367.

—S. 380—In a case of an offence under S. 380, Indian Penal Code, Magistrate has two alternatives before him. He may send the offender to prison or in lieu thereof, he may either cause him to be whipped or send him to Borstal, but the power to order a person to be whipped is only in lieu of another punishment under the Code and once an order of detention in Borstal has been passed, there is no power to alter this order to a sentence of whipping. A.I.R. 1940 Rang. 81 = 1939 Rang. L.R. 744 = 41 Cr.L.J. 455 = 187 Ind. Cas. 405.

—S. 380—Theft under S. 380, Indian Penal Code, is included in offences mentioned in S. 3, Whipping Act. Therefore, an offender under S. 380, Indian Penal Code, can be sentenced to whipping but only in lieu of and not in addition to punishment of imprisonment or fine to which he is liable under the Code. A.I.R. 1939 Oudh 222 = 1939 O.W.N. 414 = 1939 A.W.R. 76 = 40 Cr.L.J. 521 = 14 Luck. 634 = 181 Ind. Cas. 79 (2).

—S. 380—Conviction for stealing bicycle—Accused young boy of respectable parentage and good education and first offender :

Held, that one of the surest guarantees that could be given against the commission of offences of this kind by anyone was the certainty that when the offence was committed and detected, the accused person would not go unpunished. The sentence of whipping passed was therefore, right even though the boy was the first offender. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 112 = 39 Cr.L.J. 478 = 174 Ind. Cas. 842.

—Ss. 380 and 109—Sentence of whipping for offence under S. 380—'Concurrent' sentences, significance of.

The sentence of whipping passed for the offence under S. 380 read with S. 109 is not legal.

Double sentences of whipping are illegal and the position is no better if they are ordered to run concurrently because sentences of whipping cannot run concurrently. The word "concurrent" properly applies only to sentences of imprisonment. If it was applied to sentences of whipping, the literal meaning would be that the prisoner was to be flogged by two operators simultaneously. A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 310 = 38 Cr.L.J. 1013 = 171 Ind. Cas. 71.

—S. 381—Appeal against conviction under without passing of sentence—Maintainability—Conviction for theft and forwarding of accused under S. 380, Criminal Procedure Code, to Magistrate with jurisdiction to take action under S. 563, Criminal Procedure Code.

A Magistrate who convicted an accused of an offence under S. 381, Indian Penal Code, was of the opinion that since the accused was a young man without any previous conviction it would be proper to release him under S. 562 (1) (a) of the Criminal Procedure Code instead of awarding him a sentence. Since he was not empowered under that section he forwarded the accused under S. 380 of the Criminal Procedure Code to a First Class Magistrate for taking appropriate action, if he considered it fit, under S. 562 of the Criminal Procedure Code. An appeal against the conviction before action could be taken by the First Class Magistrate was dismissed as premature. On a reference by the District Magistrate, Held, It cannot be said that the conviction is incomplete without a sentence for the purpose of exercising the right of appeal given in the Criminal Procedure Code against a conviction under S. 381 of the Indian Penal Code and the appeal against the conviction was maintainable. I.L.R. (1948) Mad. 434 = 48 Cr.L.J. 963 = A.I.R. 1948 Mad. 16 = 60 L.W. 421 = 1947 M.W.N. 523 = (1947) 2 M.L.J. 117.

—S. 381—Taking official papers out of officer's custody for showing to a party's wakil is theft by servant.

Where a clerk took official papers out of the possession of another clerk of the Tahsil office without Mamladar's consent with a view to show them to the wakil of one of the parties to the case.

—S. 381—Jurisdiction—Third Class Magistrate.

The trial of an offence under S. 381 by a 3rd Class Magistrate is illegal. 2 Bur. L.J. 75 = A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 12.

—S. 381—Evidence of ownership—Absence of.

In the absence of evidence as to ownership of stolen property the conviction under S. 381, Indian Penal Code, cannot stand. 16 Cr.L.J. 640 = 30 Ind. Cas. 464 (Mad.).

—S. 382—Sentence for offence under.

Where the theft is by armed persons it is practically highway robbery and is a serious crime and a sentence of two year's rigorous imprisonment is not excessive even though the accused had been in custody for 6 months. A.I.R. 1950 Kut. 29 = 51 Cr.L.J. 657.

—S. 382—Mere possession of dagger, if enough justification for conviction.

The accused entered the betel plantation with intention to commit theft and was surprised there by the owner and the latter's wife. The accused had with him a dagger of the kind used for cutting palm stems by toddy extractors. The owner of the plantation was a man of 65. The accused inflicted no injury with the dagger, and although thus armed, was actually overpowered and tied up by the old gentleman and his wife :

Held, that S. 382, Indian Penal Code, had no application in this case. The mere possession of a dagger did not justify a conviction under this section in the absence of any proof of any preparation to cause any of the acts mentioned in the section. A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 542=39 Cr.L.J. 277(2)=173 Ind. Cas. 144.

—Ss. 383 and 384.

Synopsis.

1. Abetment.
2. Ingredients of offence.
3. Injury.
4. Sentence.
5. Miscellaneous.

1. Abetment.

—Ss. 383 and 384—Abetment of extortion—Constable demanding bribe—Members of Civic Guard present with constable and not protesting but going with him in all his acts—Offence.

Where members of the Civic Guard are present with a police constable when he demands illegal gratification from a person carrying a tin of kerosene oil, and destroys the cash memo in respect of the tin, on refusal of payment of illegal gratification, make no protest against the act of the constable but go along with him, assisting and intending to assist him in his act of extortion, it must be held that the members of the Civic Guard have been a party to the demand of the constable, and that they intentionally aided the constable in his demand and were therefore guilty of the offence of abetment of the principal offence of extortion by the constable. I.L.R. (1945) 2 Cal. 478=230 Ind. Cas. 271=48 Cr.L.J. 587=A.I.R. 1948 Cal. 47.

2. Ingredients of offence.

—Ss. 383 and 384—Ingredient of offence—Intention to cause wrongful loss.

The chief element in the offence of extortion is that the inducement must be dishonest. It is not sufficient that there should be wrongful loss caused to an individual, but the person putting that individual in fear of injury must have the intention that wrongful loss should be caused. I.L.R. (1950) Nag. 715=1950 N.L.J. 318. A.I.R. 1950 Nag. 214=4 A.I.Cr.D. 426.

—Ss. 383 and 384—Chief element of the offence under—Accused honestly believing that his money was taken by P.W. 1—Attempt to get it back by intimidation of P.W. 1—Necessary intention absent—No offence.

The chief element in the offence of extortion is intentionally putting a person in fear of an injury to that person or to any other and thereby dishonestly inducing the person so put in fear to deliver to any person any property or valuable security, etc. The inducement must be dishonest. It is not sufficient that there should be wrongful loss caused to one individual, but the person putting that individual, in fear of injury must have the intention that wrongful loss should be caused.

Where the accused honestly believed, that P.W. 1 had taken the money belonging to him, his attempt to get it back could not be said to be with the intention of causing wrongful loss to P.W. 1. Hence neither that accused nor the other accused who were only present to assist him with a view to intimidate P.W. 1 can be guilty of an offence under S. 384, Indian Penal Code, as the necessary intention is entirely absent. 1948 M.W.N. 361=61 L.W. 400 (1)=A.I.R. 1948 Mad 513=50 Cr.L.J. 33=(1948) 1 M.L.J. 412.

—Ss. 383 and 384—Extortion—Essentials—Creditor filing false complaint in order to realise his debts.

Just as it is not an offence to deceive a person simpliciter, so it is no offence to put a person in fear of an injury, unless it is done with a criminal intention.

Institution of false criminal complaints would amount to putting a person in fear of injury within the meaning of S. 384, Indian Penal Code, but where the object is merely to realise debts which were admittedly due the second ingredient of the offence, namely, "dishonesty," is not established and the act does not amount to extortion. A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 253=43 Cr.L.J. 849=44 P.L.R. 429=202 Ind. Cas. 452.

—Ss. 383 and 352—Accused assaulting victim and forcibly taking his thumb impression on blank paper—Offence, nature of.

The definition of 'extortion' in S. 383, Indian Penal Code, makes it necessary for the prosecution to prove that the victims were put in fear of injury to themselves or to others, and further, were thereby dishonestly induced to deliver papers containing their thumb impressions. The forcible taking of the victim's thumb impressions on blank pieces of paper which can be converted into a valuable security does not necessarily involve inducing the victim to deliver papers with the thumb impressions. Hence, where the victim is assaulted by the accused and his thumb impression forcibly taken upon a blank piece of paper, the offence of extortion cannot be said to have been established. The offence is no more than the use of criminal force or an assault punishable under S. 352, Indian Penal Code. Nor does the offence amount to robbery in the absence of proof that the papers were taken from the victim's possession. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 129=7 B.R. 514=21 P.L.T. 970=42 Cr. L.J. 361=193 Ind. Cas. 241.

—Ss. 383 and 385—Extortion includes offence under S. 385.

Extortion, as defined in S. 383, Indian Penal Code, includes, putting any person in fear of injury and covers S. 385, Indian Penal Code, which is a less serious offence punishable only with two years' imprisonment as against three years' imprisonment for an offence under S. 384. A.I.R. 1941 Sind 36=42 Cr.L.J. 460=193 Ind. Cas. 454.

—Ss. 383, 384 and 30—Minor boy forcibly made to execute promissory note.

Where certain persons forcibly took a minor boy to a place where, after being beaten, the boy was forcibly made to execute a promissory note :

Held, that the document was a valuable security within the meaning of S. 384 read with S. 30 and that it was immaterial that it might subsequently be held to be of no effect against the executant. A.I.R. 1933

—Ss. 383 and 384—Gist of offence.

A conviction under S. 384, Indian Penal Code, cannot be maintained when the accused had no dishonest intention in removing the property. 86 Ind. Cas. 426=26 P.L.R. 97=26 Cr. L.J. 794=7 L.L.J. 121.

—Ss. 383 and 384—Demanding money for doing what one is not bound to do.

A Nikah Khawan is not bound to read a Nikha for a person unless he chooses to do so, and it is certainly no offence for him to demand any fee he likes for doing so. 75 Ind. Cas. 542=4 Lah. 179=24 Cr.L.J. 958=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 162.

—Ss. 383 and 384—Threat to omit to do some act which accused is not legally bound to do—If punishable.

After the crops of judgment-debtor were attached by officer of Court, the accused took money from judgment-debtor promising to get the crops released.

Held, no offence was committed.

Before a person can be said to put any person into fear of any injury to that person, it must appear that he has held out some threat to do or to omit to do what he is legally bound to do in the future. On the other hand if all that a man does is to promise to do a thing which he is not legally bound to do and says if money is not paid to him he would not do that thing, such an act does not amount to an offence.

But a threat held out by the accused that he would not release the cattle belonging to complainant and taken away by the accused without his consent, unless he was paid some money for their release, does amount to extortion inasmuch as he did put him in fear of injury to his property, namely the cattle, as he must have felt that his cattle would remain with the accused so long as the money was not paid to him. This would be sufficient injury within the meaning of S. 44 of the Indian Penal Code. 81 Ind. Cas. 609=46 All. 81=21 A.L.J. 850=4 L.R.A. (Cr.) 253=25 Cr. L.J. 961=A.I.R. 1924 All. 197.

—Ss. 383 and 384—Fines realised by picketing—Extortion.

Realising fines by means of picketing is extortion within the meaning of S. 383, Penal Code. 75 Ind. Cas. 764=25 Cr.L.J. 60=A.I.R. 1924 Nag. 19.

—Ss. 383 to 385—Levy of fine under threat of picketing—If extortion.

Accused threatened to put pickets if complainant sold foreign cloth and on complainant refusing to stop sale, was told that he would be required to pay a fine of 5 per cent, on the value of his stock and pickets were actually put effectually stopping the custom to the shop, on this the complainant paid the fine.

Held, the accused committed extortion.

When a man is told that certain men are going to watch his shop and he knows that in many instances the watching of shops not only leads to loss of business but has frequently led to loss of actual money and occasionally to personal injury to the shop-keeper, he legally must apprehend injury. 71 Ind. —Ss. 383 and 384—Essentials of extortion.

S. 384 demands that the complainant should be put in fear of injury with the object of inducing payment of money from him. 15 A.L.J. 127=18 Cr.L.J. 317=38 Ind. Cas. 429.

3. Injury.

—S. 383—"Injury"—Threat by public servant to do duty under law and to report to proper authorities in case he were not paid sum of money—Offence.

To constitute "injury" within the meaning of S. 383, Indian Penal Code, there must be "illegal harm." A threat by a person to do what he was bound by law to do is not a threat to do an injury (i.e., an illegal harm) so as to amount to an offence under S. 383, Indian Penal Code. Where a public servant threatens a person that in case the latter were to entertain more than 25 guests at a feast, he would report the matter to the proper authority concerned, unless he paid him a sum of money, he cannot be held to be guilty of the offence of extortion so as to be convicted under S. 384, Indian Penal Code; no offence of extortion can be held to be made out in such a case. 4 A 1 Cr.D. 16.

—Ss. 383 and 385—Threat of divine displeasure by creditor to debtor, if injury.

There is nothing in any of the illustrations to S. 383, Indian Penal Code, to suggest that the fear of injury referred to in S. 383 and S. 385 is the fear of injury resulting from divine displeasure; the injury contemplated must be one which the accused can inflict or cause to be inflicted; a threat that God will punish a man for some act, is not such an injury as the section refers to. A.I.R. 1944 Sind 203=46 Cr.L.J. 149=I.L.R. (1944) Kar. 146=216 Ind. Cas. 216.

—S. 383—Injury—Threat of criminal charge, if injury.

The threat of a criminal charge for the purpose extracting money not legally due, is a threat of injury within S. 383 of the Code. 6 Bur.L.T. 92=14 Cr. L.J. 413=20 Ind. Cas. 237.

4. Sentence.

—Ss. 383 and 384—Member of Police force acting in role of oppressor and extorting money—Sentence.

In the case of an accused who is a public servant whose duty it is to help the helpless people of the village and protect them from oppression, but who, instead of doing that, adopts a role of an oppressor and disgraces the Police force by committing offences under Ss. 161 and 384, Indian Penal Code, deterrent sentence will serve as an example to others. A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 163=1941 O.W.N. 1255=42 Cr. L.J. 139=1941 A.W.R. C.C. 358=197 Ind. Cas. 277.

5. Miscellaneous.

—Ss. 383 to 387.

Offence coming within S. 161—Accused can be convicted under it though principal offence may have been under S. 384. A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 374=48 C.W.N. 632=46 Cr.L.J. 94=215 Ind. Cas. 298.

—Ss. 383 and 192—Offences under, if private disputes.

Charges of extortion and fabricating false evidence are not private disputes as neither of these offences is compoundable. A.I.R. 1936 Sind 146=37 Cr.L.J. 1086=30 S.L.R. 217=164 Ind. Cas. 1020.

—Ss. 384 and 406—Extortion and breach of trust—Charge.

The charges of criminal breach of trust and extortion, in respect of the same moneys are incompatible.

Consequently, a conviction both for criminal breach of trust and extortion is not proper when they are in respect of the same moneys. A.I.R. 1936 Sind 29=37 Cr. L.J. 457=161 Ind. Cas. 295.

—Ss. 384 and 420—Extortion and cheating.

Although there is a common feature between the offence of extortion and that of cheating, yet they cannot be regarded as two aspects of one offence. 112 Ind. Cas. 586=30 Bom. L.R. 967=29 Cr.L.J. 1082=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 346.

—S. 384—Approximate amounts extorted—Charge.

In the case of extortion approximate amounts extorted from each and the nature of extortion should be stated. If the accused comes to know at the close of the evidence, the charge alleged against him, it is an irregularity fatal to the trial. 17 Cr. L.J. 411=35 Ind. Cas. 971 (All.).

—S. 385. See also Ss. 383 and 384.

—Ss. 385 and 383—"Injury," meaning of—Threat of divine displeasure, if injury.

Section 383 and hence S. 385 Indian Penal Code, must be interpreted with S. 44 of the Code and the word 'injury' according to S. 44 denotes any harm whatever, illegally caused to any person in body, mind, reputation or property and the harm threatened or caused to be threatened must be from something illegally done. No injury can be caused or threatened to be caused within the meaning of S. 385 unless the act done is either an offence or such as may properly be made the basis of a civil action. A.I.R. 1944 Sind 203=I.L.R. (1944) Kar. 146=46 Cr. L.J. 149=216 Ind. Cas. 216.

—S. 385—Requisites of the offence.

In order to constitute an offence under S. 385, it is not necessary that the threat should be of some conduct which might either constitute an offence in criminal law or which might be made the basis of a civil action for damages. Anything forbidden by law is unlawful and by virtue of the wide language of S. 43 illegal and the threat of any such act with a view to exact money constitutes extortion. 9 Pat. 725=128 Ind. Cas. 141=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 593.

—S. 385—Offence under—Essentials of.

For the purpose of S. 385, Indian Penal Code, it is necessary that the accused should have put some person in fear of injury in order to extort some property from him. 'Injury' includes only such harm as may be caused illegally to a person's mind, body, reputation or property. 19 Cr.L.J. 445=44 Ind. Cas. 973 (Mad.).

—S. 385—Attempt—If punishable.

Section 385 does not expressly provide for the punishment of an attempt at extortion; and the limitation in S. 511 evidently relates to such offences as an attempt to commit suicide or an attempt to obtain illegal gratification which are expressly punishable by other sections of the Code. Therefore a charge under S. 384 read with S. 511 is not bad. 98 Ind. Cas. 60=27 Cr.L.J. 1244=A.I.R. 1927 Pat. 89.

—S. 387—Applicability of.

If the relatives of an abducted person are put in fear of the death of the victim, to compel them to ransom him, S. 387 would apply. 6 L.B.R. 160=14 Cr.L.J. 167=6 Bur. L.T. 77=19 Ind. Cas. 167.

—Ss. 387 and 390—Accused drunk—Threatening for payment of money with weapon in hand.

A who was drunk went to the house of B with a weapon in his hand and cried that if B would not give him money, he would cut him and his wife. A struck the door with the weapon. The door was closed. Then A went to another's house and struck his door with the weapon. As a consequence the door opened and fell down. He was charged under S. 393.

Held, that he was not so drunk as to be incapable of forming a dishonest intention, that he was guilty under S. 387, that it was doubtful whether his act amounted to an attempt of robbery and therefore he should have the benefit of doubt. 5 Bur. L.T. 175=13 Cr.L.J. 864=6 L.B.R. 100=17 Ind. Cas. 800 (F.B.).

—Ss. 387 and 34—Where it is not shown that an attempted extortion was in furtherance of a common object of theft, all accused cannot be held guilty under S. 387 read with S. 34, Indian Penal Code, for the act of one of the accused who threatened a person with death in order to extort the keys of an iron safe. 1931 M.W.N. 129.

Synopsis.

1. Essentials of offence.
2. Evidence and proof.
3. Restraint—Meaning of.

1. Essentials of offence.

—Ss. 390 and 392—Proof of theft is essential for convicting a person for robbery.

Before a person can be convicted of robbery, theft by him must be proved but where theft is not established, the accused is entitled to an acquittal of the offence of robbery. A.I.R. 1945 Sind 38=I.L.R. (1944) Kar. 420.

—Ss. 390 and 392—Where the victim is assaulted by the accused and his thumb impression forcibly taken on a blank piece of paper, the offence does not amount to robbery in the absence of proof that the papers were taken from the victim's possession. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 129=21 P.L.T. 970=7 B.R. 514=42 Cr. L.J. 361=193 Ind. Cas. 241.

—Ss. 390 and 394—Accused first beating complainant and then committing theft—If offence under S. 394—committed.

The words 'for that end' used in S. 390, Indian Penal Code, clearly mean that the hurt caused by the offender must be with the express object of facilitating the committing of the theft or must be caused while the offender is committing the theft or is carrying away or is attempting to carry away the property obtained by the theft. It does not mean that the assault or the hurt must be caused in the same transaction or in the same circumstances. Where it was established that the accused persons first belaboured the complainant and his servant and subsequently committed the theft of the cash:

Held, that in the circumstances, it could not be said that whatever injury was caused, it was caused when the assault was made with the primary object of enabling the accused to the committing of the theft. The assault or the beating had no relation whatever to the commission of the theft although the theft was committed at the same time or immediately afterwards. The accused were not, therefore, guilty of an offence under S. 394. A.I.R. 1941 Oudh 476 = 1941 A.W.R. C.C. 367 = 42 Cr.L.J. 530 = 1941 O.W.N. 1262 = 194 Ind. Cas. 222.

— Ss. 390, 392 and 397—Knife used for committing robbery—Weapon, if should be used against person robbed.

Section 397, Indian Penal Code, does not require the use of a deadly weapon to be against the person robbed. Where the accused uses a knife, which is a deadly weapon at the time of committing robbery, by threatening the companions of the person robbed by frightening them and it strikes and causes injury to the person robbed, the accused should be convicted under S. 392 read with S. 397, Indian Penal Code. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 718 = 1941 M.W.N. 382 = (1941) 1 M.L.J. 695 = 53 L.W. 718 = 42 Cr.L.J. 868 = 196 Ind. Cas. 437.

— Ss. 390 and 323—A person is not said to be guilty of robbery if he rescued illegally attached bull by inflicting injury. He is guilty under S. 323 only. 1935 M.W.N. 1295.

— Ss. 390 and 392—Section 392, Indian Penal Code, contemplates that the accused should have, from the very start, the intention to deprive the complainant of the property and should for that purpose, either hurt him or place him under wrongful restraint. A.I.R. 1935 Pesh. 49 = 36 Cr.L.J. 894 = 155 Ind. Cas. 952.

— Ss. 390 and 392—D who wanted to send by registered insurance post a letter with some currency notes asking accused to write the address on the envelop—Accused trying to substitute another envelop in place of the original one—D becoming suspicious and asking for the original envelop—Scuffle in which the original envelope and D's coat torn :

Held, that the offence of robbery for which the accused could be held guilty was more or less technical the real attempt of the accused being that of criminal misappropriation. A.I.R. 1933 Sind 139 = 34 Cr.L.J. 802 = 144 Ind. Cas. 427.

— Ss. 390 and 392—Before a person can be convicted of robbery, the prosecution must prove that hurt was caused in order to the committing of the theft or in carrying away or attempting to carry away the property obtained by the theft. The hurt contemplated must be a conscious and voluntary act on the part of the thief for the purpose of overpowering resistance on the part of the victim, quite separate and distinct from the act of theft itself. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 407 = 35 Cr.L.J. 297 = 35 P.L.R. 186 = 147 Ind. Cas. 99.

— Ss. 390 and 392—Where the accused wrested a bundle from the hands of a woman and as the latter did not give up the bundle, she was dragged to some distance and hurt was caused to her :

Held, that hurt was not caused for committing theft and accused was not guilty of robbery but only of theft. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 407 = 35 Cr.L.J. 297 = 35 P.L.R. 186 = 147 Ind. Cas. 99.

— Ss. 390 and 392—In a charge for robbery, it must be shown that there was not only violence or hurt or wrongful restraint but also that it was caused for the purpose of enabling theft to be carried out. There must be common intention of all persons charged, to commit robbery, and they must have acted conjointly. In case where the trial results in conviction of less than five persons, they should be at least five persons present when the offence was committed. A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 481 = 1930 M.W.N. 1142 = 34 L.W. 349 = 32 Cr.L.J. 973 = 133 Ind. Cas. 7.

— S. 390—Extortion and robbery—Essentials.

It is not necessary that the extortion should follow immediately upon the restraint in order to constitute robbery, provided that there is fear of restraint at the time. 99 Ind. Cas. 596 = 25 M.L.W. 86 = 28 Cr.L.J. 164 = 7 A.I.C.R. 280 = A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 307.

— Ss. 390, 392 and 404—Offence under S. 392—Direction to jury if jewels were removed after death—The offence was one under S. 404.

Where shortly after the murder, the murdered girl's jewellery was discovered in the possession of the accused who was charged with robbery and murder and the Judge told the jury that, if it had been removed from her person after her death, the offence committed was one under S. 404, Indian Penal Code,

Held, that that was not a proper direction, but that the question for consideration was whether the murder had been committed for the purpose of stealing the jewels, and if it had been committed for that purpose, the offence was one under S. 392. 98 Ind. Cas. 488 = 27 Cr.L.J. 1368 = 7 A.I.C.R. 450 = A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 243.

— Ss. 390 and 392—Accused breaking into a house and carrying away property stolen by him—Complainant trying to recover—Accused is guilty under Ss. 392, 394 and 457.

Where the accused committed house-breaking in the house of the complainant and abstracted from it a chembu, and, when the complainant attempted to catch him and recover his property the accused, in order to the carrying away of this property caused him hurt :

Held, that the accused committed offences under Ss. 457, 392 and 394. 86 Ind. Cas. 715 = 21 M.L.W. 37 = 26 Cr.L.J. 850 = A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 466.

— Ss. 390 and 392—Causing fear—If necessary.

In order that the offence of robbery be committed it is not necessary that fear should be caused to the owner of the house after the robbers have entered the house. If the robbers scared away the owner on account of the fear caused in his mind before they had been able to make an entry in his house the offence of robbery would be quite complete. 83 Ind. Cas. 705 = 5 L.R.A.C. 81 = 26 Cr.L.J. 145 = A.I.R. 1924 All. 701.

— S. 390—Thief attacking pursuers after leaving stolen property.

Robbery is the committing of one or the other of the wrongful acts mentioned in S. 390 for the purpose of committing of theft or for the carrying away or attempting to carry away property obtained by theft and so a thief is not guilty of it when he uses violence against his pursuers after abandoning the stolen property. 19 Cr.L.J. 27 = 42 Ind. Cas. 987.

— Ss. 390, 396 and 397—For that end—Meaning of.

Dacoity consists in five or more persons acting conjointly in causing death or hurt or wrongful restraint or fear of such instant evils not only to commit theft or in committing it, or in carrying away property obtained by theft, but also for that end, which phrase cannot mean 'in those circumstances.' 18 Cr.L.J. 346 = 38 Ind. Cas. 730 (Mad.).

— S. 390—Splitting of offence—Theft—Hurt—Robbery—Independent offences.

It is not open to a magistrate to split up a graver offence into a number of smaller offences, which when combined constitute that offence in order to give himself jurisdiction. When hurt or fear of instant of hurt is caused by five or more persons for the purpose dispossessing persons already in possession of some premises and has no relation to the commission of theft, although theft may have been committed at the same time as a perfectly independent act, it does not amount to robbery as defined in S. 390. (1900) 5 C.W.N. 372.

2. Evidence and proof.

—Ss. 390, 392 and 393—Merely standing in a crowd is not evidence of committing or attempting to commit robbery.

The evidence that a man was standing in a large crowd which overflowed into the public street cannot be said to be satisfactory evidence that he was actually committing a robbery, nor can it be an evidence that he was actually "attempting to commit" a robbery, nor even aiding in the commission of a robbery. A.I.R. 1945 All. 385=1945 A.W.R. (H.C.) 178=I.L.R. (1945) All. 651=47 Cr.L.J. 249=222 Ind. Cas. 136.

—Ss. 390 and 392—Prosecution evidence insufficient—Admission of accused that complainant paid hush money—Conviction if justifiable.

It is not open to a Court to base a conviction under S. 392, on insufficient evidence coupled with the mere fact that accused in his statement admitted to have taken the property from the complainant for some other purpose, which was not believed by the Court.

In the darkness of night, accused were alleged to have robbed the complainants of Rs. 50, which one of the complainants had on his person. The prosecution evidence was insufficient by itself to justify conviction. But the accused, while being examined under S. 342, Criminal Procedure Code, admitted receiving Rs. 50 by way of fine, to hush up a criminal offence committed by one of the complainants. This admission, though not believed by the Court, was taken into consideration while convicting the accused.

Held, that the evidence was insufficient by itself to justify the conviction of the accused. 120 Ind. Cas. 95=30 Cr.L.J. 1135=24 S.L.R. 10=1929 Cr.C. 683=A.I.R. 1929 Sind 255.

—Ss. 390, 392, 395 and 411—Pointing out place where stolen property is hidden.

Mere pointing out by the accused of the place where some of the stolen properties were concealed is not sufficient to support a conviction under S. 411, nor would it amount to taking part in a dacoity or robbery. 17 A. 576, Foll. 16 C.W.N. 238=13 Cr.L.J. 127=13 Ind. Cas. 783.

3. Restraint—Meaning of.

—S. 390—Restraint—Meaning—Person asleep if can be restrained.

"Restraint" implies abridgement of the liberty of a person against his will. Where he is deprived of his will power by sleep or otherwise he cannot while in that condition be subjected to any restraint. 109 Ind. Cas. 682=29 P.L.R. 90=29 Cr.L.J. 602=10 A.I.Cr. R. 274=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 445.

S. 391. See S. 395.

S. 392. See also S. 390.

—Ss. 392 and 411—Separate convictions under—Legality.

Dishonest intention in the case of an offence under S. 411, Indian Penal Code, is contradistinguished from dishonest reception. In the former dishonest supervenes after the act of acquisition of possession, while in the latter dishonesty is contemporaneous with the act of acquisition. The act of dishonest removal under S. 379, Indian Penal Code, constitutes dishonest reception under S. 411, and hence the thief does not commit the offence under S. 411 merely by continuing to keep possession of the article he stole. So also with regard to S. 392 and S. 411. Where therefore a person has been convicted under S. 392, Indian Penal Code he cannot also be separately convicted under S. 411. 2 W.R. (Cr. R.) 12=2 W.R. (Cr. R.) 63, 2 N.W.P. H.C.R. 312=18 P.R. 1884, foll. 3 A.I.Cr.D. 627=A.I.R. 1950 E.P. 66=51 Cr.L.J. 581.

—S. 392—Sentence—Value of property is not the criterion.

Highway robbery is a very heinous offence and law-abiding citizens have every right to be protected. Therefore when deciding a case of such nature, the value of the stolen property should not be the criterion whereby the amount of punishment is to be determined. A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 221=1941 O.W.N. 1369=43 Cr.L.J. 416=1941 A.W.R. 402=17 Luck. 516=198 Ind. Cas. 714.

—S. 392—In the case of a previous convict charged with an offence under S. 392, a sentence of 7 years' rigorous imprisonment is by no means too severe. A.I.R. 1934 Oudh 122=35 Cr.L.J. 566=147 Ind. Cas. 1176.

—S. 392—Sentence—Essentials—Imprisonment.

A sentence of imprisonment is an essential sentence under S. 392 of the Indian Penal Code. To this a fine may be added. And under S. 4 of the Whipping Act a sentence of whipping may be imposed where in the commission of a robbery, hurt is caused. 66 Ind. Cas. 418=44 All. 538=20 A.L.J. 388=23 Cr.L.J. 274=A.I.R. 1922 All. 245.

—Ss. 392 and 395—Robbery and dacoity—Charge for one and conviction for another.

The offence of robbery cannot be converted to dacoity where excepting a simple allegation there is not adequate proof on the prosecution side that five or more persons have taken part in committing or attempting to commit the crime. 26 P.W.R. 1915 Cr.=16 Cr.L.J. 634=30 Ind. Cas. 458.

—Ss. 392 and 458—Difference in offences.

An offence under S. 458 is graver offence than one under S. 392 of the Code (1911). 1 U.B.R. 98=13 Cr.L.J. 429=14 Ind. Cas. 978.

—Ss. 393 and 398—Criminal Procedure Code, S. 537—Charge under S. 398—Omission to specify section.

In a charge and finding under S. 398, Indian Penal Code, the substantive S. 393 as well as the supplementary S. 398 should be mentioned. The omission to specify the section would, however, be covered by S. 537, Criminal Procedure Code. Where the heads of the charge did not mention the allegation that two of the three accused were carrying Das, and the Judge omitted to ascertain from the jury whether they found that the said two accused were armed with Das.

Held, that it was possible that the jury overlooked, the serious nature of the charge. The convictions were altered to S. 393 from S. 398, and the sentences reduced. 4 Bur.L.T. 198=12 Cr.L.J. 468=11 Ind. Cas. 1004.

— S. 394—Proof of offence—Medical evidence not proving death from throttling—Confession not made to Magistrate—Ornaments recovered not connected with deceased.

Where the medical evidence did not prove that the deceased died from asphyxiation by throttling, some symptoms favouring that view and some not favouring it and the confession was not made before a Magistrate but was only stated to have been made in the village to three villagers whose evidence was of little weight to prove that a confession was made, and although the evidence of ornaments stolen being found in the house of the accused might be correct, yet the prosecution failed to connect those ornaments with the deceased :

Held, that the prosecution had not proved the charge against the accused under S. 394, Indian Penal Code, and they were entitled to an acquittal. A.I.R. 1935 All. 549=1935 A.L.J. 478=36 Cr.L.J. 636=1935 A.W.R. 388=155 Ind. Cas. 119.

— S. 394—Nature of offence.

The offence under S. 394 cannot be said to be a minor offence so far as dacoity is concerned. 105 Ind. Cas. 831=28 Cr.L.J. 1007=9 A.I.Cr.R. 211=1 M. Cr.C. 196=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 207.

— S. 394—Robbery and murder—Robbery by four—Murder by two—Offences.

Where four persons armed with deadly weapons fully prepared to commit murder in the event of resistance and two of them actually committed murder before any resistance was offered to them.

— S. 394—Sentence—Whipping—When justifiable.

Before a sentence of whipping, in addition to imprisonment, can be passed on a person found guilty under S. 394, Indian Penal Code, there must be also a finding that he himself caused hurt while committing the robbery. 109 Ind. — Ss. 394 and 397—Consecutive sentences—Legality.

Consecutive sentences in respect of convictions under Ss. 394 and 397 are illegal, if they are based on the same set of facts. 89 Ind. Cas. 390=26 Cr. L.J. 1350=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 47.

— Ss. 395 and 427—Charge under S. 395—Conviction under S. 427—Legality. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE (V OF 1898), S. 238. A.I.R. 1950 All. 471.

— Ss. 395, 323, 452, 147 and 148—Accused charged of having committed dacoity, if can be convicted under Ss. 452 and 323 or under Ss. 147 and 148.

An accused charged merely in general terms of "having committed dacoity" should not be convicted under Ss. 452 and 323, Indian Penal Code, as the latter offences are not necessarily cognate offences and in committing dacoity, one does not necessarily commit house trespass or simple hurt. The provisions of S. 342, Criminal Procedure Code, are very important and the Court, before it can convict the accused under S. 452 and 323, Indian Penal Code, is bound to put to the accused points brought out in the evidence of the prosecution witnesses so that the accused might have an opportunity to give his explanation. Whether there was or was not prejudice caused to the accused would depend, in each case, on the facts of that case. The Court may have also to take into consideration the line of defence and the evidence that was given. If, from the language of the charge and from other materials, it is clear that the accused knew definitely the case that he had to meet and surprise was not sprung on him, S. 537, Criminal Procedure Code, would enable the Court to uphold the conviction in spite of the charge being defective.

The accused cannot be convicted under Ss. 147 and 148, Indian Penal Code when the charge against them was merely under S. 395, Indian Penal Code, unless the case is one to which Ss. 236 and 237, Criminal Procedure Code, are applicable. A.I.R. 1945 All. 87= (1945) A.L.J. 141=46 Cr.L.J. 495=1945 O.W.N. (H.C.) 138=I.L.R. (1945) All. 432=1945 A.W.R. (H.C.) 145=218 Ind. Cas. 372.

— Ss. 395, 147 and 148—Essentials for proving a charge under S. 395 are different from those for proving a charge under Ss. 147 and 148—Alteration of conviction from one under S. 395 to S. 148—S. 535, Criminal Procedure Code, held not applicable.

The particulars necessary for proving a charge under S. 395, Indian Penal Code, are different from particulars necessary for proving a charge under S. 147 or S. 148, Indian Penal Code. The existence of an unlawful common object is an essential ingredient for a charge under S. 147 or 148. Hence, in a case when conviction of an accused under S. 359, was altered to one under S. 148, it was held that the accused was seriously prejudiced and the principle laid down in S. 535, Criminal Procedure Code, was not applicable. A.I.R. 1945 Pat. 376=225 Ind. Cas. 114.

— Ss. 395, 398—Charge and conviction.

In the case of charge for dacoity only, the actual offender, or offenders who were armed with deadly weapons can be convicted under S. 398, Indian Penal Code. A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 367=34 P.L.R. 449=33 Cr.L.J. 460=137 Ind. Cas. 196.

—S. 395—Charge and conviction—Common object—Proof of.

A conviction for dacoity founded on a common object not charged, or on evidence, which does not prove the necessary ingredients of the offence, is not sustainable. 77 Ind. Cas. 444=19 M.L.W. 211=34 M.L.T. 307=1924 M.W.N. 238=25 Cr.L.J. 396=A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 584=46 M.L.J. 311.

2. Competency to try.

—S. 395—A Judge who is empowered by the Local Government to try cases under Ss. 121-A, 122, 121 and 396, Indian Penal Code, is not competent to try an offence under S. 395 when no murder is involved. A.I.R. 1933 Rang. 116=34 Cr. L.J. 929=145 Ind. Cas. 251.

3. Conviction of less than five persons.

—S. 395—Charge of dacoity against more than five persons—Evidence showing at least six persons involved—Acquittal of four—Conviction of two—Sustainability.

The fact that five or more persons are not convicted at a trial for dacoity is no ground for holding that there should be no conviction of any one at all under S. 395, Indian Penal Code. Where more than five persons are separately charged with dacoity, but the jury acquits all but one or two, the evidence showing that there were at least six persons concerned in the affair, the conviction of the rest is not illegal or unsustainable. The mere fact that the evidence was not sufficient to convict four of the accused actually charged would not in any way affect the question of the number of persons engaged. 1946 N.L.J. 566=47 Cr.L.J. 822=226 Ind. Cas. 78=A.I.R. 1947 Nag. 57.

—S. 395—Conviction of less than five persons—Misdirection to jury.

Where the jury brings in a verdict of guilty on a charge under S. 395 in respect of less than five persons, it cannot be said that there is a duty upon the Court to satisfy itself that in coming to such a verdict, there has been present in their minds the necessity of at least five persons being concerned in the offence. But where the Judge has adequately explained in his charge what is necessary to constitute the offence of dacoity, he has done all that can reasonably be expected of him.

Before the High Court interferes with a conviction in a trial by jury, it has to be satisfied that there was a misdirection on the part of the Sessions Judge or that there was improper admission or exclusion of evidence. A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 295=33 Cr. L.J. 477=137 Ind. Cas. 497.

—Ss. 395 and 391—Five persons charged—One acquitted—Others also concerned—Conviction under S. 391—Propriety.

Where the charge itself only charged five persons with the offence of dacoity and one of them was acquitted, but the Court believed there were other persons concerned in the dacoity committing robbery with violence, a conviction of the four persons under S. 391 is not improper. 1930 M.W.N. 1138.

—Ss. 395 and 396—Proof of dacoity by five—Identification of four only—Liability.

Where it is fully established that a dacoity was committed by a party of five persons one of whom committed a murder and the identity of four of them is established beyond question, the fifth remaining unidentified the four accused are equally guilty under S. 396, though it is not possible to trace and identify one of the culprits. 120 Ind. Cas. 490=31 Cr.L.J. 112=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 263.

—Ss. 395 and 392—Five alleged to have committed dacoity—One turning approver—Two acquitted—Remaining two if can be convicted under S. 395.

Where a dacoity was alleged to be committed by 5 persons, one of whom turned an approver and two were acquitted.

Held, the remaining two cannot be convicted of dacoity but should be convicted under S. 392 (robbery): 39 All. 348; (1910) M.W.N. 52, Foll. 102 Ind. Cas. 483=28 Cr.L.J. 547=8 A.I.Cr.R. 191=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 519.

—S. 395—Five charged of dacoity—One acquitted—Others if can be convicted.

Where three known and named persons were charged with dacoity along with two other unknown men and the jury acquitted one of the three and convicted the other two of dacoity.

Held, that the conviction is not illegal. It was open to the jury, while holding that one of the accused who was supposed to have been known to the witnesses had not been properly identified, to find that the total number of dacoits was five but at the same time the Judge ought to have asked the jury whether they had considered the possible result of the acquittal and whether they found, even after the acquittal of one accused that the number of robbers was five. 106 Ind. Cas. 341=1927 M.W.N. 853=29 Cr.L.J. 5=9 A.I.Cr.R. 248=1 M.Cr.C. 72=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 144=53 M.L.J. 732.

—Ss. 395 and 396—Charge of dacoity.

When out of a number of persons charged with having committed a dacoity half are acquitted, the charge of dacoity does not necessarily fail. 15 C.W.N. 434=12 Cr. L.J. 193=10 Ind. Cas. 684.

—Ss. 395 and 391—Three of the six accused under S. 391 acquitted—Effect.

—Ss. 395 and 347—Dacoity—Absence of fifth person—Validity—Alteration of offence.

In the absence of evidence as to the existence of an alleged fifth person which is necessary to constitute the offence of dacoity, a conviction under S. 395 of the Indian Penal Code is illegal and in the circumstances of the case the accused could only be convicted of an offence under S. 347. The sentence should be reduced when the conviction is altered to one under S. 347, Indian Penal Code. 7 Cr. L.R. 147 (Mad.).

—S. 395—Detention of produce under the bonafide belief of right to do so—Assault.

Where the accused who were taradagars under the complainant refused to give batai to the complainant who thereupon applied to the Tahsildar for division of the harvest and the girdawar was deputed to divide the produce, and some altercation about the receipts after the division of the produce led the accused to detain the produce and assault the complainant :

Held, that although the accused had no right to detain the produce, they presumably did so in the bona fide belief that they were justified in their action as no receipts were given to their satisfaction, and therefore, under the circumstances, the requisite criminal intention for a charge under S. 396, Indian Penal Code, could not be said to be established. 146 Ind. Cas. 295=34 Cr.L.J. 1258=34 P.L.R. 956.

—Ss. 395 and 380—Accused charged with offence under S. 395—Dacoity—No resistance from the inmates of the house—Accused not using any force or show of force and acquiring property—Sessions Judge convicting the accused under S. 380 only :

Held, that the view taken by the Sessions Judge was wrong as it indicated that any dacoity to which no resistance is offered and no evidence required will cease to be dacoity and should be treated as a theft. [Sentence enhanced]. A.I.R. 1933 All. 114=1932 A.L.J. 1078=55 All. 117=34 Cr.L.J. 448=146 Ind. Cas. 790.

—S. 395—Dacoity and rioting—Mahomedan rioters—Common object proved—Any person taking part in disturbance guilty of riot as well as dacoity.

Where it is established that the common object of the Mahomedan rioters was both to hurt any members of the Hindu community whom they might happen to find and to rob the shops and houses of the Hindus, any person who is proved to have taken a part in the disturbance must be found guilty not only of the offence of riot but also of the offence of dacoity. 99 Ind. Cas. 238=2 Luck. 264=3 O.W.N. (Sup.) 304=28 Cr.L.J. 110=A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 70.

—Ss. 395 and 391—Robbery with violence by five or more persons.

Taking the words of the section in the most literal sense and strongly in favour of the Crown, they point to robbery with violence by five or more persons.

Where accused Nos. 4, 5, and 6 stood by and encouraged accused Nos. 1, 2 and 3 who were making a sort of raid on their brother's property or what their brother claims as his property, and when he tried to re-take what his brothers had taken from him, two of them, the younger one probably instigated by accused No. 4, tried to prevent the complainant from re-taking his property.

Held, accused Nos. 4, 5 and 6 were no party to any robbery, nor could they in any sense be called robbers or dacoits. 71 Ind. Cas. 877=1922 M.W.N. 326=15 M.L.W. 552=24 Cr.L.J. 269=A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 195.

—Ss. 395 and 391—Dacoity—Essentials.

The essentials of the offence of dacoity are that the theft should be perpetrated by means either of actual violence or of threatened violence. The threatened violence may be implied in the conduct and character of the mob. It is not necessary that the force or menace should be displayed by any overt act. It cannot assist the accused or reduce the gravity of their offence that no actual hurt was caused for the reason that no one dared to resist the overwhelming show of force, which was sufficient to terrify those whose business it was to protect the property. ##### —S. 395—Dacoity case—Prosecution witnesses not consistent regarding parts played by various dacoits—Discrepancies point rather to truth than falsity.

Where the prosecution witnesses are not quite consistent about the parts that were played by various dacoits, the discrepancies of this kind would point rather to the truth than to the falsity of the prosecution case. Mistakes in observation are likely to be made by witnesses to a crime of this nature. A.I.R. 1945 All. 100=1945 A.W.R. (H.C.) 18=46 Cr.L.J. 525=219 Ind. Cas. 24.

—Ss. 395, 412 and 411—Articles found in possession of accused—Conviction under S. 395, when proper—No evidence that accused knew that property was stolen—Conviction.

It is quite meaningless to convict the accused both under S. 395 and under S. 412 with regard to the evidence about the finding of certain articles in their possession. If the jury are prepared to draw an inference from the fact that particular person is a thief there would be no difficulty in convicting him under S. 395, when it is proved that the actual property was stolen in the course of a dacoity. If they are not so satisfied, the position becomes very different because there being no evidence from which a jury could be asked to say that these individual accused knew or had reason to believe that the stolen properties were transferred by the commission of dacoity. If the charge under S. 395 failed, the only alternative would be one under S. 411. A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 39=45 Cr.L.J. 468=211 Ind. Cas. 624.

—Ss. 395, 411 and 399—Evidence as to recovery of stolen property attacked—Alternative hypothesis.

When the evidence of recovery of stolen property is attacked, the Court has to examine the evidence in the light of the following alternative hypothesis. Hypothesis enunciated. A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 5=44 Cr.L.J. 62=44 P.L.R. 545=203 Ind. Cas. 62.

—Ss. 395 and 148—Dacoity—Substantial property stolen—Motive, evidence of—Prosecution giving evidence of past conduct of accused in guise of evidence of motive—Prejudicing jury against accused.

In cases of dacoity and cognate offences, where it is alleged that substantial property has been stolen, it is entirely unnecessary to consider motive at all. The taking of the booty in such cases itself provides a sufficient motive for the offence, if any motive is required. Where, in the guise of evidence of motive, the prosecution has in fact led a mass of evidence relating to the conduct of the accused in the past, such evidence is extremely likely to prejudice the jury. Such evidence has no bearing whatsoever on the fact which the jury has to try, namely whether the accused entered the house and committed theft therein. A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 199=7 C.L.T. 82=8 B.R. 264=43 Cr.L.J. 230=21 Pat. 130=23 P.L.T. 494=197 Ind. Cas. 647.

—S. 395—On a charge of dacoity it is not enough to establish presence of the accused amongst the dacoits. 1937 M.W.N. 737.

—Ss. 395, 411 and 412—Accused pointing out article stolen in dacoity a month after dacoity—Whether proves that he took part in dacoity—Possession contemplated.

The dacoity took place on 26th May, 1935, and the silver ornament was recovered a month later on 25th June, 1935, through the help of the accused :

Held, that the fact that the accused knew where the ornament belonging to the sister-in-law of the complainant had been buried would not go to show that he actually took part in the commission of the dacoity; he may have seen the actual dacoit or some other person to whom the dacoit had handed over this ornament burying it under a tree in the field.

Held further that the possession contemplated by Ss. 411 and 412, Indian Penal Code, is exclusive possession, otherwise the receiver or the possessor of the stolen property would run the risk of losing the stolen property, if someone else could get hold of it. In the circumstances of this case, the accused could not be said to be in exclusive possession of the stolen property. Although strong suspicion attached to the accused that he either had something to do with the commission of the dacoity or in the disposal of the stolen property obtained by the commission of this dacoity, still the evidence was not legally sufficient to justify his conviction either of an offence under S. 395, Indian Penal Code, or under S. 411 or S. 412, Indian Penal Code. A.I.R. 1937 Oudh. 157=1936 O.W.N. 295=37 Cr.L.J. 454=12 Luck. 88=161 Ind. Cas. 271.

—S. 395—Dacoity—Circumstantial evidence—Pointing out place where stolen property found—Whether sufficient.

Where the sole evidence of a person charged with dacoity was that he had pointed out the place where some of the stolen property was found, the evidence is not sufficient as it did not exclude other theories compatible with his innocence. 1 O.L.J. 74=15 Cr.L.J. 404=23 Ind. Cas. 1004.

—S. 395—Production of stolen articles—Other evidence doubtful.

The mere fact that a person accused of dacoity made incriminating statements about himself before several prosecution witnesses and even produced some of the stolen articles, is not convincing or conclusive of his guilt. 31 P.W.R. 1913 Cr.=314 P.L.R. 1913=14 Cr.L.J. 601=21 Ind. Cas. 473.

—S. 395—Accused recently wounded and unable to give satisfactory explanation of injury—Inference.

The mere fact that the accused had been recently wounded and that he has failed to give a satisfactory explanation as to how he was wounded, combined with the fact that he was conveyed away from his house to a place of hiding shortly after the dacoity, is of some corroborative value, but may be capable of explanation other than that of his complicity in this particular dacoity. —Ss. 395 and 391—Personal grievance—If necessary.

—S. 395—Evidence—Stolen property not found in accused's possession—Their names not entered in the first information report—No identification proceedings by any Magistrate—Conviction solely based on testimony of complainant—Legality.

Where no stolen property was found in possession of the accused charged under S. 395 and their names were not entered in the first information report and no identification proceedings were conducted by any Magistrate.

Held, their conviction solely based upon the testimony of the complainant was not sustainable. 112 Ind. Cas. 109=5 O.W.N. 732=29 Cr.L.J. 989=A.I.R. 1928 Oudh 417.

—S. 395—Taking part in dacoity—Proof of—Knowledge of dacoity—Sufficiency of.

The facts were that a gang of thirteen persons had assembled at the accused's hut at night before the dacoity was committed, that he was aware of their purpose, that he did not give any information to the authorities and that after the dacoity was over the dacoits once more came to his hut and told him what had happened. He, next morning, informed the Mukhia. Some property proved to have been stolen in the dacoity was found in the crop surrounding the accused's hut, and this was thrown away by the dacoits because he began to raise an alarm.

Held, the evidence was insufficient to prove that the appellant actually took part in the dacoity. 81 Ind. Cas. 597=11 O.L.J. 356=25 Cr.L.J. 949=A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 367.

— Ss. 395 and 396—Evidence—Accused sent to prison for not being able to furnish security—Relevancy.

The fact that the accused was sent to jail for being unable to furnish security under S. 110, Criminal Procedure Code, is irrelevant in a proceeding against him under S. 396, Penal Code. A presumption under S. 114, Evidence Act, will not alone justify fixing a person with more than knowledge that the goods were obtained by dacoity. 59 Ind. Cas. 204=22 Cr.L.J. 60=32 C.L.J. 89.

In case of offences under S. 395, Indian Penal Code, (dacoity) the Judge ought to explain to the jury what is necessary to constitute the offence of robbery as that offence is defined in Section 390 of the Indian Penal Code. If he does not, it is a real and not merely a technical defect. It is not to be assumed that every jurymen knows the legal distinction between theft and robbery and the defect arising from the omission by the Judge to explain to the jury the essential elements of the offence of robbery is not cured by the fact that evidence was given in the particular case which if believed by the jury would warrant their conviction of the accused on the charge of dacoity. 81 Ind. — S. 395—Several accused—Discussion of evidence against each separately.

The only satisfactory way of dealing with the evidence and identification of accused in a dacoity case, is to give at first a general outline of the case, the dacoity, the course of the investigation and the arrest of the various accused, then the case against and for each accused should be dealt with in detail, and a conclusion arrived at with regard to each individual. 76 Ind. — S. 395—Finding as to number of persons.

The offence under S. 395 can be committed only if the number of persons concerned in the robbery is not less than five. Hence a finding as to the number of persons concerned being five or more is essential. 88 Ind. Cas. 513=6 Lah. 24=26 Cr.L.J. 1153=26 P.L.R. 139=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 337.

6. Sentence.

— S. 395—Sentence—Dacoity not characterised or accompanied by brutality—Non-infliction of severe injuries—Sentence of transportation and heavy fine—If justified—Receiver of property stolen at dacoity—Distinction.

In the case of a dacoity not characterised by any unusual circumstance of brutality, no severe injuries having been caused to any one, a sentence of transportation for life would not be justified, even having regard to the prevalence of dacoity. Nor are heavy fines appropriate in such cases. The sentences of fine in such cases ought to be set aside and the sentences of transportation should be reduced. A sentence of ten years' rigorous imprisonment would be adequate.

But in the case of receiver of property stolen at a dacoity, he deserves no sympathy, and when one is caught, he deserves an absolutely deterrent sentence (both imprisonment and fine). 4 A.I. Cr. D. 314.

—S. 395—Committing of dacoity in broad daylight—Stealing of fairly large sum—Sentence of six years' rigorous imprisonment upheld.

The accused committed dacoity in broad daylight and stole a fairly large sum of money from the complainant. They were convicted and sentenced to six years' rigorous imprisonment each :

Held, that the case did not justify interference with the discretion of the lower Court in awarding the sentence.

Held further that the fact that the accused returned a part of the stolen property to the complainant the next day would not justify the High Court in reducing the sentences. A.I.R. 1945 All. 100=1945 A.W.R. (H.C.) 18=46 Cr.L.J. 525=219 Ind. Cas. 24.

—S. 395—Accused committing dacoity under influence of liquor—No serious injuries caused.

Where the circumstances indicated that the dacoits might have been under the influence of liquor at the time of the occurrence and possibly the dacoity committed by them was committed under the influence of liquor and no serious injuries were caused to anybody in the commission of the dacoity :

Held, that the sentence of seven years' rigorous imprisonment each was unduly severe.

[Sentence was reduced to two years' rigorous imprisonment each]. A.I.R. 1943 Cal. 32=I.L.R. (1942) 2 Cal. 136=44 Cr.L.J. 386=205 Ind. Cas. 459.

—Ss. 395 and 397—Fact that S. 397 imposes minimum sentence of seven years does not mean that sentence less than seven years should be passed on persons against whom it is impossible to prove that they used deadly weapons or caused grievous hurt. In serious cases maximum sentence or sentence approaching it should be passed under S. 395. A.I.R. 1941 All. 359=1941 A.L.J. 490=1941 A.W.R. 263=43 Cr.L.J. 97=197 Ind. Cas. 19.

—S. 395—Punishment ordinarily should be seven years.

Dacoity is a most serious crime which it is difficult to detect in the sense of bringing home the offence to the culprits and it is an offence which gives rise to a great deal of misery. In ordinary circumstances, a sentence of rigorous imprisonment for a period of seven years is the least sentence which should be passed.

Where five men concerned in a dacoity go into apartments occupied by three defenceless women with intention of committing robbery and they catch hold of one of the women by the throat and wound the others, but do not succeed in their object of committing theft, due to the fact of neighbours immediately coming to the assistance of the women, the offence is not merely a technical dacoity but a serious crime.

—Ss. 395, 396, 300—Dacoity—Gunners having lightmen to spot out persons—Shot fired only on lower part of body—Injury on stomach—Death.

Held, that the intention of the dacoits was not to kill but only to cause some injury as would disable the deceased from offering resistance either by his acts or his shouts and the bodily injury was not sufficient in the ordinary course of nature to cause death and the first two clauses of S. 300, were excluded. The accused were, hence guilty not under S. 396 but only under S. 395.

Held, also, that as the dacoity planned and committed was of the worst possible description, deterrent punishments were called for. A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 580=39 C.W.N. 188=36 Cr.L.J. 1322=158 Ind. Cas. 176.

—S. 395—Sentence—First offender—Transportation for life—If proper.

Where in a case of dacoity against a number of persons none of the accused had ever been tried or convicted of an offence before and they had all more or less means of livelihood and were not certainly confirmed dacoits but acted under an impulse of a transitory spirit of lawlessness.

Held, the sentence of transportation for life and rigorous imprisonment for 10 years were too severe. 9 O.L.J. 500=A.I.R. 1923 Oudh 39.

—S. 395—Addition of whipping—When proper.

I. Applicability of section.

—S. 396—One dacoit having gun—Death caused by shot—Liability of every dacoit for murder.

Every person who has taken part in a dacoity must have known that the gun with which one of them was armed was intended to be used, and every one of them is liable for the murder caused by shot of the gun by reason of the provisions of S. 396, Indian Penal Code. A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 413=10 B.R. 464=45 Cr.L.J. 577=212 Ind. Cas. 186

—S. 396—Rioters leaving scene of occurrence only after murder of a person—Liability to punishment for murder and dacoity.

Section 396 applies even where murder was committed for facilitating the escape of the perpetrators of the crime while retreating. Consequently, where the rioters only left the scene of dacoity after they had practically killed the Sub-Inspector and seriously wounded certain constables, all the members of the unlawful assembly, in virtue of the provisions of Ss. 396 and 302 read with S. 149, rendered themselves legally liable to punishment for the offence of murder and dacoity. A.I.R. 1935 Oudh 190=1935 O.W.N. 145=153 Ind. Cas. 978.

—S. 396—A common intention to carry out an unlawful design at all costs, even at the cost of overcoming resistance or evading capture by taking life, is sufficient. Without mincing matters, the presumption of a common intention to add murder, if necessary to robbery, is not easily avoided, where all, or some to the knowledge of the rest of those engaged in the enterprise, are proved to have carried fire-arms, and fire-arms have been used with fatal effect. A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 89=36 Cr.L.J. 605=13 R. 210=154 Ind. Cas. 881 (F.B.).

—Ss. 396, 149—Liability of members of dacoit band for murder.

Where a person is shot with the object of removing opposition which he raised to the approach of the dacoit band to his house, and the person dies, the murder is committed in committing the dacoity and hence S. 396, Indian Penal Code, is applicable and every member of the dacoit band is guilty of the murder by reason of Ss. 149 and 396, Indian Penal Code. A.I.R. 1934 Rang. 30=35 Cr.L.J. 863=148 Ind. Cas. 1064.

—S. 396—In order to render the other dacoit, liable under S. 396 for the act of one of their associates it is not necessary that murder should have been within the contemplation of all or some of them when the dacoity was planned, nor is it necessary that they should have actually taken part in, or abetted its commission. Indeed they may not have been present at the scene of murder, or may not have known even that murder was going to be or had in fact been, committed. But nonetheless they all will be liable for enhanced punishment, provided a person is in fact murdered by one of the members of the gang "in the commission of the dacoity." A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 977=35 Cr.L.J. 322=35 P.L.R. 51=15 Lah. 84=147 Ind. Cas. 2.

—S. 396—Murder committed in course of dacoity.

Where certain persons who had committed dacoity were pursued in hot haste after the act of dacoity and being brought to bay, one of the dacoits stabbed and murdered a man who was pursuing him :

Held, that the act of murder was not a separate transaction but an offence committed "in committing the dacoity" within the meaning of S. 396. A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 818=33 Cr.L.J. 722=139 Ind. Cas. 213 (F.B.).

—S. 396—The mere fact that the dacoits had dropped the booty before the murder took place did not make any difference to the applicability of S. 396. A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 818=33 Cr.L.J. 722=139 Ind. Cas. 213 (F.B.).

—S. 396—Joint commission of murder—Necessity for proof.

For a charge under S. 396 it is not necessary for the prosecution to prove that the murder was committed jointly by all the accused. 91 Ind. Cas. 233=27 Cr.L.J. 57=A.I.R. 1926 Oudh 245.

—S. 396—Shot fired to keep off rescue party.

A dacoity begins as soon as there is an attempt to commit robbery. A shot fired in order to keep off the rescue party, and allow the theft to be committed, is an act committed in committing dacoity. 89 Ind. Cas. 452=12 O.L.J. 421=2 O.W.N. 550=26 Cr.L.J. 1364=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 723.

—S. 396—Murder committed while retreating for facilitating escape.

Murder committed by dacoits while retreating or carrying away the stolen property in order to facilitate their escape is murder committed in the commission of the dacoity and all the accused are liable to the enhanced punishment. 81 Ind. Cas. 188=25 Cr.L.J. 700=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 142.

—S. 396—Applicability—Murder while carrying off booty.

The fact that the murder was committed in the compound of the house raided, at a time when the dacoits were making good their escape is not sufficient to take the case out of section 396. 76 Ind. Cas. 1039=25 Cr.L.J. 319=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 329.

—S. 396—Murder during retreat with booty.

—Ss. 396 and 460—Dacoity—Murder.

Where death was the result of blows given on the right side which caused the rupture of liver and the fracture of four ribs, and the accused left the house taking a lot of jewellery.

Held, that it had not been made out that the accused intended to kill the deceased or to cause him such injury as he knew to be likely to cause death. The offence committed by him was one falling under S. 460, Indian Penal Code. 1 Lah. L.J. 252.

—Ss. 396, 390—In so "committing".

Murder committed by dacoits while carrying off the stolen property is murder committed "in the commission" of dacoity or robbery as the case may be, and is punishable under S. 396. (1906) 17 M.L.J. 118.

—S. 396—Dacoity with murder—Murder committed while dacoits were escaping.

Where after the commission of a dacoity, in which however the dacoits being interrupted by the villagers, did not get any plunder the dacoits were attempting to escape, and one or more of them, in order to facilitate the escape, attacked and killed one of the pursuing party, it was,

Held, that S. 396 did not apply. But only the person or persons actually taking part in the killing were liable therefor. 1906 A.W.N. 47.

—S. 396—Dacoity—Murder by one dacoit—Liability of all dacoits.

If any one of the dacoits who jointly commit the dacoity commit murder in so committing dacoity, all of them are responsible for that one's act and should be punished as such under S. 396, Indian Penal Code.

It is not necessary for the prosecution to prove that the others expected that murder would be committed. (1904) 6 Bom. L.R. 248.

—S. 396—Elements of offence—Violence not used to obtain carrying away property.

The first essence of an offence under S. 396 is that the dacoity is the joint act of the persons concerned, and the second essence of the offence is that the murder is committed in the course of the commission of the dacoity in question. The essence of the offence of robbery involved in the offence under Ss. 395 and 396 is that the offender for the end of committing theft or carrying away or attempting to carry away properties obtained by theft, voluntarily causes or attempts to cause to any person death or hurt, or wrongful restraint or fear of instant death or of wrongful restraint. Where several persons are found to have attacked and assaulted some other person or persons not for the purpose of carrying out the object of looting property, but quite independently of it, the main element which constitutes the offence under S. 395 read with S. 396, is wanting and there can be no conviction of the accused for that offence. (1901) 6 C.W.N. 72.

2. Evidence and Proof.

—S. 396—The accused who was a Hur was, four days after the dacoity and the murder committed by Hurs, found in possession of the property taken when B was murdered in the dacoity and his property stolen. No explanation was given by the accused as to his possession of the stolen property :

Held, that the accused was guilty of the offence under S. 396. A.I.R. 1944 Sind 113=I.L.R. (1943) Kar. 371=45 Cr.L.J. 704=213 Ind. Cas. 317.

—S. 396—Approver's statement corroborated on three significant points—Corroboration, if enough.

Where, in a case under S. 396 Indian Penal Code, the question was whether the evidence of the approver ought to be accepted, the evidence given by the various witnesses showed quite conclusively that there was corroboration on three significant points, viz. (1) the approver's statement that he was fetched from his own house on the night of the occurrence to take part in this dacoity, (2) the evidence to the effect that the accused had purchased an axe which was subsequently found, and (3) the evidence of a witness who recognized the accused as being one of the party of dacoits at the time when they were retreating after the occurrence :

Held, on the evidence, that there was ample corroboration in several material particulars and that these three points were in themselves more than sufficient to connect the accused with the crime with which he was charged. A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 719=35 Cr.L.J. 1335=151 Ind. Cas. 473.

—S. 396—Corroboration—Approver's story—Sufficiency of.

Where some common things were found in the search and some other things found, claimed by the accused to be their own, were not mentioned in the first report and a gun and a sword were found which were proved to belong to complainant but which were concealed because the complainant did not hold a license.

Held, that there was no sufficient corroboration of approver's story to justify conviction. 76 Ind. Cas. 716=25 Cr.L.J. 252=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 385.

3. Sentence.

—S. 396—Sentence of transportation can be passed.

Section 396 does not mean that all the accused convicted under it must be sentenced to death. The sentence of transportation for life can also be passed. A.I.R. 1944 Sind 113=I.L.R. (1943) Kar. 371=45 Cr.L.J. 704=213 Ind. Cas. 317.

—Ss. 396, 395—It is true that since a person convicted of an offence under S. 396, Indian Penal Code, may be sentenced to death, reasons must be given under S. 367 (5), Criminal Procedure Code, for not passing the death sentence ; but although reasons must be given for not passing the death sentence, that does not mean that the death penalty is the normal sentence. Where persons take part in armed dacoities and are of mature age and there is no special circumstance of mitigation, the normal sentence is one of seven years. This, of course, if the circumstances were aggravated, would be insufficient.

Accused and one other person who were unarmed, entered a house to commit dacoity and the rest of the accused party remained outside the house. While the accused was inside, a person who came from outside was speared by the persons who had remained outside :

Held, that the accused was guilty only of dacoity and the sentence of five years' rigorous imprisonment was proper. A.I.R. 1942 Rang. 49=1941 Rang. L.R. 595=43 Cr.L.J. 525=14 Rang. 269=199 Ind. Cas. 147.

—Ss. 396, 302—Distinction between, in matter of sentence.

As a general rule, a sentence of death should necessarily not follow a conviction under S. 396, Indian Penal Code, where death has been caused and this section differs from S. 302, Indian Penal Code, in that respect. The rule under S. 302 is that a sentence of death should follow unless reasons are shown for giving a lesser sentence. A.I.R. 1938 All. 625=1938 A.W.R. 642=1938 A.L.J. 943=I.L.R. —S. 396—Dacoity with murder—Sentence.

In a case of dacoity with murder the accused must normally be awarded the maximum punishment. A.I.R. 1932 Pat. 603=1 B.R. 85=36 Cr. L. J. 184(2)=152 Ind. Cas. 636.

—S. 396—Sentence of 14 years' transportation passed upon some of the accused in respect of a charge under S. 396 is an illegal sentence and should be set aside. A.I.R. 1934 Oudh 354=35 Cr.L.J. 1066=11 O.W.N. 831=10 Luck. 119=150 Ind. Cas. 509.

—S. 396—Death penalty—Non-imposition of, for offence under—Reasons to be given.

As S. 396 contemplates an offence for which death penalty can be imposed, where such penalty is not inflicted, reasons for not imposing it must be given.

Where a dacoity was started in a normal fashion with no particular savagery and the accused were taking part in it in a normal way and there was nothing on the record to show that a general disregard for human life might be imputed against all of them and one of the dacoits who was watching outside shot at a woman who was running away and killed her :

Held, that under the circumstances, death sentence should not be imposed on the accused. A.I.R. 1933 Rang 61=34 Cr.L.J. 699=144 Ind. Cas. 146.

—S. 396—An important consideration in determining the sentence to be imposed on a dacoit who commits murder under such circumstances is the duty that lies upon the Court of seeing that all proper protection is given to any member of the public who tries to arrest dacoits. Offences under Ss. 395 and 397, Indian Penal Code, are minor offences under S. 238, Criminal Procedure Code, when considered in relation to a offence under S. 396, Indian Penal Code, and an accused who already had the benefit of an acquittal for an offence under S. 396, Indian Penal Code, cannot be tried again and convicted for an offence under S. 395, or S. 397, Indian Penal Code, on the same set of facts. Where the evidence of association, if believed, would merely amount to a circumstantial evidence in support of the charge under S. 396 and no evidence is given in the case which could have been admissible only under the provisions of S. 10, Evidence Act, it is always desirable to limit the number of charges to the absolute minimum and not to complicate the trial by the unnecessary addition of a conspiracy charge. A.I.R. 1946 Cal. 36=I.L.R. (1944) 2 Cal. 287=47 Cr.L.J. 446=222 Ind. Cas. 411.

—S. 396—Jurisdiction—Dacoity in British India—Murder in State.

Where, in the above circumstances, the dacoity was committed in British India and the murder in a Native State, the British Indian Court has jurisdiction to try the offenders under S. 396, Indian Penal Code, without certificate under S. 188, Criminal Procedure Code.

In all these cases jurisdiction to try the offence primarily vests in the Courts of the place where the dacoity was committed, though the offenders may also be liable to be tried for one or other of the offences by the Court within whose jurisdiction the previous hurt or death was caused. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 977=35 Cr.L.J. 322=35 P.L.R. 51=15 L. 84=147 Ind. Cas. 2.

Held, that it would have been proper to charge the accused persons with an offence under S. 396, Indian Penal Code, rather than with the two offences of murder and dacoity. 88 Ind. Cas. 513=6 Lah. 24=26 Cr.L.J. 1153=26 P.L.R. 139=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 337.

—Ss. 397 and 398—Applicability—Using weapon.

Where a dacoity has been committed and not merely attempted and weapons were not merely carried by dacoits but were actually used by them, may be only by being shown or brandished even without verbal threats of using them, S. 397 and not S. 398 applies to the case. 82 Ind. Cas. 45=25 Cr.L.J. 1181=A.I.R. 1925 Nag. 136.

2. Constructive liability for offence.

—S. 397—Scope—Constructive liability for offence—If arises.

It is now well-settled that S. 397, Indian Penal Code, cannot be applied constructively, and relates only to the offender who actually uses the weapon himself. The section does not provide for joint liability as S. 149 does. 25 Pat. 227=A.I.R. 1947 Pat. 157.

—S. 397—Who can be convicted under.

Section 397 does not apply to every member of a gang of dacoits some of whom are armed with deadly weapons. Section is confined to the case of a particular offender or offenders against whom it is proved that he or they used any deadly weapon or caused grievous hurt to any person or attempted to cause death or grievous hurt to any person. A.I.R. 1945 All. 344=1945 A.L.J. 184=I.L.R. (1945) All. 527=1945 A.W.R. (H.C.) 172=1945 O.W.N. (H.C.) 289.

—S. 397—Section 397 applies only to those persons who come within the four corners of the enactment and to no other because this section does not create an offence but merely regulates the measure of punishment. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 561=39 Cr.L.J. 119=172 Ind. Cas. 351.

—Ss. 397, 149—S. 397, whether provides for joint liability.

Section 397 does not provide that if a gun is used at a dacoity by a person or persons unknown, all of the dacoits must be punished with at least seven years' imprisonment. In other words, the section does not provide for joint liability as S. 149 does. A.I.R. 1935 All. 132=36 Cr.L.J. 617=4 A.W.R. 1171=154 Ind. Cas. 1015.

—S. 397—Section 397 can only be applied to persons who actually used deadly weapons at the time of the commission of the dacoity or caused or attempted to cause death or grievous hurt at the time. A.I.R. 1933 Nag. 252=35 Cr.L.J. 594=148 Ind. Cas. 157.

—S. 397—Where, in a case under S. 397, Indian Penal Code, the Judge stated in his charge to the jury that in order to convict the accused persons or person under S. 397 it was necessary to find that the accused used deadly weapon and caused grievous hurt or attempted to cause death or grievous hurt and that these acts were done during commission of robbery or dacoity :

Held, that although the mere omission to tell the jury that a finding that each individual accused used deadly weapon was necessary in order to convict him under S. 397 was not a misdirection or non-direction, yet it would have been safer for the learned Judge to have done so, and as there was some doubt as to whether the jury really directed their minds to the question in point, the accused should be given the benefit of the doubt. A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 49=32 Cr.L.J. 476=130 Ind. Cas. 257.

—Ss. 397, 34—S. 34, whether applies to S. 397.

Section 34 has no application to the provisions of S. 397, and an accused person can be convicted under S. 397 only if the Court finds that that particular person used a deadly weapon. A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 49=32 Cr.L.J. 476=130 Ind. Cas. 267.

—S. 397—Applicability.

Section 397 is wholly different in scope from S. 34 or 149. To render S. 397 applicable it must be established that "the offender" himself committed the act. 108 Ind. Cas. 689=9 A.I.Cr.R. 194=9 L.R.A. (Cr.) 27=29 Cr.L.J. 449.

—S. 397—Section 397 only applies to a person who himself uses a deadly weapon or causes grievous hurt. 28 All. 404 and 23 All. 404n, Foll. 102 Ind. Cas. 216=4 O.W.N. 459=28 Cr.L.J. 520=A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 193.

—S. 397—Offender not using deadly weapon himself.

It is only the offender who actually uses the deadly weapon that can be convicted under S. 397, and the constructive liability of his companions in the crime does not arise under the section : A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 409, Foll. 99 Ind. Cas. 412=28 Cr.L.J. 156=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 791.

—S. 397—Common intention—One alone carrying deadly weapon.

Section 34 does not apply to S. 397, so that if one in a party of dacoits carries a deadly weapon it cannot be said that it would increase the gravity of the offence in the case of his associates who were not similarly armed. A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 104, Foll. 16 P.R. 1901 and 15 P.R. 1901, Not Foll. 99 Ind. Cas. 49=28 Cr.L.J. 17=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 149.

—Ss. 397 and 398—Person actually armed.

Both Ss. 397 and 398 of the Indian Penal Code are what may be styled individualistic. They only apply to the person actually armed, and cannot be utilized as against companions, who themselves were not armed with deadly weapons at the time when the substantive offence in question was committed. 98 Ind. Cas.

181=5 Bur. L.J. 103=27 Cr.L.J. 1285=A.I.R. 1926 Rang. 207.

—S. 397—Several committing dacoity—One causing hurt—Liability of others.

In a case where a number of persons jointly commit robbery or dacoity, S. 397 applies to those only who actually use any deadly weapon but the others cannot be convicted under S. 397: A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 48 Foll. 97 Ind. Cas. 362=27 Cr.L.J. 1098 (Lah.).

—S. 397—Person actually causing hurt.

—Ss. 397 and 398—Actual offenders—Associates.

The terms "offender" and "such offender" in Ss. 397 and 398, denote those persons only who have personally committed the acts therein described, and do not refer to other persons who in combination with such persons have committed the offences of robbery or dacoity: 28 All. 404; 22 M.L.J. 186, Foll. 81 Ind. Cas. 800=51 Cal. 265=25 Cr.L.J. 1024=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 643.

—S. 397—Person actually using the weapon.

The words "such offender" in S. 397 clearly refer to the offender who uses a deadly weapon or causes grievous hurt to any person and not to those who jointly commit robbery or dacoity with him. 16 P.R. 1901 Cr. Dissented from. 72 Ind. Cas. 517=24 Cr.L.J. 405=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 409.

—S. 397—Use of deadly weapons by some—Liability of others.

Where several persons join in committing a dacoity and some of them use deadly weapons all of them are liable to be punished under S. 397 of the Indian Penal Code. The provision of S. 34 of the Indian Penal Code are applicable to such a case. 68 Ind. Cas. 817=5 L.L.J. 224=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 104.

—S. 397—Deadly weapon—Carrying of, by one robber.

There can be no conviction of a robber under S. 397 of the Code simply on the ground that one of his associates carried a deadly weapon. 6 Bur. L.T. 88=14 Cr.L.J. 432=7 L.B.R. 26=20 Ind. Cas. 416.

—S. 397—Dacoity with use of deadly weapons—Applicability of section.

Held, that S. 397 applies only to the actual person or persons who at the time of committing robbery or dacoity may use any deadly weapon, or may cause grievous hurt to any person or may attempt to cause death or grievous hurt to any person. A.W.N. 1899, p. 187, foll. (1906) A.W.N. 61=28 A. 404.

—S. 397—Exclusion of Ss. 34 and 114.

The words of S. 397 are not such as to exclude the operation of Ss. 114 and 34 of the Code. 82 Ind. Cas. 45=25 Cr.L.J. 1181=A.I.R. 1925 Nag. 136.

3. Interpretation.

3 (a) Interpretation—"Deadly weapon".

—S. 397—Deadly weapon—Lathi or Dang.

A lathi or dang is not a deadly weapon within S. 397. 99 Ind. Cas. 49=28 Cr.L.J. 17=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 149.

—S. 397—Lathi, if a deadly weapon.

—S. 397—Sticks.

In a country like this where many murders if not most are committed with sticks, sticks are deadly weapons within the meaning of S. 397, Indian Penal Code. 82 Ind. Cas. 45=25 Cr.L.J. 1181=A.I.R. 1925 Nag. 136.

3 (b) Interpretation—"Uses" any deadly weapon.

—S. 397—Robbers exhibiting weapons but not inflicting blows with it.

If robbers so exhibit dangerous weapons as to intend that by their exhibition of them, the persons robbed or sought to be robbed are likely to be further intimidated and that the commission of robbery might be facilitated, the robbers can be punished under S. 397, Indian Penal Code, although they do not actually inflict blows with these weapons. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 477=39 Cr.L.J. 323=1938 M.W.N. 215=173 Ind. Cas. 450.

—S. 397—Operation of section is not confined to case of actual causing of injury or attempt to cause injury.

Section 397 is intended to cover the case of a person who displays a deadly weapon to frighten his victims or their neighbours or who makes use of any deadly weapon for other similar purposes. Its operation is not confined to cases where the weapon is used actually for causing injury or for attempting to cause an injury, to another. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 522=35 P.L.R. 555=36 Cr.L.J. 253=153 Ind. Cas. 51.

—S. 397—The using of a deadly weapon includes the carrying of it and employing it to overawe. It need not be used to inflict an injury. 1933 M.W.N. 727.

—S. 397—"Uses" meaning of.

The word 'uses' in S. 397 must be given a much wider meaning than cutting, stabbing or shooting; it includes carrying the weapon for the purpose of overawing the victim. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 35=33 P.L.R. 1081=34 Cr.L.J. 45=140 Ind. Cas. 528.

—S. 397—The words "uses any deadly weapon" in S. 397 are wide enough to include a case in which a person levels a revolver in the hands of another person to overawe him. A.I.R. 1932 Oudh 103=7 Luck. 543=9 O.W.N. 152=33 Cr.L.J. 926=139 Ind. Cas. 742.

—S. 397—Accused overawing victim with deadly weapons.

If a robber or dacoit carries with him a gun or sword and by that means overawes his victim, he is using that gun or sword although he may not actually fire the gun or wound or stab the person attacked with the sword, and he can be convicted under S. 397, Indian Penal Code, if robbery or dacoity has been actually committed. A.I.R. 1931 All. 367=32 Cr.L.J. 567=130 Ind. Cas. 640.

—S. 397—"Uses" Meaning.

The word "uses" in S. 397 should be construed in a wide sense so as to include not merely cutting, stabbing, shooting (as the case may be) but also carrying the weapon for the purpose of overawing the person robbed.

Where the complainant overawed by the deadly weapon carried by the accused made no resistance and the accused effected his purpose by a mere blow with the handle.

Held, that the offence committed falls under S. 397 and the Legislature requires his imprisonment for not less than seven years. 92 Ind. Cas. 750=20 S.L.R. 46=27 Cr.L.J. 334=A.I.R. 1926 Sind 150.

—S. 397—"Uses a deadly weapon", meaning of.

The words 'uses a deadly weapon' in S. 397, include the carrying of a weapon for overawing the person robbed. 5 Bur. L.T. 9=6 L.B.R. 41=13 Cr.L.J. 267=14 Ind. Cas. 651.

4. Punishment.

—S. 397—Sentence—Period of imprisonment.

Where a convict under S. 397, Indian Penal Code has been sentenced to four years' rigorous imprisonment when the minimum sentence provided for by S. 397 is seven years' rigorous imprisonment, the sentence must be enhanced from four years to seven years' rigorous imprisonment. 106 Ind. Cas. 451=29 Cr.L.J. 35=9 P.L.T. 572=9 A.I. Cr. R. 279.

—S. 397—Punishment.

Section 397 provides minimum punishment for the substantive offences created by Ss. 392 and 395. As there is no substantive offence created by S. 397 there can be no punishment under S. 397 only. The highest punishment under S. 397 can be inflicted only on the offender who actually uses a deadly weapon or causes or attempts to cause death or grievous hurt. S. 34 cannot be applied to other offenders to make them liable to enhanced punishment. 62 Ind. Cas. 865=13 Bur. L.T. 158=22 Cr.L.J. 593=10 L.B.R. 269.

5. Section does not create offence.

—S. 397—Scope—No Substantive offence—Effect.

Section 397 of the Indian Penal Code does not contain any substantive offence, but merely prescribes the minimum punishment which can be passed if robbery or dacoity is attended with certain circumstances mentioned therein. Therefore, a conviction merely under S. 397 has no meaning. The conviction in the case of a dacoity should be under S. 395 read with S. 397 of the Indian Penal Code. 85 Ind. Cas. 714=47 All. 59=6 L.R.A. Cr. 10=26 Cr.L.J. 570=A.I.R. 1925 All. 305.

—S. 397—Limiting Punishment.

Neither S. 397 nor S. 398 creates an offence. They merely limit the minimum of punishment which may be awarded if certain facts are proved. 81 Ind. Cas. 800=51 Cal. 265=25 Cr.L.J. 1024=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 643.

—S. 397—Section 397 does not constitute a separate offence. When five or more persons conjointly commit robbery they are said to have committed dacoity, an offence which is punishable under section 395. Where a confession was made and articles were found which were identified as taken in dacoity.

Held, there was sufficient corroboration of approver's story. 76 Ind. Cas. 819=25 Cr.L.J. 259=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 389.

6. Miscellaneous.

—S. 397 (as amended by Burma Act IV of 1940)—Offences committed before 16th March 1940—Amending Act IV of 1940, does not apply—Offence before 16th March 1940, but conviction after that date.

The provisions of Burma Act, IV of 1940, have no application to offences which were committed before 16th March 1940. Consequently, the provisions of S. 397, Indian Penal Code, as they existed prior to the amendment, must be applied in a case where the accused committed the offence before 16th March, 1940, but was convicted after that date, for it is by reason of the commission of the offence that the offender incurs the punishment and not by reason of his conviction by a Criminal Court. The trial, ending in a conviction, is merely the means whereby a Court of criminal justice ascertains that the accused is the person who has incurred the punishment by having committed the offence. This is made clear by S. 5, General Clauses Act. A.I.R. 1941 Rang. 149=1941 Rang. L.R. 58=42 Cr.L.J. 615=194 Ind. Cas. 720.

—S. 397—The Special Assistant Agent of Chica-cole empowered under S. 30, Criminal Procedure Code, is not competent to try the offence under S. 397, Indian Penal Code. 1934 M.W.N. 1286.

—S. 397—Charge and conviction—Charge for dacoity—Conviction for grievous hurt—Legality.

Dacoity is an offence against property, whereas Ss. 325, is an offence affecting human body. It is therefore not open to the Court to charge the accused under Ss. 392-397, and to convict them of an offence under S. 325. 110 Ind. Cas. 795=5 O.W.N. 601=11 A.I.Cr.R. 41=29 Cr.L.J. 763=A.I.R. 1928 Oudh 373.

—Ss. 397, 511—Use of arms in endeavouring to effect escape.

Where many persons broke into a house, and some of them used arms in trying to effect their escape, they could not be convicted under S. 397 read with S. 511. 23 A. 78=1900 A.W.N. 202.

—S. 398—Who can be convicted under.

Obiter.—It is only the robbers who are actually armed with deadly weapons who can be charged and convicted under S. 398. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 489=I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 592=52 L.W. 175=1941 M.W.N. 91=(1941) I M.L.J. 236=42 Cr.L.J. 821=196 Ind. Cas. 119.

—Ss. 398, 392 and 397—Section 398 is applicable only to a case of an attempt to commit robbery and has no application to a case in which the robbery has actually been committed. A.I.R. 1932 Oudh 103=7 Luck. 543=9 O.W.N. 152=33 Cr.L.J. 926=139 Ind. Cas. 742.

—S. 398—Construction.

Section 34 has no application in the construction of S. 398. 107 Ind. Cas. 705=29 Cr.L.J. 383=10 A.I.Cr.R. 11=30 Bom. L.R. 88=52 Bom. 168=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 52.

—S. 398—Interpretation—'Offender' Meaning.

The word "offender" appearing in the section refers only to the person who is proved to have been armed with any deadly weapon and not to any other

—S. 398—Scope—No substantive offence—Charge under S. 114 with S. 398—Legality.

Section 398 does not relate to a substantive offence. It only regulates the measure of punishment when certain facts are found to exist in the commission of the substantive offence which is robbery, and a charge under S. 114 read with S. 398 is not sustainable. A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 643, Foll. 107 Ind. Cas. 705=52 Bom. 168=30 Bom. L.R. 88=29 Cr.L.J. 383=10 A.I.Cr.R. 11=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 52.

—S. 398—Abetment.

A man cannot be convicted of abetting an offence under S. 398, Indian Penal Code. 98 Ind. Cas. 181=5 Bur. L.J. 103=27 Cr.L.J. 1285=A.I.R. 1926 Rang. 207.

—S. 398—No substantive offence.

Section 398, does not create a substantive offence. It merely provides that if any member of gang of dacoits is armed with lethal weapon during the commission of a dacoity such member is to suffer a minimum punishment of 7 years. A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 66.

—S. 398—Sentence—Adequacy.

A sentence of five years in a dacoity case where a gun was fired to keep villagers away from coming to the help of the complainants is very inadequate. 27 O.C. 29=11 O.L.J. 210=25 Cr.L.J. 785=A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 314.

—S. 399—Preparation for dacoity—What constitutes.

Under S. 399, Indian Penal Code, it is an offence to make any preparation for committing dacoity. No hard and fast rule can be laid down that any particular act or any particular kind of steps are necessary to constitute preparation. The essential thing is that the prosecution must show that there were persons who had conceived the design of committing dacoity. Once the existence of such conspiracy has been established then any steps taken with the intention and for the purpose of forwarding that design may justify the Court in holding that there has been preparation within the meaning of the section. 1943 Pat. 82, applied. 3 A.I.Cr.D. 365=A.I.R. 1949 E.P. 340=51 Cr.L.J. 167=51 P.L.R. 116.

—Ss. 399, 402—"Preparation" and "attempt" distinguished—Assembling and preparation for dacoity are different.

It is ordinarily no offence to make preparation for committing a crime until the stage of preparation has passed and that of attempt is reached. But it is an offence under S. 399, Indian Penal Code, to "make any preparation for committing dacoity." No hard and fast rule can be laid down that any particular act or any particular kind of steps towards the commission of an offence are necessary to constitute "preparation." The essential thing is that the prosecution must show that there were persons who had conceived the design of committing dacoity. Once the existence of such a conspiracy has been established, then any step taken with the intention and for the purpose of forwarding that design may justify the Court in holding that there has been preparation within the meaning of the section.

Per Varma J.—Preparation consists in devising or arranging means necessary for the commission of an offence; an attempt is the direct movement towards the commission after preparations are made.

Where the members of the assembly about 13 in number covered a distance of 40 miles and some of them were inquiring about substantial man :

Held, that they passed the stage of assembly and that they were making preparations to commit dacoity. A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 82=9 B.R. 185=44 Cr.L.J. 337=21 Pat. 667=205 Ind. Cas. 69.

—S. 399—Band of armed men with unlicensed fire-arms held, made preparation to commit dacoity.

Where a band of armed men, some of them with unlicensed fire-arms, who were moving about many miles from their villages attempting to conceal their presence, threatened those who enquired who they were, resisted pursuit and fired at those who pursued them, the only reasonable inference that can be drawn is that the men were dacoits and had made preparation to commit dacoity. A.I.R. 1943 Sind 212=I.L.R. (1943) Kar. 132=45 Cr.L.J. 130=209 Ind. Cas. 282.

—S. 399—Accused found with gun, lathis, etc. in a room—Prosecution proving offence under S. 399—Accused offering no explanation of incriminating circumstances :

Held, prosecution evidence must be accepted. A.I.R. 1935 Oudh 471=36 Cr.L.J. 1003=1935 O.W.N. 770=156 Ind. Cas. 815.

—S. 399—Group of persons sitting round fire—Some of them having fire-arms—No evidence of intention to commit dacoity—On seeing headman, persons running away :

Held, conviction under S. 399 could not be sustained A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 294=36 Cr.L.J. 1384 (2)=158 Ind. Cas. 500.

—S. 399—Preparation, what is.

The mere "assemblage" to commit dacoity does not amount to "preparation" within the meaning of S. 399, Indian Penal Code; but where the members of the gang take into their possession instruments of house-breaking and arms for the purpose of offence and defence and actually proceed to a place near the scene of the contemplated dacoity, they are guilty of an offence under S. 399; 6 P.R. 1916 Cr., Foll. 109 Ind. Cas. 593=9 Lah. 550=29 Cr.L.J. 577=10 A.I.Cr.R. 293=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 193.

—S. 399—Persons hiding near a village armed with gun—Conviction for preparation for committing dacoity—If proper.

Where certain persons were found attempting to conceal their identity and were also found armed with a gun which they used while pursued by the villagers.

—S. 399—Essentials.

To establish an offence under S. 399, Indian Penal Code, it is not necessary that the persons shown to be making the preparation should be five or more in number. But it is necessary to prove that the raid for which they were making preparation was to be committed by five or more persons. Otherwise it would not be dacoity but merely robbery and mere preparation for committing robbery, unless it ends in an actual attempt is not punishable by law. 71 Ind. Cas. 360=24 Cr.L.J. 136.

—S. 399—Preparation for committing dacoity.

To constitute preparation for committing dacoity, the commission of overt acts is not necessary. It is sufficient if some act to get ready for dacoity is done. A mere assemblage to commit dacoity is not such preparation but possession of instruments for house breaking and of arms for offence and defence, and actual visit to the scene of contemplated dacoity, show such preparation. The formation and such preparation by each member of the gang need not be proved. 6 P.R. 1916 Cr.=17 Cr.L.J. 280=37 P.W.R. 1916, Cr.=34 Ind. Cas. 1000.

—Ss. 399 and 402—Making preparations—Mere proposals.

Mere discussing the possibilities of committing dacoity and various suggestions to loot several places without evidence that accused assembled for committing a dacoity or for preparations, do not make the persons liable under S. 399 or S. 402. 17 Cr.L.J. 97=32 Ind. Cas. 833 (Cal.).

—Ss. 399 and 148—Onus on prosecution to prove intent—Common object—Proof of.

The onus is on prosecution under S. 399 to show that there was an intent to commit dacoity or that there was any step towards committing it. If no proof was forthcoming that the common object was dacoity or any force or violence was used up to the time when they were separated no charge under S. 148 is possible. 17 Bom. L.R. 906=16 Cr.L.J. 745=31 Ind. Cas. 345.

—Ss. 399 and 402—Charges under Ss. 399 and 402—Treated not alternately but additionally—Acquittal under former section—Whether operates as acquittal under latter—Repugnancy—High Court's power to alter—Distinction between the two sections.

Where a charge was of two separate offences laid in an alternative form under Ss. 399 and 402, and was treated not alternatively but as additional, acquittal under the former section does not involve an acquittal under the latter and conviction thereunder is not vitiated by repugnancy, but even if it were, the High Court can alter the finding of acquittal into one of conviction maintaining the sentence. S. 402, Indian Penal Code, applies to mere assembling without further preparation; S. 399 applies to a case where such preparation is proved in addition. But a person may not be guilty of dacoity though guilty of preparation and not guilty of preparation yet guilty of an assembly. 41 Cal 350=18 C.W.N. 498=15 Cr.L.J. 385=23 Ind. Cas. 985.

1. Conviction and Sentence.

—S. 400—No actual offence under S. 396—Legality of conviction—Conviction under S. 396 if a bar to conviction under this section.

A conviction can be had under S. 400 even where no actual commission of a dacoity is proved. The element of the offence is association with the knowledge that it is formed for the purpose of committing dacoities habitually. Hence where sentence is already passed for the offence of committing dacoity there is no bar to the passing of a sentence under S. 400. 89 Ind. Cas. 836=27 O.C. 385=26 Cr.L.J. 1412=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 374.

2. Evidence and Proof.

(See also NOTE 1 UNDER S. 401.)

2(a) Evidence and Proof—(General)

—S. 400—Evidence—Actual participation in dacoity.

It is not necessary for a conviction under S. 400 that the person convicted must have taken part in any dacoity. Evidence showing the actual participation by an accused in any given dacoity is evidence both of his association with the gang and his object in such association. Evidence which though not believed for the purpose of conviction under S. 395, Indian Penal Code may yet be relied upon for the purpose of a conviction under S. 400. A conviction under S. 400 cannot be considered bad in law merely because the evidence on the record would also have justified a conviction of a specific offence under S. 395. 7 O.W.N. 862=1930 Cr.C. 1079=A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 455.

—S. 400—Evidence as to commission of offence and proceedings under S. 110, Criminal Procedure Code—Admissibility.

In a trial for offence punishable under S. 400, Indian Penal Code, namely, of belonging to a gang of dacoits the evidence of commission of an offence and that the accused were bound down under S. 110 of the Criminal Procedure Code is admissible. 87 Ind. Cas. 925=52 Cal. 595=26 Cr.L.J. 1037=42 C.L.J. 501=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 872.

—S. 400—Existence of gang—Crimes committed.

The existence of a gang associated for the purpose of habitually committing dacoity is the first element that the prosecution has to prove in the charge under S. 400. In such a case evidence that members of the same gang committed several burglaries, i.e. crimes other than dacoity would be relevant to the charge (32 Mad. 179, not Foll.) 83 Ind. Cas. 683=11 O.L.J. 632=26 Cr.L.J. 123=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 144.

—S. 400—Proof of existence of gang—Crimes committed.

When examining the general question of the existence of a gang the Court need not look for the complicity of every one of the accused in every one of the dacoities proved to have been committed. It is sufficient to find that out of the accused one or more had taken part in the dacoities so that the presumption is strong that a gang had committed all these dacoities. 89 Ind. Cas. 836=27 O.C. 385=26 Cr.L.J. 1412=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 374.

—S. 400—General criminality if can be attributed to individuals—Gist of offence under section—Acquittal of accused—Adverse inference from—Evidence of approver.

The general criminality of a tribe or caste cannot be imputed to individual members of gangs in a prosecution under S. 400 of the Code.

The mere fact that the persons who were accused under S. 400 were acquitted cannot be relied upon by the prosecution that they were habitual dacoits.

Association is the gist of the offence under S. 400 and the prosecution must prove that the accused belonged to a gang who habitually commit dacoity.

The evidence of the approver in a case under S. 400 must be corroborated to such an extent as to connect the accused with the offence that he belonged to an association or gang bent upon habitually committing dacoity. 16 C.W.N. 69=13 Cr.L.J. 39=13 Ind. Cas. 279.

—S. 400—Gang—Liability of members.

If a gang however small is found to have been formed for the purpose of habitually committing dacoity, all persons who thereafter joined that gang in one or more cases, come within the operation of S. 400.

In cases under S. 400 against a gang of desperate men prepared to do anything in carrying out their crimes, the heaviest possible sentences should be passed. In awarding sentences the Court should not consider whether particular offenders were concerned in only one or more of the dacoities committed by the gang but whether it was clearly established that they did in fact join a recognised gang, is an important point. 68 P.L.R. 1911=45 P.W.R. 1911 Cr.=12 Cr.L.J. 260=10 Ind. Cas. 833.

—S. 400—Essentials—Evidence establishing conviction under S. 395.

It is not necessary for a conviction under S. 400, Indian Penal Code, that the person convicted must have taken part in any one dacoity. A person cannot be said to belong to a gang of dacoits within the meaning of S. 400 about whom the Court is satisfied that his connection with the gang was limited. A conviction under S. 400 cannot be considered bad in law merely because the evidence on the record would also have justified conviction for a specific offence under S. 395, Indian Penal Code. 13 O.C. 235=11 Cr.L.J. 551=7 Ind. Cas. 1006.

—S. 400 (1)—Evidence of habitually committing dacoity.

To sustain a conviction under S. 400 (1) it must be proved that there was an association and that the association was for the purpose of habitually committing dacoity and the habit must be proved by aggregate facts. 18 P.L.R. 1910=11 Cr.L.J. 364=6 Ind. Cas. 492.

—S. 400—Scope of—Proof required.

In a case under S. 400, the prosecution is bound to prove that the accused belonged to a gang which was consciously associated for the specific purpose of habitually committing dacoity. Such direct proof will, however, be rarely forthcoming. In the absence of direct evidence, the associating and the purpose thereof may be established by proof of facts from which they may be reasonably inferred. Evidence to show that the accused had committed crimes other than dacoities is really evidence of bad character and is excluded by S. 54 of the Evidence Act. If there be sufficient evidence that the accused or groups of them had been concerned in a large number of dacoities in a comparatively short space of time, it might not improperly be inferred from that evidence alone that they were members of a gang associated for the purpose of habitually committing dacoity. Per Pinhey, J.—S. 400 appears to postulate the existence of a definite gang operating for a definite period and the object of the section would seem to provide for the punishment of those proved to be members of such a gang and against whom evidence is not forthcoming to convict them of specific offences of dacoity. (1908) 32 M. 179=5 M.L.T. 100=9 Cr.L.J. 567=2 Ind. Cas. 307.

2 (b) Evidence and Proof—Previous conviction.

—S. 400—Previous conviction—Value of.

Where the evidence of previous conviction or the evidence that a man has been bound over under the preventive sections can be considered only as evidence of character it must be excluded, but where such evidence is admissible aliunde, it should not be excluded. Where the accused is charged under S. 400, Indian Penal Code, such evidence is admissible, not as evidence of character but as evidence to prove habit and association. 7 O.W.N. 862=128 Ind. Cas. 739=A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 455.

—Ss. 400 and 401—Proof—Previous conviction.

In cases where other evidence has established association for the purpose of habitually committing theft, evidence of previous convictions whether for offences against property or for bad livelihood is admissible to prove not the bad character but habit and for such purpose evidence of convictions for bad livelihood is more valuable. 38 Cal. 408=15 C.W.N. 461=12 Cr.L.J. 97=9 Ind. Cas. 555.

—S. 400—Belonging to a gang of dacoits—Proof—Previous conviction—Relevancy.

Previous convictions of the accused for dacoity along with other dacoits is relevant against him under Explanation 2 of S. 14 of the Evidence Act. But the propriety of the accused's conviction must be judged exclusively by reference to the evidence adduced by the prosecution at the trial. The confessions made by his accomplices at previous trials for dacoity cannot be taken into consideration against the accused under S. 30 of the Evidence Act. Such confessions do not stand on a better footing than the sworn testimony of an accomplice and cannot be treated as good evidence against the accused without being corroborated aliunde by independent evidence in material particulars and especially in respect of the identity of the accused. 11 Cr.L.J. 364=18 P.L.R. 1910=6 Ind. Cas. 492.

3. Interpretation—"Belong."

—S. 400—"Belong" Meaning.

The term "belong" in S. 400, implies something more than the idea of casual association: it involves the notion of continuity and indicates a more or less intimate connexion with a body of persons extending over a period of time sufficiently long to warrant the inference that the person affected has identified himself with a band, the common purpose of which is the habitual commission of dacoity. A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 455=7 O.W.N. 862=128 Ind. Cas. 739.

—S. 400—Interpretation—"Belong"—Meaning.

The word "belong" in S. 400 implies something more than a casual association. It involves the idea of continuity rather than of permanency and also of a connexion extending long enough to warrant the inference that the accused has identified himself with the gang which has for its object the habitual commission of dacoity. The essence of the section is the agreement habitually to commit dacoity not the actual commission or attempted commission of dacoities. The existence of such an agreement and the participation of any person in that agreement may be inferred from circumstances. 110 Ind. Cas. 449=47 C.L.J. 471=10 A.I.Cr.R. 371=29 Cr.L.J. 705=A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 309.

—S. 400—"Belong"—Meaning.

The term 'belong' implies something more than the idea of casual association; it involves the notion of continuity and indicates a more or less intimate connection with a body of persons extending over a period of time sufficiently long to warrant the inference that the person affected has identified himself with the band, the common purpose of which is the habitual commission of dacoity. 63 Ind. Cas. 455=19 A.L.J. 725=22 Cr.L.J. 663=A.I.R. 1921 All. 32.

—S. 400—Gang of dacoits, belonging to.

The term 'belong' in S. 400 means something more than casual association; it involves the idea of continuity and shows a more or less intimate connection with a body of persons for a period of time sufficiently long to warrant the inference that the person has identified himself with a band whose common purpose is the habitual commission of dacoity. 13 O.C. 213=11 Cr.L.J. 554=7 Ind. #### 1 (a). Evidence and Proof—(General).

—S. 401—Evidence of association before period of charge—Admissibility to corroborate other evidence of association during that period.

Where several persons are being tried under S. 401 of being members of a large gang, the evidence that a big gang was in existence and was committing acts of depredation on the community all over India, Burma and Ceylon, and that some of the accused who were residents of a particular village were found associated together in crime characteristic of the gang in parts so distant as Calcutta, Midnapore, Karachi, various parts of Ceylon and Rangoon is sufficient to justify a Judge even of very little proof on actual association of particular accused in leaving it to the jury to decide whether the accused was a member of the gang.

In such a case, evidence of association before the period of charge is admissible to corroborate the evidence of association during that period. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 858=1938 M.W.N. 595=48 L.W. 639=40 Cr.L.J. 355=180 Ind. Cas. 431.

In the absence of direct evidence, the purpose of association may be established by proof of acts from which this may be reasonably inferred. The prevalence of thefts in a certain area and the rise and fall coinciding with action taken against members of the supposed gang are as much relevant circumstances in a trial under S. 401 as are the convictions obtained against certain members. Of course, the possibility has to be kept in mind that certain of these crimes may have been committed by independent persons. A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 17=38 Cr.L.J. 251=I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 315=166 Ind. Cas. 587 (F.B.).

—S. 401—In a trial under S. 401, Indian Penal Code in considering whether there was an association of gang, evidence that certain of the persons were seen near the scene of house breakings either before or after the event is a relevant fact. A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 17=38 Cr.L.J. 251=I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 315=166 Ind. Cas. 587 (F.B.).

—S. 401—Evidence—Existence of gang of cattle lifters—Names of suspects in reports to Police Officers—Admissibility.

Although there is no objection to police officers being called to prove the existence of a gang of cattle lifters and the frequency of thefts in the area where that gang operated, the reports made to them from time to time or brought to their notice showing the names of particular suspects are inadmissible as being hearsay and should be excluded. 24 S.L.R. 252=126 Ind. Cas. 468=A.I.R. 1930 Sind 211.

—S. 401—Essentials—Proof of taking part in particular theft or robbery—If necessary.

It is not necessary for a conviction under S. 401 that the person convicted must have taken part in any one theft or robbery. Evidence showing the actual participation by an accused in any given theft or robbery is evidence both of his association with the gang and of his object in such association. Evidence which though not believed for the purpose of a conviction under S. 379 or S. 392 may yet be relied upon for the purpose of conviction under S. 401. 118 Ind. Cas. 423=6 O.W.N. 441=30 Cr.L.J. 922=1929 Cr.C. 143=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 321.

—S. 401—Enquiry into theft by panchayat and calling a person suspect, or accepting money for search of stolen property—Sufficiency.

The evidence that a panchayat enquired into a theft and called a person before it as a suspect, or that a person accepted money and agreed to make a search for stolen property and to restore it to the owner does not as against that person prove any of the ingredients of the offence punishable under S. 401. 94 Ind. Cas. 264=27 P.L.R. 276=27 Cr.L.J. 600=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 439.

—S. 401—Existence of gang not proved—Stolen property traced through accused's information—Legality of conviction.

The evidence against accused was that several thefts and several articles which had been stolen from different houses were discovered on the information supplied by him, that he was suspected in one of those theft cases and that he made promises to restore certain stolen cattle.

Held, that such evidence did not prove that he was a member of a gang of habitual thieves the very existence of which had not been proved. 87 Ind. Cas. 848=26 Cr.L.J. 1024=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 604.

—S. 401—Proof of each member being a habitual thief—If necessary.

It is not necessary to prove that each individual member of a gang has habitually committed theft or any particular act of theft. Once it is proved that a gang was formed for the purpose of habitually committing theft, all persons who thereafter join the gang in committing one or more thefts come within S. 401 of the Indian Penal Code. 77 Ind. Cas. 984=25 Cr.L.J. 520=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 666.

—S. 401—Facts to be proved.

To sustain a conviction on a charge under Section 401, Indian Penal Code, it is necessary to prove—

- (1) that there existed a gang of persons ;
- (2) that those persons were associated for the purpose of committing theft or robbery ;
- (3) that theft or robbery was to be committed habitually ;
- (4) that the accused was a member of such gang. In the absence of direct evidence the associating and the purpose of the association may be established by proof of acts from which these may be reasonably inferred. 73 Ind. Cas. 815=24 Cr.L.J. 703=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 327.

—S. 401—Essentials of—Association for habitually committing theft—Evidence.

The gist of offence under S. 401 is association for the purpose of habitually committing theft or robbery. Habit is to be proved by the aggregate of acts. An order under S. 110 of the Criminal Procedure Code against the accused and detention in jail for failure to furnish security thereunder, do not bar their subsequent trial under S. 401, Indian Penal Code. Evidence of previous convictions of theft and of being bound down under S. 110, Criminal Procedure Code, is not admissible on a subsequent trial of the accused under S. 401, Indian Penal Code, to prove either the commission of such offence or bad character. Evidence of the commission of several thefts of meeting together at different places before and after the commission of thefts and burglaries in bazaars, boats and houses of being seen on various occasions carrying away stolen articles are found in company under circumstances suggesting complicity in thefts and burglaries, and evidence of systematic thefts of cattle by individual accused are sufficient to support a conviction under S. 401. 47 Cal. 154=31 C.L.J. 192=21 Cr.L.J. 386=55 Ind. Cas. 994.

—S. 401—Proof of the offence—Offence how established.

The following proof is necessary for an offence under S. 401: (1) A gang of persons existed. (2) The persons joined together to commit theft or robbery. (3) Robbery or theft was to be habitually committed. (4) The accused belongs to such a gang.

When a gang is once established all persons joining the gang in some theft, generally become members of the gang, but it is not without exception. A person joining the gang knowing its purpose is its member but a person taking part in a theft with some members of the gang is not necessarily its member.

No unfavourable presumption should be drawn against persons associating with the members of a gang at fairs, weddings, and liquor shops. 110 P.L.R. 1916=47 P.W.R. 1916 Cr.=17 Cr.L.J. 443=35 Ind. Cas. 1003.

—S. 401—Habitual gang of thieves—Facts necessary to sustain conviction—‘Agoo’—Position of.

The ‘Agoo’, i.e., the receiver of stolen property in the interests of thieves is a principal member of the gang and is within S. 401 of the Code. To sustain a conviction under S. 401 it is necessary to prove that those persons were associated for the purpose of committing theft, and robbery; that theft or robbery was to be habitually committed, and that the accused was a member of that gang. When once a gang is proved however small it may be, all persons joining it in one or more cases of theft come within S. 401. 13 P.R. 1914 Cr.=16 Cr.L.J. 33=223 P.L.R. 1915=26 Ind. Cas. 625.

—S. 401—Association for the purpose of habitual theft.

For a conviction under S. 401, proof of association and that the association was for purposes of habitual theft, are necessary. Where the accused, in company with three others, whose whereabouts were unknown, came to a village and they were regarded with suspicion, and on being challenged ran away, but in the pursuit, the accused was caught, and it was not shown who the others were, or whether they had before been seen together in the neighbourhood, or at some other place under suspicious circumstances, that any one of them had ever been suspected or found guilty of theft or robbery.

Held, that the conviction under S. 401 is bad and that the fact that the accused had at one time been bound over under S. 110 of the Criminal Procedure Code, was immaterial. 36 P.W.R. 1912 Cr.=258 P.L.R. 1912=13 Cr.L.J. 799=17 Ind. Cas. 543.

—S. 401—Habitual offenders.

For a conviction under this section, it must be clearly established that the members composing of a gang have combined or come together for the purpose of habitually committing theft or robbery. The fact that several members of a gang of a wandering tribe were dishonest and did commit thefts and other crimes is not in itself sufficient to show that they combined for habitually committing thefts. The mere stay of wives and children with the adult members does not enable a Court to infer that they were associates for the thefts. 9 A.L.J. 565=12 Cr.L.J. 204=10 Ind. Cas. 23.

1. (b) Evidence and Proof—Previous conviction.

—S. 401—Previous convictions of accused not properly proved—Prosecution case weakened—Retrial, if should be ordered and when not proper.

Where, in a trial of several accused under S. 401, Indian Penal Code, the alleged previous convictions of some of them are not properly proved which results in materially weakening of the prosecution case, the ordinary and proper procedure would be to order a retrial of these accused; but where this would necessitate another very elaborate trial at considerable cost and trouble to both the Crown and to the accused and the accused have already served nine months in jail, the interests of justice do not demand that a retrial of these accused should be ordered. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 858=48 L.W. 639=1938 M.W.N. 595=40 Cr.L.J. 355=180 Ind. Cas. 431.

—S. 401—Evidence of previous conviction of dacoity and of orders under S. 110, Criminal Procedure Code, is admissible for the purpose of proving habit and association in a subsequent trial under S. 401, Indian Penal Code. Thus the fact that certain of the accused were previous convicts and bound over is not without significance. A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 17=38 Cr. L. J. 251=I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 315=166 Ind. Cas. 587 (F.B.)

—S. 401—Previous proceedings under Sec. 110, Criminal Procedure Code—Admissibility.

Previous convictions and proceedings under S. 110, Criminal Procedure Code, are admissible in a case under S. 401 for the purpose of proving habit though not of general bad character and are not excluded by S. 54, Evidence Act. 24 S.L.R. 252=126 Ind. Cas. 468=A.I.R. 1930 Sind. 211.

—S. 401—Belonging to gang of thieves—Previous convictions and orders under S. 110 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

In a trial under S. 401, Indian Penal Code, evidence may be adduced and taken into consideration of previous convictions of some of the accused for offences of theft, house-breaking and receiving or concealing stolen property both prior and subsequent to the year when the nucleus of the gang was found to have been first formed. Evidence of orders passed from time to time against some of the accused under S. 110, Criminal Procedure Code, demanding from them security for good behaviour is also admissible. 3 P.R. 1915 Cr.=191 P.L.R. 1915=16 Cr.L.J. 300 = 28 Ind. Cas. 524.

—S. 401—Gang—Habitual theft—Previous convictions.

Under S. 401, Indian Penal Code, in determining whether a party of accused persons, constitutes a gang of persons associated for the purpose of habitual theft, evidence that each individual of the party is a convicted thief, is relevant. The evidence can be tendered whether before or after the prosecution have established the association. 14 Bom. L.R. 373=13 Cr. L.J. 539=15 Ind. Cas. 811.

2. Interpretation—"Belong."

(See also NOTE 3 UNDER S. 400)

—S. 401—Belonging to gang—Meaning—Receiver of stolen property if within the expression.

It cannot be laid down as a general proposition that a person who receives stolen property from a gang of the character prescribed in S. 401 is a member of the gang. The word "belong" used in S. 401 is no doubt very comprehensive, but the expression "to belong to a gang of persons, etc." conveys the same idea as "to be one of a gang of persons, etc." The object of the section obviously is to punish the persons who organize thieving expeditions and form a party to commit theft. A person who receives stolen property from them cannot be said to belong to their gang. 99 Ind. Cas. 851=28 P.L.R. 19=28 Cr.L.J. 179=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 524.

3. Joint trial.

—S. 401—Cases, if can be combined.

Where two Sessions cases are started against persons accused under S. 401 of being members of a gang, it is not only permissible to combine the two trials but when all the accused are members of one gang, this procedure is also convenient and proper. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 858=1938 M.W.N. 595=48 L.W. 639=40 Cr.L.J. 355=180 Ind. Cas. 431.

—Ss. 401 and 413—Receiving stolen property from gang—Whether sufficient for conviction under S. 401—Joint trial of different persons under Ss. 401 and 413.

The fact that the accused had received stolen property from a gang of the character described in S. 401, Indian Penal Code, on a number of occasions is not in itself sufficient for his conviction under S. 401.

The offence of being a member of a gang of the kind described in S. 401 and the offence of receiving stolen property from members of the gang on different occasions cannot be said to be committed in the same transaction and a joint trial of different sets of persons under Ss. 401 and 413, Indian Penal Code is illegal. A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 486=33 Cr.L.J. 584=33 P.L.R. 736=138 Ind. Cas. 424.

4. Sentence.

—Ss. 401 and 457—Separate sentences under—Legality of.

Though technically the offence of being member of a gang associated for the purpose of committing burglaries is different from that of actually taking part in them, yet where the main evidence to establish membership consists of the fact that the accused took part or received some of the proceeds of the burglaries, it is not equitable to give separate sentences under Ss. 401 and 457, Indian Penal Code. A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 298=33 Cr.L.J. 251=33 P.L.R. 602=136 Ind. Cas. 27.

—S. 401—Sentence—Points to be considered.

In determining to what extent in any particular case the punishment should approach to or recede from the maximum limit prescribed by the section the trying Magistrate has to take into account several factors, inter alia the antecedents of the prisoner whether such antecedents speak well or ill of him, such as his character and state of life of whether good or bad including the previous convictions, if any. So while assessing sentence under S. 401 the Magistrate can take into consideration previous convictions and orders under S. 110, Indian Penal Code, even when S. 75, Indian Penal Code, does not apply. 24 S.L.R. 252=126 Ind. Cas. 468=A.I.R. 1930 Sind 211.

5. Miscellaneous.

—S. 401 and Criminal Procedure Code, S. 110—Difference between—One punitive while other preventive.

The difference between S. 401 of the Indian Penal Code and S. 110 of Criminal Procedure Code, is that while under the former it is necessary to prove that several persons have associated together forming a gang for the purpose of habitually committing theft or robbery and their activities have in fact materialized into active robberies and thefts to attempts at such offences, the latter being only a preventive section evidence of strong suspicion and evil repute that such person or persons engage in criminal activities is enough to render them liable to be bound down to be of good behaviour. S. 401 of the Indian Penal Code is punitive while S. 110 of the Criminal Procedure Code is preventive. 1946 O.W.N. 316=1946 O.A. (C.C.) 227=227 Ind. Cas. 204=1946 A Cr.C. 126=1946 A.W.R. (C.C.) 227=47 Cr.L.J. 1019=A.I.R. 1947 Oudh 86.

—S. 401—Where it appeared that it was open to the Police to proceed against certain persons either under S. 401, Indian Penal Code, or under S. 110, Criminal Procedure Code and after some discussion it was decided to take proceedings under S. 110 :

Held, that the course was a perfectly legitimate one for the prosecution to take and that it could not be objected against on the ground that a substantive charge should have been laid against them. A.I.R. 1933 Oudh 251=10 O.W.N. 325=34 Cr.L.J. 852=144 Ind. Cas. 944.

—S. 401—Charge.

In trial under S. 401, Indian Penal Code, there is nothing objectionable if in Sessions Court only one charge has been framed against all accused though a number of independent charge sheets were originally filed. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 858=48 L.W. 639=(1938) M.W.N. 595 = 40 Cr.L.J. 355=180 Ind. Cas. 431.

—S. 401—Prosecution under S. 401, nature of.

A prosecution under S. 401 is of a peculiar nature differing from an ordinary case in respect of the numbers of accused involved, and the extent of time covered by their operations. There can be no definite rule of limitation barring responsibility for stolen property after a certain time. Each case must be judged in view of the circumstances. Important factors are the number of articles recovered and the way in which information led to their recovery. A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 17=38 Cr.L.J. 251=I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 315=166 Ind. Cas. 587.

—S. 401—Conviction—Legality—Offence also under Sec. 379 or 392.

A conviction under S. 401 cannot be considered bad in law merely because the evidence on the record would also have justified a conviction of a specific offence under S. 379 or 392. 118 Ind. Cas. 423=6 O.W.N. 441=30 Cr.L.J. 922=1929 Cr.C. 143=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 321.

—S. 402—Proof of purpose of assembly—Inference from the circumstances and the nature of articles recovered from the possession of the accused.

Where persons are accused under Ss. 309/402, Indian Penal Code, it is difficult to give direct evidence of the purpose of the assembly. The purpose of the assembly can be gathered only from the circumstances of the arrest of the accused and the nature of the articles recovered from the possession of the accused. 1949 A.W.R. 471=A.I.R. 1950 A. 93=51 Cr.L.J. 399.

—S. 402—What is offence under—Accused assembled together on the night of dacoity—Two of them armed with revolvers and one with spear.

Where the accused, three of whom were residents of another village, assembled on the night of the dacoity under a shisham tree, outside a village and two of them were armed with revolvers and one with a spear :

Held, that the accused committed an offence falling within the purview of S. 402, Indian Penal Code : 37 P.W.R. 1916 Cr. Foll. 106 Ind. Cas. 350=9 A.I.Cr.R. 346=29 Cr.L.J. 14=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 144.

—S. 402—Accused found assembled, fully prepared for dacoity.

Where the accused are caught at a lonely well at a long distance from their respective homes in different villages fully armed and equipped for committing a dacoity, their conviction under S. 402 is competent. 6 P.R. 1916=A.I.R. 1925 All. 62 and 23 All. 124, Appl. 94 Ind. Cas. 269=27 Cr.L.J. 605.

—S. 402—Evidence—Accused coming from different villages—Arrested on suspicion by villagers—Various circumstances showing their guilty intention—Legality of conviction.

The accused were all residents of different villages and they mostly lived at a great distance from the village where they were caught. They gave a number of separate reasons, for the most part entirely improbable, to account for their being caught in the particular village. Different portions of the same manual on bayonet training were found in the possession of different accused who came from different villages. A lot of ammunition was recovered from some of the accused and they were all armed. A series of armed dacoities had occurred recently in the district. The accused were arrested by the villagers themselves on suspicion. 84 Ind. Cas. 860=22 A.L.J. 1028=26 Cr.L.J. 380=5 L.R.A. Cr. 156=A.I.R. 1926 All. 62.

—Ss. 402 and 399—Assembling at a rendezvous.

Some members of a gang who had assembled though unarmed at a rendezvous for the common purpose were guilty under S. 402, though not under S. 399. 19 Cr.L.J. 43=42 Ind. Cas. 1003 (All.).

—S. 402—Member of a gang of dacoits.

Prosecution need only prove that the accused are members of a gang which had in fact committed preparation for dacoity and not what exact part was played by each member in such preparation. 6 P.R. 1916 Cr.=17 Cr.L.J. 280=37 P.W.R. 1916 Cr.=34 Ind. Cas. 1000.

—S. 402—Evidence.

Several persons were found at 11 o'clock at night on a road just outside the city of Agra all carrying arms (guns and swords) concealed under their clothes. None of them had a license to carry arms, and none of them could give any reasonable explanation of his presence at the spot under the circumstances.

Held, that these persons were rightly convicted under S. 402 of assembling. 1901 A.W.N. 16=23 A. 124.

—S. 409—Applicability and scope—"Banker"—Person working in bank.

Persons working in a bank are not bankers within the meaning of S. 409, Indian Penal Code. 1950 Comp. C. 220=A.I.R. 1950 Cal. 57=51 Cr.L.J. 388.

—Ss. 406 and 403—Applicability and scope—Ornaments handed over to accused for specific purpose—Refusal to return them—Offence committed.

If the complainant hands over to the accused some ornaments for a specific purpose on the accused promising to return them after using them for that purpose, there is an entrustment within the meaning of S. 405, Indian Penal Code, and if the accused refuses to return the ornaments he commits an offence under S. 406 and not under S. 403, Indian Penal Code. 52 C.W.N. 641=A.I.R. 1949 Cal. 207=3 A.I.Cr.D. 138=50 Cr.L.J. 382.

—Ss. 403 and 409—Applicability—Firm of grain dealers made Government stockist—Shortage in quantity of grain entrusted—Offence.

Where a firm dealing in grains, is made a Government stockist of food grains and entrusted with grains as such, and thereafter it is found that the stock is short owing to the removal of a certain quantity by the partners without the order or consent of the Government, the offence committed is one of criminal misappropriation falling under S. 403, Indian Penal Code, and S. 409, Indian Penal Code, does not apply. Failure to account or failure to render satisfactory account must be regarded as a circumstance pointing to guilt. 26 Pat. 703=A.I.R. 1949 Pat. 69=50 Cr.L.J. 108.

—S. 406—Applicability—Banker and customer—Depositor—Position and rights—Deposit by customer—If entrusted to bank for particular purpose—Charge of criminal breach of trust—Competency of.

The relationship between a depositor and a bank is simply one of creditor and debtor. There is no entrustment by the depositor (creditor) to the bank (debtor) for any particular purpose. The Bank cannot be proceeded against criminally for criminal breach of trust at the instance of the creditor on the ground that the Bank deals with the money deposited as its money and uses it for their own purposes. The money belongs to the bank, though it is liable to refund it to the depositor when he demands it; but no criminal proceedings will lie in the matter. 1949 Comp. C. 49=3 A.I.Cr.D. 124.

—Ss. 403 to 409—Applicability and scope—Owner of property—Contract for sale.

There were certain dealings between two firms, A and B. A sent goods to B which it was alleged B had purchased from A. Later on A sent bill for the goods to B. B refused to pay on the ground that they had never received the goods. Evidence was given to show that B had received the goods and signed receipts. It was alleged that these receipts had disappeared. Evidence was given that C, an employee of firm A, whose duty it was to enter those things in the books did not enter these deliveries and it was suggested that it was done in collusion with B. C was charged with criminal breach of trust and B with abetting him :

Held, that there could be no charge for criminal breach of trust or criminal misappropriation on the facts proved, inasmuch as the goods became the property of B as soon as they were appropriated to the contract of sale between A and B. (1945) 79 Cal. L.J. 126.

—S. 407—Applicability and scope—Doing of act in anticipation of statute which would make it offence is no offence.

Appropriation of money with dishonest intention attracts S. 407, Indian Penal Code.

A German Director of a German Company, on the eve of the declaration of war between Britain and Germany, attempted to realise as much money as he could, and so asked his clerk to try to find a purchaser for the enamels that he had in stock. He was brought into touch with D, who agreed to pay Rs. 7,643 for the enamels. He came with a cheque for that amount on the morning of September 2, 1939, the day before the war was declared ; but the accused refused to take a cheque and said that he must be paid in cash. The cash was paid in the afternoon of September 2, and the accused handed over the money to his wife :

Held, that it was not an offence to do an act in anticipation of a statute or enactment which would make that act an offence. At the time when the accused took this money and handed it over to his wife, intending to withhold it from the Government of India, there was nothing in law prohibiting the accused from screening the money from the Government of India or the custodian of enemy property. If, therefore, the acts of the accused were done merely to screen the money from the Government of India or the custodian of enemy property and he had no intention to cause wrongful loss or wrongful gain to any other person or persons, he did not commit an offence. In the absence of evidence that he intended to profit himself at the expense of his firm of which he was a partner and had appropriated money belonging to a number of persons even though he was entitled to a share of the money or that he intended to defraud the creditors of the firm i.e., he acted with the intention of causing wrongful loss to the creditors of the firm, the accused could not be held guilty under S. 407. A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 182=54 L.W. 521=(1941) 2 M.L.J. 748=1942 M.W.N. 41=43 Cr.L.J. 395=198 Ind. Cas. 543.

—Ss. 403 to 409—Applicability and scope.

Mouzadar in Assam is a Government servant and not a lessee. If he converts money realized by him from the tenants, it is an offence. I.L.R. (1937) 1 Cal. 272=40 C.W.N. 1154.

—S. 406—Applicability and scope—Ornaments given to goldsmith in consideration of giving certain quantities of gold and silver—Promise to return identical gold and silver after melting—Failure—Offence.

It would be somewhat unusual for an owner of a gold ornament to transfer out and out his right therein to a goldsmith in consideration of the latter's promise to give certain quantities of gold and silver. It is more probable that the owner of an ornament desirous of obtaining its gold would have it melted and the gold given to him ; but a transaction of the first kind is easily conceivable, and if the evidence in the case is consistent with a transaction of that kind the Court should not construe it so as to make it a case of the second kind and make the transferee liable under S. 406, Indian Penal Code for failure to return identical gold and silver. A.I.R. 1936 All. 691=1936 A.L.J. 865=1936 A.W.R. 630=37 Cr.L.J. 1075=165 Ind. Cas. 182.

—S. 405—Applicability and scope.

Section 405 covers dishonest misappropriation, dishonest conversion, dishonest user or disposal in violation of a direction of law, or of a legal contract, or dishonestly suffering any other person to do so. Where a charge under the section does not indicate which of these several offences was intended and does not state who made the alleged entrustment or who suffered from the alleged breach of trust, it is indefinite and embarrassing. 63 Cal. 18=161 Ind. Cas. 280=37 Cr. L.J. 439.

—S. 409—Applicability and scope—Defence—Accused charged with embezzlement of particular sum—Defence that prosecution failed to prove it, though they might have proved other embezzlements.

It is not open to the accused to put up a defence against the charge framed under S. 409, Indian Penal Code that the prosecution has failed to prove the embezzlement of a particular sum, with which he is charged though they might have succeeded in proving embezzlement of other sums, for the offence amounts to no more than this that the prosecution have failed to prove the embezzlement because it is possible to explain all the circumstances against the appellant by the hypothesis that the appellant embezzled some other sums shortly before or after the alleged occurrence. Such a defence cannot hold good for the simple reason that, if accepted, it would merely involve a conviction, whatever hypothesis was adopted and no prejudice can be urged by the accused for lack of charge because it was his own defence. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 907=37 Cr.L.J. 581=38 P.L.R. 1157=162 Ind. Cas. 391.

—Ss. 406, 409—Applicability and scope.

President of co-operative society being not public servant should be prosecuted under S. 406 and not 409. 1935 M.W.N. 1337.

—S. 409—Applicability and scope.

Unless accused is professionally the complainant's agent, the proceedings cannot be started under S. 409. 1935 M.W.N. 649.

—S. 409—Applicability and scope—Property must be actually misapplied—S. 409 does not include intention to misappropriate at a future date.

Section 409 does not include an intention to misappropriate at a future date. Where, therefore, the accused who was a treasurer of a society, satisfied a decree against him by making a deposit entry in favour of his creditors decree-holders.

Held, that the fraudulent action of the accused did not earmark the money in his hands at the source for payment in respect of that liability; the fraudulent entry was intended to make it possible at a later date to misappropriate the moneys of the Society; but nothing was then misappropriated and consequently, the accused was not guilty under S. 409.

For an offence under S. 409, the property entrusted or part of it must be actually misapplied. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 843=36 Cr.L.J. 165=152 Ind. Cas. 615 (2).

—S. 409—Applicability and scope—Defence—Public servant acting in the course of employment—Whether can set up breach of regulation by superior officer.

A servant acting within the scope of his employment cannot, in order to defraud his master, set up breach of his master's regulations in his own favour. A public servant is expected to discharge his duties honestly whether his movements be properly supervised or not, and it would be setting a very bad principle if such reprehensible conduct on the part of the accused is condoned merely on account of the negligence of those who were in duty bound to control his actions. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 677=36 Cr.L.J. 424=35 P.L.R. 649=16 Lah. 44=153 Ind. Cas. 887.

—S. 408—Applicability and scope—Charge under—Property entrusted to accused—Accused, if should show what has become of it.

In a charge under S. 408, Indian Penal Code, it is not necessary for the accused to show exactly what has become of the missing property. When he was entrusted with it, if he cannot produce it, he must at least give a credible and probable account of its disappearance, but he need do nothing more than that. A.I.R. 1934 Rang. 42=35 Cr.L.J. 849=148 Ind. Cas. 1035 (2).

—S. 405—Applicability and scope.

If the agent lends money to himself without his master's permission, he is guilty of criminal breach of trust. 1933 M.W.N. 256.

—S. 409—Applicability and scope—Public servant responsible for proper spending of money, but having no dominion over it—Owner of money exonerating him from liability—Circumstances—Evidence.

A public servant who was responsible in law for the proper expenditure of a certain sum of money but respect of which he had no dominion other than passing orders for payment in writing and into whose hands money never actually came, was charged for alleged embezzlement of money in proceedings taken against him after a delay of 3 years. He could not produce all vouchers in respect of the expenditures due to the sudden death of the person who spent the money. The owner of the money was satisfied with the payments made by the accused and had exonerated him from every liability, civil or criminal:

Held, that there was no case of criminal misappropriation against the accused nor any reasonable ground for even a suspicion of such an offence against him. A.I.R. 1933 Oudh 387=35 Cr.L.J. 148=10 O.W.N. 807=9 Luck. 61=146 Ind. Cas. 661.

—S. 403—Applicability and scope.

Misappropriation of immovable property—There can be no criminal misappropriation if the subject matter of offence is immovable property. 1932 M.W.N. 1353.

—S. 408—Applicability and scope—Property—Cheque.

Cheque is property within the meaning of S. 488. 52 A. 894=125 Ind. Cas. 589=1930 A.L.J. 849=A.I.R. 1930 All. 449.

—S. 408—Applicability and scope—Misappropriation by liquidator.

A liquidator who misappropriates money which has come into his custody as liquidator, cannot be said to be acting or purporting to act in the discharge of his official duty: 7 B.H.C. (Cr.) 61 and A.I.R. 1929 Bom. 375 Rel. on; A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 659, Diss. from. A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 487=32 Bom. L.R. 1134=129 Ind. Cas. 344.

—S. 403—Applicability and scope—Municipal Committee selling receipt books relating to sale transaction of cattle in fair—Licensee making entry in receipts contrary to rules fixed—If offence under S. 403 or 405.

The municipal Committee of Amritsar issued licenses to a number of persons to write receipts relating to sale transactions of cattle in a certain fair. A receipt book was issued to each licensee who was to pay the price of each receipt book at the rate of eight annas per receipt in advance and when he wrote the receipt in the fair he was to charge eight annas per head of cattle from the seller plus his own writing charges. If an animal sold had a calf with it, two separate and consecutive receipts were to be issued for both respectively. P purchased two receipt books paying full price therefor during the fair, he wrote receipts relating to two transactions of sale of buffaloes, each one of whom had a katti, with it, but instead of issuing four receipts as required by the rule he issued only two and charged one rupee from each purchaser. P was prosecuted under S. 409 and S. 420 but was convicted under S. 406.

Held, that the case could not possibly fall under Ss. 403 and 405. P was not entrusted with any property or with any dominion over any property and there was no criminal breach of trust by him. The mere making of wrong entries in the receipt books might have rendered P liable to the forfeiture of his license but could not possibly bring his action within the purview of S. 403 and S. 405. 129 Ind. Cas. 298=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 408.

—S. 405—Applicability and scope—Applicability to any person in any manner entrusted with any property.

Section 405 does not limit the offence to the case of persons who are entitled to be called trustees in the technical sense. The section is couched in broad terms and covers any person who is in any manner entrusted with any property. Where a person manages a large property under a definite agreement that he should get 3/5ths for his own use and spend 2/5ths on certain religious and educational objects, if it can be proved that he has converted to his own use some portion of the 2/5ths share of the profits which he should devote to these objects, he may be properly convicted of an offence of breach of trust. 126 Ind. Cas. 395=7 O.W.N. 663=1930 Cr.C. 941=A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 401.

—S. 405—Applicability and scope.

Section 405 refers only to movable property: 23 Cal. 372; 6 Bom. H.C. Cr. 33 and 36 Cal. 758, Foll. 8 Rang. 13=125 Ind. Cas. 271=A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 158.

—S. 408—Applicability and scope—Innocent disobedience—Repayment of loan to Clerk—Clerk enlisting himself as member and getting it as loan—If offence.

A clerk in the employment of a Co-operative Bank affiliated to another Co-operative Bank received some repayments of loans from three members of the Bank with instructions to pay the said sums to the Chief Bank. Previous to these repayments the clerk had sufficient amount in hand to make up Rs. 240 together with repayments. The moneys were duly entered in cash book and receipt given as customary, but disobeying the instructions he retained the money. Subsequently in contravention of rules he got himself enlisted as a member and procured the loan of the amount. Apart from disobedience there was no evidence that the accused appropriated the sums to his own use. The clerk was convicted under S. 408.

Held, that the accused was not guilty under S. 408. Disobedience of the clerk was not criminal and the subsequent procuring of loan though ultra vires being in contravention of rules would not turn the innocent act into criminal. 117 Ind. Cas. 632=1929 Cr.C. 266=30 Cr.L.J. 812=A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 506.

—S. 409—Applicability and scope—Lessee of Government—Accused a lessee from Government to collect rent and deposit it in treasury—Failure to deposit within agreed time—Offence.

The petitioner had executed a kabuliyat in favour of the Government whereby he agreed to realize the gross rent of a Mouzah payable to the Government lying within his jurisdiction and to deposit the said amount in the Government Treasury on or before the date to be fixed by the Chief Commissioner or any other authorized officer from time to time, and if he failed to deposit the gross rent from his kist within the time fixed, the Government should be competent to realize from him or from his surety or sureties the said sum in arrears according to law prescribed for the realization of arrears of rent. The petitioner failed to deposit the rent as agreed to by him.

Held, that the penalty would be that the amount would be recovered from his sureties or himself; the kabuliyat did not contemplate his being criminally prosecuted for failure to deposit the amount realized. The position of the petitioner was not that of a servant but a lessee. 110 Ind. Cas. 97=47 C.L.J. 442=29 Cr.L.J. 641=A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 321.

—S. 409 and S. 562, Criminal Procedure Code—Applicability and scope.

The offence under S. 409, Indian Penal Code, is beyond the scope of S. 562, Criminal Procedure Code, and so a Magistrate acts without jurisdiction if he releases under S. 562, Criminal Procedure Code an accused convicted under S. 409, Indian Penal Code. 100 Ind. Cas. 225=7 A.I.Cr.R. 360=28 Cr.L.J. 257=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 735.

—S. 405—Applicability and scope—Wagering contract—Receipt of money—If offence.

A person cannot be convicted under the second part of S. 405 if the contract in respect of which the money is received, is a wagering contract. 100 Ind. Cas. 989=28 Cr.L.J. 381=7 A.I.Cr.R. 474=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 425=52 M.L.J. 179.

—Ss. 405, 406—Applicability and scope.

The trust contemplated by Ss. 405 and 406 need not be in furtherance of a lawful object: 101 Ind. Cas. 890=10 N.L.J. 79=28 Cr. L. J. 506=8 A.I.Cr.R. 143=23 N.L.R. 106=A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 225.

—S. 403—Applicability and scope—Failure to return—Receiver entrusting property to be returned at auction—Covenant to pay money as security—Failure to return the property if an offence.

When a Receiver attaches property and entrusts it to some person, he does not purport to sell it to him or dispose of it at that time. The Receiver may not even be in a position to know its true value. The intention of the parties is that the articles should be returned in specie or produced at the time when the auction-sale is to take place. The covenant by the person entrusted that he would be liable to pay a certain amount is more by way of security than because the property is transferred to him with liberty to dispose of it or withhold it. In such cases it is the true intention of the parties which must be taken into account. So if the person entrusted fails to produce the property he is guilty under S. 403. 92 Ind. Cas. 585=48 All. 288=7 L.R.A. Cr. 34=24 A.L.J. 270=27 Cr.L.J. 297=A.I.R. 1926 All. 302.

—S. 406—Applicability and scope—Immovable property—If can be subject of criminal breach of trust.

Criminal breach of trust cannot be committed in respect of immovable property: 23 Cal. 372, Foll. 95 Ind. Cas. 280=27 Cr.L.J. 760=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 478.

—S. 409—Applicability and scope—Accused bound to lodge money into treasury in excess of certain sum—Accused removing the excess to a Government godown—Offence.

Where it is necessary for the accused to lodge in the Treasury any Government money in excess of that shown due to Government by the registers which he might have in his hands under certain rules, he is guilty under S. 409 if he removes the excess from the office cash box and it makes no difference that he removes it to a godown belonging to Government. 94 Ind. Cas. 205=1 Luck. 345=29 O.C. 245=3 O.W.N. 382=27 Cr.L.J. 589=A.I.R. 1926 Oudh 398.

—S. 404—Applicability and scope—Immovable property—If can be subject of criminal misappropriation.

Section 404 is not expressly limited to movable property alone and criminal misappropriation or conversion is easily possible of immovable property where the materials have been severed from the building and removed, 6 B.H.C. Cr. 33, Diss.

Where the property removed by the accused consisted of the rafters used in the house left by the deceased:

Held, the rafters were immovable property so long as they were attached to the house, but became movable property when they were severed from the house and as the accused had no title to the house and the house was not in the possession of any person legally entitled to its possession, S. 404 applied, if, after severing the rafters from the house, they dishonestly removed them and misappropriated or converted them to their own use. 91 Ind. Cas. 49=24 A.L.J. 153=27 Cr.L.J. 17=6 L.R.A. Cr. 200=A.I.R. 1925 All. 673.

—S. 409 and Criminal Procedure Code, S. 179—Applicability and scope—Offence of criminal breach of trust—Causing wrongful loss if a necessary consequence—Applicability of Criminal Procedure Code, S. 179.

The word "consequence" in S. 179 does not include all the possible results of an act, but is restricted in its scope to certain specified results; those are the results specified in the provision of the law making the act an offence. The offence of criminal breach of trust is complete with the act of conversion and the intention to cause wrongful gain or wrongful loss. That intention can only be formed or at least can only be proved to have been formed at the place where the conversion takes place. For the purposes of S. 179 it is immaterial where the wrongful loss actually takes place, and indeed whether any such loss actually does take place or not. A.I.R. 1922 Bom 39, Dissent.; 38 Mad 639, Foll. 81 Ind. Cas. 538=20 N.L.R. 72=25 Cr.L.J. 922=A.I.R. 1924 Nag 253.

—Ss. 403, 411—Applicability and scope—Two articles lost found with accused—Nature of offence.

A packet containing a loose diamond and a diamond-ring was lost and was found with accused two years later.

Held, only one offence of retaining stolen property was committed under S. 411 and not two offences under S. 403 one in respect of diamond and the other in respect of the ring. 81 Ind. Cas. 443=2 Rang. 80=25 Cr.L.J. 907=A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 256.

—Ss. 403, 405—Applicability and scope—Breach of trust and misappropriation—Temporary.

If Ss. 403 and 405 be read together, it will be seen that criminal breach of trust is a species of criminal misappropriation by a person entrusted with the property misappropriated, and as regards criminal misappropriation it is distinctly laid down that a dishonest misappropriation for a time only is misappropriation. The same principle applies to temporary misappropriation by a person entrusted with the property. 68 Ind. Cas. 157=23 Cr.L.J. 557=A.I.R. 1923 Nag. 146.

—S. 403—Applicability and scope—Criminal Procedure Code, S. 181 (2) and S. 179—Money received at one place to be handed over at another place—Offence where committed.

Under S. 403, Indian Penal Code, the offence is complete the moment the accused receives or retains the money with a dishonest motive of appropriating it or converting it to his own use. Where the accused receives money in respect of which the offence is committed at one place to be handed over at another, the offence is committed at the former place. The failure to hand over the money is not a necessary ingredient to constitute an offence of criminal misappropriation and is therefore not a consequence which has ensued by reason of anything done by the accused. The words "consequence which has ensued" occurring in S. 179 do not apply to criminal misappropriation or criminal breach of trust. 1 Pat. L.T. 200=56 Ind. Cas. 775=21 Cr.L.J. 519=1921 P.H.C.C. 31=A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 85.

—Ss. 405 and 408—Applicability and scope—Criminal misappropriation—Breach of trust—Clerk authorised to receive moneys.

Where a clerk in the service of an estate is authorized to receive money on its behalf and to pay them into the estate treasury, money so received by him is not his money for which he has merely to account to the estate but is actually the estate money which is entrusted to him and if he misappropriates the same, he commits criminal breach of trust. The offence is not one merely falling under S. 403. 9 C.L.J. 257, Foll. 12 Mad. 49, Expl. 21 Cr.L.J. 824=(1920) M.W.N. 518=12 L.W. 295=58 Ind. Cas. 824.

—S. 406—Applicability and scope—Movable attached in execution of decree—Entrusted to accused—Non-production—Offence.

The accused were entrusted by a Court officer with certain movable property attached in execution of a decree but at the time of sale they did not produce the property and evaded service of notice.

Held, that they could not be guilty of criminal breach of trust inasmuch as they did not misappropriate the property or convert it to their own use or dispose of it in any manner contrary to the terms of the trust. The accused were guilty of contempt of Court under S. 172, Indian Penal Code. 16 A.L.J. 600=19 Cr.L.J. 975=47 Ind. Cas. 875.

—S. 408—Applicability—Embezzlement—Breach of trust by clerk or servant.

A person employed by a station master to mark and load goods and paid out of an allowance granted by the company to the station is not guilty of an offence under S. 408, Indian Penal Code, if he recovers an overcharge from a consignor of goods and converts it to his use. 40 All. 565=16 A.L.J. 596=19 Cr.L.J. 967=47 Ind. Cas. 867.

—S. 409—Applicability and scope—Manager of Bank—Deceiving shareholders as to profits.

Where the Manager of a Bank being entrusted with the property of the Bank dishonestly uses and disposes of some of the property contrary to the Articles of Association of the Bank causing the shareholders to declare a dividend larger than the profits warranted, he is guilty of an offence under S. 409, Indian Penal Code. 23 P.W.R. 1915 Cr.=167 P.L.R. 1915=16 Cr.L.J. 473=28 P.R. 1915 Cr.=29 Ind. Cas. 105.

—Ss. 409 and 477-A—Applicability and scope.

A debtor executed certain Hundi in favour of a certain Bank payable after 6 months. The Bank being in need of ready money, its Managing Director tried to get the Hundi cashed in another Bank which Bank insisted on the Director's clearing his own account with it before he would cash the Hundi for his Bank. To pay off his loan, the Director asked his son to put in a loan application to his Bank for the exact amount due by him to the other Bank and sanctioned it as the Managing Director on the security of his moneys in his Bank. After this he got the Hundi cashed. He was charged under Ss. 409 and 477-A.

Held, that the prosecution failed to establish the charge of criminal misappropriation as the accused in his anxiety to get ready money chose a method which could not be said to have injured his Bank. The prosecution having failed to prove that the loan application by the son and the accused's order of sanction were really ante-dated, the charge of falsification of documents could not be sustained. 164 P.L.R. 1915=16 Cr.L.J. 443=29 Ind. Cas. 75=25 P.W.N. 1915 (Cr.).

—Ss. 404 and 424—Applicability and scope—Claim of right.

Ss. 404 and 424 do not apply to the case of persons, who take possession and deal with the estate of the deceased under a claim of right. (1914) M.W.N. 791=15 Cr.L.J. 602=25 Ind. Cas. 514.

—Ss. 403 and 405—Applicability and scope—Person entrusted with property for sale—Failure to comply with all conditions.

S. 405 does not cover misappropriation of sale proceeds of property entrusted to a person. A person cannot be said to have disposed of property entrusted to him in violation of his contract dishonestly, unless a dishonest intention is proved. An auctioneer is not liable for criminal breach of trust if he does not carry out every term in the agreement punctually. A person cannot be convicted of criminal misappropriation when the charge is for criminal breach of trust. 41 Cal. 844=15 Cr.L.J. 683=19 C.W.N. 422=26 Ind. Cas. 131.

—Ss. 406 and 408—Applicability and scope—Criminal breach of trust—Misappropriation of Water-tax.

Where Municipal Water-Works Inspector misappropriated some water for his own use and for the use of his tenants for which he paid no tax.

Held, that the Inspector was guilty under S. 408, Indian Penal Code. Where he received some money from his tenants as water-tax he was guilty under S. 406 of the Code. 35 All 36=11 A.L.J. 369=14 Cr.L.J. 415=20 Ind. Cas. 239.

—S. 403—Contract Act, S. 108, Excep. 3—Applicability and scope—Jewels entrusted for sale—Price realised but not paid to owner—Misappropriation—Contract Act, S. 108, Excep. 3.

A entrusted certain jewels to a broker for sale. The jewels were found with B; the appellant, who had received them in pawn from C. It transpired that the broker had sold them to C; who then pawned them to B.

Held, that the broker did not misappropriate the jewels, but he misappropriated the money received from C, for them and that B, was protected by Excep. 3 to S. 108, Contract Act, and was entitled to have the jewels returned under S. 517, Criminal Procedure Code. 4 Bur. L.T. 170=12 Cr.L.J. 647=11 Ind. Cas. 1003.

—Ss. 403, 411 and 75—Applicability and scope—Possession of strayed animals—Applicability of S. 75.

Where there is no evidence to indicate a theft, a person in possession of strayed animals is guilty of an offence under S. 403 and not of an offence under S. 411. S. 75 of the Code does not apply to the case of a person with previous convictions under Chap. XVII who is found guilty of an offence under S. 403. 36 P.W.R. 1911 Cr.=235 P.L.R. 1911=12 Cr. L. J. 943=11 Ind. Cas. 623.

—S. 406—Applicability and scope—Deceased property of—Heir not justified in taking forcible possession of such property.

A person who claims to be an heir to a deceased person is not justified in taking possession of the property left by him by force from the person who is actually in possession of it. 11 Cr.L.J. 364=11 P.L.R. 1910=41 P.W.R. 1910 (Cr.)=6 Ind. Cas. 490 (2).

—Ss. 403, 405 and 415—Applicability and scope—Provident Fund—Fund in the hands of agent.

Whereby the terms of the contract of the employment of Manager of Provident Institutions the custody and application of the Provident Funds was in the hands of the Proprietor or Agent, the manager is not criminally liable for any misappropriation by the proprietor of the institution or his agent. 5 M.L.T. 141=11 Cr.L.J. 189=4 Ind. Cas. 1106.

—S. 408—Applicability and scope—Person remunerated for collecting money.

If a person receives remuneration for collecting money and accounting for the same and of giving receipt to the payer, he accepts an express trust. 9 C.L.J. 257=10 Cr.L.J. 482=4 Ind. Cas. 48.

2. Bona fides.

—S. 404—Bona fides—Ingredients of offence—Curator taking possession under S. 196 of Succession Act—Whether "legally entitled to possession."

In order to find a person guilty under S. 404, Indian Penal Code, the prosecution must prove not only misappropriation but dishonest misappropriation or dishonest conversion to his own use of property by the accused. Secondly, the prosecution must prove that the property was in the possession of a deceased person at the time of that person's decease and that it has not since been in the possession of any person legally entitled to such possession.

If there is a bona fide claim to the property which is not a pretence, then no offence under the section can be committed because dishonesty is an essential ingredient of the offence. Therefore, a plea by the legitimate or illegitimate sons of the deceased, who are charged under the section, that they acted in good faith, cannot be lightly brushed aside.

A person may not have title to property in the sense of title to the ownership of the property, but yet he may be legally entitled to possession thereof. A curator appointed and authorised by the District Judge under S. 196 of the Succession Act to take possession of the property, is a person legally entitled to possession within the meaning of S. 404, Indian Penal Code. A I.R. 1949 Cal. 171=50 Cr.L.J. 241.

—S. 406—Bona fides.

Owner had handed over property years before and had taken no more interest in it. It was handed over for use and the only stipulation was that it was to be returned when required by the owner. Owner fell out with the person entrusted with the property who had pawned it. Owner launched a prosecution under S. 406, Indian Penal Code.

Held, in the circumstances it was perfectly reasonable and legitimate for the person entrusted with the property to think that he could purchase the property and no offence of criminal breach of trust was established and that Court should not lend aid to such malicious prosecution. A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 361.

—S. 409—'Bona fide' claim—Dominion over property—Claim unsustainable—Effect.

Unless the claim of the accused is merely a pretence and not a bona fide claim, no offence under

S. 409 is committed where the accused not only has got dominion over the property but is laying some claim over it even though it turns out that the claim is not in law sustainable. Generally in cases under S. 409 the property is non-existent or at least leaves the dominion of the accused. Where these facts are wanting, ordinarily a Criminal Court should refer the matter for decision by the Civil Court especially where the important witnesses are living far away beyond the jurisdiction of the Court. 81 Ind. Cas. 829=28 C.W.N. 831=25 Cr.L.J. 1053=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 908.

3. Cheating.

—S. 409—Cheating.

Accused, agent of money-lenders, dishonestly selling jewels pledged with him by complainant as security for loan contrary to terms of contract and also dishonestly appropriating interest paid by complainant :

Held, that the offence did not fall under S. 409. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 804=1941 M.W.N. 677=54 L.W. 391 (2).

—Ss. 406 and 420—Cheating—Subsequent misappropriation.

Where there is an entrustment of the bonds for a special purpose and it is immaterial how the accused became entrusted with property or dominion over property, he would be guilty under S. 420, Indian Penal Code, of obtaining property by cheating as soon as delivery is obtained and subsequent misappropriation will bring him under S. 406, Indian Penal Code, as well. A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 353=(1936) M.W.N. 281=43 L.W. 548=70 M.L.J. 635=37 Cr.L.J. 637=162 Ind. Cas. 592 (2) (F.B.).

—S. 405—Cheating.

Per Lakshmana Rao, J.—Acts constituting the offence of obtaining property by cheating cannot by themselves constitute the offence of criminal breach of trust. The ingredients of the offences are different and so is the evidence requisite to establish them. There can be a breach of trust independently of cheating and the offences are distinct and separate. The offence under S. 420 is complete as soon as delivery is obtained by cheating and without the further act of misappropriation there can be no breach of trust A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 353=(1936) M.W.N. 281=43 L.W. 548=70 M.L.J. 635=37 Cr.L.J. 637=162 Ind. Cas. 592 (2) (F.B.).

—Ss. 405 and 406—Cheating.

Per Mocket, J.—There can be no consent by a person who is cheated and so if there was deceit which prevented any true consent arising, there could be no entrusting; the terms are mutually exclusive. A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 359=48 L.W. 548=(1936) M.W.N. 281=70 M.L.J. 635=37 Cr.L.J. 637=162 Ind. Cas. 592 (2) (F.B.).

—Ss. 405 and 415—Cheating.

A person who tricks another into delivering property to him bears no resemblance to a trustee in the ordinary acceptance of that term; and S. 405, Indian Penal Code, gives no sanction to regard him as a trustee. The illustrations to the section show that it is intended to cover the case of property honestly obtained by the person entrusted with it, and subsequently, dishonestly misappropriated by him in breach of his trust. The essence of criminal breach of trust is the dishonest conversion of the property entrusted. But the act of cheating itself involves a conversion. Conversion signifies depriving the owner of the use and possession of the property. When the cheat afterwards sells or consumes or otherwise use the fruit of his cheating, he is not committing an act of conversion, for the conversion is already done, but he is furnishing evidence of the fraud he practised to get hold of the property. It is not necessary to strain the language of S. 405 to catch the cheat, for he can be dealt with apart from that section. In fact, there would be little use of S. 415 if cheating is only a form of criminal breach of trust. For these reasons, cheating is a complete offence by itself and cannot be criminal breach of trust. A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 353=43 L.W. 548=(1936) M.W.N. 281=70 M.L.J. 635=37 Cr.L.J. 637=162 Ind. Cas. 592 (2) (F.B.).

—Ss. 406 and 420—Cheating—Subsequent misappropriation.

Even though the accused, when he induced the complainant to part with certain properties had the intention of deceiving him, a subsequent misappropriation by him of the property to his own use would amount to criminal breach of trust. The fact that there was a complete offence of cheating when the property was received will not prevent the accused being guilty of criminal breach of trust. A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 1=(1935) M.W.N. 914=69 M.L.J. 681=42 L.W. 923=37 Cr.L.J. 142=159 Ind. Cas. 656.

—Ss. 406 and 420—Cheating—Property obtained for one purpose used for another—Offence.

To justify a conviction under S. 420, Indian Penal Code, deception must be proved. Where in the absence of deception a person obtains property for one purpose and uses it for another, he is guilty of an offence under S. 406 and not under S. 420 of the Code. 1 U.P.L.R. (H.C.) 69=20 Cr.L.J. 413=51 Ind. Cas. 173. (All.)

—S. 409—Cheating—Directors of loan—And deposit society—Issue of false balance sheet.

The mere fact that the Directors of a Loan and Deposit Society passed and issued an incorrect balance sheet does not justify a charge of cheating. All other circumstances, viz., the nature of the statements, the case or difficulty with which their truth or falsity could be ascertained, the course of business of the Society—the position, experience and attainments of individual Directors, must be considered before a decision is arrived at. Mistakes and omissions in the classification of debts as 'doubtful or bad' does not lead to a presumption of cheating nor does the omission by the Directors to show their debts as a separate item afford any presumption of guilt. These omissions will entail a civil liability only.

An untrained auditor is not criminally liable for failure to detect such mistakes. 9 M.L.T. 20=11 Cr.L.J. 624=8 Ind. Cas. 325.

4. Civil wrong.

—S. 403—Civil wrong—Wrongful dishonouring of cheque by Bank.

If a cheque is dishonoured by a bank, that does not connote misappropriation. The remedy for a cheque being wrongly dishonoured lies in the Civil Court. This is not a matter which is to be tried by a criminal Court. 1950 Comp. C. 220=A.I.R. 1950 Cal. 57=51 Cr.L.J. 388.

—Ss. 403, 406 and 417—Civil wrong.

Commission agent advancing money to potato-grower on mortgage of crop—Mortgage to secure to former sale of crop and his commission—Sale by grower to another agent in breach of contract :

Held, that the grower cannot be said to have committed criminal misappropriation, or criminal breach

—Ss. 403, 420—Civil wrong.

Where, in a case, the chief matter in dispute between the complainant and the accused is a dispute between the partners, and the allegations of criminal offences under Ss. 403 and 420, Indian Penal Code, are made in the complaint for the purpose of squeezing money out of the accused, the complaint is not maintainable as the dispute is of a civil nature. A.I.R. 1939 Sind 21=40 Cr.L.J. 246=179 Ind. Cas. 687.

—S. 409—Civil wrong—Lambardar not depositing land revenue collected by him—Whether offence under S. 409—Lambardar, if in a position of trustee.

The failure of a lambardar to deposit land revenue collected by him does not constitute an offence under S. 409; a lambardar is bound to pay on due date all the land revenue recoverable from an estate irrespective of the fact whether he realizes it from the tax-payers or not. The lambardar does not, therefore, stand in the position of a trustee but that of a quasi-lessee. The dispute between the Government, and the lambardar over the question of recovery of land revenue is consequently one of a civil nature. A.I.R. 1938 Pesh. 25=39 Cr.L.J. 741=176 Ind. Cas. 406.

—S. 403—Civil wrong—Person authorised to take and sell cotton of another—Selling cotton as such—Sale money not handed over to owner.

The act of the accused selling the cotton belonging to another where he is authorised to so take it, cannot amount to misappropriation of the cotton itself within the meaning of S. 403, Indian Penal Code, and where after the sale of the cotton he refused to pay the money due to the owner, the remedy lies only in Civil Court. A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 968=47 L.W. 140=(1937) M.W.N. 733=39 Cr.L.J. 144=172 Ind. Cas. 501.

—S. 408—Civil wrong and criminal offence, distinguished.

Every offence of criminal breach of trust involves a civil wrong in respect of which the complainant may seek his redress for damages in the Civil Court but every breach of trust, in the absence of mens rea, cannot legally justify a criminal prosecution. A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 331=38 Cr.L.J. 491=1937 O.W.N. 505=168 Ind. Cas. 58.

—S. 408—Civil wrong—Offence under S. 408—Essentials of—Mens rea, necessity of.

The distinction between a civil wrong, which gives rise to a suit for damages for that wrongful act or tort, and a criminal offence punishable under the Indian Penal Code, is very clear. Every breach of trust gives rise to a suit for damages but it is only when there is evidence of a mental act of fraudulent misappropriation that the commission of embezzlement of any sum of money becomes a penal offence punishable as criminal breach of trust under Ss. 408 and 409, Indian Penal Code. It is this mental act of fraudulent misappropriation that clearly demarcates an act of embezzlement which is a civil wrong or tort, from the offence of criminal breach of trust punishable under S. 408, Indian Penal Code. This malicious intent on the part of a servant to deprive his master of sums of money due to the latter and the fraudulent misappropriation as evidenced by such mental act or intent to deprive the master of his property without any outward or visible trespass is the fundamental distinction between a civil wrong arising out of a breach of trust and the offence of criminal breach of trust. —S. 409—Civil wrong—Lambardar obtaining revenue from land owners but not handing it over to Government.

The position of the lambardar is not that of a trustee in order to make him liable for criminal breach of trust if he does not hand over to the Government, the money recovered from the land owners. His position is similar to that of a lessee and the dispute relating to the payment of the money is one of a civil nature. He is bound to pay the revenue demand subject to certain conditions and if he does not pay, there are ample provisions in the revenue law to make him do so. A.I.R. 1937 Pesh. 35=38 Cr.L.J. 530=168 Ind. Cas. 369.

—S. 409—Civil wrong—Mere refusal of agent to render accounts and allow partner to have access to account-books.

Intention to defraud cannot be presumed from the mere fact of refusal on the part of an agent of a firm to render accounts and to allow one of the partners to have access to the account-books without further facts being proved. The agent cannot be prosecuted in a Criminal Court. The refusal may be a good ground for a civil action, but does not amount in any case to a criminal offence, much less to an offence under S. 409, Indian Penal Code. A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 505=39 Cr.L.J. 194=72 Ind. Cas. 872.

—S. 406—Civil wrong—Mere non-payment of instalments.

The complainant sold a gramophone to the accused on instalment system but on his not paying the instalments the complainant asked for the machine. Though it was not immediately produced, it had not been sold and was produced in Court. He was convicted under S. 406, Indian Penal Code;

Held, that it was a matter of civil dispute and the mere non-payment of the monthly instalment could be considered as a criminal offence. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 674=38 Cr.L.J. 113=165 Ind. Cas. 827.

—S. 405—Civil wrong—A clear distinction exists.

Between criminal and civil liability. Where moneys have been spent upon the business of the company, in the absence of proof of dishonest intention to cause loss to the company, the managing agents cannot be held liable for criminal breach of trust although there has been a breach of contract indirectly causing loss. —S. 408—Contract of service for particular year—Year expiring, and employment continuing—Presumption.

Where there is a contract of employment under certain terms, for a particular year, and the employment continues even after the expiry of that year, the ordinary presumption is that the same conditions also continue.

Held, on facts, that there was no criminal misappropriation and any liability on that account would be a civil liability but would not give rise to a criminal prosecution for misappropriation. 163 Ind. Cas. 657=18 N.L.J. 345=37 Cr.L.J. 856.

Taking delivery of goods in pursuance of notice of the trial Magistrate with the knowledge of an order to the contrary by a Court of Appeal—Notice of the trial Magistrate containing alternative of forfeiture in case of failure to take delivery—Goods disposed of :

Held, that no offence under S. 403 was committed. Even though the accused may have been aware of the stay order, there was a notice with the alternative of forfeiture and even if after taking delivery he disposed them of pending consideration in appeal, he cannot be held guilty under S. 403 :

Held, also, that proper relief for the complainant was to be obtained in the Civil Court. A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 454 = 45 Cr.L.J. 886 = 149 Ind. Cas. 36 (D.B.).

—S. 409—Civil wrong—No dishonest intention—Remedy.

Where an agent produces his lists of accounts and admits the withdrawal of money, if he be recalcitrant, even if there is good ground for suspicion that he was not altogether honest, yet so long as there is no intention to misappropriate money belonging to his principal, the agent's prosecution under S. 409 for criminal breach of trust is not the proper remedy; the proper remedy lies in a suit for accounts in a Civil Court. 125 Ind. —S. 405—Civil wrong—Return of deposit to brother—Criminal breach of trust or civil liability.

The return of a deposit to the brother of depositor under circumstances indicating the best of intention and an absence of moral turpitude, may render a person civilly liable to the depositor but does not amount to criminal breach of trust as that offence involves moral turpitude. 117 Ind. —S. 406—Civil wrong—Suit—Money advanced in respect of a contract—Breach of contract—Remedy.

Where money is advanced in respect of a contract, and there is no entrustment in a fiduciary form, any dispute arising out of the breach of contract is one of civil nature and capable of settlement not in the criminal but in the civil Courts. 96 Ind. Cas. 501 = 7 A.I. Cr.R. 24 = 27 Cr. L.J. 949.

—Ss. 403, 406, 411 and 379—Civil wrong—False denial of loan—Criminal breach of trust—Loan of a chattel—Borrower denying the loan—Offence—Civil liability.

Per Batty, J.—The loan of a chattel does not constitute the borrower a person entrusted with the chattel or with dominion over it within the meaning of S. 406 for the borrower is not a trustee but has a beneficial interest given him in the thing lent. A false denial of a loan is not in itself a misappropriation at all, and may amount to no more than an attempt to evade civil liability for the money or the chattel lent. Attempt to evade civil liability does not necessarily imply that the property has been misappropriated. The false denial of a loan is compatible with the absence of criminal misappropriation and no more constitutes that offence than possession of stolen property constitutes theft or dishonest receipt. The false denial may be evidence of an offence under S. 403 as possession of stolen property may be evidence of offences under S. 379, or 411.

Per Aston, J.—Where the property dishonestly misappropriated had come into the accused's possession through his being entrusted with it or with any dominion over it which includes a loan of a chattel, the offence committed is criminal breach of trust. (1904) 6 Bom. L.R. 1093.

5. Conversion.

—Ss. 405 and 406—Conversion—Essentials of conversion.

An offence of conversion punishable under S. 406, Indian Penal Code, is only committed when a man does an unauthorised act which deprives another of his property permanently or for an indefinite time. 3. A. I. Cr. D. 277 = A.I.R. 1949 Pat. 326 = 50 Cr. L.J. 682.

—S. 403—Conversion—Actual conversion or appropriation is necessary.

In order to frame a charge of criminal misappropriation, it must be proved that actual conversion or appropriation of the property by the accused for his own use had taken place. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 172 = (1937) 2 M.L.J. 734 = 46 L.W. 812 = (1937) M.W.N. 1321 = 39 Cr.L.J. 312 = 173 Ind. Cas. 317.

—S. 409—Conversion—False paper entries—Entries in cash book—Conversion effected as no cash passed—Offence.

A loan of Rs. three lacs was made to one of the accused who was a director of a Bank. The professed object of the accused was to bolster up the affairs of the closely allied concern known as the Hindustan Assurance and Mutual Benefit Society, which would otherwise have been obliged, under Cl. 179 of its Articles of Association to go into liquidation. What he did in effect was that with one of the three lacs of rupees he converted a debt owed by the Society into a credit balance; with another lac he created a fixed deposit for the Society with the Bank; with the third lac he converted his own debt into a credit balance and also created a fixed deposit of Rs. 30,000 in his wife's favour. He sent intimation to the Society regarding their credits. At the time when he made these changes in the Bank's financial position, he had no authority except his own and his subsequent transactions do not show that he had an honest intention.

Held, that although the changes made were mere paper entries, the conversions were no less conversions because no cash passed and that an offence under S. 409 had been committed. 118 Ind. Cas. 650 = 30 Cr.L.J. 954 = 1930 Cr.C. 25 = A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 57.

—S. 409—Conversion—Non-payment for a long time.

It was proved by as good evidence as could have been produced that accused received the three sums in question and, as up to the time of his prosecution more than a year later, he had not paid them over to the persons authorised to receive them, he must be presumed to have converted them to his own use. A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 566.

—S. 403—Conversion—Offence.

A person obtaining goods of another innocently and disposing of them fraudulently for the benefit of himself or a third person is guilty of conversion. The assuming to oneself the right of disposing another man's property, is itself conversion. 12 Bom. L.R. 316 = 5 Ind. Cas. 457 [On Appeal See 37 Bom. 122 = 17 Ind. Cas. 663 (P.C.)].

6. Conviction and sentence.*—S. 406—Conviction and sentence.

Accused man of position and Secretary of Co-operative Society committing breach of trust.

Held, that the sentence of fine of Rs. 175 and imprisonment till rising of Court inadequate and should be increased. A.I.R. 1943 Sind 164=44 Cr.L.J. 798=208 Ind. Cas. 540.

—S. 409—Conviction and sentence—Trial for embezzlement of deposits—Offences alleged of conspiracy to commit breach of trust and also specific charges with regard to definite sums of money—Splitting of case at trial into four separate trials—Passing of separate sentences in two cases—Propriety.

The offences alleged against the accused (Secretary and Assistant Secretary of Bank) were conspiracy to commit criminal breach of trust and also specific charges with regard to definite sums of money and one charge-sheet was submitted. When the case came on for trial, the prosecution, in spite of the protest of the defence, split up the case to be tried into four separate trials. In the first trial, the Secretary was given three years under S. 409, Indian Penal Code. He was also convicted of conspiracy. No separate sentence was passed upon him. In the second trial, he had been given two years under S. 409, Indian Penal Code. No separate sentence for conspiracy was passed upon him. The Assistant Secretary was given three years under S. 409, in the first trial and four years in the second trial. No separate sentence was passed upon him on the conspiracy charge. The prosecution in the first trial alleged a separate conspiracy to embezzle a particular sum of money. In the second trial, they went a little further and alleged a separate conspiracy to embezzle money coming from a certain bank.

Held, that in framing these charges, the prosecution entirely lost sight of the real nature of the case, but on a technical ground, it must be said that the two conspiracies of which the accused had been found guilty were not the same; but it was so impossible to distinguish them that if different sentences had been imposed, the High Court should most certainly have made them concurrent:

Held, also that the method of proceeding with the prosecution adopted in the case was the most harassing one. Three items might have been selected as the subject-matter of separate charges. Then it would have been possible upon a verdict of guilty to impose a sentence that would be sufficient. There would then have been no necessity for proceeding with the trial of any more charge.

[The method of proceeding with an indefinite number of trials and imposing sentences to take effect one after the other was disapproved.] A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 697=40 Cr.L.J. 90=43 C.W.N. 23=178 Ind. Cas. 576.

—S. 408—Conviction and sentence—Embezzlement of various items—Sessions Judge examining evidence in respect of each item which went to make up total amount of sums embezzled as entered in charge sheet—Sentence.

Where, in a charge under S. 408 the Sessions Judge examines the evidence in respect of each item of money embezzled which went to make up the total amount of the sums embezzled as entered in the charge-sheet in each case, this way of examining the facts being most favourable to the accused, he cannot complain that he has been in any way prejudiced by the manner in which the evidence against him has been scrutinised by the lower Appellate Court:

Held, that as from one point of view the accused was as much sinned against as sinning and in view of the circumstances of the case, the ends of justice would be met by reducing the sentence of imprisonment to that already undergone. A.I.R. 1936 Oudh 376=1936 O.W.N. 607=37 Cr.L.J. 941=164 Ind. Cas. 302.

—Ss. 408, 467 and 477-A—Conviction and sentence—Supervisor of society misappropriating money—Getting affixed to debit entry false thumb-impression—Forgery—Making false debit-entry—Offences.

The accused, the supervisor of a society connected with the co-operative movement, misappropriated and converted to his own use Rs. 2, which represented the pay of a woman who swept and cleaned his office, and he thereby committed an offence under S. 408, Indian Penal Code. At the same time and date, he forged or caused to be affixed to the receipt of the said sweeper woman, a thumb-impression, which was not of that person and thereby committed a forgery punishable under S. 467, Indian Penal Code, and finally he defrauded the Union by making a false debit entry to the effect that the woman had been paid Rs. 2 when no such payment had been made and thereby committed an offence under S. 477-A, Indian Penal Code.

Held, that the necessary element of fraud implying wrongful gain to himself and wrongful loss to the society was proved and the accused was properly convicted. A.I.R. 1935 Bom. 30=36 Bom. L.R. 1120=36 Cr.L.J. 522=154 Ind. Cas. 559.

—S. 409—Conviction and sentence.

Sentence of imprisonment and not of fine only is necessary in a conviction under S. 409. 1935 M.W.N. 474.

—S. 406—Senior member of bar committing criminal breach of trust—Consideration in sentencing him.

The fact that the amount involved is large and the offence has been committed by a member of a legal profession in which the litigating public must repose entire trust and confidence, and the fact that the accused has been a doyen of the Bar aggravates rather than mitigates the offence. In view of these circumstances, the sentence of 18 months' rigorous imprisonment passed by the trial Court would certainly have erred on the side of leniency if it were not on account of the grave consequences that will befall the accused both professionally and socially in consequence of the conviction. These consequences, however, are not the only materials on which a plea for leniency to be shown to the accused can be founded. His great age (60 years), together with his state of health brought on by the great mental strain to which he has been subjected—albeit by his own faults—urges very strongly that further leniency can justly be shown to him without any risk to the ends of justice.

In the above circumstances, it was held that the ends of justice will be amply met by a sentence of nine months, rigorous imprisonment. A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 453=37 Cr.L.J. 190=159 Ind. Cas. 952.

—Ss. 403 and 392—Conviction and sentence—Offence of robbery only technical—Attempt to criminally misappropriate currency notes—Sentence.

D who wanted to send by registered insurance post a letter with five currency notes each of Rs. 100 asked the accused to write the address on the envelope but the accused tried to substitute another envelope in place of the original one and wrote the address on it. D's suspicious having been aroused, he demanded of the accused the original envelope. An alteration ensued and the original envelope containing the currency notes and D's coat were torn. The accused was charged under S. 392, Indian Penal Code, and sentenced to 15 months' rigorous imprisonment :

Held, that the offence of robbery for which the accused could be held guilty was more or less technical and that the accused should really have been charged with attempt to criminally misappropriate the notes and that in the circumstances, the sentence should be reduced to one of six months' rigorous imprisonment. A.I.R. 1933 Sind 139=34 Cr.L.J. 802=144 Ind. Cas. 427.

Where the accused was prosecuted for an offence under S. 409, Indian Penal Code, and only one charge was framed in which four sums of money said to have been embezzled were specified and the Magistrate convicted the accused but passed sentence for each embezzlement and directed that the sentences should run concurrently.

Held, that there was no misjoinder of charges and that the separate sentences though invalid did not prejudice the accused so as to render the conviction liable to be set aside. 1930 A.L.J. 1130=128 Ind. Cas. 595=32 Cr.L.J. 155=52 A. 941=A.I.R. 1931 A. 267.

—S. 408—Conviction and sentence—Charge specifying gross sums as also items misappropriated in one year—Legality of conviction.

Where an accused person is charged under S. 408, Indian Penal Code, with having committed criminal breach of trust in respect of a gross sum of money misappropriated by him within the period of one year and the charge not only specifies the gross sum taken and the dates between which it was taken, but also sets out the items composing such gross sum giving the dates and the amounts alleged to have been misappropriated, the charge comes within the provision of Cl. (2), S. 222, Criminal Procedure Code, and that if by specifying the items composing the gross sums the charge went beyond what was necessary instead of prejudicially affecting the accused it is to that extent favourable to the accused ; 31 Cal. 928, Foll. 34 C.W. —S. 409—Conviction and sentence—Wrong accounts—Wrong account and wrong entry do

Where a person was convicted under S. 408, Indian Penal Code, and was given the benefit of S. 562, Criminal Procedure Code, by the trial Court and by the time the case went to the High Court in revision, considerable time had passed.

Held, that though usually imprisonment should be given in cases of embezzlement, it was not proper to interfere with the Magistrate's discretion after such a length of time. —S. 405—Conviction and sentence—Criminal breach of trust—'Property'—Cancelled cheques.

A cancelled cheque falls within the meaning of the term 'property' as used in S. 405, even if it is worth no more than the value of the paper upon which it is written. In the matter of a conviction for a criminal breach of trust the question of the value of the property in respect of which the breach of trust is committed is, except so far as S. 95 is concerned, quite immaterial. —S. 406—Criminal breach of trust—Transaction of loan and failure to repay—Charge of criminal breach of trust—Sustainability.

When a transaction appears to be merely one of a loan and failure to repay the loan, the offence of criminal breach of trust cannot be held to be made out. A charge of criminal breach of trust cannot be sustained on such facts. 230 Ind. Cas. 154=48 Cr.L.J. 552= A.I.R. 1948 Cal. 1.

—S. 406—Criminal breach of trust—Cloth entrusted to tailor to be made into shirts—Refusal by tailor to deliver them claiming lien for his charges.

A tailor to whom cloth has been handed over to be made into shirts does not commit an offence of criminal breach of trust by refusing to deliver the cloth or the shirt claiming a lien upon them for his charges. If however tender is made of the amount due for making the shirts and they are not delivered, a case of criminal breach of trust may well arise. A.I.R. 1950 Cal. 35=51 Cr.L.J. 336.

—S. 406—Criminal breach of trust—Withdrawal of security deposit by clerk on leaving service without master's consent.

Security deposit is given on terms that it will be refunded when the accounts are submitted and accepted. Clerks or officers who give security deposits cannot determine their own liability in the matter while leaving service, and take what they consider is the balance due to them reckoning their deposits as credits with their master. If they do so without the consent of their master, they may be liable for criminal breach of trust. I.L.R. (1938) 2 Cal. 257, approved. I.L.R. (1946) 1 Cal. 17.

Failure of police constable to return the uniform after he was dismissed from the service—Will be criminal breach of trust if he converts it to his use. 4 A.I.Cr.D. 590.

—Ss. 406 and 408—Criminal breach of trust—Offence under—Essentials of —B manager of A's shop misappropriating money of shop and ornaments pledged with him by faking up dacoity —Money subsequently recovered from places pointed out by B—B held guilty of criminal breach of trust.

A the proprietor of a liquor shop appointed B as the manager of his shop. The iron safe in the shop contained cash of the shop and certain ornaments pledged with B by C. B faked up a dacoity and gave false information to the police that the cash and ornaments in the safe of the shop had been removed by dacoits. The fact was that the cash and ornaments were appropriated by B and hidden at various places from which they were recovered, subsequently on information given by B :

Held, (1) (Per Das and Manohar Lall, JJ.)—B was guilty of criminal breach of trust with regard to the cash and was rightly convicted under S. 408 as his intention was to dishonestly misappropriate the same by staging a faked dacoity. It was the dishonest intention which was essential for the commission of the offence of criminal breach of trust. Whether wrongful gain or loss actually resulted was immaterial. It was a consequence but not essential part of the offence. There might be appropriation be a mental act without any actual expenditure of the money appropriated though the mental appropriation must be established by some overt and visible act but the actual expenditure of the money was not the only proof of it.

(2) (Per Das, J.)—As B wanted to appropriate the ornaments by setting up a false dacoity he was guilty under S. 406 in respect of the ornaments.

Per Manohar Lall, J.—It was doubtful whether B could be convicted under S. 406 in respect of the ornaments in the absence of evidence, as to the person on whom the damage or loss would fall if the pawned articles were stolen by some thieves or dacoits. A.I.R. 1946 Pat. 210=24 Pat. 671 (D.B.).

—S. 405—Criminal breach of trust.

A was a manager of a bank. B was approved as a customer of the bank by A and was allowed to open an overdraft account with the bank on a contract of pledge executed by B which contemplated an overdraft of a certain amount against Government securities. Under the contract, B deposited certain G.P. Notes as security for his overdrafts. These G.P. Notes were caused to be entered in account books of the bank by A but were shortly after handed over by A to B before the amount of overdraft was satisfied pro tanto or completely to enable B to have the benefit of the same in some way or the other (by pledging the same with other banks). A did not cause any entries to be made in the books of the bank to show that the G.P. Notes had been handed back to B and thus allowed a false statement of affairs and deprived the bank of its security against the amount overdrawn by B :

Held, (i) that A committed breach of trust within the meaning of S. 405 ;

(ii) that the fact that A himself was not proved to have made a wrongful gain was immaterial ;

(iii) and that B was guilty of abetting the offence. A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 92=I.L.R. (1943) 1 Cal. 493=45 Cr.L.J. 431=211 Ind. Cas. 574.

—S. 405—Criminal breach of trust.

Person having reasonable claim against another for more than amount belonging to other in his hands—User of this amount for his own purpose does not amount to criminal breach of trust. A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 329=1939 M.W.N. 1213=41 Cr.L.J. 824=190 Ind. Cas. 123.

—S. 405—Criminal breach of trust—Jury should bear in mind difference between civil and criminal liability.

In dealing with a case of criminal breach of trust the jury should bear in mind the difference between civil and criminal liability. A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 329=(1939) M.W.N. 1213=41 Cr.L.J. 824=190 Ind. Cas. 123.

—S. 405—Criminal breach of trust—Essentials.

To constitute an offence of criminal breach of trust, there must be an entrustment; there must be misappropriation or conversion to one's own use or use in violation of any legal direction or of any legal contract, and thirdly, the misappropriation or conversion or disposal must be with a dishonest intention. Every payment of money by one person to another is not entrustment unless there are circumstances attending it from which it can be gathered that it was an entrustment and not a mere payment. Whether in a particular set of circumstances a delivery or passing of property from one to another amounts to an entrustment or not is not a point of law on which the Judge can give a binding direction to the jury. A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 329=1939 M.W.N. 1213=41 Cr.L.J. 824=190 Ind. Cas. 123.

—S. 409—Criminal breach of trust.

Land-owner paying money to lambardar in discharge of his liability for land revenue—Instead of depositing it in Government treasury, lambardar converting it to his own use :

Held, that offence committed was one under S. 409. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 340=I.L.R. (1939) Lah. 119=41 P.L.R. 432=40 Cr.L.J. 910=184 Ind. Cas. 319.

—S. 406—Criminal breach of trust—Case not falling under S. 84—Evidence relating to state of mind at time of commission of crime showing that accused must have been unable to form criminal intention necessary.

Where a court trying a person for an offence of criminal breach of trust finds that the case is not covered by S. 84, Indian Penal Code, it should consider another aspect of the case, namely whether even if S. 84 did not cover the case, the state of mind in which the accused was did not exclude the existence of a dishonest intention which is an essential ingredient of the offence of criminal breach of trust. Evidence is certainly relevant for the purpose of ascertaining whether the petitioner's state of mind rendered it possible and likely for him to have entertained a dishonest intention when he dealt with the moneys entrusted to him. Any other mental state can also be put forward with equal relevancy for the purpose of negating the existence of the criminal intention which is an essential ingredient of the crime under S. 406, Indian Penal Code. A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 407=49 L.W. 160=1939 M.W.N. 726=(1939)-1 M.L.J. 255=40 Cr.L.J. 642=I.L.R. (1939) Mad. 353=182 Ind. Cas. 228.

—Ss. 409, 420, 427—Criminal breach of trust—Cheating.

A case of breach of trust is inconsistent with a case of cheating.

Where the accused deceived the complainant into believing that gold jewels had been pledged in order to get money dishonestly while in fact there had been no pledge and false entries had been made in accounts to support the false representation, the offence is not one under S. 409 but under Ss. 420, 467, Indian Penal Code. 1937 M.W.N. 729.

—S. 405—Criminal breach of trust—Ingredients.

The offence of criminal breach of trust consists in a person dishonestly misappropriating or converting entrusted property to his own use or dishonestly using or disposing of that property in violation of any direction of law or of any legal contract, and it is the dishonest misappropriation or conversion or user or disposal as the case may be, that is the essence of the offence. A.I.R. 1937 Sind 68=38 Cr.L.J. 512=31 S.L.R. 123=168 Ind. Cas. 89 (F.B.).

—S. 405—Criminal breach of trust—Held, on facts that offence was committed.

Where the accused charged with an offence under S. 405, gave an explanation which was found to be entirely false and it appeared that the keys of the record room were in a stranger's possession with the connivance and complicity of the accused for the purpose for which they were used, that is to say, for giving access corruptly to records and dishonesty was clearly established :

Held, that the fact that the accused himself did not misappropriate or use or dispose of any record in violation of his trust was immaterial and the second part of the definition in S. 405, brought home the offence to the accused. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 108=2 B.R. 153=37 Cr.L.J. 219=160 Ind. Cas. 12.

—S. 408—Criminal breach of trust—Held, on evidence that offence was committed and verdict of 'not guilty' of jury was perverse.

It was proved that the accused who was a clerk in a College did handle moneys paid by students as tuition fee and it was his duty to receive the money and to enter up such receipts in the Income Register and in the Cash Book and to pay the moneys shown in the Cash Book into the account of the College at the Imperial Bank. It was also proved that on the days in question, he had received sums of money as tuition fees and had correctly entered such sums in the Income Register. It was further proved that he had made false entries in the Cash Book and had paid lesser sums into the Bank. His subsequent conduct in absconding and using another name was entirely consistent with his guilt :

Held, that the verdict of not guilty given by the jury in these circumstances and in the face of the above facts placed before them was clearly perverse and that the accused stood guilty of an offence under S. 408, Indian Penal Code. A.I.R. 1935 All. 970=1935 A.W.R. 988=1935 A.L.J. 1019=37 Cr.L.J. 135=159 Ind. Cas. 621.

—S. 406—Criminal breach of trust.

Where a person is entrusted with property attached by an order of a Civil Court and he deliberately refuses to produce the property when called upon to do so, his conduct amounts to a repudiation of his trust and he is guilty of criminal breach of trust punishable under S. 406, Indian Penal Code. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 31=36 Cr.L.J. 119=152 Ind. Cas. 513.

—S. 405—Criminal breach of trust—Ingredients.

It is incumbent upon the prosecution in a case under S. 405, Indian Penal Code, in order to establish the charge against the accused to prove that he was entrusted with the sum and that he dishonestly misappropriated or converted to his own use this sum or thereabouts. A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 453=37 Cr.L.J. 190=159 Ind. Cas. 953.

—S. 405—Criminal breach of trust—Dishonest user of cattle—Supurdnama—Accused willing to produce cattle.

Where a person was convicted under S. 405, Indian Penal Code, for dishonestly using certain cattle in violation of the supurdnama entered into by him and it appeared that he had brought the cattle in question to the Tahsil and was willing to produce them :

Held, that under the circumstances he could not be held to have dishonestly used them in violation of the terms of the supurdnama and his conviction should be set aside. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 235 (1)=34 P.L.R. 883=34 Cr.L.J. 1163 (1)=145 Ind. Cas. 936.

—S. 409—Criminal breach of trust—Lambardar—Failure to pay amounts collected to treasury, whether amounts to criminal breach of trust.

A lambardar who was responsible for the collection of land revenue amounting to Rs. 118-14-9 and who should have paid this amount into the treasury by the 6th June, 1930, paid nothing till the 7th August. When he was approached by a Police Officer sent by the Tahsildar, he paid only Rs. 33 though he had collected Rs. 49. The amounts collected were, however, deposited in a safe place. The lambardar was prosecuted for criminal breach of trusts:

Held, that the slackness of the lambardar in remitting the amounts collected to the treasury did not amount to criminal breach of trust and he could not be convicted under S. 409, Indian Penal Code. A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 468=22 Cr.L.J. 811=131 Ind. Cas. 910.

—S. 408—Criminal breach of trust—Delay in remitting—If breach of trust.

Where the accused did not convert the money to his own use, there was no falsification of accounts and the delay in making the remittances was explainable by an assignment of goods:

Held, that in these circumstances mere delay in making the remittance did not amount to criminal breach of trust. 106 Ind. Cas. 682=29 Cr.L.J. 90=9 A.I.Cr.R. 350 (Pat.).

—S. 408—Criminal breach of trust—Legality of finding—Absence of definiteness of sum misappropriated—Effect of Criminal Procedure Code, S. 222 (2).

The case was one of criminal misappropriation. As to the amount embezzled, the jury were not unanimous and they said they were not able to ascertain it definitely, but the majority of them were of opinion that it might be a thousand rupees or so out of the amount mentioned in the charge. The Judge agreed in the verdict. He, however, was of opinion that the amount embezzled was not a thousand rupees or so but nearly rupees five thousand. He accepted the verdict and convicted the accused.

Held, that the object of the amendment made by the introduction of sub-section (2) to Section 222, Criminal Procedure Code was "not to amend the Indian Penal Code, but merely to get rid of a technical difficulty in framing a formal document, viz., the charge." By this amendment the procedural law was altered to meet two difficulties. Under the law as it stood before, there was very great difficulty in convicting where there was a running account and where the prosecution was unable to put their hands on a specific item of which the particular sum was embezzled or to which it was attributable. The other difficulty was that under section 234, Criminal Procedure Code, it was not allowed to have more than three offences of the same kind, and so the charge could not legally stand. The law on these two points was altered and altered for the better. It was not intended either to throw the onus on the accused by bringing a charge against him of a deficiency in his accounts or to do away with the necessity of proving the elements of the offence as laid down in the Indian Penal Code.

The offence of criminal breach of trust involves entrustment or dominion over property and dishonest misappropriation, conversion, use or disposal thereof. It is not possible to find these elements unless one can form a conception as to what the property is. There must therefore be a definite finding of a certain definite sum traced to the accused in order to form the basis of his conviction. 85 Ind. Cas. 372=40 C.L.J. 555=29 C.W.N. 54=26 Cr.L.J. 532=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 260.

—S. 405—Criminal breach of trust—Transfer of money from another's account to one's own—No actual taking—Nature of offence.

In order to establish a charge of dishonest misappropriation of criminal breach of trust it is not necessary that the accused should have actually taken tangible property such as cash from the possession of another and transferred it to his own possession. The transfer of certain amount from the account of another to one's own account is sufficient to constitute the offence. 98 Ind. Cas. 599=27 Cr.L.J. 1383=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 38.

—S. 409—Breach of trust, what is—War bond entrusted to Bank for sale—Endorsement by owner in favour of Bank—Bank dealing with bond contrary to instructions of endorser—Offence.

A Municipal Committee handed over a war bond to a Bank with instructions to sell it at its market value and to remit the sale proceeds to the Committee. The bond was endorsed in favour of the Bank in order to facilitate its sale. Instead of selling the war bond, according to instructions received by the Bank, the directors of the Bank pledged it with another Bank against cash payment and that amount was utilized by the directors to meet some urgent demands made on their Bank as the Bank was short of cash at that time and the customers were pressing for payment.

Held, that the property in the bond as between the Municipal Committee and the Bank was still retained by the Municipal Committee and did not vest in the Bank. By making use of the bond in a manner which was contrary to the conditions under which it was entrusted to the Bank the directors, who knew of the fact, caused unlawful loss to the Municipal Committee and unlawful gain to the Bank and were guilty under S. 409. 98 Ind. Cas. 599=27 Cr.L.J. 1383=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 385.

—S. 409—Criminal breach of trust—Accepting brokerage—President purchasing articles for Municipality and taking brokerage from vendor—If offence.

A President of Municipality purchased some articles for the Municipality and after its price was paid, got a certain amount from the vendor as brokerage for which he gave the vendor a receipt.

Held, that the President was not guilty of criminal breach of trust as this brokerage, commission of discount was paid for his own personal use and no for the benefit of the Municipal Committee. 97 Ind. Cas. 64=4 Rang. 128=27 Cr.L.J. 1088=A.I.R. 1926 Rang. 171.

—S. 406—Criminal breach of trust—What is—Unpaid vendor—Sale by vendee—When offence.

Disposal, prior to payment to vendor, by vendee of goods given him under an arrangement that property in them should pass to him on payment is an offence. 82 Ind. Cas. 163=51 Cal. 796=25 Cr.L.J. 1235=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 816.

—S. 405—Criminal breach of trust.

Loss to the principal or anybody else is by no means a necessary ingredient of the offence. 32 Bom. L.R. 1195=129 Ind. Cas. 385=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 490. (F.B.).

—Ss. 403, 405 and 408—Criminal breach of trust—Clerk with power to receive and deposit money in treasury.

A misappropriation of a sum by a clerk of an estate service with a power to receive and deposit the same in the treasury gives rise to an offence of the criminal breach of trust falling under S. 405 and calls for a conviction under S. 408 of the Penal Code. (1920) M.W.N. 518=12 L.W. 295=58 Ind. Cas. 324.

—S. 409—Criminal breach of trust—Cash certificates—Payment of less than due.

A Sub-Postmaster was asked to make payments for some cash certificates. The value of each certificate was Rs. 8-2-6 and this amount was paid by the Government but the accused paid Rs. 7-2-6 each and himself appropriated the balance.

Held, that the accused was guilty of criminal breach of trust within S. 409, Indian Penal Code, 10 Bom. 256, not Foll. 42 All. 204=18 A.L.J. 93=24 Cr.L.J. 316=2 U.P.L.R. (All.) 51=55 Ind. Cas. 476.

—S. 406—Criminal breach of trust—Necessary elements.

Complainant paid off a debt due to accused on condition that he should return the bond, but he refused to do so and denied payment.

Held, there was no trust which would bring the case within the terms of S. 406. 22 C.W.N. 1005=20 Cr.L.J. 151=49 Ind. Cas. 343.

—Ss. 403 and 406—Criminal breach of trust—Agent's refusal to return money received on behalf of principal.

Where an agent received money on behalf of his principal, the money so received is the property of, and is owned by, the principal. If the agent refuses at the request of the person paying the money to refund it he is not criminally liable, and, consequently cannot be prosecuted for the offence of a criminal breach of trust. The gist of that offence is the dishonest misappropriation or the conversion by one to his own use of the property of another which has been entrusted to him. 20 Cr.L.J. 654=52 Ind. Cas. 430 (Pat.).

—Ss. 406 and 206—Criminal breach of trust—Hire purchase agreement—Sale of property hired.

A sale of property by a hirer under a hire purchase agreement, under which title to property rests in the complainant till payment of full purchase-money and which prohibited any disposition of it, if made after a decree of Civil Court for unpaid purchase-money, is not a criminal breach of trust, the decree operating as a merger of the original agreement. It seems that proceedings under S. 206, Indian Penal Code could be taken with the sanction of Court which passed the decree against the accused. 18 Cr.L.J. 728=40 Ind. Cas. 728 (Cal.).

—S. 406—Criminal breach of trust.

Whilst a hire-purchase agreement was in force the accused pledged the car to different persons on three different occasions.

Held: that the pledging of the car by the accused was a violation of the legal contract made by him in regard to the hire of the car and violation was dishonest. The accused was guilty of the criminal breach of trust as he obtained moneys on the security of the motor car. 17 Bom. L.R. 670=16 Cr.L.J. 665=30 Ind. Cas. 649.

—S. 406—Criminal breach of trust—Hire purchase agreement—Installments—Sale of articles hired.

Where a hirer under a hire purchase agreement sells the article hired, he is guilty of criminal breach of trust. (1894) 2 Q.B. 262; 63 L.J.Q. B. 577, Foll. 7 Bur. L.T. 222=7 L.B.R. 298=15 Cr.L.J. 425=24 Ind. Cas. 161.

—S. 406—Applying money entrusted for other purposes—Whether criminal breach of trust.

The accused receiving money from the complainant on condition that he would purchase a motor car, sell it and return her the money with half the profits, but applying the money for other purposes, is not guilty of criminal breach of trust. 12 A.L.J. 730=15 Cr.L.J. 284=23 Ind. Cas. 492.

—S. 405—Criminal breach of trust—Essentials of offence.

The offence of criminal breach of trust is completed by the misappropriation or conversion of the property with the intention of causing wrongful gain or wrongful loss. It is the intention which is essential and not whether wrongful loss or wrongful gain is actually caused. 38 Mad. 639=16 M.L.T. 505=(1914) M.W.N. 894=15 Cr.L.J. 688=29 M.L.J. 175=26 Ind. Cas. 136.

—S. 406—Criminal breach of trust—Essentials—Proof of offence—Procedure.

Special provisions are made in S. 222 (2), Criminal Procedure Code for a charge of criminal breach of trust. They must be strictly observed and proof must be given that the offence was completed between the dates given. Default in it cannot be cured by S. 537. Any completed act is necessary to constitute the offence of criminal breach of trust. 17 C.W.N. 479=14 Cr.L.J. 219=19 Ind. Cas. 315.

—S. 408—Servant of a firm making false representation to the manager—Criminal breach of trust.

A servant of a firm who gets money from the manager on the pretence that it was required for paying the coolies and misappropriates it, is guilty of the offence under S. 408 as the accused was entrusted with the money for the master's benefit. 22 M.L.J. 112=10 M.L.T. 917=13 Cr.L.J. 15=13 Ind. Cas. 108.

—S. 406—Criminal breach of trust—Advance taken on pro-note promising to buy paddy for firm making advance.

The accused took an advance from a trading firm on pro-note promising in writing to use the money solely in buying paddy and to deliver it to the firm, within a certain period at the market rate, the value to be credited to loan.

Held, that such dealing is a loan pure and simple with undertaking to buy and sell paddy; that the advance was made and taken as for the benefit of both the person as well as the firm and that as the accused was owner of the money, there was no criminal breach of trust. 5 Bur. L.T. 11=6 L.B.R. 46=13 Cr.L.J. 269=14 Ind. Cas. 653.

— S. 405—Criminal breach of trust—Money advanced for purchase of paddy—Whether trust is created.

A a paddy dealer, agreed with B, to supply B with certain baskets of paddys; the same day, B advanced A Rs. 10,000 to obtain this paddy. A promised to use this sum to the purchase of paddy for B. Simultaneously, A executed five promissory notes for Rs. 2,000 each in favour of B bearing no interest.

Held, that the transaction created the relationship of debtor and creditor between A and B and no trust was created within S. 405. Per Fox, C.J.—The property for which criminal breach of trust is committed must be either the property of some person other than the person accused, and the offender should hold the property on trust for such other person. Mere breach of contract is not criminal breach of trust. Per Ormond, J.—In a prosecution for criminal breach of trust, trust must be established beyond all doubt. 5 Bur. The fact that the complainant had agreed to give the accused time to repay money misappropriated is no ground for the acquittal of the accused who is charged under S. 406, Indian Penal Code. 6 A.L.J. 758=10 Cr.L.J. 417=3 Ind. Cas. 908.

— S. 406—Criminal breach of trust—Money entrusted for particular purpose—Failure to account.

If a person fails to account for money entrusted to him for a particular purpose, he is guilty of criminal breach of trust. Dishonest misappropriation may sometimes be inferred from the circumstances without direct evidence. 4 Ind. Cas. 762 (U.B.).

— S. 405—Criminal breach of trust—Dishonestly misappropriates—Essentials.

Held, that the bare refusal by the accused to allow the removal of a box deposited in his house by the complainant unless the debt due to him by the complainant is paid, did not amount to a criminal breach of trust. (1907) 17 M.L.J. 413.

— S. 405—Criminal breach of trust—Using printing blocks unauthorisedly. —‘User’—‘Dishonestly’.

Where a person entrusted with blocks for printing a catalogue used them for printing a catalogue for a person other than the giver.

Held, that a contract not to use the blocks for purposes other than those of the giver must be implied, and that the use in the case was, therefore, unauthorised, and that as it produced wrongful gain to a substantial extent to the other person for whom they were used, the user was dishonest and that an offence of criminal breach of trust had been committed by the person so entrusted. (1901) 6 C.W.N. 203.

— S. 406—Criminal breach of trust—Property claimed by a third party—Finding claim false—Dishonest intention.

Where A and others employed the accused to sell paddy for them and paddy was sold and one A and N claimed a portion of the sale proceeds exclusively, and N during the trial had brought a suit for it, the High Court:

Held, there was no criminal breach of trust, even though the two lower courts had found that N's claim was false. (1900) 28 C. 362.

8. Criminal misappropriation.

— S. 403—Criminal misappropriation.

If the person who takes cattle scattered on account of cheeta scare subsequently retains it intending to treat it at his own, then he will be guilty of criminal misappropriation. 1944 Mad. 26=(1943) 2 M.L.J. 334=56 L.W. 547=1943 M.W.N. 580=45 Cr.L.J. 220=210 Ind. Cas. 315.

— S. 403—Criminal misappropriation—What is.

Misappropriation is the wrongful setting apart or assigning of a sum of money to a purpose or use to which it should not be lawfully assigned or set apart.

[Duty of prosecution explained.] A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 329=1939 M.W.N. 1213=41 Cr.L.J. 824=190 Ind. Cas. 123.

— S. 403—Criminal misappropriation.

Employee withdrawing security amount deposited by him without employer's permission and before adjustment of accounts :

Held, that the withdrawal amounts to criminal misappropriation. A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 451=42 C.W.N. 618=39 Cr.L.J. 691=1 L.R. (1933) 2 Cal. 257=176 Ind. Cas. 126.

— S. 409—Criminal misappropriation—Mere non-production of money, whether amounts to criminal misappropriation.

Except in exceptional circumstances, which themselves indicate the dishonest intention of the accused, mere non-production of money which is rightfully in the hands of the accused will not amount to the crime of misappropriation. There must be something to prove dishonesty. Such dishonesty, of course, may be inferred from the surrounding circumstances, and the terms upon which the accused had the money on his possession. 164 Ind. Cas. 270=40 C.W.N. 128=37 Cr.L.J. 904.

— S. 403—Criminal misappropriation.

In order to constitute the offence of criminal misappropriation, the property must have come into the possession of the accused innocently in the first instance. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 471=38 Cr.L.J. 48=165 Ind. Cas. 596.

Appropriation of money drawn from the Bank for payment of particular bill, towards payment of another

—S. 403—Criminal misappropriation—Trying to sell missing bullock found by accused.

A's bullock which was missing was found in the possession of B. B had tried to sell it to C who later on refused to purchase it thinking that it was acquired by B by theft.

Held, that offence under S. 403 was committed by B. B knew that the bullock did not belong to him. He did not make any inquiry as to real owner but set up a title to the bullock himself and tried to dispose of it with a view to make a wrongful gain to himself and a wrongful loss to the original owner. His act therefore amounted to dishonest misappropriation or conversion to his own use within the meaning of S. 403: 36 P.W.R. 1911, Cr. Rel. on. 119 Ind. Cas. 863=10 L.R.A. —S. 403—Criminal misappropriation—Railway Claims Inspector realising sale-proceeds of certain bags of goat-skins but not paying to railway—Nature of offence.

The duty of a Claims Inspector of a Railway Company was to investigate claims and to report what arrangements he could make with persons making claims against the railway. He arranged, with the representative of a firm which had submitted a claim against the railway for loss of certain bags of goat skins, to sell certain other bags of skins in addition to the bags sold to him by the A. T. S. and received from him a certain sum in payment, for the bags of skins. He never credited the money to the railway.

Held, that he was guilty of the offence of criminal misappropriation under S. 403 and not under S. 408. 99 Ind. Cas. 593=8 L.L.J. 515=28 Cr.L.J. 161.

—S. 403—Criminal misappropriation—Postmaster opening a V. P. article addressed to himself and extracting a railway receipt from it without paying for it for six days and making false entries in the P. O. books—Nature of offence.

A branch postmaster who was also a shop keeper ordered a consignment of flour in order to meet the requirements of his shop and a value-payable envelope containing the railway receipt for the flour arrived at the branch post office. The postmaster opened it extracted the railway receipt, went down the station where the goods had by that time arrived, and took delivery. After six days he paid the price of the goods into the post office. In the meantime he made in the books of the post office entries and repeated daily "on account of the absence of the addressee."

Held, that, although the offence was a technical one in the sense that no loss was incurred by the post office and the money involved was voluntarily returned, it amounted to criminal misappropriation within the meaning of S. 403, Indian Penal Code, and the postmaster was guilty under S. 52. Post Office Act: 109 Ind. Cas. 236=8 Lah. 662=29 P.L.R. 151=29 Cr.L.J. 508=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 92.

—S. 406—Misappropriation and breach of trust—Re-payment on demand—Inference as to guilt.

It is a possible view that an accused is guilty of criminal breach of trust between the misappropriation and the re-payment, but Court, should be slow when re-payment is at once made on demand to assume guilt in accused person. Criminal liability is not the same as civil liability: (1914) A.C. 221, Rel. on. 97 Ind. Cas. 1041=27 Cr.L.J. 1217=21 S.L.R. 55=A.I.R. 1927 Sind 28.

—S. 403 — Criminal misappropriation—Essentials—Setting apart for use of another—If misappropriation.

If a person sets apart an article for the use of another person, of which article he is a trustee, he misappropriates it, even though he has not put it to his own use. S. 403 is in no way restricted to appropriating property to one's own use. If a trustee repudiates the trust and asserts that he now holds the property on behalf of a person other than the one who entrusted him with it, he misappropriated the property just as much as he would have been said to misappropriate it if he had been putting forward his own claim to it. 92 Ind. —S. 403—Criminal misappropriation—Dishonest detention of property—Letter thrown away by owner.

A letter was addressed to complainant who received and read it and then throw it on a table at which he and the accused were seated. The accused picked up the letter and produced it in Court in a proceeding between the complainant and his wife for judicial separation. The court refused to receive it and returned it to the accused.

Held, that the essential ingredient for the offence of criminal misappropriation being proof of disappropriation or conversion to the use of the accused, the offence was not made out in respect of the letter. Quære: Whether the letter, the subject of the charge, was, under the circumstances 'property' at all. 40 All. 119=16 A.L.J. 12=19 Cr.L.J. 174=43 Ind. —S. 403—Criminal misappropriation—Essentials of the offence—Dishonest motive—Overt acts, if necessary.

The chief elements for a conviction under S. 403 is the dishonest misappropriation or conversion to one's own use. In the absence of any overt act on the part of the accused no dishonest motive can be imputed to him simply because he has detained certain documents in his custody. 19 Cr.L.J. 943=47 Ind. ### 9. Dishonest intention.

—S. 405—Dishonest intention.

Where, in the case of an accused tried for criminal breach of trust the evidence relating to his state of mind at the time of the commission of the crime clearly shows that due to particular kind of unsoundness of mind, he must have been unable to form the criminal intention of causing wrongful loss or gain, he cannot be held guilty of the offence with which he is charged. A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 407=49 L.W. 160=1939 M.W.N. 126=(1939)-1 M.L.J. 255=40 Cr.L.J. 642=I.L.R. (1939) Mad. 353=132 Ind. Cas. 228.

—S. 405—Dishonest intention—Trust—Trust receipt—Passing of property to purchaser—Decisive test in cases of breach of trust—Criminal intent, how to be ascertained—Purchaser under trust receipt, when guilty of breach of trust—Purchaser, held had no criminal intent under S. 405—Trust receipt, nature of.

The question whether the property in the goods has or has not passed to the purchaser is relevant to the decision of cases under S. 406 or S. 409, Indian Penal Code, but it is not necessarily decisive. The decisive test is whether there was an entrustment within the meaning of S. 405, Indian Penal Code, and the necessary criminal intent. The property in the goods may have passed to the purchaser; he is, therefore, the legal owner but he may nevertheless constitute himself a trustee of these goods for another, including the seller, who thereby becomes the beneficial owner. The phrase, however, 'that a man cannot commit criminal breach of trust of his own property,' requires some qualification. It is true, provided the person is the legal and beneficial owner, and the whole aggregate of rights of ownership are vested in him. It is not, of course, true if the legal ownership only is vested in him. Therefore, if the property in the goods does and is intended to pass under the documents called trust receipts, it is still possible that the purchaser may constitute himself a trustee of goods that are now his, for the seller. However, it cannot well be said that a person has the requisite criminal intent when it is doubtful whether the property has or has not passed, whether he is entrusted with the goods under the terms of a trust agency, or whether there is an out and out sale, whether by cash or credit, with the property in the goods passing. But, if it is clear that the trust receipt is, what it is really intended to be, a trust agency, whereby the buyer binds himself to sell the goods on behalf of the seller and is entrusted with the goods under certain clear terms and conditions, there is an entrustment within the meaning of S. 405, Indian Penal Code, and if there be a violation of the terms and conditions of the entrustment with the necessary intent, there can be a conviction for criminal breach of trust.

Where, in a case, the seller had never seriously directed his mind to the words of the trust receipt at all, that he never contemplated that its terms would be complied with and all he thought that it secured was due payment of the purchase price at due date and the purchaser took delivery of goods but did not pay the purchase price either on the date mentioned in the trust receipt or afterwards :

Held, that the purchaser could not be said to have criminal intent required by S. 405, Indian Penal Code, as, whatever be the legal relation established by the trust receipt, the purchaser had good reason to believe that he was the purchaser of the goods in the ordinary sense of the term, that the property or the goods had passed to him on delivery, and that all he had to do was to pay the draft on due date.

Obiters.—The trust receipts are not intended to pass the property in the goods purchased, but to give the purchaser limited right of disposal pending the payment of the full purchase price. A.I.R. 1939 Sind 1=40 Cr.L.J. 173=I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 248=179 Ind. Cas. 135.

—S. 408—Dishonest intention—Employee furnishing security—At time of leaving service, withdrawing the amount.

Held, there was no dishonest intention. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 520=38 Cr.L.J. 56=165 Ind. Cas. 720.

—S. 408—Dishonest intention—Failure to credit money in treasury.

In cases under S. 148, Courts should be slow to presume dishonesty. Dishonesty cannot always be implied from the occasional failure of a servant immediately to credit into the treasury amounts recovered by him in the discharge of his official duties. A.I.R. 1936 Nag. 160=I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 38=39 Cr.L.J. 349=173 Ind. Cas. 639.

—S. 405—Dishonest intention—Dishonesty, established.

To establish dishonesty, it is not necessary that the prosecution should establish an intention to retain permanently the property misappropriated. An intention wrongfully to deprive the owner of the use of the property for a time and to secure the use of the property for his own benefit for a time may be sufficient.

A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 350=15 Pat. 108=17 P.L.T. 302=2 B.R. 696=37 Cr.L.J. 877=164 Ind. Cas. 74.

—S. 405—Dishonest intention—The definition of criminal breach of trust in S. 405, Indian Penal Code, penalises a dishonest misappropriation or conversion or dishonest use or disposal of property in an improper manner, that is to say, dishonesty is an essential ingredient in the offence and must be proved. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 350=15 Pat. 108=17 P.L.T. 302=2 B.R. 696=37 Cr.L.J. 877=164 Ind. Cas. 74.

—S. 409—Dishonest intention—Precise manner of misappropriation, if to be proved—Charge under—Whether can be framed with reference to date of overt act by which intention is manifested.

It is not necessary or possible in every case of criminal breach of trust to prove in what precise manner the money was spent or appropriated by the accused, because under the law even temporary retention is an offence provided that it is dishonest; but the essential thing to be proved in case of criminal breach of trust is whether the accused was actuated by dishonest intentions or not. As the question of intention is not a matter of direct proof, the Courts have from time to time laid down certain broad tests which would generally afford useful guidance in deciding whether in a particular case the accused had mens rea for the crime. So, in cases of criminal breach of trust, the failure to account for the money proved to have been received by the accused or giving a false account as to its use is generally considered to be a strong circumstance against the accused. The mental act or intent to deprive the master of his property is the gist of the offence.

Section 409, Indian Penal Code, does not require that he should be still an agent at the time of committing the breach of trust. The gist of the offence being the mental act of the accused, it is beyond the power of any other person to give direct proof of the act or of its; the prosecutor, in asking the Court to frame a charge, is entitled to refer to the date of the overt act by which that intention is manifested and put into effect, and on which he relies as proof of the misappropriation. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 350=15 Pat. 108=17 P.L.T. 302=2 B.R. 696=37 Cr.L.J. 877=164 Ind. Cas. 74.

—S. 408—Dishonest intention—Agent collecting rent—Complainant refusing to accept rents collected unless whole sum was paid—Salary due to accused—Right of accused to retain collections until payment of salary—Absence of proof of dishonest intention:

—Ss. 405 and 24—Dishonest intention—Another's money used contrary to purpose for which it was given.

Where a person makes use of money belonging to another without the latter's consent, and contrary to the purpose for which possession thereof has been given by the latter to the former, the intention of the person so making use of that money must prima facie be dishonest within the meaning of S. 24, Indian Penal Code. A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 453=37 Cr.L.J. 190=159 Ind. Cas. 952.

—Ss. 403 and 405—Dishonest intention—All that is necessary for an offence under S. 403 is that there should be misappropriation or conversion with the intention of causing wrongful gain or wrongful loss. It is not necessary that loss or gain should have actually accrued before the offence is completed. All that is required is that there should be an intention of causing such gain or loss which would amount to dishonesty. A.I.R. 1934 All. 499=1934 A.L.J. 308=35 Cr.L.J. 982=3 A.W.R. 506=56 All. 1047=149 Ind. Cas. 420(F.B.).

—S. 405—Dishonest intention—Intention is the crux of the cases of criminal breach of trust. 1933 M.W.N. 246.

—S. 406—Dishonest intention—Too narrow an interpretation not to be placed on the word 'dishonest.'

Where, in payment for certain cloth valued at Rs. 43-12-0 purchased from the accused, the complainant sent him a hundred rupee note but the accused did not send back any change alleging that money was due to him and refusing to give the change until the account was settled:

Held, that no offence under S. 406, Indian Penal Code, was committed, inasmuch as the conduct of the accused was not dishonest.

Too narrow an interpretation should not be placed on the word dishonest so as to lead to substantial injustice. A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 554=34 Cr.L.J. 915=144 Ind. Cas. 918.

—S. 409—Dishonest intention—Elements of the offence—Meter installed by Electric Company—Failure to produce meter on a particular date.

In order to establish an offence under S. 406, Penal Code, it must be proved that the accused dishonestly misappropriated or converted to his own use the property entrusted to him or dishonestly used or disposed of that property in the manner provided in the section.

A person on whose premises an Electric Company has installed a meter is responsible for the price of the meter which the Company may realise from the deposit which they hold in his name. But the mere failure of that person to produce the meter does not itself constitute an offence of criminal breach of trust under S. 406, Penal Code. The words of the section do not embrace the case of a man who has taken an article on hire and fails to produce it. Evidence that he acted dishonestly is essential to make him criminally liable. A.I.R. 1932 All. 324=1932 A.L.J. 213=33 Cr.L.J. 866=140 Ind. Cas. 78.

—S. 408—Dishonest intention—Gist of offence—Dishonest misappropriation—Mere delay in payment—Effect.

Mere retention of money or mere failure to return it does not necessarily raise a presumption of dishonest misappropriation. The mere fact that the payment was delayed is no ground for imputing a criminal intention. Though the ingredients of the offence of criminal breach of trust are somewhat broadly stated, there is no doubt as to their meaning. The sections dealing with the offence of criminal breach of trust were intended to punish an offence of which dishonesty is the essence. Any breach of trust is not an offence. It may be intentional without being dishonest or it may appear dishonest without being really so. In such cases the Magistrate should be slow to move. This caution is all the more necessary since there is a natural desire to secure speedy justice by having recourse to criminal law: 7 O.W.N. 556=A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 321=126 Ind. Cas. 679.

—S. 409—Dishonest intention—Delay in remitting—Head of office negligent in seeing to the observance of rules about remitting money to treasury—Intention of wrongfully keeping Government out of the money—Offence.

Section 409 cannot properly be construed as involving that any head of an office, who is negligent in seeing that the rules about remitting money to the treasury are observed, is ipso facto guilty of the offence of criminal breach of trust, but something more than that is required to bring home the dishonest intention, which is one of the essentials of a conviction under S. 409. There should be some indication which justifies a finding that the accused definitely had the intention of wrongfully keeping Government out of the money; and ordinarily that would be shown by some overt act, which went beyond mere retention of money that should have been remitted to the treasury. He is guilty of gross dereliction of duty in not seeing that the rules are observed: 11 P.R. 1908, Rel. on. 111 Ind. Cas. 730=30 Bom. L.R. 624=29 Cr.L.J. 922=11 A.I.Cr.R. 82=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 205.

—S. 405—Dishonest intention—Legality of conviction.

Where a President of a Taluk Board drew out certain money from Taluk Board funds on contingent bills in respect of certain works but before they were completed with the object of preventing the moneys from lapsing at the end of the financial year although it was against the Fund Rules to do so.

Held, that the facts were not sufficient to import any dishonest intention and the President could not be convicted of criminal breach of trust. 100 Ind. Cas. 365=28 Cr.L.J. 285=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 533.

—S. 408—Dishonest intention—Intention to deprive master of property.

The mental act or intent to deprive the master of his property is the gist of the offence under S. 408. The accused was engaged as a tonga driver, to drive his tonga on hire within the limits of Ludhiana Municipality. The accused had to bring back the tonga each evening and pay over his earnings while he was to receive a salary of Rs. 15 a month. He did not return one evening, and on the following day was pursued and arrested some 36 or 37 miles from Ludhiana. The accused in his defence at first denied the title of complainant.

—S. 409—Dishonest intention.

The criminal intention in a charge under Indian Penal Code, S. 409, is a matter of inference from proved facts. 87 Ind. Cas. 962=26 Cr.L.J. 1042=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 676.

—S. 406—Dishonest intention—Loss if necessary—Intention to cause loss—Sufficiency.

Loss is not an ingredient of the offence under S. 406 as the intention to cause wrongful loss by itself amounts to dishonesty. 69 Ind. Cas. 631=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 353.

—S. 403—Dishonest intention—Marriage presents retained by accused when marriage was broken off—If offence.

Under an agreement to give the complainant's son to the accused's daughter in marriage, the complainant had presented some jewels and clothes for her betrothal ceremony. The negotiations fell through subsequently and the accused refused to give back the presents on the ground that the complainant had wrongfully broken the engagement and that he, the accused was entitled to retain the jewels.

Held, that no dishonest intention was proved and that therefore no offence under S. 403 was made out. 72 Ind. Cas. 348=24 Cr.L.J. 348=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 57.

—S. 403—Dishonest intention—Accused losing buffalo and a month later tying complainant's buffalo—Intention.

Where the accused kept the buffalo tied up in the verandah of his house which was open to the gaze of the public going about in the street, and the buffalo itself apparently strayed into his house and it is not denied that he himself had a month previously lost a buffalo, and where in appearance this buffalo was very much like that buffalo, and where the accused claimed it as his own as against complainant's assertions.

Held, in these circumstances that finding of the Magistrate that there was dishonest intention cannot be accepted. 17 M.L.W. 157=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 364=44 M.L.J. 128.

Where the reversioner of a mortgagor sold some of the bricks of the mortgaged house which had tumbled down and appropriated the amount and the Magistrate convicted him of criminal misappropriation of property and mischief.

Held, that as no dishonest intention or substantial deterioration of the mortgaged property was shown, the conviction was bad. (1901) 6 C.W.N. 34.

10. Entrustment.

—S. 405—Entrustment—Implied entrustment—Sufficiency.

For the purposes of S. 405, Penal Code, it is not necessary that entrustment should be express. An implied entrustment will suffice. A.I.R. 1950 Ajmer 76.

—S. 409—Entrustment—Money deposited in current account by constituent of bank.

When a person opens a current account in a bank, there is no question of entrustment. The relationship between the bank and the customer is one of creditor and debtor. The bank is free to use the money deposited by the customer or constituent in any way it likes and is not bound to keep the money apart. There can, therefore, be no case against the Bank or any of its officers for committing an offence under S. 409, Indian Penal Code, which presupposes an entrust-ment. 45 C.W.N. 1071 and 51 C.W.N. 427 (P.C.) Rel. on. 1950 Comp. C. 220=A.I.R. 1950 Cal. 57=51 Cr.L.J. 388.

—S. 406—Entrustment—Employee of firm depositing money entrusted to him in his own account.

If an employee of a firm who is entrusted with a specific sum of money for the purpose of crediting the same in the account of the firm, deposits it in his own private account, he is guilty of the offence under S. 406, Indian Penal Code. A.I.R. 1950 Cal. 523=4 A.I.R. Cr. D. 587.

—S. 406—Entrustment—Jeweller instructed to make gold jewel and paid cost of gold, neither delivering jewel nor returning money.

The complainant instructed a jeweller to make a gold chain and paid him the cost of the gold. The jeweller neither delivered the jewel nor returned the money paid to him.

Held, that the money could not be said to have been entrusted to the jeweller and he was therefore not guilty of the offence of criminal breach of trust. It was in fact a payment in advance for the jewel which was to be made. That being so, the money became the money of the jeweller the moment it was paid to him and he could not therefore be said to have misappropriated it. 4 A.I.Cr. D. 775.

—Ss. 405 and 406—Entrustment—Ingredients of offence—Entrustment of property or dominion over it—Absence of—Effect—Person supervising auction and advising auctioneer as to course to be followed but not entrusted with property—Liability of.

Before a person can commit the offence of criminal breach of trust under S. 405, Indian Penal Code, he must be entrusted with the property or with dominion over the property. Where a person is sent to an auction merely as a supervising officer, his duties being to see that the auctioneer did his duty properly and that the interests of the Government (where the auction is of Government property) are properly looked after and to point out to the auctioneer his duty in case earnest money was not paid by a bidder and to see that the auctioneer follows the best course in the interest of the Government, and is not entrusted with the goods to be auctioned or has had no dominion over them, such person cannot be held guilty of an offence under S. 405. The goods being entrusted to the auctioneer the person supervising the auction and merely advising the auctioneer cannot be held guilty of criminal breach of trust and convicted under S. 406 of a criminal conspiracy to commit such offence under S. 406 read with S. 120-B, when the auctioneer himself is not an accused charged or prosecuted. 3 A.I.Cr.D. 672.

—Ss. 406 and 409—Entrustment—Complainant handing over bearer cheque to accused as agent of firm—Accused crediting only portion of amount in firm's account—"Entrustment"—Meaning of.

The complainant who owed money to a firm handed over a bearer cheque drawn in favour of the firm to the accused who was the agent of the firm. The accused cashed the cheque and credited only a portion of the amount in the firm's account. The accused was convicted under S. 409, Indian Penal Code.

Held, (i) that the case could not under any circumstances fall under S. 409, Indian Penal Code, which applied only where an entrustment was made to a public servant or, in the way of business, to a banker, merchant, factor, broker, attorney or agent. The accused did not come within any of the categories referred to above. No doubt he was the servant and agent of the firm, but he was not the agent of the complainant. By merely handing over the cheque to him the complainant did not constitute him as his agent, as he in fact handed over the cheque to him in his capacity as servant and agent of the firm. Therefore, the offence, if any, would fall under S. 405, Indian Penal Code, and be punishable under S. 406, Indian Penal Code;

(ii) that in every offence of criminal breach of trust what must be established initially was the fact of entrustment of money or property. The word "entrusted" in S. 405, Indian Penal Code, was not necessarily a term of law and had different implications in different contexts. Even so, when money was entrusted to an accused person, it should be transferred to him under such circumstances which showed that, notwithstanding its delivery, the property in it continued to vest in the prosecutor and the money remained in the possession or control of the accused as a bailee, and in trust for the prosecutor as bailor, to be restored to him or applied in accordance with his instructions. Under S. 46 of the Negotiable Instruments Act the making of a cheque was complete as soon as it was delivered by the drawer to the payee. The delivery might be actual or constructive. So long as the delivery was made by the person drawing the cheque with the intention of making payment, the property of the drawer in the cheque passed to the payee. The property in the cheque in the present case passed from the complainant to the firm as soon as the cheque was handed over to the accused. There was, therefore, no entrustment of any money by the complainant to the accused, and no offence under S. 406, Indian Penal Code, was therefore committed by the accused;

(iii) that there was civil liability upon the firm to account for the moneys received on their behalf by their agent. So in respect of the loss which the complainant had sustained, he could have a remedy in a Civil Court even though that which caused the loss did not amount to an offence. 1936 Mad. 1 and 1919 Pat. 570, Foll. I.L.R. (1949) Nag. 620=1949 N.L.J. 382.

—S. 405—Entrustment—Offence under—Need for entrustment—Article purchased on permit diverted for another purpose.

Where a permit to purchase an article was granted to the accused on condition that it was to be used in a specified work and the accused diverted and disposed of that article for another purpose, he cannot be convicted of the offence of criminal breach of trust as there was no entrustment of the article in question within the meaning of the term as used in S. 405, Indian Penal Code. The transaction, so far as the accused is concerned, was one of purchase and the property is the article clearly passed to him. The use of the words "in any manner" in S. 405, Indian Penal Code, do not enlarge the term "entrustment" itself and unless there is entrustment, the transaction in question cannot be affected by the terms of the section. I L R. (1947) 1 Cal. 97.

—S. 406—Entrustment—Money paid in discharge of debt and not in trust—Conviction in respect of—Sustainability. 227 Ind. Cas. 443=48 Cr.L.J. 107=13 B.R. 66=I.L.R. 24 Pat. 128=26 P.L.T. 357=A.I.R. 1946 Pat. 125.

—S. 406—Entrustment—Compensation money paid for compromise of case—Case not compromised—Money so paid, if money paid “in trust”.

Where money is paid to a complainant as compensation for the compromise of a criminal case filed by him on condition that it must be returned if the case is not actually compromised, and the case is not subsequently compromised as the Court refused permission, the complainant does not commit any offence under S. 406, Indian Penal Code, by denying that he ever received any compensation, as by no stretch of reasoning can it be said that the compensation money paid to him comes within the definition of money paid in trust. 1 D.R. 79.

A person cannot be said to be entrusted with property within the meaning of S. 405, when he obtains possession by means of a trick. A.I.R. 1942 Sind 167=I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 284=44 Cr.L.J. 123=203 Ind. Cas. 609.

—S. 406—Entrustment.

A trust implies confidence placed by one man in another. It implies necessarily that the confidence was freely given and that there is a true consent. There is no true consent if confidence is obtained as a result of a trick. If there was a trick or deceit, a true consent cannot arise; there can be no entrustment, and no offence under S. 406, Indian Penal Code, because an essential element of the offence is an entrustment. A.I.R. 1942 Sind 167=I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 284=44 Cr.L.J. 123=203 Ind. Cas. 609.

—Ss. 405 and 409—Entrustment—Customer depositing money in Bank in current account—Cheque dishonoured—Officers of Bank, if guilty.

Where customer pays a sum into the current account at a particular bank, the sum becomes, to all intents and purposes, the money of the banker, subject to the liability of the bank to return to the customer an equal sum of money. Having regard to the legal relationship of banker and customer on a current account, the money cannot be said to have been entrusted with the banker in the sense in which the word ‘entrust’ is used in Ss. 405 and 409, Indian Penal Code. If a cheque is dishonoured due to the inability of the bank to pay, the officers of the bank cannot be convicted under S. 409; the only remedy which the customer has is to sue the bank for the balance of his account in the bank, and an action for dishonouring the cheque. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 713=45 C.W.N. 1071=43 Cr.L.J. 451=199 Ind. Cas. 47.

—S. 405—Entrustment—Payment by debtor to creditor.

If the person paying intends to repose trust in the other expecting him to dispose of the money in a particular way, then only there is entrustment. The mere payment by a debtor to a creditor is not entrustment. A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 329=41 Cr.L.J. 824=1939 M.W.N. 1213=190 Ind. Cas. 123.

—S. 405—Entrustment—Criminal breach of trust, if can be committed in respect of one's own property.

Entrustment within the meaning of S. 405, Indian Penal Code, does not necessarily imply actual delivery by the owner of the property to the accused and it cannot be held that a person cannot commit criminal breach of trust of his own property.

A person hypothecated goods in his shop as a collateral security and agreed to hold them and proceeds therefrom in trust and to pay the proceeds receive by him.

Held, that the test in such a case was whether the owner created an equitable charge over the goods in his possession when he executed the trust receipt. If he did so, he held the goods as trustee. It could not be said that by this trust receipt, the owner did not give a beneficial interest in the goods to the other and did not hold the goods, with which he was entrusted a legal owner, in trust. A.I.R. 1938 Sind 73=39 Cr.L.J. 500=174 Ind. Cas. 560.

—S. 409—Entrustment—Existence of trust.

The question whether A entrusted property to B is one which depends upon the actual facts of the case and not merely upon the legal terms employed by the parties. If the real nature of the transaction is a loan, the facts that the parties in writing call it a trust, or agree that for the purposes of the Indian Penal Code, the property in the money shall be deemed to remain in the original owner or agree that the party receiving the money shall be liable for criminal breach of trust if he applies the money to a purpose other than that agreed upon, would not bring that transaction within the scope of S. 405, Indian Penal Code.

The complainant's firm merely financed the accused and his partner in carrying on their business of purchase and sale of gunny bags. As security, the goods were stored in the godown of the complainant for which they had to pay rent and the accused and his partner were required to pay into the complainant's firm, the sale proceeds of the goods. The goods were to be purchased by the accused and his partner in their own names. On moneys advanced by the complainant's firm the accused and his partner had to pay interest. Complainant's firm was to receive commission at the rate of eight annas per 100 bags on sales effected by the accused and his partner. Goods were to be sold by the accused and his partner in their own names. The accused and his partner were solely responsible for the sale proceeds of goods sold ‘if any merchant fails, runs away, dies or the amount of bardan be not recoverable in any other circumstances.’ The accused sold some goods but did not pay the sale proceeds to the firm. He was convicted under S. 409.

Held, that neither the money with which the goods were purchased nor the goods after they had been purchased were the property of the complainant's firm entrusted to the accused and his partner as their agents. There being no trust, the accused could not be convicted under S. 409, Indian Penal Code. A.I.R. 1938 Sind 57=39 Cr.L.J. 399=174 Ind. Cas. 145.

—S. 405—Entrustment.

Per Laxmanarao, J.—The terms of S. 405, Penal Code, are very wide and entrustment may be brought about in any manner.

Per Mockett, J.—There can be no consent by a person who is cheated, and so if there was deceit which prevented any true consent arising, there could be no entrusting; the terms are mutually exclusive. A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 353=1936 M.W.N. 281=43 L.W. 548=70 M.L.J. 635=37 Cr.L.J. 637=162 Ind. Cas. 592 (2) (F.B.).

—S. 405—Entrustment.

There must be ‘entrustment’ in law within the meaning of S. 405 when the property was obtained by cheating. A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 353=43 L.W. 548=1936 M.W.N. 281=70 M.L.J. 635=37 Cr.L.J. 637=162 Ind. Cas. 592 (2) (F.B.).

— S. 405—Entrustment.

Per Cornish, J.—The word “entrusted” should be construed as it occurs in a section of the Penal Code, headed “of criminal breach of trust”. The notion of a trust in the ordinary sense of that word is that there is a person, the trustee or the entrusted in whom confidence is reposed by another who commits property to him; and this again supposes that the confidence is freely given. A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 353=43 L.W. 548=1936 M.W.N. 281=70 M.L.J. 635=37 Cr.L.J. 637=162 Ind. Cas. 592 (2) (F.B.).

— S. 405—Entrustment—Meaning of—Endorsement and delivery of bonds for specific purpose, whether entrustment.

The word ‘entrusted’ is not necessarily a term of law. It may have different implications in different contexts. In its most general significance, all it imports is a handing over of possession for some purpose which may not imply the conferring of any proprietary right at all.

The accused falsely represented to the complainant that they had sent some bonds for rectification to Bombay and as they had not arrived and the last day for completion of contract with a Bank had arrived, requested the complainant to oblige them by giving the complainant's bonds temporarily for a few days, assuring him that his bonds would be returned to him as soon as the bonds sent for rectification were received and the complainant endorsed and delivered to the accused his bonds for this purpose.

Held, that the bonds were not handed over absolutely to the accused but were entrusted to them. A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 1=1935 M.W.N. 914=69 M.L.J. 681=42 L.W. 923=37 Cr.L.J. 142=159 Ind. Cas. 656.

— S. 405—Entrustment—Constable ordered to investigate offence—Property suspected of having been stolen, seized—Constable, if has dominion over property.

Where a head constable is ordered to investigate an offence, in the course of his duty under the provisions of S. 550, Criminal Procedure Code, and the Police Act, it is his duty to seize all property which is suspected of having been stolen. Having seized the property, he is entrusted with dominion over it on behalf of the Crown and if he then misappropriates the property, he clearly commits breach of trust with regard to it and is guilty under S. 409, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1935 Nag. 139=36 Cr.L.J. 867=31 N.L.R. 312=156 Ind. Cas. 184.

— S. 408—Entrustment—Supply of waterproof coat to Railway servant—Condition of renewal on damage or loss—Contract of bailment—Attempt to pawn the garment.

Where a Railway servant is supplied a waterproof coat on condition that if it is damaged or lost, it will be renewed at the cost of the Railway servant, the contract is one of bailment. Delivery of the waterproof coat is an entrustment within the meaning of the Penal Code and when he attempts to pawn the garment, he is liable to conviction under S. 408 read with S. 511, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1934 Rang. 41=35 Cr.L.J. 783 (2)=148 Ind. Cas. 814.

Where property is delivered under a trust, the sale proceeds of the property entrusted are also subject to the trust. A.I.R. 1932 Sind 169=34 Cr.L.J. 51=140 Ind. Cas. 647.

— Ss. 406 and 477—Entrustment—Executor de son tort—Conversion of moneys to his own use, whether amounts to criminal breach of trust—Entrustment, necessity of—‘Secreting, a document, what amounts to.

A person who intermeddles with the estate of a deceased or does any other act which belongs to the office of executor where there is no rightful executor or administrator in existence is made accountable by the civil law to the extent of all assets which may have come to his hands. This, however, is not upon the basis of entrustment but upon the basis that not being entrusted, he had no business to intermeddle and he cannot be convicted for criminal breach of trust even if he did not bona fide believe that he was the real owner of the property.

Where such a person said to one of the legatees ‘you will have your share, wait, do not be anxious’ :

Held, that he did not become a person with whom the legatee had entrusted her share within the meaning of S. 406, Penal Code.

A person may secrete a document not only when the existence of the document is unknown to other persons and for the purpose of preventing the existence of the document coming to the knowledge of any body, but also when the existence of the document is known to others. In the later case, he may secrete it for the purpose, for example, of preventing it being produced in evidence or for the purpose of raising difficulties in the way of its being produced in evidence. But it is not necessarily enough to show that upon an occasion upon which it became his duty to produce the document, he failed to discharge that duty, though this may be a cogent piece of evidence in certain circumstances. The fact that a man perjures himself by denying the existence of a document which, to his knowledge is in his custody would be a still more cogent piece of evidence. But whether the offence of secreting the document is committed or not, must depend in each case upon the fact. A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 184=35 C.W.N. 425=32 Cr.L.J. 836=58 Cal. 1051=132 Ind. Cas. 145 (F.B.).

— S. 409—Entrustment, necessity of.

Where the accused, in the capacity of an accountant of a municipality, put up cheques drawn to self for the Chairman's endorsement persuading the Chairman who was ignorant of English that they were for contractors and drew the money from the treasury and misappropriated it.

Held, that he could not be convicted of an offence under S. 409, Penal Code, as he was not entrusted with any funds. A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 439=1931 M.W.N. 399=32 Cr.L.J. 756=131 Ind. Cas. 461.

— S. 406—Entrustment—Pro-note taken in accused's name—Agreement to use amount in particular way—Breach of agreement, whether amounts to criminal breach of trust—Entrustment, necessity of.

Where A offered to indemnify B against C's demands and in order to secure himself against personal loss, took a promissory note from C's relatives, the intention being that in case C proceeded against B, A could proceed against the makers of the note and recover the amount, and with it indemnify B or re-pay himself :

Held, that as A was the legal owner of the note, though the proceeds of the note were to be used by him in a particular way, there was no entrustment and A could not be convicted for criminal breach of trust merely because he denied the existence of the note or stated that he had returned it to the maker or repudiated his liabilities under the contract of indemnity. A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 235=1930 M.W.N. 790=32 Cr.L.J. 743=131 Ind. Cas. 449.

—S. 405—Entrustment.

The property in respect of which Criminal breach of trust can be committed must be the property of some person other than the accused, or the beneficial interest or ownership of it must be in some other person and the offender must hold such property on trust for such other person or in some other way for his benefit. There can be entrustment and therefore no breach of trust merely because the owner of the property repudiates his obligations or commits other breach of contract in respect of them. 1930 M.W.N. 790=32 Cr.L.J. 743=131 Ind. Cas. 449=A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 235.

—S. 405—Entrustment—Goods entrusted to firm and not to its manager personally—Liability of manager.

A person who is the manager of the firm cannot be held criminally liable for breach of trust where there is no personal entrustment of goods to him but to the firm in respect of which the offence was alleged to have been committed. 1930 Cr. C. 1168=A.I.R. Rang. 332.

—S. 405—Entrustment—Goods entrusted for sale and sale proceeds to be held for the person delivering the goods—If realisation operates as trust.

Where certain goods were entrusted to the accused, and under the contract between him and the complainant he had to sell those goods and obtain money for them, which he would hold on account of the complainant, subject to deduction of certain charges :

Held, that when he received that money, although he did not receive it actually from the complainant, he was "entrusted with" it within the meaning of S. 405. Expl. 41 Cal. 844, Expl. 114 Ind. Cas. 399=30 Cr.L.J. 329=30 Bom. L.R. 1270=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 521.

—S. 405—Entrustment—Transfer of possession—Retention of property.

The expression "entrusted" in S. 405 is used in its legal and not in its figurative or popular use. The section makes no distinction between different kinds of moveable property. If the expression "entrusted" is applied to a thing which is not money it would indubitably indicate that such thing continues to remain the property of the prosecutor during the period in which the accused is permitted to retain its possession or is permitted to have any domain over it. When money is "entrusted" within S. 405 to the accused it should be transferred to him under such circumstances which show that, notwithstanding its delivery, the property in it continues to vest in the prosecutor, and the money remains in the possession or control of the accused as a bailee, and in trust for the prosecutor as bailor, to be restored to him or applied in accordance with his instructions : Case law discussed. 108 Ind. —S. 403—Entrustment—Denial of receipt—Goods delivered in pursuance of contract—Denial of their receipt if an offence.

If goods are delivered to the purchase in pursuance of a contract for purchase, there is no entrustment so as to give rise to a trust and the mere fact that the person denies receipt of goods does not render him guilty either under S. 406, the matter being one purely in the nature of a civil dispute. 72 Ind. Cas. 172=24 Cr.L.J. 332=A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 516.

—S. 405—Entrustment—Booking clerk recovering excess charge illegally—Railway Co. not credited—If breach of any trust.

The accused as booking clerk recovered in excess of the legal charge but did not credit it to the Railway.

Held, he could not be convicted of the offence under S. 405. A trustee is a person in whom the legal interest in property is vested, the beneficial interest vesting in some other person. In the present case both interests vested in the accused who cannot therefore be a trustee and as said could not commit Criminal Breach of trust. 75 Ind. Cas. 79=6 L.L.J. 125=24 Cr.L.J. 879=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 295.

—S. 405—Entrustment—Money entrusted to Broker—Broker to bear all loss.

When a company advanced money to a broker with a condition that it shall be used in a particular way, that the broker shall be responsible for the payment of the money and that he shall indemnify the company against all loss,

Held, by the Full Bench, that the money was not "entrusted" to the broker within S. 405 of the Penal Code. (Hartnoll, Offg. C.J., dissenting.)

Per Ormond, J.—The Penal Code cannot be altered by agreement of parties so as to make S. 405 applicable to a transaction, which is in its real nature, a loan.

Per Twomey, J.—A man cannot commit criminal misappropriation of his own property. 7 L.B.R. 278=15 Cr.L.J. 452=7 Bur.L.T. 209=24 Ind. Cas. 332 (F.B.).

Where money was advanced to the accused for the purchase of paddy for sale to the person advancing the money at the market rate, on the day of delivery, the property in the money passed to the accused and his contract to use the money in a particular way would not operate to create a constructive trust. The presence or absence of pro-notes does not affect the character of the transaction. 6 Bur. L.T. 13=14 Cr.L.J. 145=7 L.B.R. 16=19 Ind. Cas. 145 (F.B.).

—S. 409—Evidence and proof—Burden of proof—Proof of entrustment—Accused to prove his defence.

In a case where the accused is charged with an offence under S. 409, Indian Penal Code, though the burden of proving entrustment of the money rests on the prosecution, if it is proved that the accused was in possession of the amount entrusted to him, it is for the accused to prove satisfactorily that he had not embezzled or misappropriated the amount but that the amount had been stolen or that he had been robbed of it. If the prosecution proves its case, the accused must prove such a defence as would carry a reasonable belief that the amount has been either stolen or that the accused has been robbed. 3 Sau. —S. 406—Evidence and proof.

In a case under S. 406, question of trust must be fully inquired into and whole of prosecution evidence should be recorded before discharging accused on ground that case is of civil nature. A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 377=41 Cr.L.J. 25=184 Ind. Cas. 471 (2).

—S. 403—Evidence and proof.

Not only has the prosecution in a case of criminal misappropriation to prove that the accused received the money and has not accounted for it, but also to prove that he converted it to his own use. Proof of receipt and failure to account is naturally a long way towards proof of misappropriation, but it is not the whole way. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 634=39 Cr.L.J. 851=40 P.L.R. 870=177 Ind. Cas. 278.

—S. 403—Evidence and proof—Burden of proof—Patwari receiving excess amount on account of land revenue—Amount neither credited nor returned but kept with himself—Presumption—Allegation of return of amount—Burden of proof.

Dishonest misappropriation for a time is a misappropriation within the meaning of S. 403, Penal Code. If, from proved facts and circumstances, it appears that the accused retained the amount with the intention of causing wrongful loss to the rightful owner and wrongful gain to himself, the dishonest misappropriation must be regarded as proved.

Where, notwithstanding the clear rule (Para 23 of Berar Patels and Patwari's Law) he neither credits the amounts received by him in excess on account of land revenue to Government nor makes it over to the Patel when he retains the money with himself, the presumption under S. 114, Evidence Act, would be that it continued to remain with him with intent to make a wrongful gain for himself and cause wrongful loss to the rightful owner. The prosecution has only to prove that the accused has received the money, has acknowledged the receipt and has failed to show it in his master's accounts. The inference is inevitable that the accused dishonestly retained the money for his own use. The onus, therefore, shifts on to his shoulders to prove (1) that he received the amount in excess by mistake, and (2) that he paid it back to the owner or his agent. The burden is not on the prosecution to show, that the amount was not returned. A.I.R. 1938 Nag. 445=1938 N.L.J. 259=39 Cr.L.J. 895=I.L.R. (1939) Nag. 180=177 Ind. Cas. 396.

—S. 409—Evidence and proof—Necessary proof—Burden—Weakness of defence.

In a case under S. 409, Penal Code, the burden of proving the guilt of the accused rests throughout upon the prosecution, and the deficiencies of the prosecution cannot be supplemented by any finding that the accused has not proved his innocence.

Proof that the accused attempted to suppress all traces of his embezzlement by any manipulation of accounts or evidence of the financial circumstances of the accused which would render probable a case of misappropriation is necessary to prove that money has been misappropriated. Proving mere false entries is not enough. 1937 M.W.N. 566.

—S. 403—Evidence and proof.

Burden is on prosecution to prove dishonest misappropriation either by direct evidence or by evidence of circumstances which lead to reasonable inference. 1936 M.W.N. 828.

—S. 403—Evidence and proof.

Mere failure to account for money is not by itself sufficient for conviction under S. 409. 1936 M.W.N. 825.

—S. 403—Evidence and proof.

Prosecution is not bound to show precisely how the accused used the sums which were not accounted for—It proves entrustment and the failure on the part of the accused to account and leaves the Court to infer misappropriation. But whether misappropriation can be properly inferred is a question of fact and not of law.

Where the accused who was a Secretary of a Co-operative Society and himself a rich man received small sums but failed to credit those in the accounts for some time and paid the same with interest before the irregularities were discovered and there was nothing to show that he was in difficulty by want of money and gained something by retention of money.

Held, that the facts did not warrant the inference of criminal misappropriation of the amount. 1936 M.W.N. 491.

—S. 405—Evidence and proof.

A criminal prosecution for criminal breach of trust and falsification of accounts was filed by one of the partners against the other partner and a clerk. The entry in accounts showed a sum of money as having been given to persons employed in the Audit Department. The partner accused was vested with very wide powers in carrying on the partnership business.

Held, even assuming that the complainant examines every person employed in the Audit Department to depose that he never received a bribe, and assuming also that every person who gives that evidence speak the truth, the complainant will not prove much thereby, and the evidence would not be sufficient to establish that the accused dishonestly converted to his own use the amount, to convict him under S. 405 or under S. 477-A, Indian Penal Code. The complainant will have to establish that the clerk who was the co-accused falsified the account book wilfully and with intent to defraud the complainant and that the partner accused abetted that offence. 157 Ind. —S. 409—Evidence and proof.

Prosecution proving receipt of money and entrustment—Prosecution need not prove mode of misappropriation—Accused must prove his defence. A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 532=59 C.L.J. 306=38 C.W.N. 467=35 Cr.L.J. 1279=151 Ind. Cas. 22.

—S. 408—Evidence and proof—Amounts collected as complainant's gumashta—Nature of proof to be adduced—Accused setting up definite case—Whether bound to establish case by evidence.

Where the accused was charged with criminal breach of trust in respect of certain sums which he had collected as the gumashta in the complainant's estate.

Held, that the prosecution had to give evidence as regards the actual procedure that used to be adopted by the accused for the purpose of paying in such realizations as he used to make and for that purpose, it was necessary for the prosecution to go into details to produce and prove not merely the pucca books of the estate and challans which had been proved for the purpose of showing that a sum of money was deposited by the accused, but the entire book of challans in order to prove that no other amounts were neither in fact paid nor could possibly have been paid by the accused :

Held, also that when the accused set up a definite case of having made the payments, it was not, for him to establish that case by oral or documentary evidence. A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 425=35 Cr.L.J. 715=38 C.W.N. 474=148 Ind. Cas. 559.

—S. 406—Evidence and proof—Accused admitting receipt of money but defending by saying that he returned it.

Where the accused, in a trial under S. 406 against him admits having received the money alleged to have been misappropriated, by him but defended himself by saying that he had made it over to the proper person, the onus to prove the payment is not upon him, but it is on the prosecution to prove non-payment ; for it is only when the latter is proved that the presumption will arise of misappropriation or breach of trust. A.I.R. 1934 Sind 22=28 S.L.R. 84=36 Cr.L.J. 818=155 Ind. Cas. 439.

—S. 409—Evidence and proof—Criminal breach of trust—Defalcation and falsification of accounts—Onus of proof.

When a public servant is in charge of goods and it has been proved or admitted that there is a large shortage in those goods, and it is also proved or admitted that the accused, in order to hide the loss, has falsified the books, there is only one inference possible, that of guilt ; in a case like this the onus would be on the accused—the facts being admitted or proved—to give some reasonable explanation for the facts. A.I.R. 1933 All. 356=1933 A.L.J. 479=34 Cr.L.J. 574=55 A. 426=143 Ind. Cas. 318.

—S. 409—Evidence and proof—Burden of proof, shifting of—Good character of accused, whether relevant.

In a case of criminal misappropriation, the prosecution has to prove dishonest misappropriation by the accused and unless and until they prove a state of facts which leads inevitably to the conclusion that that accused is guilty, they fail to discharge the onus which lies upon them. The view that once the prosecution has proved that the accused had received the money the onus of proof is shifted to the accused, is erroneous.

In such cases, the prosecution need not prove the actual mode of misappropriation but they must prove dishonest misappropriation. The onus is always upon the Crown. It never shifts to the accused. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 800=35 Cr.L.J. 156=38 C.W.N. 187=58 C.L.J. 405=61 C. 168=146 Ind. Cas. 767.

—S. 405—Evidence and proof.

The burden of proving dishonest intention under S. 405, Penal Code, on the part of the accused is on the prosecution. In other words, the prosecution must prove facts from which the only possible inference which can reasonably be drawn is that there was a dishonest intent. A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 57=33 Bom. L.R. 1518=33 Cr.L.J. 317=136 Ind. Cas. 493.

—S. 403—Evidence and proof—No obligation to pay at a certain date—If offence.

It does not follow, merely because an instalment of an agricultural loan is not paid the very next day into the treasury, that thereupon and therefrom an inference begins to be drawn against the village Munsif that he has misappropriated the amount so omitted to be paid. Mere delay in payment of money entrusted to a person, when there is no particular obligation to pay it at a certain date, does not amount to and does not furnish by itself a sufficient proof of misappropriation. A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 613, Rel. on. A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 507=58 M.L.J. 649=31 M.L.W. 837=1930 M.W.N. 530=127 Ind. Cas. 238.

—S. 406—Evidence and proof—Giving accounts—Failure to give account or giving false account—If conclusive.

In case of criminal breach of trust failure to account for the money proved to have been received by the accused or giving a false account as to its use is generally considered to be a strong circumstance against the accused. But accused must not be convicted on it alone. It is only an indication or piece of evidence pointing to dishonest intention and must be considered along with other facts of the case. A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 409, Diss. from. 121 Ind. Cas. 321=32 Cr.L.J. 249=11 P.L.T. 319=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 209.

—S. 406—Evidence and proof—No evidence of manner of misappropriation—Proof of dishonest intention.

It is neither necessary nor possible in every case of criminal breach of trust to prove in what precise manner the money was spent or appropriated by the accused, since by law even temporary retention provided it is dishonest is an offence. But where there is no direct evidence of misappropriation and one is left to surmise as to what use was made by the accused of money, one ought to require clear evidence of dishonest intention than in a case where there is direct evidence to prove that the money was appropriated by the accused for a particular use which is inconsistent with his position as a trustee of the money. 121 Ind. Cas. 321=31 Cr.L.J. 249=11 P.L.T. 319=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 209.

—S. 403—Evidence and proof—Misappropriation proved to some of the amount—Sufficiency.

In a case of criminal misappropriation it is sufficient if the prosecution establishes that some of the money mentioned in the charge has been misappropriation by the accused, even though it may be uncertain what is the exact amount so misappropriated: (1893) Rat. Unrep. Cr. Case 659, Foll. 42 All. 522 Diss. from: A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 260, Expl. 108 Ind. Cas. 505=52 Bom. 280=30 Bom. L.R. 325=29 Cr.L.J. 407=10 A.I.Cr.R. 71=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 148.

—S. 409—Evidence and proof—Trust—Misapplication.

In cases of criminal misappropriation the onus lies on the prosecution to prove not only that money was paid to the accused in trust but also that he did not apply it for the purpose for which it was given: *Ratan Lal U.R. —Ss. 403 and 409—Evidence and proof—Receipt—No misappropriation.

The accused may not have been able to prove satisfactorily that he got the cows from complainant on a letter from his own son for and on his behalf or that he purchased one cow from the son but this does not relieve the prosecution from proving that a trust had been created in respect of these cows and that the accused had violated that trust. 85 Ind. Held, that the prosecution had failed to prove an offence of criminal breach of trust, that the motive was inadequate and that the evidence led to the inference that the loan was contracted ab initio for the Bank for meeting immediate or prospective demands. 16 Cr. The mixture of the funds of another with one's own may be in any cases natural and proper and in another case convenient but irregular and in the third both irregular and criminal. The distinctions between these cases is to be treated with the greatest judicial care, so as, while preserving the amplest civil responsibility, to prevent the third or criminal category from being extended to mistaken though convenient acts. Apart from constructive criminal responsibility, which may be imposed by Statute, a Court of justice cannot reach the conclusion that crime has been committed unless it be a just result of the evidence that the accused in what was done or omitted by him, was moved by the guilty mind. 18 C.W.N. 98=26 M.L.J. 1=15 Cr.L.J. 305=23 Ind. —S. 409—Evidence and proof—Mode of misappropriation need not be proved.

—S. 408—Offence by servant—Broker working under or for firm, whether servant of firm.

To work as broker under or for a firm is not necessarily to become their servant. A broker is well understood to be nothing but a middleman, a person who brings together a buyer and a seller. But a broker can be an actual seller as well.

The accused being a broker and having bought a certain quantity of paddy which was lying at certain places, received as advance against the said paddy a certain sum of money from the complainant firm and agreed to deliver that paddy to the firm at a certain place by a certain date. The accused merely represented that he had entered into contracts for the purchase of paddy in order to be able in turn to supply paddy to the firm, undertook to use the advance paid to him to complete those purchases and so be in a position to deliver the paddy to the firm.

Held, that the accused was an independent vendor to the firm, and as the ownership in the money advanced passed to him, any condition attached to its use did not amount to a trust and the undertaking given by him to use that advance payment for the express purpose of payment for paddy bought by him, as represented by him, and for no other purpose, did not make him a trustee of the money. To fail to carry out a promise or an undertaking to do something with it upon being paid a sum of money might possibly lay the defaulter open to some other charge dependent upon what were the representations, but as the money had become his and was no longer the property of the payer of the money, there could be no trust in respect of how it should be used for the benefit of the payer of the money. The accused could not, therefore, be convicted under S. 408, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1941 Rang. 189=1941 Rang. L.R. 193=42 Cr.L.J. 776=195 Ind. Cas. 703.

Where, by the agreement between the accused and his employer, the former was to furnish a surety in Rs. 500 and any sum embezzled by the applicant or the value of any property removed by him would be recovered from the surety, in case such money could not be realised from him, the clause shows, that he understood that if, by any chance, he was suspected by his master of having embezzled any money or his accounts were held to be wrongly prepared, then the matter would be referred to the arbitration or arbitrators selected in the manner laid down in the agreement and the amount of money found to have been misappropriated recovered from his surety, and the agreement did not contemplate his being criminally prosecuted for failure to show in the account books any sum realised by him. —S. 408—Offence by servant—Specific sum misappropriated during a certain time—Effect of Criminal Procedure Code, S. 222 (2).

Accused was employed as a pay clerk in complainant's office and his duties were to receive from his master cheques in respect of certain amounts which had become due and payable on certain bills. He had to cash the cheques keep the proceeds with him and from time to time make payments thereout as and when those bills were presented to him. He was charged with criminal breach of trust in respect of a specific sum misappropriated during a certain period.

Held, that the provisions of S. 222, sub-S. (2) were satisfied : A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 148, Rel. on.

Held, further, that the misappropriation amounted to a criminal breach of trust. 113 Ind. Cas. 612=30 Bom. L.R. 1530=12 A.I.Cr.R. 73=30 Cr.L.J. 185=53 Bom. 119=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 557.

Where a postman did not pay money to the payee of the money order, and put his own thumb-impression on the receipt, but after two months when enquiries were made, he paid the money and took receipt of the payee,

Held, that the postman was guilty of a deliberate misappropriation of the money entrusted to him. 98 Ind. Cas. 99=50 Mad. 462=27 Cr.L.J. 1261=27 M.L.W. 184=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 696=53 M.L.J. 597.

Held, that the accused was guilty of the offence of criminal breach of trust and falsification of accounts under Ss. 409 and 477-A of the Penal Code, 102 Ind. Cas. 488=38 M.L.T. 318=25 M.L.W. 656=28 Cr.L.J. 552 A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 626=52 M.L.J. 703.

—S. 403—Offence by servant—Public servant receiving money and not handing it over to his successor—Offence.

Where a public servant receives money in his capacity as such, the fact that he does not include it in his cash balance entered in the remarks column of the register maintained by him on the day it was received, is very strong prima facie evidence of its having been misappropriated on that date and he is guilty of embezzlement if he does not hand over to his successor the money in his hands due to Government. 94 Ind. Cas. 205=1 Luck. 345=29 O.C. 245=3 O.W.N. 382=27 Cr.L.J. 589=A.I.R. 1926 Oudh 398.

—S. 409—Offence by servant—Post office clerk delivering V.P.P. to party and receiving money—Entry not made in register nor money credited—Offence.

A post office clerk delivered some value payable parcels on 30th May 1925. 27th May 1925 and 23rd May 1925 and kept moneys which were entrusted to him as a public servant up to 9th June 1925 in violation of the rules by which he was bound, and gave a false explanation that the money had not been received until the 9th of June. He also made entries in his register showing that the articles were still undelivered in the post office long after they had been delivered and the money for them had been received,

Held, this amounts to a denial of the receipt of the money and is conclusive evidence of criminal breach of trust R. v. Jackson, (1. C. & K. 384), Appl.

Held, further that the negligence of the postmaster in charge whose duty was to check the delivery register, in not properly checking the register, cannot take the place or proof that the money received on account of these articles was entrusted to his care, and he cannot therefore be charged of a criminal breach of trust. 94 Ind. Cas. 355=5 Pat. 578=7 P.L.T. 807=1926 P.H.C.C. 190=27 Cr.L.J. 611=A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 299.

—S. 408—Offence by servant—Failure to account—Presumption as to misappropriation.

It is settled law that where property is entrusted to a servant, it is the duty of the servant to give a true account of what he does with the property so entrusted to him. If such a servant fails to return the property or to account or gives an account which is shown to be false and incredible, it is ordinarily a reasonable inference that he has criminally misappropriated the property so entrusted to him and dishonestly converted it to his own use. In such cases the Courts are entitled to draw hostile inferences and presumptions from the action and statement of the servant. 84 Ind. Cas. 331=26 Cr.L.J. 267=2 Rang. 476=A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 47.

Where a Sanitary Inspector, well knowing the proper place for deposit, and taking advantage of the fact that there was a War between the sweepers and the Municipality used his authority with the sweepers to deposit the stuff at an unauthorised place and proceeded to sell it.

Held, a servant acting within the scope of his employment cannot in order to defraud his master set up breach of his master's regulations in his own favour, and it must be taken that in any case, when this night soil was deposited at an unauthorised place, the Sanitary Inspector still held it there at the disposition of his employers, and to appropriate it to his own use would be a breach of trust. 76 Ind. Cas. 971=45 All. 281=21 A.L.J. 149=4 L.R.A. Cr. 62=25 Cr.L.J. 299=A.I.R. 1923 All. 480.

A clerk in a record-room made another document, forming part of a record in his custody, to a person who was entitled to the document, but who would otherwise have had to present an application on stamped paper in order to secure its return in a legal manner.

Held, that the clerk was under the above circumstances rightly convicted for criminal breach of trust by a public servant. (1904) A.W.N. 228=27 A. 260. See also S. 408.

13. Owner not known.

—S. 403—Owner not known—Accused picking up spanner on road not knowing owner—If guilty.

A was convicted on his plea of guilty under S. 403 (he having tried to sell a spanner which he found lying on a public road).

Held, that it was not a case where the accused had reasonable means of discovering and giving notice to owner of the spanner, of having found it. The spanner was not of any appreciable value. The accused's plea of guilty was merely his admission of the facts alleged against him. The case therefore fell under illustration of S. 403 and the accused therefore was not guilty. 32 Bom. L.R. 356 = 125 Ind. Cas. 712 = A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 176.

Accused, a Sub-Inspector of Police, caught a lawaris bullock, kept it for 20 days and ultimately not being able to trace out the owner sold it thereafter.

Held, that the accused was not guilty of any offence. 91 Ind. Cas. 37 = 24 A.L.J. 128 = 27 Cr.L.J. 5 = 7 L.R.A.Cr. 147 = A.I.R. 1926 All. 251.

Where the accused person took possession of a wandering cow of which no owner could be discovered he is not guilty of an offence under S. 403, Indian Penal Code. 67 Ind. Cas. 497 = 23 Cr.L.J. 401.

14. Partner.

—S. 406—Partners—Prosecution by one against another—Sustainability—Contract Act, S. 253.

A prosecution for criminal breach of trust under S. 406, Indian Penal Code, by one partner against another is not sustainable. A partner who receives money belonging to the partnership on account of himself and his co-partners, does not do so in a fiduciary capacity. Partners are joint owners or co-owners of the partnership property, that is to say, of the common stock. It is difficult, therefore, to conceive how he can be entrusted with, or with dominion over his own property, or how he can dishonestly misappropriate it or convert it to his own use. 60 C. 1316 and A.I.R. 1948 Cal. 292, rel. on 4 A.I.Cr.D. 78 = 1950 N.L.J. 56 = A.I.R. 1950 Nag. 99 = 51 Cr.L.J. 607 = I.L.R. 1950 N. 379.

—S. 403—Partner—Applicability—Partnership—Refusal by one to pay profits to another—Accounting not effected—Offence—Prosecution—Maintainability of.

Where the gist of the petition of complaint in a case was that the complainant had provided funds for joint venture with which timber had been bought and sold by the accused, the other partner, and that the complainant who made demands for payment was put off by the accused on some pretext, and that later on the accused made himself scarce:

Held, That prima facie the question between the parties was one of accounting, and that no accounting having taken place to show whether the accused owed any and what amount to the complainant, it was impossible to say in the circumstances that there was any prima facie case of criminal misappropriation of funds by the accused of such a character as would justify a criminal prosecution under S. 403, Indian Penal Code, criminal proceedings instituted in such circumstances cannot be allowed to proceed and must be quashed. A.I.R. 1949 Cal. 89 = 50 Cr.L.J. 154.

—Ss. 405 and 406—Partner—Offence under—Partner receiving partnership money—If can be guilty of.

The word "entrustment" in S. 405, Indian Penal Code, connotes that the accused holds the property in a fiduciary capacity. A partner who receives money belonging to the partnership on account of himself and his copartners does not do so in a fiduciary capacity and therefore, there can be no question of any breach of trust by him in respect of such money. It is extremely difficult to conceive of circumstances under which it could be held that there is an entrustment of partnership property by one partner to another. 60 C. 1316 and I.L.R. (1948) 2 Cal. 452, foll. I.L.R. (1949) 1 Cal. 454.

—S. 406—Partner—Some partners withholding share of profits due to another—Offence—Prosecution for criminal misappropriation—Maintainability.

One or more partners receiving money or assets belonging to the partnership on account of themselves and other co-partners cannot be held to do so in a fiduciary capacity. Each partner is a co-owner of the whole of the common stock. Where some partners withhold the share of profits due to another partner, the latter's remedy is to sue for dissolution and accounts. The parties withholding are not criminally liable and cannot be prosecuted under S. 406, Indian Penal Code. I.L.R. (1948) 2 Cal. 452 = 52 C.W.N. 441 = A.I.R. 1948 Cal. 292 = 49 Cr.L.J. 543.

—Ss. 403 and 405—Partner.

In India, a partner is liable to be tried for criminal misappropriation or for criminal breach of trust of partnership property under the law as laid down in Ss. 403 and 405. A.I.R. 1941 Rang. 342 = 1941 Rang. L.R. 547 = 43 Cr.L.J. 263 = 197 Ind. Cas. 797.

—S. 405—Applicability to partners.

The words of S. 405, Penal Code are large enough to include the case of a partner, if it be proved that he was in fact entrusted with the partnership property or with dominion over it and has dishonestly misappropriated it, or converted it to his own use. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 371 = 44 C.W.N. 650 = 41 Cr.L.J. 796 = 189 Ind. Cas. 769.

—S. 405—Partners.

Section 405, Penal Code, applies to partners and a partner can be convicted of criminal breach of trust.

A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 265=1939 M.W.N. 1252=41 Cr.L.J. 398=187 Ind. Cas. 126.

—S. 409—Partner.

Per Din Mohammad, J.—A partner can be held guilty of criminal breach of trust if the circumstances brought on the record favour that conclusion. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 406 =41 P.L.R. 1 and 37=40 Cr.L.J. 942=184 Ind. Cas. 358.

—S. 405—Partners.

A partner can be convicted of criminal breach of trust in respect of the partnership property. The partnership may be for one purpose, and one partner may, for his own quite different purpose, dishonestly and fraudulently abstract money from the partnership assets and criminally misappropriate it, and it cannot in such a case, be said that there is no room for the criminal law at all. It is not then a matter merely of dispute between partners. A.I.R. 1939 Sind 21=40 Cr.L.J. 246=179 Ind. Cas. 687.

—Ss. 403 to 409—Partner—Criminal breach of trust in case of partnership—Gist of the offence.

Sections 403 to 409 are not intended to apply to partners. Partners being joint owners or co-owners of the partnership property, it is difficult to conceive how a partner can be entrusted with, or with dominion over, his own property or how he can dishonestly misappropriate it to his own use.

In a case of partnership, the gist of the offence of criminal breach of trust, viz., dishonest misappropriation is wholly wanting, the accused being a part owner of the property. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 582=34 Cr.L.J. 958=37 C.W.N. 982=60 Cal. 1316=145 Ind. Cas. 416 (2).

—S. 405—Partner.

The words of S. 405, Penal Code, are quite enough to cover the case of a partner and if one partner is given authority by the other partners to collect money or property of the firm, he is entrusted with dominion over that property and if he dishonestly misappropriates it then he comes within the section.

In case of charges of criminal breach of trust against partners, the Court ought to be very careful. In many cases it is impossible to say what the share of the accused may be, whether he is indebted to the firm or whether the firm is indebted to him and if the firm is indebted to him, there may be no dishonest intent in his withdrawing money from the firm. If there is any doubt upon the matter, the accused must always have the benefit of the doubt. A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 57=33 Bom. L.R. 1518=33 Cr.L.J. 317=136 Ind. Cas. 493.

—S. 408—Partner—Prosecution outcome of dispute regarding liabilities of partners.

In a case under S. 408, if it appears to the Court that the relationship between the parties is one of partnership and that the criminal case is an outcome of a dispute as regards their respective liabilities, a conviction for embezzlement under S. 408 cannot be sustained. A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 159=12 P.L.T. 355=32 Cr.L.J. 620=130 Ind. Cas. 833.

—S. 403—Partners—Taking joint property—If offence.

Taking of joint property by partner is not criminal misappropriation unless the partner appropriates the joint property to his sole use. 25 Cr.L.J. 669= A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 154=81 Ind. Cas. 157.

—Ss. 403 and 406—Partner—Complaint by one partner against another.

A criminal action against a co-partner by a partner under S. 403 or S. 406, Indian Penal Code, is maintainable if the other ingredients justifying the prosecution are present. 1 Pat. L.T. 127=21 Cr L J. 338=55 Ind. Cas. 674.

—S. 406—Partner—Criminal breach of trust—Partnership.

No conviction under S. 406 can be sustained against a partner in the absence of proof of demand for an account. (1908) 35 C. 1108.

—S. 405—Partner—Criminal breach of trust by partner.

A partner who dishonestly misappropriates or converts to his own use any of the partnership property with which he is entrusted or which he has dominion over, is guilty of an offence under S. 405. (1904) 6 Bom. L.R. 553.

15. Pledge.

—Ss. 406 and 420—Pledge—Complainant A owing money to accused B on handnote and pledge of ornaments—Panchas brought by A settling dues of B at Rs. 155—A paying that amount to B—B accepting money but failing to return handnote and ornaments—B held guilty neither of criminal breach of trust nor cheating.

The complainant executed a handnote in favour of the accused for Rs. 106 and on the same day pawned certain silver ornaments with the accused for Rs. 18. The accused evaded settlement of the account and return of the handnote and the ornaments, so the complainant took panchas to his place. The panchas settled the dues at Rs. 155 and the complainant paid this amount to the accused in the presence of the panchas. The accused on the pretext of bringing the handnote went inside the house and went off from the back door and never returned. There was no evidence that the accused accepted Rs. 155 in full satisfaction of his dues. The accused was charged for misappropriation of Rs. 155 given to him and not for misappropriation of handnote and ornaments. There was no unqualified denial of the receipt of money by the accused :

Held, that (1) there was no breach of trust with regard to Rs. 155 simply because there was no entrust ment. The money was not given to the accused in trust but in payment of a debt and therefore it became his property as soon as he received it ;

(2) nor could the accused be said to have misappropriated and converted the ornaments to his own use because he did not deny that the ornaments were pledged with him but alleged that he still held them in trust until the further amount claimed by him was paid off ;

(3) nor could a charge of cheating be sustained against the accused as he could not be said to have had a dishonest intention at the time when he received the money. It may be that he took the money with a dishonest intention, saying he would return the ornaments but not intending to ; but the inference was equally possible that he took the money and subsequently repented and decided to hold out for more. There would then be no dishonest intention in the taking of the money. Or, it may be that the accused took the amount under protest, in part payment, because he had nothing to do with the calling of the panchas, and it was not very clear whether he ever agreed to accept Rs. 155 in full satisfaction. A.I.R. 1946 Pat. 125 = 24 Pat. 128.

—S. 406—Pledge.

Sub-pledge by pledgee of goods pawned is not criminal breach of trust. A.I.R. 1942 Rang. 62 = 1941 Rang. L.R. 784.

—S. 406—Pledge—Contract of pledge.

Accused entitled to sell articles if interest on loan remained in arrears for three months—Accused exercising right of sale.

The accused, under a contract of pledge with the complainant, advanced a loan to the complainant. The accused was given the right to sell the articles if the interest payable on the loan remained in arrears for three months. In default of payment of interest, the accused sold the articles and credited the balance of the sale proceeds after deducting the amount of the principal and interest due to him to the account of the complainant in his account books :

Held, that the accused was not guilty of any offence. He had merely acted on his contract with the complainant and whatever his rights, he must have believed in good faith that he was entitled to sell the property. A.I.R. 1942 Rang. 62 = 1941 Rang. L.R. 784.

—S. 405—Pledge—Buyer dealing dishonestly with goods in violation of terms and with guilty intent—Trust receipt containing term that buyer should pay interest on price of goods until payment—Default in payment—Trust receipt, if valid declaration of trust.

The trust receipts can be looked at in two ways. Either they are documents containing a declaration of trust whereby the buyer constitute himself trustee for the seller when the property must have passed, for a person cannot constitute himself trustee of goods unless he is the legal owner, or they are documents evidencing a previous pledge when they are merely evidence of the terms and conditions on which the seller permits the buyer to deal with the goods on his behalf. If a buyer or an importer who obtains from a seller or a bank documents of title which enable him to deal with the goods covered by the documents of title on certain terms and conditions, deals dishonestly with those goods in violation of those terms and conditions, it may be said that the buyer or importer is entrusted with dominion over the documents of title and of the goods within the meaning of S. 405, Indian Penal Code, and the plea that the documents are only pledged will not avail him, because though as a pledger he may be the legal owner, the pledgee has clearly a beneficial interest. It is true when a buyer or importer under such circumstances obtains possession of the documents, he obtains merely the custody ; the juridical possession remains with the pledgee, but so much the more is he entrusted with dominion over them within the meaning of S. 405, Indian Penal Code, and there is no reason why a buyer or importer cannot, under such circumstances, be guilty of criminal breach of trust provided he has the necessary guilty intent and violates the terms and conditions of his contract.

One of the terms of a trust receipt was that the buyer should pay interest on the price of the goods until payment was made. The buyer made a default :

Held, that the trust receipt could not be deemed a valid declaration of trust, for although the word "trustee" was used, the term in the trust receipt was inconsistent with the position of a seller's agent or the existence of trust agency or the creation of a trust and the case, therefore, was only a civil dispute and not a criminal offence. A.I.R. 1939 Sind. 27 = 40 Cr. L.J. 235 = I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 283 = 179 Ind. Cas. 554.

—S. 405—Pledge—Pledgee of goods, sub-pledging the goods to the extent of his interest therein.

Where a pawnee or pledgee makes a sub-pledge of the goods pawned to him for the same amount, i.e., to the extent of his interest in it, this raises a pure question of civil law i.e., whether such sub-pledging to the same extent that is to say, for the same amount as the debt for which the original pledge, was made is a wrongful act, for if such sub-pledging was within the rights of the pledgee, any sub-pledging by him cannot be regarded as amounting to a criminal offence, as it is obvious that what a man does within the limits of the right given to him by the law, cannot amount to a criminal offence. As pledgee, the person has a right to sub-pledge to the extent of his interest in the pledged properties. Even if the view is not correct, still the pledgee must be deemed to have acted honestly under the mistaken belief as to the extent of his rights as pledgee, and the sub-pledges of the pledged goods cannot be regarded as amounting to criminal breach of trust. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 551. = 47 L.W. 359 = 1938

—S. 409—Pledge of article entrusted—Entrustment for sale—Pledge by trustee—Direction to return pledged article—Legality.

The accused entrusted with certain jewellery for sale, having pledged them to a money lender, the Magistrate convicted the accused for criminal breach of trust and ordered the return of jewellery to the complainant.

Held, the accused, not having obtained possession of the jewellery wrongfully, the Magistrate was not justified in ordering the return of the jewellery to the complainant in the absence of bad faith on the part of the pawnee. 65 Ind. Cas. 1000=23 Cr.L.J. 216=11 L.B.R. 217=A.I.R. 1922 L.B. 17.

—S. 406—Pledge—No dishonest intention—Sub-pledge by pledgee.

Where it was found that the pledgee never received money and had not denied the pledge.

Held: There was no criminal breach of trust. The finding of dishonest intention as against the pledgee cannot rest on the denial of the pledge contained in his statement in answer to the charge. For a finding as to the intention of a person, his statement or conduct after the charge is only a matter for presumption. The offence as against him must rest on events which happened on or about the time alleged in the charge. In the absence of any express condition to the contrary it was quite open to the pledgee to make a sub-pledge of the jewellery. Mere sub-pledge, therefore, prove no intention of dishonesty at all. 71 Ind. Cas. 58=9 O.L.J. 421=24 Cr.L.J. 10=26 O.C. 4 A.I.R. 1922 Oudh. 280.

16. Procedure.

—Ss. 408 and 409—Procedure—Charge of committing criminal breach of trust by accused as “a clerk or as an agent of the company”—Trial by a Second Class Magistrate—Legality.

If a charge had merely been that an alleged breach of trust was committed by the accused in the capacity of a clerk of the company, there could be no objection to the charge being framed under S. 408 of the Penal Code and to such a charge being tried by a Second Class Magistrate. But where the charge is on the alternative footing that the breach of trust was committed either as “a clerk or as an agent of the company” a Second Class Magistrate has no jurisdiction to try such an offence. The insertion in the charge of the alternative expression “or the agent of the company” has the effect of making the alleged offence one under S. 409 of the Penal Code, which is triable only by a Court of Session, Presidency Magistrate or a Magistrate of the First Class. The trial of such an offence by a Second Class Magistrate is an illegality affecting the jurisdiction of the trying Magistrate and vitiating all proceedings which must therefore be quashed. 60

Trust at M—Complaint by trustee at M that his co-trustee residing at B misappropriated trust money by depositing it in his own firm at B and failing to send same at M for purposes of trust:

—S. 409—Procedure—Fine, if recovered to be ordered to be paid to liquidator and not to creditor of bank at whose instance the case was launched.

Where the secretary of bank in liquidation was charged and convicted of offences committed before it went into liquidation, of misappropriation of moneys belonging to the bank by falsely alleging that they were advanced as loans to fictitious persons and he was ordered to pay fine:

Held, that the fine should not have been ordered to be paid to the fixed-deposit holder whose deposit had matured at the time the misappropriation took place and at whose instance the case was launched but the fine, if recovered, should have been ordered to be paid to the Liquidator for the benefit of all the creditor. The accused was arrested without a warrant, and was released on bail. The charge sheet was filed and a summons was issued for the appearance of the accused. The accused appeared of his own accord and the case was adjourned for inquiry. The case was then again adjourned and objection was taken on that day to the competency of the Magistrate to try the case on the ground that the arrest of the accused was illegal:

Held, that the propriety of the arrest had no bearing on the subsequent proceedings. Even otherwise, it could not affect the jurisdiction of the Magistrate to inquire into the offence under S. 406, Indian Penal Code committed by the accused within his jurisdiction. —Ss. 405 and 43—Procedure—Jurisdiction—Accused agent of firm in Cawnpore working in Calcutta—Money realised in Calcutta, not remitted—Misappropriation or conversion of money not alleged—Offence—Cawnpore Court, if has jurisdiction.

The first part of S. 405, Penal Code, will apply where it is known that the accused had dishonestly misappropriated or converted to his own use certain property at a particular place and the jurisdiction to try the accused will be at the place where that dishonest misappropriation or conversion has taken place. But where it is alleged that the accused has failed to account for the property, then the second part of S. 405, Penal Code, will apply and jurisdiction exists at the place where the property should have been delivered by the accused.

The accused was engaged in Cawnpore as an agent of the firm and the accused was sent to Bengal with instructions to effect deliveries of sugar bags and to realise the price of goods from customers and either personally bring the proceeds to Cawnpore or remit the money to Cawnpore. Accused did remit large sums to Cawnpore and subsequently, he withheld the money collected by him and embezzled. The evidence given on behalf of the complainant showed that these sums had been realised by the accused. It was further shown that the accused absconded and could not be traced. There was no evidence given on behalf of the complainant nor was any allegation made that the accused had actually misappropriated or converted to his own use this money by any positive act. The allegations and evidence of the complainant were that the accused had collected this money and had failed to send it to Cawnpore within a reasonable time.

Held, that the Magistrate at Cawnpore had jurisdiction because the allegations in the complaint were that the accused withheld money collected by him and did not forward it to Cawnpore. There was no charge that he misappropriated or converted to his own use the money at any particular place and his offence consisted in failing to carry out his contract and remit the money or bring the money to Cawnpore. He was guilty of an illegal omission, an offence committed within the jurisdiction of the Magistrate at Cawnpore. A.I.R. 1936 All. 193=1936 A.L.J. 3=1936 A.W.R. 23=37 Cr.L.J. 284=58 A. 644=160 Ind. —S. 405—Procedure—Jurisdiction—Accused bound to render account at a certain place—Failure.

Under cl. (2) of S. 181 of the Criminal Procedure Code, the offence of criminal breach of trust can be tried by Courts at three places, namely, at the place where the property was received, at the place where the property was retained by the accused or at the place where the offence was committed and under S. 405, Indian Penal Code, the offence can be committed at a place where the accused, according to the contract entered by him, fails to deposit the money and render accounts, and consequently, the Court at that place is fully competent to try the case. A.I.R. 1936 Oudh. 329=37 Cr.L.J. 322=1936 O.W.N. 212=12 Luck. 77=160 Ind. Cas. 567.

the money, but at the place where he dishonestly misappropriates it or converts it to his own use. A.I.R. 1935 Oudh 4=11 O.W.N. 1392=36 Cr.L.J. 112=152 Ind. Cas. 463.

—S. 408—Procedure—Complaint under—Production of receipts by accused—Trial Court finding them to be not genuine—Appellate Court recording order of acquittal on order sheet—Procedure, legality of—Question to be considered—Criminal trial—Judgment.

In a complaint under S. 408, the accused produced a receipt and a shiaha. The Magistrate found these papers to be suspicious and convicted the accused. The Appellate Court considered that the shiaha and receipt were "highly suspicious," but observed that direct evidence to hold it to be a forgery was lacking. He thought that the absence of proof that the shiaha was bogus and the receipt a forgery was fatal to the prosecution case and recorded an order of acquittal on the order-sheet :

Held, that the procedure was to be deprecated and that Magistrates should ordinarily write regular judgments except in very simple cases. If the receipt and shiaha were not forgeries, the question was still to be considered whether in respect of such items there was failure to credit the money at the time when it ought to have been credited and to remit it at the time when it ought to have been remitted and whether this failure was dishonest or not, and the question was whether there was dishonesty at the time, and this question not having been considered, there was no proper trial of the appeal which would, therefore, have to be heard again. A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 495=1 B.R. 878=36 Cr.L.J. 1375=158 Ind. Cas. 332.

—S. 408—Procedure—Jurisdiction—Complaint—No allegation as to place where money was misappropriated—Case founded on allegation as to absence of account.

Where it is not alleged by the complainant that there has been misappropriation committed in respect of the sum which forms the subject-matter of a charge or any component parts of it at any particular places but the whole of the case as to misappropriation is founded upon the allegation that there was no account in respect of the money and account was to be rendered at a place within jurisdiction of the Presidency Magistrate's Court at Calcutta :

Where A, who resided at Cawnpore filed a complaint for criminal breach of trust at Cawnpore against B who resided at Faridpur in Bengal alleging that he had appointed B as his commission agent for the District of Faridpur on the understanding that the sale proceeds will be remitted by B to the complainant to Cawnpore :

12 F. Y. D.—30.

Held, that there was jurisdiction in a case of this nature in the Courts of the District to which the accused is alleged to be bound to make a remittance and the Cawnpore Court had, therefore, jurisdiction to try the charge. —Ss. 403 and 411—Procedure—Alternative charges—Validity of trial.

Offences under Ss. 403 and 411, Indian Penal Code, where several charges were rightly joined against the same accused under S. 235, Criminal Procedure Code—There can be no objection to one of such charges being in the alternative as provided by S. 236, Criminal Procedure Code nor can there be any objection to another accused being joined under S. 239, Criminal Procedure Code as regards one of those charges. A.I.R. 1932 All. 25=33 Cr.L.J. 122=1932 A.L.J. 113=54 A. 337=135 Ind. Cas. 225.

—Ss. 409 and 477-A Procedure—Joint trial.

Three offences of criminal breach of trust may be tried together and three offences of falsification of accounts may be tried together but they being of different kind, the trial of two or more charges of criminal breach of trust cannot legally be joined with two or more charges of falsification of accounts. A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 486=55 C.L.J. 111=33 Cr.L.J. 265(2)=36 C.W.N. 542=136 Ind. Cas. 136.

—S. 409—Procedure—Manager of Court of Wards discharged by Collector—Prosecution for criminal breach of trust—Sanction of Collector, necessity of.

A manager appointed by the Collector on behalf of the Court of Wards, who has been discharged by the Collector cannot be prosecuted for criminal breach of trust in respect of acts committed by him as manager except with the sanction of the Court of Wards through the Collector. A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 86=32 Cr.L.J. 555=12 P.L.T. 421.

—S. 408—Procedure—Fresh proceedings—Long delay—Procedure.

A complainant who allows a long period to elapse before resurrecting a case under S. 408, Indian Penal Code cannot possibly be allowed to re-agitate the matter on the ground that his feelings have been outraged by the action taken by the accused and that as a sort of retaliation he should be so allowed. 96 Ind. Cas. 388=27 Cr.L.J. 932=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 213.

—S. 408—Procedure—Jurisdiction—Applicability of Criminal Procedure Code, Sec. 179.

Section 179 does not govern the jurisdiction of a Court to try the offence of criminal misappropriation or of criminal breach of trust for which a special provision is to be found in Section 181 (2). 22 P.R. 1915 (Cr.), foll. 77 Ind. Cas. 490=25 Cr.L.J. 410=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 663.

—S. 406—Procedure—Jurisdiction—Goods held on trust at Calcutta—Payment to be made at Delhi—Fraudulent sale at Calcutta—Jurisdiction of Delhi Court.

The accused who was carrying on business at Calcutta ordered certain goods through complainant, a commission agent at Delhi. The goods were to be delivered at Calcutta and payment was to be made at Delhi. The goods arrived in Calcutta and the accused was allowed to take delivery on condition that he would hold them in trust till payment but he disposed of them before making the payment.

Held, that the offence was complete as soon as he misappropriated the goods by selling them without authority at Calcutta. And the fact that he did not first pay at Delhi as agreed upon did not affect the case. The loss at Delhi was not a "consequence" such as is referred to in S. 179 of the Code. 69 Ind. Cas. 631=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 353.

—S. 403—Procedure—Articles found in possession at one time—Trial in regard to some and acquittal—Second trial in regard to others—Legality.

There was evidence that the different articles which were the subject of the charges in the two trials were stolen from different persons, but there was no evidence that they were received at different times. With respect to some the accused was tried and acquitted in the first trial.

Held, the second trial was illegal under the provisions of S. 403, Criminal Procedure Code, 73 Ind. Cas. 931=37 C.L.J. 326=27 C.W.N. 554=50 Cal. 594=24 Cr.L.J. 707=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 557.

—S. 405—Procedure—Money sent from place A to agent in place B—Breach of trust in B—Jurisdiction of Court at A.

One of the consequences of criminal breach of trust, if committed by an agent, would be loss to the person to whom, the property entrusted to the agent, belonged, and therefore as the complainant would be entitled to get the proceeds of the articles, sent to the agent, paid to him; if the proceeds were not paid to him, loss would be incurred at the place where he lives and therefore the Court would have jurisdiction. Section 181 (2) in no way restricts the provision of Section 179. There is nothing in that section which prevents a Court within whose local limits any consequences of an offence have ensued, having jurisdiction to try the offence.

The word "Consequence" in Section 179 bears its ordinary grammatical meaning and is not restricted to meaning a consequence which is a necessary ingredient of the offence. 65 Ind. Cas. 637=46 Bom. 641=24 Bom. L.R. 46=23 C.L.J. 173=A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 39.

—S. 406—Procedure—Breach by administrator—Prosecution—Sanction of appointing Court.

A criminal Court cannot take cognizance of an offence under S. 406 of the Penal Code, against an administrator appointed under the Probate Act, without the sanction of the High Court, when such administrator has submitted his accounts to the Court and the mere fact that accounts have been filed in the Probate Court or even the fact that the accounts have been passed by the Court, does not absolve the administrator from his liability for any particular sums of money which may have been misappropriated by him. 46 Cal. 432. Rel. on. 60 Ind. Cas. 791=33 C.L.J. 252=22 Cr.L.J. 295=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 431.

—S. 403—Procedure—Offence—When complete—Place of trial.

An offence under S. 403 is complete the moment the accused receives or retains the money with a dishonest motive of appropriating it or converting it to his own use. The failure to return it to the complainant's master is not an essential ingredient for the offence of misappropriation.

A servant withdrew money from a firer at Barh deposited by him in his master's name but failed to account for it. The complainant was filed in Patna Court. The facts do not necessarily involve question of adjustment of accounts but establish an offence under S. 403, and the Patna Magistrate has no jurisdiction to try the case as money was received and retained at Barh. 1 P.L.T. 200=21 Cr.L.J. 519=56 Ind. Cas. 775.

—S. 406—Procedure—Article given to accused under written agreement—Jurisdiction of Criminal Courts to decide whether agreement was real or nominal.

Where a person is guilty of criminal breach of trust in respect of articles delivered under a written instrument which expressly recites that they were returned to him after money received, the Magistrate cannot enquire whether the instrument represents a real transaction between the parties or a mere benami arrangement making the accused a trustee in respect of those articles. (1916) 2 M.W.N. 158=4 L.W. 198=18 Cr.L.J. 34=36 Ind. Cas. 866.

—S. 409—Procedure—Jurisdiction to try an offence.

An offence under S. 409 can be tried by a Magistrate if the embezzled property has been received or retained within his jurisdiction. 4 M.L.T. 481=9 Cr.L.J. 92=1 Ind. Cas. 796.

17. Retention.

—S. 406—Retention—Jewel taken from goldsmith as sample for approval—Retention towards debt due by goldsmith.

Where a person takes from a goldsmith a gold jewel for showing it to his wife and placing an order for a similar jewel if she approved of it but fails to return it and retains it with himself towards some debts due to him by the goldsmith, he will be guilty of an offence under S. 406 of the Indian Penal Code. He has utilised the jewel for a purpose not intended and against the express agreement. The mere fact that the jewel is intact is irrelevant. 1949 M.W.N. 631=62 L.W. 613=3 A.I.Cr.D. 669=A.I.R. 1950 Mad. 49=51 Cr.L.J. 330=(1949) 2 M.L.J. 296.

—S. 403—Retention—Retention without justification of money realised—Inference from.

Although it is true that mere realisation of money and failure to credit the same is not in itself criminal misappropriation, the retention of money realised for a particular purpose without any justification shown ordinarily leads to the inference that it has been misappropriated; and the reasonable inference to draw when a person has realised money for somebody else and has not paid is that he has appropriated it to his own needs. It is of course open to such person to show that such an inference ought not to be drawn. 51 C.W.N. 301.

—S. 405—Retention—"Entrustment"—Meaning of—Secretary selling Government Promissory Notes and retaining amount.

When a secretary of a bank who is authorised under the terms of a power-of-attorney to purchase Government Promissory Notes on behalf of the bank purchases the notes and receives them, he becomes "entrusted" with them by the bank within the meaning of S. 405, Indian Penal Code. He is bound to pay to the bank the money received by him which was due to the bank and has no authority to keep the money in his hands in satisfaction of any claim he may have against the bank. Such retention amounts to misappropriation. A.I.R. 1942 Oudh. 473=1942 O.W.N. 485=43 Cr. L.J. 830=1942 A.W.R. 295=18 Luck. 408=202 Ind. Cas. 382.

—S. 409—Retention.

The accused who was the Village Munsif collected certain amounts from certain persons on March 15, 1937 and April 17, 1937. The amounts were remitted to the treasury on May 21 and April 24, 1937, respectively before any complaint was received:

Held, that the retention of the amount in the interval would not, by itself, justify the conviction under S. 409, Indian Penal Code. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 761=54 L.W. 235=1941 M.W.N. 667=43 Cr.L.J. 445=198 Ind. Cas. 893.

—S. 403—Retention.

Mere retention of money would not warrant a conviction under S. 403 unless there is evidence that accused used the money. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 250=52 L.W. 633=1940 M.W.N. 1110=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 748=42 Cr.L.J. 296(1)=192 Ind. Cas. 404.

—S. 405—Retention.

Mere retention of money entrusted to a person without any misappropriation, even though he was directed by the person to pay it to so and so, or to deal with the money in a particular way is not a criminal breach of trust; unless there is some actual user by him which is in violation of law or contract, there is no criminal breach of trust; and even if there is such user, there must be a dishonest intention. Putting the money into one's own account in the Bank may be misappropriation or may not be misappropriation. If it is drawn upon for his own purposes, it is misappropriation. But if he did not draw on it but kept the money in the Bank, there is no misappropriation, and no criminal misappropriation. A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 329=1939 M.W.N. 1213=41 Cr. L.J. 824=190 Ind. Cas. 123.

—S. 403—Retention.

Mere retention is not sufficient—The property misappropriated must be used, disposed of or appropriated. 1935 M.W.N. 1063.

—S. 409—Retention—Offence, when complete—Mere retention, if raises presumption of dishonest intention—Money not used for purposes intended but retained for a long time—Inference.

The offence of breach of trust is complete when there is dishonest misappropriation or conversion to one's own use, or when there is dishonest user in violation of a direction, express or implied, relating to the mode in which the trust is to be discharged.

Mere retention of money would not necessarily raise a presumption of dishonest intention: but it is a step in that direction. The fact that money entrusted to be used for a particular purpose was not used for such purpose, that there was retention for a sufficiently long time, would justify the inference that the accused did not intend to pay. A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 532=38 C.W.N. 467=35 Cr.L.J. 1279=59 C.L.J. 306=151 Ind. Cas. 22.

—S. 403—Retention.

Ordinarily mere retention of money will not suffice to constitute the offence of criminal misappropriation. 111 Ind. Cas. 730=11 A.I.Cr.R. 82=30 Bom. L.R. 624=29 Cr.L.J. 922=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 205.

—S. 406—Retention of money against debt—If offence.

Where money is placed in the hands of the accused by the complainant and is retained by the accused against a debt due from the complainant, the accused cannot be said to have acted dishonestly within S. 406. 92 Ind. Cas. 895=27 Cr.L.J. 383=7 L.R.A. Cr. 89=A.I.R. 1926 All. 298.

—S. 409—Retention—By President of Co-operative Society—President of Co-operative Society retaining money drawn from Bank with permission of fellow members—No offence.

A President of a Co-operative Credit Society was authorised to draw a certain amount of money from a bank. After so doing, he himself retained the amount instead of crediting it to the Society. It was proved that he did this with the permission of his fellow members of the managing committee, as he needed it for some work.

Held, that under the circumstances the offence committed may be said to be purely of a technical nature and even this is doubtful. 12 L.L.J. 165=129 Ind. Cas. 286=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 1045.

—S. 406—Retention—Criminal breach of trust—Agent entitled to adjust collections towards remuneration—Retention of money.

The accused who was employed as agent for collection of taxes by the Union Committee was under agreement to take 10 per cent of the collection as remuneration and to hand over the balance to his master or to deposit it into the treasury, no period being fixed for the latter purpose. On being convicted on a charge under S. 406, Indian Penal Code, for having failed to account for a certain sum of money collected by him.

Held, in revision that as the accused was entitled to deduct his remuneration from the collections and as no period was fixed for payment into the treasury, a charge of the criminal breach of trust could only be maintained after an adjustment of accounts. The mere fact that he retained the sums collected is not a conclusive proof of criminal breach of trust. 21 Cr. L.J. 509=56 Ind. Cas. 669 (Pat.).

—S. 408—Retention—Retaining money for fifteen months.

The act of a servant or clerk retaining money for 15 months throws doubt on the bona fides of the accused, though it is not by itself conclusive on the question of criminal misappropriation or breach of trust. 18 Cr. L.J. 655=40 Ind. Cas. 303 (All.).

—Ss. 406 and 417—Retention—Criminal breach of trust—Cheating—Payment of rent by tenant—Detention of money towards abwab.

Where a tenant paid Rs. 90 as rent to his landlord who deducted Rs. 25 towards some subscription and refused to grant a Dakhila or return of money until Rs. 25 more were paid,

Held, that the landlord did not commit any criminal offence. 15 C.L.J. 515=13 Cr.L.J. 512=15 Ind. Cas. 656.

18. Revision.

—S. 408—Revision—Conviction under—Concurrent findings of fact by lower Courts—Interference.

Ordinarily, the High Court will not interfere in revision with the concurrent findings of fact of the two lower Courts, but interference is proper where, in a case under S. 408, Indian Penal Code, it appears to the High Court that the prosecution of the accused has been misconceived and there is really no legal and satisfactory evidence to convince the Court that the accused, at the time when he is said to have misappropriated certain sums of money, had guilty knowledge or mens rea so as to convert what at best amounted to a civil wrong or tort into a penal offence amounting to criminal breach of trust by a servant. A.I.R. 1937 Oudh. 331=38 Cr.L.J. 491=1937 O.W.N. 505=168 Ind. Cas. 58.

19. Theft.

—Ss. 403 and 378—Theft.

Cattle turned out in pasture to graze are in possession of owner—Taking of such cattle is theft and not criminal misappropriation. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 138=1938 Rang. L.R. 63=39 Cr.L.J. 607=175 Ind. Cas. 515.

—Ss. 405 and 379—Theft—Persons entrusted with paddy crops—Removal.

Where the accused were entrusted to watch the paddy crops of the complainant and they cut the crops and disposed of the same themselves, they were guilty of either theft or criminal breach of trust. 36 Cal. 758=10 Cr.L.J. 253=3 Ind. Cas. 189.

—Ss. 403 and 379—Theft—Bullocks following cow—Possession.

Where the bullocks follow a cow and disappear, the owner has lost possession of the animals and they cannot be subject of theft but can be of criminal misappropriation. 10 Bur. L.T. 261=18 Cr.L.J. 300=38 Ind. Cas. 332.

20. Wrongful gain.

—S. 409—Wrongful gain—Adatya selling cotton to ginning factory according to custom of market—Held, no wrongful gain—Owner of cotton, held entitled to price prevailing on day of demand.

The complainant gave cotton to the accused who was an adatya, to be sold when instructions were given to sell them. There was no particular agreement but the understanding was to be governed by the custom of the market. The adatya at once handed the cotton over to the ginning factory. All cotton delivered to the ginning factory was lumped together and ginned and sold as the factory thought fit. When the adatya demanded payment the factory paid him at the rates prevailing on that day; and when the seller demanded payment the adatya paid him at the rate prevailing on that day:

Held, that by sale of the cotton to the factory according to custom, it could not be said that the adatya caused wrongful gain to himself by converting it to his own use. The parties had impliedly agreed that the transaction should be governed by the custom of the market and in selling the cotton to the ginning factory, the adatya was merely acting in accordance with that custom. The property in the cotton had passed from the complainant and he was entitled merely to payment at the rate prevailing on the day when he asked for it. A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 168=1943 N.L.J. 128=44 Cr.L.J. 423=I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 436=205 Ind. Cas. 529.

—S. 405—‘Wrongful gain,’ ‘wrongful loss,’ meanings of.

Wrongful gain includes wrongful retention, and wrongful loss includes being wrongfully kept out of property as well as being wrongfully deprived of property. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 350=15 Pat. 108=17 P.L.T. 302=2 B.R. 696=37 Cr.L.J. 877=164 Ind. Cas. 74.

21. Miscellaneous.

—S. 409—Abetment, what is—Offence complete—Subsequent help to real offender to conceal embezzlement—If abetment.

Where the offence of embezzlement was ex hypothesi complete long before, anything done subsequently to help the real offender to conceal the embezzlement might be punishable under some other section but does not amount to abetment of the offence under S. 409. 112 Ind. Cas. 850=30 Cr.L.J. 18=11 A.I.Cr.R. 405=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 382.

—S. 409—Miscellaneous—Power to grant bail.

Under the provisions of S. 497, a Magistrate has no power to grant bail in cases falling under S. 409, Penal Code. 3 Rang. 538 Rel. on. 128 Ind. Cas. 577=A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 335.

—S. 409—Miscellaneous—Similar offences distinguished—Difference between offence of theft, cheating, criminal misappropriation and criminal breach of trust.

An easy method of differentiating between the offence of theft, cheating with delivery of property, criminal misappropriation and criminal breach of trust is to find out whether the original taking was honest or dishonest and whether it was with the consent of the owner or without it. In theft the original taking is without honesty and without the consent of the owner, and in criminal breach of trust it is with both. In obtaining property by cheating the taking is dishonest but with the consent of the owner, and in criminal misappropriation it is honest but without the consent of the owner. 106 Ind. Cas. 678=9 A.I.Cr.R. 282=29 Cr.L.J. 86=A.I.R. 1928 Nag. 113.

—S. 409—Miscellaneous—‘appropriate,’ ‘to misappropriate,’ meaning of.

The words ‘to appropriate’ mean setting apart or assigning to a particular person or use. The words, ‘to misappropriate,’ mean to set apart for or assign to the wrong person or a wrong use and this act must be done dishonestly. 13 A.L.J. 1131=16 Cr.L.J. 795=31 Ind. Cas. 651.

1. Abetment.

—Ss. 411, 412—Accomplice.

A person who himself steals and hands over the stolen property to another who is charged with having received and retained the stolen property with dishonest intention would be an accomplice in offence of receiving stolen property. A.I.R. 1934 Sind 185=28 S.L.R. 336=36 Cr.L.J. 608=154 Ind. Cas. 937.

2. Constructive liability.

—S. 412—Constructive liability—Proof of exclusive possession of room in which stolen articles are found—Necessity.

Where stolen articles are found in a box in a room in the joint occupation and possession of a husband and wife, the husband cannot be convicted of an offence under S. 412, I.P. Code, without proof that he was in exclusive possession. 4 A.I.Cr.D. 286=1950 A.W.R. 265.

—Ss. 411 and 412—Constructive liability—Stolen articles in a dacoity found in house not in the exclusive occupation of accused.

Where the articles stolen during the course of a dacoity are found in a house which is not in the exclusive occupation of the accused but is in the occupation of the accused and his brothers, the accused cannot be convicted under S. 412, I. P. Code. A.I.R. 1950 All. 180=51 Cr.L.J. 586.

—S. 412—Constructive liability—Charge under —Proof required—Possession of junior member of family—Evidence Act, S. 114, Ill. (a).

A charge under S. 412, I.P. Code, will not be proved by merely proving knowledge or belief that the articles were stolen articles. It must further be proved that he accused had knowledge or belief that the possession of the articles had been transferred by the commission of the technical offence of dacoity. There must be positive evidence proving such knowledge or belief. The presumption under S. 114, Ill. (a) of the Evidence Act cannot possibly suffice.

When a number of persons are living in the same family under the common headship of one of them who is the principal member and who owns the house, possession of any article found in the house is prima facie the possession of the master. Possession cannot be found against a junior member except on proof of special acts of appropriation or acts indicating exclusive control on his part. 15 A. 129 and 67 Ind. Cas. 588, approved. I.L.R. (1946) 2 Cal. 619.

—S. 411—Constructive liability—Joint possession of room where stolen property was found.

In a case under S. 411, even if it be found that the accused was the sole occupant of the room, it does not necessarily follow that he must have been aware of the presence in the room of all the articles that were found therein. It is incumbent upon the Judge to consider the circumstances of the occupation of the room and to consider whether it was reasonably possible for other persons to introduce the articles into the room without the accused's knowledge. The mere fact that he failed to prove that he had guests in his house in the previous night is not in itself sufficient to prove that the circumstances of his possession of the house were such as to preclude the reasonable possibility of other persons introducing the stolen goods into the house. This is specially so when it is the case of the prosecution that the accused and another person were in joint possession of the room and the finding that the accused was not in joint possession was based on inadequacy of prosecution evidence and not on positive evidence. A. I. R. 1942 Cal. 440=43 Cr.L.J. 561=199 Ind. Cas. 442.

—S. 411—Constructive liability—Husband and wife.

The mere fact that the accused's wife produced the stolen properties from the house where both were living would not warrant his conviction under S. 411. A. I. R. 1941 Mad. 694=1941 M.W.N. 479 (2)=42 Cr.L.J. 738=195 Ind. Cas. 432.

—S. 411—Constructive liability—Father and son.

The mere fact that a thing is found in a house occupied by father and son in common, is no proof that the one was in possession of it. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 383=7 B.R. 384=42 Cr.L.J. 293=22 P. L. T. 694=192 Ind. Cas. 403.

—Ss. 412, 411—Constructive liability—Father and son.

When the son had taken part in the commission of a dacoity, the presumption, which would naturally be drawn, would be that the dhoti, which had been stolen and found in the house had remained in his possession, and the father cannot be made, in any way, accountable for it merely because it was in the house which his son and himself jointly occupy. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 223=7 B.R. 361=42 Cr.L.J. 258=192 Ind. Cas. 253.

—S. 411—Constructive liability.

It is certainly not intended that no person in possession of house shall be convicted of being in possession of stolen property if there happen to be other people living in his house. A.I.R. 1936 All. 650=1936 A.L.J. 508=1936 A.W.R. 456=37 Cr. L.J. 551=162 Ind. Cas. 295.

—S. 411—Constructive liability—Brothers living jointly.

Where some stolen articles are found in a house occupied by two brothers who used to live jointly, younger of them being the karta, and it is found he was often visited by absconding members of criminal tribe, the elder brother cannot be convicted under S. 411 as it is not safe to attribute knowledge to him simply because his brother kept bad company. It is difficult to hold that his knowledge extended to every item of property received by his brother or brought to him by the members of the criminal tribes. There may be a strong suspicion against him, but for convictions in a criminal case mere suspicion is no proof of guilt. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 534=3 B. R. 22=37 Cr. L.J. 1123=165 Ind. Cas. 230.

—S. 411—Constructive liability—Stolen property found in a house—Liability of head of family and members.

That property found in a house occupied by several male and female members residing therein should be considered to be in possession of the head of the family, is a wholly unwarranted assumption and can have no place in cases in which possession and criminal intent form the essential elements of an offence. It is equally unwarranted to assume that every one residing in the house should be deemed to be in possession of an article recovered from it. Possession implies dominion and consciousness in the mind of the person having dominion over an object that he has it and can exercise it. A person cannot be said to be in possession of a thing unless it is shown by evidence that he had, dominion over it and knew that he had it. The mere fact that a thing is found in a house occupied by a person in common with others or at a place in the house which is as much accessible to others as to him is no proof that he was in possession of it.

In such cases, difficulty in securing evidence cannot obviously justify dispensing with it and assuming the guilt of any one of the members of the family. A.I.R. 1933 All. 437=34 Cr. L.J. 930=1933 A. L. J. 1338=145 Ind. Cas. 130.

—S. 411—Constructive liability—Liability of all.

In a case under S. 411, if the circumstances are such as to raise a presumption that two or more persons are in joint possession of stolen property, both of them may be convicted. There is no justification for the view that there cannot be a joint criminal possession. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 148=34 P.L.R. 576=34 Cr. L.J. 604 (1)=143 Ind. Cas. 463.

—S. 412—Constructive liability—Step-father and son.

Where in a case of dacoity no stolen property is recovered from the accused but some of it is given up by his step-father with whom he was living, the accused cannot be convicted under S. 412, I.P.C., in the absence of sufficient proof that the property had been taken to the house inhabited by the accused and his step-father. A.I.R. 1933 Oudh 423 (1)=10 O. W. N. 842=35 Cr. L.J. 165 (1)=146 Ind. Cas. 708.

—S. 411—Constructive liability—Stolen article found by Police in a house occupied by accused and his mother—No evidence as to accused knowing of it—Conviction if sustainable.

An ornament called a kangni, stolen in a burglary, was found by the Police in a jar of chillies in a house occupied by the accused and his mother. There was nothing to show that the accused put the kangni in the jar or knew that it was there.

Held, that he cannot be convicted under Penal Code, S. 411. 94 Ind. Cas. 909=27 Cr. L. J. 717 (Lah.).

—S. 411—Constructive liability—Property found in room accessible to persons other than accused.

Where the goods which were alleged to be stolen property were found in a room which had no shutters and which was accessible to all the members of the accused's family.

Held: that the accused could not be conclusively said to have been in possession of the stolen articles. 87 Ind. Cas. 846=4 All. 511=23 A.L.J. 421=26 Cr.L. J. 1022=A.I.R. 1925 All. 478.

—S. 411—Constructive liability—Joint Hindu family—Wife of one member in possession of stolen property—Presumption as to guilt of husband.

Where in a house occupied by several male and female members of a joint family, a locked box containing stolen property was found, the key of which was produced by the wife of a member of the family who was not in the house at that time, the husband of the woman who produced the key upon these facts, was convicted under S. 411 of the Indian Penal Code.

Held, that from the mere fact of the actual possession being with the wife, it cannot be presumed in every case of this kind that the possession of the wife was per se the possession of the husband. Possession of wife would frequently be the possession of the husband. In fact it would usually be the possession of the husband, but there must be something, to connect the husband with the possession, more than the mere fact that he is the husband. 67 Ind. Cas. 338=20 A.L.J. 162=23 Cr. L.J. 386=A.I.R. 1922 All. 83.

—S. 411—Constructive liability.

The mere fact that accused and his father lived in the same house, that the father had been convicted under S. 411 and that the accused denied the existence of stolen property in the house, is not enough to justify his conviction. 67 Ind. Cas. 588=24 O. C. 294=A.I.R. 1921 Oudh 225.

—S. 410—Constructive liability—Possession—Doubtful.

When a place in which the article is found, is one to which several persons have equal right of access, the article cannot be said to be in the possession of any one of them. 9 C.L.J. 663=13 C.W.N. 861=10 Cr. L.J. 125=20 Ind. Cas. 681.

—S. 411—Constructive liability—Possession, meaning of—House in possession of Manager of joint Hindu family—Liability.

The Manager of a joint Hindu family is prima facie responsible for the illegal possession of stolen articles found in his house unless the presumption is rebutted upon the particular facts and circumstances of the case. Where the possession of different stolen properties found with different accused persons is under the joint control of all of them, or is due to concert or collusion amongst them, a joint trial of all of them is not illegal. 33 Cal. 1256, Foll. 1 Pat. L.T. 431=58 Ind. Cas. 341=21 Cr. L. J. 757.

—S. 411—Constructive liability—Possession meaning of—House occupied by several persons.

Where stolen property is found in a house occupied by several persons it is not enough to show that the property was found in the house, to convict a member of the family who might have had nothing to do with bringing or keeping it there. 22 O.C. 256=21 Cr.L.J. 40=54 Ind. Cas. 248.

—S. 411—Constructive liability—Possessing property some time after—Twelve days.

Where a stolen property was found on accused's sister, twelve days after the theft and the accused and his sister were living in the same house.

Held, possession was rightly traced to accused. 9 M.L.T. 291=12 Cr. L.J. 48=9 Ind. Cas. 288.

—S. 411—Constructive liability—Possessing property sometime after—Four months.

Possession of sundry articles traced to the accused four months after the theft cannot sustain a conviction for anything more serious than under S. 411. An accused cannot be made liable for the property found in his wife's house when he does not live there and is not on good term with her people. 10 M. L. T. 237=12 Cr.L.J. 549=12 Ind. Cas. 525.

—S. 411—Constructive liability—Possession, meaning of—House occupied by several persons—Property found in that house.

Where property is found in the house in the possession of some persons, mere discovery of any stolen property in that house does not sufficiently prove that the possession was of any one of those persons. 19 M.L.J. 301=9 Cr.L.J. 52=4 Ind. Cas. 163.

—S. 411—Constructive liability—Possession of stolen property—Joint Hindu family—Liability of head of the family or managing member.

Stolen property consisting of a considerable quantity of cloth weighing about five maunds was discovered on search by the Police in a locked room in a house belonging to and inhabited by a joint Hindu family composed of a father, son and grandson. The son was found to be the managing member of the family. The key of the room in which the stolen property was found was produced by him. The circumstances were such that it was very improbable that the cloth could possibly have been placed where it was found without the connivance of some or all of the members of the family.

Held, that under the above circumstances the conviction of the managing member of the family under S. 411 was a proper conviction. 1907 A.W.N. 187=29 A. 598.

3. Conviction and sentence.

—S. 411—Conviction and sentence.

Ingredients of offence—Absence of evidence to prove receipt of stolen goods with knowledge that they were stolen—Conviction—Not sustainable. 219 Ind. Cas. 391=46 Cr.L.J. 613=10 Cut. L. T. 87=11 B. R. 408=A.I.R. 1945 Pat. 161.

—S. 411—Conviction and sentence.

That the accused is a member of the criminal tribe is no ground for differentiation of sentence for an offence under S. 411. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 708=(1941)2 M.L.J. 253=42 Cr. L.J. 224=54 L. W. 479=1941 M. W. N. 480=196 Ind. Cas. 227.

—S. 411—Sentence of fine only if insufficient.

Where, on conviction of an offence under S. 411, the accused were sentenced only with fine which was less than the value of the cattle stolen :

Held, that the sentence was so light as to form a direct encouragement to other persons who may wish or be tempted to indulge in cattle theft or in the sale of stolen cattle and that in the circumstances, a sentence of one year's rigorous imprisonment should be awarded. A.I.R. 1935 Pesh. 100=36 Cr.L.J. 1138=157 Ind. Cas. 169.

—S. 411—Conviction and sentence.

Person found in possession of a stolen revolver without license. He can be tried both under I. P. C and Arms Act and can be punished under both enactments; S. 26, General Clauses Act is no bar. A.I.R. 1933 All. 461=1933 A.L.J. 523=34 Cr.L.J. 1018=145 Ind. Cas. 609.

—S. 414—Conviction and sentence.

The fact that certain persons were convicted in respect of possession of stolen revolver under Ss. 411 and 414, I.P.C. respectively is no bar to their being convicted in respect of it under S. 19 (f), Arms Act, also. A.I.R. 1933 Oudh 470=10 O.W. N. 895=35 Cr.L.J. 36=146 Ind. Cas. 354 (2).

—S. 412—Conviction and sentence—Dacoit—Receiver of stolen property.

A receiver of the articles of petty value stolen at a dacoity should not be treated in practically the same manner as though he were one of the actual dacoits. 103 Ind. Cas. 62=1 L.C. 163=28 Cr.L.J. 638=8 A.I. Cr. R. 312=A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 277.

—S. 411—Conviction and sentence.

A boy of 14-1/2 years, convicted under S. 411, I.P.C. cannot be let off after mere admonition though 6 months' rigorous imprisonment is not proper on a youthful first offender.

—S. 411—Conviction and sentence.

If the stolen property cannot be identified, conviction under S. 411 is untenable. Sweets cannot generally be identified. 35 P.W.R. 1912 (Cr.)=194 P.L.R. 1912=13 Cr.L.J. 720=16 Ind. Cas. 528.

4. Evidence and proof.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—Offence under facts to be proved.

The prosecution, for a successful conviction under S. 411, I.P. Code, has to prove, firstly that the stolen property was dishonestly received or retained by the accused and secondly that he should have known it or should have had reason to believe that it was stolen property. If either ingredient is not established, the charge under S. 411 is not proved. 1949 A.L.J. 445=1949 A.W.R. 532.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—Gist of offence—Proof required.

Once the property has been proved, beyond all reasonable doubt, to have been stolen and properly identified, the possession of such property or retention of it knowing it to have been stolen will amount to an offence under S. 411, I. P. Code. It is not necessary for the prosecution to prove from where the accused received the stolen property or the time when he did receive that. A.I.R. 1949 H.P. 15.

—S. 412—Evidence and proof—Offence under—
Essentials to be established.

In order to establish an offence under S. 412 of the I.P. Code, there must be some evidence to show that the accused knew or had reason to believe that the property was stolen in course of dacoity. Such knowledge or belief cannot be presumed from mere possession of stolen property. The prosecution has to show something more than the mere possession of stolen goods if a conviction under S. 412 of the I.P. Code, is to be sustained. 1948 O.W.N. 404=1948 A.L.W. 402=1949 A.W.R. 299=A.I.R. 1949 A. 245=3 A.I. Cr. D. 324=50 Cr. L.J. 379=1949 A.L.J. 202.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—Burden of proof—
Duty of prosecution on rebuttal of presumption from possession by reasonable explanation of possession—Rule.

In a prosecution on a charge under S. 411, I.P. Code, as soon as the prosecution produce evidence to the effect that the accused was found in possession of stolen property, a presumption arises that he is either the thief or the receiver of stolen property, and this presumption, when unexplained, is regarded by the Court usually as conclusive. But if a prisoner in a receiving charge puts forward a reasonable explanation which might be true, a duty is cast on the prosecution to prove that the explanation is false if they want to secure a conviction of the accused. 49 Cr. L.J. 147=A.I.R. 1948 Lah. 80.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—Conviction under —Evidence necessary—Evidence of Head Constable and alleged information upon which the constable proceeded—Articles found in the house where accused lived—No other circumstances connecting either of the accused with the stolen property—Legality of conviction.

In a case against petitioners convicted under S. 411, I.P. Code, the evidence upon which the conviction was based consisted of the evidence of Head Constable on the railway platform who arrested the accused and the seizure of the articles from the house in which they were living on information alleged to have been given by one of the petitioners.

Held, that the mere recovery of certain property from the house of the two petitioners was not sufficient by itself to attribute guilty knowledge to either of them unless there were some other circumstances connecting them with the possession of the property. Except the alleged statement or information given to the Head Constable regarding the stolen property in the possession of the accused there was hardly any legal evidence on which a conviction under S. 411, I.P. Code, could be justified. 1946 M.W.N. 732=A.I.R. 1947 Mad. 195=48 Cr. L.J. 720=231 Ind. Cas. 248=(1946) 2 M.L.J. 435.

—Ss. 411, 412—Evidence and proof.

It is quite meaningless to convict the accused both under S. 395 and under S. 412 with regard to the evidence about the finding of certain articles in their possession. If, from the evidence on record, an inference of a person being a dacoit can be drawn, conviction under S. 395 is proper. But when there is no evidence that accused knew that the property was stolen the conviction can be under S. 411 and not under S. 412. A.I.R. 1944 Cal. 39=45 Cr. L.J. 468=211 Ind. Cas. 624.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—Accused pointing out place from where property was recovered.

Where the sole evidence against an accused charged with an offence under S. 411 consisted of the fact that upon the Sub-Inspector questioning him, the accused told him that he would point out the property, that he actually took him to the ghura and dug out the property and handed it over to the Sub-Inspector:

Held, that this evidence was not sufficient to base his conviction under S. 411. A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 298=1943 O.W.N. 96=44 Cr. L.J. 473=1943 A.W.R. 28=206 Ind. Cas. 299.

—S. 412—Evidence and proof—Possession of property taken away by dacoits—When offence.

Mere possession of property taken away by dacoits at the time of commission of dacoity will not be sufficient to bring home the charge under S. 412. It must be proved that the accused had knowledge or had reason to believe that the possession of the property was transferred by the commission of dacoity. A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 439 (1)=43 Cr. L.J. 911=9 B.R. 54=203 Ind. Cas. 16.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof.

An axe was found in the house of the accused. It fitted the marks found on the complainant's box which was broken open:

Held, that to convict the accused merely on this would be dangerous unless the axe was an unusual one, and if it was of an ordinary type, the evidence would be of little value. A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 304 (1)=8 B.R. 773=43 Cr. L.J. 648=8 C.L.T. 17=201 Ind. Cas. 206.

—S. 411—Evidence of proof.

If the person gives a reasonable explanation of the possession, the Court should not find him guilty even if it is not affirmatively satisfied that such explanation is not true. Where the accused was not asked to offer any explanation, the convictions cannot be maintained even if the evidence as to possession is accepted. A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 145=8 B.R. 248=43 Cr. L.J. 234=7 C.L.T. 78=23 P.L.T. 500=197 Ind. Cas. 664.

—S. 412—Evidence and proof—Accused must be shown to be at material time in possession of place where stolen goods were discovered.

No man can be convicted under S. 412 for "receiving or retaining" stolen goods unless he is shown at the material time to have been in possession or control of the place where they were discovered or at least to have had some knowledge of their deposit there. A.I.R. 1940 All. 291=1940 A.L.J. 206=41 Cr. L.J. 647=1940 A.W.R. 85=188 Ind. Cas. 649.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—Conviction.

Where the only evidence against the accused is that he was with the other accused before and after the theft, this can hardly warrant his conviction under S. 411. A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 765=1939 M.W.N. 739 (1)=41 Cr. L.J. 96 (1)=184 Ind. Cas. 609 (1).

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—Transaction of sale or pledge—No finding as to, though essential.

The evidence against the accused who was convicted under S. 411, was that he himself told at the time of the inquiry by the Police in the theft case that he purchased the articles from the accused in the said case. But in the course of the trial of the case against the accused in the theft case, the accused had deposed in evidence that the articles were pledged with him by the accused in theft case. The thieves were not examined to prove the nature of the transaction nor was there any other evidence on the point:

Held, that there could be no dishonesty unless the transaction was a sale. As there was no evidence to definitely find whether the transaction was a case of sale or pledge, the accused could not be convicted under S. 411. A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 582=1939 M.W.N. 413=49 L.W. 544 (2)=40 Cr. L.J. 828=183 Ind. Cas. 603.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—"Dishonest intention."

It is of course not possible for the prosecution in a trial for an offence under S. 411 to prove what is in the mind of an accused person, but usually the possession of stolen property knowing it to be stolen is sufficient fact upon which to base an inference of dishonest intention. A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 178=48 L.W. 699=1938 M.W.N. 1124 (1)=40 Cr. L.J. 448=180 Ind. Cas. 601 (D.B.).

—S. 411—Evidence and proof.

Mere intention and preparation to misappropriate the property are not sufficient to constitute offence under S. 411, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 172=46 L.W. 812=(1937)2 M.L.J. 734=1937 M.W.N. 1321=39 Cr. L.J. 312=173 Ind. Cas. 317.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof.

The conduct of the accused in running away when asked as to how he came to be in possession of the stolen property does not suffice to ground a conviction because often an innocent man, when suddenly confronted with a similar situation, is apt to place as much distance between the stolen property and himself as possible. A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 112=17 P.L.T. 754=3 R.B. 287=38 Cr. L.J. 349=167 Ind. Cas. 31.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof.

In cases of receiving stolen property, the onus of proof never passes to the accused. The Crown must prove guilty knowledge. 164 Ind. Cas. 721=62 C.L.J. 257=40 C.W.N. 159=37 Cr. L.J. 976.

—S. 414—Evidence and proof.

Where an accused charged under S. 414, when questioned, offered to indicate the place where the property was and on his master's keys having been obtained, he took the Police to the spot and entering the room, retrieved the currency notes himself from underneath a pile of firewood:

Held, that his statement which led to recovery of the property was admissible under S. 27, Evidence Act.

Held, however, that there was nothing to show that any of the notes recovered were identical with the notes stolen and consequently, his conviction under S. 414 could not be maintained. 162 Ind. Cas. 779=18 N.L.J. 342=37 Cr. L.J. 718.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof.

Mere knowledge of the place (not exclusive possession or control of the accused) where the stolen property is hidden, is no legal proof and conviction cannot be based on it. 1935 M.W.N. 1340.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—Pointing out of stolen property, whether evidence of possession thereof.

The mere pointing out or production of property is not in all cases sufficient to fasten guilty knowledge.

Every case depends on the peculiar circumstances under which the prosecution relies on the pointing out or the production of the property as evidence of possession.

No hard and fast rule can be laid down for inferring from the mere fact of pointing out or production of stolen property that the knowledge of the person pointing it out or producing it must be attributed to the fact that he was in conscious possession of the property. A.I.R. 1934 Sind 159=28 Sind L.R. 41=36 Cr. L.J. 704=154 Ind. Cas. 1038.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof.

Failure of the accused to disclose to trackers names of persons from whom property was purchased and promise to disclose names to the Police or lambardar is not sufficient to prove that the accused purchased the property dishonestly knowing it to be stolen property. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 596 (2)=34 Cr. L.J. 957=145 Ind. Cas. 284.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—Neither receiving nor retaining of stolen property proved.

Where in a trial for an offence under S. 411, neither the receiving nor the retention of stolen property has been established beyond reasonable doubt, the accused is not under any necessity to prove that he had no reason to believe that the property was stolen property. A.I.R. 1933 Sind 359=35 Cr. L.J. 206=146 Ind. Cas. 952.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—Accused knowing where stolen property was buried and producing it but falsely stating that they did it under instructions from police who themselves had buried it—Value of.

Whether the fact of the accused pointing out stolen property is or is not evidence of possession is a question of fact.

Where the accused know that a considerable amount of stolen property is buried in the ground and concealed from the public view in a certain field and produce the same but falsely state that they had pointed out the property on the instructions to do so by the police who had themselves buried the property there, their knowledge cannot be held to be innocent knowledge and such production is sufficient for conviction under S. 411. 24 S.L.R. 338=126 Ind. Cas. 53=1930 Cr.C. 664=A.I.R. 1930 Sind. 168.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—Essentials.

In order to bring home the guilt under S. 411 it is essential that some stolen property should have been found in the possession of the accused and there should have been evidence that the accused retained possession of the property either knowingly or having reason to believe that the same was stolen property. 119 Ind. Cas. 863=10 L.R.A.(Cr.) 156=30 Cr.L.J. 1133=1930 A.L.J. 220=13 A.I.Cr.R. 30=1929 Cr.C. 645=A.I.R. 1929 All. 917.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—Possession of missing bullock.

In order to bring home the guilt under S. 411 it is essential that some stolen property should have been found in the possession of the accused and there should have been evidence that the accused retained possession of the property either knowingly or having reason to believe that the same was stolen property.

A's bullock was missing. After several months it was found in the possession of B. B was prosecuted and convicted under S. 411. B appealed.

Held, that a missing bullock could not be stolen within the meaning of S. 410 as no offence was committed with reference to it by theft or by extortion or by robbery etc. This being so the conviction under S. 411 could not be sustained. 119 Ind. Cas. 863=10 L.R.A. (Cr.) 156=30 Cr.L.J. 1133=1930 A.L.J. 220=13 A.I.Cr.R. 30=1929 Cr.C. 645=A.I.R. 1929 All. 917.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—Dishonesty—Duty of prosecution.

In a trial for an offence under S. 411, it is for the prosecution to prove that the accused received the property dishonestly and the onus that he had received the property honestly does not lie on him. 109 Ind. Cas. 674=10 A.I.Cr.R. 354=10 L.L.J. 316=29 Cr.L.J. 594.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—Burden of proof.—Discovery of stolen property—Long lapse of time—Effect.

Where there is long lapse of time between the theft and the discovery of the stolen property (in this case over 15 months), the onus of proving innocent possession should not be cast on the accused. 108 Ind. Cas. 912=29 Cr.L.J. 464=29 P.L.R. 441=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 687.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—Proof of facts from which knowledge can be presumed.

The knowledge or belief which is required to be established in order to bring the case under S. 411 implies the existence and the presence of facts or circumstances from which the accused was either made aware or ought to have been made aware of the nature of the property. It may be sufficient to show that the circumstances were such as to make him believe that the property was stolen. The word "knowledge" means a mental cognition and not necessarily visual perception. It implies a notice to the Receiver of such facts as could not but have led him to believe that the property was stolen and could not but have been dishonestly obtained. It therefore lies on the prosecution to prove the presence of certain facts from which the accused might have drawn the inevitable conclusion that the property was stolen property. It is not sufficient in such a case to show that the accused person was careless or that he had reason to suspect that the property was stolen or that he did not make sufficient enquiry to ascertain whether it had been honestly acquired: 6 Bom. 402, Foll. 97 Ind. Cas. 664=27 Cr.L.J. 1144=A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 40.

It is not correct that for a conviction under S. 411 there must be proof of theft. 96 Ind. Cas. 869=27 Cr.L.J. 1013=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 640.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—Accused found seated around the stolen property disputing as to its distribution—Value of.

The evidence that the accused were all in the house wherefrom the stolen property was recovered disputing as to what was to be done with the boot, is sufficient for their conviction. 94 Ind. Cas. 705=7 P.L.T. 567=1926 P.H.C.C. 139=27 Cr.L.J. 657=A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 316.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—Proof that the article was stolen.

The offence of receiving stolen property under S. 411 is the offence of receiving a particular article of stolen property or property stolen in a particular theft and so it is necessary that the particular articles stolen should be allged to be stolen and if possible traced to its origin. 91 Ind. Cas. 64=20 S.L.R. 3=27 Cr.L.J. 32=A.I.R. 1926 Sind 129.

Where some of the stolen property was found in the dung heap situated in the courtyard of the house belonging to several persons, it could not be said with certainty as to who was in exclusive possession of the stolen articles and none of them could be convicted either under S. 457 or S. 411. 92 Ind. In a case under S. 414 the ownership of the property need not be traced. It is sufficient if it is proved that the property is stolen. 14 Bom. L.R. 893, Foll. 27 Bom. L.R. 1373=91 Ind. Cas. 690=49 Bom. 878=27 Cr. L.J. 114=A.I.R. 1926 Bom. 71.

—S. 414—Evidence and proof—Finding that property is stolen—Circumstantial evidence.

The finding that property in question was stolen property is an essential finding for a conviction under S. 414. Sufficiently strong circumstantial evidence may support such a finding. An accused concealing property believing it to be stolen while really it was not, commits no offence.

It is not necessary to prove in what theft or in what manner the property was stolen. 13 C.L.J. 793, Expl.; 6 Bom. 402, Foll. 81 Ind. Cas. 310=18 M.L.W. 743=33 M.L.T. 182=25 Cr. L.J. 790=A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 350=45 M.L.J. 728.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—Proof that property is stolen.

Though there may be cases in which it may not be necessary under S. 411, or 414, to prove that the property was stolen from a particular individual yet as a rule it may be taken as a settled law that a person cannot be called upon to account for the possession of property when there is no evidence whatever that the property has been stolen. 14 Bom. —S. 411—Evidence and proof—Accused pointing out place of hiding of stolen property—Value of.

The mere pointing out by an accused person of the place where stolen property is concealed which place is not in his possession, is not of itself sufficient evidence to maintain a conviction for theft or for dishonestly receiving stolen property. 73 Ind. Cas. 331=5 L.L.J. 87=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 385.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—Essentials—Value of article—Evidence necessary.

Where a person is charged with receiving or being in possession of stolen property, an important factor is its value and as to this the Court should insist on having direct evidence, as the accused must have some sworn witness in that respect whom he can cross-examine. 2 U.P.L.R. (All.) 113=21 Cr. L.J. 552=56 Ind. Cas. 856.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—Identification—Cereals.

Where the stolen goods consist of cereals, it must be shown that the cereals stolen were in some way peculiar, the like of which cannot be found anywhere and the consciousness of having received stolen goods must be proved on the part of the accused. 1 Pat. —S. 411—Evidence and proof—Identification—Cloth.

The fact that the cloth found in the house of the accused answers to the general description of the stolen cloth as given by the complainant is not sufficient proof of identity nor the cloth found, had a particular stamp on it, is a sufficient proof. 1 Lah. 102=89 P.L.R. 1920=21 Cr. —S. 411—Evidence and proof—Possessing property some time after theft—Three years.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—Essentials—Guilty knowledge necessary.

The mere fact that a person was in possession of stolen animal and the sold it to another is not in itself sufficient for a conviction under S. 411. —S. 411—Evidence and proof—Possession, meaning of—Production of stolen property from jungle—If sufficient to sustain conviction.

The mere production of stolen property by the accused from a jungle which was neither in his possession nor control is not sufficient to support a conviction under S. 411. 46 P.L.R. 1912=13 Cr. L.J. 28=29 P.W.R. 1912 (Cr.)=13 Ind. Cas. 220.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—Identification—Ordinary article.

Where stolen articles is of ordinary make and there is nothing peculiar in it, the mere evidence of the complainant, a person of ordinary position, as to its identification is not sufficient where it has been equally contradicted by a witness on the other side. 22 P.W.R. 1912 (Cr.)=13 Cr. L.J. 555=15 Ind. Cas. 971.

—S. 414—Evidence and proof—Concealing stolen property—Owner of property not traced—Offence.

S. 414 does not impose on the prosecution the requirement to trace in all cases the owners of the property stolen, but requires to show that the accused voluntarily assisted in concealing or disposing of property which he had reason to believe to be stolen property. The latter fact may be proved from the accused's own conduct and actions. 14 Bom. L.R. 893=13 Cr. L.J. 793=17 Ind. Cas. 537.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—Essentials—Knowledge of the place of concealment.

Knowledge as to the place of concealment of stolen property did not establish that the accused were in possession of the same. 3 S.L.R. 136=11 Cr. L.J. 4=4 Ind. Cas. 481.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—Possessing property some time after theft—Seven months—Article of small value—Recent possession—Burden of proof.

An accused was convicted under S. 411 for being dishonestly in possession of stolen property, namely, a copper vessel, which was discovered seven months after its loss:

Held, that the conviction was bad; the failure of the accused to account for his possession did not relieve the prosecution of the burden of proving that his possession was dishonest. 8 M. L. T. 418=(1910) M.W.N. 819=11 Cr. L.J. 511=8 Ind. Cas. 145.

—S. 411—Evidence and proof—Circumstantial evidence—Offence under S. 411, I.P.C.—Suspicious circumstances—Conclusive evidence of guilt.

In a case under S. 411, it was found that the accused was the father-in-law of one S. who was the cousin of the thief; that he was found in possession of the stolen properties three days after the theft, and that he disposed of them in a somewhat suspicious manner.

Held, that the circumstances, though they form grounds for grave suspicion against the accused, do not furnish conclusive evidence against him for his conviction under S. 411. (1905) 10 C.W.N. 219=3 Cr. L.J. 195.

5. Intention and knowledge.

—S. 411—Intention and knowledge—Ingredient of offence.

The essential ingredient of the offence under S. 411, I.P. Code, is that the accused should dishonestly receive or retain the stolen property, knowing or having reason to believe the same to be stolen property. I.L.R. (1950) Assam 119=51 Cr. L.J. 509=A.I.R. 1950 Assam 87.

—S. 411—Intention and knowledge—Mere possession not sufficient—Knowledge must be established.

The prosecution must establish, not only that the stolen property was recovered from the house or other place in the occupation of the culprit but also that the incriminating article was in the house or other place and the culprit was fully aware of its presence there.

—S. 412—Intention and knowledge—Essentials.

Before the accused are found guilty under S. 412, it must be established that they knew or had reason to believe that possession of the property had been transferred by a dacoity. A.I.R. 1945 Cal. 482=47 Cr. L. J. 302=49 C.W.N. 537=222 Ind. Cas. 265.

—S. 412—Intention and knowledge—Essentials.

Under S. 412, it is necessary to show, not only that the accused was in possession of the property but further that he knew or had reason to believe that the property had been transferred by the commission of dacoity. The offence under S. 412 is much more serious than the offence under S. 411. 219 Ind. Cas. 376=1945 O.W.N. (C.C.) 113=1945 A. W. R. (C.C.) 71=46 Cr.L.J. 600.

—S. 411—Intention and knowledge—Dishonest retention and dishonest reception.

The offence of dishonest retention of property is almost contemporaneous with the offence of dishonestly receiving it. A man who dishonestly receives property if he retains it, must obviously continue dishonestly to retain it. It would be different, however, if the reception of the property were innocent. Then it clearly would be for the prosecution to show at what stage guilty knowledge of the receiver supervened to make the retention dishonest. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 700=39 P.L.R. 1=I.L.R. (1937) Lah. 227=38 Cr. L. J. 1066=171 Ind. Cas. 342.

—S. 411—Intention and knowledge—Status and antecedents of accused, value of.

For conviction under S. 411, the prosecution has to establish not only possession of the property but also that such possession was with knowledge, that it was stolen and in deciding the question of knowledge the status of the accused and their good antecedents are relevant in rebutting the prosecution case so far as knowledge of the nature of the property is concerned. 1937 M.W.N. 327.

—S. 411—Intention and knowledge—Deaf and dumb person.

Under S. 411, Penal Code, it is necessary to prove that the property was stolen and that the accused knew or had reason to believe the same to be stolen property and as proof of that is impossible in the case of deaf and dumb person, it is impossible for the Court to record any conviction or therefore, to award any sentence. Nor is the case one which can be referred or reported to the Local Government under S. 471, Cr.P.C., as S. 471 contemplates the committing of a crime by a person who, owing to the state of his mind, cannot be deemed to have known the quality of his act and the offence with which the accused is charged cannot be said to have been committed unless the accused person knew the property to have been stolen and in the case of a deaf and dumb person, it cannot be said to be so. A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 451=16 P.L.T. 568=2 B.R. 96=37 Cr.L.J. 107=159 Ind. Cas. 577 (2).

—S. 411—Intention and knowledge.

A finding that the articles were possessed by the accused dishonestly with the knowledge or with reason to believe that they were stolen property is necessary for conviction. Mere possession of stolen property is no offence. To retain valuable property which does not belong to the accused does not in itself prove that a man's possession is dishonest. 76 Ind. Cas. 963=25 Cr.L.J. 291=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 340.

—S. 411—Essentials—Intention and knowledge—Possession of stolen property—Knowledge—Suspicion.

In a case of receiving stolen property, knowledge and not mere suspicion warrants a conviction. (1913) M.W.N. 696=14 Cr.L.J. 591=21 Ind. Cas. 383.

—S. 411—Intention and knowledge—Essentials—Receiving stolen property.

To constitute the offence of receiving stolen property under S. 411 it is not sufficient to prove that the accused suspected that the goods received by him might have been stolen but proof of his knowledge or belief that the goods were stolen and of his having received them in that state of mind are necessary. 4 L.W. 53=17 Cr.L.J. 312=35 Ind. Cas. 488.

6. Interpretation.

—S. 411—Interpretation—Offence under—Proof required—"Believe"—Meaning of.

The word "believe" occurring in S. 411, I. P. Code, is much stronger than "suspect". It involves the necessity of showing that the circumstances were such that a reasonable man must have felt convinced in his mind that the property with which he was dealing must be stolen property. It is not sufficient to show that the accused was careless or had reason to suspect that the property was stolen or that he did not make sufficient enquiry to ascertain whether the property had been honestly acquired. A.I.R. 1950 Assam 193.

—Ss. 411, 412—Interpretation—Possession.

The possession contemplated by Ss. 411 and 412 is exclusive possession, otherwise the receiver or the possessor of the stolen property would run the risk of losing the stolen property if some one else could get hold of it. 7. Lost property*—S. 411—Lost property—Finder of property.

A very high standard of honesty is demanded of the finders of his lost property. Before appropriating it, they must attempt to find the owner, if they have means of so doing. If there is no clue to the owner, the finder must use all reasonable means to find the owner and must wait a reasonable time to allow the owner to claim the property before he appropriates it.

8. Presumption of guilt

See also EVIDENCE ACT, S. 114—RECENT POSSESSION.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Proof of knowledge—Resort to presumption.

At the existence of knowledge of an accused person cannot ordinarily be proved affirmatively by positive evidence, the prosecution in cases under S. 411, I. P. Code, has necessarily to depend generally either on a presumption arising from possession of recently stolen properties or from inferences derived from proof of circumstances which rendered it difficult to exclude the fact of knowledge. —Ss. 411 and 412 and Evidence Act (1 of 1872), S. 114, Illustration (a)—Presumption of guilt in the case of person found in possession of goods stolen in a dacoity—Scope and nature of.

It is not easy for a person to know or to have reason to believe the exact manner in which that property could have come in the possession of the transferor or could have been lost to the rightful owner. There should be evidence of facts or circumstances or both from which it can be concluded that the accused could have known or could have reason to believe that the stolen property was lost to the rightful owner or possessor in the alleged manner. It cannot be said from the mere fact that the accused was in possession of property stolen during a dacoity that he must have known or must have had reason to believe that the property was stolen in a dacoity by invoking the presumption under S. 114, Illustration (a) of the Evidence Act. 1950 A.W.R. 203=4 A.I. —Ss. 411 and 412—Presumption of guilt—Possession of property taken in dacoity—Presumption.

When a person is found in possession of property taken in dacoity and is unable to give any reasonable explanation for its being with him, it may be presumed that he knew the property to have been stolen, but not that he knew or had reason to believe that it was the proceed of the dacoity rather than of a burglary or theft. In order to justify his conviction on the more serious charge there must be evidence, circumstantial or oral, to show that he knew or had reason to believe that a dacoity had been committed and the property had been taken in it or that the person from whom he obtained it belonged to a gang of dacoits and the property was stolen property. In a case of dacoity, the presumption would not always be that the receiver of property taken in dacoity is guilty under S. 412. In most cases of mere possession of such property the presumption would be of the lower offence under S. 411. 228 Ind. Cas. 78=1946 N.L.J. 566=A.I.R. 1947 Nag. 57=47 Cr. L.J. 822.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Stolen property in possession of accused after dacoity—Presumption.

No general principle can be laid down that in a case of dacoity, the presumption would always be that the receiver of stolen property is guilt under S. 412. In most cases of mere possession of such property, the presumption would be of the lower offence under S. 411. A.I.R. 1945 Bom. 292=47 Bom. L.R. 63=47 Cr. L.J. 51=221 Ind. Cas. 86.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Benefit of doubt.

In a prosecution of the accused for an offence of receiving the stolen property knowing the same to have been stolen, upon the prosecution establishing that the accused is in possession of goods recently stolen, the jury may, in the absence of any explanation by the accused of the way in which the goods came into his possession which might reasonably be true find him guilty, but, if an explanation were given which the jury think might reasonably be true, and which is consistent with innocence although they were not convinced of its truth, the accused is entitled to be acquitted inasmuch as the prosecution would have failed to discharge the duty cast upon it of satisfying the jury beyond reasonable doubt of the guilt of the accused. —S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Voluntary production of stolen property.

If a person, of his own accord, hands over stolen property to the Police in order to assist them in investigation, it cannot be said to give rise to a presumption that he is the receiver of the stolen property in the criminal sense. On the contrary, the presumption would rather be that he had a clear conscience in the matter. On the other hand, if he had a guilty conscience, the presumption would be that he had done this as a result of some pressure or inducement, and the whole transaction stands on the same footing as an improperly obtained confession. Such inducement or pressure would presumably be within the knowledge of the prosecution, and if the true state of affairs is not disclosed it is impossible for the Court to arrive at the truth. A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 4=44 Cr.L.J. 186=204 Ind. Cas. 226.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Presumption when arises.

Before anybody can be convicted under S. 411, it must be shown that the property in the accused's possession is stolen property. A Court might suspect that it was stolen, but it is for the prosecution to prove affirmatively that the property in his possession was stolen. Once the prosecution proves possession of property recently stolen, the Court may presume the person in possession to be either the thief or a receiver of stolen property. In the absence of any explanation by the person in possession, he may be convicted; any explanation can be asked of him, it must be shown that he was in possession of property proved to have been stolen. A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 304 (1)=8 C.L.T. 17=8 B.R. 773=43 Cr.L.J. 648=201 Ind. Cas. 206.

Where a man is found in possession of property recently stolen, the Court may presume that he is the thief or that he is in possession of the property knowing the same to be stolen. A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 145=7 C.L.T. 78=8 B.R. 248=43 Cr.L.J. 234=23 P.L.T. 500=197 Ind. Cas. 664.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Possession 4 or 5 months after theft.

Possession of the stolen buffalo 5 or 6 or even 4 or 5 months after the offence, is not such possession as will constitute proof of an offence under S. 411, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1942 Sind 85=1 L.R. (1942) Kar. 186=43 Cr.L.J. 771=201 Ind. Cas. 732

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Person found in possession of property taken in dacoity and unable to give explanation—Presumption.

When a person is found in possession of property taken in a dacoity, and is unable to give any reasonable explanation for its being with him, it may be presumed that he knew the property to have been stolen, but not that he knew or had reason to believe that it was the proceeds of a dacoity rather than of a burglary or a theft. In order to justify his conviction on the more serious charge, there must be evidence, circumstantial or oral, to show that he knew or had reason to believe that a dacoity had been committed and the property had been taken in it or that the person from whom he obtained it belonged to a gang of dacoits and the property was stolen property. The conviction under such circumstances ought, therefore, to be altered from one under S. 412 to one under S. 411. Penal Code. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 223=7 B.R. 361=42 Cr.L.J. 258=192 Ind. Cas. 253.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt.

Accused found in possession of stolen property soon after theft—Presumption under S. 114, Illus. (a)—Accused should give explanation of possession—Defence story rejected—Accused can be convicted under S. 411. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 175=21 P.L.T. 1021=7 B.R. 241=42 Cr.L.J. 215=191 Ind. Cas. 702.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt.

Evidence Act, S. 114, Illus. (a), does not relieve the prosecution of the onus of proving the accused's guilt in respect of charge under S. 411, Penal Code. The onus is there just as in the case of any other charge but under certain conditions presumption may arise to alleviate it. A.I.R. 1937 All. 47=1936 A.L.J. 1158=38 Cr.L.J. 196=1936 A.W.R. 973=166 Ind. Cas. 363.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Possession of ornaments nine months after robbery.

Two persons were suspected of robbery and nine months after the robbery, certain ornaments were found in their possession. The identification evidence was of no value and the articles produced were of a kind commonly used by ordinary people. There was no evidence that any of them bore any special mark of identification :

Held, that it was unlikely that the accused would have kept these articles so long had they known that they were stolen articles, especially as they themselves had been suspected shortly after the theft and it would not be safe to draw the presumption that they were either the thieves or were retaining the property dishonestly. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 246=38 P.L.R. 975=38 Cr.L.J. 671=168 Ind. Cas. 966.

—Ss. 411, 414—Presumption of guilt—Possession satisfactorily explained.

Where, in a case under Ss. 411 and 414, the accused satisfactorily accounts for his possession, so that the question of the application of S. 114, Evidence Act no longer arises, then it is necessary to show by evidence, direct or circumstantial that there was some collusion between the thief and the receiver or that the receiver had real reason to believe that the property which he had purchased was stolen. Accused need not prove affirmatively that he came by the goods innocently. An explanation raising doubt about his guilt in the minds of the jury is enough. A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 191=18 P.L.T. 210=38 Cr.L.J. 129=3 B.R. 124=166 Ind. Cas. 91.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Possession two and a half years after theft.

Where the stolen property is found in possession of the accused after two and a half years of the theft, no presumption can arise against him under S. 114, Evidence Act. A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 112=17 P. L. T. 754=3 B.R. 287=38 Cr. L.J. 349=167 Ind. Cas. 31.

—Ss. 411, 412—Presumption of guilt—Onus of proof is on Crown to prove guilty knowledge.

Under S. 114 (a), Evidence Act, the Court may presume that a man who is in possession of stolen goods soon after the theft is either the thief or has received the goods knowing them to be stolen unless he can account for his possession. If he gives an account of his possession which may reasonably be true, though the jury are not convinced that it is true, and there is no other evidence of his guilty knowledge, the prisoner is entitled to an acquittal. There is no obligation to prove that the property is his. All that he is required to do is to give an account, and if that account may reasonably be true, though nevertheless the jury may not be convinced that it is true, he must be acquitted because the Crown have failed to satisfy the onus which always remains upon them to prove his guilty knowledge. 164 Ind. Cas. 721=62 C. L. J. 257=40 C. W. N. 159=37 Cr. L. J. 976.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Articles in possession of accused for several months.

Where, in a charge for an offence under S. 411, Penal Code, the identity of the accused with the purchaser of the stolen bullocks was fairly satisfactorily established but there were serious doubts that the accused may have been a bona fide purchaser of the bullocks when he purchased them and the evidence of the witnesses went to show that for several months these bullocks were seen in the possession of the accused.

Held, that the presumption allowed to be raised under S. 114, Evidence Act, had been sufficiently rebutted by the evidence which the accused had adduced in his defence and the conviction should be set aside.

A.I.R. 1936 Oudh 380=1936 O. W. N. 668=37 Cr. L.J. 907=164 Ind. Cas. 97.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt.

To constitute an offence under S. 411 besides dishonest possession of stolen property there must also be the knowledge of or at least reasonable belief in the property being stolen property, but when some property is proved to be stolen property and the person who is found in possession of it cannot account for its possession especially when he is found in possession of it soon after the theft of the property, it is only reasonable to conclude, not only that he was in possession knowing or having reason to believe it to be stolen property but also, that his possession of it was dishonest. A.I.R. 1935 Oudh 475=1935 O.W.N. 911=36 Cr.L.J. 1206=157 Ind. Cas. 562.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Possession of stolen revolver—Theft not recent.

A stolen revolver was found in possession of the accused who were engaged in collecting arms and explosive substances and it appeared that the theft was not at all recent :

Held, that the mere fact of possession was not sufficient for a conviction under S. 411. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 594=57 C.L.J. 57=35 Cr. L. J. 226=146 Ind. Cas. 1051.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Selling articles more than a month after theft.

The mere fact that the accused sold certain ornaments more than a month after a theft should not be based to draw an inference that the ornaments were the proceeds of a burglary. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 987=35 Cr.L.J. 654=148 Ind. Cas. 400.

Where bullocks were stolen from one village and taken to another village at a distant place and handed over to a person resident of that another village to pasture them with his own, the mere fact of possession of the bullocks by such person would not warrant the inference that the possession was dishonest so as to cast upon such person the onus of displacing the inference of dishonesty. 122 Ind. Cas. 586=31 Cr.L.J. 437=1930 Cr. C. 584=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 353.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Property found 2-1/2 months after dacoity.

There can be hard and fast rule as to time, within which the stolen article should be found with accused, to hold him guilty of being in possession of stolen articles but two and a half months after a dacoity is not a long time. 103 Ind. —S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Possession recent of otherwise—Value of.

No fixed time-limit can be laid down to determine whether possession of articles in recent or otherwise. But every case must be judged on its own facts. If a few stolen articles were found in possession of a person under circumstances which may give rise to the probability of his coming by them honestly some time after the theft the presumption under the law might not arise against him. 94 Ind. Cas. 361=27 Cr.L.J. 617=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 925.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Property found 19 months after theft.

Possession of stolen property 19 months after theft raises no presumption that the holder thereof was either the thief or received the goods knowing them to be stolen; 22 C.W.N. 597; 11 M.L.W. 43 and 22 Cr.L.J. 595, Foll. 95 Ind. Cas. 471=27 Cr.L.J. 807=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 528.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Evidence Act, S. 114, Ill.(a)—Article of ordinary type found 2-1/2 years after theft—Presumption as to guilt.

2-1/2 years before the discovery, at the house of accused, of the articles (four silver ornaments of ordinary type worth Rs. 100) there had been removed from the houses of the two complainants by means of a dacoity. The accused was a goldsmith by caste and profession and when asked, he explained that he himself had made them for his wife. The articles were found, except in one case, on the person of the wife of the accused.

Held, that the accused cannot be presumed to be in possession of the articles with guilty knowledge. 29 All. 138, Foll. 85 Ind. Cas. 722=5 L.R.A.(Cr.) 199=26 Cr.L.J. 578=A.I.R. 1925 All. 220.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Mere discovery of stolen article in a roofless room of accused's house—Value of.

A burglary was committed in the house of one Maharaji and she made a report the next morning giving a list of articles including wearing apparel. Among the articles she mentioned was a dhoti said to have had a tear in the border. A few days after the police searched the accused's house and in the presence of two search witnesses a dhoti was found hanging on a peg in a roofless room. This room contained some other articles of household besides the dhoti. In front of this room there was another room covered by a roof and then there was a thatched portion of the house in which the accused, his wife and children lived. Mt. Maharaji and her son both recognised the dhoti as belonging to them.

Held, that an accused person cannot be convicted under S. 411 merely on showing that he was in possession of certain property and failed to account for its possession. The prosecution must prove both that the property was stolen and that the accused received it or retained it dishonestly. But under certain circumstances a Court is entitled to draw presumption under S. 114 of the Evidence Act from the fact of possession. In the present case however there is no necessary inference that the accused had knowledge that the dhoti was concealed in the room attached to this house. 81 Ind. Cas. 558=21 A.L.J. 836=4 L.R.A. Cr. 245=25 Cr. L. J. 942=A.I.R. 1924 All. 192.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Possession of property 2 years after loss—Refusal to explain.

Though usually a Court is not justified in drawing the presumption of guilty knowledge from possession of property such as jewellery nearly two years after the property had been stolen or otherwise lost to the real owner, the Court is always entitled to request the possessor to disclose the name of the person from whom he had obtained the articles and the particulars as to the origin of the possession and the Court is entitled to draw unfavorable inferences, if the accused refuses to disclose such facts or gives an explanation which can be shown to be false. 81 Ind. Cas. 443=2 Rang. 80=25 Cr. L.J. 907=A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 256.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Inference of possession—Accused joint owner of shop where goods were recovered.

Where the accused was not only a joint owner of a shop but also had the key by which the lock of the shop was opened on the day the property was recovered.

Held, that he must be regarded to be in possession of the goods found in the shop. 74 Ind. Cas. 271=4 L.L.J. 484=24 Cr. L.J. 767.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Finding of property 3 years after theft

The mere finding of stolen property found with the accused three years after the theft does not indicate dishonest intention within S. 411. A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 460.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Property found after 2 months.

It is of the essence of an offence under S. 411, I.P.C. to show that the person was in possession of the stolen property with knowledge of its being so. Where the stolen property was traced to the accused's possession after nearly 10 months at least.

Held, the presumption under S. 114 of the Evidence Act could hardly be applied. It cannot be assumed without evidence that the accused's statement is false. It is one thing to find the entry sought to be proved by the accused suspicious and to refuse to act upon it and another thing to find the falsehood of what is sought to be proved. 72 Ind. Cas. 538=24 Cr. L.J. 426=17 M.L.W. 370=32 M.L.T. 318=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 365=44 M.L.J. 243.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Failure to explain—Possession of stolen property—Failure to explain the source—Proof of guilt.

Where the accused was found wearing some of the stolen articles while some other articles were found in his possession soon after the theft, and where he sold stolen property and received his share of the price but could not properly explain how they came into his possession and admitted that he had received them from a person convicted of theft.

Held, the accused was guilty of receiving stolen property, knowing it to be stolen. A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 80.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Articles changing hands.

Where the nature of the articles is such that they may be constantly changing hands, the recovery of such articles more than 5 months after the theft cannot, in law give rise to a presumption against the possessor, and it is not incumbent upon him to explain how he came by them. 62 Ind. Cas. 867=22 Cr.L.J. 595=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 89.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Possessing property sometime after theft—Duty to account for recent possession—Trial by jury—Explanation of accused.

When recent possession of the stolen property by the prisoner is established, and he gives an explanation which in the opinion of the jury may be reasonably true, though they are not convinced that it is true the prisoner is entitled to an acquittal as the Crown in such a case has not discharged the onus of proof which it had to. In a case under S. 411 in charging a jury it should be pointed out that the stolen goods referred to must be in possession soon after the theft or in other words that the stolen goods must have been recently stolen. 24 C.W.N. 619=31 C.L.J. 310=21 Cr. L.J. 545=56 Ind. Cas. 849.

—Ss. 411 and 396—Presumption of guilt—Possessing property some time after theft—Six weeks—Receiving stolen property—Burden of proof—Identification—Delay.

When the interval between dacoity and finding of the stolen goods is about six weeks and the direct evidence of identification by which it was sought to connect the accused with dacoity failed, the accused should not be convicted of dacoity and the knowledge that the goods found were stolen by dacoity should not be imputed to them. They were guilty of the offence of dishonestly receiving or retaining stolen property punishable under S. 411 of the Penal Code. 29 C.L.J. 325=20 Cr. L.J. 525=51 Ind. Cas. 685.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Possessing property some time after theft.

The possession of stolen property long after the theft does not give room for the presumption that the accused received the property knowing them to be stolen. 22 C.W.N. 597=19 Cr. L.J. 702=46 Ind. Cas. 158.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Possessing property some time after—Seven months—Currency notes.

When currency notes lost more than seven months before are traced to the possession of a shroff, it could not be said that the accused was found in recent possession of stolen articles. The Magistrate was therefore right in not issuing the process. 17 C.W.N. 1129=14 Cr. L.J. 571=21 Ind. Cas. 171.

—Ss. 411 and 414—Presumption of guilt—Essentials—Knowledge of the place of concealment.

The fact of a person being able to show the place of concealment of stolen property, when the place it not his own, is not a proper clue for inferring the person to be a receiver or retainer as mere knowledge would not suffice to make him a participator in the act. 1 P.R. 1917 (Cr.)=18 Cr. L.J. 490=39 Ind. Cas. 330.

—S. 411—Presumption of guilt—Possessing property some time after—Possession of, when to be explained.

If considerable time has passed between theft and the discovery of the stolen property, possession of that property in itself does not require any explanation. (1912) M.W.N. 529=13 Cr. L.J. 596=16 Ind. Cas. 164.

9. Procedure.

—S. 412—Procedure.

When the evidence of recovery of stolen property is attached, the Court has to examine the evidence in the light of the following alternative hypothesis:—

—Ss. 414, 411—Procedure—Joint trial.

Where an accused pleads guilty and admits himself to be the thief and not merely the receiver, the conviction should obviously be under S. 414 and not under S. 411.

Where accused A admits commission of theft and in his statement before the charge admitting his guilt states that he sold a part of the property to B but did not tell B that the property was stolen, A and B cannot be tried jointly. The proper course for the Magistrate in such circumstances is to separate the cases and call A as a witness in B's case in order that his exoneration of B might be tested by cross-examination and acted upon if found to be trustworthy. A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 319=41 Cr. L.J. 823=190 Ind. Cas. 116.

—Ss. 411, 414—Procedure—Trial by jury.

In a case under Ss. 411 and 414, the proper way to charge the jury would be to tell them that when once the presumption under S. 114, Evidence Act, ceased to be applicable, there is no evidence of guilty knowledge at all. Omission to state this is a misdirection. The omission to mention before the jury some small items of corroborative or discrepant evidence may be comparatively unimportant, particularly in a case where the jury had been addressed by Advocates on each side. But the omission to make it clear to them exactly what they had to decide and how they have to proceed to decide it, or the stating of points in a manner which is positively misleading is a very serious misdirection since, it is the business of the Judge to explain clearly to jury what is the point which they have to decide. A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 191=3 B.R. 124=38 Cr. L.J. 129=18 P.L.T. 210=166 Ind. Cas. 91.

—S. 413—Procedure.

—S. 411—Procedure—Cr. P. Code, S. 234—Accused charged with removing six animals belonging to five specific persons—Legality of trial.

Where the accused is charged jointly with having stolen six specific animals belonging to five specific persons by five different acts of theft from those five specific persons,

Held: that the error is not a mere technicality which can be set right under S. 537. The trial is wholly illegal. 25 Mad. 61 (P.C.), Foll. 91 Ind. Cas. 64=20 S.L.R. 3=27 Cr. L.J. 32=A.I.R. 1926 Sind 129.

—S. 412—Procedure—Directions to jury—Case of dacoity—Possession of stolen property with accused—Charge that there is in law a presumption of guilt—Misdirection.

Where in a case of dacoity the Judge charged to the jury saying that if the articles are stolen properties and were found in possession of the accused it is sufficiently proved that they were thieves or dacoits and the rebuttable presumption that arises in law is that the accused are either thieves or dacoits until they succeed by adducing sufficient proof in establishing their innocence.

Held: that the direction was a serious misdirection.

In a case where the evidence of the guilt of the accused rests upon discovery of stolen property from his possession, and which is tried by the jury the proper course is to direct that the jury are entitled to take the explanation offered by the accused of their possession. It is not necessary that such claim by the accused must be proved. 90 Ind. Cas. 542=53 Cal. 157=42 C.L.J. 212=26 Cr. L.J. 1582=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 1241.

—S. 412—Procedure—Article of small value—Opinion of assessors.

In a case of identification of ornaments of small value the opinion of the assessors is of considerable value as they are well acquainted with the ways and habits of men of ordinary standing. 89 Ind. Cas. 155=12 O.L.J. 339=2 O.W.N. 330=26 Cr.L.J. 1291=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 452.

—S. 411—Procedure—Trial in Native State—Further trial in British India for same offence—Maintainability.

Where accused committed dacoity in British India but were caught with the stolen property in a Native State and were tried and convicted under S. 411 by the State Court and had undergone the period of imprisonment.

Held, another trial for the same offence on the same fact in British India was barred. 73 Ind. Cas. 939=5 L.L.J. 574=24 Cr. L.J. 715=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 238.

—S. 411—Procedure—Separate charges—Defects in procedure.

Unless stolen articles come into possession of the accused at different times, a separate charge is necessary for each of the articles possessed. It is only such a defect in the charge as has prejudiced the accused that invalidates a conviction. 36 P.L.R. 1910=11 Cr. L.J. 597=8 Ind. Cas. 229.

10. Several articles.

—S. 411—Several articles—Receiving stolen property—Property belonging to different owners and proceeding from different burglaries—Conviction for separate offences.

Where property belonging to different owners and the proceeds of different burglaries are found in the possession of one man, he cannot be convicted of several offences of receiving in respect of the property identified by different owners unless the prosecution proves that they were received by him at different times. 163 Ind. Cas. 132=37 Cr. L.J. 752.

—S. 411—Several articles—Separate convictions, when legal.

When a person is in possession of various stolen articles, he cannot be convicted separately in respect of each article unless the prosecution establish that there were different acts of receiving in respect of these articles. A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 615=34 Cr. L.J. 458=34 P.L.R. 433=142 Ind. Cas. 884.

—S. 411—Several articles—Accused in possession of property belonging to several owners—Several offences—Proof of receipt at different times—Necessity.

A person who is found in possession of properties identified as belonging to different owners should not be convicted of several offences of receiving in respect of the property identified by each owner unless the prosecution proves that they were received by him at different times. It is not for the accused to prove that the act of receiving was only one: 15 All. 317; A.I.R. 1923 All. 547; 15 Cal. 511; A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 557, Foll. 110 Ind. Cas. 673=29 P.L.R. 541=11 A.I. Cr. —S. 411—Several articles—Properties stolen at different places—Separate convictions for receiving stolen property.

When an accused person produces property known to have been stolen at different places he can be convicted separately of receiving stolen property. 96 Ind. Cas. 120=27 Cr. L.J. 872 (Sind).

—S. 411—Several articles—Accused found with two stolen articles—Source of possession not known—Number of offences.

A packet containing a loose diamond and a diamond-ring was lost and was found with accused two years later.

Held, only one offence of retaining stolen property was committed under S. 411 and not two offences under S. 403 one in respect of diamond and the other in respect of the ring. 81 Ind. Cas. 443=2 Rang. 80=25 Cr. L.J. 907=A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 256.

—S. 412—Several articles—Receipt—Offences, if several.

A person found in possession of stolen property identified as belonging to different owners, cannot be convicted separately in respect of property identified by each owner unless there is evidence to prove that they were received by him at different times. [15 All. 317, Foll.] The essence of an offence under S. 411 or 412 is the act of receiving or retaining stolen property. If a thief hands over to the accused a bundle containing a number of articles, the offence committed by the accused in receiving those articles is a single offence and not a number of offences and it makes no difference whether the articles belonged to a single owner or to different owners. 73 Ind. Cas. 520=21 A.L.J. 339=45 All. 485=24 Cr. L.J. 632=4 L.R.A. (Cr.) 104=A.I.R. 1923 All. 547.

—S. 411—Cr. P. Code (1898), Ss. 239 and 233—Several articles—Articles subject of same burglary received by several accused at various times—Transaction, if same.

The fact that the articles were the subject of one theft or burglary would not connect the receiving or the retaining of those articles by the several accused at different times and places with the original theft or burglary, or with themselves in such a way as to show that the offences under S. 411, I.P.C., were committed in the course of the same transaction. S. 239 therefore has no application and the only section of the Code applicable to the case is S. 233. 2 P.L.T. 47=A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 291.

—S. 411—Several articles—Distinct offences—Stolen property—Receipt—Different occasions.

Unless stolen properties were received on different occasions receipts of such properties constitute but one offence and the offender should have but one sentence. (1901) 3 Bom. L.R. 187.

11. Stolen property—What is.

—S. 414—Stolen property, what is—Removal of property from dead body.

An accused misappropriated property from a dead person and voluntarily assisted in disposing of it:

Held, that the property was stolen property and on offence under S. 414 was committed. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 109=39 Cr.L.J. 490=174 Ind. Cas. 839.

—S. 414—Stolen property—Proceeds from sale of stolen property, whether amounts to receipt of stolen property itself.

In order that any person must be convicted of receiving stolen property, it must be shown that the property was stolen. The receiving of proceeds realised from the sale of the stolen property is not receipt of the stolen property itself. 162 Ind. Cas. 779=18 N.L.J. 342=37 Cr.L.J. 718.

12. What constitutes offence.

—S. 412—What constitutes offence.

Offence under—Facts to be shown—Nature of offence in relation to that in S. 411. 1945 O.W.N. (C.C.) 113=46 Cr. L.J. 600=1945 A.W.R. (C.C.) 71.

—Ss. 410, 411 and 414—What constitutes offence.

Rs. 1,000 note was entrusted to A for depositing in bank to his master's account—A and his associates changing note of Rs. 1,000 into notes of smaller denomination and distributing same amongst themselves—B and C found in possession of such notes. held guilty under S. 411. A.I.R. 1944 Sind 237=46 Cr. L.J. 243=217 Ind. Cas. 202.

—S. 411—What constitutes offence—Theft in State—Possession in British India.

Where the theft of a horse in a native State has been very recent, the presumption is that the accused himself (who was found with the horse in British India) stole the horse and brought it to British India. The accused can, therefore, properly be convicted under S. 411 for the offence of dishonestly retaining stolen property knowing it to be stolen, even though the theft had taken place outside British India. A.I.R. 1943 Lah. 162=I.L.R. 1943 Lah. 62=44 Cr.L.J. 706=45 P.L.R. 412=207 Ind. Cas. 514.

—S. 411—What constitutes offence—Possession must be exclusive and conscious.

Before a conviction can be sustained under S. 411, the exclusive and conscious possession of the stolen articles must be brought home to the accused :

Held, after considering all the circumstances that there was no evidence to show that it was the accused who had stolen the articles. From the circumstances, the possibility of somebody putting the articles in the unused part of the house belonging to the accused either to get rid of them or to falsely implicate the accused was not excluded. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 614=7 B.R. 996 (2)=42 Cr. L.J. 810=196 Ind. Cas. 79.

—S. 414—What constitutes offence.

The accused, a driver of a taxi, was carrying persons who had hired it. On the way the taxi stopped and two persons got down from it and within a distance of about three and half yards, they without premeditation attached, injured and robbed a man of his purse and then again boarded the taxi and the accused, in spite of the cries of the victim, drove away as fast as he could :

Held, the accused having assisted the robbers in making away with the money so robbed, should be convicted under S. 414. I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 9.

—S. 414—What constitutes of offence.

Jewels entrusted with accused No. 1 for sale—Allegations that accused No. 1, with the help of accused No. 2, pledged the jewels with some third person—In fact the pledge was made by accused No. 2—Accused No. 1 convicted under S. 406 and accused No. 2 convicted under S. 414:

Held, that accused No. 2 could not be charged under S. 414 but must have been charged for abetment of breach of trust. 1936 M.W.N. 493.

—S. 414—What constitutes offence—Spending money stolen by another.

Section 414 provides for the punishment of those who voluntarily assist in concealing or disposing of or making away with property which they know or have reason to believe to be stolen property. In reality the question is whether the words "disposing of" cover spending of money stolen by somebody else. The words cannot be divorced from their context and the intention of the section is to punish persons who, subsequent to the commission of the offence, either conceal it or make away with it by destroying or otherwise disposing of it. The section is intended to penalise persons who deal with stolen property in such a way that it becomes impossible to identify it or use it as evidence. The section cannot apply to a case of a man spending money stolen by another. A.I.R. 1935 Lah. 587=36 Cr. L.J. 1459=158 Ind. Cas. 835.

—S. 411—What constitutes offence—Stolen gems recovered at instance of accused—Evidence to show that he had the gems for sale and that they were the property of certain jewellers—Inability of accused to explain that property was his—Conviction under—Legality of.

It is true that the mere fact that the accused had pointed out the place where some of the stolen property was concealed is not in itself sufficient evidence to support a conviction under S. 411. But where there is not only the recovery of the stolen property at the instance of the accused from a place but there is the evidence of witnesses to show that the accused had certain gold and diamond stones (the stolen property) for sale and that these diamond stones have been property of certain jewellers and the accused had offered no explanation as to how he, a poor man, came into possession of a packet of diamond stones as well as gold ornaments and he has furnished no explanation as to why he desired the gold to be melted, the charge under S. 411 is fully brought home to the accused, as it is for the accused to explain that the diamond stone proved to be the property of the jewellers were really his and that these diamond stones were purchased by him from somewhere and that he was the real owner of these stones. A.I.R. 1934 Oudh 399=35 Cr. L.J. 1130=11 O.W.N. 905=150 Ind. Cas. 845 (2).

—S. 411—What constitutes of offence—Ingredients of offence.

In a charge under S. 411, the prosecution has got to prove: (1) that the property was stolen, (2) that it was received or retained by the accused and (3) that the accused knew or had reason to believe the property to be stolen. The prosecution may prove these three ingredients either by positive evidence or by certain presumptions. A.I.R. 1933 All. 893=1933 A.L.J. 1534=35 Cr. L.J. 621=56 All. 250=148 Ind. Cas. 141.

—S. 411—What constitutes offence.

When receipt or retention of property, not necessarily for disposal, is dishonest, S. 411 is the appropriate section. If, on the other hand, dishonest receipt or retention cannot be proved but only dishonest concealment or disposal, S. 414 is more appropriate. 91 Ind. Cas. 690=49 Bom. 878=27 Bom. L.R. 1373=27 Cr. L.J. 114=A.I.R. 1926 Bom. 71.

—S. 414—What constitutes offence.

S. 414 requires that the accused should have assisted some one else in the disposal of the property and does not cover a case where a person receives and then disposes of stolen property entirely on his own account. 91 Ind. Cas. 690=49 Bom. 878=27 Bom. L.R. 1373=27 Cr. L.J. 114=A.I.R. 1926 Bom. 71.

—S. 411—What constitutes offence—Jurisdiction—Robbery committed outside British India—Stolen property brought into British territory—Cr. P.C., S. 181.

Two persons—B who was not a British subject and R—were committed to the Court of Sessions at Jhansi. It being alleged against them that they had committed a robbery in an adjoining Native State and had brought the stolen property into British territory.

Held, that, though neither could be tried by the Session Judge of Jhansi for the robbery, B, because he was not a British subject, and R because the certificate required by S. 188, Cr. P.C. was wanting, yet both might be tried for the offence of retaining stolen property under S. 411 of the Penal Code. A thief who steals outside British India and enters British territory with the property can be convicted under S. 411. B. 186 foll. 3 A.L.J. 146=1906 A.W.N. 52=28 A. 372.

1. Amendment suggested.

—S. 415—Amendment suggested.

The definition of 'cheating' in S. 415 requires modification in order to cover cases where one person is deceived and another person suffers, or is likely to suffer damage or harm in body, mind, reputation or property. A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 460=I.L.R. (1941) Lah. 718=43 Cr. L.J. 254=197 Ind. Cas. 711.

2. Applicability and scope.

—Ss. 419, 420.

A went to a patwari and told him that B had sold him some land. He produced M who represented himself to the alleged vendor B. The patwari made an entry to this effect in the mutation register. The mutation was placed before the Naib-Tahsildar and the same representation was repeated before him.

Held, that the case did not fall within the purview of S. 415 and that no conviction under S. 419 could, therefore, be sustained against A and M. They also could not be convicted under S. 420 as M's statement before the Naib-Tahsildar could not be regarded as valuable security. A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 460=I.L.R. (1941) Lah. 718=43 Cr. L.J. 254=197 Ind. Cas. 711.

—S. 417—Nature of offence.

The offence under S. 417 is cheating generally; but that under S. 420 as an aggravated type of the offence involving delivery or destruction of valuable security. 83 Ind. Cas. 57=20 M.L.W. 919=25 Cr.L.J. 1193=A.I.R. 1925M ad. 367.

—S. 415 and 417—Cheating or fabricating false evidence.

Sending Khilafat bonds in an insured postal cover, instead of Government Currency Notes is no offence under this section. It may amount to an offence of fabricating false evidence. 83 Ind. Cas. 993=21 A.L.J. 865=5 L.R.A.(Cr.) 15=26 Cr.L.J. 209=A.I.R. 1924 All. 205.

—Ss. 415, 416, 419—Cheating—Definition.

Where the accused was found to have knowingly represented one Musammam Jasoda to the Musammam Bitia, the mother of a sepoy named Kapur Singh who had been killed in action, and thereby induced the military authorities to grant a pension to Musammam Jasoda to which she was not entitled, it was held that the accused had committed the offence of cheating punishable under S. 419. (1907) A. W. N. 291=5 A.L.J. 57.

3. Attempt to cheat.

—S. 417—Attempt and preparation—Distinction.

There is a wide difference between the preparation and an attempt to commit an offence. The preparation consists in devising or arranging means necessary for the commission of an offence, an attempt is the direct movement towards the commission after the preparations are made.

Where a clerk, in charge of weighing the sugarcane which were brought to the sugar company for sale, entered in the register higher weight of the sugarcane but the register had not left his hands.

Held, that his action had not passed from the stage of preparation into that of an attempt to cheat. 65 Ind. Cas. 492=23 Cr.L.J. 108=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 307.

—S. 419 and 511—Railways Act (IX of 1890), S. 112 (a)—Travelling with forged pass—Cheating by personation—Attempt—Conviction.

A person travelling with a forged Railway pass and being detected should be convicted under Ss. 419 and 511, I.P.C., his attempt to cheat by personation not being successful. 21 M.L.J. 748=12 Cr. L.J. 406=11 Ind. Cas. 590.

—Ss. 415, 511—Attempt to cheat—Complaint in a prosecution for attempt to cheat.

The accused without any authority arranged a contract for the delivery of the goods to the complainant firm by Messrs. Birkmyre Brothers. On the repudiation of the contract by the latter, the former pressed their claim under the contract and instructed their pleader to write to the latter firm and demand fulfilment of the contract. The accused then went to the pleader, falsely represented himself to be a member of the complainant's firm and instructed the pleader to write a letter in the name of the complainant's firm to Messrs. Birkmyre Brothers stating that the contract had been cancelled by the complainant's firm. The pleader wrote the letter, but on reference to the complainant's firm refrained from despatching it. On the prosecution of the accused by the complainant under Ss. 417, 511.

Held, that the accused committed the offences under Ss. 417, 511, as he fraudulently induced the pleader to write the letter which he would not have otherwise done and as, if the fraud had been successful, it must necessarily have caused injury to the pleader in mind, reputation and perhaps in his business, and might have involved him in litigation; that in a prosecution on a charge of attempting to cheat a certain person, that person need not be the complainant. (1908) 7 C.L.J. 375=12 C.W.N. 750.

—Ss. 415, 417, 511—"Induces thereby"—Attempt to cheat—Cooly recruiting—Attempt under S. 511.

The accused a cooly recruiter, induced the complainant to come to the cooly depot and promising him domestic service entered his name in the book of the depot and wrote a letter to a cooly contractor in Calcutta offering the complainant as a cooly; on the same day the accused persuaded the complainant to go to the Railway station to fetch a parcel and there the accused bought a Railway ticket for Calcutta for the complainant and tried to get him to enter the train but the complainant refused to go. The object of the accused was to get the complainant to go to Calcutta that he might be sent from there to Assam as a tea garden cooly.

Held, that the acts of the accused amounted to an attempt to cheat and therefore the conviction under Ss. 417 and 511 I.P.C., was right. (1905) 9 C. W. N. 764=2 Cr. L.J. 422.

—Ss. 415, 511—Attempt to cheat.

Where the evidence established the fact that the accused informed an octroi superintendent that there were 16 maunds of an article in a cart, whereas there were only 6 and by this act he induced the superintendent to grant him a refund of the duty on 16 maunds of the article instead of 6 maunds, and where this was discovered before any money was paid to accused.

Held, that the accused was guilty of an attempt at cheating under S. 417 read with S. 511. (1905) 2 A.L.J. 718.

—Ss. 415, 511, 468—Application to University for duplicate certificate by person not entitled.

S held a Matriculation certificate. C failed to pass the Matriculation examination. He wrote a letter purporting to be signed by S asking for a duplicate certificate and enclosed a letter purporting to be signed by the headmaster of a local school, supporting the application for a duplicate. It was not in fact signed by the headmaster, and S had not lost his certificate.

Held, (1) there was no cheating, as there was no proof that the deception practised by the accused on the Registrar of the University had caused harm or damage to the University which he represented. Nor was it shown that the accused in applying for the duplicate, intended to cause wrongful gain to himself or wrongful loss to the University to whom he had paid a fee greater than the cost price of the certificate. (2) The charge failed, for, assuming that the accused fabricated the headmaster's certificate, it was not shown that he did so fraudulently or dishonestly and with intent to cause damage or injury to the public or to any one. The question before the court was not as to his intended use of the certificate subsequently. (3) Even if he had such an intention, his mere preparation did not amount to an attempt to commit an offence within S. 511. (1902) 25 M. 726=12 M.L.J. 68. See 28 M. 90 (F.B.)

—Ss. 415, 511.—Traveling without ticket—Attempt to Cheat. See RAILWAYS' ACT, S. 112.

4. Burden of proof.

—Ss. 415 and 420—Gist of offence—Allegation that complainant was deceived into buying stolen shares on representation by accused that they belonged to him—Proof how accused obtained shares soled—Onus, if on accused Evidence Act, S. 106.

To cheat a person there must be a dishonest and fraudulent intent. A man may be induced to do something on a false representation made to him. If the person making the representation honestly believed the representation to be true, there can be no question of cheating. But if he knew that the representation was false and he made it with a view that the other person should act upon it then that would amount to cheating. Where the case for the prosecution is that the complainant was cheated and deceived into buying stolen shares on the representation by the accused that they belonged to him, the prosecution has to prove not only that the shares sold to the complainant were stolen shares and that the representation made that they originally belonged to the accused was false, but also that that representation was false to the knowledge of the accused and was made in order to deceive the complainant and to induce him to buy. S. 106 of the Evidence Act does not cast the burden on the accused person of proving how he acquired the shares although it is a matter especially within his knowledge. This section can never be used to shift the onus of establishing an essential fact from the prosecution on the shoulders of an accused person. A.I.R. 1949 Cal. 586=3 A.I.Cr.D. 631=51 Cr.L.J. 115.

—Ss. 417, 415—Burden of proof.

In a prosecution for an offence under S. 415 the burden is on the prosecution to prove fraud or dishonesty. The burden of proof is not on the accused to prove their honesty. Every ingredient which is included in the definition of the offence must be established by the prosecution. A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 598=35 Cr.L.J. 95=146 Ind. Cas. 580.

- (c) False Insurance of letter.
- (d) Fraudulently or dishonestly.
- (e) Misrepresentation.
- (f) Personation.
- (g) Miscellaneous.

5. (a) Cheating by cheque.

—S. 417—Post-dated cheque.

A post-dated cheque in payment of goods already received is a mere promise to pay on a future date. And a broken promise is not a criminal offence though it may amount in certain business relations discreditable behaviour. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 129=1937 M.W.N. 999=46 L.W. 629=(1937)2 M.L.J. 878=39 Cr.L.J. 261=173 Ind. Cas. 14.

—S. 415—Cheating by cheque—Duty of prosecution—Proof that non-payment was not accidental but intentional.

What the prosecution has to do in a case of cheating by means of cheque is to establish facts which point prima facie to the conclusion that the failure to meet the cheque was not accidental but was a consequence expected and therefore intended by the accused. It will then be for the accused to establish any facts there may be in his favour which are specially within his knowledge and as to which the prosecution could not be expected to have any information. 32 Bom. L.R. 562=126 Ind. Cas. 868=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 179.

—S. 417—Cheating by cheque.

The giving of a cheque on a bank as payment for goods, or in payment of a debt does not amount to a representation that the person giving the cheque has money to the amount in the Bank at the time, but does not amount to a representation: (1) that he has authority to draw on the bank for that amount; (2) that the cheque is a good and valid order for the payments of its amount and that the cheque will be paid, i. e., that the existing state of facts is such that in the ordinary course the cheque will be met. (1874) 2 C.C. 134 Foll. 32 Bom. L.R. 562=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 179=126 Ind. Cas. 868.

—S. 415—Cheating by cheque—Payment by cheques which were dishonoured—Bets on credit in return—No loss caused—No Cheating.

The petitioner was a licensed book-maker of the Royal Calcutta Turf Club. On the assurance of the opposite party, that he would pay up his losses, if any, punctually on the settling day, the petitioner allowed the Opposite Party to take bets on credit on the 9th of December, 1922. The debts due to the Petitioner, by the Opposite party in respect of bets on credit amounted to a sum of Rs. 1,591, for which the Opposite Party sent to the Petitioner, on the 15th December, 1922, a crossed cheque for Rs. 1,591 on the Indian Industrial Bank. The cheque was presented for payment on the 18th December, 1922, when it was dishonoured.

Held that although the Petitioner was deceived and thereby induced to take bets on credit from the Opposite Party, the act which the petitioner was induced to do by reason of such deception has not caused or was not likely to cause damage or harm to him in body, mind, reputation or property. It does not follow that if the Petitioner had refused to take bets on credit from the Opposite Party, the latter would of a certainty have had to offer bets by paying cash. The Opposite Party might not have offered any bets at all. 74 Ind. Cas. 76=39 C.L.J. 273=24 Cr.L.J. 748=27 C.W.N. 919=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 111.

5. (b) Dishonest Concealment.

—Ss. 417, 415—Concealment and non-disclosure.

There is a difference between mere concealment or non disclosure and a false representation, and while there is no legal duty placed upon the vendor of immovable property to disclose any charge or encumbrance, yet, if a false representation is made and acted upon, and as a result, money passes, then, though the false representation relates to immovable property the offence of cheating may have been committed. A.I.R. 1937 Sind 56=38 Cr.L.J. 510=167 Ind. Cas. 873.

—S. 417—No Offence under—R mortgaging his property to D—Property already sold by a farzi deed to C—D filing a complaint against R under S. 417.

R mortgaged certain property to D. In respect of the same property R had already executed a deed of sale in C's favour who was a minor. D later filed a complaint to the effect that R had executed a farzi deed of sale in favour of C prior to the execution of the mortgage and that the execution of the farzi deeds of sale had been concealed from him and thus he committed an offence of cheating.

Held: that the facts of the case disclosed no cheating and R could not be convicted under S. 417 as the deed of sale to C was a farzi transaction, that is to say, the property was clearly free from any encumbrance created by the deed of sale. 110 Ind. Cas. 332=9 P.L.T. 303=29 Cr.L.J. 700=A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 337.

—S. 415—Omission to disclose facts—Advance obtained for purchase of motor on its security—Car already mortgaged to another—Omission to disclose the mortgage—Cheating.

Applicant obtained an advance for purchase of a motor car from the Government on the security of a mortgage of the car. When he obtained the advance he had already mortgaged the car to a Chetty.

Held: that the omission to disclose the fact of the mortgage was clearly a dishonest concealment. 103 Ind. Cas. 845=5 Rang. 274=28 Cr. L.J. 765=A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 239.

—Ss. 415 and 420—Collection of debt by partner after dissolution of partnership.

A partner collecting a debt due to the firm without paying it over to his co-partner contrary to an undertaking under a dissolution deed not to interfere with the business without knowledge of the co-partner, is not guilty of such a concealment under S. 415, as to charge him for cheating there being no legal duty to disclose the fact. 18 Cr.L.J. 40=36 Ind. Cas. 872 (Mad.).

—S. 415—Concealment of fact—Dishonest—Duty to disclose

No concealment is dishonest within S. 415, I.P.C. unless there is a legal obligation to disclose it. Defects in title being defects in the property under S. 55 (1) (a) of the T.P. Act, there is no duty on the seller to disclose them unless the buyer could not with ordinary care discover them. 9 S.L.R. 97=16 Cr.L.J. 706=30 Ind. Cas. 994.

—Ss. 415, 420—Cheating—Pre-emption—Compromise of suit for Pre-emption, the pre-emptor, plaintiff agreeing to discharge certain incumbrances—Failure to disclose existence of mortgage subsequent to purchase.

The vendee, defendant in a suit for pre-emption, compromised the suit, the plaintiff agreeing to pay a certain sum in cash and to discharge certain incumbrances on the property in suit. It was subsequently discovered that the vendee had, after his purchase but before suit, mortgaged property which was the subject of the suit for pre-emption.

Held, that the vendee could not, on account merely of his omission to disclose the existence of this subsequent mortgage, be held guilty of the offence of cheating. 1904 A.W.N. 265=27 A. 302.

5. (c) False insurance of letter.

—S. 417—Enclosing in insured cover lesser amount than that purported to be sent—Offence under S. 417, if made out.

Where it is found as a fact that a debtor had really enclosed in an insured cover addressed to his creditor a lesser amount than that purported to be sent, he would be guilty of an offence under S. 417. I. P. Code. 1950 A.L.J. 679=A.I.R. 1950 A. 609.

—Ss. 415 and 417—Offence under—Debtor sending cover to creditor insured for a particular sum but actually containing a much smaller sum.

A person commits an offence punishable under S. 417, I.P. Code, if by deceiving his creditor he obtains from him a document, not necessarily a legal quittance or a valuable security, but such a document as is likely to facilitate the evasion of payment by the debtor and to cause embarrassment to the creditor when he seeks to enforce his claim. Hence where a debtor sends to his creditor a cover insured for Rs. 70, but actually containing 7 one rupee notes and blank sheets of paper, he is guilty of cheating, because he thereby wanted to obtain an acknowledgment from the creditor of payment of the debt which was in fact not paid. The misuse of the acknowledgment signed by the creditor and obtained dishonestly cannot be regarded merely as probability or a remote possibility. I.L.R. (1948) All. 374=1948 A.W.R. (H.C.) 148=1948 A.L.J. 303=1948 O.W.N. 251=A.I.R. 1948 A. 433=1948 A.L.W. 246=49 Cr.L.J. 577.

—Ss. 417, 415—Sending bogus insured letter.

Whatever offence may be committed when a bogus insured cover is sent through the post, the offence of cheating the addressee within the provisions of S. 417, I.P.C., is not committed. A.I.R. 1938 Sind. 193=40 Cr. L.J. 61=I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 165=178 Ind. Cas. 226.

—Ss. 417, 415—Debtor sending blank sheets in insured cover for money due—Creditor signing acknowledgment—Offence of cheating.

A owed a sum of money to B who asked C to recover the money from A. A said he would send the money direct to B. A sent a letter insured for the sum due to B who, after signing the acknowledgment of the receipt of the insured the letter, found that it contained nothing but blank sheets of paper. In criminal proceedings that ensued, A was convicted under S. 417. A applied to the High Court on the ground that as there was no evidence to show that he had actually used the receipt in support of the claim that he had paid, he should not be regarded as having cheated or as having attempted to cheat :

Held, that when B signed the acknowledgment which he would not have done if he had not been so deceived an act was committed which was likely to cause damage or harm to him within the meaning of S. 415 and that the question of whether what was obtained from the creditor was a valid quittance or merely something to be used as evidence of payment, was unimportant :

Held, also, that the terms of S. 415 were wide and in the case the intention of A was fraudulent and he was rightly convicted and that the commission of the offence under S. 417 was not postponed until B had attempted to use the acknowledgment as proof of payment.

A person commits an offence punishable under S. 417 if, by deceiving his creditor, he obtains from him a document, not necessarily a legal quittance or valuable security, but such a document as is likely to facilitate the evasion of payment by the debtor and to cause embarrassment to the creditor when he seeks to enforce his claim. A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 183=14 P.L.T. 48=34 Cr. L.J. 1020=145 Ind. Cas. 671.

—S. 417—False insurance of letter—Accused sending waste paper by insured packet, purporting to contain currency notes—Applying to file the acknowledgment in suit by the addressee—Nature of offence.

A owed B certain amount. He sent a registered and insured packet to B, purporting to contain currency notes in settlement of debt and got acknowledgment of receipt of the packet. The packet was found to contain waste paper. B sued A for the debt. A applied to Court to admit the acknowledgment in evidence.

Held, that A was neither guilty under S. 417 for cheating, nor of attempt to cheat. A's action amounted to preparation.

To satisfy the definition of cheating there must be immediate causation, and the act itself must involve the probability. It is not enough to say that the signed acknowledgment is likely to be used as to cause damage, the act of signing itself must be likely to cause damage.

Held, further that A was guilty under S. 193 for fabricating false evidence in relation to judicial proceedings and sanction under S. 195, Cr. P. Code, was necessary. 99 Ind. Cas. 102=24 M.L.W. 725=28 Cr. L.J. 70=38 M.L.T. 187=7 A.I.Cr.R. 7=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 199=51 M.L.J. 800.

—S. 415—False insurance of letter—Sending insured cover containing waste paper though purporting to contain notes—If cheating.

The accused sent to one N. an insured cover purporting to contain currency notes worth Rs. 800. The envelope was handed over by the accused in person to the despatching Postmaster, and was delivered to an agent of N. On the addressee opening the envelope, the same was found to contain a letter advising the despatch of a sum of Rs. 800 and several bits of waste paper, but no currency notes.

Held, All that the person deceived had been induced to do was that he had signed a receipt acknowledging the delivery of a cover and not of any sum of money alleged to be contained in the cover. 73 Ind. Cas. 780=24 Cr. L.J. 684=28 C.W.N. 252=50 Cal. 849=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 215.

5. (d) Fraudulently or dishonestly.

—S. 415—"Fraudulently or dishonestly" and "property"—Meaning—Cheating—Gist of offence—Procuring motor driving licences from officer without applicants complying with tests and paying fees—Offence.

The offence of cheating is committed by (1) "fraudulently or dishonestly" inducing a person to deliver property and (2) by intentionally inducing a person to do or omit to do anything which he would not do or omit if he had not been so deceived and which act of omission is likely to cause damage or harm to that person in body, mind, reputation or property.

"Fraudulently" and "dishonestly" imply some idea of wrongful gain. Fraud is committed if any advantage is expected to the person who causes the deceit.

A person who took money from applicants for motor car driving licences, promising to get licences without their undergoing any of the tests and paying the incidental fees and deceived the licensing authorities; and obtained licences, his act in procuring the licences is a fraudulent one. It cannot be said that the licences when in the possession of the licensing officer was not property but merely worthless pieces of paper. The accused who procures driving licences without the necessity of the applicants undergoing any test will be guilty of "cheating". I.L.R. (1948) Mad. 578=49 Cr. L.J. 419=A.I.R. 1948 Mad. 268=1947 M. W. N. 762=60 L.W. 690=(1947) 2 M.L.J. 380.

—Ss. 417, 415—Intention to defraud.

The accused who was the lessee of a garden negotiated with the complainant for a sub-lease of it and it was settled that the complainant was to pay the accused a sum of money and he was thenceforth to pay the rent and to take the produce of the trees.

The deed was registered and next month before the complainant paid the rent, the accused paid it and it was found that he had sold the fruit in the garden. He was convicted of cheating by the trial Court :

Held, that on the finding of the trial Court that the accused was trying to get out of a bad bargain, since he sold the fruit for a larger sum, it could not be said that from the beginning the accused had the intention of defrauding the complainant and although it could not be said that he did not commit any offence by taking the fruit and selling it after he had transferred his rights in it to the complainant, that not being the offence with which he was charged he was entitled to an acquittal. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 231=35 Cr. L. J. 456=15 P.L.T. 621=147 Ind. Cas. 674 (2).

—S. 415—No dishonest intention—Decree-holder given to crossed cheque by judgment-debtor for being accommodated—Cheque dishonoured—No cheating.

A the decree-holder made on 3rd February, 1927, a settlement with the judgment-debtor by which C executed a surety bond for the latter and an application was made to the Court for the stay of execution proceedings. At the same time, a crossed cheque was given by the judgment-debtor to A. The cheque on presentation on 10th February, 1927 was dishonoured and found its way back into the hands of A. On 11th February, 1927 a sum of Rs. 350 was paid by the judgment-debtor to A's pleader towards part realization of the decree. On the 16th February, 1927, A renewed the execution of his decree with a prayer for attachment of the judgment-debtor's property. The judgment-debtor was prosecuted for the offence of cheating under S. 415. I.P.C., in respect of the dishonoured cheque.

Held, that the judgment-debtor could not be convicted of the offence of cheating because the cheque was not, to the knowledge of the decree holder, issued in token of the immediate satisfaction of the decree as an accomplished fact but only as a security and as an accomplished fact but only as a security and as an aide means for the honouring of the cheques within a convenient period of time after issue or to otherwise satisfy the decree. Fraudulent or dishonest intention did not accompany the act of issuing the cheque. 110 Ind. Cas. 209=5 O.W.N. 357=10 A.I.Cr.R. 445=29 Cr.L.J. 657=A.I.R. 1928 Oudh 292.

—S. 415—Thumb impression on blank paper—If offence.

Mere taking thumb impression on a blank piece of paper is not sufficient to prove an intention to use the paper dishonestly and does not constitute an offence under S. 415. 94 Ind. Cas. 353=7 P.L.T. 772=1926 P.H.C.C. 110=27 Cr.L.J. 609=A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 267.

—S. 415—Delivering to and inducing another to give receipt for—Bought Note signed by accused's firm as brokers for a bogus firm—No cheating.

Where the accused induced another to give him a receipt for a Bought Note which the accused's firm had signed as brokers on behalf of another firm (which was a bogus one).

Held, that as in fact the Bought Note was made over to the person received, the accused had no dishonest intention even assuming that his intention was to hold the other party down to the contract. 85 Ind. Cas. 641=40 C.L.J. 283=52 Cal. 188=26 Cr.L.J. 545=A. I. R. 1925 Cal 106.

—S. 415—Using invalid hundi.

Where the accused obtained money from the complainant on the strength of a Hundi which he knew was worth nothing.

Held, that he was guilty of cheating. 60 Ind. Cas. 993=28 Bom. L.R. 340=22 Cr.L.J. 305.

—S. 415—Fraud—Distinction between fraud and dishonestly—Intention to cause wrongful loss.

Whenever the words "fraud" or "with intent to defraud" or "fraudulently" occur in the definition of a crime, two elements at least are essential to the commission of a crime, viz., (1) deceit or an intention to deceive or, in some cases mere secrecy and (2) either actual injury or possible injury or an intention to expose some person either to actual injury or a risk of possible injury by means of that deceit or secrecy. The term "fraudulently" may be defined to imply an intent to deceive in such a manner as to expose any person to loss, or risk of loss. The term "dishonestly" implies a deliberate intention to cause wrongful gain or wrongful loss and when such an intention is proved and is coupled with cheating and the delivery of property, the offence is punishable under S. 420, in which the word "fraudulently" finds no place. A for example may by a false representation induce B to advance him a sum of money in such circumstances that A is aware that he is exposing B to considerable risk of loss, but without the intention of causing wrongful loss: A would be acting fraudulently, and if he intended to cause wrongful loss, would be acting dishonestly. In the former case, he would be punishable under S. 417 and in the latter, under S. 412. 64 Ind. Cas. 33=A.I.R. 1922 L. B. 10=22 Cr. L.J. 721=13 Bur. L.T. 239.

—Ss. 415 and 420—Sale of trees—Cheating.

—Ss. 417 and 511—Attempt to cheat—Dishonest intention.

An accused cannot be convicted under Ss. 417 and 511 of the Code unless a dishonest mind of dishonest purpose is proved on the part of the accused. 17 C.W.N. 294=14 Cr.L.J. 120=18 Ind. Cas. 680.

—Ss. 415 and 418—Statements literally true and fraudulent.

Statements though literally true are nonetheless fraudulent, if their general effect is to create and if they are intended to create a false impression. 5 S.L.R. 95=12 Cr.L.J. 553=12 Ind. Cas. 641.

—S. 415—Cheating—Taking delivery of property.

The constitute the offence of cheating by taking delivery of property, there should be deceit at the time delivery is taken and the seller should be fraudulently and dishonestly induced to deliver the property in consequence of such deceit.

Where the accused induced complainant to part with property on the distinct representation that he would be paid later in course of the day and decamped at the first opportunity.

Held, this was sufficient proof of fraudulent intent existing even at the time when the complainant was induced to part with the property. 4 Bur. L.T. 14=12 Cr.L.J. 84=9 Ind. Cas. 458.

—Ss. 415, 420—Cheating, Contract—Breach—Intention to perform, when contract entered into, absence of—Dishonest intention—Misrepresentation.

tion—Appropriation of money to other than purpose for which advanced.

Complainant's firm had advanced money to the accused on the understanding that the accused would purchase rice from the outlying boats and ship and deliver same at the firm's place of business where it would be sold, the profit on the sale going to the accused, and the accused being liable to pay to the complainant firm the capital advanced with interest and a commission of one anna per maund of rice sold. The accused failed to deliver the rice within the stipulated time and was charged with cheating. The representations made by the accused to the complainant's firm when getting the advance were not entirely false, and it appeared that the accused had to some extent endeavoured to carry out the terms of the agreement, though he was also found to have converted a small portion of the money to his own use in paying off his own debts.

Held, that the case was really one of breach of contract. The mere fact that the accused converted a small portion of the money to his own use was not in itself sufficient to prove that the intention of the accused when he received the money from the complainant's firm was dishonest or that he obtained it by fraudulent misrepresentation of facts. The important question to be considered was whether the accused when he took over the money from the complainant's firm had any intention of performing the contract. (1906) 10 C.W.N. 1005 = 4 Cr.L.J. 154.

—Ss. 415, 420—'Wrongful loss, wrongful gain'—Cheating—Getting subscription for a charity on misrepresentation.

The Health Officer of a Corporation paid a subscription towards a charity. The applicant represented to him that he was a municipal servant while he was not such. On a charge of cheating being brought, held that there was no 'wrongful loss' on the one hand and 'wrongful gain' on the other and the charge cannot be sustained. (1905) 33 C. 50. = 3 Cr. L.J. 224.

—S. 415—Cheating—Lottery ticket — Taking away on false pretence—Offences.

B the complainant, purchased a lottery ticket, which, at the final result, carried a prize of Rs. 598. The accused took away the ticket from the complainant, representing that it carried a prize of Rs. 10 or 20 which he offered to pay. Complainant declined to receive the money and demanded back the ticket. The accused failed to do so. The complainant thereupon brought against the accused a charge of cheating. The magistrate discharged the accused, saying that, as the ticket was not a valuable security, the maxim deminimus non curat lex applied.

Held, that the reason given by the magistrate for not issuing process was bad in law, since if the allegations of the complainant were established, the accused, by deceiving complainant, fraudulently or dishonestly induced complainant to do something which he would not otherwise have done and which was likely to cause him the loss of money to be drawn as the prize won by the ticket in the lottery, and such inducement amounted to cheating. (1901) 4 Bom. L.R. 76.

5. (c) Misrepresentation.

—Ss.—419, 496. Accused misrepresenting himself to belong to same sub-caste as the complainant, marrying her daughter—On account of marriage, complainant excommunicated and suffered harm to reputation and mind.

Held, that the marriage not being invalid the accused could not be convicted under S. 496 but was liable to conviction under S. 419. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 214 = 41 C.W.N. 540 = 38 Cr.L.J. 577 = I.L.R. (1937) 2 Cal. 221 = 168 Ind. Cas. 708 (F.B.).

—Ss. 417, 415—Property burdened with charge—Representation that property was free.

There is nothing in S. 415 to exclude from the scope of its provisions cheating which has relation to immoveable property. It is true that so far as that part of the section which relates to dishonest concealment of facts is concerned, it must be read subject to the qualification that there is no duty on a seller to disclose defects in title in immovable property which the buyer with ordinary care could discover.

But where loan is made upon certain property burdened with charge on the representation that the property was free of any charge and there were questions specifically asked, and these questions were answered falsely, and the charge upon the property was not a registered charge, it cannot be said that in this case the creditor could have discovered this charge by reference to the registers. It is a misrepresentation deliberately made for the purposes of deception, amounting to cheating. A.I.R. 1937 Sind 56 = 38 Cr. L. J. 510 = 167 Ind. Cas. 873.

—S. 417—Misrepresentation for taking daughter home.

Petitioners were alleged to have gone to a person and asked him to send his daughter-in-law (petitioner's daughter) with them for paying a visit to a goddess. He sent the daughter-in-law with them, but they did not return her to him. He further stated that the daughter-in-law took away with her ornaments, and that the petitioners made a false representation to him in order to take away the girl with her ornament. The petitioners were charged under S. 417.

Held, that the facts alleged did not constitute an offence under S. 417. 106 Ind. Cas. 224 = 9 L.L.J. 351 = 28 Cr.L.J. 1040 = 9 A.I.Cr.R. 176 = A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 825.

—S. 418—Offence under—Representation by a Mahomedan that he is a Hindu with an object of securing service.

—S. 415, Illus. (f)—Misrepresentation as to age.

A person borrowing money by setting up that he is major and defending a suit against him for the money on the ground that he is minor as a result of which the suit is dismissed is guilty under S. 415, Illus. (f). 21 Cr L.J. 749 = 18 A.L.J. 408 = 58 Ind. Cas. 253.

—Ss. 415 and 520—Cheating — Disposing of woman by misrepresentation as to status.

A person who by representing a woman to be a Jat Widow, when she is really a sweeper whose husband is alive, induces another to pay money to him, commits the offence of cheating under S. 415. 6 P.R. 1918 Cr. = 61 P.L.R. 1918 = 16 P.W.R. 1918 Cr = 19 Cr.L.J. 335 = 44 = Ind. Cas. 351.

—Ss. 415, 419, 511, 182—False representation with a view to have one-self reinstated in a post—Essentials for conviction.

Where a person attempted to get himself reinstated in the post of Karnam by the production of a certificate of having passed a certain examination and representing that the certificate referred to him while in fact it referred to another man bearing the same name :—

Held,—That in the absence of proof that the representation caused or was likely to cause damage or harm to the officer to whom the representation was made either in body, mind, reputation or property within the meaning of S. 416, the accused could not be convicted under Ss. 419 and 511. Semble :—But the facts might amount to an offence under S. 182. (1908) 19 M.L.J. 271=4 M.L.T. 324=3 Ind. Cas. 609 (1)=8 Cr. L.J. 421.

—S. 415—Cheating—Sale of immoveable property without mentioning incumbrances.

The vendor of immoveable property cannot be convicted of cheating because he omits to mention that there is an incumbrance on the property, unless it is shown either that he was asked by the vendee whether the property was incumbered and said it was not, or that he sold the property on the representation that it was unincumbered. (1905) A.W.N. 98=2 A.L.J. 268=27 A. 561.

—Ss. 415, 417—Cheating—False representation by conduct.

Complainant offered to pay off a zurpeshgi debt which he owed to the accused and the latter, knowing for what purpose the money was being offered and knowing also that the money would not be paid if he did not accept it in payment of that debt and return the zurpeshgi document, accepted the money without saying that he intended to take it in payment of a simple bond debt which he alleged the complainant and several others jointly owed to him, and then gave the complainant a document which was alleged to be the said simple bond, but refused to return either the zurpeshgi document or the money.

Held, that the accused's conduct amounted to a representation which he did not intend to give effect to, that he would accept the money in payment of the zurpeshgi debt and would return the zurpeshgi document, and that the accused was guilty of the offence of cheating inasmuch as it was this conduct of his that induced the complainant to pay the money. S. 415, does not in any manner limit the mode in which the deception may take place, nor is it necessary that the deception should be by express words, but it may be by conduct or implied in the nature of the transaction itself. (1905) 9 C.W.N. 1006=32 C. 941.

—S. 415—Cheating—Warrant—Property—False representation.

Where a person induces a karkun under false representation to deliver a warrant of attachment to him, and makes on it an endorsement to his own advantage, and where it appears that but for that false representation the karkun would not have parted with the warrant, the person commits the offence of cheating punishable under S. 415. (1904) 6 Bom. L.R. 375.

—S. 415—Cheating—False representation—Fraudulent or dishonest intention, absence of.

The complainant, a salt merchant, went to buy 34 maunds of salt at Kharagoda and paid Rs. 45 to the accused a shroff in the Kharagoda Salt Department.

The accused asked him for some small change and demanded four annas, on which he tendered a rupee and received only four pice change.

Held, that, on these facts, the conviction of cheating could not be supported, as there was no evidence to show that the accused wilfully made a false representation or that he acted fraudulently or dishonestly. (1902) 4 Bom. L.R. 442.

5. (f) Personation.

—S. 416—Forging answer papers.

Where an accused, pretending to be a certain candidate for an examination, forges answer papers purporting to be answered by such candidate, he is guilty of both cheating and forgery, and the fact that such candidate has failed miserably in other papers answered by himself does not affect the guilt of the accused. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 403=40 C.W.N. 956=37 Cr. L.J. 1156 (2)=I.L.R. (1937) 1 Cal. 71=165 Ind. Cas. 505.

—Ss. 415 and 419—Cheating—Obtaining a health certificate—Health certificate, whether property under S. 415.

An accused falsely personating another dishonestly obtained the health certificate from Health officer. He was guilty of an offence under S. 419, health certificate being property under S. 415. 11 L.W. 368=21 Cr. L.J. 478=56 Ind. Cas. 510.

—S. 416—Seduction—False personation.

Where A represented to B that he was a bachelor and proposed for the hand of his daughter and B was willing and admitted him to his house but before the marriage came off, A was discovered to be a married man but the girl nevertheless went away with A.

Held, that the seduction having taken place after the deception of A was discovered, it could not be said to be the natural consequence of the deception and therefore A cannot be convicted of cheating. 19 Cr. L.J. 781=22 C.W.N. 1001=28 C.L.J. 485=46 Ind. Cas. 701.

—Ss. 415 and 419—Writing false name in certificate of sale.

Where two persons induced Muharar at a fair to write a false name in certificate of sale, they were guilty of cheating by personation. An expert's opinion on thumb marks being different from that as to handwriting is a sufficient proof that the same thumb made both the marks. 9 P.R. 1914 Cr.=16 Cr. L.J. 139=204 P.L.R. 1915=27 Ind. Cas. 203.

—S. 415—'Fraudulently'—'Defraud'—False personation in proceedings before Collector.

The word 'fraudulently' in S. 415, must mean something different from 'dishonestly'. The word 'defraud' which is not defined in the Code may or may not imply deprivation actual or intended. A Collector refused to pay to the manager of a joint family a sum which the latter was entitled to draw out of the treasury on behalf of the family which included two minors, whereupon the manager and some others produced two persons representing them to be the minors and induced the Collector to pay the money.

Held, that no offence of cheating by personation had been committed as there was no interest to 'defraud' the Collector in this case. (1905) 1 C.L.J. 469=9 C.W.N. 807=32 C. 775.

—S. 415—Cheating—Dishonestly—Bidding under assumed name—Employee in the office bidding at auction.

In the absence of any rules forbidding an employee in the office to bid at sales of waste paper of the office of Accountant-General, a conviction of an employee under S. 415 for bidding under an assumed name could not be sustained. (1903) A.W.N. 231. See also (1902) M.W.N. 151=26 A. 195.

5. (g) Miscellaneous.

—Ss. 417, 408—Inducing complainant to compromise case under S. 408, if cheating.

The charge under S. 408 is not compoundable and even where the accused makes some promise and the case is dropped, the promise would not be enforceable and it would always be open to the complainant to have the case revived if the Magistrate is so disposed. Hence, in such a case, the accused cannot be prosecuted for cheating under S. 417 for having induced the complainant "to compromise the case." A.I.R. 1943 Cal. 41=43 Cr.L.J. 926=I.L.R. —Ss. 419, 415—Offence of cheating, held established.

S had become friendly with one R who was a drunkard and a spendthrift and died a premature death on June 30, 1936. On July 2, the wife of S put in an application before the Sub-Registrar, to the effect that R had, on March 31, 1936 sold a house to her but was refusing to have the sale-deed registered. Her prayer in this application was that there should be a compulsory registration and the Sub-Registrar accordingly issued process to R to appear before him. S wanted to get this compulsory registration effected ex-parte knowing that R was dead and that his successor in-interest would probably contest the alienation. He accordingly found out which process-server was to issue the process upon R and having got hold of a third person, pointed him out to the process-server, as R. This person admitted that he was R but refused to accept service. The process-server accordingly made a report to this effect on the back of the process, namely that service had been effected upon R who refused to accept it. In view of his refusal he took R to the Naib-Nazir who directed him to take him to the Administrative Subordinate Judge. On the way, R slipped away and was never seen again. Enquiry followed which resulted in the prosecution and conviction of S under S. 419, I.P.C. It was not clear in the charge by virtue of which of the several consequences referred to in S. 415 he was liable for the offence of cheating:

Held, that the offence under S. 419 had been made out. The action which the process-server would have been deceived into taking was such as to cause or likely to cause damage to him in mind, body, property, or reputation. The almost certain result of the act brought about by deception upon the process-server would have been a departmental inquiry against the process-server:

Held, however, that the charge was defective by reason of the failure of the Magistrate to set out in the charge the particular consequences by virtue of which the deception became an offence. The defect was a material irregularity and could not be cured by S. 225; Criminal P.C.

[Charge and proceedings subsequent thereto were set aside and a re-trial from that stage ordered.] A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 828=40 Cr.L.J. 371=180 Ind. Cas. 485.

—Ss. 417, 415—"Gupta Mantra".

The accused advertised "Gupta Mantra" by reading which people would achieve desired object without any hardship of effects on their part. The accused advertised a cash prize in case it was proved fallible. A person replied the advertisement, got in return the alleged Mantra along with certain instructions as for example, looking at the moon for fifteen minutes without winking, a feat which, if not impossible, at any rate beyond the powers of ordinary human being except by long training and preparation. Thus the instructions were contrary to the claim made in advertisement and could not be observed without great efforts and preparation:

Held, that the accused was guilty of cheating. A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 185=39 Cr. L.J. 442=19 P.L.T. 375=175 Ind. Cas. 635.

—Ss. 417, 415—Delivery of property not in one's possession but at one's order.

A man can give delivery through another of property within the meaning of S. 415 which is not in his possession, but which is at his order. If for instance, A had an agreement with B that B will give delivery of certain goods in his possession on account of A on the receipt of delivery note from A, and C by deception obtain a delivery note from A on B and thereby gets possession of goods from B, it cannot be said that he has not got delivery of property from or through A directly as a result of his deception of A. A.I.R. 1937 Sind 293=32 Sind L.R. 87=39 Cr. L.J. 123=172 Ind. Cas. 374.

—S. 415—Suppressing fact of charge from mortgagee.

Decree creating charge—Subsequent mortgage of the same property—Mortgagee taking without notice and for consideration:

Held, that by suppressing the fact of the charge from the mortgagee, the mortgagor cannot be said to have committed any deception leading to cheating as defined in S. 415. A.I.R. 1934 Nag. 149=35 Cr. L.J. 1063=30 N.L.R. 303=150 Ind. Cas. 20.

—S. 417—No offence—Decree against the judgment-debtors—Two declared insolvent—Creditor getting his name in Schedule—Creditor obtaining fresh bond from the third party and debt also paid by Receiver subsequently.

The accused had obtained a decree against three judgment-debtors. Two out of them had subsequently applied to be adjudicated as insolvents. The accused got his name entered in the list of creditors and proved his debts against them. He then proceeded against the third and obtained from him a fresh bond. Subsequently the Official Receiver made payment to the accused.

Held, that the receipt of the amount cannot in any way render the accused criminally liable. It is a matter for adjustment in civil Court. 113 Ind. Cas. 536=10 L.L.J. 485=12 A.I.Cr.R. 85=30 Cr.L.J. 162=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 945.

—S. 415—Criminal liability—Attempt by person cheated to obtain from the person cheating—Security for the amount—Effect.

When a person is cheated by another, any attempt on the part of the former to obtain sufficient security from the latter for the payment of the money due by him and the temporary fresh accommodation given to the offender as the result of negotiations to save his reputation in business do not affect the criminal liability of the offender. 90 Ind. Cas. 706=26 Cr.L.J. 1602=2 O.W.N. 760=A.I.R. 1926 Oudh 161.

—S. 415—Promise to remove untouchability—Investiture of sacred thread—Cheating.

The accused gave out that he was the President of a certain association which had undertaken the task of socially elevating a certain community of people by investing its members with the sacred thread on the footing that they were kshatriyas, and by other means. Much was made of this. Money was realised for the professed objects. But the arrangements that were made were ridiculously inadequate. The idea of being made touchables on investiture of the sacred thread as kshatriyas did not originate with the accused. The community themselves believed that they were entitled to be classed as such and had petitioned the authorities for the purpose.

Held, upon the facts of the case, that it was absolutely necessary to come to a finding in the negative on the question whether the members of the community in question could legitimately claim to be kshatriyas before the accused could be held to be guilty. 86 Ind. Cas. 705=26 Cr.L.J. 849=29 C.W.N. 408=41 C.L.J. 172=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 603.

—S. 415—Untrue praise of goods—If offence.

The giving of untrue praise of an article offered for sale does not come within S. 415.

The accused advertised that he was willing to sell an almost new jazz set. The complainant purchased the goods. On receipt of the goods the complainant found that they were not of the quality he expected and also that certain articles mentioned in the list had not been sent to him.

Held, that the facts were insufficient to justify the prosecution of the accused for a criminal offence. 86 Ind. Cas. 985=26 Cr. L.J. 921=29 C.W.N. 362=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 605.

—S. 415—Delivery—Wagons taken to colliery siding belonging to Railway, if amounts to delivery.

Property is delivered when something in the ownership or possession of one man is delivered into the ownership or possession of another. Railway wagons are no doubt "property." They are not as property delivered to a colliery merely by being taken to the colliery siding which belonged to Railway. The colliery is entitled to load the wagons but the amount of control exercised for that purpose is of a very limited character. 84 Ind. Cas. 554=51 Cal. 250=28 C.W.N. 160=26 Cr. L.J. 330=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 495.

—S. 415—Obtaining certificate by cheating.

A certificate that a person has passed an examination is property within the meaning of Ss. 415 and 420 of the Indian Penal Code. Therefore, a person who obtains a certificate from a Deputy Inspector of Schools by stating untruly that he passed the examination in a certain year, is guilty of an offence punishable under S. 420 of the Penal Code. 67 Ind. Cas. 619=18 N.L.R. 52=23 Cr. L.J. 443=A.I.R. 1922 Nag. 229.

—S. 417—Applicability—Taking complainant to another village on pretence of buying buffalo for him, getting him intoxicated and obtaining by misrepresentation a deed of divorce from him—Offence under S. 420 or S. 417.

The complainant was taken to another village on the pretence that a buffalo would be bought for him and the money necessary for the purpose would be advanced to him. He was then given a large amount of liquor to drink and when in the state of intoxication a document purporting to be a bond was executed and his signature was obtained. This document was a deed of divorce of his wife who was then taken away by some of the petitioners.

Held; that the offence charged did not fall within the purview of S. 417 but of S. 420. 67 Ind. Cas. 588=3 L.L.J. 283=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 63.

—Ss. 415 and 420—Cheating—Currency note—Tender of—Shopkeeper retaining a small amount for depreciation.

Where a shopkeeper was paid in currency notes and gave change deducting a small sum for alleged depreciation of the notes from their face value, the offence of cheating is not committed. There was no deceit, as the customer was not induced to hand over the notes by any representation on the part of the accused that he would get change calculated on the face value of the notes but the notes were handed over in the ordinary course of the sale and purchase and what really happened was that a dispute then arose as to the correct amount of the change. 43 Bom. 842=21 Bom. L.R. 763=20 Cr. L.J. 684=52 Ind. Cas. 604.

—S. 417—Pleader not liable—No prima facie case.

When, in a proceeding under S. 107, Cr. P.C., a client on his pleader's advice was willing to give an undertaking, but the opposite party, having first withdrawn on that condition, refused to accept the undertaking, the pleader cannot be charged under S. 417, I.P.C., by the opposite party. 20 C.W.N. 1112=18 Cr. L.J. 50=37 Ind. Cas. 34.

—S. 415—Object—Mere escape from personal inconvenience or annoyance—Offence.

Where none of the objects specified in S. 415 is proved, the mere fact that the accused wished to escape from personal inconvenience or annoyance will not make him liable under S. 415. (1902) 4 Bom. L.R. 440.

—S. 415—Cheating—Licensed opium vender—Selling opium at rates higher than the rates fixed by Government is (1902) 4 Bom. L.R. 823.

—S. 415—Inclusion of false item in bill when cheating.

In order to amount to cheating there must not only be the inclusion of a false item in a bill with intent to defraud, but the other party must have been induced to part with money on the faith of that fraudulent bill. Payments not exceeding the amount admittedly due on the bill cannot be said to have been induced by the false entry in the bill; nor is any damage caused by such payments as they go to discharge a real debt. (1900) 5 C.W.N. 255.

6. Civil dispute.

—S. 417—Giving post-dated cheque by person having no funds in bank.

Giving a post-dated cheque by person who has no funds to his credit in the bank does not amount to an offence of cheating when there is no evidence to show that the person to whom the cheque was given parted with any property or that he did or omitted to do anything which he would not have done or omitted to do if he had known that the cheque would be dishonoured. The dispute in such a case is of a civil nature. A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 93=41 P.L.R. 869=41 Cr. L.J. 594=187 Ind. Cas. 123.

—S. 417—Acquittal—False representation by Vendor that property is unencumbered—Acquittal of the offence of cheating—Interference by High Court.

A sold a land to B without disclosing a prior incumbrance. The sale deed contained a clause that the property was unencumbered. Subsequently the incumbrancer sued on his mortgage and got a decree under which B had to pay the mortgage money with interest to save the property from sale. B filed a complaint against A under Penal Code, S. 417; but A was acquitted.

Held, that the question is not of any public interest and the parties had a remedy in Civil Courts and therefore no interference with the order of acquittal is necessary. 84 Ind. Cas. 641=6 L.L.J. 50=26 Cr. L.J. 337=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 601.

—S. 417—Cheating—Creditor and debtor.

Where a creditor (accused), in whose favour three bonds for Rs. 170 were drawn up, is alleged by the prosecution to have accepted Rs. 116 in full discharge of all the three bonds but to have returned only two bonds and not the third.

Held, that the dispute was a civil nature. 25 P.W.R. 1913 Cr.=14 Cr.L.J. 524=327 P.L.R. 1913=20 Ind. Cas. 1004.

7. Essentials of offences.

—S. 415—Essentials of.

In order to constitute an offence of cheating, there must be deception practised upon a person; by that deception the person must be induced to do or omit to do something which he would not have done or omitted to do, had he not been deceived; such act or omission must cause or be likely to cause, to the person deceived damage or harm in body, mind reputation or property.

It is not necessary to constitute an offence of cheating under S. 415, I. P. Code, that the act which the person deceived is induced to do should actually cause harm to him. It is enough that the act which the person deceived has been induced to perform is likely to cause damage or harm to him. 1948 A.L.J. 502=A.I.R. 1949 A. 15=50 Cr.L.J. 31=1949 A.W.R. 89.

—S. 415—Essentials.

The essence of the charge of cheating is that the complainant should have been deceived. A.I.R. 1941 Sind 198=I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 345=43 Cr.L.J. 73=196 Ind. Cas. 755.

—S. 415—Essentials.

Deception is only one element of the offence of cheating and not the only element. There can be no cheating unless by reason of the deception, the person deceived is induced to part with any property or to do or omit to do anything that he would not do or omit to do but for the deception. A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 93=41 P.L.R. 869=41 Cr. L. J. 394=187 Ind. Cas. 123.

—S. 415. The word "manner" in S. 223, Criminal P. C., could fairly be interpreted as including every ingredient by virtue of which the act ceases to become one of mere non-criminal deception and becomes one of "cheating" within the meaning of S. 415, Penal Code, and effect of the deception upon the victim's body mind, reputation or property would thus be a part of the "manner" of cheating. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 828=40 Cr.L.J. 371=180 Ind. Cas. 485.

—S. 415—Elements of offence.

In order to constitute the offence of cheating under S. 415, there must be active deception, by which the accused must (a) fraudulently or dishonestly induce the person to deliver property, etc., or (b) intentionally induce him to do or omit something which causes damage etc., to him, or there must be a dishonest concealment of facts, with the like results. The word "defraud" is not defined in the Code, but connotes generally an intention to deceive, coupled with the possibility of doing injury. A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 366=60 Cal. 262=149 Ind. Cas. 903.

—S. 415—Essentials.

In the offence of cheating there are two elements—deception and dishonest inducement to do or omit to do something. Mere dishonesty is not a criminal offence. Moreover, to establish the offence of cheating the complainant would have to show not only that he was induced to do or omit to do a certain act but that this induced omission on his part caused or was likely to cause him some harm or damage in body, mind, reputation or property—which are presumed to be the four cardinal assets of humanity. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 129=1937 M.W.N. 999=46 L.W. 629=(1937) 2 M.L.J. 878=39 Cr.L.J. 261=173 Ind. Cas. 14.

—S. 415—Essentials.

The essence of the offence of cheating is the original deceit whereby the delivery of property is dishonestly induced. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 471=38 Cr. L.J. 48=165 Ind. Cas. 596.

—Ss. 417, 415—Intention.

Where the proceedings do not show that the accused had any intention of causing damage or harm by his act, nor can it be shown that his act was even likely to cause damage or harm, a prosecution for cheating is entirely misconceived. (1935) 157 Ind. Cas. 241=36 Cr.L.J. 1136.

—S. 415—First hand materials, disclosing all the elements which are requisite to make out an offence of cheating, must be before the Court before any process can issue in respect of it. A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 457=35 Cr.L.J. 946=33 C.W.N. 578=61 Cal. 792=149 Ind. Cas. 363.

—S. 415—Contingent injury is not enough.

In order to bring a case within the second part of S. 415, damage or harm caused, or likely to be caused must be the necessary consequence of the act done by reason of the deceit practised or must be necessarily likely to follow therefrom, and law does not take into account remote possibilities that may flow from the act. The damage or harm must be the proximate and natural result of the act or omission and does not include vague and contingent injury. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 833=35 P.L.R. 666=36 Cr.L.J. 276=153 Ind. Cas. 30.

—S. 415—Facts to be considered—Intention at the time of the offence—Damage a necessary consequence—Using false name with object of not fulfilling contract—Remote damage—Effect.

In a case of cheating the intention of the accused at the time of the offence is to be seen and the consequence of the act or omission itself is to be judged. The damage or harm caused or likely to be caused must be the necessary consequence of the act done by reason of the deceit practised or must be necessarily likely to follow therefrom, and the law does not take into account remote possibilities that may flow from the act. The proximate and natural result of the act has to be judged and not any vague and contingent injury that may possibly arise.

Where the accused used the name of a bogus or non-existent firm, with the object of not fulfilling the contract in the event of the market going up and as the market did go up he did not supply the goods with the result that the party suffered loss:

Held, such remote consequences must be ignored for the purpose of S. 415.

Held, also that the damage likely to be sustained by the other party on account of the fact of entering into a contract with a bogus firm was a remote contingency. 85 Ind. Cas. 641=40 C.L.J. 283=52 Cal. 188=26 Cr. L.J. 545=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 100.

—S. 415—Essentials.

In order to prove the offence of cheating (Ss. 415 and 420 of the Indian Penal Code) it is necessary to establish: (1) that some one was deceived; (2) fraudulently or dishonestly or intentionally and (3) by means of such deceit he was induced to change his position either by parting with property or by doing something to his own injury. 81 Ind. Cas. 926=26 Bom. L.R. 211=25 Cr.L.J. 1102=A.I.R. 1934 Bom. 303.

—S. 415—Adulteration of articles—Adulteration of saccharine with bicarbonate of soda—Sale of the mixture as saccharine through a broker—Abetment of cheating.

One B procured quantities of saccharine and bicarbonate of soda and mixed them and put the mixture into tins which he gave to a broker to sell. The broker sold the mixture as genuine saccharine and received money for it which he made over to B from whom he received his brokerage for the transaction. The Broker was discharged though tried jointly with B and examined as prosecution witness.

Held, that under the circumstances B was guilty of abetment of cheating.

In order to prove the offence of cheating (Ss. 415 and 420 of the Indian Penal Code) it is necessary to establish: (1) that some one was deceived; (2) fraudulently or dishonestly or intentionally and (3) by means of such deceit he was induced to change his position either by parting with property or by doing something to his own injury. 81 Ind. Cas. 926=26 Bom. L.R. 211=25 Cr.L.J. 1102=A. I. R. 1924 Bom. 303.

—S. 415—Direct damage from deceit.

The person deceived must have acted under the influence of the deceit. The facts must establish damage or likelihood of damage and the damage must not be too remote. The word "cause" doubtless excludes damage occurring as a mere fortuitous sequence unconnected with the act induced by the deceit, except as every event is connected with preceding event's in an unending chain but the definition as it stands, is wide enough to include all damage resulting or likely to result as a natural consequence of the induced act. However the damage must be direct natural or probable consequence of the induced act. 84 Ind. Cas. 554=51 Cal. 250=28 C.W.N. 160=26 Cr.L.J. 330=A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 495.

—S. 415—Essentials.

To constitute cheating it is essential in the first place that the person who delivers property should have been deceived before he makes delivery and in the second place he should have been induced to do so fraudulently or dishonestly. The deception may be by words or by conduct. As to what is sufficient to constitute deception must be decided in each case on its merits. 59 Ind. Cas. 921=2 P.L.T. 211=1921 P.H.C.C. 12=22 Cr.L.J. 169=A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 80.

—S. 415—Cheating—Elements of offence.

To constitute the offence of cheating under S. 415, the damage or harm caused or likely to be caused must be the necessary consequences of the act done by reason of the deceit practised or must necessarily follow therefrom. Mere possibility of annoyance is not enough. 34 P.R. 1918 Cr.=20 Cr. L.J. 77=48 Ind. Cas. 877.

—S. 415—Cheating—Essentials of offence.

To constitute the offence of cheating it is not necessary that the deception should be by express words but it may be by conduct or implied in the nature of transaction itself. The intention of cheating must be inferred from the previous or subsequent conduct of the accused. In order to find whether a person is guilty of cheating, the Court has to take into consideration the cumulative force and effect of all the surrounding circumstances. 18 P.W.R. 1915 Cr.=16 Cr. L.J. 657=30 Ind. Cas. 641.

8. Interpretation.

—S. 415—Interpretation.

It is clear from the words of S. 415 that mere deceit of a person is not sufficient. The mere doing of something fraudulently or dishonestly is not sufficient. The deceit of the fraudulent or dishonest person must induce the person deceived to deliver some property, or to consent that some property shall be retained, or intentionally induce the person deceived to do or omit to do something which he would not otherwise do or omit to do, and, the words "and which act or omission causes or is likely to cause damage or harm to that person in body, mind, reputation or property," are important. But when the section says "which act or omission causes or is likely to cause damage or harm to that person in body, mind, reputation or property," it clearly means—which act or omission in itself causes or is likely to cause damage or harm to that person in body, mind, reputation or property and that if that damage or harm is dependent upon the future act of some other person, then such damage or harm is too remote to be within the provisions of the section which contemplates that the act done is in itself likely to cause damage or harm and which is not dependent for damage or harm upon the entirely problematical action of some other person. To use a trite phrase, the act done or omitted to be done must be the causa causans of the harm caused or likely to be caused. A.I.R. 1938 Sind 193=40 Cr.L.J. 61=I. L. R. (1939) Kar. 165=178 Ind. Cas. 226.

—S. 415—The deceit referred to in S. 415 and Ill. (f) to that section may be by conduct and the nature of transaction itself may imply an assertion. A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 273=34 Bom. L.R. 313=56 Bom. 204=33 Cr. L.J. 401=137 Ind. Cas. 142.

—S. 415—'Wrongful gain need not accrue from party deceived'.

'Wrongful gain' need not be made out of the person [deceived], to constitute cheating. Either

'Wrongful gain' to party deceiving or 'wrongful loss' to party deceived is necessary under S. 415. I.P.C. 16 Cr.L.J. 753=31 Ind. Cas. 353 (Mad.).

9. Jurisdiction.

—S. 415—Jurisdiction—V. P. P. purporting to contain tea but really sawdust sent from Madras to Hyderabad—V. P. P. paid for at Hyderabad—Completion of offence—Jurisdiction of Madras Court.

Accused sent by V.P.P. certain boxes purporting to contain tea at the order of A to Hyderabad. A paid the value payable amount and took delivery of the boxes but on opening found them to contain merely sawdust.

Held, the delivery contemplated by S. 415, Penal Code is 'delivery in any person', a phrase which will include even an agent. The deceit and the delivery in consequence of the deceit were complete when the money was handed over to the Post Office and the subsequent delivery by the Post Office to accused was not a necessary ingredient of the offence and therefore the offence was completely committed to Hyderabad and the Madras Court had therefore no jurisdiction. 101 Ind. Cas. 484=1927 M.W.N. 221=28 Cr.L.J. 452=8 A.I. Cr.R. 69=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 544=52 M.L.J. 511.

10. Procedure.

—S. 417—Procedure—Cr. P. Code, S. 233—Joint trial for separate offences—Legality.

The accused were charged with one offence though the complainants stated that they were cheated separately at different intervals. The charge sheet did not make it clear which of the accused persons was being charged with abetment and which of them was being charged with the substantive offence.

Held, the offences were all separate and a joint trial of the accused persons for ten separate offences was not only irregular but illegal. 69 Ind. Cas. 271=25 O.C. 151=23 Cr.L.J. 687=A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 250.

11. Sentence.

—S. 417—Dual sentence.

Person's connection with specific offence of cheating only through conspiracy—Persons sentenced for conspiracy—Additional sentence for specific offence of cheating should not be passed. A.I.R. 1939 Cal. 376=69 C.L.J. 298=41 Cr.L.J. 255=186 Ind. Cas. 171.

—Ss. 417, 120-B—Conspiracy to cheat—Punishment.

The accused were charged with cheating in pursuance of a conspiracy which was not proved, and the evidence showed that the offence of cheating was committed without conspiracy:

Held, that the accused could be punished for cheating only. A.I.R. 1936 Bom. 193=60 Bom. 485=38 Bom. L.R. 153=37 Cr.L.J. 753=162 Ind. Cas. 950.

—S. 419—Sentence—Previous convictions for theft—If can be considered.

It seems somewhat anomalous that previous convictions of an accused for theft and burglary should be taken into account in increasing his sentence where the subsequent offence is cheating by personation under S. 419. 100 Ind. Cas. 536=26 Cr.L.J. 312=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 220.

1. Attempt.

—Ss. 420, 511—Attempt to cheat.

A man may be guilty of an attempt to cheat, although the person he attempts to cheat is fore-warned and is, therefore, not cheated. A.I.R. 1941 Oudh 3=1940 O.W.N. 819=41 Cr. L.J. 881=1940 A.W.R. 381=16 Luck.=194=190 Ind. Cas. 259.

—Ss. 420, 511—Trick of doubling notes.

A Sub-Inspector of Police named T on receiving information that the accused gave out that he could double Govt. currency notes, visited the accused in the guise of a Seth and arranged to bring notes on the following night for doubling them. T then took some notes to the accused after arranging that other Police Officers should also come to the place and wait within call. The accused tied the notes together with pieces of paper of same size and performed certain process. After some hours, the accused took up the packet and untied it. While he was so engaged, however he managed to substitute another packet for the packet of notes and concealed the latter packet under his buttocks. The Sub-Inspector detected what had been done, caught hold of accused's hands and shouted to the Police Officers to come up. The Sub-Inspector asked the accused where he had put the original packet and the accused, pointing to the packet which had been substituted for it and which was lying before him said that that was the packet. This packet was opened and was found to contain seven copies of a book. Under the right side buttocks of the accused was found the packet containing the notes. It was in the same condition as when originally tied.

Held, that although an offence of cheating was not actually committed, there was an attempt to deceive and the mere fact that the Sub-Inspector did not hand over the notes because he was deceived but merely because he wanted to secure the accused's conviction, did not change the legal position in regard to the accused's guilt. The accused clearly went beyond the stage of preparation when he tried to induce a person to hand over notes to him on the assurance that he could double them and did an act towards the commission of the offence of cheating. It is not necessary that the accused should complete every stage in the actual offence except the final stage. In these circumstances, the accused could be convicted under S. 420 read with S. 511 of the I.P.C. A.I.R. 1941 Oudh 3 (6)=1940 O.W.N. 819=41 Cr. L.J. 881=1940 A.W.R.C.C. 381=16 Luck. 194=190 Ind. —Ss. 420, 511—Pawning of bangles of alloy of gold describing them as 'gold bangles'.

There is no such thing as "pure gold" in the jewellery trade. The purest gold used, is 22 carat, or 22 parts out of 24. When a person pawns bangles of only about 12 carat, that is to say, a good deal below the ordinary standard, he cannot be successfully charged with offence of attempting to cheat, if he describes them as "gold bangles." It is a case of caveat emptor i.e., it is for the pawnee to test the articles before taking them. A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 426=37 Cr. L.J. 179=159 Ind. Cas. 789.

—Ss. 420, 511—Attempt to cheat by legal practitioner.

An accused, who was one of the leaders of the Bar, wrote a letter to another containing a definitely false statement with a view to get certain valuable security from the other person and caused the letter to reach such other's hands. But it was not proved beyond reasonable doubt that it was that letter and the deception contained therein alone which induced the other to put the security under the control of the accused. It was clear that the conviction of the accused for attempt to cheat, meant complete ruin to him.

Held, that the accused was not guilty of cheating, but as he had done all he could to bring about the result, he was guilty of attempt to commit an offence of cheating. A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 456=37 Cr. L.J. 217=159 Ind. Cas. 1065.

—S. 420—Attempt—A asking Currency Office for payment for two halves of two currency notes—Currency Office making payment already to L—Non-execution of an indemnity bond by A—Nature of offence by A.

An attempt to commit an offence punishable under S. 511 though the final act short of actual commission of that offence has not been accomplished.

A informed of the Currency Office that he had lost two halves of two currency notes of Rs. 100 during a journey and after getting instructions received in reply to his enquiries, he forwarded to the Currency Office the halves of this two notes still in his possession with the prescribed application forms and affidavits testifying that he was the owner of the notes. The Currency Officer had however already paid the value of these notes to a firm on representation by that firm that the halves of the notes had been stolen from L, one of the partners who was carrying them from Delhi to Alhamadabad. A was prosecuted under S. 511 read with S. 420, Penal Code. The Trying Magistrate, without recording any clear finding as to the dishonest intention of the accused in endeavouring to recover the value of the currency notes, acquitted him on the ground that it was the practice of the Currency Offices not to make payment such in cases until the claimant had executed an indemnity bond, and as no such indemnity bond had been executed by A, his conduct had not amounted to an attempt to cheat but had remained within the stage of preparation for the offence.

Held, that acquittal was bad as the execution of the bond of indemnity was not a portion of the application and was an act which would ordinarily take place before the act of cheating is completed. The applicant would be willing to take the money without an indemnity bond and by his making a false attempt in asking for the money the offence would be just as complete, whether an indemnity bond was or was not insisted upon. 15 All. 173 and 16 Cal. 310, Foll. 110 Ind. —S. 420—Sending false claim as to quantity of insured goods lost—Lessor of premises aiding in the claim—Abetment of attempt.

The appellant had insured his stock of paddy which was burnt by fire; he made a claim on the basis that 75,040 baskets of paddy were stored. It was found that the mill godowns could not accommodate more than 15,000 baskets.

Held, that the claim was not a mere exaggeration but was a false statement as to the quantity stored: that the first appellant having sent the notice of the fire and also the claim papers, must be regarded as having gone beyond the mere stage of preparation to the stage of attempt.

Where A let B use his mill for storing paddy and his cover notes on the mill and stated to witnesses that 75,000 baskets of paddy were in the mill when it was burnt knowing that the capacity of his mill was only 15,000 baskets, and further having stocked paddy refuse in the godowns pretended it was paddy.

An offer for sale of certain spurious trinkets under a false representation that they were of gold, supported by an untrue statement that they were stolen goods, is an attempt at cheating under S. 420 and 511 of the I.P.C., the essential test in such cases being the deception of the victim, the dishonest causing to arise in his mind an impression, the reverse of truth calculated to induce him to do or refrain from doing something he would not otherwise do or refrain from doing. 13 P.W.R. 1914 (Cr.)=14 P.R. 1914 (Cr.)=66 P.L.R. 1914=16 Cr.L.J. 265 23=Ind. 2. Burden of proof.

—S. 420—Cheating guilty knowledge—Onus.

Accused pawned six rings stated to be of gold but it was discovered that the rings were of silver gilt.

Held, that the burden of proving that the accused knew that the rings were not what he suggested them to be, was on the prosecution. 20 Cr. L.J. 769=53 Ind. Cas. 609 (Cal.).

—S. 420—Burden of proof.

The onus as regards dishonest or fraudulent representation is upon the prosecution and not on the defence. 15 A.L.J. 807=19 Cr.L.J. 45=42 Ind. Cas. 1005.

3. Cheques.

—S. 420—Goods obtained by tendering post-dated cheque.

In framing a charge under S. 420 it is necessary to set out not merely the fact that the accused had obtained goods by dishonest means, but also the deception which has been practised. It is necessary that the representation should be mentioned in the charge, so that the accused may have an opportunity of saying either that he never made such representation, or that representation was not in fact false, or that it was not in consequence of this representation that the goods were obtained. The need of framing a precise charge is all the stronger when the charge is based on a transaction of obtaining goods by tendering post-dated cheque, in which the representation is implied rather than directly expressed. The act of drawing a cheque is held to imply at least three statements as to the state of affairs existing at the time when the cheque is drawn: first, that the drawer has an account with the bank in question, secondly, that he has authority to draw on it for the amount shown on the cheque and thirdly, that the cheque, as drawn, is a valid order for the payment of that amount, or that the present state of affairs is such that in the ordinary course of events, the cheque will, on future presentment, be honoured. It does not, however, imply any representation that the drawer already has money in the bank to the amount shown on the cheque. What representation are implied by the drawing of a post-dated cheque, and whether these representations can be called false in the sense just mentioned are matters which must depend on the circumstances in which the cheque is drawn and delivered as a mode of payment. Where the accused simply stated that he would pay by cheque and left the complainant to discover that the cheque had been post-dated after his departure, the correct procedure would probably be to set forth that the accused stated that he would pay for certain goods which he had ordered by cheque and thereupon delivered a cheque for the amount in question, and thereby implied that he had authority to draw upon the bank for that amount and that the cheque so drawn was a valid order for the payment of the amount shown thereon. His payment by cheque, however, cannot be held to have implied that he already had funds in the bank sufficient to cover the amount shown on the cheque. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 95=I.L.R. (1938) Lah. 662=41 P. L. R. 214=40 Cr. L.J. 494=181 Ind. Cas. 95.

F. Y. D. 12—32.

—Ss. 420, 30—Post-dated cheque.

Where the goods already delivered, the accused gives a post-dated cheque and gets a receipt but the cheque is dishonoured, the receipt not being valuable security within the meaning of S. 30, no offence of cheating is committed. The remedy of the complainant lies in a Civil Court for breach of contract. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 324=62 C.L.J. 119=39 C.W.N. 1182=37 Cr. L. J. 828=163 Ind. Cas. 232.

—S. 420—Issuing cheque knowing it will be dishonoured.

Where a person issues a cheque to another and it is dishonoured, and it appears that the failure to meet payment is not accidental, the presumption is that the drawer knew that the cheque would be dishonoured and he is guilty of cheating under S. 420. A.I.R. 1933 Oudh 86=9 O.W.N. 1136=34 Cr.L.J. 124=8 Luck. 286=141 Ind. Cas. 192.

4. Civil Action.

—S. 420—Execution of decree.

A decree-holder received a sum of money from the complainants, the grandsons of his judgment-debtor, under a promise of the decree-holder that no further liability under the decree passed against the judgment-debtor would attach to his grandsons, but subsequently the decree-holder filed an application that the names of the complainants should be brought on the record of the execution file, but no relief was claimed against them and the desired execution against the other judgment-debtors. The Court disallowed the objections. Later on, he filed another application for execution and relief was claimed against the complainants also. In a complaint by the grandsons of the judgment-debtor, it was alleged that this application amounted to an offence of cheating. There was no evidence to show that at the time when the decree-holder received the money, he had any dishonest intention to cheat the complainants.

Held, that it could not be said that the decree-holder cheated and thereby induced the persons deceived the complainants, to deliver the money to him and there was no deception practised. At most he might be said to have committed a breach of faith when he proceeded contrary to his promise to execute the decree against complainants but that breach of contract or breach of faith did not amount to the criminal offence of cheating punishable under S. 420 and that the facts only gave rise to a purely civil action and did not amount to the commission of an offence of cheating punishable under S. 420. A.I.R. 1936 Oudh 372=37 Cr.L.J. 907 (2)=1936 O. W. N. 754=164 Ind. Cas. 144.

—S. 420.

When it is doubtful whether it is a case of breach of contract of cheating and where there is no clear and conclusive evidence of the criminal intention of the accused at the time the offence is said to have been committed and where the party said to be aggrieved has an alternative remedy in the Civil Court the matter should not be allowed to be fought in the Criminal Courts. 159 Ind. Cas. 167 (1)=37 Cr.L.J. 38=16 P.L.T. 553.

—S. 420—Using criminal Court to enforce civil claim—Impropriety of.

There is no ground for making a criminal charge against a person against whom there is a civil claim and to use the criminal Courts for enforcing a civil claim is highly improper. A.I.R. 1933 All. 818=35 Cr.L.J. 224 (1)=55 All. 562=146 Ind. Cas. 904.

—S. 420—Offence under S. 420, if made out under circumstances and facts stated.

The complainant alleged in his complain that he approached the accused to drop certain criminal proceedings in respect of the execution of a decree and to withdraw the execution proceedings against him on receipt of a certain sum of money. The accused agreed to this and an agreement was written out by a petition-writer and also a promissory note. The complainant signed the compromise but the accused took it back from the petition-writer without signing it saying that he had to consult a friend before signing it and never returned the document. On these facts, a complaint under S. 420, I.P.C., was made against the accused.

Held, that these facts did not constitute an offence and in any case, the matter was of such a doubtful nature both on the facts and in law that no criminal proceedings should be taken on the allegations made in the complaint. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 215=35 Cr. L.J. 103=146 Ind. Cas. 552.

—S. 420—Sharp practice resorted to for realising debt.

There was a dispute between the complainant and the accused with regard to a cow and calf which had been made over by the former to the accused as security for money lent by him. The complainant took two respectable elders to the accused to demand the return of the cattle. Without having the matter referred to them, they decided that Rs. 50 would be the proper sum to be paid to get them back. On paying Rs. 50 accused accepted it and demanded the balance of the debt due to him.

Held, that though the accused's act might appear to be sharp practice, it was not something for which he could be made criminally responsible under S. 420, and that the complainant might have recourse to the Civil Court. A.I.R. 1933 Rang. 215=34 Cr.L.J. 1197=146 Ind. Cas. 41.

—S. 420—Civil dispute—Applicability.

Where the dispute between the parties seems to be of a civil nature, the conviction on a charge of cheating is unsustainable. 104 Ind. Cas. 450=28 Cr. L.J. 834=A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 13.

—S. 420—Applicability.

The complainant sold two huts to the accused for a sum of Rs. 150. Out of the consideration to be paid a sum of Rs. 47 was to be set off on account of a debt which the complainant owed to the accused and the balance was to be paid to the complainant by the accused on the execution of the document. The accused got the kobala executed and registered but failed and neglected to pay the balance of the consideration.

Held, that the dispute was of a civil nature and was not one covered by S. 420. 94 Ind. Cas. 204=43 C.L.J. 287=27 Cr. L.J. 588.

—Ss. 420 and 477—Cheating—Cancellation of document—Fraud.

Where the accused had executed a Kobala and presented it for Registration but took it back from the Sub-Registrar before registration on a pretext and tore it to pieces.

Held, that the charge of cheating could not be maintained as the person cheated was the Sub-Registrar and he did not complain. Under the circumstances of the case the charges should not be enquired into by Criminal Court as a civil suit for specific performance was pending. 21 Cr. L.J. 16=30 C.L.J. 175=54 Ind. Cas. 64.

—S. 420—Cheating—Elements of—Inducing to execute a document, if offence—Judgment-debtor induced to execute bonds on inducement of postponement of sale—Sale held—Offence.

In case of cheating it must be shown how the complainant was misled, what loss he has suffered or what attempt to obtain a benefit to his prejudice was made by the accused. A judgment-debtor was induced by the decree-holder to execute two bonds for fictitious consideration on inducement of postponement of sale. The sale was held. The remedy of judgment-debtor was by civil suit for damages as the offence of cheating is not made out. To induce a person to execute a document is not an offence unless it is shown that the inducement was made by some false or fraudulent representation. 18 Cr. L.J. 131=37 Ind. Cas. 483 (All.).

—S. 420—Cheating—Life Insurance Company—Death of assured—Declining to pay policy until age of deceased proved.

Where a Life Assurance Company had reason to believe that the age of the assured was much more than that given in the application, i.e. 50 years, and declined to pay the policy on the death of the assured until the age of the deceased was properly proved.

Held, that a charge of cheating was not maintainable against the company and that the proper course would be to institute a suit against the company to enforce payment. 17 C.W.N. 761=14 Cr. L.J. 398=20 Ind. Cas. 222.

5. Concealment of fact.

—S. 420—Fraudulent prospectus.

In order to make a company prospectus fraudulent, it is not necessary that there should be a false representation in it; even if every word is true, the suppression of material facts may render it fraudulent. To judge its effect, it should be read as a whole.

Where two or more persons agree to issue a prospectus and by the concealment of facts deceive the public and fraudulently or dishonestly induce them to take shares in a company, the offence of conspiracy to cheat is complete. —Ss. 420, 412—Sale—Wilful concealment of incumbrances.

Where the vendor has deceived the purchaser into believing that there was only a particular incumbrance on the property sold whereas in fact there were other incumbrances known to the former, a prosecution of the vendor for cheating cannot be thrown out merely because the purchaser was empowered by a covenant in the sale-deed to recover any further moneys for which the land might be liable, presumably by a civil suit. The existence of a civil remedy would not necessarily exclude a trial by a Criminal Court of an offence. A.I.R. 1933 All. 42=33 Cr. L.J. 884 (1)=140 Ind. Cas. 97. (2)

6. Conspiracy.

—Ss. 420, 120-B—Conspiracy.

An owner of a tea estate made an application to the Tea Licensing Committee for transfer of export quota rights in which he mentioned the export quota for in excess of what was fixed to his credit by the committee. A clerk of the Committee whose duty was to check whether the transferor had in fact the quota sought to be transferred to his credit, wrote on the application that the quota mentioned therein was 'available' for transfer. Due to this false endorsement, the transferor was granted the quota transfer certificate which enabled him to transfer export quota rights for in excess of what was to his credit and thereby made a huge wrongful gain.

Held, that the fraud was committed at the instance of the transferor and as the quota transfer certificates were by themselves property and the documents of title, both the transferor and the clerk were guilty under Ss. 420 and 120-B, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 155=1939 M.W.N. 1125=41 Cr. L.J. 388=187 Ind. Cas. 33.

—Ss. 420, 420-B—Conspiracy by five persons to cheat.

Where five persons are alleged to have combined to deceive another, and four are given the benefit of doubt, the position of the remaining accused who is found guilty of deception is not affected. The participation of the others being eliminated, he is the only person who was responsible for deception which ex-hypothesi did take place. His conviction is not vitiated by the fact that the other four are acquitted. A.I.R. 1936 All. 357=1936 A.W.R. 249=1936 A.L.J. 413=37 Cr.L.J. 697=162 Ind. Cas. 748.

7. Contract.

—S. 420—Illegal contract.

The view that a criminal prosecution for cheating must fail if it is based upon a contract which could be enforced in a Civil Court is wrong. A.I.R. 1941 Oudh 3 (6)=1940 O.W.N. 819=41 Cr.L.J. 881=1940 A.W.R. 381=16 Luck. 194=190 Ind. Cas. 259.

—S. 420—Passing of woman to be of different caste.

A person's examination as a witness for prosecution cannot vitiate the trial, where his name is not mentioned in either the complaint or the police chalan as the participator in the offence though the Court discovers him to be so, for the first time as the time of giving evidence. Though a transaction fails to give rise to a legal contract the object of which is unlawful and opposed to public policy, it cannot warrant the assumption that no criminal offences can be perpetrated during it. Where a person passes a rajput woman as kunbin to the complainant and takes money from him, he is guilty under S. 420. 21 Cr. L.J. 820=58 Ind. Cas. 820 (Nag.).

—S. 420—Cheating—Immoral and illegal contract—False representation.

A agreed to let her daughter on hire to B for concubinage for one year in consideration of B paying her Rs. 70. B paid A Rs. 35 in advance. Subsequently A refused to deliver her daughter to B or to return the sum of Rs. 35 advanced by him.

Held, that the conviction of A for cheating should be set aside. A party should not be allowed to prosecute on a charge of cheating, when he would not be entitled to obtain from a Civil Court any relief for breach of the contract. 14 Bom. L. R. 503=13 Cr.L.J. 521=15 Ind. Cas. 793.

It is not necessary in order to cheat that the deception should be by express words; it may be by conduct or implied in the nature of the transaction itself. 32 C. 941, Foll. A judgment-debtor induced a person to advance money on house already sold in execution and the decree-holder was paid off. The judgment-debtor subsequently withdrew the sale-proceeds from Court and appropriated it.

—S. 420—Delivery of property induced by accused's cheating—Representations of a third person.

For a conviction under S. 420, I.P.C., it is necessary for the prosecution to prove that there had been not only an act of cheating on the part of the accused but also that by the very act of cheating the person cheated was induced to deliver property. If property is delivered owing to the effective inducement of a third person's assurance, there is no offence under the section. 18 A.L.J. 371=21 Cr.L.J. 362=55 Ind. Cas. 730.

10. Essentials and scope.

—Ss. 420, 417—Essentials—Offences under—Difference.

The vital difference between the offences under Ss. 417 and 420 is that whereas an offence against the latter section is a cognizable one, that against the former is non-cognizable and investigation of it can only be undertaken by the Police on the instructions of a Magistrate, whereas in the other case, the Police can act on their own motion under Ss. 154 and 156 of the Criminal P.C. A.I.R. 1945 P.C. 18=(1945) A.L.J. 47=(1945) 1 M.L.J. 86=1945 M.W.N. 49=26 P.L.T. 56=46 Cr.L.J. 413=47 Bom. L.R. 245=80 C. L. J. 19=1945 O.W.N. 258=1945 A.W.R. (P.C.) 21=I. L. R. (1945) Lah. 1=I.L.R. (1945) Kar. P.C. 89 Supp=71 Ind. App. 203=217 Ind. Cas. 1 (P.C.).

—S. 420—Offence depends on successful inducement of person cheated.

The question whether an offence has been committed under S. 420, I.P.C., does not depend upon the accused's success in swindling of the amount of times that he has managed to obtain property by cheating but depends in each individual case on the successful inducement of the person cheated.

Held, on facts that there was no infringement of the provisions of S. 234, Criminal P.C. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 678=38 Cr.L.J. 4=165 Ind. Cas. 817.

—S. 420—Essentials.

An offence under S. 420, does not consist merely in a fraudulent or dishonest representation but also requires the delivery of property by the victim. A. I. R. 1931 Pat. 102=12 P.L.T. 12=32 Cr. L. J. 611=130 Ind. Cas. 796.

—S. 420—Introducing cheat—Offence — Proof of fraud and dishonesty.

In order to sustain a conviction of a middle-man who introduced a cheat to the complainant, under S. 420, it is necessary for the prosecution to establish that he acted dishonestly and fraudulently in the transaction. 102 Ind. Cas. 553=28 P.L.R. 171=8 A.J.Cr.R. 217=28 Cr.L.J. 585=A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 746.

—S. 420—Graver and lesser offence.

The offence under S. 417 is cheating generally but that under S. 420 is an aggravated type of the offence involving delivery or destruction of valuable security. 82 Ind. Cas. 57=20 M.L.W. 919=25 Cr.L.J. 1193=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 367.

—S. 420—Ingredients of the offence.

To sustain a conviction, it must be proved that the person deceived was induced to do something which otherwise he would not have done, and that his act has caused himself some damage. The damage must be proved by evidence. 2 U.P.L.R. (All.) 179=57 Ind. Cas. 103=21 Cr. L.J. 583.

11. Evidence and proof.

—S. 420—Misrepresentation, proof of.

In a prosecution under S. 420 if misrepresentation has to be proved, it would be better to get the exact words used by the accused. A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 603=41 Cr.L.J. 523=187 Ind. Cas. 862 (D.B.).

—S. 420—Lottery.

Organizers of certain loan company charged and convicted under S. 420 for dishonestly running lottery—Evidence showing that people purchased tickets with knowledge that they were taking part in lottery and application for loan was mere camouflage—Conviction, held was unsustainable. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 301=40 Cr.L.J. 20=178 Ind. Cas. 113.

—Ss. 420, 415—Goods ordered on credit—Accused in embarrassed circumstances—Intention.

If a person orders goods on credit and promises expressly or impliedly to pay for them on a particular date, then if the prosecution proves that at the date of the contract, the circumstances of the accused were such that he must have known that it was practically impossible that he would be able to pay for the goods, there would be a case of cheating. But the mere fact that the accused was in embarrassed circumstances is not enough.

It is doubtful whether evidence as to the fact that the accused had also ordered goods from others and had not paid for them is relevant under Ss. 14 and 15, Evidence Act, upon the question whether when the accused entered in a contract with the complainant, he had the fraudulent intention of not paying for the goods, and even if relevant, its evidentiary value is very small. A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 273=34 Bom. L.R. 313=56 Bom. 204=33 Cr.L.J. 401=137 Ind. Cas. 142.

—S. 420—Evidence—Contradiction in material particular—Effect.

Where the only witness of the complainant on whom any reliance could be placed had contradicted himself on a very material particular,

Held, that it would be most unsafe to convict the accused of the offence charged against him, especially when there was previous enmity between the accused and the complainant. 28 P.L.R. 461=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 797.

—S. 420—Making false pretence with intent to defraud—No evidence that property was obtained thereby—Conviction.

If an accused is indicted for obtaining property by false pretences and the evidence proves that the accused made the alleged false pretences, that they were false, and that the accused had an intent to defraud, but the evidence fails to prove that the accused obtained the property or that the alleged false pretences led to the obtaining of the property, accused may be convicted of the offence of the attempt to obtain by false pretences. 65 Ind. Cas. 994=5 N.L.J. 16=23 Cr.L.J. 210=A.I.R. 1922 Nag. 40.

Where rent was due to A by B and the latter gave letter to A, addressed to the accused, his banker, directing him to pay up the amount and when A took the letter and a receipt to the accused, the latter retained the receipt but refused to pay the amount until certain other receipts for other payments were passed.

Held, the accused, knowing that his representations would engender the belief that the payment would be made on giving the receipt, took the receipt when he did not intend to pay, and was therefore guilty under S. 420. In such cases the evidence must establish the existence of a fraudulent or dishonest intention at the time of the commission of the act in respect of which the cheating is alleged. 68 Ind. Cas. 621=23 Cr.L.J. 589=A.I.R. 1922 Nag. 195.

—S. 420—Cheating—Evidence Act, Ss. 14, 15—Intention—State of mind—Evidence as to previous or subsequent acts forming one series of transactions—Admissibility of evidence.

Accused was charged with deceiving one B by leading him to believe that he could secure an employment for him and with thereby inducing B to give him some money. Evidence was given to show that this transaction with B was one of a series of similar frauds practised by the accused upon various other persons. Held, on a review of the English decisions—such evidence was admissible. (1939) 9 C.L.J. 610=36 C. 573=13 C.W.N. 973=10 Cr. L.J. 91=2 Ind. Cas. 601.

12. Fraud.

—Ss. 420, 120-B—Appeal to gambling instinct, whether per se cheating.

An appeal to the gambling instinct of humanity does not per se amount to cheating :

Held, on facts that in starting an insurance scheme which was calculated to confer money benefits on the policy-holders in the shape of twelve times the money invested by each, the accused were not guilty of either cheating or conspiracy to cheat, as, upon a fair reading of the prospectus, it could not be said that it contained any fraudulent or deceitful representations though it might appear too absurd for such schemes to work with success. A.I.R. 1939 Cal. 327=43 C.W.N. 388=40 Cr. L.J. 600=181 Ind. Cas. 918.

—Ss. 420, 120-B—Scheme of "Snow ball" nature.

The scheme as set out in the memorandum of association, which was deposited with the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies was as follows : The applicant for the loan was to pay an admission fee and make a deposit. He was required to secure two co-members or secondaries who were also required to pay admission fee and the deposit called the opening deposit. After payment by the secondaries, the company was to advance loan up to a fixed maximum to the original applicant within a fixed period of 45 to 60 days. After the two co-members had paid admission fees and deposits, the original applicant was to get a refund of his opening deposit ; the co-members or secondaries were in the same way to get loans from the company on their securing two co-members or secondaries each. If, however, the original applicant failed to secure two co-members within a week of his application, he was, on sending a notice to the company, to get a refund of his deposit money with interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum within 180 days of the date of receipt of notice by the company. Company had appointed agents and supervisors. By misrepresentations, they induced the villagers to apply for loan and pay deposit and admission fee.

Held, that the scheme in the case might be of the "snowball" nature but the literature of the scheme principally the loan rules could not be described as misleading and deceptive. All the conditions of the scheme launched by the company were set out in black and white. There was no room for misunderstanding and though highly speculative, it was not dishonest or of fraudulent nature :

Held further that so long as the Directors of the company did not themselves induce anybody to apply for loan and pay money to the company, they could not be held to be party to any fraud or conspiracy so as to attract the operation of the penal law. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 440=38 Cr.L.J. 209=166 Ind. Cas. 412.

—S. 420—Making of fraudulent and dishonest recital in deed.

Making of fraudulent and dishonest recital in mortgage deed, that a prior encumbrance which was actually existing, did not exist, would amount to cheating. 1936 M.W.N. 1096 (1).

—S. 420—Cheating—Contract to supply good cotton—Fraudulent adulteration of cotton bales.

Where the accused contracted to deliver 260 bales of machine ginned good cotton and delivered 260 bales largely composed of cotton seed, raw cotton and rubbish carefully packed into the middle of the bales while all around was ginned cotton, and the admixture of inferior stuff was from 6 to 15 per cent, against a quantity of half to 1 per cent, and the fraud was perpetrated at a ginning factory where the accused was present whilst the machines were ginning such adulterated cotton, the accused was guilty of cheating under S. 420. 14 Bom. L.R. 137=13 Cr.L.J. 285=14 Ind. Cas. 669.

13. Intention.

—S. 420—Offence under—Amount received by accused for paying bribe to public officer—Retention by accused—Offence—Prosecution for cheating—Maintainability—Grounds of public policy—Relevancy in adjudicating criminal liability.

The accused who was an auditor was charged with an offence under S. 420, I. P. Code, for having dishonestly induced P.Ws. 1 and 2 to deliver him a certain sum of money for bribing the Income-tax officer. It was shown that having received the money the accused kept the money for himself. It was contended that the money paid by P.Ws. 1 and 2 to the accused could not be recovered even in a civil suit and that in respect of such money a criminal prosecution for cheating was equally unsustainable.

Held, that even assuming that the amount could not be recovered in a civil suit it did not follow that the criminal prosecution was not maintainable and that grounds of public policy were not relevant in adjudicating the criminal liability of the accused.

Held, however, that the accused could not be convicted of the offence under S. 420, I. P. Code, inasmuch as it was not proved that at the time when P.Ws. 1 and 2 delivered the money to the accused that it was not his intention to utilise the money in the way in which he represented it was to be utilised. 61 L.W. 223=1948 M.W.N. 5=A.I.R. 1948 Mad. 258=49 Cr.L.J. 443=(1947) 2 M.L.J. 594.

—S. 420—Criminal intent.

Criminal intent at the time of the alleged bargain must be established for conviction under S. 420. The mere fact that the accused deny the transaction at the trial and refuse to return the money does not necessarily show that they had a criminal intent from the beginning and their denial may merely amount to the usual mistaken attempt to protect themselves from the result of the prosecution. 169 Ind. Cas. 1007=39 P. L. R. 300=38 Cr. L. J. 845.

—S. 420—What is offence under—Person inducing another to give on credit certain articles not intending to pay—Offence.

Where a person by falsely pretending to be a pensioned Subedar, intentionally deceives the complainant and dishonestly induces the complainant to let him have on credit certain articles for which he did not intend to pay, is guilty under S. 420 and not under S. 417. 115 Ind. Cas. 471=10 Lah. 513=12 A.I. Cr. R. 258=30 Cr. L. J. 480=30 P.L.R. 514=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 935.

—S. 420—Rash identification—No dishonest—No offence.

Person identifying before Treasury Officer another as the proper payee of a certain money, rashly and without taking care to ascertain as to the truth of his identity is not guilty under S. 182 or S. 420 where it is held that his intention was not dishonest. 99 Ind. Cas. 57=44 C.L.J. 230=28 Cr. L. J. 25=7 A.I. Cr. R. 197=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 78.

—S. 420—Intention—Taking back ornaments by husband's mother from bride's father as a token of dissolution of marriage with his consent—Action approved by panchas—No dishonest intention—No offence.

A boy Allah Baksh was married to one B who was much older. When the girl had grown up to womanhood, the boy was only thirteen years old. The mother of Allah Baksh and his elder brother Jumman thought it would be inadvisable to bring the bride to the house owing to the infancy of the bridegroom so they went to the father of the bride and suggested to him that if he paid back certain money and ornaments, which apparently had been given to the bride at the time of marriage, the marriage would be put an end to. The father of the bride called a panchayat and asked the zemindar, the school teacher and the Court of Wards Zildar to attend and the panchas came to the conclusion that the arrangement was reasonable, and in accordance with their advice the bride's father agreed and the money and property demanded was made over and a formal receipt was written by the school teacher and the parties affixed their thumb impressions to it. The parties were Muhammadans of humble position and no doubt they thought and everybody thought that the marriage had been legally put an end to. Then the present charge was brought by the bride's father against mother and elder brother of the boy under Section 420.

Held, that there was no dishonest intention on the part of the accused and they are not guilty under Section 420. 21 A.L.J. 321=4 L.R.A. (Cr.) 81=A.I.R. 1923 All. 431.

—S. 420—Denial of payment—Creditor receiving payment and afterwards denying receipt—If offence.

Petitioner was convicted of cheating on the ground that in spite of receiving from his debtor, the complainant, cash and cattle in payment of what he owed him, he gave him notice later on for payment of the debt originally due, and denied what he had already received: Held there was nothing to show that the petitioner received payment with the preconceived intention of denying it later on. If he subsequently denied it, he cannot be said to have cheated the debtor though this conduct of his was highly reprehensible. 32 Ind. Cas. 479=25 Cr. L. J. 1311=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 621.

—Ss. 420, 109 and 114—Cheating—Abetment—Intention.

The offence of cheating is complete where money is obtained on false pretence that complainant would be married to a woman. A person is guilty of abetment under Ss. 109 and 114 who introduces the complainant to the cheater knowing full well that the offence is going to be committed, is present at the time when the agreement and the payment are made, and does not inform the complainant of what is going to happen though he takes no share in the money. 6 P. W. R. 1917 Cr.=18 Cr. L. J. 827=41 Ind. Cas. 651.

—S. 420—Cheating—Essentials.

The prosecution has to prove that the representation made by the accused was false and that he had no intention of carrying out his promise at the time of making it. 4 Bur. L. T. 279=6 L.B.R. 38=13 Cr. L. J. 15=13 Ind. Cas. 386.

—S. 420—Constituents.

To constitute an offence under S. 420 the dishonest intention must either precede or accompany the dishonest act. 11 Cr. L. J. 295=6 Ind. Cas. 250 (All).

—S. 420—Cheating—Money taken and paid back.

The fact that the accused after obtaining money by a false promise paid back a portion of the same, does not affect his criminality. The test is not what he did afterwards, but what was in his mind at the time when the money was paid to him, whether he then intended to repay the same. 9 C.L.J. 605=10 Cr. L. J. 487=13 C.W.N. 728=4 Ind. Cas. 65.

14. Interpretation.

—Ss. 415 and 420—Valuable security—If includes decree copy.

A "decree" does not come within the definition of a "valuable security"; a decree merely declares the existence of legal rights of extinguishment, extension transfer or restriction of legal rights, etc.; the rights are there, and all that the decree does is that it formally expresses the adjudication by the Court on the rights of the parties. When the Court passes a decree, it does not deliver any property, because the original decree remains in Court and the term "valuable security" assuming that the term is wide enough to include a decree, can only apply to original document and not to any copy of a decree which may be supplied on application to the parties. The same arguments would apply to orders in execution. 81 Ind. Cas. 810=39 C.L.J. 122=28 C.W.N. 414=25 Cr. L. J. 1034=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 502.

—S. 420—Interpretation—'Fraudulently'—'Dishonestly'—Intention to deceive—Intention to cause wrongful loss.

Whenever the words "fraud" or "with intent to defraud" or "fraudulently" occur in the definition of a crime, two elements at least are essential to the commission of a crime, viz., (1) deceit or an intention to deceive or, in some cases mere secrecy and (2) either actual injury or possible injury or an intention to expose some person either to actual injury or a risk of possible injury, by means of that deceit or secrecy. The term "fraudulently" may be defined to imply an intent to deceive in such a manner as to expose any person to loss, or risk of loss. The term "dishonestly" implies a deliberate intention to cause wrongful gain or wrongful loss, and when such an intention is proved and is coupled with cheating and the delivery of property, the offence is punishable under S. 420, in which the word "fraudulently" finds no place. A, for example may by a false representation induce B to advance him a sum of money, in such circumstances that A is aware that he is exposing B to considerable risk of loss, but without the intention of causing wrongful loss; A would be acting fraudulently, and if he intended to cause wrongful loss, would be acting dishonestly. In the former case, he would be punishable under S. 417 and in the latter, under S. 420. 64 Ind. Cas. 33=13 Bur. L.T. 239=22 Cr. L.J. 721=10 L.B.R. 366=33=A.I.R. 1922 L.B. 10.

—Ss. 420 and 511—‘Thereby’ meaning—Overt acts.

Under S. 420, I.P.C., delivery is not essential, the word ‘thereby’ after ‘whoever cheats’ only implying that a particular sort of cheating by delivery of property or making alterations or destructions of a valuable security is contemplated by the section, hence an accused who is prevented from taking delivery of property through an obstacle independent of his will, if he commits some overt acts, with that end, is guilty of attempt to cheat. 18 Cr. L.J. 990=11 S.L.R. 67—42 Ind. Cas. 606.

—S. 420—Interpretation—‘Property’.

The word ‘property’ in S. 420, includes money. (1904) 32 C. 22=8 C.W.N. 784.

15. Jurisdiction.

—S. 420—Jurisdiction—Accused living at C—Bogus telegram despatched from T—Jurisdiction of T Court.

Where the accused at C gave the telegram for despatch from T to one J.,

Held, that he caused the despatch of the telegram at T and the T Court had jurisdiction to try the offence under Ss. 468-109 and 420-511, Indian Penal Code. 99 Ind. Cas. 127=28 Cr. L.J. 95=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 77=51 M.L.J. 635.

—S. 420—Second Class Magistrate.

A Second Class Magistrate is not competent to try an offence under S. 420 of the Penal Code though he has jurisdiction to try an offence under S. 417. 82 Ind. Cas. 57=20 M.L.W. 919=25 Cr. L.J. 1193=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 367.

—S. 420—Decree-holder inducing Judgment-debtor to part with the amount—Receipt for the same withheld—Offence—Second Class Magistrate framing charge under Ss. 417, 384 and 511, I.P.C.—Legality.

After filing a civil suit as to whether a sum of money had been paid by the judgment-debtor to the decree-holder who was alleged to have granted a receipt, the judgement-debtor instituted a complaint under Ss. 417, 384 and 511, I.P.C., against the decree-holder alleging that the decree-holder inclined him to take the receipt out of his dupatta and then put out his hand to take it but the decree-holder was not able to touch the receipt which the judgement-debtor replaced in his dupatta. The Second Class Magistrate framed a charge under Ss. 417, 384 and 511, I.P.C.,

Held, in revision that if any offence was committed it was one under Ss. 420 and 511, I.P.C. and that the Second Class Magistrate had no jurisdiction to deal with such a complaint.

Held also that the whole complaint amounted to an abuse of the process of the Court. 11 Lah. L.J. 95.

16. Misrepresentation.

—S. 420—Obtaining possession of the property by trick.

The accused represented to the complainant that he was a tinner while was in fact not a tinner. The complainant thereupon gave the accused certain utensils to be repaired which were neither repaired nor returned by the accused.

Held, that while it might be said using the words of general import, that the complainant entrusted the accused with property, he was in fact tricked out of it. Therefore, the offence fell, not under S. 406, Penal Code but under S. 420. A.I.R. 1942 Sind 167=I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 284=4 Cr. L.J. 123=203 Ind. Cas. 609.

—Ss. 420, 415, 419.

A alleging before patwari that B had sold him land and producing M who represented that he was B—Patwari making entry in mutation register—Same statement repeated before Naib Tahsildar—A and M, held could not be convicted either under S. 419 or S. 420. A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 460=I.L.R. (1941) Lah. 718=43 Cr. L.J. 254=197 Ind. Cas. 711.

—S. 420—Where the complainant who was a business man had every opportunity find out all about the businessman and did in fact participate in it.

Held, on facts that no offence of cheating was committed if the complainant invests money on certain representations of the accused. A.I.R. 1941 Sind 198=I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 345=13 Cr. L.J. 73=196 Ind. Cas. 755.

—S. 420—Selling of bottles of liquor with false labels representing them to be genuine.

A person selling bottles of liquor with false labels representing the liquor to be genuine is guilty of cheating within the meaning of S. 420. Whether there has been or is likely to be, a resale at a profit by the purchaser is wholly irrelevant to the question of cheating; the cheating is complete as soon as the sale to him on a false representation is complete and the price paid. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 205=41 Cr. L.J. 556=188 Ind. Cas. 267.

—S. 420—To fraudulently induce a person to part with Rs. 7,000 by means of statements ingeniously blended of truth and falsehood amounts to one single transaction of cheating, even if the money is handed over in five instalments. 1935 M.W.N. 1225.

—S. 420—Proof of intention.

When serious charges of fraud are made, the facts must be sworn to by the person who alleges them. The method of getting some subordinate to take the responsibility of making serious charges of fraud which may afterwards turn out to be false is a practice which cannot be allowed.

Where fraud is alleged, it is absolutely essential that there should be clear evidence of intention to defraud or to cheat before the opposite party ought to be allowed to be harassed with a criminal prosecution. A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 452=53 C.L.J. 437=32 Cr.L.J. 1133=134 Ind. Cas. 309.

—S. 420—Absence of intention—Ingredients of—Mere handing over of the rules of a club by its servant—Liability of members.

Officials of a so-called Royal Sports Club whose object was to receive from its clients bets on horse races and employing agents on the race course to put their clients' bets were charged with deceiving certain persons by publishing the rules of the club and inducing them to pay money to the club, whereas no agent at the race was appointed and it was proved that a book of rules was handed over by a servant of the club.

Held, that under the circumstances members were not criminally responsible for representations contained in the rules, and as the ingredients of the offence of cheating were absent in this case, they could not be liable for conviction under S. 420. 109 Ind. Cas. 905

—S. 420—Denial of liability—Refusal to admit legal liability—Liability otherwise provable—If offence.

A mere refusal to admit a legal liability, the existence of which does not depend upon admission by the person who is to be made liable, is not such a breach of the promise made at the time of the offence, as would amount to make false representation at the time of the payment. 89 Ind. Cas. 247=26 Cr.L.J. 1303=A.I.R. 1925 Sind 231.

—S. 420—Receiving money to exert influence to restore the complainant back into the caste—If cheating.

Where two persons who were outcasted were induced to part with their money on the promise made by the applicant that he and his friends would smoke with them and that they would attempt to have them brought back into caste and the person deceived knew that the applicant could not give a definite promise that they would be received back into the brotherhood as the decision rested not with him but with the panchayat.

Held, that no offence under S. 420 was committed. 69 Ind. Cas. 152=8 O. L. J. 583=23 Cr. L.J. 664=A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 113.

—S. 420—Advance made to a broker on representations not proved to be false—If cheating.

The accused, a paddy broker, represented to the complainant, a Rice Mill, that he would supply a certain amount of paddy within a certain time and got Rs. 4,000 as an advance. It could not be said that the accused had not made arrangements for the supply of paddy but the arrangements failed and paddy could not be supplied.

Held, that the accused was not guilty under S. 420. 76 Ind. Cas. 700=1 Rang. 397=2 Bur. L. J. 139=25 Cr.L.J. 236=A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 31.

—Ss. 420 and 489 (a)—Non-fulfilment of representation.

The non-fulfilment of a representation of a person which induced the complainant to advance money to the accused, about the latter's ability to counterfeit currency notes, though not actionable civilly is an offence of cheating, though the accused entertained no intention of counterfeiting at the time. 18 Cr.L.J. 362=10 Bur. L.T. 255=38 Ind. Cas. 746.

—S. 420—Cheating by false representation as to future event.

Cheating by false representation, in respect of a future event must be proved by showing that the representation was false to the knowledge of the accused at the time it was made. 15 Bom. L. R. 297=14 Cr. L.J. 232=19 Ind. Cas. 328.

—S. 420—Mortgagor not disclosing his defective title.

A person mortgaged to another for Rs. 1,000 a mortgage executed in his favour of a house for Rs. 2,000 and also agreed that in case of his mortgagee not being able to recover his money from the mortgagee rights, he would make good the money from his other property.

Held, that there was no cheating in that person's act, though he knew at the time of borrowing money that his mortgagor's title to the house was defective and did not disclose this defect to his creditor. 40 P.W.R. 1910 Cr.=11 Cr.L.J. 610=8 Ind. Cas. 256.

—S. 420—Obtaining money by false representation—Promise to procure a post and to repay if post not procured—Cheating—Tests of criminality.

The accused falsely represented to the complainant that he would be able to appoint him (the complainant) to a lucrative post on a cash security of Rs. 1,000 of which a third was to be paid in advance when submitting application for the post. The complainant on the faith of this representation paid some money and made the application. Afterwards the accused told the complainant that if he (complainant) did not get the post, he would get a refund of the money. On the accused's failing to keep his promise the complainant demanded the refund which the accused promised to make by instalments and actually paid one of the instalments.

Held, that the accused committed an offence under S. 420, as he obtained the complainant's money by a promise which he knew he could not fulfil and the fact that long afterwards under pressure the accused paid back a portion of what he had received could in no way affect his criminality. The test of the accused's criminality is not what he did months afterwards, but what was in his mind at the time when, and under what circumstances, he received the money from the complainant and whether the accused then intended to repay the same. (1909) 9 C. L. J. 605=13 C.W.N. 728=10 Cr.L.J. 487=4 Ind. Cas. 65.

17. Procedure.

—S. 420—Procedure—Criminal breach of trust and cheating distinguished.

Per Lakshmana Rao, J. (Dissentient).—Acts constituting offence of obtaining property by cheating cannot by themselves constitute the offence under S. 405. The ingredients of the offences are different and so is the evidence to establish them. There can be an offence under S. 406 with respect to same property, as distinct from offence under S. 420. The offence under S. 420 is complete as soon as delivery is obtained by cheating and without the further act of misappropriation, there can be no breach of trust. Thus, where the accused is charged for both offences and the charge under S. 420 is compounded and he is acquitted on that charge, he can be tried under Ss. 405, 406. The principle of autrefois acquit does not apply. A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 353=1936 M. W. N. 281=43 L.W. 548=70 M.L.J. 635=37 Cr. L. J. 637=162 Ind. Cas. 592 (2) (F.B.).

—Ss. 420, 417—Non-disclosure of insolvency.

Where the accused made a promise to pay the balance due from him to the complainant within 15 days and the complainant stated that he would not have allowed credit to the accused if he had known at the time that the accused was an insolvent and the District Magistrate thought that there were good reasons for taking the view that on the facts, the accused appeared to be technically guilty under S. 420 and that the circumstances did not justify an inquiry being refused by a Criminal Court.

Held, that the view of law taken by the District Magistrate was not erroneous and in the circumstances there was no ground for interference in revision b the High Court. A.I.R. 1935 All. 439=36 Cr.L.J. 526 =1935 A.W.R. 209=154 Ind. Cas. 513.

—S. 420—Sanction.

The offence under S. 420 being a cognizable offence punishable with imprisonment for more than two years no sanction is necessary for a charge under the section. One cannot compel the prosecution to get charges framed which require sanction. A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 91=36 Cr. L.J. 500=154 Ind. Cas. 387.

—S. 420—Charge—Absence of statement that any person suffered loss by the false representation—Defect if cured by S. 557, Cr.P.C.

F borrowed money from M on security of N, on basis of two mortgage bonds and having arranged to sell the mortgaged property induced M to accompany him to a petition writer to get a sale deed drafted. The bonds were left with the petition writer and M went away to get a document registered. N and F making a false representation to petition writer that M wanted to see to the bonds, took them away. F and N were followed, but the bonds could not be recovered. In the charge it was recited that F and N obtained the bonds after making false representation to the petition writer and that as a result of the misrepresentation M suffered loss. It was contended that the charge was defective.

Held, that it was not necessary to state in the charge that as a result of false representation made by F and N, M suffered any loss. The mere fact that the petition writer as a result of the deception of N handed the bond to him was sufficient to bring his conduct within the definition of cheating. The addition in the charge that M suffered loss as a result of the misrepresentation was a mere surplusage and the defect was cured by S. 537, Cr. P. Code. A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 407 =129 Ind. Cas. 298.

—S. 420—Compounding—No sanction of Court—S. 345 (2), Cr. P.C.—Effect.

In cases governed by S. 345 (2), Cr. P. Code, the permission of the Court before which a prosecution is pending is essential before the case can be validly compounded, and so no effect can be given to a compromise as a plea in bar of conviction unless the court has given its sanction. Without the sanction of the Court, the so-called compromise arrived at between the parties outside the Court, is of no legal effect and cannot be taken cognizance of by any Court dealing with the offence. 109 Ind. Cas. 601=9 Lah. 400=29 P. L. R. 510=29 Cr.L.J. 585=10 A.I. Cr.R. 302=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 232.

—S. 420—Procedure—Evidence of deception—First trial.

In a charge of cheating the complainant must disclose all the evidence of deception at the first trial and he cannot institute a series of trials each based upon different evidence of deception. 99 Ind. Cas. 1035=25 M.L.W. 220=28 Cr.L.J. 235=7 A.I. Cr.R. 390=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 444.

—S. 420—Restoration of property—Accused acquitted—Order, if legal.

Where a Magistrate finds the accused not guilty of the offence of cheating and acquits him, he cannot order that the property in respect of which the offence was alleged to be committed, and which is in possession of the accused, should be restored to the complainant. The proper order which the Magistrate should make is that the goods should remain in the possession of the person in whose custody they were found. 95 Ind. Cas. 933=27 Cr.L.J. 853=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 1048.

—S. 420—General rule as to conviction—Taking ransom for restoration of stolen property—Conviction.

Per Robinson, C. J.—The General rule which should guide the Courts is to convict of and punish for the most serious offence that is established, provided of course, that the accused has been charged with and has had an opportunity of meeting the charge of that offence. There is no ground for holding that the Legislature meant to confine the Court to that offence when the facts proved amount to another and more serious offence.

When the accused person has taken a ransom for the restoration of stolen property and fails to return that property to the person, who has paid him the ransom, he can be convicted under S. 420, I.P.C., and the conviction need not be confined to one under S. 215, I.P.C. 73 Ind. Cas. 145=1 Bur. L. J. 179=11 L.B.R. 422=24 Cr.L.J. 529=A.I.R. 1923 Rang. 37.

18. Sentence.

—S. 420—Cheating—Sentence—Infliction of fine only—Legality.

S. 420, I.P. Code, requires that on a conviction being recorded, a substantive term of imprisonment should be awarded. Where only a sentence of fine is inflicted, the order has to be quashed. 1946 A. M. L. J. 8.

—S. 420—Cheating by importing goods in port of Karachi by deceiving Customs Authorities by using forged documents—Sentence.

An accused was charged with cheating which involved the use of forged documents under S. 420, I.P.C., for importing goods in Port of Karachi by deceiving the Customs Authorities. The accused, before this fraud, had visited another port and tried to come to an arrangement with the Customs there with a similar object but had failed. Though he was not charged for forging the documents, the lower Court passed a severe sentence in view of the fabrication.

Held, that in determining the sentence the making or fabrication of false documents should not be taken into account.

Held, also that in prosecution for cheating the Customs at Karachi, the evidence of the closely connected visits of the accused at two places, could be admitted under S. 8 or S. 9, Evidence Act. A.I.R. 1937 Sind 293=32 S.L.R. 87=39 Cr.L.J. 123=172 Ind. Cas. 374.

—S. 420—Sentence.

The effect of the conviction for attempt to cheat together with consequences that were bound to flow from it were probably sufficient punishment in themselves and that a sentence of three months would be sufficient. A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 456=37 Cr. L. J. 217=159 Ind. Cas. 1065.

—S. 420—Extracting money for charitable institution and taking it for himself.

A person who extracts subscriptions from the charitably minded public for a charitable institution and pockets the proceeds himself does not deserve any consideration in the matter of reduction of the sentence imposed on him. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 114=15 P.L.T. 318=35 Cr.L.J. 1167=150 Ind. Cas. 927 (2).

—S. 420—Motor Insurance frauds.

Offences of cheating like motor insurance frauds should be dealt with rather severely. It is very difficult to catch these motor insurance frauds and when once a man is caught, he should be given deterrent punishment and that a sentence of two years' rigorous imprisonment would meet the requirements of the case. A.I.R. 1934 Pesh. 67=35 Cr. L.J. 1345=151 Ind. Cas. 249.

—S. 420—Sentence.

The offender convicted under S. 420 "shall be punished with imprisonment and shall also be liable to fine". This means that some sentence of imprisonment must be given and the Court has a discretion to add or refrain from adding a fine, for, to the latter an offender is only "liable". 114 Ind. Cas. 733=1929 A.L.J. 400=10 L.R.A.Cr. 59=11 A. I. Cr. R. 422=30 Cr.L.J. 340=A.I.R. 1929 All. 260.

—S. 420—Sentence of imprisonment is obligatory.

A sentence of imprisonment is obligatory under the law for an offence either under S. 409 or under S. 420. 94 Ind. Cas. 130=27 Cr.J.L. 562=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 350.

19. Similar offences—Distinguished.

—S. 420—Breach of contract and cheating.

Mere breach of a contract cannot give rise to a criminal prosecution. The distinction between a case of mere breach of contract and one of cheating depends upon the intention of the accused at the time of the alleged inducement which may be judged by his subsequent act but of which the subsequent act is not the sole criterion. (1935) 159 Ind. Cas. 167 (1)=16 P.L.T. 553=37 Cr.L.J. 38.

—S. 420—Similar offences distinguished—Extortion and cheating.

Although there is a common feature between the offence of extortion and that of cheating, yet they cannot be regarded as two aspects of one offence. 112 Ind. Cas. 586=29 Cr.L.J. 1082=30 Bom. L. R. 967=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 346.

—S. 420—Difference between theft, cheating, criminal misappropriation and criminal breach of trust.

An easy method of differentiating between the offence of theft, cheating with delivery of property, criminal misappropriation and criminal breach of trust is to find out whether the original taking was honest or dishonest and whether it was with the consent of the owner, or without it. In theft the original taking is without honesty and without the consent of the owner and in criminal breach of trust it is with both. In obtaining property by cheating the taking is dishonest but with the consent of the owner, and in criminal misappropriation it is honest but without the consent of the owner. 106 Ind. Cas. 678=9 A.I.Cr.R. 282=29 Cr.L.J. 86=A.I.R. 1928 Nag. 113.

—S. 420—Cheating and breach of trust—Pledge of promissory notes—Pledgor retaking them for collection from debtors and paying pledgee—Complaint by pledgee on default—Cheating in respect of one's own property.

The act of the accused in dishonestly inducing the complainant to hand over the promissory notes, which the accused had pledged with the complainant as security for a loan by pretending that he required them to collect money from his debtors with the aid of which he would pay cash to the complainant, would constitute, if proved, an offence of cheating punishable under Sec. 420. It is not impossible under any circumstances for a person to commit criminal breach of trust in respect of his own property. In such a case the complainant has some sort of beneficial interest in the property and when he gives the notes to the accused for a definite purpose and the accused dishonestly disposes of them, there is both entrustment and dishonest misappropriation. 72 Ind. Cas. 612=24 Cr.L.J. 452=17

20. Speculative scheme.

—S. 420—Speculative scheme.

Financial scheme of "Snow Ball" nature does not amount to cheating. I.L.R. (1939) 2 Cal. 81.

—S. 420—Speculative nature of scheme.

The mere fact that a scheme is of a highly speculative nature is not in itself evidence that it is a scheme put before the public to deceive. There must be evidence of some deception. A.I.R. 1937 Sind 58=38 Cr. L.J. 651=168 Ind. Cas. 827.

—S. 420—Speculative scheme.

A floated a company and had employed B, C and D as agents or canvassers. The main idea of the scheme was to grant loans by four unequal instalments to each applicant, whether he may be an applicant for a small sum of Rs. 50 or for a large amount of Rs. 5000. Each applicant had to deposit a sum of money with the application and the loan was to be made in instalments determined by drawing lots. It was further provided that these loan amounts would be refundable to the company in five to eight years, time according to the conditions agreed upon at the time of the advancement of the loan, and the last condition was that all applications would be understood to have been put in after full understanding and acceptance of the rules and conditions. Some applicants got loans applied for in full. A, B, C and D were prosecuted under S. 420 for cheating.

Held, that although the scheme was highly speculative, it could not be said that the scheme itself was dishonest or fraudulent in the sense that it either represented to the public something which was not true or concealed from them something which the company ought to have disclosed. A.I.R. 1934 Bom. 48=35 Bom. L.R. 1181=35 Cr. L.J. 644=148 Ind. Cas. 271.

21. Miscellaneous.

—S. 420—Conviction of mercantile agent.

In the case of a person having authority to sell goods owned by another, once it is proved that he has the consent of the owner to sell, it is immaterial to the third party to whom he pledges the goods whether he has obtained the consent by fraud or not. He is a mercantile agent, and the pledge under S. 178, Contract Act, is valid and the pledgee's right to hold the goods pledged is secure even if the mercantile agent is convicted for cheating under S. 420, I.P.C. —S. 420—Damage not suffered—Conviction.

Where the accused were charged under S. 420 for having induced the office of the Inspector-General of Police to transfer a lorry to their names from the name of another person A by producing a doubtful receipt from the latter.

Held, that the fact that it was admitted that the receipt was signed by A was sufficient authority for them to transfer the lorry in the accused's name, that the Inspector-General and his subordinates were not incurring any legal liability by the transfer nor did they suffer any damage in body, mind, reputation or property and consequently, the accused were not liable to conviction. A.I.R. 1934 Pesh. 5=35 Cr. L.J. 872=148 Ind. Cas. 960.

Held, that, assuming that the minor offence under S. 64 of the Post Office Act was proved, it was not illegal to convict the accused for the major offence only. 125 Ind. Cas. 770=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 622=9 Pat. 126=11 Pat. L.T. 224=31 Cr. L.J. 934.

—S. 420—Getting money without inducement—Temporary service during leave—Discharge on getting a month's pay in lieu of notice—Rejoining permanent work and getting pay—No inducement and no offence.

The applicant Sarada Saran was a temporary clerk at Lucknow, and took leave from the 23rd January 1923, till the 31st of January of that year. While he was on casual leave he went to Cawnpore, and was appointed a permanent head clerk of the Cawnpore, Cantonments by a temporary Cantonment Magistrate. He applied to the Lucknow authorities for an extension of his leave but originally his leave was not granted. His casual leave expired on the 31st January, 1923. On the 2nd of February, 1923, he had been informed that he was ineligible under the rules for a permanent appointment. Captain Pocock told the accused that he could not consider his retention in the Cantonment Magistrate's office, whereon the accused informed him that he had resigned his post in the Military Accounts Department, and that it would entail considerable loss to him if he did not retain him. He even offered to accept the position of an apprentice clerk. Captain Pocock could not retain him in his office, and so he paid him a month's pay in lieu of notice amounting to Rs. 145. The accused took the pay in lieu of notice and went back to Lucknow. He then got his leave extended and rejoined on the 5th of February. He again drew his pay at Lucknow, where the accused made it clear that he had already drawn his pay for the month at Cawnpore and he would have to refund one of the two sums.

Held, that it is very difficult to say that the accused induced Captain Pocock to pay him Rs. 145. 33 Ind. Cas. 997=21 A.L.J. 873=5 L.R.A. Cr. 30=26 Cr. L.J. 213=A.I.R. 1924 All. 209.

The complainant was taken to another village on the pretence that a buffalo would be bought for him and the money necessary for this purpose would be advanced to him. He was then given a large amount of liquor to drink and when in the state of intoxication a document purporting to be a bond was executed and his signature was obtained. This document was a deed of divorce of his wife who was then taken away by some of the petitioners.

Held, that the offence charged did not fall within the purview of S. 417 but of S. 420. 67 Ind. Cas. 588=3 L.L.J. 283=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 63.

—S. 421—Applicability.

The complainant complained to the Magistrate that he had filed a suit in the Civil Court against A with respect to his land, that he had filed an application in the suit for attachment of the standing crops on the land and for distraint of A's cattle, and that B, joining with A, had removed the harvested crops and the cattle to his own field and claimed them as his with the object of preventing the Receiver from taking possession of this property. The Magistrate came to the conclusion that an offence punishable under S. 421, Penal Code, had been made out against A but not against B. It was argued for the complainant that it was open to a person in filing a complaint to ignore a part of the offence and to file his complaint with regard to the remainder and that therefore, the Magistrate's conclusion that the offence fell within S. 421 was correct.

Held, that the allegations in the complaint and in the sworn statement which were the only material on which the Magistrate had to act, implicated B equally with A.

Held, also that the offence fell under S. 206 and not under S. 421 and hence the Magistrate had no jurisdiction to entertain the complaint. It was not open to the Magistrate to ignore the essential ingredients of the complaint and treat the offence as one under S. 421. It cannot be held without further proof that a shop-keeper who has stocked his shop with goods obtained on credit and who sells these goods without making any payment to his creditors has committed an offence punishable under S. 421. In selling these goods, which are his own, in spite of the fact that he has not yet paid for them, he is not causing wrongful gain to himself; neither is he causing wrongful loss to anybody, because unless the creditors have obtained some legal right over the property, he is not, by his action, depriving them of any right of theirs. —S. 421—Scope—Inconsistency with Special Act—Magistrate's jurisdiction to try the offence—Presidency Towns Insolvency Act (III of 1909), Ss. 17 and 103—Suit or other proceeding—Rule of construction.

The Magistrate's jurisdiction to try an adjudged insolvent under S. 421 of the Penal Code was not taken away by S. 103 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act (III of 1909). The general expression 'or other legal proceeding' in S. 17 of the Act (III of 1909), coming after 'suit' a word of more limited application, must be construed on the principle of ejusdem generis and hence it could not be intended to include criminal proceedings. S. 421 of the Indian Penal Code and S. 103 of the Insolvency Act distinguished. 35 Bom. 63=12 Bom. L.R. 750=11 Cr. L.J. 548=7 Ind. Cas. 963.

—S. 422—Fraudulent transfer.

A transfer of the equity of redemption by the mortgagor to a third person does not constitute an offence under S. 422 of the Code. 14 Cr. L.J. 141=18 Ind. Cas. 893.

—Ss. 422, 511—Dishonest or fraudulent prevention of debt being made available for creditors—Application to draw money from Court—Security ample—Fraudulent or dishonest intention.

An attempt by the mortgagor to put an end to an agreement with the mortgagee as to the management of the estate and to recover money which under the agreement is recoverable by the mortgagee is not an offence under Ss. 422 and 511, where the security for the debt was ample and the intention of the mortgagor was to put an end to the management and not to prevent payment of the mortgage debt. 22 W.R. 46, foll. (1900) 5 C.W.N. 174=28 G. 314.

—S. 423—Executing document with false recital.

Where the judgment-debtors executed a document with a false recital as to the consent of the decree-holder to take their land and this was found to have been done fraudulently with the intention of supporting at a later stage a cause of satisfaction of the money-decree which the decree-holder had obtained against them.

Held, that this was enough to bring the act of the judgment-debtors within the mischief of S. 423. A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 495=34 Cr. L.J. 346=144 Ind. Cas. 791.

—S. 423—"Consideration" whether includes property itself.

The word 'consideration' in S. 423, does not mean, the property transferred. Therefore an assertion that the whole land belonged to the transferor is not a statement relating to the consideration for the transfer and is not an offence under the section, even though such statement is untrue. Every false statement in a deed of sale is not punishable. It must be a statement relating to consideration or to the person benefited thereby and consideration should not be confused with value or with the property. 37 Mad. 47=10 M.L.T. 383=(1911) 2 M.W.N. 413=12 Cr. L.J. 547=12 Ind. Cas. 523.

—S. 423—Offence under—Fabricating false document to support claim of marriage in judicial proceedings—Intention to injure the woman and her husband—Nature of offence.

An accused had unsuccessfully tried to marry a woman. Thereafter he got registered a document containing a false recital that he had married her and purported to transfer certain land to her in lieu of her dower.

Held, that he was acting in furtherance of his desire to secure the person of the woman and this, in the circumstances, he could only do by judicial proceedings. Therefore, his intention was to use this document and the false statements therein in judicial proceedings and thereby mislead the Judge. So accused was guilty under S. 193, I.P.C.

The words "fraud", "fraudulently" and "to defraud" do not connote deprivation of property and the deception of the person so deprived. Deprivation of property, actual or intended, is not an essential ingredient in fraud or the intention to defraud, and it is not essential that the person deceived or to be deceived and the person injured or intended to be injured should be one and the same.

In the present case in addition to an intention to deceive and mislead, the further intention to cause injury to the woman and her true husband, and to support accused's own false claim to that status is clearly to be deduced from the facts. So the accused was guilty under S. 423, I.P.C., also. 66 Ind. Cas. 996=48 Cal. 911=23 Cr.L.J. 340=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 226.

1. Applicability and scope.

—S. 424—Applicability.

The removal referred to in S. 424 is ejusdem generis with concealment which precedes it. Section 424 is designed to meet a special class of cases and has no application to a case where property is openly seized by a person in the exercise of an alleged right. A.I.R. 1939 All. 710=1939 A.L.J. 941=1939 A.W.R. 661=41 Cr.L.J. 111=185 Ind. Cas. 151.

—S. 424—Removing crop.

Obiter.—It cannot be said that a person who removes a crop which cannot be said to be duly attached because of a failure in carrying out the provisions of R. 44, O. 21, Civil P.C., cannot be punished for an offence under S. 424, Penal Code. The question under S. 424, Penal Code, is not whether the property passed into the possession of the Court but whether the accused person removed or concealed his own property with intent to defraud or defeat his creditors or partners or others. A.I.R. 1936 All. 364=1936 A.W.R. 325=1936 A.L.J. 283=37 Cr.L.J. 675=162 Ind. Cas. 653.

—S. 424—'Dishonesty'.

A person cannot be said to do anything dishonestly within the meaning of the word as defined in the Penal Code if he has merely an intention to cause wrongful loss to some one, when he cannot or does not in fact cause any such wrongful loss. A.I.R. 1936 Sind 20=29 S.L.R. 190=37 Cr. L.J. 485=161 Ind. Cas. 553.

—S. 424—Refusal to return property.

An offence of refusing to return property is not contemplated by S. 424, A.I.R. 1933 All. 46=1933 A.L.J. 1=55 All. 119=144 Ind. Cas. 32.

2. Dishonestly or Fraudulently.

—S. 424—Applicability—Partners — Books of partnership retained by some to the exclusion of others—Prosecution—Legality.

Partners who are joint owners of the books of the partnership are entitled to retain them. There is nothing dishonest or fraudulent in some partners so retaining the books and the partners who so retain them cannot be prosecuted under S. 424, I.P. Code, at the instance of another partner. The latter can only have a right to have them produced for inspection in a suit for dissolution and accounts. I.L.R. (1948) 2 Cal. 452=52 C.W.N. 441=A.I.R. 1948 Cal. 292=49 Cr.L.J. 543.

—S. 424—Judgment-debtor knowing that his crop is attached, removing it.

Where a judgment-debtor, knowing that his crop was attached or even was going to be attached in execution of a decree, removes the crop with the object of preventing the decree-holder from obtaining his money, his action is dishonest because it is intended to cause wrongful loss to the decree-holder and he is, therefore, guilty under S. 424. A.I.R. 1938 All. 449=1938 A.L.J. 528=1938 A.W.R. 361=39 Cr.L.J. 840=176 Ind. Cas. 960.

—S. 424—Removal of property.

The case of Queen-Empress v. Obayya, (1899) 22 Mad. 151, is not an authority for holding that after attachment has been effected, dishonest removal of moveable property cannot be an offence under S. 206, Penal Code. The offences would fall either under S. 379 or 424 or 206, Penal Code for which sanction is necessary. 1933 M.W.N. 722.

—S. 424—Reaping of crop.

Reaping of crop done with the intention of defeating the landlord's claim is an offence. 1932 M.W.N. 639.

—S. 424—Removal of crop.

Where it was found that harvesting and removal of crop, done in the night, was dishonest.

Held, that conviction under S. 424, Penal Code, was right even if the accused was entitled to exclusive possession of the crop till division. 1931 M.W.N. 1049.

—S. 424—Avoiding attachment—Concealment of property by debtor—If offence.

Concealment of property by debtors or taking away of property by others to avoid its attachment if done with a dishonest intention is an offence under S. 424. 1930

Ind. Cas. 601=A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 670.

—S. 424—Accused not judgment-debtor removing crops grown by him but under attachment—Consequent suit to establish his title—Absence of intention to cause wrongful loss—Legality of conviction.

The accused who was not a judgment-debtor was convicted under S. 424 for dishonestly harvesting and appropriating crops grown by him but under attachment in execution of a decree against his uncle. Consequent upon the attachment the accused had filed a case contending that the crops in question could not be legally attached and that he was entitled to the same.

Held, that the crops could not be considered to have been removed with the intention to cause wrongful loss to the decree-holder and hence the conviction could not be sustained under S. 424. 1929 Cr. C. 280=A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 520.

3. Essentials.

—S. 424—Essentials.

One of the necessary elements of S. 424, Penal Code, is that some dishonesty or fraud should be made out against the accused. Where the judgment-debtor transfers his property to his wife by gift before attachment, and the property is attached without making the wife of the judgment-debtor party to the execution proceeding and the wife has obtained mutation, of names in her favour, she is not bound by the order rejecting the objection by the judgment-debtor that he had no interest in the property, on the ground that he having gifted away the property, had no locus standi. It is the duty of the Collector, to whom the decree is sent for execution to take action under Civil P. C., Sch. III, para. 3, and serve her with a notice calling upon her to submit a statement of her claim. In the absence of all this, if she collects the rent of the property and the tenants pay her, they cannot be prosecuted under S. 424, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1936 Oudh 195=1935 O.W.N. 879=37 Cr. L.J. 1037=164 Ind. Cas. 995.

—S. 424—Essentials for conviction—Dishonesty.

Unless dishonesty is proved, the conviction under S. 424 cannot be sustained. 59 Ind. Cas. 654=3 L.L.J. 99=22 Cr. L.J. 142=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 185.

—S. 424—Finding of dishonesty.

The essence of the offence under S. 424 is that the removal of the property must be dishonest or fraudulent. The finding as to dishonesty must be clear. 2 P.L.T. 627=A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 506.

4. Illegal Attachment.

—S. 424—Removal of property attached under defective warrant.

The person to whom the warrant of attachment is addressed must be named on the face of the warrant and it must be apparent on the face of the warrant when it can be legally executed. It is not sufficient to produce other materials to show what was the date of the warrant and to whom it was addressed.

A warrant which neither bears the name of the person who is to execute it nor bears the date on or before which it should be executed, is, therefore, illegal and the removal of property attached in execution of such warrant does not constitute an offence under S. 424. A.I.R. 1942 Pat 480=8 C.L.T. 40=43 Cr. L.J. 795=202 Ind. Cas. 123.

—S. 424—Illegal attachment of crops.

If the provisions of the law are not complied with the attachment would be illegal and the property would not pass from the judgment-debtor to the Court, and the removal of crops by the judgment-debtor will not constitute an offence under S. 424. A.I.R. 1934 All. 711=1934 A.L.J. 749=35 Cr. L.J. 1307=3 A.W.R. 682=151. Ind. Cas. 366.

—S. 424—Illegal attachment.

Where a process has a date fixed for its return under O. 21, R. 24 (3), Civil P.C., it cannot be executed after that date; and any person whose property has been attached after that date fixed for the return of the process may, when charged with criminal offence under S. 424, Penal Code, plead that his property has never been lawfully removed from his possession and that therefore, he can commit no offence by taking the property in his own use. A.I.R. 1933 All. 46=1933 A.L.J. 1=55 All. 119=144 Ind. Cas. 32.

—S. 424—Reaping attached crops.

Crops of accused attached by Civil Court—Accused aware of attachment which was invalid—Reaping of crops with intention of preventing decree-holder getting crops.

Held, he was not acting "dishonestly" within meaning of S. 424 and it was not possible in law to cause wrongful loss as crops were not validly attached. 1936 M.W.N. 492 (2).

—S. 424—Crops not validly attached.

A judgment-debtor is entitled to remove his crops which have not been validly attached; and the mere fact that he has removed the crops does not prove that he has done so dishonestly. The word "dishonestly" is used in a technical sense which is at variance with its popular significance as implying deviation from probity. Intention has got to be proved. A dishonest intention may be presumed only if an unlawful act is done or if a lawful act is done by unlawful means. A.I.R. 1936 Sind 20=29 S.L.R. 190=37 Cr. L.J. 485=161 Ind. Cas. 553.

—S. 424—Removing crop attached by Madras Village Courts—Attachment illegal—Removal if offence.

Since a village Court cannot attach crops which are not moveables within the meaning of S. 52 by virtue of Madras General Clauses Act and S. 22, I.P.C., there is no fraud in removing such crops so as to sustain a conviction under S. 424, I.P.C. 1930 M.W.N. 352=31 M.L.W. 719=3 M. Cr. C. 143=A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 509=58 M.L.J. 509.

—S. 424—Attachment not legal—Removal if offence.

Where mode has not been followed, there is no legal attachment and conviction for dishonest removal of property attached is bad. 117 Ind. Cas. 243=30 Cr. L.J. 748=A.I.R. 1928 Rang. 285.

5. Procedure.

—S. 424—Property under attachment—Removal of property under attachment by third person claiming title to it—Determination of title by Court.

The crucial question for determination under S. 424 is whether the alleged removal of property is dishonest or fraudulent and therefore if persons claiming title to a property under attachment in execution of a decree on another remove the same, the matter whether such property belonged to the accused or no has to be determined by criminal Court before deciding upon conviction. 124 Ind. Cas. 716=52 A. 214=A.I.R. 1930 All. 329.

—S. 424—Procedure—Complainant and opposite party joint proprietors—Removal of part of joint property—Partition suit pending—Duty of Magistrate.

If on a complaint under S. 424, I.P.C., the complainant and the opposite party are joint proprietors of the same and a partition suit with regard to their joint property is pending in the civil Court, and property with regard to which the complaint is made is a subject matter in dispute in that suit, if the decision of the Magistrate entail prejudging the order of the civil Court the Magistrate can discharge the accused persons allowing them to retain the custody of the property on deposit of the proportionate value of the complainant's share of the property or make it over to the complainant on his depositing the proportionate value of the share of the accused persons. 1929 Cr. C. 273=A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 513.

6. Miscellaneous.*—424—Landlord and tenant—Bona fide claim for trees.

When a bona fide claim of title is raised, the accused is entitled to acquittal but whether the claim is raised bona fide or not is a question of fact and has to be determined in the circumstances of each case. The finding as to 'dishonest' or 'fraudulent' removal can be implied from the judgment read as a whole though those words are not used. 1 Pat. L.T. 318=21 Cr. L.J. 609=57 Ind. Cas. 273.

—S. 424—Carrying away produce.

Tenants under Bhaoli Danabandi system carrying away the outturn of lands, commit an offence under S. 424 if the landlord has no reasonable time to appraise it. 1 Pat. L.W. 691=18 Cr. L.J. 687=40 Ind. Cas. 335.

—S. 424—Landlord and tenant—Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, S. 71 (4).

S. 71 (4) of the B.T. Act provides the courts with a definite rule as to the value of crops which have been wrongly removed by the tenant. If the tenant acts dishonestly he is also liable under S. 424, I.P.C. 1 Pat. L.J. 353=(1917) P.H.C.C. 71=17 Cr. L.J. 315=3 Pat. L.W. 43=35 Ind. Cas. 491.

—S. 424—Dishonest removal to avoid distraint for arrears of rent—Onus on prosecution to prove legality of distraint.

Where a distraint is made for arrears of rent, there is no presumption that it is legally made; and if persons are charged with having dishonestly removed property to avoid, if there is no evidence of the legality of the distraint, the conviction is illegal, as they had a right of private defence of their property unless the distraint was legal. S. 425, I. P. Code, which defines the offence of mischief contemplates some direct act on the part of the mischief doer either personally or through some one else, which leads to any of the results mentioned in the section. Where materials are stored in an open space but owing to abnormal rains there is an accumulation of water and there is damage to a neighbour's wall, it cannot be said that an offence under S. 427 is committed. 1950 A.W.R. 346=51 Cr. —S. 425—Scope.

Every act appearing to fall under definition of mischief is not criminal.

2. Bona fide claim.*—Ss. 426 and 427—Applicability—Wrongful loss or damage—Intention to cause—Intention to commit offence or intimidate, insult or annoy—Entry on land in exercise of bona fide claim of right to graze cattle—Offence.

Certain fallow land was let out by the owner (Zamindar) to the complainant who in turn let it out again to B, who sought to bring the land under cultivation and erected ails upon the same. The accused, villagers, who had been using the land for grazing their cattle for over 50 years, went to the plot at about 7 or 9 in the night and cut the ails. They were prosecuted and convicted under Ss. 143, 426 and 427, I. P. Code; their plea of bona fide claim of right not being accepted by the Court which held that there could be no question of a bona fide claim of right as no right existed. It was found on the evidence and admitted by the prosecution that the accused had been using this land for grazing cattle and that this right of pasturage had been exercised for over fifty years.

Held : (1) that the question of bona fide claim of right arose only when no right existed; and if the right existed the question of bona fide claim of right would not arise;

(2) that it having been found that the accused acted in the exercise of a bona fide claim of right, they could not be guilty of the offence of causing wrongful loss or damage, etc.; and they could not have the common object of causing such wrongful loss or damage, which would amount to mischief under S. 425, I. P. Code or S. 143;

(3) that as there was no intention on the part of the accused to commit an offence or to intimidate or insult or annoy, they could not also be convicted of criminal trespass under S. 447, I. P. Code. 3 A.I.Cr. D. 204 = A.I.R. 1949 Cal. 237 = 50 Cr. L. J. 463.

—Ss. 425 and 426—Removing projection of adjoining house believing it to be a trespass.

Where a person removes by reasonable means a projection erected by the owner of an adjoining house, honestly believing that the projection is a trespass, the person must be deemed to have acted bona fide in the exercise of what he believed to be his rights and cannot, therefore, be guilty of an offence of mischief. A tenant cutting trees standing on his holding under a bona fide claim of right is not guilty under S. 426 and it is immaterial that the motive in cutting trees was mala fide. 5 Pat. L. W. 114 = 19 Cr. L.J. 729 = 46 Ind. Cas. 409.

—S. 425—Bona fide belief as to title.

A person acting under a bona fide belief of title to land, possession of which was given to his wife by the Court under an auction purchase, commits no offence under S. 426, I.P.C., if no deterioration to the crop which was grown by the complainant is caused in the act of the accused in cutting and removing ripe paddy from the field. 2 Pat. L.W. 49 = 18 Cr. L.J. 750 = 40 Ind. Cas. 750.

—S. 426—Mischief—Bona fide claim of right—Conviction bad. (1903) 7 C.W.N. 859.

3. Easement or customary rights.

—Ss. 425 and 426—Mischief—Interference with right of way.

It is clear from the provisions of S. 425, I. P. Code, that if the property is changed in such a way as to diminish its utility, the person who effects the change commits mischief. The explanation makes it clear that the utility affected need not be to its owner. Hence where a right of way allowed to the complainant over the accused's plots is interfered with by the latter digging a ditch, which makes the passage of carts impossible, the accused is guilty under S. 426, I. P. Code. 1947 O.A. (C.C.) 128 = 1947 A. Cr. C. 158 = 1937 A.W.R. (C.C.) 128 = 1947 O.W.N. 481 = 49 Cr.L.J. 114 = A.I.R. 1948 Oudh 97.

—S. 425—Customary right.

Tenants of a village in District Hajaribagh cut down Sakhua saplings from Rakhawat jungles and claimed that they had customary right.

Held, that the customary right was with regard to the fuel and would for building purposes and not for wood from the reserved forests. (1938) 19 P.L.T. 656.

—S. 425—Mischief—What does not amount to.

Property under S. 425 means tangible property capable of being forcibly destroyed but does not include an easement.

If the owner of land over which other people have a right of passage throws earth upon that land so that the use of the land by the others becomes disadvantageous or impossible, that does not amount to mischief for the reason that what is affected is not any property or its value but only a right of easement. 1930 M.W.N. 909 = 129 Ind. Cas. 77 = A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 973.

—S. 426—Easement—Injunction to remove obstruction to right of way obtained by accused—Injunction not complied with—Accused removing obstruction—Mischief.

Where the accused obtained an injunction from the Mamlatdar's Court restraining the complainants from obstructing the way of accused by dams and the complainant did not remove the dams which were obstructing his way, he had the dams removed himself.

Held, that he was not justified in taking the law in his own hands and removing the dams, thereby causing damage to the complainants and that the loss caused to the complainants was caused by unlawful means in abetting the nuisance contrary to the provisions of S. 36 of the Easements Act. 101 Ind. Cas. 604 = 51 Bom. 487 = 29 Bom. L. R. 484 = 28 Cr. L.J. 476 = 8 A.I.Cr.R. 72 = A.I.R. 1927 Bom. 363.

—S. 425—Easement—Right to support—No acquisition by prescription—Removal, if offence.

It is not unlawful and therefore not an offence to remove lateral support and cause damage unless the right to support has been acquired by prescription for 20 years. 68 Ind. Cas. 831 = 14 M.L.W. 728 = A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 322.

4. Essentials.

—S. 425—Mens rea is essential.

What is compendiously referred to as mens rea is one of the essential ingredients of the offence of mischief and if the accused honestly believed in good faith that he had the right to do what he did even if he did not in law have that right, he cannot be said to have had the necessary intention or knowledge that he was likely to cause wrongful loss or damage. In fact, in the absence of any intention or knowledge of this kind, a conviction for mischief cannot be had. A.I.R. 1939

Mad. 400=(1939)-1 M.L.J. 321=49 L.W. 332=1939 M.W.N. 315=40 Cr. L.J. 656=182 Ind. Cas. 327.

—S. 425—Essentials.

To constitute mischief within the meaning of S. 425, Penal Code, it is necessary not only that wrongful loss or damage to the public or to any person be intended or be likely but also that any property should either be destroyed or any such change should occur in any property or in the situation thereof as destroys or diminishes its value or utility or affects it injuriously. A.I.R. 1939 Oudh 38=1938 A.W.R. 126=1938 O.W.N. 1127=40 Cr. L.J. 138=178 Ind. Cas. 665.

—S. 425—Essentials.

Intention to cause wrongful loss or damage is an essential for the offence of mischief. 8 Rang. 13=125 Ind. Cas. 271=A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 158.

—S. 425—Wrongful loss to the public or any person.

If the auction-purchaser destroys the property which he purchased, he does not cause any mischief under Section 425, Penal Code. The principal ingredient of the offence under the section is that there must be an intention to cause wrongful loss or damage to the public or to any person. 66 Ind. Cas. 817=3 Pat. L.T. 335=23 Cr. L.J. 321=A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 197.

—S. 425—Mischief—Intention to cause wrongful loss—A finding that loss was caused.

To sustain a conviction under S. 426, Penal Code, it must be found that the accused had intention to cause wrongful loss or knowledge that he would cause such loss. Mere finding that wrongful loss was caused is not enough. 56 Ind. Cas. 434 (Mad.)=21 Cr. L.J. 450.

5. Injurious affected.

—S. 425—Offence under—Landlord agreeing with tenant to pump water from reservoir—Omission to pump.

Where a landlord who had agreed with the tenants of his flats to pump water from a reservoir in which water supplied by the corporation was collected and for that purpose levied a separate charge stopped pumping water.

Held, that the facts did not amount to the offence of mischief as defined in S. 425, I. P. Code. It might be that the landlord would be liable for damages on account of a breach of the agreement to pump the water from the central reservoir, but the omission could not be said to constitute "any such change in any property or in the situation thereof as destroys or diminishes its value or utility or affects it injuriously." It was just possible that if the supply of water to the flats was a part of the tenancy and if the landlord interfered in any way with the supply which was an integral part of the tenancy, the matter might be different. I.L.R. (1948) 1 Cal. 329=51 C.W.N. 751=49 Cr. L.J. 314=A.I.R. 1948 Cal. 197=83 C.L.J. 177.

—S. 425—Persons driving the cattle to pound are not guilty of mischief under S. 425 because getting cattle put into pound is not causing such change in property as would diminish its utility. A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 280=1943 A.W.R. 49=44 Cr. L.J. 640=1943 O.W.N. 202=207 Ind. Cas. 374.

—S. 426—Conviction under.

It was alleged that the accused, along with several others, had trespassed into the graveyard belonging to the complainants and after entering into it, demolished and damaged a portion of the southern boundary wall and two graves. The Magistrate framed a charge against the accused under S. 426 that the accused "broke the wall and damaged two graves of the Moslem kabristan at Hali". The Magistrate came to the conclusion that there was no graveyard near about the place where the boundary wall was said to have been cut or the also plants uprooted and no grave was touched.

12 F. Y. D—33.

Held, that on the finding arrived at by the Magistrate, no conviction under S. 426 could be maintained inasmuch as the kabristan could not be said to have been affected by the mischievous act of the accused. A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 150=22 P.L.T. 976=43 Cr. L.J. 537=199 Ind. Cas. 218.

—S. 426—Filling up ditch made by complainant.

Filling up of the ditch dugged by the complainant by the accused does not affect any property injuriously so as to diminish its value or utility. In such a case it cannot be said that the accused were guilty under S. 426 because they destroyed the fruits of the complainant's labour in making the ditch. A.I.R. 1939 Oudh 38=1938 A.W.R. 126=1938 O.W.N. 1127=40 Cr. L.J. 138=178 Ind. Cas. 665.

—S. 425.—One of several co-sharers in constructive possession of joint land, digging part of it and appropriating it for his exclusive use.

Held, that the digging amounted to mischief as the removal of earth would diminish the value or utility of the land and affect it injuriously within the meaning of S. 425. A.I.R. 1934 All. 829 (2)=35 Cr. L.J. 730=4 A.W.R. 271=1934 A.L.J. 689=148 Ind. Cas. 649.

—S. 426—Change in property—Diminishing value or utility—If sufficient.

Mere omission to give light to the house by failing to switch on the light does not involve change in the property, even though it may diminish its value or utility, and therefore does not constitute the offence of mischief. 105 Ind. Cas. 672=22 S.L.R. 393=9 A.I.Cr. R. 158=28 Cr.L.J. 960=A.I.R. 1928 Sind 49.

6. Intention and knowledge.

—S. 427—Judgment-debtors demolishing vats before confirmation of sale.

Mortgagee decree-holder purchased the mortgaged property, consisting of land and buildings containing vats for manufacturing indigo, in execution. Before the confirmation of the sale, the mortgagors demolished the building and removed the vats and materials. They were acquitted of an offence under S. 427, I.P.C. The Magistrate thought that as manufacture of indigo had been discontinued for some years and the vats had been standing idle, it was not an offence of mischief to destroy them. He was also influenced by the fact that the sale had not yet been confirmed and become final.

Held, that the sale proclamation showed that along with the land and the bungalow, the outhouses and vats were also sold, and it was not clear how anyone could imagine that the vats were not property and that demolition and removal of the vats was not destruction of the property within S. 427. It made no difference, therefore, that the sale had not been confirmed and indeed it would have made no difference to the legal position if the sale had not yet taken place. A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 646=4 B.R. 117=39 Cr. L.J. 78=172 Ind. Cas. 175.

—S. 427—Building in accused's plot—Rain water retained in complainant's land and damage done to his building.

Where as a result of the accused constructing a building, rain water was retained in the complainant's plot and after some months the construction in connection with a temple in the complainant's plot cracked and there was no right of easement.

Held, that the accused had no intent to cause or knowledge that he was likely to cause wrongful loss to the complainant that he used his land for a certain purpose to which it could be validly put and his action did not come within the provisions of S. 427. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 199 (2)=35 Cr.L.J. 430 (2)=147 Ind. Cas. 538.

—Ss. 426, 425—Cutting away branches of tree overhanging his house.

Where a person damaged the tree of the District Board knowing that he was likely to cause wrongful loss or damage to the District Board and not only having no right whatever to cut the branches but being quite well aware of the fact, both in respect of the branches which did not overhang his house and also in respect of those under which he had introduced his house on land not in his possession and he took the risk on the offchance of getting away with it and getting rid of the inconvenient tree.

Held, that the offence of mischief was committed as a person who causes destruction of property knowing that he is likely to cause wrongful loss or damage to the public or any person commits mischief even if intention to cause that damage is not made out. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 221=15 P.L.T. 107=35 Cr.L.J. 1304=150 Ind. Cas. 1033.

—S. 426—Offence under—Branches of complainant's trees cut at accused's instance—Accused knowing that such cutting would cause wrongful loss to complainants—Mischief.

Where the branches of complainant's trees were cut at the instance of the accused with the knowledge that the cutting of branches was likely to cause wrongful loss or damage to the complainant, the offence of mischief is complete. 8 L.R.A. (Cr.) 103=8 A. I. Cr. R. 60=A.I.R. 1927 All. 610.

—S. 426—Presumption of intention.

Where a person cut his own tree and allowed it to fall on another's tree to protect his own trees in spite of his being told not to do so by such another.

Held, that he must be presumed to have intended to cause damage to such tree. 98 Ind. Cas. 181=27 Cr. L.J. 1285.

—S. 427—Absence of intention—Charge under S. 427—If sustainable.

Where a Magistrate came to the conclusion that no charge could be framed under S. 379, there being no intention of causing wrongful gain to one person or wrongful loss to another person.

Held, that a charge under S. 427 cannot be sustained. 86 Ind. Cas. 284=23 A.L.J. 21=6 L.R.A. (Cr.) 60=26 Cr.L.J. 748=A.I.R. 1925 All. 311.

—S. 426—Intention—Absence of complainant at the time of the act—Intention to annoy—Inference if justifiable.

Although there is no presumption that a person intends what is merely a possible result of his action or a result which though reasonably certain is not known to him to be so, still it must be presumed that when a man voluntarily does an act knowing at the time that in the natural course of events a certain result will follow he intends to bring about that result.

But where complainant was absent when the act was done.

Held, there was not such practical certainty the annoyance being caused at its result as is sufficient to justify an inference of intent to annoy.

Where there was bona fide claim of right by the accused to the wall in dispute and the accused had entered the complainant's house and pulled down the addition in his absence.

—S. 427—Cattle Trespass Act (1891), S. 26, offence under.

A person allowing his cattle, habitually and intentionally to graze on the crops of others is guilty under Penal Code, S. 427, for mischief and Cattle Trespass Act, S. 26. 21 Bom. L.R. 247=20 Cr.L.J. 387=50 Ind. Cas. 995.

—S. 425, Expl.—Throwing heavy stone at a cow.

After driving a cow which had strayed into his master's field, the accused threw heavy stones at her, and fractured her leg. The accused committed the offence of mischief under S. 425, intention to cause the injury is not necessary; it is sufficient if the person knew that he was likely to cause loss or damage to any person. 12 N.L.R. 188=18 Cr.L.J. 286=38 Ind. Cas. 318.

—S. 425—Ploughing bona fide on widowed daughter's husband's land—Criminal intent presumed but not based on evidence.

The father of a widowed daughter ploughed on land belonging to her husband and was prosecuted by the deceased's brother and convicted on the presumption of criminal intent.

Held, that the conviction was bad in absence of evidence that the entry on the land was with intent to commit an offence or to intimidate, insult or annoy any person. 8 M.L.T. 246=11 Cr. L. J. 623=8 Ind. Cas. 318.

—S. 425—Offence under—Damaging one's own property.

An accused, who knows that serious mental annoyance must be caused to the complainant in breaking open his own house, is presumed to intend the inevitable consequences of his act. 9 Cr. L.R. 196.

—S. 426—Grazing cattle in a forest under re-settlement—Intention.

A person grazing cattle in a Government forest land which is under re-settlement cannot be convicted of an offence under S. 426 in the absence of intention to cause wrongful loss or damage. (1906) 8 Bom. L.R. 549=4 Cr. L.J. 93.

—S. 426—Fishery—Draining off water from a river to the detriment of the fishing rights therein.

D as lessee of Government, held rights of fishery in a particular stretch of river. C, by diverting the water of that river, converted the bed of the river for a considerable distance into dry land, or land with a very shallow covering of water upon it, and by so doing he was enabled to destroy, and did destroy, very large quantities of fish, both mature and immature.

Held, that when C, deliberately changed the course and condition of the river in the manner described to the detriment of D, he was guilty of the offence of mischief mentioned in S. 426. 2 A. L. J. 826=1905 A.W.N. 255=28 A. 204.

—Ss. 425, 430—Mischief by injury to works of irrigation—Wrongful loss or damage—Intention—Act done to save one's own property.

Where the accused cut a dam erected by the complainant with a view to save the accused's own crops and not to take a supply of water, and it was not proved that the act of the accused caused a diminution of the supply of water for agricultural purposes or that the accused knew that it was likely to cause such diminution in future.

Held, that the accused could not be convicted of an offence under S. 430. (1904) 8 C.W.N. 370.

7. Interpretation.

—S. 425—The property in S. 425 means tangible property capable of being forcibly destroyed and does not include a right like an easement, etc. A.I.R. 1939 Oudh 38=1938 A.W.R. 126=1938 O.W.N. 1127=40 Cr.L.J. 138=178 Ind. Cas. 655.

—Ss. 426, 425—Accused installing oil-engine on his own property—Damage to another's property caused by working—Liability.

The expression 'wrongful loss or damage' in S. 425, Indian Penal Code, must mean loss or damage by unlawful means. There is nothing unlawful in the accused installing an oil-engine in his own property and working it in any way he chooses, although if his working causes damage to a neighbour's property, the accused would be liable to a civil suit for damages. The damage cannot be said to be caused by unlawful means, the working of the engine on the accused's own property being a lawful act and the accused is not liable to be convicted for mischief. A.I.R. 1935 Bom. 164=37 Bom. L.R. 96=59 B. 177=36 Cr. L.J. 940=156 Ind. Cas. 459.

—S. 425 — Interpretation — 'Destruction' — Change, graziers allowing goats to graze—If mischief.

The expressions "destruction of any property, such change in any property or in the situation thereof as destroys or diminishes its value or utility, or affects it injuriously," contained in S. 425, carry the implication that something should be done to the property contrary to its natural use and serviceableness.

Where graziers, by allowing their goats to graze, did no more than put the grass to its normal use, their act would not amount to mischief. 114 Ind. Cas. 559=52 Mad. 151=28 M.L.W. 759=1 M. Cr. C. 264=30 Cr.L.J. 315=A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 5=55 M.L.J. 767.

—S. 426—Meaning.

8. Jurisdiction.

—S. 427—Jurisdiction—Intentional — Exaggeration of damage for purposes of jurisdiction—Effect.

The jurisdiction of the Court to hear a case depends on the allegations with which its help is sought. It may be that after a trial, it is found that the case has been materially exaggerated; but unless it has been found at the very outset that the allegations are exaggerated with the intention of seeking a particular Court for redress, the statement of the complainant has to be accepted for the purposes of jurisdiction.

Where the complainant in a case of mischief, alleged the damage to be Rs. 250 and a third class Magistrate tried the offence and found the damage to be Rs. 140 and awarded Rs. 40 as compensation to the complainant.

Held, that the trial class Magistrate had no jurisdiction to try the offence. 85 Ind. Cas. 730=26 Cr. L.J. 586=47 All. 64=6 L.R.A. Cr. (1) 39=A.I.R. 1925 All. 290.

—S. 426—Absence of Intention—Intention to annoy absent—No offence.

Where the stoppage or the removal of the water course did not injure complainant in any way, nor criminal intention to annoy him or to harm him was shown by the evidence on the record.

Held: this was not a fit case for the prosecution on the criminal side, whatever may have been the rights and duties of the parties on the civil side with regard to the water course in question. 77 Ind. Cas. 989=4 Lah. L.J. 482=53 P.L.R. 1922=25 Cr. L.J. 525=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 92.

—S. 426—Questions of civil nature—Jurisdiction of Criminal Court.

One H was fined Rs. 10 under S. 426 for having removed some earth from two plots of land, which were in the possession of the zamindar of the village without his consent. The defence was that the accused was only following the custom of the village and taking earth as everybody also did when they wanted it.

Held, that the Criminal Courts are not meant to decide such questions which are really of a civil nature between a landlord and his tenants. 73 Ind. Cas. 805=24 Cr. L.J. 693=A.I.R. 1923 All. 544.

—S. 426—Deterioration—Proof that it was caused by accused—Necessity.

In order to give jurisdiction to the Magistrate to summon the accused under S. 426, it is essential for complainant to make out a prima facie case in his petition or in his statement on oath of any deterioration having been caused by the accused in the value or utility of the fruits, and unless such a deterioration was made out, there is no offence disclosed under S. 426 for causing mischief.

A bona fide dispute with regard to the right in and possession of the contending parties ousts the jurisdiction of the Magistrate altogether from taking cognizance of a charge of mischief. 68 Ind. Cas. 40=2 P.L.T. 394=23 Cr. L.J. 504.

—S. 425—Mischief—Tenure holder cutting off the tree—Bona fide dispute—No offence— B.P. Act, S. 28.

A person having the status of a tenant in the nature of a tenure holder is entitled to cut a tree standing on his land, and the onus of proving that he was precluded by custom from cutting trees was upon the landlord. If the tree was planted by the accused, he had every right to cut it. In the absence of proof that the utility or value of the trees was diminished by reason of the branch having been cut, a conviction under S. 426 could not be sustained. There having been bona fide dispute between the parties as to the right to the trees, the Criminal Court ought not to have taken cognizance of the case. Where parties are trying to assert their right over the trees in the village and to drive the opposite party to the Civil Court, the Criminal Court should be careful in giving any advantage to any of the parties over his adversary. 4 Pat. L.W. 291=19 Cr. L.J. 339=44 Ind. Cas. 451.

9. Negligent Acts.

—S. 425—Negligent construction.

Where the Committee of a Notified Area negligently constructs a drain in front of a person's house, the act of the Committee does not fall within the definition of mischief as contained in the Indian Penal Code. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 363 (1)=34 P.L.R. 583=143 Ind. Cas. 494.

—S. 425—Employer's liability for employee's negligence.

The employer is not criminally liable for the damage caused to his neighbour as a result of a contractor's negligence in omitting to prop the neighbour's wall. 17 A.L.J. 343=20 Cr. L.J. 299=50 Ind. Cas. 347.

—S. 427—Mischief—Act done negligently.

Where the accused is only guilty of negligence, he is not liable to be convicted of mischief, for that offence imports that the Act was done wilfully. 9 B. 173, Foll. 5 S.L.R. 263=13 Cr. L.J. 536=15 Ind. Cas. 808.

—S. 426—Spread of fire—Criminal Procedure Code, S. 439 (5)—High Court Reference—Revision—Powers.

The accused set fire to a heap of rubbish in his field which was close to a protected forest. The wind carried the flames to the forest and destroyed a part of it:—Held, (by Russel, Ag. C. J. and Heaton, J.—Aston, J. dissenting) that on these facts the accused could not be convicted of the offence of mischief punishable under S. 426 for the facts did not at the outset show more than mere neglect or carelessness on the part of the accused to keep the fire from straying into the Government forest. (1956) 8 Bom. L.R. 851=4 Cr. L.J. 446.

10. Own property—Damage to.

—S. 426—Ownership—Property believed to be one's own—Removal of obstruction—No mischief.

No offence under S. 426, I.P. Code, is committed when a person only removes an obstruction from a well which he believes to be his own, by removing a few bricks from the wall. 99 Ind. Cas. 414=28 Cr. L.J. 158=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 145.

—S. 425—Ownership—Removal of one's own property—No mischief.

A got a decree for possession of land with mesne profits and took out execution which was struck off for want of notice under Civil P. C., O. 21, R. 22. He took out a fresh execution, but before it was concluded the judgment-debtor raised a crop on the land which was taken away by servants of the decree-holder. In an action for mischief against the servants.

Held: that they were not guilty of mischief as the crop, though raised by the judgment-debtor, really belonged to the decree-holder whose right thereto had been declared by a competent Court. 93 Ind. Cas. 40=7 P.L.T. 79=27 Cr. L.J. 392=A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 244.

—S. 425—Property exclusively belonging to accused—No mischief.

No person can commit mischief in respect of property which belongs exclusively to himself. This is perfectly clear from Explanation 2 to section 425 which provides that mischief may be committed where the acts affects property belonging to the offender and another jointly. 72 Ind. Cas. 883=24 Cr. L.J. 467=A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 132.

—S. 425—Mischief—Damage to one's own property.

The accused entered into a vacant Manai, broke down a wall and rebuilt it. The wall belonged to one of the accused. There can be no unlawful assembly as the accused were there to build their own wall. Held, further, that the accused could not be convicted of mischief. 8 M.L.T. 222=11 Cr. L.J. 533=7 Ind. Cas. 855.

—S. 426—Owner of land destroying tombs on his land.

The accused was charged with having committed mischief by digging out tombs of the forefathers of the complainant standing on the accused's lands. Held, that he could not be convicted of mischief as tombs put upon land which came into the possession of others passed with the land. (1902) 4 Bom. L.R. 463.

11. Procedure.

—Ss. 427, 426—Complaint alleging offence under S. 427—If can be taken on file for offence under S. 426.

Where, there is nothing in the sworn statement of the complainant at variance with the allegations in a complaint which disclosed an offence punishable under S. 427, I.P.C., and the Magistrate was not in a position to judge the extent of the damage caused, (and the only distinction between the offence punishable under S. 426, I.P.C., and one punishable under S. 427, I.P.C., is the extent of the damage done), the complaint cannot be taken on file for an offence under S. 426, and the Magistrate has no jurisdiction to acquit the accused under S. 247, Criminal P. C., which has no application to warrant cases. A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 594=(1942) 1 M.L.J. 594=1942 M.W.N. 373=55 L.W. 372=43 Cr. L.J. 760=201 Ind. Cas. 451.

—Ss. 426, 425—Judgment.

Where the Magistrate applies his mind to the evidence and in finding that the accused had caused mischief to the complainant, he must have been satisfied that the ingredients of the offence defined in S. 425, were present, the finding is sufficient to warrant a conviction. It is not necessary in a case of this sort to embody in the judgment the precise expressions which have been used in the section which defines the offence of which the accused person is convicted. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 185=72 C.L.J. 104=44 C.W.N. 1114=I.L.R. (1941) 1 Cal. 67=42 Cr. L.J. 490=194 Ind. Cas. 38.

—Ss. 426, 352—Conviction under, if can be altered into one under S. 352, in appeal.

The accused was summoned to answer a charge under S. 426 only, and was convicted and sentenced under that section by the trial Magistrate. There was nothing to show that he was ever informed by the Magistrate that he had to defend himself against the offence of assault as well.

Held, that the alteration of the conviction into one under S. 352 in appeal, could not be maintained. A.I.R. 1936 Pat 536=17 P.L.T. 572=3 B.R. 62=37 Cr. L.J. 1156 (1)=165 Ind. Cas. 600.

—Ss. 426, 430—Complaint under S. 430—Trial for offence under S. 426—Procedure—Validity.

Where, though a complaint was one for an offence under S. 430, I.P.C., which a Bench Court had no jurisdiction to try, the case was treated as a case under S. 426, I.P.C. and sent to the Bench Court for trial and the accused was tried by the Bench Court for the lesser offence under S. 426.

Held, that the trial was not void.

Where the accused is not prejudiced, there will be no interference in revision, though the case ended in a conviction, and a fortiori, there will be no interference in the case of an acquittal. A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 494=1930 M.W.N. 770=32 Cr. L.J. 971=133 Ind. Cas. 4.

—S. 427—Security order.

No order under S. 106 can be passed upon conviction of an offence under S. 143 or S. 427, I.P.C. 99 Ind. Cas. 348=8 L.R.A. Cr. 11=28 Cr. L.J. 140=7 A.I. Cr. R. 130=A.I.R. 1927 All. 136.

—S. 427—Fresh charge on same facts—Trial and acquittal for mischief—Subsequent charge for rioting on same facts—Maintainability.

Where an accused was alleged to have gone with a number of others to a palmyra tope and it was alleged that some of the members in that assembly climbed up the trees and cut the spathes of the palmyra trees and threw down the plots attached to the spathes in which toddy was being collected and the accused was once charged with mischief under S. 427 of the Penal Code and acquitted on the ground that he was not present at the scene of occurrence.

Held, he could not subsequently be charged with rioting under S. 147 of the Penal Code on the allegation that he along with the same body of people as on the former occasion went to the tope and that some of them destroyed the spathes in pursuance of the common object, viz., of committing mischief by destroying the spathes and breaking the pots because the two transactions were so closely overlapping that it was open to the prosecution to have framed an alternative charge of mischief and rioting under S. 236. Section 403 is not a section easy of construction but the general principle underlying it is to be borne in mind, namely, that a man should not be put upon his trial twice over on the same facts as it is a great hardship for a man to stand more than one trial for any one offence. 76 Ind. Cas. 708=19 M.L.W. 31=33 M.L.T. 269=1924 M.W.N. 153=25 Cr. L.J. 244=A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 478.

12. Theft and Mischief.

—Ss. 425, 378—The element of dishonesty, that is to say, the causing of wrongful loss or wrongful gain to some person is a common element in both these offences. But it cannot be said that simply because the accused has caused wrongful loss to another person by taking away his property without his consent, the subsequent act of destruction of that property would not be an offence because the wrongful loss is already caused by taking it away from its possession. Wrongful loss to a person can be caused in a variety of ways. The nature of the loss in both cases is different and falls under the definitions of distinct offences. It is, therefore, possible to commit the offence of mischief in respect of the stolen property even though some loss has already been caused to its possessor by the offence of theft.

A person who steals a bull and subsequently kills it for food, is, therefore, guilty of both theft and mischief and a separate sentence can be passed for each offence. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 138=1938 Rang. L.R. 63=39 Cr. L.J. 607=175 Ind. Cas. 515.

—Ss. 425 and 378—When a calf is stolen and then killed, offences under Ss. 378 and 425 are committed. A.I.R. 1936 Bom. 172=38 Bom. L.R. 164=37 Cr. L.J. 553=162 Ind. Cas. 283.

—S. 426—Mischief—Theft—Separate sentence.

A person who steals a fowl and then kills it cannot be punished separately for both the offences. (1903) 5 Bom. L.R. 460.

13. Wrongful loss.

—Ss. 427 and 23—Offence under S. 427—Crops raised by a person on land not belonging to him—Cattle driven to graze on that land by accused—Loss of crop, whether wrongful loss—Accused, if guilty.

Where a person not entitled to a piece of land or to raise any crops on it, raises crops on it and the accused's cattle are alleged to have been driven into the land, and the crop thereby destroyed on the question whether an offence was committed under S. 427, I. P. Code.

Held, that in order to constitute an offence under S. 427, I. P. Code, there should have been an intention to cause "wrongful loss" as defined in S. 23, I. P. Code (i.e.) loss by unlawful means of property to which the person losing it is legally entitled. As the complainant was not legally entitled either to the land or to the crops standing on it, there was no "wrongful loss" to him and hence no offence under S. 427 was committed. 1948 M.W.N. 368 (1)=A.I.R. 1948 Mad. 473=61 L.W. 331 (1)=49 Cr. L.J. 711=(1948) 1 M.L.J. 330.

—S. 425—Wrongful cutting of trees standing on plaintiff's land by defendant amounts to mischief. A.I.R. 1942 Cal. 544=46 C.W.N. 943=202 Ind. Cas. 762.

—S. 426—Passage with kachcha drain over it serving as outlet for excess water from complainant's house—Accused having right of way over it—Drain made pucca—Accused's right of way not impaired—Accused demolishing pucca drain—If guilty.

On the west side of the complainant's plot, there was a passage on a part of which there was a kachcha drain which served as an out-let for the excess water of the complainant's house. The accused had a right of way over this passage for the purpose of reaching their huts. The complainant made the entire drain pucca and connected it with the Municipal drain. The accused's right of way to go to the huts was not in the least impaired by the construction of the pucca drain, and there was no evidence on the record to show that it was impossible for them to exercise their right of way after the drain had been constructed. The accused demolished the pucca drain.

Held, that in the circumstances, the obstruction, even assuming it to be one, did not amount to a nuisance, and did not justify the accused in removing the structure by taking the law in their own hands. They had really employed unlawful means for the purpose of causing loss to the complainant which, in law, he was not bound to suffer. The accused, therefore, could not escape conviction under S. 426, I.P.C.

—S. 426—Obstructing right of water course belonging to another.

A person obstructing a right of water course belonging to another commits an act of trespass and the loss caused to him by the persons entitled to the right when they destroy that obstruction in order to exercise their own right of water-course cannot be considered to be wrongful loss within the meaning of S. 426. A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 538=19 P.L.T. 703=40 Cr. L.J. 89=178 Ind. Cas. 502=5 B.R. 112.

—Ss. 427 and 147—Demolition of encroachment by private persons.

Where certain persons gathered and demolished a portion of the terrace and walls which another person had built, on the ground that the construction was an encroachment on a public street and they were charged with offences under Ss. 147 and 427, I.P. Code.

Held, that the accused were guilty of the offence of mischief as their common object in gathering on the scene was for the purpose of causing wrongful loss to the owner of the building and they could properly be held guilty of rioting also. A.I.R. 1934 Mad. 95=1933 M.W.N. 905=35 Cr. L.J. 437=66 M.L.J. 31=38 L.W. 996=57 Mad. 351=147 Ind. Cas. 553.

—S. 425—Offence under—Hindu god over a chabutra mosque surrounded by a wall belonging to Muhammadans—Breaking the wall for widening the doorway—Mischief.

Over the chabutra of a mosque there was an image of Hindu god, which was surrounded by a wall, the wall being the property of Muhammadans. The accused who is a Hindu widened the doorway in the south wall of the compound round the image of the idol by demolishing part of the wall on both sides of the doorway.

Held, by breaking the wall and taking out the bricks the accused caused wrongful loss to the Muhammadan public and, therefore, an offence under S. 425 was committed. 96 Ind. Cas. 210=27 Cr. L.J. 898=A.I.R. 1926 All. 704.

14. Miscellaneous.

—Ss. 426, 147, 149, 447—Complainant digging well on his land—Accused No. 1 with four others thinking without enquiry, land to be his, entering upon it and destroying well—All held guilty under Ss. 426, 147 and 447.

The complainant had dug a well in the land which belonged to him. Accused No. 1, along with four others, thinking without proper enquiry and without proper information that the land belonged to him went recklessly upon the land and damaged the well by throwing stones and earth into it. Accused No. 1 generally directed the operations, accused No. 2 helped in holding the horses, while the three other accused Nos. 3, 4 and 5 did the actual work of destroying the well.

Held, that even if accused No. 1 believed in good faith that the well was in his land and the complainant was a trespasser, he had no right whatever to damage the complainant's property in the way he did.

Section 147, I.P. Code, applied to all five accused, their common intention and purpose being to cause the offence of mischief and all of them were guilty of the offence of mischief by reason of S. 149.

Held, further that all the accused could have been held guilty of criminal trespass under S. 447. A.I.R. 1943 Sind 127=I.L.R. (1943) Kar. 7=44 Cr. L.J. 654=207 Ind. Cas. 544.

—S. 426—Grazing cattle on complainant's bund.

A person can be convicted under S. 426 for sending his cattle to graze on the bund of a tank belonging to to the complainant. A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 724 (1)=55 L.W. 695=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 545=1942 M.W.N. 756 (2)=44 Cr. L.J. 140=204 Ind. Cas. 67.

—Ss. 425, 379, 295, 144, 143—Hut on agricultural land used as a mosque without knowledge of landlord—Putting down of such hut by persons other than landlord—Charges under Ss. 295, 379, 425, 144, 143.

Held, that charges under Ss. 295 and 379 could not be sustained but offence, held, was committed under S. 425 read with Ss. 144, 143. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 492=42 Cr. L.J. 579=23 P.L.T. 81=7 B.R. 785=194 Ind. Cas. 476.

—Ss. 427, 143—Person put in possession of land and crops by Civil Court—Right to cut crops accrues to him—Conviction under Ss. 427 and 143 is illegal. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 157=37 Cr.L.J. 524 (1)=161 Ind. Cas. 974 (2).

—Ss. 427—Ownership of property—Proof by complainant—If necessary.

Possession is prima facie proof of title and for a conviction for mischief the complainant need not prove his ownership in the property in respect of which mischief is done. 25 A.L.J. 1010=8 A.I. Cr. R. 337=8 L.R.A. Cr. 135=A.I.R. 1927 All. 724.

—S. 425—Mischief—Breach in field bund—No damage to crops, etc.—Offence.

The accused fearing that the water in his tank would overflow, caused a breach in the bank of the complainant's field so as to let the surplus water on the complainant's land. There were no crops in the field and apart from the damage done to the bank, no other damage was caused to the complainant.

Held, that the accused was guilty of mischief. 20 Cr. L.J. 237=49 Ind. Cas. 161 (Pat.).

—Ss. 426 and 447—Pulling down obstruction to public road.

It is no offence for a member of the public to pull down an obstruction created by a trespasser to a public road and then to exercise his right of way, because the trespasser cannot obtain possession by a mere act of entry or by the continuance of that act, so long as this act is disputed and resisted. 39 Mad. 57=1 L.W. 911=15 Cr. L.J. 723=26 Ind. Cas. 171.

—S. 425—Mortgagee cutting trees to repair another part of the premises mortgaged—Whether mischief.

A mortgagee cutting a few trees on the mortgaged property to repair another portion thereof is not guilty of mischief. 1 L.W. 274=15 Cr. L.J. 290=23 Ind. Cas. 498.

—Ss. 425, 426—Definition—Mischief—U. P. and Oudh Municipalities Act, S. 167.

Certain cattle belonging to one M.H. upon various occasions when in charge of a servant of M.H. strayed or were driven, into the Government gardens at Saharanpur, and there caused damage.

Held that M.H. could not on these facts be convicted of the offence of mischief. 4 W. R. 31; 7 B. 126, foll.

Held also, that S. 167 of the Municipalities Act, 1900, did not apply, that section being one dealing with offences against the person. 1907 A.W.N. 170=29 A. 565.

—S. 425—Trespasser—Destruction of trespasser's property by owner found on his premises.

Where the owner of land finds a trespasser on his land using the owner's tools, the owner would commit no mischief in destroying or removing these tools, even though by doing so he might deprive the trespasser of the means of benefitting by his trespass. But the owner of the land would have no right merely because of the trespass to destroy whatever property of the trespasser he found upon the premises, and such an act of his would amount to mischief. (1904) 7 Bom. L.R. 86=2 Cr. L.J. 55.

—Ss. 426, 143—Cutting a channel across one's own land into a Jhil in possession of another—Defect in charge—Prejudice.

The accused who were servants of S. were convicted by a Magistrate under Ss. 426 and 143 for having cut a channel from a Jhil which was in the possession of B and by so doing let out water and fish from the Jhil. The Magistrate had found that the land adjoining the Jhil, across which the channel had been cut had been in the possession of S. On appeal it was contended that the accused had a perfect right to make the cutting in their master's land. Held, that though they had that right it did not follow that they had a right to extend the cutting beyond and though the bank of the Jhil which with the Jhil itself and the land underneath the water were in the possession of B and the conviction could not be set aside on that ground. 7 C.W.N. 663.

—S. 426—Cutting ripe paddy—Theft.

A person could not be convicted of the offence of mischief under S. 426, for cutting paddy which the Court found to belong to the complainant, when it was not found that the paddy was not in a fit state to be cut. (1903) 7 C.W.N. 713.

—Ss. 426, 429—Maiming—Injury to animal.

A hurt to an animal inflicted with a spear which disabled the animal for few days, but did not cause any permanent injury falls under S. 426 and not under S. 429. (1901) 3 Bom. L.R. 503.

—S. 428—Cutting ears of an ass.

Cutting the ears of the asses clean off their base so as to affect their hearing, is 'maiming of animals' within S. 428, I.P. Code. 22 M.L.T. 68=18 Cr. L.J. 620=39 Ind. Cas. 988.

—S. 429—Horse—If includes mare.

In the same way as the words elephant, camel and buffalo have been used to indicate both the male and female of the species, the word "horse" has also been used to indicate both the male and the female. Thus a mare is covered by the use of the word "horse". 23 Luck. 1=1947 O.W.N. 494=1947 A.Cr.C. 168=1947 O.A. (C.C.) 352=A.I.R. 1948 Oudh 113=49 Cr.L.J. 112=1947 A.W.R. (C.C.) 352.

—S. 429—Intention to maim animal—Inference—Keeping on striking the animal for length of time.

Even if only dandas are used to strike a mare if the striking is kept on for some time, the persons so striking the mare must be deemed to have knowledge of the possible consequence of their act and, if the dandas, striking the leg of the mare fractured the bone, it cannot be said that there was no intention to maim the animal and they would be clearly guilty of an offence under S. 429, I.P. Code. 23 Luck. 1=49 Cr. L.J. 112=A.I.R. 1948 Oudh 113=1947 O.W.N. 494=1947 A. Cr. C. 158=1947 O.A. (C.C.) 352=1947 A. W.R. (C.C.) 352.

—S. 429—"Maiming"—Meaning of.

The expression "maiming" in S. 429, I.P. Code, refers to injuries permanently affecting the use of a limb or other member of the body. I.L.R. (1946) Kar. 437=231 Ind. Cas. 107=A.I.R. 1947 Sind 66=48 Cr. L.J. 700.

—S. 429—Causing death of buffalo dedicated to deity.

The legal conception of an animal branded and let loose on the occasion of the funeral or the obsequies of a Hindu differs widely from that of a dedication to a particular deity. In the case of one it is renunciation of all proprietary right; in the case of the other, it is transfer of the proprietary right from the individual to the deity. In the latter case, the animal is not a res nullius.

Consequently, beating to death a buffalo dedicated to a diety is an offence under S. 429. A.I.R. 1945 All. 430=1945 A.W.R. (H.C.) 233=1945 O.W.N. (H.C.) 287=1946 A.L.J. 27.

—S. 429—Killing of bull.

A bull branded as bull on the occasion of the shradh of the complainant's deceased father and which used to be fed and kept at the complainant's own place does not cease to be the property of the complainant and a person killing it is guilty of the offence under S. 429. A.I.R. 1937 Pat. 406=3 B. R. 299=38 Cr. L.J. 407=18 P.L.T. 229=167 Ind. Cas. 511.

—S. 429—Skinning dead body of stolen animal.—If mischief.

Where after a thief has stolen and slaughtered an animal, another person joins him in skinning the dead body, the latter is not guilty either under S. 379 or S. 429. 84 Ind. Cas. 341=7 P.L.T. 36=3 Pat. 804=26 Cr. L.J. 277=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 34.

—S. 429—Mischief and theft—Killing stolen animal—If mischief.

Where theft of an animal has been committed, the mere killing of it afterwards by the person who stole it for the purpose of eating it himself cannot add another offence. 84 Ind. Cas. 341=3 Pat. 804=7 P.L.T. 36=26 Cr. L.J. 277=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 34.

—S. 429—'Maiming'—Half an ear cut off.

The word 'maiming' in Sec. 429 involves the deprivation of the use of some limb or member involving a permanent injury and not a mere disfigurement. Where nearly one-half of one ear of an animal is cut off without impairing its sense of hearing it is not 'maiming'. 18 Bom. L.R. 289=17 Cr. L.J. 253=34 Ind. Cas. 973.

—S. 429—Maiming—Cutting off a horse's ears whether amounts to.

Cutting off the ears of a horse is maiming, within S. 429 as it is permanent injury to one of the members of the body. 35 Mad. 594=10 M.L.T. 192=21 M.L.J. 843=(1911) 2 M.W.N. 141=12 Cr.L.J. 482=12 Ind. Cas. 90.

—S. 430.

Synopsis.

1. Civil matter.
2. Diminution of water supply.
3. Essentials and scope.
4. Intention to cause wrongful loss.
5. Interpretation.
6. Miscellaneous.

1. Civil Matter.

—S. 430—Civil matter—Jurisdiction of criminal Court.

In a complaint under S. 430 regarding cutting off of a supply of water by the accused.

Held, that the matter being pre-eminently for a civil Court, Criminal Court should not convict the accused. 98 Ind. Cas. 474=27 Cr.L.J. 1354=A.I.R. 1927 All. 112.

—S. 430—Blocking up a channel—Tort.

The accused blocked up a channel and thus caused the surplus water to flow direct on to the complainant's land damaging his crop. The site of the channel was the common property of all the accused.

Held, that the act of the accused did not constitute mischief and that the complainant should sue for damages in the Civil Court. 8 M.L.T. 385=11 Cr. L.J. 566=8 Ind. Cas. 128.

2. Diminution of water supply.

—S. 430—Act of accused need not be of wanton waste.

It is no part of the definition of the offence of causing a diminution of water supply for agricultural purposes that the act of the accused should be an act of wanton waste. It is sufficient for the purposes of S. 430 that the supply of water available for a particular person or class of persons should be diminished by the act of the accused.

Held, that the accused did commit mischief by putting a bund across the channel which resulted in diminishing the supply of water which would otherwise have been available to the complainant for agricultural purposes and that all the requirements of the offence under S. 430 were present. A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 794=49 L.W. 298=1939 M.W.N. 121=(1939) 1 M.L.J. 445=41 Cr.L.J. 88=184 Ind. Cas. 654.

—Ss. 430, 143, 144—Where the accused were charged under S. 430 for committing mischief by cutting the bandh of a river causing thereby diminution of water supply for agricultural purposes and they were also charged for being members of an unlawful assembly with the common object of cutting the bandh and the Magistrate did not convict them on the ground that no diminution in water supply was caused.

Held, that the accused were entitled to be acquitted under Ss. 143 and 144. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 505=36 Cr.L.J. 416=1 B.R. 227=153 Ind. Cas. 767.

—S. 430—Cutting open bund—Mischief—Diver'sion of water.

Accused was alleged to have cut open a bund and caused a diminution of water supply to the complainant's fields. The bund was not proved to belong to the complainant. There was evidence that the accused has been in the habit of obtaining a permit for diverting the water in previous years and he did the act anticipating the permit he had applied for.

Held, the action of the accused did not amount to mischief under Ss. 425 and 430, I.P.Code. 11 L.W. 148=(1920) M.W.N. 131=54 Ind. Cas. 617.

—S. 430—Diminishing supply of water from a canal—Canal Act (7 of 1873), S. 70—Interfering with banks of a canal.

If the act of a person has the effect of, or but for prompt intervention, would have the effect of diminishing the supply of water from a canal for agricultural purposes, the person is guilty of mischief. Mere interference with the banks of canal would render him guilty of an offence under S. 70 of the Canal Act. 41 All. 599=17 A.L.J. 686=20 Cr.L.J. 425=51 Ind. Cas. 201.

—S. 430—Mischief—Diminishing supply of water—Cutting bund.

The cutting of a bund erected on a channel whereby a person is wrongfully deprived of the use of water, is an offence under S. 430 of the Code. Neither the prevention of the water from running waste nor the intention of storing it for sale to other landowners makes the act of taking water anyhow an offence when a person legally entitled to the water is deprived of it. 16 A.L.J. 210=19 Cr.L.J. 358=44 Ind. Cas. 582.

—S. 430—Taking more water than authorised.

Taking more water than one is entitled to, against an order as to turns, and to cause diminution of supply to others is punishable under S. 430. (1911) 2 M.W.N. 349=12 Cr. L.J. 551=12 Ind. Cas. 527.

—S. 430—Act No (12 of 1870) (Canal Act), S. 70—Mischief—Definition.

Certain persons having been found to have cut through the bank of a canal distributary and irrigated their own fields therefrom, it was held, that they would be more properly convicted of an offence under S. 70 of Act No. (8 of 1870) than of an offence under S. 430 of the Indian Penal Code, in the absence of evidence that by the act done a diminution of the supply of water for agricultural purposes had been caused. 1908 A.W.N. 55=5 A.L.J. 159.

3. Essentials and scope.

—S. 430—Interference with distribution of water.

Where the Amin had opened the middle sluice of a tank to irrigate certain lands registered as wet and it was closed by the accused, unless it can be said that the opening of the middle sluice was according to custom, it cannot be said that the closing of it was with the intention of causing any wrongful loss or wrongful gain. Where the closure was animated by the object of protecting the lands of the accused themselves which had been jeopardised by the opening of the middle sluice, it can hardly be said that the act of closing the middle sluice was "mischief" as defined in the I.P.C. An act like this which is done as it were to protect their own property and in the reasonable belief that no unlawful harm or damage was going to be caused cannot be regarded as an act constituting a criminal offence. The dispute between the parties is really one of a civil nature. That fact that the Amin interfered and exercised his own authority in the matter of the distribution of water which was reasonably regarded as an interference with existing rights will not change the aspect of the case into a criminal one.

In such a case, the Courts should decide whether any unlawful or dishonest intention has been established. It is not every interference with the distribution of water that constitutes mischief under the I.P. Code. It is only interference which cannot be justified by the assertion of bona fide right that would constitute mischief. A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 306=41 Cr. L.J. 930=190 Ind. Cas. 515.

—S. 430—Essentials for conviction under.

In order to make S. 430 applicable mischief within the meaning of S. 425 must be committed by a person before he can be convicted under S. 430. Where the accused persons have not caused destruction of any property by damaging the canal or any of its banks or openings in any manner but only continued to take water from the canal even after the end of their turn, no offence under S. 430 is committed and the accused are only liable to be dealt with under the provisions of the Canal Act. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 196 (1)=38 P.L.R. 1035=38 Cr. L.J. 430=167 Ind. Cas. 560.

—Ss. 430, 425—Forcibly opening canal distributory and diverting the flow of water—Northern India Canal and Drainage Act (8 of 1873), S. 70.

In order to prove an offence under S. 430, I.P. Code, it is necessary to prove mischief as defined in S. 425 and it is also necessary to prove that the act committed is likely to cause a diminution of the supply of water for the various purposes enumerated in the section.

Where it was proved that the applicants forcibly opened the distributory, and apparently diverted the flow of the water but there was nothing to show that they permanently diminished the utility of the distributory or affected it injuriously or that they practically diminished the supply of the water.

Held, that the proper section under which they should be convicted is S. 70, Northern India Canal and Drainage Act. A.I.R. 1934 All. 687 (2)=35 Cr.L.J. 1250=150 Ind. Cas. 1048.

—S. 430—Essentials of the offence.

Where the accused cut a bandh belonging to the complainant and containing water which the complainant required for the irrigation of his fields and let out some of the water.

Held, that the act of the accused would amount to an offence under S. 430, even though there was evidence to show that if the dam had not been cut, the crops of the accused would have been destroyed.

To fall within S. 430, the act need not be an act of wanton waste. A.I.R. 1932 Pat. 224=13 P.L.T. 162=39 Cr. L.J. 313=136 Ind. Cas. 592.

—S. 430—Elements of mischief—Wrongful loss.

Offence under S. 430 is particularly a grave form of the offence of committing mischief as defined in S. 425. It is necessary to prove in such cases the elements that constitute mischief under S. 425. No doubt a person who takes water from a tank causes loss but it should be shown that whether he has caused a diminution of the supply of water for agricultural purposes. A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 289=124 Ind. Cas. 829.

—S. 430—Essentials—Intention to cause wrongful loss.

To constitute an offence punishable under S. 430 it is not sufficient to show that loss has been caused to the complainant but it is necessary to show that the loss was a wrongful loss and the accused had the intention to cause or had knowledge that their act was likely to cause loss to the complainant. 88 Ind. Cas. 188=26 Cr. L.J. 1100=21 M.L.W. 641=1925 M.W.N. 45=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 577.

—S. 430—Mischief—Guilty knowledge.

Guilty knowledge is essential to a conviction for the offence of mischief. In the absence of any consideration or discussion of the circumstances and the reasonableness or otherwise of the acts of an accused person, it is impossible to uphold a conviction for that offence. 20 Cr. L.J. 612=52 Ind. Cas. 276 (Pat.).

—S. 430—Infringement of rights of complainant.

To substantiate an offence under S. 430 of the Penal Code, the prosecution must prove that there has been unlawful and intentional interference by the accused with the admitted or proved rights of the complainant. 61 Ind. Cas. 655=22 Cr. L.J. 415=32 C.L.J. 476.

—430—Mischief—Necessary elements—Water supply.

The act of the accused must cause wrongful loss or damage to some person and he must have done it knowing it to be likely to cause damage. The damage or wrongful loss must be proved. Mere diminution of water supply for agricultural purposes is not sufficient. 11 Cr. L.J. 168=5 Ind. Cas. 560 (All.).

4. Intention to cause wrongful loss.

—430—Offence under—Intentionally obstructing a channel for supply of water.

If a supply channel is filled up or is obstructed by a dam put up or by raising a dam already existing, there is a change made in the channel which diminishes its value or utility and which, if it was done with intention to cause or with knowledge that it was likely to cause and if it does cause, wrongful loss to any person, would constitute the offence of mischief. 74 Ind. Cas. 862=1923 M.W.N. 634=24 Cr. L.J. 830=A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 176.

—430—Intention to cause wrongful loss.

Where the accused banded up a channel carrying water to the complainant's land.

Held, No offence under S. 430 is committed, unless the complainant showed that he had some right to carry water to his fields through the channel and there was an intention on the part of the accused to cause wrongful loss. 69 Ind. Cas. 95=16 M.L.W. 793=31 M.L.T. 421=1922 M.W.N. 839=23 Cr. L.J. 655=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 141=44 M.L.J. 234.

—S. 430—Intention to cause wrongful loss—Essential—Irregularity.

Under S. 430, the fact whether the accused had an intention to cause wrongful loss is the essential element to be considered. Where a Sessions Judge dismissed an appeal against a conviction under S. 430, by referring to the reasons given in the judgment in a connected case, convicting under S. 379, the Sessions Judge acted irregularly in not taking into consideration the intention requisite for an offence under S. 430. 16 Cr. L.J. 542=29 Ind. Cas. 670 (Mad.).

5. Interpretation.*—S. 430—Interpretation—‘Diminution of supply for agricultural purposes’—Meaning.

The “words” diminution of the supply of water for agricultural purposes” in S. 430 cannot be limited to those cases only where the water has been allowed either to go waste or has been diverted for non-agricultural purposes. The section read as a whole also refers to case where the water is intended for use by particular persons for particular purposes and is diverted by an accused persons for his own purposes though of a like nature. 98 Ind. Cas. 49=21 S.L.R. 107=27 Cr.L.J. 1233=A.I.R. 1927 Sind 39.

6. Miscellaneous.*—S. 430—Person cannot commit mischief against himself.

A person cannot commit mischief upon himself. Hence, where the accused on a particular day, closed the regulator of the canal and thereby rendered it dry without the permission of the P.W.D. at the instance of some of the zamindar’s and it is not shown that any zamindar other than those at whose instance the regulator was closed, had any turn of water on the day the closure was made it cannot be said that any wrongful loss or damage was caused to any person by the closure of the regulator and hence no offence of mischief can be said to have been committed. A.I.R. 1943 Sind 130=I.L.R. (1943) Kar. 3=44 Cr.L.J. 607=207 Ind. Cas. 446.

—S. 430—Sluice.

Preventing a person from opening a sluice which had been closed some days before the date of occurrence would not amount to an offence under S. 430. A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 144=1939 M.W.N. 1224 (1)=41 Cr. L. J. 558=188 Ind. Cas. 195.

—430—Throwing a bund.

To throw a bund across a supply channel is to destroy its utility and is prima facie the act of mischief. 1933 M.W.N. 427.

—S. 430—Landlord and tenant—Interference with Water—Proof of absence of right.

Before a landlord or his agent can be convicted under S. 430 on a complaint by tenants, for interfering with water supply of tenants, it is absolutely necessary to prove that there was intentional inflicting of loss and that the landlord had no such right to interfere in any way and the tenants had a right to the supply or preservation of water. 50 C.L.J. 589=34 C.W.N. 86=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 318.

—S. 430—Damage—Act done on another’s property affecting it injuriously—Proof of actual damage—Necessity.

Every person has a perfect right to do a particular act upon his own land, and if a person breaks open his bund or opens his own sluice, no one can complain of it, until some injuries consequence follows from it. As soon as such a consequence follows, the injury and not the original act, becomes a cause of action. In such a case the mischief would consist, not in breaking the bund, or in opening the sluice but in flooding or withering up the complainant’s crops.

But where the property was not of the accused but Government property (kotwah) and the mischief complained of as giving a cause of action to the Crown was the change in the kotwah which diminished its utility and affected it injuriously.

Held, it was not necessary for the Crown to rely on the injury caused to the lands of other persons who were receiving water as giving a cause of action and to prove actual damage resulting therefrom. 98 Ind. Cas. 49=21 S.L.R. 107=27 Cr.L.J. 1233=A.I.R. 1927 Sind 39.

—S. 430—Accused wrongfully damming channel and opening diverting channel.

Where the accused not only dams up a supply channel wrongfully but also opens a diverting channel, he is guilty under S. 450. [1 Mad. 262 (F.B.) and 10 Bom. 183, Foll.] 60 Ind. Cas. 670=13 M.L.W. 266=22 Cr.L.J. 270=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 536.

—S. 430—Cutting bund and storing water—No right to water.

A person taking water without any right to which another has a right and is deprived of its full supply is liable under S. 430. Such taking shows an intention to cause wrongful loss unless bona fide right exists.

Prevention of the water from being wasted or storing it in order to sell it to other land-holders does not exonerate a person when another had a right to it.

Cutting a bund on a channel wrongfully depriving a person of the use of water, is punishable under S. 430. 34 M.L.J. 206=23 M.L.T. 248=19 Cr. L. J. 356=44 Ind. Cas. 580.

—S. 430—Mischief.

Where certain persons who wanted water for sowing their fields stole it by breaking through the wall of a canal.

Held, that they were guilty of having committed mischief. 34 All. 210=9 A.L.J. 162=13 Cr.L.J. 141=13 Ind. Cas. 829.

—S. 430—Taking excess quantity of water from Government canal.

For a conviction under S. 430, I.P.C., the accused must have committed mischief as defined in S. 425. Until that is proved, the intention or knowledge of the accused need not be considered. The mere fact that he has irrigated his land from a Government canal for a period exceeding that allotted to him and he consequently prevented others from irrigating to the extent to which they were entitled on that occasion does not constitute an offence under S. 430. 11 Cr. L.J. 65=14 P.R. 1909 Cr.=25 P.L.R. 1910=34 P.W.R. 1909 Cr.=4 Ind. Cas. 863.

—S. 430—Cutting embankment and diverting running water.

Per Geidt, J. (Woodroffe, J. dubitante).—The cutting of an embankment and diverting running water useful for irrigation purposes constitute ‘mischief’ under S. 430, provided that the accused is not entitled to the water and he knew he was not entitled to use it. (1908) 12 C.W.N. 534=35 C. 437.

—S. 436—"Any building"—If covers any neighbouring building.

The words "any building" in S. 436, I.P. Code, may not necessarily refer to the building primarily destroyed by the accused. They may cover any other building close by in regard to which there might have been an intention in the mind of the accused to destroy the same. But apart from any question of intention, if the accused knew that he was likely, by his act, to destroy any neighbouring houses, an offence under the section would be complete. A.I.R. 1949 All. 620 = 50 Cr.L.J. 944 = 1949 A.W.R. 555.

—S. 436—Setting fire.

Accused with kerosene oil setting fire to furniture in a room at railway station—Charge under S. 436—Defence was that the pucca building could not be destroyed by fire and that no charge could be sustained:

Held, that the contention was unsound and that conviction was legal. A.I.R. 1944 All. 167 = 45 Cr.L.J. 728 = 1944 A.W.R. (H.C.) 121 = 214 Ind. Cas. 83.

—S. 436—Offence under S. 436, whether triable by jury—Criminal Circular No. 1-25.

Offence under S. 436, I.P.C., is according to column S, Sch. II, Criminal P.C., triable in the Court of Session. As the offence is punishable with transportation for life or imprisonment up to 10 years, it is according to the schedule appended to para. 10 of Criminal Circular No. 1-25, triable by jury. It is true that if it is not combined with the offences under S. 307, I.P.C., it would be disposed of by a Magistrate with S. 30 powers under Criminal Circular No. 1-4 (6); but where it had been committed to Sessions, the trial ought to be entirely by jury. Where, however, no objection was taken to the procedure adopted, the legality of the trial is saved by S. 536 (2), Criminal P.C. A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 50 = 19 N.L.J. 320 = 38 Cr.L.J. 330 = 1 L.R. (1937) Nag. 277 = 167 Ind. Cas. 61.

—S. 436—Sentence.

Burning another's home to satisfy grudge is a serious act for which one year's imprisonment is inadequate. 1934 M.W.N. 245.

—S. 436—"Building" includes 'grass or mat hut.' 1934 M.W.N. 687.

—S. 436—Arson in village—Sentence.

Arson in an Indian village is a very serious offence and should be severely punished. It is right to pass a substantial sentence of imprisonment in such cases. A.I.R. 1931 Oudh 116 = 8 O.W.N. 101 = 32 Cr.L.J. 694 = 6 Luck. 539 = 131 Ind. Cas. 436.

—S. 436—Sentence—Whipping.

An additional punishment of whipping cannot be passed on a person who has received an adequate substantive sentence for an offence under S. 436, Penal Code. 110 Ind. Cas. 218 = 1 L.C. 668 = 29 Cr.L.J. 666 = A.I.R. 1928 Oudh 111.

—S. 436—Essentials—Proof that the building destroyed came within one of the classes mentioned in the section.

It is absolutely necessary in order to convict an accused under S. 436 to prove that the building which he destroyed came within one of the classes mentioned in the section and the words "ordinarily used" do not mean that other buildings are from time to time used for such purposes but they mean that that particular building is itself used. 82 Ind. Cas. 54 = 5 L.R.A. Cr. 140 = 25 Cr.L.J. 1190 = A.I.R. 1924 All. 781.

—S. 436—Disproportionate sentence.

A sentence of ten years' imprisonment is wholly disproportionate to any possible aspect of the crime from a moral point of view provided that that part of their misconduct, namely, the setting of fire is reasonably included in and taken to aggravate the general lawless conduct of which the accused have been convicted under Ss. 147 and 325. 82 Ind. Cas. 54 = 5 L.R.A. Cr. 140 = 25 Cr.L.J. 1190 = A.I.R. 1924 All. 781.

—Ss. 436 and 149—Proof of common motive.

It is necessary to prove a charge of arson under Ss. 436 and 149, that the accused were, from the inception or at any stage of the offence, actuated by common motive to set fire to the house or knew that the act would probably be committed. Mere presence does not raise a presumption against them. 60 Ind. Cas. 667 = 22 Cr.L.J. 267 = 3 U.P.L.R. (Pat.) 29.

—S. 436—Evidence for conviction.

Conviction under S. 436 on an evidence of previous chain of events wherein the accused was not shown to have been convicted' is bad. 20 C.W.N. 1267 = 17 Cr.L.J. 421 = 35 Ind. Cas. 981.

—S. 440—To cut ripe crops which are grown to be cut is not to destroy them or affect them injuriously. It is the essence of the offence of mischief that the perpetrator must cause the destruction of property or such change in it or in its situation as destroys or diminishes its value or utility or affects it injuriously. To cut a crop that is grown to be cut is not to destroy it or affect it injuriously. The taking may cause wrongful loss to the grower, and if it be dishonest, a conviction may be had for the theft. But the offence is not mischief.

Consequently, a person cannot be convicted of an offence under S. 440, I.P.C., for allowing his zamindar and his labourers to cut the ripened crops in the field of the complainant. A.I.R. 1934 Oudh. 182 = 35 Cr.L.J. 797 = 10 Luck. 1 = 11 O.W.N. 508 = 148 Ind. Cas. 937.

1. Applicability.

—S. 441—Applicability—Accused convicted for unlawfully entering property in the possession of another—If can be convicted for continuing to remain there after entry.

Where a person has been convicted for unlawfully entering unto or upon property in the possession of another he cannot be convicted for continuing to remain after that unlawfully. The offence is complete as soon as there was unlawful entry and it falls with S. 441, Penal Code. The accused cannot be proceeded against for remaining there. The plea of autrefois convict will be open to the accused in such a case. His continuing to remain unlawfully will be an offence only if it falls under the second part of S. 411 of the Indian Penal Code and for the second part it will be an offence only if he having lawful entry unlawfully remains on the property. 63 L.W. 1152 = 1950 M.W.N. 875 (2) = (1950) 2 M.L.J. 668 = A.I.R. 1951 Mad. 397.

—S. 447—Applicability—Intention necessary—Ingredients—Bona fide claim of right to pasturage—Offence. See PENAL CODE, SS. 426 AND 447. A.I.R. 1949 Cal. 238.

—S. 441—Applicability—Unlawful entry without necessary intent followed by unlawful remaining with necessary intent—Offence.

S. 441, I.P.C., is not inapplicable to a case where there is an unlawful entry without the necessary intent required for criminal trespass, followed by an unlawful remaining with that intent. A.I.R. 1948 Cal. 291 = 49 Cr. L.J. 528.

—S. 441—Applicability—Essentials of offence—Intention—Proof—Necessity—Master and servant—Liability of servant for acting under orders of master. See PENAL CODE, SS. 341 AND 441. A.I.R. 1949 Cal. 85.

—S. 441—Remaining over in possession.

Second part of S. 441, I.P.C. comes into operation when the entry is lawful, but subsequently the trespasser insists on remaining in possession with intent thereby to intimidate, insult or annoy the person in possession of the property. A.I.R. 1945 All. 26 = 1944 A.W.R. 280 = 1944 A.L.J. 432 = 1944 O.W.N. 228 = 46 Cr.L.J. 211 = I.L.R. (1944) All. 754 = 217 Ind. Cas. 170.

—S. 441—'Trespass'—Meaning.

S. 441 cannot be read into S. 297 with any intelligible result. The term "trespass" in S. 207 appears to mean any violent or injurious act committed in such place and with such knowledge or intention as is defined in that section. 81 Ind. Cas. 41 = 1 Rang. 690 = 25 C.L.J. 553 = A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 106.

—S. 447—Trespass by servant.

When a person who trespasses upon the property of another is a servant and acts in so doing under the orders of his master for the purpose of his employment, S. 447, I.P.C. does not apply. 81 Ind. Cas. 172 = 1 Bur. L.J. 276 = 25 Cr.L.J. 684 = A.I.R. 1923 Rang. 135.

2. Bona fide claim of right.

—S. 441—Bona fide claim—Entry into property and removal of movables from peaceful possession of another—Offence.

The mere fact that a person having a rival claim to the property of a deceased believed in his claim bona fide would not justify his entry into the property of another and removal of movable properties belonging to the deceased and in the peaceful possession of another. It will be criminal trespass. A.I. Cr.D. 505 = 51 Cr.L.J. 1167 = A.I.R. 1950 A. 653.

—S. 447—Applicability—Criminal intent—Necessity—Entry in exercise of bona fide claim of right—Offence—Mere assertion of claim of right—Sufficiency.

A person who enters upon land in the possession of another in the exercise of a bona fide claim of right cannot be convicted of criminal trespass under S. 447, I.P.C., as the entry is not made with any such intent as to constitute an offence, although the mere assertion of a claim of right in itself will not be a sufficient defence to the charge of criminal trespass. 4 A.I.Cr.D. 761 = A.L.R. 1950 Pat. 564 = 51 Cr.L.J. 1565.

—S. 441—Gist of offence—Landlord entering premises believing them to have been abandoned by tenant—Offence, if committed.

Under S. 441, I.P.C., intent is of the very essence of the offence. Mere entry on another's property is not criminal trespass unless such entry is with intent either to commit an offence, to intimidate, insult or annoy. A landlord entering premises honestly believing them to have been abandoned by the tenant, does not commit an offence under the section. 1948 Cal. 130, foll. A.I.R. 1949 Cal. 558 = 50 Cr.L.J. 946.

—S. 441—Bona fides—Criminal trespass, what is.

There is a difference between a civil trespass and a criminal trespass. Where the accused encloses a portion of the complainant's land in his own in the bona fide belief in the exercise of his right, no criminal trespass can be said to have been committed. 1937 M.W.N. 390.

—S. 441—Lessee believing in good faith that he had right of entering land and ploughing it.

Held, there was no criminal trespass. A.I.R. 3197 Rang. 132 = 38 Cr.L.J. 759 = 169 Ind. Cas. 250.

—S. 441—Act of trespass done only with intention of asserting supposed legal right :

Held, that the act did not amount to criminal trespass within the meaning of S. 441. A.I.R. 1936 Bom. 15 = 37 Bom. L.R. 880 = 59 B. 738 = 37 Cr. L.J. 309 (2) = 160 Ind. Cas. 515.

—Ss. 441 and 447—Entry in honest belief as to right.

Where there are circumstances which clearly lead to the inference that the applicants did not make an entry into the grove in dispute with any such intention as is referred to in S. 441, but in the honest, though possibly mistaken belief, that they had a right to cultivate the grove, and they have also produced a mortgage executed long ago and a khatauni, it will be for the Civil Court to pronounce definitely as to whether the mortgage deed relied upon by the applicants is valid and enforceable; but all a Criminal Court has to see is whether the mortgage deed is relied on in good faith and it cannot be held that the applicants attempted to cultivate the land in dispute with intent to intimidate, insult or annoy the complainant, or with intent to commit an offence and hence conviction under S. 447 cannot be sustained. A.I.R. 1936 All. 146 = 1936 A.W.R. 114 = 37 Cr.L.J. 244 = 1936 A.L.J. 203 = 160 Ind. Cas. 167.

—Ss. 441 and 447—The essence of criminal trespass is the intention to do one or the other of the acts specifically referred to in the section. If such is not the intention of the person accused of the offence of criminal trespass but his entry into or upon the property in dispute was with intent to assert or exercise a bona fide claim of right, such entry may or may not amount to civil trespass but will certainly not amount to criminal trespass punishable under S. 447, I.P.C. A.I.R. 1936 All. 146 = 1936 A.W.R. 114 = 37 Cr.L.J. 244 = 1936 A.L.J. 203 = 160 Ind. Cas. 167.

—S. 447—Bona fide claim—No offence.

When a person who has an ostensible title sells land to another and that man goes and ploughs it, it cannot be said that he commits criminal trespass, and it is a bona fide of civil right on the part of the accused and their act in ploughing the field is not an offence under S. 447; nor is it an assault if the person objects to an assault in maintaining possession of the land. 91 Ind. Cas. 392 = 23 M.L.W. 426 = 27 Cr.L.J. 88 = A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 349.

—S. 448—'Bona fide' claim—Intent to assert title and gain possession against complainant—No offence.

The words of the section must be closely adhered to and there must be found an intent to cause intimidation, insult or annoyance. A conviction cannot follow merely because one can pronounce with certainty that the accused must have known that his act would, as one of its inevitable incidents, cause annoyance. 38 All. 517, Foll.

Where accused's intention in doing the act complained of was to assert his title and gain and hold possession of the premises as against the complainant.

Held, that he was not guilty. 88 Ind. Cas. 1049 = 47 All. 855 = 23 A.L.J. 679 = 26 Cr.L.J. 1273 = 6 L.R.A. Cr. 132 = A.I.R. 1925 All. 540.

—S. 441—Bona fide claim—No trespass.

Without criminal intention there can be no criminal trespass; therefore even where the property is in the possession of another, if a person bona fide goes upon it to assert his right and not intimidate, insult or annoy the person in possession, no offence is committed. 81 Ind. Cas. 888 = 25 Cr.L.J. 1064 = A.I.R. 1925 Nag. 36.

—S. 441—No offence.

Entering a house under a claim of right is no offence provided the claim is a bona fide one. 81 Ind. Cas. 823 = 25 Cr.L.J. 1047 = A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 167.

—S. 448—Acting under—No offence.

Where coins were unearthed from field and taken possession of by several individuals, without the landlord's consent, and then the landlord's manager exacted by force the coins from many persons by house searches and other means and took the man who had actually unearthed the coins, to the police station to get a statement from him.

—S. 441—Trespass—Ingredients.

Where a person enters on land in the possession of another in the exercise of a bona fide claim of right without intending to intimidate, insult or annoy the person in possession or to commit an offence then although he has no right to the land, he cannot be convicted of criminal trespass. 43 Cal. 1143 = 20 C.W.N. 1071 = 17 Cr.L.J. 339 = 35 Ind. Cas. 515.

—S. 441—Entry on land in assertion of a right—Intention to intimidate.

An entry on land in another man's possession, solely in order to assert a right in the land does not constitute criminal trespass within S. 447, I.P.C.

The intention to intimidate, insult or annoy, or to commit an offence must be distinctly found. (1912) M.W.N. 395 = 13 Cr.L.J. 477 = 15 Ind. Cas. 317.

—Ss. 441 and 447—Entry on land in exercise of bona fide right—If amounts to trespass.

Mere entry by a person on the land of another in the exercise of a bona fide right without any intention to intimidate, insult or annoy does not amount to criminal trespass. 5 S.L.R. 135 = 13 Cr.L.J. 27 = 13 Ind. Cas. 219.

—S. 441—Entry by person having right to property.

Entry upon land by a person having a claim of right thereto, is not criminal trespass. If a sufficient number of persons is present, it may amount to unlawful assembly or rioting. 5 N.L.R. 69 = 9 Cr.L.J. 561 = 2 Ind. Cas. 240.

—S. 447—Claim of right.

Where the accused acts on a belief of his own right, he cannot be held guilty of criminal trespass. (1907) 7 C.L.J. 238.

—S. 441—Intent—Dispossession of tenant under a false pretext.

When a Zamindar under the pretext that one of the tenants had left the village and abandoned his holding wrongfully, took possession of the land, it was held that in the absence of evidence of one of the objects specified in S. 441, the Zamindar could not properly be convicted of criminal trespass, his intention apparently being merely to get possession of the land. 26 A. 194 = 1903 A.W.N. 230.

3. Building—What is.

—Ss. 442, 441 and 444—Word "building" in S. 442—Meaning of—House trespass is aggravated form of criminal trespass.

What is a building must always be a question of degree and circumstances, and it is, therefore, impossible to lay down a general definition. Ordinary and usual meaning of a building is a block of bricks or stonework covered by a roof. If an open piece of land is surrounded by a wall, it would probably be impossible to call it a building. In Indian houses, generally there is a courtyard which is not covered. It may be a matter of some difficulty in such cases to say that when a man commits criminal trespass and enters the courtyard of the house, he is not guilty of 'house trespass.' Moreover, there may be cases where a man may be living in a house the roof of which has fallen down, but he has put up some sort of a shelter inside within the boundaries. In such cases too, it may be difficult to say that the man has not been guilty of 'house trespass' simply because the roof of the house has fallen down. It would depend on the facts of each case whether the trespass has been committed of a building used for human dwelling so as to come within the definition of the word 'house trespass.'

'House trespass' is only an aggravated form of 'criminal trespass' inasmuch as the Legislature considered it proper to impose more severe penalty for 'house trespass' than for ordinary 'criminal trespass.' House-breaking is a more aggravated form of 'criminal trespass' and the punishment under it is severer still. A.I.R. 1945 All. 81 = 1945 A.W.R. (H.C.) 156 = 1945 O.W.N. (H.C.) 227 = I.L.R. (1945) All. 558 = 46 Cr.L.J. 750 = 220 Ind. Cas. 432.

—S. 442—Building.

Erection of an awning over a shop does not constitute the shop a building within the meaning of S. 442. A.I.R. 1938 Oudh 263 = 1938 O.W.N. 960 = 39 Cr.L.J. 937 = 177 Ind. Cas. 616.

—S. 442—Building, what is—Open space adjoining a house, surrounded by thorns—Enclosure not having door or any means to prevent entry—Entry in the enclosure—If house trespass.

The appellants went to an enclosure of P and beat him. P had a thatched house, and he was sitting outside this house. Some thorny bushes were placed round about. Except for a few thorns the place was open. There was no roof above. The thorns were merely put down to indicate the extent of the courtyard, and not to prevent entry. There was no door or gateway, even of thorns, which had to be opened before making entry to this enclosure:

Held, that the place was not a building within S. 442. 110 Ind. Cas. 798 = 26 A.L.J. 855 = 19

—S. 442—Wara.

Where the Wara of which the small gate was locked, adjoined the room in which the accused lived and was for practical purposes one of the rooms of the house, and an integral part of the building.

—S. 442—Wohra.

—S. 442—Building—Yard enclosed on three sides is not building—Courtyard.

A courtyard enclosed by low walls on three sides only, is not a building. 84 Ind. Cas. 863 = 6 L.L.J. 578 = 26 Cr.L.J. 383 = A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 279.

—S. 442—Courtyard.

—Ss. 442 and 451—Trespass on courtyard.

A courtyard partly surrounded on the front by a mud wall with no roof over it, nor any door or gateway, is not a building or house within S. 442, I.P.C. 20 Cr.L.J. 240 = 11 P.W.R. (Cr.) 1919 = 49 Ind. Cas. 864.

—S. 442—House trespass—Building—Thatch hut.

A thatch hut built for residence is a building used as a human dwelling within the meaning of S. 442. 30 L.J. 493 = 17 Cr.L.J. 536 = 36 Ind. Cas. 584.

4. Essentials and Scope.

—S. 441—Ingredients of offence—Criminal intent—Absence of—Mere knowledge of likelihood of annoyance, etc., being caused—Sufficiency.

In order to amount to an offence of "Criminal trespass" as defined by S. 441, I.P.C., the act must be done with the necessary intent, namely, intent to commit an offence, or to intimidate, insult or annoy the person in possession of the property entered upon; the intent has of course to be gathered from the circumstances of each case. The necessary intent has essentially to be proved. The section does not embrace the case of an act done with knowledge of the likelihood of a given consequence. The mere knowledge therefore that by such conduct on the part of the accused the trespass is likely to cause annoyance to the owner or occupier in possession would not be sufficient to impute criminal intent to the trespasser so as to make him guilty of the offence. 56 All. 33; 19 Mad. 240; 41 Mad. 156, foll. 4 A.I.Cr.D. 326 = 51 Cr.L.J. 821 = A.I.R. 1950 Pat. 295.

—Ss. 441 and 448—Proof of offence—Landlord breaking open lock and taking possession of premises unoccupied by tenant.

The mere taking of unlawful possession will not amount to either criminal trespass or house trespass. Under S. 441, I.P.C., there can be no criminal trespass unless the "intent" specified therein is present. Intent is something different from mere knowledge. Further the intent to annoy and intimidate must be with respect to a person in actual possession of the property. A person in constructive possession is not contemplated by the section. Accordingly, a landlord who breaks open the lock and takes possession of the premises deserted and unoccupied by his tenant, is not guilty of house trespass. It cannot be said that he intended to annoy a person in possession of the house, as there was really no one in possession. 41 M. 156 (F.B.); 40 A. 221; 4 C. 837; 26 A. 194 and 49 C.L.J. 120, relied on. 53 C.W.N. 402 = A.I.R. 1949 Cal. 107 = 50 Cr.L.J. 161 = 3 A.I.Cr.D. 154.

—Ss. 448 and 341—Offences under—Complaint by sub-tenant against landlord—Landlord not aware of its existence.

A sub-tenant charging the landlord with an offence under S. 441, I.P.C., has to show that the landlord entered upon property in his possession with intent to commit an offence or to intimidate, insult or annoy him. If the landlord was ignorant of the existence of the sub-tenant and genuinely believed that on the death of the tenant there was no one in existence who could inherit the tenancy and entered under that belief, he certainly did not enter with intent to commit an offence or with intent to annoy the sub-tenant. Before any offence under S. 441 can be made out the Court has to be satisfied that the existence of the sub-tenant was known to the landlord.

Similarly in the above circumstances the landlord cannot be charged with an offence under S. 341, I.P.C. To be guilty of wrongful restraint a person must voluntarily obstruct any person so as to prevent that person from proceeding in any direction in which the person has a right to proceed. A man cannot be guilty of restraining a person of whose existence he is wholly unaware. There must be mens rea to establish such a charge. 53 C.W.N. 822.

—S. 441—Primary ingredient of an offence under.

"Intention" is the sine qua non for an offence under S. 441 of the Penal Code. Though annoyance or intimidation might result from a certain conduct it might never have been intended and conversely, though intended, there may be no annoyance or intimidation. "Intention" is, therefore, the pivot and not the result. I.L.R. (1947) All. 152 = 228 Ind. Cas. 322 = 48 Cr.L.J. 196 = 1947 A.L.J. 273 = A.I.R. 1947 All. 61 = 1946 A.L.W. 486 = 1946 A.W.R. (H.C.) 547 = 1946 A.Cr.C. 142.

—S. 448—Intention.

For an offence of criminal trespass, a mere knowledge that the action of the accused will annoy the owner of the house is not sufficient. It must be shown that the intention of the accused was to intimidate, insult or annoy any person in possession. A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 532 = (1942) 1 M.L.J. 585 = 1942 M.W.N. 371 = 55 L.W. 367 = 43 Cr.L.J. 755 = 201 Ind. Cas. 654.

—S. 441—No offence of criminal trespass as defined in S. 441, takes place unless there is a criminal intent or 'mens rea'. A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 273 = 38 Cr.L.J. 188 = 1937 O.W.N. 30 = 13 Luck. 92 = 166 Ind. Cas. 291.

—Ss. 441 and 447—Necessity of.

It may be that the action of the accused in building a structure necessarily resulted in annoyance to the owner of the land and indeed caused damage to him by preventing him from cultivating the land but that is not sufficient to constitute criminal trespass in the absence of anything to show that in building the structure, the intention was to cause annoyance as that ingredient is essential in criminal trespass. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 170 = 16 P.L.T. 913 = 37 Cr.L.J. 468 = 161 Ind. Cas. 705 = 2 B.R. 361.

—Ss. 441 and 447—Mere intention to squat, if sufficient.

Under S. 441, mere knowledge on the part of the accused that his act is likely to annoy, insult or intimidate is not sufficient. The required intention must exist. Such knowledge, coupled with other facts, may legitimately give rise to an inference that the accused had the requisite intention, but there must always be an express finding regarding the intention and a conviction is not sustainable in the absence of such a finding. The only intention of "making the complainant's property his own", in other words, an intention to squat, does not fall within the purview of S. 441. A.I.R. 1935 Sind. 20 = 36 Cr.L.J. 577 = 154 Ind. Cas. 552.

—S. 441—Proof of actual intent to commit offence or to intimidate—Necessity of—Knowledge that act is likely to intimidate—Whether sufficient.

In order to make out an offence under S. 441, the actual intention to commit an offence or to intimidate must be shown and the mere fact that the act was likely to cause annoyance is not sufficient. Where a specific intent is laid as necessary ingredient in a charge under the Penal Code, the question of volition enters into the matter, and the specific intent becomes a question of fact; it must not be treated as a mere presumption of law. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 158 = 15 P.L.T. 392 = 13 Pat. 268 = 35 Cr.L.J. 1421 = 151 Ind. Cas. 844.

—Ss. 441 and 447—Re-entry by owner.

To constitute criminal trespass as defined in S. 441 there must either be entry upon property in the possession of another or unlawful continuance thereon after a lawful entry. A lawful owner who merely goes to the land as he dares cannot be said to have re-entered upon the land, though if the true owner enters upon the land while the trespasser remains there, it may amount to re-entry. A.I.R. 1932 Nag. 112 = 28 N.L.R. 57 = 33 Cr.L.J. 861 = 139 Ind. Cas. 609.

—S. 448—Ingredients—Intention—Nature of claim.

For an offence under S. 448 intention is one of the most important ingredients and in order to determine the intent it is necessary to consider the circumstances under which the act was done by the accused as also the bona fide nature or otherwise of the claim which the accused may have in respect of the property itself. A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 263.

—S. 448—Essentials—Actual possession by complainant.

Actual possession, by the person alleged to be intended to be annoyed, insulted or intimidated, is essential for an offence under S. 448. 2 All. 465 and 12 A.L.J. R. 151, foll. 88 Ind. Cas. 1049 = 47 All. 855 = 23 A.L.J. 679 = 26 Cr.L.J. 1273 = 6 L.R.A.Cr. 132 = A.I.R. 1925 All. 540.

—S. 448—Finding—Intention of accused—Necessity.

The Court is justified in inferring an intent to insult or annoy on the part of a trespasser who knows that it is practically certain that in the natural course of events his trespass is likely to cause insult and annoyance to the owner of the property. But the trespasser cannot be convicted under S. 448 unless there is a clear finding as to his intentions though the antecedent circumstances and the conduct of the parties may be and must be considered in determining the intention of the accused. 81 Ind. Cas. 716 = 25 Cr.L.J. 1004 = A.I.R. 1925 Nag. 50.

—S. 441—Essentials.

In order to constitute criminal trespass under S. 441 the entry into the house or property in the possession of another must be with intent to commit an offence or to intimidate, insult or annoy any person in possession of such property and in order to sustain a conviction under S. 456, it must be proved that there was in the first instance criminal trespass as defined in S. 441. 87 Ind. Cas. 106 = 4 Pat. 459 = 6 P.L.T. 588 = 26 Cr.L.J. 954 = A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 713.

—S. 447—Essentials.

The main ingredient of section 447 is that the trespass must be with the intention of annoying or insulting some one, or with the intention of committing an offence, without which the conviction for criminal trespass is an impossibility. 65 Ind. Cas. 446 = 3 P.L.T. 499 = 23 Cr.L.J. 94 = A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 56.

—Ss. 441 and 511—Criminal trespass Intention—Adultery—Complaint by husband—Cr. P.Code, S. 199—Intention and attempt.

Where the object of a trespass is to commit an offence, such offence must be possible on the part of the person to be convicted of the trespass. An intention to commit an offence punishable with imprisonment is not the same thing as an attempt to commit such an offence. It exists before the attempt is begun. A mere intent is not by itself an offence; therefore where it is used as essential to bring a particular act within the category of criminal offence, and proof has been given that such an act accompanied by such an intent has been committed or even attempted the offence is complete though the further act may not have been attempted or committed. The complaint of the husband is not necessary for proceedings in respect of house trespass to commit adultery. 19 Cr.L.J. 881 = 47 Ind. Cas. 77 (Nag.).

—S. 448—Essence of offence.

The essence of an offence under S. 448, I.P.C., is that there should be an intention to insult, annoy or intimidate the owner of the property or such person as was acting on behalf of the owner. (1917) P.H.C.C. 333 = 6 Pat. L.J. 147 = 19 Cr.L.J. 249 = 4 Pat. L.W. 359 = 44 Ind. Cas. 41.

—S. 441—Intention to create annoyance.

In order to constitute the offence of criminal trespass there must be an intention to create annoyance. 16 C.W.N. 1007 = 13 Cr.L.J. 783 = 17 Ind. Cas. 415.

—S. 448—Essentials for conviction.

For a conviction under S. 448 an express finding as to criminal intention to cause annoyance is necessary. 5 S.L.R. 29 = 12 Cr.L.J. 148 = 9 Ind. Cas. 895.

—S. 441—Ingredients—Criminal force.

Use of criminal force is not an essential element of the offence of criminal trespass. 11 Cr.L.J. 594 = 8 Ind. Cas. 219 (All.).

—S. 441—Criminal trespass—Essential—Intention to annoy.

For an offence under S. 447, I.P.C. it must be found that the accused intended to commit an offence, or to intimidate, insult or annoy, the complainant. The fact that the result of the accused's act was annoyance will not render it an offence unless the intention of the accused was to annoy. 6 M.L.T. 262 = 10 Cr.L.J. 384 = 3 Ind. Cas. 828.

—S. 448—Criminal intention, sufficient.

For an offence under S. 448 it is sufficient to show the criminal intention of the accused. 3 S.L.R. 86 = 10 Cr.L.J. 410 = 3 Ind. Cas. 895.

—S. 447—Criminal force, use of.

The use of criminal force is not a necessary ingredient of an offence under S. 447. 12 M.L.J. 447 = 26 M. 49.

5. Evidence and Proof.

—S. 441—Offence—Proof of intent specified in section—Necessity—Form of charge.

In order to constitute the offence of criminal trespass the prosecution must prove that the trespass was made with one of the intents specified in S. 441, I.P.C. The charge should specifically state the intent which was alleged and if that intent was to intimidate, insult or annoy any person in possession of the property, the name of that person should also have been stated. I.L.R. (1950) All. 163.

—S. 441—Offence under—Landlord refusing to leave premises after persuading tenant to vacate for purposes of repairs.

In order to establish the offence described in the second portion of S. 441, I.P.C., the prosecution must prove that the accused remained in the premises into which he has lawfully entered with the intention of intimidating, insulting or annoying the person in possession of the property or with intent to commit an offence. Where a landlord enters into the premises of the tenant after persuading him to vacate them temporarily for the purpose of repairs but subsequently refuses to leave them, his intention at worst is to remain in the premises unlawfully but that by itself does not constitute an offence of trespass unless he remains in the premises with one of the criminal intents mentioned in the section. 51 Cr.L.J. 407 = 4 A.I.Cr. D. 87 = A.I.R. 1950 Cal. 80.

—S. 448—Applicability—Tenant leaving premises locked up and going away—Non-payment of rent and non-communication with landlord for long time—Re-entry by landlord on ground of abandonment by tenant—Offence—Absence of necessary intent—Effect.

Where a Mahomedan tenant of premises, situate in a Hindu locality, locks up his premises and goes away during a period of serious communal riots and does not communicate with the landlord nor pays rent to the landlord for a long period, and the landlord, believing that the tenant has abandoned the premises, takes possession of the premises, it cannot be said that he commits the offence of criminal trespass under S. 448, I.P.C. In the absence of evidence of any of the intents necessary to constitute the offence of criminal trespass, the landlord is not liable to conviction under S. 448, though his re-entry on the premises might be contrary to law. 49 Cr.L.J. 120 = A.I.R. 1948 Cal. 130.

—S. 441—Applicability—Essentials of offence—Intention to annoy—Proof—Necessity.

To establish the offence of criminal trespass, the prosecution must prove that the intention of the trespasser was to annoy. The fact that the person in possession is annoyed is not enough. Every unauthorised entry is not criminal trespass. A trespass is criminal unless one or other of the intention specified in the definition is not proved. 231 Ind. Cas. 398 = 48 Cr.L.J. 785.

—Ss. 441 and 447—Evidence.

Before a conviction can be based under S. 447, I.P.C., it must be shown that the trespass was one mentioned in S. 441, I.P.C. A.I.R. 1942 Pat. 150 = 22 P.L.T. 976 = 43 Cr.L.J. 537 = 199 Ind. Cas. 218. = 8 B.R. 534.

—S. 441—Duty of prosecution—Entry in another's house—When presumed criminal.

When criminal intention is an ingredient of an offence, it is on the prosecution to prove that intention just as much as any other ingredient. The entry of one person into the house of another will not be presumed criminal at all unless there are circumstances from which an inference of criminality can be drawn. A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 14 = 20 P.L.T. 879 = 40 Cr.L.J. 833 (2) = 5 B.R. 978 = 183 Ind. Cas. 660.

—S. 448—Accused found in complainant's room at night—Allegation of mistake—Absence of evidence of intent to commit offence.

Held, that offence under S. 448 was not established. A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 523 = 36 Cr.L.J. 1351 = 158 Ind. Cas. 279 = 1 B.R. 870.

—S. 445—Accused entering by a passage known to them to have been fastened—No direct evidence that every one individually lifted the door—Proper charge under S. 445 (6). 1931 M.W.N. 129.

—S. 441—Proof of intention.

Intention cannot be inferred from the actual or probable results. It is necessary to show the actual intention to insult or annoy before the acts were complete, to constitute the offence under S. 441. 316 Ind. Cas. 783 = 30 Cr.L.J. 684 = 11 P.L.T. 80 = 11 A. I.Cr.R. 108 = A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 111.

—S. 441—Tenant not vacating—Tenant at will refusing to vacate property—If offence.

Where the accused was a tenant on sufferance who had come upon the property by right but had continued to remain by wrong.

Held, that this would not, without proof of intent, require to constitute the offence under S. 441, make his wrongful stay punishable as criminal trespass. Mere knowledge on his part that he was likely to cause annoyance would not by itself be sufficient. 100 Ind. Cas. 829 = 21 S.L.R. 263 = 28 Cr.L.J. 349 = 7 A.I.Cr.R. 541 = A.I.R. 1927 Sind 159.

—S. 447—Intention—Proof.

An intention to commit an offence or to intimidate, insult or annoy must be proved before a conviction is recorded under S. 447. 109 Ind. Cas. 506 = 50 All. 637 = 26 A.L.J. 421 = 9 L.R.A.Cr. 67 = 29 Cr.L.J. 570 = 9 A.I.Cr.R. 441 = A.I.R. 1928 All. 671.

—S. 447—Trespass on land of third person and beating complainant—Right of complainant to charge for trespass.

One B trespassed into the fields of the accused. The accused remonstrated upon which B ran into an adjoining field belonging to one S. The accused went in pursuit, overtook him there and gave him a slight beating.

Held, that no case under S. 447 has been established. First because the field into which the petitioner is alleged to have trespassed did not belong to the complainant B. And secondly there is no evidence of any interest on the part of the accused to commit an offence or to intimidate, insult or annoy any person. 74 Ind. Cas. 534 = 24 Cr. L.J. 790 = A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 252.

6. Intention and Knowledge.

(a) Absence of intention.

(c) Presumption of intention.

6. (a) Absence of Intention.

—S. 441—Ingredients of offence—Land used by public as cart-track without objection by owner—Effect—Entry upon track without intent to commit act mentioned in section—offence.

For the offence of criminal trespass as defined in S. 441, I.P.C., two essential ingredients have to be proved: (1) that the property trespassed upon should be in the possession of some specific or particular individual; (2) that the trespasser should enter upon the property with the requisite intent, i.e., with intent to commit an offence or to intimidate, insult or annoy any person in possession of that property. Both these requisites must be present. Where the owner in possession of property has permitted the use of a part of it by the public as a cart-track for a long time, he must be taken to have parted with the possession of the part forming the track, and the intention of the trespasser, is not to commit any of the acts mentioned in the section, there can be no conviction for criminal trespass. 48 Cr.L.J. 522 = 230 Ind. Cas. 124 = A.I.R. 1947 Lah. 221.

—Ss. 441 and 447—Absence of Intention.

Accused cultivating the land of the proprietor—Intention while cultivating not to intimidate, insult or annoy the proprietor.

Held, his cultivation will not amount to criminal trespass. 1939 O.W.N. 224 = 1939 A.W.R. 58.

—S. 441—Accused entering at night in complainant's house with intent to have intercourse with his sui juris daughter, by invitation.

It must depend on the facts of each case as to whether an intent to annoy the person in possession of the property entered upon can, in the circumstances, be reasonably inferred. Where, at night, an accused enters upon invitation the house of the complainant with intent to have sexual intercourse with his daughter who is sui juris, the accused cannot be said to have the 'primary' or even the 'subsidiary' or 'secondary' intent to annoy the person in possession, from whom he had taken all possible precautions to keep his entry secret. The mere fact that he knew or ought to have known, that, if discovered, his presence in the house might cause annoyance to the owner or other inmates of the house, is by itself not sufficient to bring his case within S. 441, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 534 = 39 Cr.L.J. 756 = 40 P.L.R. 806 = 176 Ind. Cas. 497 (F.B.) (Overrules 1908 Pun. Re. No. 17 (Cr.) = 8 Cr.L.J. 488.)

—S. 447—Held, on facts that the intention of accused was not to intimidate or insult or annoy.

Held, that the act of the accused by remaining standing on the chabutra with a view to prevent the Congress flag from falling down, was not actuated with an intent to insult, intimidate or annoy the Chairman of the Municipal Board who had come there to dig up the chabutra. The feelings of the Chairman may have been hurt by the refusal of the accused to leave the spot, but the intention of the accused was not to hurt the feelings of the Chairman of the Municipal Board, but merely to preserve their flag from falling down. A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 207 = 38 Cr.L.J. 147 = 1937 O.W.N. 34 = 13 Luck. 89 = 166 Ind. Cas. 219.

—S. 441—Holding condolence meeting in defiance of orders in a particular place does not show intention to intimidate, insult or annoy.

Where the only intention of the applicants was to hold a condolence meeting in respect of the death of a person in a particular place in defiance of an order of the Chairman of the Municipal Board :

Held, that such an intention on their part could not possibly amount to an intention to commit an offence, nor could their primary intention be said to be to intimidate, insult or annoy the Chairman of the Municipal Board. It was at most a civil trespass and that the Criminal Court could not go into the question of civil rights of the parties. A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 273 = 38 Cr.L.J. 188 = 1937 O.W.N. 30 = 13 Luck. 92 = 166 Ind. Cas. 291.

—Ss. 441 and 447—Absence of Intention—No finding as to intention to intimidate, insult or annoy persons in possession—Offence not committed.

Where the trial Court held that the intention of the accused was primarily to take possession of the field in dispute and there was no finding of the first Appellate Court to the effect that the accused committed trespass with intent to intimidate, insult or annoy the person in possession :

Held, that the act of the accused only amounted to a civil trespass for which substantial damages could be claimed in the civil Court, and that no offence under S. 447, I.P.C., was committed by the accused. A.I.R. 1933 Oudh 179 = 10 O.W.N. 266 = 34 Cr.L.J. 1014 = 145 Ind. Cas. 625.

—Ss. 441 and 447—Deciding factor.

It is the intention of the accused that is the deciding factor under S. 441, to constitute the offence of trespass.

Where the accused first took a settlement of certain khass mahal land for grazing cattle, but at the end of the lease, they remained on the land and proceeded to cultivate it :

Held, that the accused did not commit an offence under S. 441 inasmuch as their intention was only to cultivate the land and not to annoy the Government. A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 264 = 32 Cr.L.J. 568 = 130 Ind. Cas. 500.

—S. 448—Search by excise officer—Excise officer searching house—Excise Act, S. 53 infringed—No criminal intention present—No offence.

A Sub-Inspector searched the applicant's house for cocaine. He omitted to record his reasons as required by S. 53 of the Excise Act for not first obtaining a search warrant from a Magistrate. He had no intention of any of the types mentioned in Penal Code. S. 448.

Held, the Sub-Inspector had not committed an offence under Penal Code, S. 448. 88 Ind. Cas. 725 = 2 O.W.N. 463 = 26 Cr.L.J. 1205 = A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 505.

—S. 441—Trespass without the specified intent—If offence.

A girl shortly before she was to be married disappeared from the house of her parents. The accused went to the house of complainant with whom she was said to be living after her disappearance. They also removed the girl who was not lawfully married to the complainant from that place.

Held, that no offence was committed as there was no criminal intent as defined in S. 441, I.P.C. Every trespass is not criminal trespass. There must be an intent specified in S. 441. Although the Act may be unlawful and may be one which the civil law will restrain or which the Civil Court will compensate the injured party in damages still it does not necessarily constitute an offence under S. 441. 81 Ind. Cas. 351 = 5 Lah. 20 = 25 Cr. L.J. 815 = A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 449.

—S. 441—Guilty intention of the nature described in the section.

The offence of trespass is not complete unless there is an intent to commit an offence or to intimidate, insult or annoy some one in possession of property. It is not enough that the accused should know that his act is likely to have such an effect.

Where an acting taliari with two others learnt that there was in the house of the complainant a pot of toddy in excess of the quantity which one might possess without licence and went inside the house brought the toddy pot to the verandah outside and remained there waiting for the arrival of the Revenue Officials.

Held, that though the taliari had no authority to enter into the house, he was not liable for criminal trespass. 82 Ind. Cas. 149 = 20 M.L.W. 239 = 25 Cr.L.J. 1221 = A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 816.

—S. 448—Intention to annoy.

In an action for trespass, the trial Court found that the accused's object in dismantling the building in question was to break down the building which would have the effect of compelling complainant to leave, and he treated that result as intended.

Held, it is quite true that such result may have the effect of annoying the complainant, but there are authorities that such a result and consequent annoying is not sufficient for the offence, unless there was in fact the intent to annoy, etc. 75 Ind. Cas. 353 = 2 Bur. L.J. 55 = 24 Cr.L.J. 929 = A.I.R. 1923 Rang. 157.

—S. 441—Criminal trespass—Intention.

An unlawful entry upon property does not amount to criminal trespass unless one of the intents mentioned in S. 441, I.P.C., is made out. 54 Ind. Cas. 620 (Nag.).

—S. 448—Intention—Entry into house on the invitation.

A person who has no intention of causing annoyance to any one and who further takes measures to avoid it, cannot be convicted of an offence under S. 448, I.P.C., even though a feeling of such annoyance be the inevitable consequence of his being found out. 19 M. 240 = 38 All. 517, 22 Cal. 391, Foll. 22 O.C. 121 = 20 Cr.L.J. 610 = 52 Ind. Cas. 274.

—S. 441—Mala fides—Criminal intention.

In the absence of Mala fides and the intention to commit an offence or to intimidate, insult or annoy the owner of the property, there can be no offence under S. 441 of the Code. 16 A.L.J. 501 = 19 Cr.L.J. 704 = 46 Ind. Cas. 160.

—Ss. 441 and 448—Trespass—Knowledge that act is likely to cause annoyance or insult—Intent to intimidate, insult or annoy person in possession.

A person who enters into property in possession of another or remains there with an intent other than to intimidate, insult or annoy him or to commit an offence but with the knowledge that his act is likely or certain to cause annoyance or insult to the person in possession is not guilty of an offence under S. 448 of the Penal Code. 19 M. 240, Foll: 35 M. 186, not Foll. Per Ayling, J.—A mere knowledge that the trespass is likely to cause insult or annoyance to the owner of the property does not amount to an intent to insult or annoy within the meaning of S. 441, I.P.C., but where the trespasser knows that his trespass is practically certain in the natural course of events to cause insult or annoyance to the owner of the property it is open to Court to infer an intent to insult or annoy. It is a question of fact whether this presumption of intent is displaced by proof of any independent object of the trespass. 41 Mad. 156 = 33 M.L.J. 729 = 6 L.W. 794 = (1918) M.W.N. 81 = 19 Cr.L.J. 162 = 43 Ind. Cas. 578 (F.B.).

—S. 441—Driving cart on Government waste land—Municipality prohibiting cart traffic.

Since Government waste land does not vest in the Municipality under S. 78 of the Burma Municipality Act, driving a cart over the same in defiance of notices put up by the Municipality prohibiting cart traffic, is not an offence under S. 441 of the Penal Code even if the notices were good. The accused could hardly be said to have had the necessary criminal intent unless it was proved that he was aware of the prohibition. 4 Ind. Cas. 826 (U. Burma), 11 Cr.L.J. 57.

—S. 448—House trespass—Intention.

A person who enters the house of another secretly in order to carry on an intrigue with a widow in the house is not guilty of criminal trespass as his intention was not to commit an offence punishable under the Penal Code, or to cause insult or annoyance to the inmates of the house. (1906) 4 Cr. L.J. 169 = 4 Cr. L.J. 144.

—S. 441—Criminal trespass—Occupation by zemindar of house left by deceased tenant.

Where a person enters into possession of a deceased tenant's house in the assertion of a right to it, whether he was right or wrong in doing so, and with no intent to commit an offence, etc., he cannot be convicted under S. 441. 27 A. 298 = 1904 A.W.N. 235.

6. (b) Intention.

—S. 441—Accused one night passing through court-yard of one house to commit adultery in another.

Where an accused, in order to commit an adultery in a certain house, one night passes stealthily through the courtyard of the adjoining house, he is not guilty of trespass in respect of the latter house under second alternative of S. 441, Penal Code, as it cannot be held that the accused had any intention to insult or to annoy the persons living in that house. Even if he can be supposed to have known, that if discovered, his presence might cause annoyance to any person living there, this would not make him guilty of committing criminal trespass in that house.

The act, however, clearly falls within the first part of S. 441 and the accused is guilty of trespass under the first alternative of the section which as worded, means that if a person enters upon property with intent to commit an offence on that property, or on any other property or with respect to a person who is or is not in possession of the property entered upon, he is guilty under it. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 514 = 39 Cr.L.J. 734 = 40 P.L.R. 813 = I.L.R. (1938) Lah. 462 = 176 Ind. Cas. 410 (F.B.).

—Ss. 441 and 447—Accused taking forcible possession of complainant's house during his absence.

The complainant wanted to purchase a house and a sale-deed in respect of the house was duly registered in his favour. When the accused heard that the sale deed was going to be registered, they forcibly entered the house in question and broke a portion of a wall and forced open the lock which had been put upon the outer door of the house and thus having forcibly effected entry into the house, they made their women-folk occupy the house. When the complainant returned to the house after getting the sale deed registered, he found that his house had been forcibly taken possession of by the accused who began to abuse him and wanted to assault him if he came near them. Complainant thereupon filed a complaint charging these four persons with offence under Ss. 448, 352 and 506 of the Penal Code. It was found as a fact that the complainant was in actual physical possession of the house:

Held, that although it may be that the primary intention of the accused was to secure possession of the house, but in doing so by means of force and violence, they were certainly causing annoyance and insult to the complainant and the conduct of the accused in breaking a portion of the wall of the house and in smashing the lock which was put on the outer door of the house was such as to cause insult and annoyance to the complainant. It may be that the applicants believed in good faith that they had a genuine title to the house in dispute, but the fact that they believed that they had a legal title to the house would not justify them in taking the law in their own hands.

Held, further that the fact that the house was temporarily vacant did not make the offence of taking forcible possession of the house anytheless an offence of criminal trespass. A.I.R. 1934 Oudh 281 = 35 Cr.L.J. 964 = 11 O.W.N. 733 = 149 Ind. Cas. 368.

—Ss. 441 and 447—Where the complainant who was in possession of a land claimed occupancy rights and the accused landlords entered upon the land with intent to intimidate him and thereby to compel him to give up possession of the land:

Held, that an offence under S. 441 was committed by the accused. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 158 = 15 P.L.T. 92 = 13 Pat. 268 = 35 Cr.L.J. 1421 = 151 Ind. Cas. 344.

—Ss. 441 and 447—Slaughter house abolished by the Municipality—Accused slaughtering animals therein without the permission of the Municipality and with the intention of annoying the Municipal Committee is punishable under S. 447, I.P.C. (1933) 141 Ind. Cas. 543 = 15 N.L.J. 89 = 34 Cr.L.J. 224 (2).

—S. 447—Applicability—Entering cattle pound.

Entering the cattle pound with intent to commit an offence under S. 24, Cattle Trespass Act, amounts to criminal trespass within the meaning of S. 447 and entering the pound with intent to intimidate the person in charge of the pound amounts to an offence under S. 447. 103 Ind. Cas. 201 = 8 Lah. 331 = 9 L.L.J. 354 = 28 Cr.L.J. 665 = 28 P.L.R. 519 = 8 A.I.Cr.R. 293 = A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 495.

—S. 441—Entry by Income-tax officer—Inspection of accounts—Legality.

Although an Income-tax officer is empowered under S. 22 (4) of the Income-Tax Act to serve the proprietors of a firm with a notice to produce their accounts there is no provision of law by which he can insist on their producing the accounts if they decline to comply with the notice. He has no authority under the Act to enter the firm's premises in order to inspect the account or to remain on the premises for that purpose against the will of the proprietors and if he does so he commits criminal trespass and the proprietors have a right to forcibly turn him out as S. 99, Penal Code, would not deprive them of their right of private defence. 95 Ind. Cas. 308 = 7 Lah. 104 = 27 P.L.R. 298 = 27 Cr.L.J. 772 = A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 326.

—Ss. 441 and 456—Entry for sexual intercourse—Mere entry with intent to have sexual intercourse with a woman—No offence—Inmates unknown and startled at entry—Offence.

A mere entry into a house occupied by another with intent to carry on an intrigue or to have sexual intercourse with a woman living in that house will not in itself be a criminal trespass. In such a case it is supposed that the entry has been with the consent or connivance of the woman living in the house. However if she along with other inmates is in possession of the house, as in the case of a joint Hindu family, the trespass in the house must cause an insult and annoyance to the other members in the house. If the object is to force an intrigue upon a woman in the house and to have a forcible intercourse with her, the intention of the entry will necessarily be to insult and annoy that woman.

Where there was no pre-arrangement between the accused and any lady in the house and all the ladies in the house were startled at the bold attempt on the part of the accused to force himself into the house.

Held, that the intention of the accused was not to carry on a peaceful intrigue and intercourse with any of the ladies in the house and with the consent or connivance of any of one them, but the intention of the accused was to commit a criminal trespass into the house and an indecent and unjustifiable trespass upon the persons of the occupants of the house. 87 Ind. Cas. 106 = 4 Pat. 459 = 6 P.L.T. 588 = 26 Cr.L.J. 954 = A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 713.

—S. 441—Intention to cause annoyance.

To constitute criminal trespass as distinguished from a civil trespass there must be an intention by the trespasser to cause annoyance. Where a decree-holder under colour of enforcing his decree invades the privacy of the judgment debtor's household, he is guilty of an offence under S. 441, I.P.C. 73 Ind. Cas. 527 = 24 Cr.L.J. 639 = 4 Lah. L.J. 532.

—S. 441—Co-sharers.

A joint owner entering on the land intending or knowing that he is to commit an act wrongful to his fellow-owner is guilty of trespass. 33 All. 773 = 8 A.L.J. 927 = 12 Cr.L.J. 532 = 12 Ind. Cas. 300.

—Ss. 446 and 448—House trespass—Intention to commit specific offence—Proof of.

For a conviction under S. 448, it is not necessary to decide which of several offences the accused intended to commit. It is enough if the accused intended to commit an offence. 1 Weir 533, Foll. 21 M.L.J. 781 = 10 M.L.T. 118 = (1911) 2 M.W.N. 71 = 12 Cr.L.J. 453 = 11 Ind. Cas. 797.

—S. 447—Trespass upon agricultural land from which the trespassers had been ejected by due process of law.

Held, that a person who after having been ejected by due process of law from certain agricultural land, wilfully persisted in trespassing upon such land, was properly tried for and convicted of criminal trespass under S. 447. 1902 A.W.N. 6.

6. (c) Presumption of Intention.

—S. 447—Offence under—Proof of intention—Inference from circumstances.

It is no doubt true that nobody can be guilty of criminal trespass unless he committed the trespass with the particular intention. It would be almost impossible to produce direct evidence of the intention, and the intention has in most cases to be inferred from the circumstances.

Where persons having absolutely no interest in or connection with the land in the possession of others forcibly plough it in spite of the protests of the latter the probable consequence of their act is to cause annoyance to those in possession of the land and it will be presumed that they committed the trespass with that intention. 1949 A.L.J. 535 = 1950 A.W.R. 19 = 51 Cr.L.J. 496 = A.I.R. 1950 A. 157.

—Ss. 441 and 447—Presumption of Intention.

Accused intending to take possession of land in Zamindar's possession in high-handed manner—Trespass must have been with intent to annoy or insult Zamindar—Absence of Zamindar makes no difference. A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 473 = 1944 M.W.N. 436 = (1944) 2 M.L.J. 380.

—Ss. 441 and 447—Intention to annoy, if can be presumed.

A person who enters a house about which there is a dispute, in the absence of a person who is in possession of the house and take possession of it in assertion of his claim, must be deemed to have known that his conduct was bound to annoy the person in possession and legally he must be presumed to have the intention to 'annoy' at any rate. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 848 = 40 P.L.R. 757 = 40 Cr.L.J. 180 = 178 Ind. Cas. 911.

—S. 441—Insult or annoyance inevitable consequence of trespass—Presumption.

Where insult or annoyance is the inevitable consequence of the trespass committed by any accused, then he must be presumed to have intended to insult or annoy but where the insult or annoyance is only a remote consequence of the trespass and the accused has done everything in his power to avoid his presence being known to the person in possession, it cannot be said that he had an intention to insult or annoy the person in possession. A.I.R. 1937 Pesh. 92 = 39 Cr. L.J. 357 = 171 Ind. Cas. 346.

—S. 441—Section 441 is not to be construed in the sense that although there is no presumption that a person intends what is merely a possible result of his action or a result which, though reasonably certain, is not known to him to be so, still it must be presumed that when a man voluntarily does an act, knowing at the time that in the natural course of events a certain result will follow, he intends to bring about that result. A.I.R. 1936 Bom. 15 = 37 Bom. L.R. 880 = 59 Bom. 738 = 37 Cr.L.J. 309 (2) = 160 Ind. Cas. 515.

—Ss. 441 and 447—Intention to annoy—Presumption.

It is only when the predominant intention of the trespasser is to annoy the landlord and not to secure some advantage for himself, that presumption of trespass being with the intent to annoy the owner can be drawn. 1936 M.W.N. 523.

—Ss. 441 and 447—Presumption.

Re-entry of ejected tenants after execution of decree without the written consent would raise a presumption that they have done so with intent to intimidate or annoy within the meaning of S. 441. A.I.R. 1935 All. 938 = 1935 A.W.R. 1067 = 1935 A.L.J. 1108 = 37 Cr.L.J. 56 = 159 Ind. Cas. 306 = 1935 R. D. 491.

—Ss. 441 and 447—Knowledge that act must cause annoyance.

There must, in all cases, be found an intent to cause intimidation, insult or annoyance. A conviction cannot follow merely because one can pronounce with certainty that the accused must have known that his act would, as one of its inevitable incidents, cause annoyance. Each case must be dealt with on its own facts and on its own merits and where there is a dispute with regard to a wall and there is a false attempt to bolster up title and there is an entry upon the land and actual demolition of the wall, there is no reason whatever to interfere with the conviction under S. 447, because there was quite certainly an intention to commit mischief. A.I.R. 1935 Sind 203 = 37 Cr.L.J. 106 = 29 S.L.R. 424 = 159 Ind. Cas. 466.

—S. 447—Necessity of proof of intention to annoy, etc.

When a person commits trespass for the purpose of committing an offence, even then he would be guilty under S. 447, Penal Code. An intention to annoy, insult or intimidate may be proved by direct evidence and may be inferred from circumstances. The intention of the accused must be present before a conviction under S. 447, Penal Code, can follow. The mere fact that an accused might have the knowledge that his act would annoy, insult or intimidate the person in possession would not be sufficient. A.I.R. 1934 All. 1025 = 1934 A.L.J. 1061 = 36 Cr.L.J. 328 = 4 A.W.R. 794 = 153 Ind. Cas. 407.

—Ss. 441, 447 and 448—Person committing trespass with knowledge that his action will cause annoyance.

The word 'intent' does not mean ultimate aim and object. Nor is it used as a synonym for motive.

Where a person commits trespass with the knowledge that his action will certainly cause annoyance, he must be held to have intended to cause annoyance although he may also have had other intentions and he is guilty of an offence under S. 448, I.P.C. —Ss. 441 and 447—Knowledge that annoyance will be caused by seizing a part of an area by force.

Where a person must have known that he would constantly cause annoyance by seizing a part of a land by force, he can be held to have committed the offence of criminal trespass. A.I.R. 1933 Oudh 469 = 10 O.W.N. 1078 = 35 Cr.L.J. 124 = 146 Ind. Cas. 630 (1).

—S. 441—Obstruction in cultivation—Accused obstructing tenant having title in cultivation of field—Offence.

Where the accused wishes to obstruct the person who has the title, not by legitimate means but by going upon the land and obstructing his tenants in cultivation of the field, it is clearly a case where the natural consequences of the accused's act would be to annoy the tenant and the landlord and the claim cannot be said to be a bona fide one: 26 Bom. 558, Foll.; 35 Mad. 186, not Foll. 112 Ind. —S. 441—Absence of Intention—Entering stealthily—No intent to annoy.

A person entering another's house after having taken all precautions to avoid discovery cannot be said to have entered with intent to cause annoyance to the persons in possession. 96 Ind. Cas. 871 = 27 P.L.R. 385 = 27 Cr.L.J. 1015 = A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 600.

—S. 447—Intention—Civil and criminal trespass—Distinction—Inference of intention—Circumstances of the case.

The essence of the offence for which a man can be convicted under S. 447 of the Indian Penal Code lies in the intent of the accused to commit an offence or to intimidate, insult or annoy any person in possession of the property with reference to which the trespass is made. A trespass as an actionable wrong giving rise to a cause of action for a claim in a Civil Court must be distinguished from criminal trespass and it is only criminal trespass which is punishable by S. 447 of the Indian Penal Code. There may be an intent to annoy without any primary desire to annoy. A man is presumed to intend the natural consequences of his acts, and if annoyance must inevitably attend his acts, and he does those acts without any reasonable justification he must be held to intend to annoy, even though he has no desire to do so, and his only desire is to obtain some advantage for himself. Whether a man should be presumed to have intended the natural consequences of his acts, when the intention impelling the commission of the act is stated to be one by the prosecution and another by the accused, is a question of inference to be drawn from all the circumstances of the case, and to do that, is the primary duty of the Trial Court. When either of the two explanations of the act of the accused is equally or more or less reasonable the finding must be one of doubt as to the intention of the accused. 75 Ind. Cas. 292 = A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 297 = 24 Cr.L.J. 916.

—S. 441—Intention of the nature described in the section.

Trespass is an offence under S. 441 only if it is committed with one of the intents specified in the section and proof that a trespass committed with some other object known to the accused to be likely or certain to cause insult or annoyance is insufficient to sustain a conviction. Where the servant of a landlord illegally takes possession of tenant's land with the main object of illegally ejecting the tenant an intention to annoy cannot be presumed; at the same time there may be circumstances which may raise a direct inference of an intention to annoy the tenant. 26 A. 194; 41 M. 156; 40 A. 221, Foll. 76 Ind. Cas. 1033 = 25 Cr.L.J. 313 = A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 342.

—Ss. 441, 443, 448 and 509—House trespass—Intention to annoy—Inference—Onus.

Where it is proved that a person has been found lurking at night inside the house of another person, a perfect stranger to him, or a person in whose house he has no apparent business, the inference of a guilty intention under S. 441, I.P.C., can be drawn. The entry must presumably have been with intent to commit some offence and if the accused pleads that his intention was neither to commit an offence nor to intimidate any person in possession of the house, the onus is on him to prove that particular intent. If it is proved that the accused entered so as to carry on a secret intrigue with a certain woman in intrigue with the trespasser in the house, then it is difficult to say whether there is intention to annoy a third person but if the third person shuts his door against him and the intruder enters against the prohibition, then there is an intention to annoy. 40 All. 221 = 16 A.L.J. 153 = 20 Cr.L.J. 119 = 49 Ind. Cas. 103.

—S. 441—Intent to annoy—Breaking open house.

An intent to annoy is essential to constitute an offence under S. 441 but it is not negatived by the existence of some other intention also. 35 Mad. 186, Foll. A person breaking open a house which has been delivered through Court to the complainant, must know that serious mental annoyance will be caused by his acts and is guilty of an offence under S. 441. 19 Cr.L.J. 117 = 43 Ind. Cas. 405 (Mad.).

—Ss. 441 and 457—Intention to annoy—Inference.

The accused broke open into a house during the owner's absence, assaulted the servants and took forcible possession with the object of establishing his title.

Held (Per Benson, J.) that as the natural consequence of his act was to annoy the owner and as a man must be deemed to intend the natural though not the probable consequence of his act, he must be deemed to have intended to annoy the owner and so his conviction under S. 457 was right. (Per Sankara Nair, J.) though there was no intention to annoy the complainant the conviction was right as there was an intention to commit an offence by using criminal force to the servants. 35 Mad. 186 = 21 M.L.J. 161 = 9 M.L.T. 283 = 12 Cr.L.J. 30 = 9 Ind. Cas. 152.

—S. 441—Trespass—'Intent', meaning of—Innocent entry—Absence of intention—Presumption—Consequences.

A decree-holder when proceeding to execute his decree found the house of the judgment-debtor shut. He, therefore, effected an entry into the latter's compound by passing through the complainant's house without his consent and notwithstanding his protest. The complainant thereupon charged him with criminal trespass with intent to annoy the complainant.

Held, that the accused was guilty of trespass, because when he trespassed on the complainant's house notwithstanding his protest, he must as a reasonable man have known that he would annoy the complainant. Mere knowledge of the possibility of annoyance resulting from an act of trespass is not sufficient to bring the case within the definition of trespass as contained in S. 441. The word intend in the section is not to be taken as identical with 'wish' or 'desire'. Although there is no presumption that a person intends what is merely a possible result of his action or a result which though reasonably certain is not known to him to be so, still it must be presumed that when a man voluntarily does an act knowing at the time that in the natural course of events a certain result will follow he intends to bring about that result. (1902) 4 Bom. L.R. 280 = 26 B. 558.

—S. 441—Annoyance—Natural consequences—Intention.

If the inevitable consequence of the act of the accused in breaking open a house of the accused be serious mental annoyance to the complainant, then the intention to cause such annoyance follows the knowledge of the accused and such annoyance must be caused by their act; 35 Mad. 186, Foll. 9 Cr.L.R. 196 (Mad.).

A Criminal Court is not entitled to disregard the decree of a Civil Court declaring rights to the identical property in dispute in a case before it.

Where a person is charged with having carried away the usufruct of a tamarind tree in the possession and enjoyment of the complainant and there is a decree of a Civil Court declaring the right and title of the complainant to the said tamarind tree, the Magistrate is not entitled to disregard the decree and acquit the accused. 1948 M.W.N. 62 (2) = A.I.R. 1948 Mad. 49 = 48 Cr.L.J. 1002 (1) = 60 L. When in the absence of the complainant, certain persons took possession of her house and established there a boy, alleged to be the adopted son of the complainant's father, and the complainant thereafter lodged a complaint of criminal house-trespasser and theft and the Deputy Magistrate convicted the accused of criminal house trespass but not of theft, holding that the articles taken away could not be satisfactorily identified, and although the accused claimed the articles as their own, ordered to make over the articles as well as possession of the house to the complainant.

Held, that the case is one not of criminal but of civil trespass, that the Deputy Magistrate should not have ordered the articles to be delivered to the complainant, and further that the provisions of S. 522, Cr.P.C., do not warrant the passing of an order delivering possession of the house to the complainant because the accused were not convicted of any offence attended by criminal force. (1906) 7 C.L.J. 175 = 12 C.W.N. 269.

That under the circumstances the fact that the accused set up a title to the land did not make the case against him one of a civil nature and take it outside the jurisdiction of a criminal court. —S. 441—Offence under—Breaking open padlocks of a room during owner's absence and refusing to vacate.

A person who breaks open the padlocks of a room during the absence of the owner and when asked by the owner to vacate refuses to do so and threatens to assault him, commits the offence of criminal trespass under S. 441, I.P. Code. 85 C.L.J. 200 = A.I.R. 1950 Cal. 410 = 51 Cr. L.J. 1496.

—Ss. 441 and 447—Party in possession absent.

Constructive possession is included in the word 'possession' in S. 441 and a trespasser cannot be heard to say he could not have caused annoyance merely because the party in possession of the trespassed premises was absent at the time of the trespass. A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 560 = 1931 M.W.N. 328 = 34 L.W. 527 = 33 Cr.L.J. 145 (1) = 135 Ind. Cas. 542.

9. (b) Possession—Nature of.

—S. 441—Possession—If should be actual.

Possession within the meaning of S. 441, I.P. Code, means actual possession and not constructive possession. So when a house is vacant, though the owner may be in constructive possession of it in as much as the owner had the legal right to possession, he is not in actual possession of it and if a stranger enters into possession of it, he cannot be said to be guilty of house-trespass. The offence of criminal trespass can only be committed against a person who is in actual physical possession of the land in question. 110 Ind. Cas. 681 = 3 Luck. 661 = 11 A.I.Cr.R. 39 = 29 Cr.L.J. 745 = 5 O.W.N. 598 = 1929 Cr.C. 345 = A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 369.

—S. 441—Possession.

Section 441 does not require the land to be in the actual possession of the complainant: 21 Bom. 536, Foll. 112 Ind. Cas. 97 = 30 Bom. L.R. 631 = 29 Cr.L.J. 977 = 11 A.I.Cr. R. 233 = A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 221.

—S. 448—Entry after formal possession—No offence.

Where a dakhalnama only gave formal possession of the house to the complainant against the accused,

Held: that the accused by entering or remaining on the land was not liable to be convicted: 2 All. 465 Foll. 88 Ind. Cas. 357 = 26 Cr.L.J. 1125 = 6 L.R.A.Cr. 104 = A.I.R. 1925 All. 592.

—Ss. 441 and 447—Actual and formal possession—Offence.

The bare defence "I have not given up and I will not give up actual possession though I have been legally ejected" is tantamount to and should be treated as a plea of guilty when the complaint is one of trespass. 83 Ind. Cas. 719 = 5 L.R.A.Cr. 147 = 26 Cr.L.J. 159 = A.I.R. 1924 All. 762.

—S. 448—Trespass—Building not in possession of complainant—Accused starting a school—Conviction.

A school was built by public subscription and put in charge of a teacher. He went away having locked the building. The accused, the managers of the school, took possession of the building and started certain classes.

Held: that they could not be convicted of trespass as the building was not in possession of the complainant and the accused had no intention of annoying him. 17 A.L.J. 334 = 20 Cr.L.J. 463 = 51 Ind. Cas. 351.

—S. 441—Disobedience to notice of ejectment.

Physical and not judicial or constructive possession of the complainant is necessary to criminal trespass and any disobedience to notice of ejectment is not a criminal trespass. 17 Cr.L.J. 378 = 8 L.B.R. 425 = 10 Bur. L.T. 77 = 35 Ind. Cas. 810.

—S. 441—Possession—Nature of.

Possession within S. 441 must be actual possession. 12 A.L.J. 151 = 14 Cr.L.J. 633 = 21 Ind. Cas. 681.

—S. 447—Possession, what is—Possession, actual and peaceful—Trespass, criminal—C.P. Code (Act 14 of 1882), S. 318—Delivery of possession—Acquiescence.

A forcible entry upon land, which had been sold in execution of a money decree and of which actual possession had been given to the purchaser under S. 318 of the Code of Civil Procedure, without resistance or opposition and over which the purchaser had thereafter exercised acts of possession, by subtenants claiming under a lease of an antecedent date from the judgment-debtor, constitutes criminal trespass. (1904) 1 C.L.J. 104.

9. (c) Person in possession—Who is.

—Ss. 448, 379—Removal of cattle belonging to deceased by his heir and servant from the possession of the concubine of deceased—Conviction under Ss. 379 and 448 is illegal. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 674 = 1941 M.W.N. 463 (2) = 42 Cr.L.J. 896 = 196 Ind. Cas. 541.

Held, offence of criminal trespass not made out. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 248 = 16 P.L.T. 847 = 37 Cr.L.J. 513 = 102 Ind. Cas. 22 = 2 B.R. 402.

—Ss. 441 and 447—Where the business was in possession of managing partner and he has died, remaining partner must be presumed to be in possession. 1935 M.W.N. 48.

—S. 441—Possession of property.

In a prosecution for criminal trespass, it is necessary to determine in whose possession the property was at the date of the alleged trespass. 19 Cr.L.J. 761 = 41 Ind. Cas. 137 (Mad.).

—S. 441—Person claiming to be heir—Taking property by force.

A person claiming to be heir of the deceased person is not justified in taking the law into his own hands and taking possession of his property by force from a person who is actually in possession of it. 11 P.L.R. 1910 = 11 Cr.L.J. 364 = 41 P.W.R. 1910 Cr. = 6 Ind. Cas. 490.

9. (d) Under decree of Court.

—Ss. 441 and 447—Inhabited house—Delivery of possession—How to be made—Actual possession not delivered to purchaser—Forcible entry by him—Whether criminal trespass.

In order to effect delivery of possession of an inhabited house, it is necessary to eject the former occupier, delivery of possession of the house not being a mere formal act effected by beating a drum and putting up a notice. Where the certificate-debtor makes a forcible entry into the house, possession whereof has not actually been delivered to the purchaser, the former cannot be treated as having committed an act of criminal trespass. A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 355 = 16 P.L.T. 361 = 36 Cr. L.J. 860 (1) = 1 B.R. 520 = 155 Ind. Cas. 908.

—S. 447—Delivery of formal possession, effect of.

When the complainant has exhausted the resources of the civil tribunals by obtaining formal possession, it is highly desirable that he should receive assistance from the Criminal Courts and an interference with an order of acquittal passed on a mistaken view of the law is proper and justifiable in such a case.

When a person knows that possession has been delivered in execution of a warrant obtained against him, his possession is at an end. The object of the formal delivery of possession is that, after such delivery, the decree-holder may have possession, interference with which is prohibited by the criminal law. A.I.R. 1933 Nag. 36 = 28 N.L.R. 298 = 34 Cr.L.J. 145 = 141 Ind. Cas. 273.

—Ss. 441 and 447—Possession given under Civil Court's decree binds party to suit in possession—Absence of judgment-debtor at the time of giving possession—Effect.

If possession is given under a Court's decree or order that possession binds a party to the suit, who was formerly in possession. This rule applies to symbolical possession also, and there is no authority for the proposition that the mere absence of the judgment-debtor at the time of giving possession affects the validity of such possession; nor does prior possession of the land by the accused, and his predecessor-in-title: 1 Bom. L.R. 48: A.I.R. 1917 P.C. 197 and A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 27, Foll. 112 Ind. Cas. 97 = 30 Bom. L.R. 631 = 29 Cr.L.J. 977 = 11 A.L.Cr.R. 233 = A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 221.

—S. 441—Agra Tenancy Act, S. 95—Tenant re-entering—Decree for ejectment—Execution before the time prescribed by S. 94—Re-entry by tenant—Tenant if guilty.

Where a decree for ejectment of the tenant was executed before the time fixed by S. 94 of the A.T. Act but the tenant subsequently re-entered upon the land, Held, that the ejectment being illegal, the tenant must be considered to have been legally in possession and cannot be convicted of criminal trespass. 112 Ind. Cas. 680 = 1927 A.L.J. 92 = 29 Cr.L.J. 1096.

—S. 441—Criminal trespass—Joint owner—Possession.

A joint owner of property is entitled to have joint possession restored to him in a Civil Court, but he is not justified to take the law into his own hands to recover the possession and if he does so he becomes liable for criminal trespass. (1908) 10 Bom. L.R. 285 = 7 Cr.L.J. 309.

9. (e) Miscellaneous.

—S. 447—Trespassers coming into possession—Possession of rightful owner, whether lost.

Possession is not lost because trespassers come without licence and plough the land. It would put the rightful owner of land in an almost impossible position if after getting possession of the land through a civil Court, a single act of trespass is deemed sufficient to take away his possession and to deprive him of recourse to the Criminal Courts. Consequently, the rightful owner can file a complaint for the second act of trespass even though at the time he was deprived of the possession by the trespassers. (1936) 162 I.C. 813 = 18 N.L.J. 307 = 37 Cr.L.J. 720.

—Ss. 441 and 447—Possession with applicant—Distribution of land among villagers—Applicant out of possession—Respondent in possession—Applicant returning to possession—Complaint for criminal trespass, if maintainable—Remedy of respondent—Specific Relief Act (1 of 1877), S. 9.

For eight years, the first applicant had been cultivating an area of alluvial land. When the first applicant had been in possession of this area of land for a period of eight years, and a certain co-operative society had, through him, obtained some rights in this land, then, under the orders of the Sub-Divisional Officer, a body of thamadis distributed these alluvial lands among certain villagers, with the result that they purported to dispossess the first applicant of the land of which he had been in possession for eight years. The respondent was granted this area of land by the lugyis, and apparently, one year after this distribution he managed to get possession of it and to cultivate it. The next year, the first applicant, with his servants, the second and third applicants, returned to possession of it again and for this, they were convicted of the offence of criminal trespass:

Held, that the prosecution was quite unsustainable, for it is clear that the first applicant entered into possession again, after having been in possession for a period of eight years and having been dispossessed for only one year, in exercise of a bona fide claim of right to possession of this land. What the respondent should have done when he was dispossessed by the applicants re-entering into possession was to have brought a suit under S. 9, Specific Relief Act, and it was not open to him to bring a prosecution in the Criminal Courts. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 116 = 37 Cr.L.J. 527 = 161 Ind. Cas. 993.

—Ss. 441 and 447—The Commissioners for the Port of Rangoon are not the absolute owners of the property vested in them, but are in possession thereof subject to the provisions of the Rangoon Port Act and consequently, the Port Commissioners have no right, apart from the provisions of the Act and of the bye-laws, to exclude any member of the public from using public landing places. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 232 = 37 Cr.L.J. 829 = 163 Ind. Cas. 235.

—S. 441—Trespasser—Right of true owner to re-enter—Use of limited force.

A mere trespasser cannot, by the very act of trespass, immediately and without acquiescence give himself possession against the person whom he ejects, and drive him to produce his title, if he can, without delay reinstate himself in his former possession. The owner may, if he does not acquiesce, re-enter upon the land and reinstate himself provided he does not use more force than is necessary. He must not commit a breach of the peace. His entry will be viewed as a resistance to an intrusion upon a possession which he had never lost. If he takes the risk of a forcible entry and uses more violence than is necessary he will not be able to plead the right of private defence: but he cannot be sued by the trespasser who has entered by force or fraud either for recovery of possession under S. 9, Specific Relief Act, or for ejectment upon the strength of his temporary prior possession. Therefore, possession being still with the owner, he can prosecute the intruder for committing trespass within the meaning of S. 441. 106 Ind. Cas. 691 = 6 Pat. 794 = 29 Cr.L.J. 99 = 9 A.I.Cr.R. 258 = A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 124.

—S. 441—Entry with consent of person asserting claim to property.

To enter upon a vacant piece of land with the consent of a person who asserts his title thereto as against a rival claimant, and to put up a water-pandal do not amount to the offence of criminal trespass, though the land may not be in the possession of the person permitting the act but in that of the complainant. 83 Ind. Cas. 1003 = 1924 M.W.N. 546 = 26 Cr.L.J. 219 = A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 862 = 47 M.L.J. 437.

—S. 441—Trespass—Possession—Right to—Determination of.

The essence of the offence under S. 447, I.P.C., is unlawful entry into land in the possession of a person other than the accused. Where the accused is found to be in possession, no offence is committed. Mere assertion by a person of his right to be in possession is no offence. 19 Cr.L.J. 629 = 45 Ind. Cas. 677 (Pat.).

—Ss. 441 and 429—Order regarding possession of immovable property.

The accused were tried for offences under Ss. 447 and 426, I.P.C., for cutting and removing some bamboos from a bamboo clump belonging to the complainant. The trying Magistrate acquitted the accused but directed that the complainant should retain possession of the bamboo clump until ousted by Civil Court. The order was illegal. 20 C.W.N. 1302 = 18 Cr. L.J. 442 = 38 Ind. Cas. 1002.

—S. 441—Order prohibiting possession being taken by complainant—Trespass impossible.

A trespass on the property in the possession of the complainant cannot be sustained in face of an order prohibiting him from taking possession. 8 M.L.T. 289 = 11 Cr.L.J. 644 = 8 Ind. Cas. 397.

—S. 447—Forcible ouster of mortgagee in possession on pretext of want of title in the mortgagor.

Where the complainant, the purchaser of the rights of a mortgagee in possession, and his predecessor in title had been peacefully in possession of certain agricultural land for some years, and a relation of the mortgagor forcibly ousted the complainant on the plea that he was under the Hindu Law entitled to a share in the land, and the mortgagor had no title to make a mortgage thereof with possession.

Held, that the action of the dispossessor amounted to criminal trespass and of a somewhat aggravated kind likely to lead to breach of the peace and rioting. 1902 A.W.N. 42.

10. Procedure.

—Ss. 441 and 447—Summary trial.

Where in a case under S. 447, the only point of law that has been hinted at is that the trespass, if any, was committed, not on Railway land but on land belonging to the P.W.D., then a contest on this point, even assuming that it has an important bearing on the merits of the case does not make the case one which should not be tried summarily. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 467 = I.L.R. (1939) Lah. 221 = 41 P.L.R. 743 = 41 Cr.L.J. 19 = 184 Ind. Cas. 458.

—S. 447—Doubt expressed as to such cases being tried by Bench Courts.

It is doubtful if disposal of cases coming under S. 447 can be entrusted to Bench Courts as there is difficulty felt by Bench Courts in distinguishing between cases of civil trespass and cases of criminal trespass. A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 480 = 1937 M.W.N. 323 = 45 L.W. 471 = 38 Cr.L.J. 581 (1) = 168 Ind. Cas. 703.

—S. 442—Substitution of conviction under S. 442 for one under S. 441—Legality of.

The offence described in S. 442 of the Penal Code is more serious than that described in S. 441. It is indeed an aggravation of the offence described in S. 441 for the reason that there is likely to be a greater degree of annoyance and inconvenience involved by the invasion of the amenities or privacy of persons dwelling in any building, or tent or vessel of the kind contemplated by S. 442. As this offence is more serious than the offence under S. 441, it is not open to the Sessions Judge to make a substitution of conviction under S. 442 for one under S. 441. A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 480 = 35 Cr.L.J. 949 = 38 C.W.N. 665 = 149 Ind. Cas. 431.

—Ss. 448 and 341—Accused convicted under S. 448—Accused putting forward every fact required for conviction under S. 341—Alteration of conviction to one under S. 341 :

Held, that if the charge were altered from one under S. 448 to one under S. 341, Penal Code, the accused could not be prejudiced. A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 256 = 38 Cr.L.J. 989 = 170 Ind. Cas. 909.

—S. 448—Procedure—Intention to cause annoyance not expressly found—Procedure under S. 256, Cr.P.C., not followed—Effect.

Where in a case under S. 448 the Magistrate did not expressly find that the accused intended to cause annoyance and further omitted to follow the requirements of S. 256, Cr.P.C., in that the accused was not called upon to enter upon his defence and produce his evidence, the proceedings were quashed: 5 S.L.R. 29, Rel. on, 101 Ind. Cas. 457 = 8 A.I.Cr.R. 50 = 28 Cr.L.J. 425 = A.I.R. 1927 Sind 261.

—S. 442—Conviction without charge.

Accused committed house trespass or even house-breaking because they broke into the house of the deceased in order to give her a beating, but they were not tried for house-breaking and therefore they might be prejudiced if they were convicted of that offence. 75 Ind. Cas. 733 = 6 L.L.J. 486 = 25 Cr. L. J. 45 = A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 436.

11. Sentence.

—S. 445—Sentence—House breaking to commit adultery—Whipping.

The offence of outraging a woman's modesty not being punishable with whipping, house-breaking in order to commit that offence cannot be so punished. 89 Ind. Cas. 146 = 6 L.R.A.Cr. 135 = 23 A.L.J. 894 = 26 Cr.L.J. 1282 = A.I.R. 1925 All. 591.

—Ss. 448 and 297—Quaere.

It is very doubtful whether those accused who are guilty of an offence under S. 297 can be convicted under S. 448 as well and awarded a separate sentence on a charge of trespass so framed. A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 414 = 21 P.L.T. 121 = 6 B.R. 874 = 41 Cr.L.J. 810 = 189 Ind. Cas. 867.

—S. 447—Sentence—Consecutive sentences—If proper.

When the accused enter into a Hindu Temple and damage its property, the offence under S. 447 is inseparable from that under S. 295 and it is improper to pass consecutive sentences for each of the offences under sections, for both really are one and same offence. 82 Ind. Cas. 37 = 25 Cr.L.J. 1173 = A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 50.

—Ss. 447 and 147—Sentences separate—"Intention" and "common object" identical. See CR.P.CODE., S. 35, ILL. 8 C.W.N. 305.

12. Trespass to commit offence.

—S. 441—Accused entering house of woman with deadly weapon to commit cognizable offence—Woman not known to be of low character.

Where there is nothing to suggest that the woman into whose house the accused had entered was of low character and where it could reasonably be suspected that the offender had entered the house either to commit theft or rape or any other offence, any person is justified in trying to arrest the accused and if he is armed with a dagger they would be justified in causing his death, if necessary. A.I.R. 1937 Pesh. 92 = 39 Cr.L.J. 35 = 171 Ind. Cas. 346.

—Ss. 441 and 447—Entry lawful—Offence committed is independent of entry or remaining there—Where entry is lawful and whatever offence may be committed, it is independent of the question of the entry into the house or remaining there, there is no mens rea in respect of such remaining. If on a person entering a house at the invitation of another, a quarrel breaks out between them in the house, the offence of trespass is not committed. A.I.R. 1936 Nag. 176 = 1936 Cr.C. 718.

—S. 447—Offence within court compound—Wrongful restraint—No trespass—Nature of offence.

Where the accused wrongfully restrained the complainant, an arrack renter, from going and bidding at the arrack sales held in the Sub-Magistrate's office and abused him :

Held, that the facts constitute the offences defined in Ss. 341 and 504 but no offence under S. 447 is made out on these facts. 74 Ind. Cas. 856 = 18 M.L.W. 181 = 1923 M.W.N. 451 = 33 M.L.T. 184 = 24 Cr.L.J. 824 = A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 40.

—S. 448—Trespass for assault—Trespass for purpose of assaulting complainant—Offence.

Trespass into the shop of the complainant for the purpose of assaulting the complainants is not sufficient to support a conviction under Section 452, though it might be for a conviction under Section 448. 76 Ind. Cas. 392 = 38 C.L.J. 161 = 25 Cr.L.J. 168 = A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 556.

—S. 441—Mischief after entering on land.

Trespass includes the mischief which the trespasser commits after entering on the land. 23 M.L.J. 618 = 12 M.L.T. 538 = (1912) M.W.N. 1229 = 17 Ind. Cas. 605.

—S. 448—Breach of peace—Whether a necessary result.

An offence under S. 448 of the Penal Code is not an offence of which breach of peace is a necessary ingredient, and so it is not an offence causing a breach of peace, within the meaning of S. 106, I.P.C. 19 M.L.J. 66 = 9 Cr.L.J. 88 = 4 M.L.T. 468 = 4 Ind. Cas. 616.

—S. 447—Public nuisance—Criminal trespass—Conviction on charge not framed—See S. 290. 5 C.W.N. 567.

13. Who can complain.

—S. 441—Who can complain—Proprietor through his licensee or through tenant.

A proprietor may be in physical possession of the property or he may be in possession within the meaning of S. 441, I.P.C. through his licensee or tenant. Where the accused trespasses on the land which is in possession of the proprietor through his licensee or tenant, with intent to cause annoyance to the proprietor, the accused is guilty under S. 441, I.P.C. A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 104 = 1941 O.W.N. 1300 = 1941 A.W.R. 393 = 43 Cr.L.J. 162 = 197 Ind. Cas. 401.

—S. 447—Offences in respect of land in possession of sub-tenants—Mortgagee entitled to possession.

The complainant was entitled to the possession of the plots under a mortgage which was subsisting but he had let out the plots to certain sub-tenants who were ejected by the accused after committing offence under S. 447:

Held, that the person entitled to possession and indeed anybody was entitled to file complaint. A.I.R. 1934 All. 1025 = 1934 A.L.J. 1961 = 36 Cr.L.J. 328 = 4 A.W.R. 794 = 153 Ind. Cas. 407.

—S. 447—Who can complain—Trespass on land in tenant's possession—Complaint by landlord—Maintainability.

Where accused has entered upon property in the possession of a tenant with intent to commit an offence or to intimidate, insult or annoy that tenant,

Held, that he is clearly guilty of an offence of criminal trespass and a complaint by the landlord is sufficient to set the law in motion just as much as a complaint by the tenant. 69 Ind. Cas. 379 = A.I.R. 1924 Lab. 286. 23 Cr.L.J. 699

—S. 441—Who can complain—Possession with tenant—Landlord if can complain.

"Any person in possession" in Section 441 does not mean only "a complainant in possession", there being no authority for taking the offences of mischief and criminal trespass out of the general rule which allows any person to complain of a criminal act. Hence a landlord can file the complaint although that property was in the possession of a tenant. 22 Cal. 123, Expl. 62 Ind. Cas. 190 = 33 C.L.J. 118 = 25 C.W.N. 425 = 22 Cr.L.J. 494 = A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 627.

—S. 441—Criminal trespass—Complainant not in actual possession.

It is competent to a person not in possession to make a complaint to a Magistrate in respect of the offence of trespass, even though that offence is alleged to have been committed against a third person. S. 441, I.P.C., does not restrict the offence to cases where the person in actual physical possession is insulted, intimidated or annoyed. 3 U.B.R. (1918) 111 = 20 Cr. L.J. 115 = 49 Ind. Cas. 99.

14. Miscellaneous.

—S. 447—Accused lawfully ejected from plot but still retaining physical possession—His possession is illegal—Rightful owner taking possession when plot found empty—Accused forcibly ousting him is guilty under S. 447—Primary intent in such cases is to intimidate and secondary object to enforce possession. A.I.R. 1939 Oudh 45 = 1938 O.W.N. 1361 = 40 Cr.L.J. 183 = 1939 A.W.R. 11 = 14 Luck. 360 = 179 Ind. Cas. 269.

—Ss. 441 and 447—District Magistrate rescinding order passed under S. 144, Cr.P.C.—It is not a licence to commit trespass or riot. A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 314 = 40 Cr.L.J. 337 = 180 Ind. Cas. 335.

—S. 447—Previous order under S. 144, Criminal P.C.

Where, by an order under S. 144, Criminal P.C., a person was restrained for doing a particular act on a particular land, it is relevant to consider that order in a trial under S. 447, I.P.C., for an offence alleged to have been committed by that person for the purpose of testing bona fides of the person against whom that order was made, although that order may not be taken into consideration for establishing the possession of the complainant. A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 131 = 4 B.R. 330 = 39 Cr.L.J. 361 = 173 Ind. Cas. 747.

—Ss. 441 and 447—Property—Ferry boat, if property.

The definition given in S. 441 is wide enough to cover a ferry boat which is 'property' within the meaning of that section. Consequently, there can be a criminal trespass within the meaning of S. 447 to a boat. A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 480 = 38 C.W.N. 665 = 35 Cr.L.J. 949 = 149 Ind. Cas. 431.

—S. 442—Use covered by section—Question of fact.

Whether any particular structure or any part of it was intended as a human dwelling or as a place of worship or for custody of property must necessarily depend on the facts of each case. 111 Ind. Cas. 459 = 22 S.L.R. 46 = 29 Cr.L.J. 875 = A.I.R. 1929 Sind. 17.

—S. 441—Continuing offence—Unlawful entry on property and remaining there—Nature of offence.

The continuance in possession of a trespasser is a recurring wrong and constitutes a new entry every time that the true owner goes upon the land or as near to it as he dares to make a claim to it. There is a fresh cause of action each time he is resisted and the persons entering subsequently with the permission of the first trespassers and resisting the entry of the owner are equally guilty. 106 Ind. Cas. 691 = 6 Pat. 784 = 29 Cr. L.J. 99 = 9 A.I. Cr. 258 = A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 124.

—S. 442—Entry—Meaning.

The mere putting of a hand into a hole in the wall without putting it through the hole is not an entry into the house within the meaning of S. 442. 77 Ind. Cas. 446 = 4 Lah. 399 = 25 Cr.L.J. 398 = A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 509.

—S. 447—Attempt and preparation—Distinction between—Scaling roof—Theft—Offence.

Where the accused was detected on the roof of a bazaar with an open clasp knife in his hands and two gunny bags and it was found that he had come there with the intention of committing theft.

Held, that the matter had not proceeded beyond the stage of preparation, the accused could not be convicted under Ss. 457 and 511, I.P.C. but under S. 447 only. 20 Cr.L.J. 571 = 12 Bur. L.T. 222 = 10 L.B.R. 51 = 52 Ind. Cas. 59.

—S. 441—Private defence—Right how long exercisable.

In the case of criminal trespass, the right of private defence continues so long as the trespass continues, and is controlled by S. 99, Penal Code. It extends to causing death in case the act of trespasser causes a reasonable apprehension that death or grievous hurt may result. 60 Ind. Cas. 33 = 22 Cr.L.J. 177 (Pat.).

—S. 447—Trespass upon land used as a pathway—Question of title to the land.

In a case brought against the accused for trespass upon land used by the complainant as a pathway, when a question of title to the land is raised between the parties, the accused cannot be convicted under S. 447, merely on the finding that the complainant has been using the pathway for more than six months, the question of title being left undecided. (1906) 11 C.W.N. 171 = 5 Cr.L.J. 14.

—S. 451. See also PENAL CODE, S. 457.

—Ss. 451 and 40—Criminal trespass—Commission of offence under Penal Code punishable with less than six months, imprisonment—Conviction under S. 451, legality of.

For the purposes of S. 451, I.P.C., any offence punishable under the I.P.C. is an 'offence' even though it is not punishable with imprisonment for more than six months. It is only an offence which is punishable under a special or a local law that must be punishable with imprisonment of six months or more before it can be considered to be an offence within the meaning of S. 451. A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 405 = 32 Cr.L.J. 732 = 131 Ind. Cas. 381.

—S. 451—Human dwelling—Meaning.

Where the question is whether a courtyard forming an integral and indivisible part of a house and surrounded by walls on all sides is a "building used as a human dwelling" within the meaning of S. 451, the determining factor is not the existence of the shutters, or the fact that the door was shut or open, at the time of entry by the accused, but the nature of the structure as a whole, and the purpose for which it was intended to be and was being used. 121 Ind. Cas. 427 = 31 Cr.L.J. 268 = A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 414.

—S. 451—Entry for adultery—House trespass with intent to commit offence of adultery—Absence of husband on business—Presumption of consent—If justifiable.

A man who enters the house of another at night with intent to commit adultery with his wife is guilty of an offence under S. 451, and if in such a case it is shown that the husband was at the time of the occurrence absent from the house in the legitimate pursuit of his occupation, it may safely be presumed that he neither consented to nor connived at any adultery or immorality on the part of his wife: 22 Cr.L.J. 266 Foll. 89 Ind. Cas. 319 = 26 Cr.L.J. 1343 = A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 635.

—S. 451—Absence of husband on business—Presumption of consent—If justifiable.

Where a person enters the house of another at night to commit adultery with his wife he is guilty under S. 451 and if it is found that the husband was in the legitimate pursuit of his occupation, he cannot be presumed to have connived at or consented to, the immorality. 60 Ind. Cas. 666 = 22 Cr.L.J. 266 = 3 U.P.L.R. (Lah.) 18.

—S. 451—Absence of husband—Offence.

Where in K's absence from home the accused entered the house with his wife's consent in order to commit adultery with her.

Held, that he was guilty of an offence under S. 451 of the Code. 59 Ind. Cas. 550 = 22 Cr.L.J. 118 = 8 P.W.R. 1921 (Cr.).

—S. 451—Entry made with consent—Husband neither complainant nor witness—Whether offence.

Entry in a house with the consent of owner and possessor is no offence under S. 451, so that a charge under that section cannot be sustained, where the husband appeared neither as a complainant nor as witness and it was not shown that the house was in his possession or that he had not connived at the entry. 1 O.L.J. 48 = 15 Cr.L.J. 351 = 23 Ind. Cas. 703.

—S. 451—Intention—Absence of complainant at the time of offence—Inference.

"Although there is no presumption that a person intends what is merely a possible result of his action, or a result which though reasonably certain is not known to him to be so, still it must be presumed that when a man voluntarily does an act knowing at the time that in the natural course of events a certain result will follow he intends to bring about that result."

But where complainant was absent when the act was done.

Held, there was not such practical certainty of annoyance being caused at its result as is sufficient to justify an inference of intent to annoy.

Where there was bona fide claim of right by the accused to the wall in dispute and the accused had entered the complainant's house and pulled down the addition in his absence,

Held, the offence of mischief or house trespass was not made out against the accused. 84 Ind. Cas. 254 = 26 Bom. L.R. 978 = 26 Cr.L.J. 254 = A.I.R. 1924 Bom. 486.

—S. 451—Unlocked door—Entering house by merely pushing in shutters of door which was not chained or locked—Nature of offence.

Where the accused was found inside a house at night with the intention of committing theft, but the evidence showed that the door of the house entered was neither chained nor locked, and there was no evidence that accused entered by any other passage,

Held, that, as entry into the house by merely pushing in the shutters of the door does not come under any of the six clauses of S. 445 of the Penal Code which defines, "house-breaking" the accused's conviction under S. 457 cannot stand. The act falls under S. 451, I.P.C. 66 Ind. Cas. 422 = 6 N.L.J. 37 = 23 Cr.L.J. 278 = A.I.R. 1922 Nag. 26.

—Ss. 451 and 448—House trespass—Essentials of.

To constitute an offence under S. 451, an offence under S. 448 must be proved first. It must be further shown that the house trespass was committed in order to commit an offence punishable with imprisonment, etc. 17 A.L.J. 800 = 20 Cr.L.J. 347 = 1 U.P.L.R. (H.C.) 45 = 50 Ind. Cas. 827.

—Ss. 451 and 457—Essentials.

Active step of the accused to conceal his presence from person having a right to exclude him, must be proved for an offence of lurking house trespass. Mere trespass by night is not enough. 21 P.R. 1916 (Cr.) = 123 P.L.R. 1916 = 44 P.W.R. 1916 (Cr.) = 17 Cr.L.J. 304 = 35 Ind. Cas. 176.

—S. 451—Necessary ingredient for offence under the section.

Conviction under S. 451, I.P.C., requires express finding as to the nature of offence which the accused intended to commit. 3 S.L.R. 86 = 10 Cr.L.J. 410 = 3 Ind. Cas. 895.

—S. 452—Proof of intention—Collection of lathis and brickbats on the property unlawfully entered.

The collection, by the trespassers, of lathis and brickbats on the property is clear evidence of their threatening behaviour and indicates an intention to annoy and intimidate. 106 Ind. Cas. 691 = 6 Pat. 794 = 29 Cr.L.J. 99 = 9 A.I. Cr.R. 258 = A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 124.

—S. 452—Trespass for purpose of assaulting complainant—Nature of offence.

Trespass into the shop of the complainant for the purpose of assaulting the complainant is not sufficient to support a conviction under Section 452, though it might be for a conviction under Section 448. 76 Ind. Cas. 392 = 38 C.L.J. 161 = 25 Cr.L.J. 168 = A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 556.

—S. 452—Accused charged of having committed dacoity—If can be convicted under Ss. 452 and 323.

An accused charged merely in general term of "having committed dacoity" should not be convicted under Ss. 452 and 323 as the latter offences are not necessarily cognate offences and in committing dacoity, one does not necessarily commit house trespass or simple hurt. A.I.R. 1945 All. 87 = 1945 A.L.J. 141 = 46 Cr.L.J. 495 = 1945 O.W.N. (H.C.) 138 = I.L.R. (1945) All. 432 = 1945 A.W.R. (H.C.) 145 = 218 Ind. Cas. 372.

—S. 452—Charge under S. 452, I.P.C.—Conviction under S. 19 (e), Arms Act—Legality.

An accused charged under Penal Code, S. 452 for house trespass with preparation to cause hurt cannot be convicted under Arms Act, S. 19 (e) without a specific charge under the latter and with no opportunity to the accused to meet the altered charge. 98 Ind. Cas. 480 = 4 Rang. 355 = 27 Cr.L.J. 1360 = A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 32.

—S. 452—Conviction both under Ss. 323 and 452—Offences committed on same occasion—Separate sentence can be passed for each offence. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 114 = 39 Cr.L.J. 487 = 174 Ind. Cas. 952.

—S. 452—An interference with religion by preventing a person from employing another as his priest by forcibly entering the former's house to overawe him, is not to be treated lightly. A fine of Rs. 50 is not excessive. A.I.R. 1935 All. 647 = 1935 A.W.R. 333 = 1935 A.L.J. 423 = 36 Cr.L.J. 763 = 155 Ind. Cas. 541.

—S. 454—Applicability—Breaking open lock of another's room and removing his property without his consent—Offence—Plea of bona fide claim of right—Validity. See PENAL CODE, Ss. 380 AND 454. I.L.R. 1950 Nag. 526 = A.I.R. 1950 Nag. 92.

—S. 454—Building.—Owner of cattle rescuing them from cattle-pound, consisting of only a fencing, by opening its door—Nature of offence.

The expression "building" must be regarded as indicating some structure intended for affording some sort of protection to the persons dwelling inside it or for the property placed there for custody. Any structure which does not afford any such protection by itself but merely serves as a fencing or other means of merely preventing ingress or egress cannot make the place a building or a house within the meaning of either of those two sections. Therefore, an owner of a cattle who rescues the cattle from such a cattle-pound by opening its door, does not commit an offence either under S. 380 or S. 454. He is guilty under Ss. 378 and 441, Penal Code, in addition to the offence under S. 24, Cattle Trespass Act. 100 Ind. Cas. 120 = 38 M.L.T. 163 = 28 Cr.L.J. 248 = 7 A.I. Cr.R. 410 = A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 343 = 52 M.L.J. 143.

—S. 456—Person entering house of unmarried woman who is in possession of it by invitation to commit adultery with her and actually committing adultery—Case, held did not fall under S. 456. A.I.R. 1941 Pesh. 79 = 43 Cr.L.J. 96 = 196 Ind. Cas. 870.

—S. 456—Entry to intrigue with a woman in the house.

A person entering another's house to carry on criminal intimacy with the man's widowed sister of age cannot be punished under S. 456. 38 All. 517 = 14 A.L.J. 719 = 17 Cr.L.J. 419 = 35 Ind. Cas. 979.

—S. 456—House trespass—Entering widow's house for intrigue.

In the absence of a finding as to the intention of the accused charged under S. 456, I.P.C., his conviction cannot be maintained. To enter the house of widow for the purpose of carrying on an intrigue with her is no offence. 50 P.L.R. 1919.

—Ss. 456 and 509—Lurking house trespass—Evidence—Intention—Presumption.

Where a person is found lurking at night inside another's house, a perfect stranger to him, without any apparent business, the Court can infer a guilty intention under S. 441, I.P.C. In a case of this sort the Court should not overlook S. 509, I.P.C. 16 A.L.J. 157 (foot note) = 19 Cr.L.J. 243 = 44 Ind. Cas. 35.

—S. 456—Criminal intent—Onus.

The accused, a stranger, was found in complainant's house at 2 a.m. having entered it by a door duly fastened. The accused pleaded that he went there in connection with an illegal intimacy with a widow therein, the aunt of the complainant,

Held, that the accused was guilty of lurking house trespass under S. 456 and that the burden of proving an honest intention was on him as it was a matter within his knowledge. 37 All. 395 = 16 Cr.L.J. 435 = 13 A.L.J. 625 = 29 Ind. Cas. 67.

—S. 456—Lurking house trespass by night—Intention—Onus.

In a prosecution for lurking house trespass by night under S. 456, the burden of proving what his intent was lies upon the accused: 22 C. 391, foll. 1906 A.W.N. 279 = 3 A.L.J. 652 = 29 A. 46.

—S. 456—Non-production of owner.

A mere non-production of the owner or person in actual possession of house does not vitiate conviction under S. 456. 5 L.R.A. (Cr.) 127 = A.I.R. 1924 All. 764.

—Ss. 456 and 457—Conviction under S. 457—Appellate Court, if can convict under S. 456.

The accused was tried and convicted for an offence under S. 457, I.P.C., but the Appellate Court having found that the object was not to commit theft, but to insult or annoy a woman, convicted him under S. 456, I.P.C.

Held, that the conviction by the Appellate Court for an offence under S. 456, I.P.C., for which he was not tried was illegal. 1 Pat. L.T. 221 = 56 Ind. Cas. 592 = 21 Cr.L.J. 496.

—Ss. 456 and 457—Charge under S. 457—Conviction under S. 456—Practice.

No inflexible rule exists that a person charged under S. 457 can never be convicted under S. 456. No specific criminal intention need be proved for S. 456. Guilty intention as in S. 441 is enough. An accused can be convicted under S. 456 though the specific offence in S. 457 is not proved against him, under S. 238, Cr. P. Code if he is not prejudiced at the trial. 44 Cal. 358 = 20 C.W.N. 1075 = 17 Cr.L.J. 424 = 35 Ind. Cas. 984.

—Ss. 456 and 457—Lurking house trespass—Charge of theft.

Where a person is being tried on a specific charge of theft and house-breaking with intent to commit theft, a charge under S. 456 without any specified object cannot be entertained.

Although it is not essential under S. 456, I.P.C. to specify any particular offence, yet when it is specified, a conviction for house breaking with some other intent is unsustainable. 16 C.W.N. 696 = 13 Cr.L.J. 224 = 14 Ind. Cas. 320.

1. Attempt and Abetment.

—S. 457—Attempt.

Where the accused, with intent to commit house-breaking, tried to enter a shop but were disturbed and captured as soon as they had opened the door,

Held: that the offence committed was an attempt to commit house-breaking by night with intention to commit theft punishable under Ss. 511 and 457, Penal Code, as the offence of house-breaking cannot be committed without entry. 106 Ind. Cas. 340 = 9 A.I. Cr.R. 323 = 29 P.L.R. 54 = 29 Cr.L.J. 4.

—Ss. 457, 511, 109—House breaking by night—Attempt—Abetment.

Where a person was charged and convicted of attempting as well as abetting the same offence, the High Court set aside the conviction and sentence on one of the counts. (1906) 8 Bom. L. R. 855 = 4 Cr.L.J. 450.

2. Offence under.

—Ss. 457, 380, 147—Accused breaking temples and removing idols for celebrating festival.

Where the temples were broken into and the idols were removed by the accused for celebrating a festival and the taking was not dishonest;

Held, that the conviction under Ss. 457 and 380, Penal Code, was unsustainable but the accused were guilty under S. 147 as their common object was to enforce a right by means of criminal force, and violence was used in the prosecution of the common object. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 71 = 1940 M.W.N. 873 = 52 L.W. 347 = 42 Cr.L.J. 263 (2) = 192 Ind. Cas. 256.

—Ss. 457, 451—Accused must have taken active means to conceal his presence.

It cannot be said that the mere fact that a house-trespass was committed by night makes the offence one of lurking house trespass. In order to constitute lurking house trespass, the offender must take some active means to conceal his presence.

Held, on facts that the accused could not be convicted under S. 457 but only under S. 451, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1940 All. 259 = 1940 A.L.J. 77 = 41 Cr.L.J. 623 = 1940 A.W.R. 78 = I.L.R. (1940) All. 175 = 188 Ind. Cas. 542.

—Ss. 457, 451—No evidence of any precaution to conceal presence.

Where there is no evidence of any precaution taken by the accused to conceal his presence, the conviction under S. 457 cannot be supported and the verdict must be treated as one of house trespass under S. 451. A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 14 = 5 B.R. 978 = 40 Cr.L.J. 833 (2) = 20 P.L.T. 879 = 183 Ind. Cas. 660.

—Ss. 457, 460—Theft, if essential ingredient of offence under Ss. 457 and 460.

Theft frequently follows an offence under S. 457, Penal Code, but it cannot be said that it is an essential ingredient of that offence. All that is required to complete the offence under S. 457 is that the burglar or house-breaker by night should have an intention to commit theft. It matters not for the purposes of that offence whether a burglar or house-breaker by night does actually carry out his intention and commit theft. Theft or an intention to commit theft is in no way a necessary or essential ingredient in either of these offences. It frequently happens that lurking house-trespass or house-breaking by night is followed by theft, but the offence can be committed without theft or any intention to commit it. That being so, an offence under S. 460 is not an offence which includes theft though it may frequently form part of a transaction which also includes theft. A.I.R. 1936 All. 337 = 1936 A.W.R. 1 = 1936 A.L.J. 518 = 37 Cr.L.J. 794 = 58 All. 695 = 163 Ind. Cas. 253.

—Ss. 457, 445—Placing hand across top of fence—Climbing of the wall twice, if necessary.

The offence of house trespass will be completed by the accused putting his hand across the top of the railings in a house. The offence under S. 457, Penal Code, will therefore be technically completed by the accused trying the pallis on the top of the fence and in doing so, placing his hand across the top of the fence.

A person makes the movement towards the committing of the offence under S. 457 at the time when he begins to move up the wall by climbing it. Climbing twice is not necessary before the attempt to commit burglary is committed. A.I.R. 1934 All. 833 = 36 Cr.L.J. 180 = 4 A.W.R. 99 = 152 Ind. Cas. 804.

—Ss. 457 and 459—The accused committed lurking house trespass and also caused grievous hurt in a courtyard but it was not proved that the courtyard was a part of the house:

Held, that he could be convicted only under S. 457, Penal Code, and not under S. 459. A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 557 = 38 C.W.N. 446 = 36 Cr.L.J. 619 = 154 Ind. Cas. 981.

—S. 457—Going on to the roof of a house but not entering it.

Going on to the roof of a house is not entering a building. Where a person reached the roof of a house but jumped down from the back of the roof, he cannot be said to have entered into the building though he is certainly guilty of an attempt to commit the offence of house-breaking. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 433 = 34 Cr.L.J. 1184 = 34 P.L.R. 906 = 146 Ind. Cas. 20 (1).

—S. 457—Adultery—Consent or connivance by the husband—No offence.

It is the duty of the Court when trying an offence under S. 457 to satisfy itself that when the accused committed the alleged house trespass with the intent of committing adultery he had not the consent or connivance of the husband. 82 Ind. Cas. 50 = 25 Cr.L.J. 1186 = A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 160.

—S. 457—Entering house by invitation or connivance of woman living in the house—No offence.

If the accused succeeds in showing that his presence in the house was in consequence of an invitation from or by the connivance of a woman living in the house with whom he was carrying on an intrigue, and that he desired that his presence there should not be known to the person in possession, he cannot be convicted of criminal trespass. 81 Ind. Cas. 239 = 25 Cr.L.J. 751 = A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 23.

—S. 457—Robbery—Hurt to complainant while accused escaped—Offences.

Where the accused committed house-breaking in the house of the complainant and abstracted from it a chembu, and when the complainant attempted to catch him and recover his property the accused, in order to the carrying away of this property, caused him hurt,

Held, that the accused committed offences under Ss. 457, 392 and 394. 86 Ind. Cas. 715 = 21 M.L.W. 37 = 26 Cr.L.J. 859 = A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 466.

—S. 457—Entering house by merely pushing in shutters of door which was not chained or locked—Nature of offence.

Where the accused was found inside a house at night with the intention of committing theft, but the evidence showed that the door of the house entered was neither chained nor locked, and there was no evidence that accused entered by any other passage,

Held: that, as entry into the house by merely pushing in the shutters of the door does not come under any of the six clauses of S. 445 of the Penal Code which defines, "house breaking" the accused's conviction under S. 457 cannot stand. The act falls under S. 451, I.P.C. 66 Ind. Cas. 422 = 6 N.L.J. 37 = 23 Cr.L.J. 278 = A.I.R. 1922 Nag. 26.

—Ss. 457, 379, and 511—Lurking house trespass—Entering thorned enclosure—Attempted offence of theft.

The accused, a previous convict, made his way into an open thorned enclosure in which goats and sheep were kept but on being found out fled away.

Held, that he could not be convicted of lurking house-trespass under S. 457, P.C., but only of attempted theft under Ss. 379 and 511. 13 P.R. 1919 (Cr.) = 20 Cr.L.J. 492 = 51 Ind. Cas. 476.

—Ss. 457 and 380—Lurking house trespass—Theft—Criminal Tribes Act, S. 23.

Lurking house trespass is committed when a person enters premises of the nature described in S. 442, after taking necessary precautions to conceal such house trespass in the manner mentioned in S. 443, I.P.C. A person who enters the house when the door is open and removes certain articles but before getting out of the house is caught, does not commit an offence under S. 457, I.P.C., so as to be liable to the enhanced penalty under S. 23 of Criminal Tribes Act. 16 A.L.J. 383 = 19 Cr.L.J. 609 = 45 Ind. Cas. 513.

—S. 457—House trespass by night with intent—Alleged intent of theft—Proved intent—Adultery with complainant's wife.

Where A complained that B committed house trespass by night with intent to commit theft, and the intent proved was adultery with the complainant's wife:

Held, that the conviction was proper, and that it was not necessary under the circumstances that the complainant should bring a specific charge of adultery. 23 A. 82 = 1900 A.W.N. 208.

3. Proof of offence.

—Ss. 457 and 380—Accused dumb and deaf found in possession of articles stolen and obtained by house-breaking—Presumption—Evidence Act, S. 114.

Where the accused who is dumb and deaf, is found in possession of articles stolen and obtained by house-breaking, it cannot be inferred that he has committed an offence of house breaking and theft. Presumption under S. 114, Evidence Act, can be drawn only when the accused, when asked, is unable to explain his possession. This cannot be done in case of a person who is born deaf and dumb. A.I.R. 1946 Mad. 60 = 58 L.W. 574 = (1945) 2 M.L.J. 407 = 1945 M.W.N. 692 (1) = 223 Ind. Cas. 106.

—S. 457—The mere recovery of a shirt alleged to belong to one of the complainants from the person of the accused charged under S. 457, Penal Code, is not sufficient for his conviction under S. 457. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 252 = 40 P.L.R. 58 = 39 Cr.L.J. 491 = 174 Ind. Cas. 849 (1).

—S. 457—The evidence of suspicion under S. 457, Penal Code, is evidence of a very weak nature even in a case under S. 110, Criminal P.C. 170 Ind. Cas. 482 = 1937 O.W.N. 816 = 38 Cr.L.J. 889.

—S. 457—Two brothers living in same house admitting stolen property to be in their house and not claiming it—No explanation as to how it got there—Offence, if made out.

It is wrong to say that in no circumstances can a man be convicted of being in possession of stolen property if there are inmates of the house other than himself. The law is that no person can be convicted if it is doubtful whether he or some other person had guilty knowledge that the property was in the house occupied by him and others.

Where two brothers living in the same house being charged under S. 457, Penal Code, admit that stolen property was found in their house and do not claim it to be theirs, but do not explain how it got there, and the fact that the house in which the property was found was occupied by both of them is established, they can be convicted under S. 457 especially when they were seen with another person accused of the same offence on the evening before commission of the crime. A.I.R. 1936 All. 386 = 1936 A.L.J. 511 = 1936 A.W.R. 383 = 37 Cr.L.J. 813 = 162 Ind. Cas. 964.

—S. 457—A person found in possession of stolen property a couple of hours after commission of a burglary can be rightly convicted of an offence under S. 457. A.I.R. 1933 Oudh 117 = 10 O.W.N. 47 = 34 Cr.L.J. 649 (1) = 143 Ind. Cas. 835.

—S. 457—Accused producing articles identified as belonging to the house owner—But articles incapable of identification—Accused seen carrying away bundles on the night in question—No evidence that bundles contained the stolen articles—Evidence if sufficient for conviction.

The accused was charged with an offence under I.P.C., S. 457. The only evidence against him was that he produced certain articles (clothes) which the owner of the shop in which the house-breaking was committed, identified as belonging to him. The articles were incapable of identification and were such as any cloth merchant might stock and sell. One of the P.Ws. deposed that he saw the accused early morning, shortly after the offence was committed, somewhere in the village, carrying away bundles of cloth. It was contended that this evidence coupled with the production of the articles by the accused proved his guilt.

Held, that unless it was established beyond all possible doubt that the bundles contained the goods stolen from the shop in which the offence had been committed or that the articles produced by accused were the stolen property belonging to the owner of the shop, accused could not be convicted. 92 Ind. Cas. 587 = 7 L.L.J. 277 = 26 P.L.R. 533 = 27 Cr.L.J. 299 = A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 495.

—S. 457—Tank indicated by statement of accused—Vessels recovered from the tank not within sole control of accused—Sufficiency of evidence for conviction.

Where an accused arrested on the charges under Ss. 457 and 380, makes a statement indicating a tank from which vessels, corresponding to the description of articles stolen, are recovered, but where the tank is not the particular property, or within the sole control of the accused, but accessible to the public in general and it is doubtful whether the accused or some other person concealed the stolen articles, such evidence of itself is not sufficient for a conviction: 30 M.L.W. 791 = 1929 M.W.N. 785 = 2 M.Cr.C. 307 = 1929 Cr.C. 614 = A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 846 = 57 M.L.J. 548.

—S. 457—Accused wearing gold ornaments and carrying large sum of his own money at the time of his being caught inside another's house—Accused's explanation corroborated by eye-witness—No evidence of door having been broken open or wall having been punctured—Evidence if sufficient for conviction.

The accused was caught in the house of another. He had with him at the time a large amount which belonged to him and he was wearing his ear-rings and a gold ring. He was a goldsmith by caste and calling. The story of the accused was that he went to the house to negotiate the acquisition of the widowed daughter-in-law of the proprietor of the house for a relation of his own. This story was corroborated by the statement of a man who was admittedly present at the time. He was also a goldsmith by caste. This man was not mentioned in the first information report. Although the accused was caught inside the house shortly before dawn, the house having been duly shut up the night before; it was nowhere said that any door was broken open nor any hole was made through the wall.

Held, that under the circumstances the accused could not be convicted under S. 457. 86 Ind. Cas. 156 = 26 Cr.L.J. 716 = 26 P.L.R. 31 = A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 459.

—S. 457—Case doubtful—Property not well identified.

Where, upon evidence it appeared that the accused was with a party of men in one village in possession of certain bundles containing property stolen from another village :

Held, this evidence together with that furnished by the following of tracks of party does not disclose a clear case of an offence under S. 457, I.P.C., but a doubtful one which entitles the accused to an acquittal. 18 Cr.L.J. 657 = 27 P.W.R. 1917 (Cr.) = 40 Ind. Cas. 305.

—S. 457—Criminal case—Conviction of accused —Inconclusive evidence.

On a charge under S. 457, I.P.C., the accused was convicted on the ground that some of property claimed by the complainant as his was found in the accused's house and there were a few scratches on the body of the accused. It was found that the accused was an enemy of the complainant and that some of the property was not in the list of stolen goods and some were not identified. Under the circumstances the conviction was set aside on revision as based on inconclusive evidence. 79 P.L.R. 1915.

—Ss. 457, 380 and 411—House breaking and theft charge of—No direct evidence—Surrender of stolen articles by accused without explanation—Offence, nature of.

A person was charged under Ss. 457 and 380. There was however no direct evidence to prove house breaking and theft but the accused after some days surrendered the stolen goods. He is guilty of an offence under S. 411 and not under Ss. 457 and 380. 17 Cr.L.J. 179 = 33 Ind. Cas. 819 (Mad.).

4. Sentence

—Ss. 457 and 380—Passing of separate sentences.

It is quite possible to commit the offence of lurking house-trespass without stealing anything at all just as it is possible to commit theft in a building without committing lurking house-trespass. The offences are, therefore, quite distinct and hence separate sentences can be passed for each offence. A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 330 = 47 Cr.L.J. 157 = 1945 M.W.N. 103 (1) = (1945) 1 M.L.J. 179 = 53 L.W. 75 (1) = I.L.R. (1945) Mad. 396 = 221 Ind. Cas. 304.

12—F. Y. D. 35.

—Ss. 457, 380, 71—Accused breaking house at night and committing theft—If can be convicted both under Ss. 457 and 380—Criminal P.C., 1898, S. 235 (1).

The offence of lurking house-trespass or house-breaking is committed whether the subsequent offence is committed or not. Section 457, I.P.C., looks merely to the object with which the house trespass or house-breaking is committed; it does not take into consideration the offence, if any, committed thereafter. There is no reason, therefore, why S. 457 should be considered a bar to a conviction for the offence committed after the house trespass or house-breaking. No doubt the offence of theft under S. 380, I.P.C., cannot be committed except by a person who has entered into a building, tent or vessel, but it is by no means necessary that the entry should have been effected by trespass or house-breaking. The offence of theft under S. 380 may be committed by a person in his own house. There is, therefore, no connection between S. 457 and S. 380. The offence of theft is no part of an offence under S. 457, and hence where an accused, after breaking the house at night, commits theft therein, he can be convicted under S. 457 and also under S. 380 and S. 71 has no application to such a case. Section 235 (1), Criminal P.C., authorises such convictions. A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 214 = 1941 O.W.N. 1365 = 43 Cr.L.J. 252 = 1942 A.W.R. 5 = 17 Luck. 513 = 197 Ind. Cas. 710.

Burglary is a serious crime and whenever it is detected, the person concerned must be given a deterrent punishment. A.I.R. 1932 Lah. 258 = 33 P.L.R. 215 = 33 Cr.L.J. 500 = 137 Ind. Cas. 716.

—S. 457—Sentence.

When a policeman whose duty it was to protect the lives and property of the subjects of the Crown was convicted of a serious offence of burglary, sentence of five years' rigorous imprisonment was held not excessive. 125 Ind. Cas. 639 = A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 667.

—S. 457—The offence of house-breaking by night in order to commit theft, under Cl. 2, S. 457, I.P.C., is punishable with imprisonment for a term of 14 years and therefore S. 562, Cr.P.C., is not applicable to this offence in the case of an adult. 103 Ind. —S. 458—Applicability—House-breaker—Companions.

Section 458 only applies to the house-breaker who actually has himself made preparation for causing hurt to any person or for assaulting any person or for wrongfully restraining any person and so on, and not to his companions as well who themselves have not made such preparation. 77 Ind. Cas. 446 = 4 Lah. 399 = 25 Cr.L.J. 398 = A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 509.

—S. 459—Accused committed lurking house trespass and also caused grievous hurt in a courtyard but it was not proved that the courtyard was a part of the house :

—S. 459—Burglary—Accused armed with lathis.

Where a party of men armed with lathis go and commit burglary and actually use the lathis in trying to escape, the provisions of S. 459 are applicable as there was intention to commit burglary with arms even though they did not intend to use weapons unless there was occasion to do so. 117 Ind. —S. 459—Causing grievous hurt after entry is complete—Nature of offence.

The offence of house-breaking is complete when entry into the house is effected and any grievous hurt subsequently caused by the persons breaking into a house cannot be said to be grievous hurt caused while they were committing the house-breaking. 102 I.A. —S. 460—Scope and applicability.

S. 460, I.P.C., applies to those persons who have actually committed lurking house-trespass at night and not to those who may have accompanied their associates but did not commit the offence. It applies to the actual doers and not to others. The act of causing death or grievous hurt by any one of the intruders would certainly make others, who did not themselves cause the death or the grievous hurt, equally liable. 48 P.L.R. 425 = 228 Ind. Cas. 623 = 48 Cr.L.J. 269 = A.I.R. 1947 Lah. 188.

—S. 460—Scope.

Section 460 does not provide for an offence but merely lays down a principle of constructive liability. A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 281 = 42 P.L.R. 229 = 41 Cr.L.J. 779 = 189 Ind. Cas. 672.

—Ss. 460 and 302—Person causing death at time of committing lurking house-trespass by night :

Held, that the offence committed was one under S. 460 and required maximum punishment of transportation for life. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 911 = 38 Cr.L.J. 30 = 38 P.L.R. 1150 = 165 Ind. Cas. 874.

—S. 460—"At the time of committing of house-breaking by night"—Meaning.

The expression "at the time of the committing of house-breaking by night" must be limited to the time during which the criminal trespass continues which forms an element in house-trespass, which is itself essential to house-breaking, and cannot be extended so as to include any prior or subsequent time. 2 P.R. (Cr.) 1882, Foll.

A party of four people were running away being discovered while breaking into a house by night. The accused was caught while so running and some one of his party inflicted injury on the person arresting the accused, causing his death.

Held, that the accused cannot be convicted under S. 460. 65 Ind. Cas. 628 = 2 Lah. 342 = A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 94.

—S. 460 and Ss. 326, 457 and 458—Armed burglar.

An armed person breaking into a house to commit theft and stabbing his pursuers to death, is not guilty under S. 460 but under Ss. 326, 457 and 458. 27 P.R. 1916 (Cr.) = 18 Cr.L.J. 350 = 38 Ind. Cas. 734.

—Ss. 460, 366 and 149—Conviction under—Very long term of sentence—No harm done to girl.

The accused were convicted under Ss. 260 and 366 read with S. 149, I.P.C. and sentenced to various very long terms of imprisonment, except for the grievous injury to one of the inmates of the house, no great harm was done and the girl was rescued :

Held, that the case did not call for very heavy sentences and that they should be reduced. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 15 = 37 Cr.L.J. 430 = 38 P.L.R. 323 = 161 Ind. Cas. 313.

—S. 463—'Person'—Idol.

An idol being a judicial person and, therefore, a "person" within the definition under Code, the signature of an idol constitutes the offence of forgery. A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 77 = 56 L.W. 645 = (1943) 2 M.L.J. 445 = 1943 M.W.N. 712 (1) = I.L.R. (1944) Mad. 685 = 211 Ind. Cas. 528.

—S. 463—Essentials.

Intent to cause injury is not an essential ingredient —“Dishonestly or fraudulently” are not tautological —“Fraudulently” does not imply deprivation of property or an element of injury. A.I.R. 1944 Lah. 380 = 46 P.L.R. 255 = 46 Cr.L.J. 341 = 217 Ind. Cas. 387.

—Ss. 463 and 464—For supporting false defence, document fabricated by putting false date and spurious postmarks on envelope.

The proper administration of justice is so vital to the ordered existence of a civilized community that an intent to defraud justice is something very closely, very nearly affecting the public and the complainant. Hence, if the accused, in order to make good a false defence and to cause justice to miscarry, fabricates a document, by putting false dates and spurious postmarks on an envelope, he does it with one of the intents referred to in S. 463, I.P.C. A.I.R. 1943 Sind 46 = 43 Cr.L.J. 905 = 202 Ind. Cas. 773.

—Ss. 464 and 477—Alteration in document—Erasure of thumb impression.

A thumb impression in account books means a signature to the receipt for money or acknowledgment of liability. The erasure of the thumb impression in account books, therefore, constitutes total destruction of the receipt or of the acknowledgment and not a mere alteration in the document. The offence does not fall under S. 463 or S. 464 but under S. 477 and a complaint by the Court (because the erasure was made while the account books were in the Court) was incompetent. 1936 M.W.N. 489 (2).

—Ss. 463, 464 and 465—School teacher required by Board to keep diary of work regularly—Alteration to disguise fact that it had not been kept on certain dates—Teacher, held guilty under S. 465. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 380 = 164 Ind. Cas. 1088 = 37 Cr.L.J. 1059.*—S. 463—Forged document—Maker of part of document—Presence of maker at completion—Whether necessary.

Under S. 463, I.P.C., not only the maker of a forged document but the maker of a part of such document is declared to be guilty of forgery if he has made such document or any part of it with the requisite intent. It is, therefore, immaterial if the person who makes a part of the forged document was present or not at the time when the forged document was completed. A.I.R. 1933 Sind 37 = 26 S.L.R. 105 = 34 Cr.L.J. 305 (2) = 142 Ind. Cas. 74.

—Ss. 463 and 465—Offence under—Ingredient.

In order to constitute the offence of forgery it is not necessary that the wrongful gain or loss should be actually caused. It is sufficient that there should be the intention of causing it where certain so-sharers applied for entry in the revenue papers so as to include certain additional names therein and it appeared that the signatures of certain parties were put as though it was authorised, held that the accused were liable to be convicted under S. 471, though not under S. 466, I.P.C. 1930 A.L.J. 1451 = 1931 Cr.C. 418 = 32 Cr.L.J. 559 = 130 Ind. Cas. 492 = A.I.R. 1931 A. 258.

—S. 463—“Making of part of document”—Proof of falsity.

The “making of a part of a document” must be the making of a part of a false document and in the making of a part of a document not only the intention or purpose must be proved but the fact that the document was false must also be proved. 115 Ind. Cas. 135 = 1929 A.L.J. 592 = 10 L.R.A. (Cr.) 86 = 12 A.I.Cr.R. 14 = 30 Cr.L.J. 408 = 1929 Cr.C. 6 = A.I.R. 1929 All. 396.

—S. 463—“Claim”.

The term “claim” is not limited in its application to a claim to property only: 15 All. 210 and 25 Cal. 512, Foll. 118 Ind. Cas. 385 = 10 Lah. 545 = 30 Cr.L.J. 900 = 30 P.L.R. 724 = A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 152.

—S. 463—Creation of false document for supporting even true or genuine title.

In order to constitute forgery the document need not be intended to support a false claim or a false title. If, in order to support a true claim or a genuine title, a false document is created, it is a forgery. Whether a document is a false document or not, does not depend upon the adjudication of the Court on the claim or title which is intended to be propped up by the false document. 96 Ind. Cas. 850 = 7 A.I.Cr.R. 58 = 27 Cr.L.J. 994 = A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 1072.

—S. 463—“Claim or title”.

A conviction under S. 465 would stand though the fabricated document was intended to confirm an already existing title only, and not to create a new one. 6 M.L.T. 266 = 10 Cr.L.J. 367 = 3 Ind. Cas. 736.

—S. 463—Essentials of offence under—Intent to commit fraud—Process-server forging names to save himself of trouble or from consequences of neglect of duty.

An intent to commit fraud involves an intent to cause injury. It involves something more than mere deceiving.

Where a process-server, with a view to save himself trouble or possibly to hide the fact that he had neglected his duty, forges the names of certain persons on whom he was to serve notices, such an act does not show an intent to commit fraud. A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 203 = 36 Cr.L.J. 1025 = 156 Ind. Cas. 888.

—Ss. 463 and 464—Forgery—Essentials of.

In order to constitute the offence of forgery under Ss. 463 and 464, the document must be made dishonestly or fraudulently. In order to be fraudulent, there must be some advantage on the one side with a corresponding loss on the other. Each case has to be decided on its own facts. A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 545 = 34 Bom. L.R. 1090 = 56 B. 488 = 34 Cr.L.J. 357 = 142 Ind. Cas. 386 (2).

—S. 463—“Intent to defraud”—Proof of possibility of actual deceit and injury.

In order to constitute in point of law an intent to defraud, there must be a possibility of some person being defrauded by the forgery, or there must be a possibility of some person being not only deceived but injured by the forgery. 11 Bom. H.C.R. 3, Foll. A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 271 = 126 Ind. Cas. 862.

—S. 463—Necessary elements.

The elements which have to be proved in a case of forgery are (i) that the document is not executed on a date on which it is shown to have been written and (ii) that the parties who executed it do so with fraudulent intent. 109 Ind. Cas. 679 = 6 Rang. 49 = 29 Cr.L.J. 599 = A.I.R. 1928 Rang. 117.

—S. 463—Using false document.

If a man intends to gain an unfair advantage by deceitful means and uses a false document for that purpose, his conduct is fraudulent. 96 Ind. Cas. 850 = 7 A.I.Cr.R. 58 = 27 Cr.L.J. 994 = A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 1072.

—S. 463—"Defrauding"—Meaning.

The expression "intent to defraud" as it occurs in S. 463, Indian Penal Code, implies conduct coupled with intention to deceive and thereby to injure; in other words "defraud" involves two conceptions, namely, deceit and injury to the person deceived, that is infringement of some legal right possessed by him but not necessarily deprivation of property: 38 Cal. 75, Foll. 90 Ind. Cas. 534 = 42 C.L.J. 215 = 26 Cr.L.J. 1574 = A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 224.

—S. 463—Absence of intention to cause it to be believed that the document was signed by another person—No forgery.

Per Mukerji, J.—If a person gives a note or other security as his own note or security, and the credit thereupon be personal to himself without any relation to another, his signing such a fictitious name may indeed be a cheating but will not amount to forgery, for in that case it is really the instrument of the party whose act it purports to be and the creditor has no other security in view. But that if a note be given in the name of another person either really existing or represented so to be and in that light it obtains a superior credit or induces a trust which will not be given to the party himself, it is then a false instrument and punishable as forgery. We have to judge of the intention at the time when the document was made and it is upon that intention that the criminality of the act has to be judged.

Where in making out the cheque the accused intended to pass it off as a genuine cheque drawn by himself in his own favour.

Held, that there was no forgery. 84 Ind. Cas. 1041 = 40 C.L.J. 256 = 52 Cal. 347 = 29 C.W.N. 447 = 28 Cr.L.J. 401 = A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 14.

—Ss. 463 and 467—Forgery—Fraud.

The concealment of an already practised fraud is a fraud. 37 Bom. 666 = 15 Bom. L.R. 708 = 14 Cr.L.J. 518 = 20 Ind. Cas. 998.

—Ss. 463, 471 and 477-A—Accounts, tampering with, to remove evidence of misappropriation—Altered accounts showing true extent of liability—Intent to defraud.

Where in order to remove evidence of misappropriation of a sum of Rs. 10, the amount was shown in the accounts as having been received on a date on which it could not have been received.

Held, that the entry, though false did not conceal liability but rather showed in regard to such liability the true position of affairs; and so "intent to defraud" in its true significance was not made out; and there could be no conviction under Ss. 465, 471 or 477-A. (1909) 14 C.W.N. 82 = 36 C. 955 = 10 Cr.L.J. 581 = 4 Ind. Cas. 416.

—Ss. 463 and 464—Forgery.

Whenever the word 'fraud' or 'intent to defraud' or 'fraudulently' occur in the definition of a crime two elements at least are essential to the commission of the crime, namely, first, deceit or an intention to deceive, or in some cases mere secrecy; and, secondly, either actual injury or possible injury or an intent to expose some person either to actual injury or to a risk of possible injury by means of that deceit or secrecy. Under S. 463 the making of a false document with any of the intents therein mentioned is forgery, and S. 464 sets forth when a person is said to make a false document within the meaning of the Code. Therefore if a person fabricates documents with the view of assisting another to bring a suit on which he has been engaged to a successful issue and intending to deceive the police officer or officers to whom they are directed into acting in them as genuine documents, he is guilty of forgery: 15A. 210; 25 C. 512 and 28 M. 90 Foll. (1906) A.W.N. 48 = 3 A.L.J. 149 = 23 A. 358.

—Ss. 463 and 464—Forgery—Essentials—Intent to defraud—Fraudulently—Claim—Spurious signature in a certificate with a view to get exempted from producing the attendance certificate as preliminary to admission as candidate for examination.

The accused applied for admission as an examinee to the Matriculation Examination of the Madras University. Not having kept terms in any recognized school, he sent a certificate along with the application purporting to have been signed by the headmaster of a recognized school that he was of a good character and had attained his twentieth year. The certificate was spurious. The bye-law of the University requiring the certificate ran as follows:—"Provided that a candidate who produces a certificate from the headmaster of a recognised high school that he is of good character and has completed his twentieth year shall be exempted from the production of the attendance certificate." The University did not admit him to the examination, but confiscated the fee paid by the accused.

Held, by the majority (Subramonia Aiyar and Davies, J.J., dissentiente) that the accused was guilty of forgery. Per Chief Justice:—"The offence is complete if a document, false in fact, is made with intent to commit a fraud although it may not have been made with one of the other intents specified in S. 463. An intended deprivation of property is not an essential element of an intention to defraud. A claim to be admitted to a University examination is a claim within the meaning of S. 463. The word 'claim' need not be limited to a claim with reference to property or to a claim enforceable at law. If the accused fabricated the certificate with the intention that the University should take action on it, it must be taken that he did so 'with the intention of causing loss or detriment to the University.' (Per Subramonia Aiyar, J.):—"The meaning of the phrase 'with intent to defraud' is with intent to deceive in such a manner as to expose any person to loss or risk of loss". Per Davies, J.—The University did not suffer any loss. A person to be defrauded must suffer some harm or damage or injury. Per Benson, J.:—The act was fraudulent both by reason of the advantage the accused intended to secure, but also by reason of the injury to the University and through it to the public from such acts if unrepressed. (1905) 28 M. 90 (F.B.). See 25 M. 726 = 12 M.L.J. 68.

1. (b) Offence under—What amounts to.

—Ss. 463 and 465—Accused altering date of bahi with intention to convert illegal claim into legal one—Offence—Sentence.

Where the accused realised that his claim was very likely to be an unenforceable one unless he altered the date of the bahi, and his intention in fact was to convert an illegal or doubtful claim into an apparently legal one and altered the dates in the bahi:

Held, his action must be held to be dishonest and he was liable to conviction for forgery.

Held, also that as accused had a good claim except for the technical bar of limitation, the Court should not view his action with the same severity as if he had attempted to make out a claim for which there was no basis at all and sentence of imprisonment might be remitted and fine imposed. A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 89 = I.L.R. (1937) Nag. 45 = 38 Cr.L.J. 233 = 166 Ind. Cas. 310.

—Ss. 463, 465 and 193—Fabrication of electoral roll is an offence under Ss. 193 and 465. A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 838 = 39 C.W.N. 20 = 62 C. 275 = 36 Cr.L.J. 385 = 153 Ind. Cas. 657.

—Ss. 463 and 465—Object of screening oneself—Main object to screen oneself from punishment—Incidental probability of gain—If offence.

Where an accused person manipulates entries in certain registers with the main object of screening himself from punishment for a past offence, he will yet be liable if he stands to gain by his act, as for example, if as a result of such entries he will be continued in service while as a fact he is not fit to be continued. 92 Ind. Cas. 433 = 18 S.L.R. 199 = 27 Cr.L.J. 257 = A.I.R. 1925 Sind 233.

—Ss. 463 and 465—Forged certificate.

A false statement in an application for a post and a forged certificate amount to offences under S. 465. 76 Ind. Cas. 225 = 25 Cr.L.J. 129 = 4 U.B.R. 174 = A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 9.

—Ss. 463 and 465—Accused using forged receipt for debt due from him but written off as bad debt—Object to obtain certificate of solvency—Offence.

Where accused who was an insolvent, desiring to obtain a certificate from the receiver that he was solvent, in order to be able to tender for Municipal contracts, produced before the Receiver a forged receipt for a debt which the creditor had written off as bad debt.

Held, that he was rightly convicted under S. 465 read with S. 471. 59 Ind. Cas. 200 = 43 All. 225 = 22 Cr.L.J. 56 = A.I.R. 1924 All. 356.

—Ss. 463, 465 and 471—Forgery—Dishonest intention—Forging receipt for getting appointment.

An insolvent who applied for some contract work was asked to produce an order that he was solvent.

To obtain a certificate of solvency he produced before the Official Receiver a forged receipt showing that he had paid up a certain debt which the creditor had written off as a barred debt.

Held, the intention of the accused was by means of deceit to obtain a wrongful gain to himself so that he had acted dishonestly and was guilty under Ss. 465 and 571. 18 A.L.J. 1137 = 59 Ind. Cas. 200 = 43 A. 225 = 22 Cr.L.J. 56.

—Ss. 463 and 465—Signing certificate of purchase of arms and ammunition in false names and giving wrong address.

Accused, an European who was entitled to possess arms, signed a prescribed certificate of purchase of arms in the name of another with an address not his own, thereby deceiving the gunsmith and the Government. Held, that he committed forgery, his act having been done fraudulently if not dishonestly. 43 Cal. 421 = 20 C.W.N. 326 = 17 Cr. L.J. 69 = 32 Ind. Cas. 661.

1. (c) Offence under—What does not amount to.

—Ss. 463 and 465—Clerk of the Court making false entry in diary of Court only to screen his own negligence as clerk—No other intention—He, by his act, not facilitating any misappropriation or embezzlement nor did intend to cause injury to any other person:

Held, that the clerk could not be convicted either under S. 477-A or under S. 465, I.P.C. A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 156 = 40 Cr.L.J. 552 = 181 Ind. Cas. 439.

—S. 463—No fraudulent act—Plaint forged in order to save case being barred by limitation.

The mere fact that the person forged signature of another person, in a plaint, to enable him to file the plaint in time to save case being barred by limitation will not make the act of the person fraudulent. A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 271 = 126 Ind. Cas. 862.

—S. 463—Forgery, what is—Entry of excess payment in muster-roll.

An entry of excess payment in a muster-roll would not make the muster-roll a forged document. 115 Ind. Cas. 135 = 1929 A.L.J. 592 = 10 L.R.A. Cr. 86 = 12 A.I.Cr.R. 14 = 30 Cr.L.J. 408 = 1929 Cr.C. 6 = A.I.R. 1929 All. 396.

—S. 463—False certificate.

A false certificate of not very great importance is not a forgery as it is not made an affidavit. 115 Ind. Cas. 135 = 1929 A.L.J. 592 = 10 L.R.A. Cr. 86 = 12 A. I. Cr. R. 14 = 30 Cr.L.J. 408 = 1929 Cr.C. 6 = A.I.R. 1929 All. 396.

—S. 463—Antedating document.

Merely antedating a document is not forgery unless there is dishonesty or fraud on the part of the alleged forger. 98 Ind. Cas. 111 = 8 P.L.T. 104 = 27 Cr. L.J. 1263 = A.I.R. 1927 Pat. 87.

—S. 464—Account books—Account books not kept in ordinary course of business—If necessarily forged.

It is one thing to hold that because an account book does not appear to have been kept in the regular course of business and does not contain entries that it ought to have contained, it cannot be acted upon in order to convict a person whose name appears therein as having received money, and it is quite a different thing to hold as a positive fact that that account book is forged: and in absence of any other evidence no prosecution should be allowed to be launched on the basis that it was forged. 98 Ind. Cas. 56 = 27 Cr.L.J. 1240 = A.I.R. 1927 Pat. 47.

—S. 463—Fabrication of false evidence—Intent to weaken criminal case against accused—Nature of offence.

Where the intention in of the accused is to discredit the evidence of witnesses that might be produced against him by the complainant in a criminal case, the offence committed by him would be one of attempting to fabricate false evidence and not forgery. 86 Ind. Cas. 671 = 7 L.L.J. 118 = 26 Cr.L.J. 847 = 26 P.L.R. 95 = A.I.R. 1925 Lab. 327.

—Ss. 463 and 471—Forgery—Making—Copy of a forged document.

Where a maker of a copy of a forged document has authority to make the copy, a false copy is a false document; but where the maker of the copy holds no office reasonably capable of being construed as giving him such authority, then he does not commit the offence by making the false copy. 4 Pat. L.J. 16 = 20 Cr.L.J. 142 = 49 Ind. Cas. 174.

—Ss. 463 and 465—Forgery—Antedating a will.

Mere antedating a will does not amount to forgery in the absence of other circumstances. 3 O.L.J. 477 = 17 Cr.L.J. 540 = 36 Ind. Cas. 588.

—S. 465—Signing a telegram in another's name.

Mere signing of a telegram in another's name without any intention to cause injury to him and actually causing to injury, will not amount to forgery though the signature was without authority. 16 Cr.L.J. 76 = 26 Ind. Cas. 668 (Cal).

—Ss. 463, 465 and 477-A—Receiving V.P.P. money—False entry in register that the parcel was refused.

Where the accused received the proceeds of a V.P.P. and kept it himself instead of immediately remitting it to the vendor of the article and made a false entry in the register of V.P.P. articles to the effect that the parcel in question had been refused by the addressee and returned to the vendor.

Held, that the facts constituted an offence under S. 447 and not one under S. 465. The fact that the accused subsequently remitted the money does not make any difference. 11 Cr.L.J. 185 = U.B.R. (1907-1909) Penal Code, p. 29 = 4 Ind. Cas. 1089.

—Ss. 463, 465, 471 and 477-A—Altering accounts to show receipt of sums misappropriated.

For an offence under any of the Ss. 465, 471 and 477 there must be an intention to commit fraud.

Where the accused altered certain accounts for the purpose of showing the receipt of a certain amount which has been criminally misappropriated, he is not guilty under Ss. 465, 471 and 477-A, for the real purpose is not to defraud but to remove evidences of crime. 36 Cal. 955 = 14 C.W.N. 82 = 10 Cr.L.J. 581 = 4 Ind. Cas. 416.

—Ss. 463 and 471—Forgery and using a forged document.

Where the accused, a tahsildar of an estate, prepared a false receipt acknowledging on the part of his employer the receipt of certain papers and it was proved that some of those papers were in the office of the estate but as to the rest the prosecution failed to prove that they were not also in the office of the estate.

Held, that the accused could not be convicted of an offence under S. 471, as the prosecution had failed to prove any dishonest or fraudulent intention on the part of the accused in making use of the receipt. The preparation of a false receipt acknowledging on the part of a certain person the receipt of certain documents, after having made over those documents to that person, does not amount to an offence under S. 463, nor does the use of such a receipt constitute an offence under S. 471. (1908) 8 C.L.J. 317 = 12 C.W.N. 1113.

—S. 463—Falsification of accounts to conceal criminal misappropriation—Cr.P.C., S. 342.

Where a person misappropriates a sum of money and to screen the misappropriation falsifies the account, the offence will not constitute a forgery for want of the intent described in S. 463, but becomes part and parcel of the offence of misappropriation and the whole transaction must be considered practically as one offence consisting of criminal misappropriation. (1904) 6 Bom. L.R. 94.

2. Proof of offence.

—Ss. 463, 464, 467 and 471—Forgery—Proof of—Onus on prosecution.

To establish forgery the prosecution must prove not only that the document is a false document under S. 464, I.P.C., but that it was forged by the accused with one of the intents mentioned in the S. 463. (1918) P.H.C.C. 36 = 19 Cr.L.J. 344 = 44 Ind. Cas. 456.

—S. 463—'Forgery'—'Intent to cause damage, etc.'—'Possible intent'—Duty of prosecution to prove intent.

It is not enough for a conviction under Ss. 463 and 467 if a possible intent to cause damage or injury or to support any claim or title could be inferred from the facts. The prosecution must give some evidence from which such intent and dishonesty can be legitimately inferred. (1902) 6 C.W.N. 382.

—Ss. 463 and 465—Offence under—If made out. See Penal Code, Ss. 23, 25, 29 and 465. 1949 A.L.J. 183 = A.I.R. 1949 A. 353.

—S. 463—Forgery—Complainant need not be confined to witnesses stated in complaint.

A complainant who alleges forgery in respect of a document by antedating it is not obliged to confine himself to the evidence of the witnesses named in the petition of complaint. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 531 = 3 B.R. 54 = 38 Cr.L.J. 72 = 165 Ind. Cas. 564.

—S. 463—Forged writing—Imitation closely copied from forged writing—Whether proper standard for comparison—Proof of fraud—Evidence required.

It is not conceivable that a suspected forger would deliberately imitate the forged writing and create evidence against himself. Consequently, such writing does not afford a proper standard for comparison.

Proof of fraud by positive and express evidence cannot be expected in the large majority of cases and in such cases, circumstantial evidence is the only means available. But such evidence must not fall short of proof and no conviction can rest on mere suspicion and conjecture, however strong these may be.

—S. 465—Non-resemblance of writing.

Conviction for forgery cannot be based on non-resemblance of handwriting. 82 Ind. Cas. 145 = 28 C.W.N. 947 = 40 C.L.J. 135 = 25 Cr.L.J. 1217 = A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 960.

—Ss. 463 and 465—Facts to be considered—Test—Characteristic peculiarities of individuals—Mere comparison of writing—If enough.

Per Das, J.—It is dangerous to come to any conclusion as to forgery on a mere comparison of handwriting.

One of the most useful tests in construing a case of forgery is to see whether a clear dissimilarity of habit can be traced through the documents tendered. If there exists such a dissimilarity, then it is difficult to say that the same person wrote them all. The judicial mind has constantly taken advantage of the characteristic peculiarities of individuals when a question has been raised whether their writings have been forged, such peculiarities being most commonly manifested in the formulation of an idea or in the mode of spelling particular words. 65 Ind. Cas. 882 = 3 Pat. L.T. 653 = A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 619 (F.B.).

—Ss. 465 and 467—Forgery—Similarity of handwriting.

A conviction for forgery cannot be based on the mere similarity of the handwriting of the accused without other evidence of complicity. 20 Cr.L.J. 534 = 51 Ind. Cas. 774 (Pat.).

—Ss. 463, 465 and 471—Forged document—Handwriting of the accused—Evidence—Initials of the accused at the bottom.

Where the body of the document forged is entirely in the handwriting of a person, it is evident that he forged it.

The initials of one of the accused at the bottom of a forged document, are not enough to prove forgery against him. (1914) M.W.N. 363 = 15 Cr.L.J. 417 = 24 Ind. Cas. 153.

—S. 463—Expert evidence—No corroboration—Legality of conviction.

Conviction under S. 465 based only upon the uncorroborated statement of a finger print expert is bad, especially when he has not been called as a witness and cross examined by the accused. 77 Ind. Cas. 423 = 4 Lah. 246 = 25 Cr.L.J. 375 = A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 622.

—Ss. 465 and 467—Forgery of cheque—Expert evidence as to handwriting.

To base a conviction upon the opinion of an expert in handwriting is, as a general rule, very unsafe. When it is sought to convict a clerk employed in an office of forgery upon the supposed similarity between his handwriting and that of some fragmentary pieces of writing upon which the charge is based, the prosecution should make an attempt to show that the accused is the only man in the office who could have written the forged document. (1904) 2 A.L.J. 444.

—Ss. 463 and 465—Admission and confession—Admission in civil suit about genuineness of document—If confession of forgery.

Admission is usually applied to a civil transaction, and to those matters in criminal cases which do not involve a criminal intent, while the term confession is usually used in criminal Court as denoting an acknowledgment of guilt. Admission in a civil suit that a document is genuine cannot in the forgery case be regarded as confession at all. 1929 Cr.C. 194 = A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 539.

—Ss. 463 and 470—Intention—How far a matter of inference.

The intention necessary for offences under Ss. 463 and 470 cannot be merely inferred from the consequences that should be anticipated from the action of the accused. (1902) 4 Bom. L.R. 440.

3. Miscellaneous.

—S. 463—'Forgery'.

The word "forgery" is used as a general term in S. 463, I.P.C., and that section is referred to in a comprehensive sense in S. 195 of the Cr.P.C. 12 Bom. 36, Foll. 96 Ind. Cas. 521 = 1 Luck. 523 = 7 A.I.Cr.R. 45 = 3 O.W.N. 614 = 27 Cr.L.J. 969 = A.I.R. 1926 Oudh 485.

—S. 463—Reference in S. 195 (1) (c), Cr.P.C.

S. 463, I.P.C. is used in S. 195 (1) (c) in a comprehensive sense so as to embrace all species of forgery and thus includes a case falling under S. 467. 85 Ind. Cas. 377 = 5 Lah. 550 = 26 Cr.L.J. 537 = A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 266.

—S. 464. See also Note under S. 463.

—S. 464—Interpretation—'Makes'.

The word "makes" means, creates or brings into existence.

A writing may purport to be a will although it turns out to be technically defective (41 Mad. 589, Rel. on), and therefore such a will, though incomplete and ineffective, cannot be said to have been not "made" within the meaning of S. 464. 111 Ind. Cas. 435 = 10 Lah. 265 = 11 A.I.Cr.R. 171 = 31 P.L.R. 41 = 29 Cr. L.J. 851 = A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 681.

—S. 464—Antedating.

Mere antedating of the document would not necessarily make it a false document unless it operates or could operate to prejudice anyone. 98 Ind. Cas. 252 = 5 Pat. 573 = 8 P.L.T. 133 = 27 Cr.L.J. 1308 = A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 535.

—S. 464—False documents, what are—Kabuliats.

Kabuliats of a past period prepared subsequently by usufructuary mortgagee to defraud mortgagor as to the amount paid by mortgagor's tenant are forged documents. 88 Ind. Cas. 283 = 26 Cr.L.J. 1115 = A.I.R. 1925 Nag. 337.

—S. 464—Kabin-nama.

Where a Muhammadan with the intention of making a claim to a woman's property, alleged marriage with her and executed a false kabin-nama in her favour to support his claim.

Held: that the document was not a false document within S. 464. 69 Ind. Cas. 451 = A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 536 = 23 Cr.L.J. 723.

—S. 464—Making an entry not imposing a liability—No forgery.

Every false or fabricated document is not a forged document. There must be acts that constitute the document a false or fabricated one, that is to say, the case must fall within the definition of making a false document in S. 464, I.P.C., and such false document must also possess the character or tendency described in S. 463. An entry to the credit side which amounts to merely an assertion to the effect that, if the debt is not paid as agreed upon, he will take 1½ times the amount does not operate to impose any liability to pay interest upon the debtors and therefore would not have the tendency referred to in S. 463, I.P.C., i.e., it would not cause damage or injury to the debtors, because it does not purport to be any agreement by them to pay interest. 77 Ind. Cas. 225 = 3 Lah. 373 = 25 Cr.L.J. 337 = A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 11.

—S. 464—Forgery—Intention to defraud—Signing plaint on another's behalf.

A gumasta filed a plaint on behalf of S and verified the words 'S bakalad khas'. S accepted the plaint gave evidence in support of it and obtained a decree on its basis.

Held, that the accused was not guilty of forgery inasmuch as he did not make the signature of S on the plaint, dishonestly or fraudulently. 19 Cr.L.J. 236 = 43 Ind. Cas. 828.

—Ss. 464, 465 and 467—Forgery—False document—Surplusage—Fabrication of charge—Intention.

A charge of forgery cannot lie against a person who was not the writer of the forged document or who did not sign the forged name. A charge under S. 467, I.P.C., is bad if the intention is not set out. The forging of a name as a witness to a document which has no effect on the validity thereof but a mere surplusage would not make the document a false document. 17 C. W. N. 354 = 14 Cr.L.J. 129 = 18 Ind. Cas. 881.

—S. 464—Signing a bail bond with fictitious names—No offence.

Certain persons signed a bail bond with names which were not their own.

Held, they were not guilty under S. 464 as they had informed the Magistrate that their names were the names they afterwards signed to the bail bond and therefore they could not be held to have intended to cause the Magistrate to believe that the bond was signed by any real or fictitious person other than the accused. (1910) M.W.N. 232 = 8 M.L.T. 124 = 11 Cr.L.J. 440 = 7 Ind. Cas. 176.

—S. 464—Executing a mortgage claiming to be an adopted son of the deceased owner.

Where a person describes himself as the adopted son of another (which was found against) whose property he purported to mortgage and the mortgagee knew the person well,

Held (Per Munro and Abdur Rahim, J.J. Pinhey, J. Dissenting), that mere description as the adopted son would not amount to making false document within the meaning of S. 464 because the person makes only false claim to be the adopted son and had no intention of defrauding anybody. Per Pinhey J.—The person is guilty because though there was no actually adopted son he wanted to defraud the widow of last owner. 32 Mad. 90 = 19 M.L.J. 78 = 4 M.L.T. 463 = 9 Cr.L.J. 85 = 1 Ind. Cas. 751.

—S. 464, Expl. 2—Signing a deed with a false description as the adopted son of another with a view to set up a claim.

Per Munro and Rahim J.J. (Pinhey J. dissentiente).—The making of a document by a person falsely describing himself in the body of the document as the adopted son of another with a view to put forward a claim as the adopted son of that other does not fall within the definition of "forgery" within the meaning of S. 464. Pinhey J.—The act constitutes the offence of forgery by reason of Expl. 2 to S. 464. V died leaving a widow and no issue. R, nephew of V, executed a mortgage of some of the properties of V to a third person describing himself as the adopted son of V but signing therein simply as "R". Held, Per curiam (Pinhey J. dissentiente) that R was not guilty of forgery. (1908) 19 M.L.J. 78 = 32 M. 90 = 9 Cr.L.J. 85 = 4 M.L.T. 463 = 1 Ind. Cas. 751.

—Ss. 464, 465, 468, 415, 417, 511—Intention to cause it to be believed that document was made at a time at which it was not made proof of.

By the Full Bench (Rampini J. dissenting) on certificate granted by the Offg. Advocate-General Pugh, for review:

On the 25th of Jaista, a bill was presented by the accused in his shop by B, a servant of H, for payment of money due by the accused to H. On the bill was printed a stipulation that any payment on account of the bill unless endorsed on its back would not be admitted. The prosecution alleged that the accused took the bill from B and in the presence of B and several other persons wrote on its back the endorsement: 17th Jaista—through B, Rs. 501, whereupon B snatched the bill away from the accused and asked for payment of the amount thus entered on the bill, to which the accused answered "go away. I have paid." Upon these allegations the accused was convicted on charges of forgery and attempt to cheat. The defence was that Rs. 501 had in fact been paid to B on the 17th of Jaista, and had accordingly been entered in the books of the accused (which were produced) on the 17th of Jaista, but that payment had not been endorsed on the bill on the 17th of Jaista as B had not brought the bill on that date, that the bill was endorsed by the accused in the manner mentioned on the 25th of Jaista, and that B took it away without protest or altercation of any kind.

Held, on the evidence generally that there was not evidence to go to a jury in respect of either of the charges.

Held, as to forgery:—That the circumstances of the case did not justify an inference that the endorsement was made by the accused with the intention of causing it to be believed that it was made on the 17th and not on the 25th of Jaista when in fact it was made.

Held, as to the charge of attempting to cheat, that the bill having been snatched away from the accused before he had given any indication of what he meant to do with it, the acts of the accused did not constitute an attempt to cheat supposing it was cheating that the accused intended and was prepared to commit. (1907) 8 C.W.N. 278 (F.B.).

—S. 464—‘Dishonest’—Writing a conveyance of his own property to himself.

Writing a conveyance by a stranger to himself of property already conveyed to the accused by the stranger in the name of the accused’s wife is not ‘dishonesty’ making a false document. (1902) 6 C.W.N. 382.

—Ss. 464 and 471—False document—Alteration of date—Change immaterial—Offence—Charge not material to facts—Effect of.

The accused changed the date of a document so that it may be taken in evidence: but the alteration was prejudicial to his case.

Held, that the accused acted improperly but not dishonestly and could not be convicted of an offence under S. 471. 17 A.L.J. 872 = 20 Cr.L.J. 573 = 52. Ind. Cas. 61.

—Ss. 464 and 467—Incomplete document—Unauthorised alterations or interpolations before completion—Recitals to be used in support of future claim—Valuable security—Penal Code, Ss. 25 and 30.

Per Oldfield and Phillips, JJ.—A document is ‘made’ within S. 464, I.P.C., even when some only of the intended executants sign it, as the execution of it by them is complete and the document would be binding on them on the other intending executants affixing their signature. There is nothing in S. 464, I.P.C., to require that a document should be legally effective and valid for its alteration to constitute the offence of making a false document. A document conferring or creating rights is a valuable security though all the intended executants have not signed it. Under S. 467 of the I.P.C., the document must purport to be a valuable security and its validity or otherwise is immaterial. Per Oldfield and Sadasiva Aiyar, JJ.—Where alterations in a document made by a person who believes in good faith that he might use them to support a bona fide claim such alterations cannot be said to have been made fraudulently or dishonestly so as to constitute the offence of forgery. Per Sadasiva Aiyar, J.—A man cannot be convicted of forgery where his intention in making a false document is to secure something to which he is legally entitled or thinks bona fide that he is legally entitled. A document incomplete on its face neither is nor purports to be a document creating or conferring right and cannot therefore be a valuable security and alterations or interpolations therein will not constitute the offence of forgery. 41 Mad. 529 = 19 Cr.L.J. 177 = 43 Ind. Cas. 593.

—S. 464—Forgery—Alteration of document—Dishonestly and fraudulently.

An intention to defraud implies something more than deceit. The advantage intended to be secured or the harm intended to be caused need not have relation to property or be such as is implied in the term ‘dishonestly’ but it must be something to which the party perpetrating the deceit is not entitled either legally or equitably. There can be no intention to defraud where no wrongful result was intended or could have arisen from the act of the accused. A man cannot be convicted of forgery where his intention has been merely to secure something to which he was legally entitled. (1915) M.W.N. 278 = 16 Cr.L.J. 246 = 28 Ind. Cas. 102.

—Ss. 464 and 471—Material alteration—Witness added in a document which required no attestation.

Forgery is not committed by the interpolation of the name of a witness in a document which was not necessary to be attested as it was not a material alteration. Material alteration is one which changes the nature of the document. 38 Cal. 75 = 11 Cr.L.J. 505 = 14 C.W.N. 1076 = 12 C.L.J. 277 = 7. Ind. Cas. 629.

—Ss. 464, 471, 24, 25—Forgery, interpolation of the name of a person as an attesting witness, if—False document, ingredients of—Material part of document if altered—Dishonestly and fraudulently.

Where the accused, after the execution and registration of a document which was not required by law to be attested, added his name to the document as an attesting witness:

Held by (Mookerjee, J. agreeing with Harrington, J. dissenting)—That the accused was not guilty of an offence under S. 471: that the accused by inserting his name as an attesting witness cannot be held to have done the act either dishonestly or fraudulently within the meaning of these words as defined in Ss. 24 and 25. The word ‘fraudulently’ defined. The interpolation of the name of a person as an attesting witness to a document not required by law to be attested, subsequent to its execution and registration is not alteration of the document in a material part. (1910) 14 C.W.N. 1076 = 11 Cr.L.J. 505. 7 Ind. Cas. 629 = 12 C.L.J. 277 = 38 Cal. 75.

—S. 465. See also S. 463.

—Ss. 465 and 471—Accused posting outside Madras application with forged documents addressed to the Madras Public Service Commission—Offence where committed—Jurisdiction.

Where the accused posts at Vizagapatam along with his application for admission to a competitive examination to the Madras Public Service Commission some documents which were forged, intending to use them as genuine, the real user of the documents comes in only when the Madras Public Service Commission looks into the application and considers it, as it is open to the petitioner to withdraw the application even before it is considered by the Commission. Where the matter has been considered by the Madras Public Service Commission the offence of using such forged documents as genuine is committed at Madras and the Presidency Magistrate's Court would have jurisdiction to try the same. 1949 M.W.N. 452 = A.I.R. 1949 Mad. 833 = 51 Cr.L.J. 34 = (1949) 2 M.L.J. 152.

—S. 465—Charge—Opportunity to meet.

In a case where the charge of forgery is brought for the first time against the accused in the course of proceedings for other offences, every proper opportunity should be given him to meet the charge which he may, with some reason say, has taken him by surprise. A.I.R. 1939 Sind 222 = 40 Cr.L.J. 818 (2) = I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 95 = 183 Ind. Cas. 619.

—S. 465—Charge and conviction—Offence under S. 171 (f)—Conviction under Sec. 465—Legality.

The offence of false preparation of signature sheet at an election being specifically described and designated by the legislature, it is not open to any Court to say that, although the offence may be specifically one under S. 171 (f) of the Penal Code, it falls equally under S. 465 of the same Code and therefore, it is open to the Court to try the offender under either of the two sections. 84 Ind. Cas. 714 = 22 A.L.J. 1106 = 6 L.R.A.Cr. 25 = 26 Cr.L.J. 362 = 47 All. 268 = A.I.R. 1925 All. 230.

—Ss. 465 and 468—Charge for offence under S. 465—Conviction under S. 468—Legality.

Section 468 is an aggravated form of forgery and where the accused is charged for an offence under Section 465 his conviction under Section 468 is illegal. 69 Ind. Cas. 628 = 11 L.B.R. 45 = A.I.R. 1921 L.B. 36 = 23 Cr.L.J. 740.

—S. 465—Sentence—Deterrent sentence.

The offences under Ss. 196 and 465 are indeed serious and difficult to detect and consequently call for deterrent punishment. 97 Ind. Cas. 805 = 50 Bom. 783 = 28 Bom. L.R. 1051 = 27 Cr.L.J. 1173 = A.I.R. 1926 Bom. 555.

—S. 465—Separate offences—Separate conviction—Legality.

If a man commits two offences he can certainly be convicted of them both, more especially when they are separate transactions and the commission of one does not necessarily involve the commission of the other. 77 Ind. Cas. 825 = 25 Cr.L.J. 473 = A.I.R. 1924 Nag. 162.

—S. 466—Record of proceedings in Court tampered with to obtain decision of Court—If amounts to fraud—Accused obtaining access to record interpolating list of documents filed and inserting documents in record, held guilty under S. 466. A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 393 = 22 Pat. 292 = 10 B.R. 337 = 45 Cr.L.J. 292 = 211 Ind. Cas. 106.

—S. 466—Effect of signing—Knowledge of Contents—Responsibility—Signature by legal practitioner.

A man who signs his name to a document makes himself thereby in every way as responsible for it as if he was the original drafter of it. If it turns out that the document is one which no man acting honestly could in the circumstances have drafted, then he will be bound to answer for every word, line, sentence and paragraph, and it will not be the least defence that somebody else wrote it out and he only signed it. Signature implies association and carries responsibility.

If a legal practitioner puts his signature to a document he will be deemed to have read it and to carry it in his recollection to the extent that an ordinarily competent, careful and reasonable man would carry it and he will be bound by all the implications arising from it just as much as if he had written every word of it with his own hand. Practitioners must realize that if they make, or associate themselves with statements which they know are dishonest and untruthful for the purpose of misleading the Court they must on proof of misconduct bear personal responsibility and that it will be no defence for them to say that it was done in the interests of the client or at his instigation or at the instigation of a colleague at the bar, or that they were so negligent in the matter that they did not read the document or consider it at all. 98 Ind. Cas. 493 = 48 All. 542 = 27 Cr.L.J. 1373 = A.I.R. 1927 All. 45 (F.B.).

—S. 466—Plaint filed in Court—Alteration of.

A plaint is a record of a proceeding of the Court of justice in which it is filed. It is a document which once filed cannot be altered or amended without the special sanction of the Court and when so altered, an offence under S. 466 is committed. 13 Cr.L.J. 588 = 15 Ind. Cas. 1004 (Cal.).

—Ss. 466 and 471—Using as genuine a forged document—Copies of a forged original.

Where a person, knowing or having reason to believe that the entries in certain village khasras were forged, took copies of those khasras and used them as evidence in his favour in a civil suit: it was held that he might be properly convicted of fraudulently or dishonestly using as genuine the khasras, which he knew or had reason to believe to be forged, and punished under S. 471 read with S. 466 of the Penal Code. (1906) 28 A. 402 = 1906 A.W.N. 71 = 3 A.L.J. 190.

—Ss. 466 and 464—Forgery of record of Court—Definition.

A mukhtar, who was appearing for the plaintiff in ejectment suit before a Rent Court, open court but without the permission of the Court, or even of the officer of the court in whose custody the record was, took the plaint in the case and altered it so as to represent the plaintiff as claiming ejectment of the defendant from one field more in addition to those mentioned originally in the plaint. It did not appear whether the plaintiff was or was not entitled to eject the defendant from that field, but inasmuch as the alteration was made openly and the prosecution had not established that it was made fraudulently or dishonestly, it was held that upon these facts the mukhtar could not properly be convicted of the offence defined, in S. 464. 1905 A.W.N. 93.

—Ss. 466 and 471—Fraud—Dishonesty.

The elements of fraud or dishonesty as explained in the Penal Code must be present in the mind of the person accused to bring his act under S. 466. (1901) 5 C.W.N. 609 = 28 C. 434.

—S. 466. See S. 199. 9 C.W.N. 69.

—S. 466—Charge and conviction.

The Court should not convict both under Ss. 466 and 467 but should choose whichever of the two sections appears to it most suitable. After convicting under one of these two sections it will be quite unnecessary to add a charge under S. 468. 86 Ind. Cas. 993 = 12 O.L.J. 194 = 2 O.W.N. 174 = 26 Cr. L.J. 929 = 29 O.C. 1 = A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 413.

—Ss. 466, 467 and 471—Sanction—Beng. Agri. Debtors Act, S. 54.

Section 54, Bengal Agricultural Debtors Act, has no application except in respect of the offences expressly mentioned therein. Therefore, no sanction under this section is necessary as regards the complaint with a view to the prosecution in respect of offences under Ss. 466, 467 and 471, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 286 = 44 C.W.N. 530 = 41 Cr.L.J. 662 = I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 14 = 188 Ind. Cas. 686.

5. Proof of offence.
6. Sentence.
7. Valuable Security.
8. Miscellaneous.

1. Abetment.

—S. 467—Assistance in forgery—Nature of offence.

A person who did not make, sign or execute a document, but was instrumental in getting the false document dishonestly or fraudulently made, should be convicted under S. 467 read with S. 109 and not S. 467 alone. 113 Ind. Cas. 68 = 30 Cr. L.J. 52 = 11 A.I.Cr.R. 428 = A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 210.

2. Complaint of Court, if required.

—S. 467—Charge under against scribe of forged document used in civil proceedings—Complaint by Court, if required by S. 195, Cr.P.C.

In the case of a charge under S. 467, I.P.C., against a scribe of a forged document used in civil proceedings, no complaint by the Court against him is required by the provisions of S. 195 (1) (b) or (c) of the Cr.P.C. A complaint could be made against him under the provisions of S. 190 (1) (a) of the Cr.P.C. I.L.R. (1947) All. 411 = 48 Cr.L.J. 706 = 231 Ind. Cas. 148 = 1947 A.L.W. 191 = 1947 A. Cr.C. 107 = 1947

A.W.R. (H.C.) 44 = 1947 A.L.J. 98 = A.I.R. 1947 A. 173.

—S. 467—Once a forged document is brought into Court, then private complaints under S. 467, Penal Code, subsequent to this, are barred by S. 195, Cr.P.C., even in respect of anterior forgeries—anterior, that is, to the litigation. A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 327 = 45 Cr.L.J. 175 = 1943 N.L.J. 456 = I.L.R. (1944) Nag. 238 = 210 Ind. Cas. 136.

—S. 467—Prosecution under—Complaint of Court, if necessary.

A complaint of the Court is not necessary for prosecuting the accused who were not parties to proceedings under Legal Practitioners Act for an offence under S. 467, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 323 = [1940], 2 M.L.J. 1063 = 1940 M.W.N. 1270 = 42 Cr. L.J. 468 = 193 Ind. Cas. 322.

—Ss. 467 and 471—Offences under Ss. 467 and 471, Penal Code, cannot be taken cognisance of except on a complaint in accordance with the provisions of S. 195, Cr.P.C., A.I.R. 1932 Sind. 90 = 268 S.L.R. 73 = 33 Cr.L.J. 452 (2) = 137 Ind. Cas. 341.

—S. 467—Accused not parties to the proceedings in which the document was produced—Sanction if necessary.

No sanction (now complaint) is necessary for an offence under S. 467 when the accused are not parties in the proceedings in which the document is produced: 24 Mad. 121, Foll. 71 Ind. Cas. 63 = 16 M.L.W. 534 = 24 Cr.L.J. 15 = A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 87.

—S. 467, Cr.P.C. (1898), S. 195(c)—Sanction for prosecution necessary.

Sanction (now complaint) is necessary for prosecution under S. 467 although this section is not mentioned in S. 195 (c), C.P.C. 14 C.W.N. 479 = 11 Cr.L.J. 280 = 5 Ind. Cas. 879.

3. Offence under.

—S. 467—D having two sisters G and B, latter being a widow—D and G conspiring and G holding herself out as B and sale deed in D's favour of land belonging to B—Deed executing registered—Offence.

One D had two sisters G and B. The latter being a widow, was residing with her brother. On the date of the death of B, a sale-deed was registered which purported to have been executed by her, and to convey to her brother D, certain land which was the land of her husband. The thumb-impression on this sale-deed was not that of B, but that of G who deliberately held herself out to the deed writer and also to the Registrar as B. D had supplied the deed-writer with the particulars relating to the land which had to be entered in the sale-deed:

Held, that (i) by supplying the particulars relating to the land, D aided and assisted in the commission of the forgery, as without them, the deed writer could not have drawn up the deed at all;

(ii) that as D and G had conspired and acted fraudulently, intending to deceive the Sub-Registrar and to deceive and also to injure the reversioners of B who, by the coming into existence of the sale-deed, would or might be led to think that B had alienated her husband's property for legal necessity, their conviction under S. 467, Penal Code, was proper. A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 227 = 22 Pat. 95 = 10 C.L.T. 37 = 9 B.R. 434 = 44 Cr.L.J. 652 = 207 Ind. Cas. 552.

—S. 467—Attestors to forged valuable security, if can plead that they signed it believing in representation of others.

There is no estoppel which bars an accused person in any case from pleading that he had no dishonest or criminal intention. Attestors to a forged valuable security can plead that they signed believing in the representation of others and consequently, had no criminal intention. In other words, there is nothing to prevent the attestors from pleading that they were foolish and not criminal in what they did. A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 730 = 1939 M.W.N. 514 = 41 Cr.L.J. 11 = 184 Ind. Cas. 460.

—Ss. 467 and 420—Where the accused deceived the complainant into believing that gold jewels had been pledged in order to get money dishonestly while in fact there had been no pledge and false entries had been made in accounts to support the false representation, the offence is not one under S. 409 but under Ss. 420 and 467. 1937 M.W.N. 729.

—S. 467—A supervisor of a Society getting affixed to debt entry false thumb impression of a sweeper and thus misappropriating money:

Held, that the accused was guilty under S. 467. A.I.R. 1935 Bom. 30 = 36 Cr.L.J. 522 = 36 Bom. L.R. 1120 = 154 Ind. Cas. 559.

—S. 467—Forging of withdrawal application from Savings Bank—Whether covered by the section—Forgery on two dates of two applications—Single charge, if sufficient.

Where the accused was charged with forging two withdrawal applications and receiving the amounts so drawn on two different dates out of the money the complainant had deposited in a Savings Bank but the charge as framed was one single charge with one head, and the Judge, instead of keeping the two offences distinct and separate, lumped them together and asked the jury for a single finding instead of a separate finding regarding each offence:

Held, that the procedure followed was likely to cause confusion and to interfere with the definite proof of a distinct offence, and that the conviction could not stand and must be set aside and a re-trial ordered.

Section 467, Penal Code, provides punishment for forgery not only of a document purporting to be a valuable security but also of any document which purports to give authority to any person "to receive or deliver any money." A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 488 = 34 Cr.L.J. 892 = 14 P.L.T. 580 = 144 Ind. Cas. 936.

—S. 467—Alteration to be with intention of causing injury or damage dishonestly or fraudulently is essential for the offence under S. 467. 1931 M.W.N. 361.

—S. 467—Essential for conviction.

In order to convict persons charged under Ss. 467-109, it must be established that the act was done dishonestly or fraudulently as required by S. 464. 112 Ind. Cas. 359 = 10 L.L.J. 369 = 29 Cr.L.J. 1031 = 11 A.I.Cr.R. 391.

—S. 467—Liability of attestor—Attestation with knowledge of forgery—Nature of offence.

If a person falsely puts his name down as an attesting witness to the signature of somebody who he knows has never signed at all, he is guilty of forgery just as well as the scribe. The persons attesting like the above must be put on their trial on a charge under S. 467 read with S. 120-B. 1929 Cr. C. 194 = A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 539.

—S. 467—Liability of writer—Writer not present at execution—No forgery.

The writer of a forged receipt is not guilty under S. 467 where there is no evidence that he was present at the execution of the receipt or that he helped anyone to make use of it. 82 Ind. Cas. 216 = 25 Cr.L.J. 1253 = A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 192.

—Ss. 467 and 471—Forging a receipt for misappropriating money.

A Bench clerk received a sum of money paid in as fine and misappropriated it and to cover up the misappropriation forged a false receipt.

Held, that the offence under Ss. 467 and 471 was committed especially since the false receipt was made for the purpose of enabling him to misappropriate the money: 11 Mad. 411, Foll. 83 Ind. Cas. 338 = 3 Bur. L.J. 113 = 25 Cr.L.J. 1378 = A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 331.

—S. 467—Receiving money-order addressed to another—Making false signature of the payee—Payee not informed by the receiver—Offence.

An offence of forgery under S. 467, I.P.C. is committed when a person receives the amount of the money-order from the postman by causing the signature of the payee to be made falsely on it and does not inform the payee about the receipt of the same. 66 Ind. Cas. 328 = 24 Bom. L.R. 99 = 23 Cr.L.J. 264 = A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 82.

—Ss. 467 and 471—False documents—Copy of false document not a false document. (1910) 20 M.L.J. 534 = 7 M.L.T. 428 = 11 Cr. L.J. 401 = 6 Ind. Cas. 776.

4. Offences under Ss. 467 and 471.

—Ss. 467, 471 and 109—Acquittal under S. 467—If bars conviction under Ss. 467 and 471—Person aggrieved under S. 476—Remedy.

The offence of abetment of forgery is quite different from the offence of using as genuine a forged document and there is nothing either in law or in fact to prevent a man being innocent of the first offence and guilty of the second. Even if one offence did involve the other an accused person could not claim to be acquitted of both offences because the provisions of S. 195, Criminal P.C., constituted a bar to his trial and conviction for one of them.

An acquittal under S. 467 read with S. 109, Penal Code, does not bar a conviction under Ss. 467 and 471. A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 545 = 55 C.L.J. 336 = 34 Cr.L.J. 39 (2) = 140 Ind. Cas. 544.

—S. 467—Accused once convicted under S. 467—Subsequent conviction under S. 471 in respect of the same documents—If proper.

An accused cannot be convicted of the independent offence under S. 471 read with 467 after his previous conviction under S. 467/109 in respect of the same documents. The language of S. 471, I.P.C., most obviously suggests that this provision is expressly directed against some person other than the forger himself. The reason for the presence of S. 471 on the statute book in the somewhat unusual language which is employed therein, is in order to provide a useful alternative charge in cases where there is uncertainty as to whether the person on trial is himself the forger of the document, or has merely used it as genuine, knowing it to be nothing of the sort: 23 All. 84, Foll. 89 Ind. Cas. 523 = 21 N.L.R. 152 = 26 Cr.L.J. 1387 = A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 137.

—Ss. 467 and 471—A forger using as genuine a forged document—Conviction under Ss. 467 and 471—If proper.

A person, who, being himself the forger thereof, has used as genuine a forged document, cannot be punished under S. 471, for the use of the forged document as well as for the forgery, under S. 467, but can be punished only under S. 467. 83 Ind. Cas. 1051 = 26 Cr.L.J. 1275 = A.I.R. 1925 Nag. 440.

—Ss. 467 and 471—Conviction both for forging document and for using it as genuine, whether illegal.

When a person is convicted under S. 467, I.P.C., for having a forged promissory note, a further conviction and sentence under S. 471 for using that note as genuine is not illegal in the course of the same trial. 17 Cr.L.J. 73 = 32 Ind. Cas. 665 (Mad.).

—Ss. 467, 471 and 477—Separate offences—Conviction.

Where the act of the accused which constitutes forgery is the same as the act which amounts to fraudulent destruction or defacement or cancellation of the document, he cannot be convicted of separate offences under Ss. 467, 471 and 477, I.P.C. 52 P.L.R. 1913 = 4 P.R. 1913 Cr. = 14 Cr.L.J. 183 = 19 Ind. Cas. 183.

5. Proof of offence.

—S. 467—Proof of offence.

Where there is no evidence that the accused wrote the signature of the landlord on a rent receipt, the admission by him that he wrote the body of the document is not sufficient to support a charge under S. 467, I.P. Code. A.I.R. 1949 Dacca 9 = 50 Cr.L.J. 776.

—S. 467—Good reasons in document itself proving it to be forged—Document scribed by accused with dishonest motive—Conviction.

Where, beside the expert's evidence, there are intrinsic good reasons in the document itself which prove it conclusively to be a forged document and where there can be no doubt that the document was scribed by the accused with dishonest motive, he can be convicted under S. 467. A.I.R. 1936 Oudh 381 = 1936 O.W.N. 1066.

—S. 467—Forgery—Proof.

The mere fact that a document is written on a paper which is not supposed to have been issued to the public is insufficient to support a charge of forgery, especially when the evidence that the paper on which it was written was not issued to the public is absent. 35 P.L.R. 599.

—Ss. 467 and 471—Forgery.

Prosecution must prove deceit or fraud in the use of blank paper by the accused. 1932 M.W.N. 117.

—Ss. 467 and 471—Asking forgiveness if amounts to admission.

Asking forgiveness is not an incriminating circumstance and when used with reference to forged receipts is not an admission of forgery or of using forged documents. 14 C.L.J. 652 = 13 Cr. L.J. 62 = 13 Ind. Cas. 398.

—S. 467—Document alleged to be forged purporting to be in handwriting of accused—Accused not denying handwriting to be his—Handwriting expert, stating that signature is that of accused—Inference that document is in handwriting of accused.

When the document alleged to have been forged purports to be in the handwriting of the accused and he has not denied it to be his handwriting but has, on the other hand, stated that the handwriting and the signature on the document appear to be like his handwriting and the expert after comparing the signature of the accused with some of his admitted signatures stated definitely that the signature is that of the accused, the Court is justified in holding that the document is in the handwriting of the accused. The fact that the expert has not compared the entire writing with any other writing of the accused but gives his opinion merely on comparison of the signature on the document makes no difference, when the expert has given scientific reasons with regard to the signature and nothing has been shown why his opinion should not be accepted. A.I.R. 1936 Oudh 381 = 1936 O.W.N. 1066.

—S. 467—Forgery—Charge for—Evidence of handwriting expert—If sufficient.

In a charge for forgery, the opinion of a handwriting expert should not ordinarily be accepted as conclusive to prove the facts deposed to by him and a conviction for forgery cannot be sustained merely on the evidence of an expert. A.I.R. 1932 Lab. 490 = 33 P.L.R. 597 = 33 Cr.L.J. 593 (1) = 138 Ind. Cas. 368.

—S. 467—Basis of conviction—Comparison of handwriting—Opinion of Judge.

A conviction for forgery should not safely be based entirely upon a comparison of the handwriting. But the Court is competent to see for itself whether certain handwritings placed before it are similar or not. 65 Ind. Cas. 426 = 23 Cr.L.J. 74 (Pat.).

6. Sentence.

—S. 467—Sentence—Deliberate forgery.

For an offence of deliberate forgery of a will, a sentence of 5 years' rigorous imprisonment is not too severe. A.I.R. 1936 Oudh 381 = 1936 O.W.N. 1066.

—S. 467—Sentence of fine alone, if according to law.

Section 467, Penal Code, requires that some imprisonment should be awarded if a person is convicted under that section. The sentence of fine alone is, therefore, not in accordance with law. A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 730 = 1939 M.W.N. 514 = 41 Cr.L.J. 11 = 184 Ind. Cas. 460.

7. Valuable security.

—Ss. 467, 471, and 30—Transit pass of forest lessee—Whether valuable security.

During the pendency of proceedings against a lessee of a forest from the Government, the lessee used a transit pass book the entries in the 'original' of which were forged. A complaint was, therefore, made charging the lessee with having fraudulently or dishonestly used as genuine the transit pass book, and the accused was convicted under Ss. 471, 465, Penal Code:

Held, that the transit passes were 'valuable securities' within the meaning of S. 30, Penal Code, and that the offence, if any, was punishable under Ss. 467-471, Penal Code, and exclusively triable by a Court of Session. A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 390 = 36 C.W.N. 505 = 59 Cal. 1233 = 55 C.L.J. 349 = 33 Cr.L.J. 685 = 138 Ind. Cas. 705.

—S. 467—Valuable security—Meaning of.

A document which has been held to be valuable security within the meaning of S. 30 of the I.P.C. falls within the scope of S. 467 of I.P.C. 8 P.W.R. 1916 Cr. = 17 Cr.L.J. 205 = 34 Ind. Cas. 317.

8. Miscellaneous.

—Ss. 467, 109 and 120-B—Charge and conviction.

Where accused are charged under S. 120-B-467, Penal Code, with the offence of conspiring to forge a valuable security and subsequently an additional charge is framed of abetment under S. 467-109, Penal Code, and after recording all the prosecution evidence, the charge under S. 120-B-467 is cancelled for want of sanction required by S. 196-A, Criminal P.C., the Court can convict the accused under S. 467-109. A.I.R. 1940 Cal 277 = 71 C.L.J. 181 = 44 C.W.N. 474 = I.L.R. (1940) 1 Cal. 531 = 41 Cr.L.J. 719 = 189 Ind. Cas. 173.

—S. 467—Criminal trial—Forging Hundi—Power of Magistrate, First Class to try a case of forging Hundi.

The offence of forging a Hundi falls under S. 467 and is triable only by the Sessions Court or by a Magistrate, invested with enhanced powers. Though the offence includes a minor offence, triable by an Ordinary First Class Magistrate, the latter has no power to deal with the case. A First Class Magistrate can dispose of a Sessions case either by an order of discharge or by committal to the Sessions only. 31 P.R. 1910 Cr. = 194 P.L.R. 1910 = 11 Cr.L.J. 639 = 8 Ind. Cas. 389.

—S. 467—Offence under—Conviction under S. 167 also—If proper.

The offence under S. 167, is included in the offence under Ss 467 and 471, and, therefore conviction, both under S. 167, and Ss. 467 and 471, is not maintainable 99 Ind. Cas. 122 = 3 O.W.N. 760 = 7 A.I.Cr.R. 51 = 13 O.L.J. 817 = 28 Cr.L.J. 90 = A. I. R. 1926 Oudh 615.

—Ss. 468 and 416—Accused appearing for examination for another candidate and answering for such candidate:—

Held, guilty both of forgery and cheating. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 403 = 40 C.W.N. 956 = I.L.R. (1937) 1 Cal. 71 = 37 Cr.L.J. 1156 (2) = 165 Ind. Cas. 505.

—S. 468—Using stamp for another client altering endorsement of stamp-vendor is not an offence under S. 468, Penal Code, unless the person so doing acts dishonestly. A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 337 = 32 P.L.R. 432 = 32 Cr.L.J. 1051 = 133 Ind. Cas. 645.

—S. 468—Offence under—Letter written by accused knowing that it will be used for defrauding some person—Legality of conviction.

Where the accused wrote the letter knowing that it will be used to defraud a certain person:

Held, that the letter was a forgery and a conviction under S. 468 was right. 101 Ind. Cas. 493 = 9 L.L.J. 103 = 8 A.I.Cr.R. 74 = 28 Cr.L.J. 461 = A.I.R. 1927 Lab. 724.

—S. 468—Completion of offence—Forgery with the intent specified.

The offence under S. 468 is complete as soon as there is a forgery with the particular intent mentioned in the section. When the intended cheating or attempt at it takes place another distinct offence is committed. 77 Ind. Cas. 827 = 25 Cr.L.J. 475 = A.I.R. 1924 Nag. 120.

—Ss. 468 and 471—Forgery—Process—Attestation of device.

A process server filing a forged attakshi to explain the delay in returning the process, is guilty under Ss. 468 and 471, I.P.C.: 11 M. 411, 35 C. 450, Foll. 42. Mad. 558 = 36 M.L.J. 201 = 20 Cr.L.J. 287 = 25 M.L.T. 345 = (1919) M.W.N. 433 = 50 Ind. Cas. 175.

—S. 468—Forgery of partner.

A person is guilty of the offence of forgery if he forges a document in the name of the firm of which he is a partner, since the fraud is not against himself alone but is against the other partners. 9 W.R. 37 declared overruled by 13 B.L.R. 207. (1904) 6 Bom. L.R. 553.

—Ss. 468, 467, 109, 471, 417 and 511—Registration Act, S. 82—Forgery—Using as genuine a forged document—Cheating—Misjoinder of charges—Defective charge—Case to be investigated by jury.

Where the case against an accused was that he had executed a kobala for the sale of certain property, to a purchaser the registration endoresment on which was alleged to be forged and had subsequently purported to mortgage the identical property to the same purchaser by a registered mortgage-bond which was also alleged to be a forgery and on the footing of which he had tried to raise a loan, and was charged firstly with regard to the kobala under S. 467 alternatively with Ss. 467, 109 and 468 alternatively with Ss. 468, 109, secondly with regard to the mortgage bond and his dealing with the same under S. 82, Registration Act, and Ss. 467, 109, 471, 417, 514, I.P.C., and was convicted under Ss. 467, 109, I.P.C., of forging the mortgage bond and under S. 417, 511, I.P.C., of attempting to cheat and under S. 471, I.P.C., for using as genuine the mortgage-bond knowing it to be forged.

Held, that there was misjoinder of charges and that the conviction should be set aside. (1903) 30 C. 822 = 7 C.W.N. 639.

S. 468—Evidence and proof—Document forged—Prosecution not explaining how it came with the accused—Use of the document by accused not proved—Accused denying the charge—Propriety of conviction.

Where an admittedly forged document was alleged to be found with the accused but it was not explained by the prosecution how it came to be with him nor that he used the same and the accused specifically alleged that the case was false,

Held, that his conviction either under S. 468 or under S. 471 was not maintainable. 89 Ind. Cas. 398 = 8 N.L.J. 87 = 26 Cr.L.J. 1358 = A.I.R. 1925 Nag. 294.

S. 468—Complaint under—Search—Document found exhibited in criminal case—Document called in evidence by Civil Court in suit by accused against complainant—Prosecution of accused under S. 468—Complaint of Civil Court—If necessary.

On a complaint against the accused under S. 468, Penal Code, a search warrant was issued and a document was discovered in accused's house. This was made an exhibit in the criminal case. In a civil suit filed by accused against the complainant, the Civil Court requested the Criminal Court to send the document in question, and the document was also tendered in evidence in the civil case. The contention on behalf of the accused was that as the document in question was tendered in evidence in the civil case, the accused's prosecution under S. 468, Penal Code, could not continue as the Civil Court had not filed a complaint in writing against the accused :

Held, that the Criminal Court had taken cognizance of an offence under S. 468, Penal Code, long before the document in dispute was called for by the Civil Court. In fact, the document in question had become an exhibit in the criminal case before it was sent to the Civil Court. In these circumstances, it could not be held that the case under S. 468 against the petitioner, could not continue, as the Civil Court which had called for the document in question had not presented a complaint in writing against the accused. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 238 = 38 P.L.R. 1120 = 38 Cr.L.J. 581 (2) = 168 Ind. Cas. 740.

Ss. 469 and 471—Use of forged document—Civil suit—No evidence about actual commission—Conviction.

Where the Court finds that a document is a forgery and that it has been used by the accused in a civil suit but there is no evidence that the accused actually committed the forgery, the accused could not be convicted of an offence under S. 469 of the I.P.C. and the conviction ought to be only under S. 471 of the Code. 7 Cr.L.R. 254 (Mad.).

1. (a) Offence under—Ingredients.

S. 471—Essential ingredients—Accused when can be convicted.

In order to convict the accused for dishonesty, or fraudulently using a forged document, the prosecution has to prove, beyond reasonable doubt, that the accused knew that the document was forged. It is not sufficient merely to prove that the document was not executed by the person, by whom it was alleged to have been executed.

Where, although the accused has failed to establish his version of the document by reliable evidence, there remains a reasonable possibility that the story put up by him in defence might be true, he cannot properly be convicted under S. 471. (1946) 12 B.R. 289 = 222 Ind. Cas. 620 = 47 Cr.L.J. 317 = A.I.R. 1947 Pat. 251.

S. 471—For a conviction under S. 471, the accused must use the forgery in any judicial proceeding. 1932 M.W.N. 454.

Ss. 471, 465 and 24—Filing petition in Court with forged signatures—Wrongful loss or gain not actually caused—Liability of accused.

It is sufficient for the purposes of forgery to show that there was a criminal intention to cause wrongful gain to one or wrongful loss to another person as that constitutes the definition of 'dishonesty' in S. 24 of the I.P.C. It is not necessary that the wrongful gain or wrongful loss should be actually caused.

The accused presented an application to the Revenue Court purporting to be under S. 107 of the U.P. Land Revenue Act and purporting to be signed by a number of co-sharers and praying that as a partition had already been agreed to by the parties, mutation should be made according to this partition in the revenue papers. The application was accompanied by the agreement. It was discovered that the signatures of two of the co-sharers who had not agreed to this partition had been forged in the application and agreement and the accused were prosecuted under Ss. 465 and 471,

Held, that as there was nothing to show that the accused had forged their signatures, they were not guilty under S. 465 but they were guilty under S. 471 Penal Code, of the offence of having dishonestly used the documents knowing or having reason to believe that they were forged. A.I.R. 1931 All. 258 = 1930 A.L.J. 1451 = 32 Cr.L.J. 559 = 130 Ind. Cas. 492.

S. 471—User for securing acquittal—Proof of wrongful gain or loss—If necessary.

Section 471 does not necessarily contemplate user for producing material gain or material loss to another as explained in S. 24 but it does apply to user for the purpose of securing an acquittal. Neither the acquisition nor the deprivation of property is an essential ingredient of the intent in an offence under S. 471. The obtaining of an acquittal is very distinctly the obtaining of an advantage and brings the case within the definition of "dishonestly" in S. 24. 113 Ind. Cas. 712 = 9 P.L.T. 800 = 30 Cr.L.J. 236 = 12 A.I. Cr.R. 236 = A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 60.

—S. 471—Acquisition or deprivation of property.

Neither the acquisition nor the deprivation of property is an essential ingredient of the intent in an offence under S. 471. 91 Ind. Cas. 993 = 52 Cal. 881 = 27 Cr.L.J. 177 = A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 89.

—S. 471—Ingredients of offence—Using forged document—Intention to deceive.

An offence is committed under S. 471 whenever a document is used as genuine with the intention that some person thereby should be deceived, and by means of such deception that either an advantage should accrue to the person so using the document, or injury should befall some other person or persons. 91 Ind. Cas. 993 = 52 Cal. 881 = 27 Cr.L.J. 177 = A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 89.

—S. 471—'Fraudulently'—Meaning.

The term "fraudulently" in S. 471 does not necessarily connote deceit and injury to the person deceived. It may, but it need not, do so. 91 Ind. Cas. 993 = 52 Cal. 881 = 27 Cr.L.J. 177 = A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 89.

—S. 471—Fraudulent use.

A man can use a document fraudulently even though it is used for the purpose of supporting a good title. 83 Ind. Cas. 504 = 51 Cal. 469 = 26 Cr.L.J. 24 = A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 718.

—S. 471—Non-reliance—Effect.

That accused did not rely on the document as a valuable security is no defence to a charge under S. 471. 82 Ind. Cas. 145 = 28 C.W.N. 947 = 40 C.L.J. 135 = 25 Cr.L.J. 1217 = A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 960.

—S. 471—Participation in offence—Person not physically presenting but actively participating in process of presentation—If guilty.

If a person actively participates in the process of presentation of a forged document for registration, he can be convicted under S. 471, although he may not have physically presented it for registration. 119 Ind. Cas. 63 = 52 Mad. 532 = 29 M.L.W. 559 = 1929 M.W.N. 279 = 2 M.Cr.C. 87 = 30 Cr.L.J. 983 = A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 450 = 56 M.L.J. 554.

—S. 471—Fraud—Dishonesty. See Ss. 467 and 471. 5 C.W.N. 609 = 28 C. 434.

1. (b) Offence under—"use"—What constitutes.

—S. 471—Offence under, when made out—Production of document alleged to be forged at instance of Court.

The use of a document contemplated by S. 471, Penal Code, must be a voluntary one, and not the mere production of the document in compliance with an order of the Court which must be obeyed. The production of a receipt alleged to be forged after the end of the case and at the insistence of the Court cannot possibly be either a voluntary or a fraudulent or dishonest use of the document within the meaning of

S. 471, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1935 All. 940 = 37 Cr.L.J. 46 = 1935 A.W.R. 1453 = 159 Ind. Cas. 287.

—S. 471—Production by Court's order—Knowledge of forgery—Offence.

Although a person has been served with summons to produce this document, if he fails to disclose that he believes that the document has been forged and fraudulently or dishonestly puts forward the document as being a genuine document, he is not acting involuntarily, but is deliberately using the document for a criminal purpose. 91 Ind. Cas. 993 = 52 Cal. 881 = 27 Cr.L.J. 177 = A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 89.

—S. 471 and 468—Production of account in obedience to Court's order.

The production of a document in obedience to summons by a Court to produce it, does not amount to using the document as genuine, and so no offence under S. 471 is committed. 36 Mad. 387 = 10 M.L.T. 563 = (1912) M.W.N. 3 = 22 M.L.J. 141 = 13 Cr.L.J. 35 = 13 Ind. Cas. 275.

—S. 471—Production of document in Court not involuntary but brought about by conspiracy on accused's part—Offence.

Although a person who produces documents in obedience to the order of the Court may not be held guilty of using forged documents even if they are found to be forged, the case would be different where the production of the documents in Court is not voluntary but in pursuance of a conspiracy between the accused, one of them being made the custodian of the documents in order to get over some technical objection. 88 Ind. Cas. 181 = 26 Cr.L.J. 1093 = A.I.R. 1925 Nag. 345.

—S. 471—Receipts filed in rent suit and placed before plaintiff for admission or denial—Plaintiff denying—Held, they were 'used'.

In a rent suit against him, the accused filed certain receipts and placed them before the plaintiff for admission or denial and the plaintiff denied them:

Held, that if the plaintiff had been deceived and had admitted them, the accused would have achieved his object. The term "use" is of wide meaning and that the accused did use the receipts. A.I.R. 1935 All. 521 = 1935 A.L.J. 493 = 1935 A.W.R. 628 and 700 = 36 Cr.L.J. 1199 = 157 Ind. Cas. 557.

—S. 471—In previous trial accused referring to document which was filed and istafanama which was not filed—Prosecution producing it and defence counsel referring to it in cross-examination—Held, no user within S. 471.

The only evidence of user within the meaning of S. 471, Penal Code, was that at the previous trial the accused put in a written statement in his defence in which he referred to certain documents which had been filed and also referred to the istafanama which was alleged to be forged. The istafanama was neither filed or produced nor put in evidence by the accused or on his behalf. It was produced and put in evidence by one of the witnesses for the prosecution in cross-examination; the istafanama was referred to by the Pleader appearing on behalf of the accused:

Held, that this could not be held to be user within the meaning of S. 471, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 687 = 39 C.W.N. 1309 = 37 Cr.L.J. 30 = 63 C. 481 = 159 Ind. Cas. 149.

—S. 471—Where accused produces a forged document in the proceedings before the Manager dealing with claim under Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act, this constitutes a user of a false document within the meaning of S. 471. A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 515=16 P.L.T. 693=36 Cr.L.J. 1354=15 Pat. 69=1 B.R. 872=158 Ind. Cas. 324.

—S. 471—Filing by witness—If amounts to using document.

Where the accused, who was a witness in the suit, from some interest in, or desire to assist, the defence filed certain document for the purposes of the suit in advance of a trial.

Held, that he “used” the document within the meaning of S. 471. The wider the definition of the word “use” in S. 471 the better, as the use has to be fraudulent. 116 Ind. Cas. 632=49 C.L.J. 193=30 Cr.L.J. 656=13 A.I.Cr.R. 73=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 203.

—S. 471—“Used as genuine”—Meaning.

Whenever a person fraudulently or dishonestly presents a forged document to another person as being what it purports to be, or causes the same to be so presented, knowing or having reason to believe that the said document is a forged document, the document is “used as genuine” within S. 471. It matters not whether the document is presented by the accused himself, or by his agent expressly authorised in that behalf, or whether it is produced by the accused of his own motion or pursuant to the order of the Court, if in the event he uses it as genuine. 91 Ind. Cas. 993=52 Cal. 881=27 Cr.L.J. 177=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 89.

—S. 471—Using as genuine—Filing document to support claim.

To constitute use of a document it is not necessary that the Court should accept the document produced before it or filed in Court; if a person puts forward a document as supporting his claim in any matter, whether that document is acted upon by the Court or used in evidence is immaterial for the purpose of constituting use of the document by the party within the meaning of S. 471, Indian Penal Code. 35 Cal. 820 Expl. 39 Cal. 463; 17 C.W.N. 94, Foll. 83 Ind. Cas. 504 = 51 Cal. 469 = 26 Cr.L.J. 24 = A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 718.

—S. 471—Presenting document before Sub-Registrar.

—S. 471—Giving forged document to Police—Investigating officer.

A person giving a forged document to the investigating officer during the police investigation and thus causing that officer to do something which otherwise he would not have done is guilty of having used forged document within S. 471. 60 Ind. Cas. 674=22 Cr.L.J. 274=3 U.P.L.R. (Pat.) 42.

—S. 471—Filing forged document with plaint.

Filing of a forged document along with plaint amounts to a ‘user’ of the document within S. 471 of the Code. 3 Pat.L.J. 385 = 19 Cr.L.J. 709 = 46 Ind. Cas. 293.

—Ss. 471 and 467—Citation—Production of forged title and user.

The production of a forged title deed in answer to a citation in which no particular deed is specified and giving evidence in regard to it amounts to ‘user’ within the meaning of S. 471, I.P.C. He may be prosecuted though sanction under S. 193, Cr. P. Code, has not been granted in respect of the statements made by him regarding the document. 18 Cr.L.J. 839=41 Ind. Cas. 663 (Cal.).

—S. 471—‘User’ meaning of—Sanction.

In a rent suit accused summoned some documents from complainant. The documents were produced by the accused as coming from the custody of the complainants who now alleged that the documents were forged and were not produced by them, but by the accused;

Held, that the facts constituted, ‘user’ within the section. For a prosecution for such offence, sanction under S. 195 or 476 of Cr.P. Code is necessary. 19 C.W.N. 125=16 Cr.L.J. 309=28 Ind. Cas. 645.

—S. 471—‘User’.

Where during examination of witness for prosecution, in a rioting case, the accused gave to Muktear a document, which was given to the witness who said it was not genuine and the document, a rent receipt was initialled by Magistrate and filed it,

Held, this was not sufficient user to support conviction under S. 471. In mitigation of punishment the fact that the document was used in a criminal trial for the purpose of getting out of a difficulty and that it was not supported by perjury may be taken into account. 39 Cal. 463 = 15 C.L.J. 509 = 16 C.W.N. 623=13 Cr.L.J. 201=14 Ind. Cas. 201.

—S. 471—Alleged executant denying registration—Accused called upon in a judicial enquiry to say whether it was genuine or forged—Accused appearing and asserting its genuineness not dishonest or fraudulent user within the terms of S. 471, I.P.C.

A presented a document for registration before a Sub-Registrar alleging that S had executed it. S having denied execution, the Sub-Registrar reported the matter to the District Magistrate. The District Magistrate ordered a judicial enquiry and the Deputy Magistrate who was conducting the same called upon A to state whether the document was genuine or forged. A appeared and stated that the document was genuine by the Deputy Magistrate held otherwise. A was thereafter tried and convicted under S. 471.

Held, that it was impossible to say that A ‘used’ the document. The use of a forged document which is contemplated by S. 471, is such use as causes wrongful gain or wrongful loss; that is to say, that section applies to the case of a person who appears before some other person or before a Court with a document and endeavours to induce that person or Court to do some act which he would not do if it was known to be a forgery. (1907) 11 C.W.N. 838=5 C.L.J. 454.

1. (c) Offence under—What is and what is not.

—S. 471—Offence under—Giving of a post-dated forged cheque—Money paid to party and nobody defrauded—Conviction under S. 471—Sustainability.

Where a debtor to gain time for repayment of a debt gives a post-dated forged cheque to the creditor which on presentation is returned as the drawer had no account with the bank, the debtor can be convicted under S. 471, I.P. Code, though he might subsequently have paid the debt to the creditor who has not therefore been defrauded. It is enough to sustain the conviction that the accused got time on the strength of his false representation. 3 Sau.L.R. 8.

—Ss. 471 and 467—Fabrication of false document, when criminal—Intention.

The fabrication of a false document is criminal only when certain intentions can be attributed to the person who fabricates it. The question of intention is one of fact.

One of the trustees of a boarding house was given a cheque for Rs. 400 by one B. The money was to be used for the purposes of the boarding house. It was established that the money was misappropriated by the trustee and he was sentenced to a fine of Rs. 800 under S. 406, Penal Code. It was found that in order to protect himself from the consequences of his offence of criminal breach of trust, he forged a letter purporting to be from B and acknowledging the receipt of the amount of the cheque :

Held, that the trustee, by obtaining this forged document and using it, was not only protecting himself from punishment but was also rendering it probable that B or the Brahman boarding house would suffer loss. If the forgery had succeeded in its object, B would have been deprived of this money. A person must be held to have intended the natural consequences of his action and therefore, in this particular case, the act of the trustee was a criminal act within the provisions of Ss. 467 and 471, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1940 All. 551 = 1940 An.W.R. 559 = 1940 A.L.J. 759 = 42 Cr.L.J. 247 = 192 Ind. Cas. 130.

—S. 471—Date of decree in certified copy of decree altered with erroneous belief that decree being time-barred, could thus be executable—Execution of such decree sought—Original decree not in fact time-barred—Offence—"Fraudulently or dishonestly," meaning of.

It is necessary for the prosecution, when the charge is under S. 471, Penal Code, to show that the accused knew or had reason to believe the document to be forged and used it fraudulently or dishonestly.

Where the execution is sought on the basis of a copy of the decree in which the dates were altered under the impression that the decree was time-barred, a sufficient intent to defraud is involved in the advantage directly aimed at by the petitioner on the basis of the altered dates, and it is immaterial that the alterations were brought about under an erroneous impression that the decree was time-barred. A fraud, it is clear, is attempted upon the Court and in such a case, it is not necessary for the prosecution to go further and establish an intent to cause loss or risk of loss. But even if the contrary were to be held, the definition of 'injury' in S. 44, Penal Code, is very wide, and the threat of a decree that could not be executed by any competent authority is a threat of harm or injury within the meaning of the Code. (Meaning of the expression 'fraudulently and dishonestly' discussed.) A.I.R. 1940 Pat. 486 = 41 Cr.L.J. 427 = 21 P.L.T. 206 = 187 Ind. Cas. 256.

—S. 471—Civil suit by accused—He mentioning in his affidavit of documents in his possession certain delivery order—Defendants requiring him to produce that document—Document produced alleged to be forged—Accused, if could be charged under S. 471.

An accused had filed a civil suit in which he was required under the provisions of O. 11, Rr. 12 and 13, Civil P.C., to file an affidavit of documents which were or had been in his possession relating to some matter in question in the suit, and in the affidavit, mention was made about certain delivery order. Nevertheless, the accused did not produce it in Court, nor made any use of it. It was the defendants who, in cross examining the accused, required the production of the delivery order; and it was at their instance that it was produced. The document was alleged to be forged and the accused was charged under S. 471, Penal Code. There was no evidence that the accused used the delivery order for the purpose of cheating and no evidence that he used the delivery order as genuine and no evidence that he forged it;

Held, that under the circumstances, no charge, under S. 471, Penal Code, could be established as the accused was forced by the defendants to refer to this document in his evidence. But for the defendants, it would not have been produced in Court. By mentioning the document in his affidavit of documents in his possession, it might be that he showed that at one stage he had made preparation for using the document, but no more than that could be inferred. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 194 = 39 Cr.L.J. 592 = 175 Ind. Cas. 488.

—S. 471—The handing over of the forged receipt to the Vakil and their production in Court in support of the defence amounts to using the forged receipts as genuine and the conviction under S. 471 is right. A.I.R. 1936 Mad. 280 = 1935 M.W.N. 1346 = 70 M.L.J. 109 = 43 L.W. 226 = 37 Cr.L.J. 421 = 161 Ind. Cas. 196.

—S. 471—Offence under—Alleged true copy of original certificate attached to a competitive examination application—Original certificate called for and produced—Date of birth in original found altered—Forgery.

In order to qualify for appearance at a certain competitive examination C attached a copy of a certificate certified as a true copy of original along with his application. On being asked to produce the original C produced it. The date of birth in the original certificate was changed from 5th January, 1901 to 15th January 1904, so as not to debar him from appearing in the above competitive examination.

Held, that the original document was a forged one inasmuch as the original date in it was altered and that C knew that it was a false document. That it was made with intent to cause damage and injury to other candidates for the examination and to support C's claim to appear. 118 Ind. Cas. 385 = 10 Lah. 545 = 30 Cr.L.J. 900 = 30 P.L.R. 724 = A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 152.

—S. 471—Party setting up two titles and supporting one by false document.

If a party to a suit sets up two different titles and supports one of them with a false document he has committed an offence under S. 471 even if it be found that the other title is good. 96 Ind. Cas. 850=7 A.I.Cr.R. 58 = 27 Cr.L.J. 994 = A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 1072.

—S. 471—Offence under—Accused asked to produce documents in support of complaint of trespass—Forged documents knowingly produced—Offence.

Where the accused was told to produce copies of the revenue records in support of his complaint of trespass and he knowingly produced forged copies as genuine.

Held, that the case was different from one where a person has a forged document in his possession which he does not intend to use as genuine, but which a Court forces him to produce, and that the accused was guilty. 88 Ind. Cas. 595=6 Lah. 50=26 Cr.L.J. 1171=26 P.L.R. 156=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 333.

—S. 471—Forging receipt—Misappropriation of money—Offence.

A Bench clerk received a sum of money paid in as fine and misappropriated it and to cover up the misappropriation forged a false receipt.

Held, that the offence under Ss. 467 and 471 was committed especially since the false receipt was made for the purpose of enabling him to misappropriate the money. 11 Mad. 411, Foll. 83 Ind. Cas. 338 = 3 Bur.L.J. 113 = 25 Cr.L.J. 1378=A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 331.

—S. 471—Altering prescription and obtaining a larger quantity of morphia.

Accused obtained a prescription from a medical man for one tube of morphia and altering the words "one tube" to "four tubes" presented the prescription to a chemist and obtained four tubes of morphia from him.

Held, that the accused was guilty of an offence under S. 471, I.P.C. 63 Ind. Cas. 617 = 22 Cr.L.J. 681 (Lah.).

—Ss. 471 and 474—Forgery—Hundi by non-existing firm—Conviction not technically correct but doing substantial justice—Admission of accused in trial Court—Binding effect.

A Hundi drawn by a firm which never existed is a forgery. When P takes a Hundi from Q knowing that the latter has fabricated it, he is guilty under S. 474, and if he negotiates it knowing it to be a forged document, he is guilty of the more serious offence under S. 471. 30 P.W.R. Cr. 1916=37 P.L.R. 1917 = 17 Cr.L.J. 474=36 Ind. Cas. 154.

—S. 471—Forged document—Support of false claim.

Where, in order to sustain a false claim, a forged document is relied on in another document filed in support of the claim, it constitutes an offence under S. 471, I.P.C. 16 Cr.L.J. 703 = 30 Ind. Cas. 751 (Mad.).

—S. 471—Guilty knowledge—Document produced before Patwari for mutation—Stone altered—Area not altered—No offence.

Where the accused produced a sale-deed before a Patwari for entering mutation (with a view to get the Tahsildar's attestation) in which the stone of the land was altered but not the area.

Held, that no offence under S. 471, I.P.C., was committed. In the absence of evidence that the accused forged it or knew it was forged, the conviction is unsustainable. 25 P.R. 1913 Cr. = 19 Cr.L.J. 667 = 273 P.L.R. 1914=21 Ind. Cas. 907.

—Ss. 471 and 467—Accused forgerer.

Though a person charged under S. 471 is himself the forgerer of the document, it is no reason why he should not be charged under S. 471, especially when he cannot be charged under S. 467 owing to want of territorial jurisdiction. To form an offence under S. 471, forgery must be proved. 13 Cr.L.J. 862=17 Ind. Cas. 798 (Mad.).

—S. 471—Using certified copies of forged originals knowing the originals to be forged.

The use of certified copies of forged originals by a person who knows that the originals are forged amounts to making use of forged documents within the meaning of S. 471, 28 All. 402, Foll. 86 Ind. Cas. 1993=12 O.L.J. 124 = 2 O.W.N. 174 = 26 Cr.L.J. 929 = 29 O.C. 1=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 413.

—S. 471—False document—Copy.

The copy of a document alleged to be false does not come within the definition of a false document and therefore conviction is bad. 7 M.L.T. 428=20 M.L.J. 534=11 Cr.L.J. 401=6 Ind. Cas. 776.

2. Proof of Offence.

—S. 471—Proof of offence.

In order to convict a person for dishonestly or fraudulently using a forged document, the prosecution has to prove beyond reasonable doubt that he knew that the document was forged. Mere proof that the document has not been executed by the person by whom it is alleged to have been executed, is not enough. 12 B.R. 289=222 Ind. Cas. 620=47 Cr.L.J. 317 =A.I.R. 1947 Pat. 251.

—Ss. 471, 193 and 465—Pleader filing forged document.

Mere suspicion on the part of the Pleader as to the genuineness of the receipt, would not establish his knowledge of the forgery which is the essential ingredient of the offence. A pleader is under no higher obligation than any other agent would be and to justify his prosecution, it should be shown that he had been a party (principal or accessory) to the concoction of the document or that he had the knowledge that it was concocted. The mere fact that the suspicions of a Pleader ought to have been aroused by the sight of the document is not prima facie evidence that he knew or had reason to believe the document to be forged. A.I.R. 1940 Nag. 360=1940 N.L.J. 183=41 Cr.L.J. 753=189 Ind. Cas. 579.

—Ss. 471 and 193—In a charge under Ss. 471 and 193, Penal Code, failure to establish that the document in question is forged would result in acquittal. (1940) 72 C.L.J. 46.

—Ss. 471 and 467—Prosecution must prove forgery and intention of accused to use document knowing it to be forged.

It is not sufficient for the prosecution to establish that the document is not a genuine document for the purpose of obtaining a conviction under Ss. 467-471, Penal Code, it must be shown affirmatively that the accused either knew or had reason to believe that the document was forged. This matter of knowledge is one which may, in certain cases, follow necessarily as an inference from a finding of fact. (1936) 166 Ind. Cas. 531=3 B.R. 177=38 Cr.L.J. 235.

—S. 471—User—Question of fact.

Whether there has been an user or not must depend upon the circumstances of each case. 91 Ind. Cas. 993=52 Cal. 881=27 Cr.L.J. 177=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 89.

—S. 471—Forgery committed in record room—Copies of false entries used in contesting a suit—Fradulent or dishonest intention of accused and his knowledge as to the forged nature of the document—Proof.

When forgeries are committed by a person inside the record room, and copies producing the false entries are put in a suit the use of such certified copies is a use of forged documents. The mere circumstance that the documents had been forged would not be sufficient to justify a conviction. It is necessary to prove in order to obtain such a conviction that the use has been fraudulent or dishonest and in addition that the person putting, in the copies knew, or had reason to believe that the originals were forged. 93 Ind. Cas. 66=1 Luck. 306=13 O.L.J. 391=27 Cr.L.J. 402=3 O.W.N. 171=A.I.R. 1926 Oudh. 255.

—Ss. 471 and 467—Forgery—Evidence insufficient—Knowledge that document is forged—Effect of.

Where a portion of a document is altered with the intention of causing it to be believed that it was executed at a time when it really was not executed and the accused used it knowing it to be forged, an offence under section 471, I. P. C. is committed and the charge of forgery is unsustainable. 16 Cr.L.J. 701=30 Ind. Cas. 749 (Mad.)

—S. 471—Series of forgeries—Relevancy of.

A series of similar transactions in which forgeries were committed can be used as evidence of intention and not as evidence of the forgery. But it is doubtful whether the mere filing of a copy of a forged document is a user of it. 43 Cal. 783=20 C.W.N. 262=17 Cr.L.J. 130=33 Ind. Cas. 306.

—Ss. 471 and 472—Using forged document—Guilty knowledge—Conduct—Filing of document—Charge under Ss. 465 and 471—Conviction under Ss. 466 and 471.

The fact that a man who files a document is interested in establishing its contents, does not raise a presumption that he filed it knowing to be forged. Conduct is the principal criterion of guilty knowledge. The filing of a document as the basis of a plaint or as a necessary sequel to the pleas in the plaint is itself an user, and it then becomes incumbent on the person using it to show that he filed the document in all good faith believing it to be genuine. Convictions under Ss. 471 and 474, I. P. C. cannot stand together.

6 N. W. P. H. Cr. 39, Foll. Where a charge is laid against an accused under S. 465 read with S. 471, I. P. C., he cannot be convicted and sentenced under S. 466 read with S. 471. 17 C.W.N. 94=13 Cr.L.J. 449=15 Ind. Cas. 81.

—S. 471—Forgery—Comparison of handwriting—Value of.

Ordinarily, in determining whether a document is forged or genuine, comparison of handwriting is a valuable aid. A.I.R. 1933 Pat. 481=34 Cr.L.J. 828=144 Ind. Cas. 872.

3. Sentence.

—S. 471—Sentence.

S was convicted under S. 471 for having used a forged document and P for having abetted the same; S was sentenced to 4 years and P to 2 years rigorous imprisonment.

Held, that the sentence was not severe. 116 Ind. Cas. 632=49 C.L.J. 193=30 Cr.L.J. 656=13 A.I. Cr.R. 73=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 203.

—S. 471—Punishment.

A person dishonestly using as genuine a forged document can be punished under S. 471 with the punishment provided by S. 467. 5 O.W.N. 138=A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 630.

—S. 471—Separate Offences—Separate conviction.

If a man commits two offences he can certainly be convicted of them both, more especially when they are separate transactions and the commission of one does not necessarily involve the commission of the other. 77 Ind. Cas. 825=25 Cr.L.J. 473=A.I.R. 1924 Nag. 162.

4. Miscellaneous.

—Ss. 471, 467 and 409—Postman charged under Ss. 409, 467 and 471 for misappropriating amount of money order and forging thumb impression and using such forged document—Offences committed on April 10, 1939—Sanction of Governor-General, held necessary for prosecution under S. 471 but trial could proceed for other offences. —S. 471—Interpretation—'Uses'.

The words "produced or given in evidence" in S. 195 (c), Cr. P. Code, do not limit the procedure under that section to a limited class of user within the wider class contemplated by S. 471. 113 Ind. Cas. 712=9 P.L.T. 800=30 Cr.L.J. 236=12 A.I.Cr.R. 236=A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 60.

—S. 471—Order for prosecution under S. 82 Registration Act, and S. 471, I.P.C.—Former found illegal under S. 74—Order under S. 471, I.P.C.—If affected.

Where a person is ordered to be prosecuted under S. 82, Registration Act and S. 471, I.P.C., and the prosecution under S. 82 is illegal having regard to the provisions of S. 74, Registration Act, the illegality or irregularity in no way affects the validity of the order of prosecution under S. 471, I.P.C. and if the prosecution under S. 82 is set aside the part of the order under S. 471 remains. For Penal Code has no relation to Registration Act and is governed by principles entirely different from those governing prosecution under S. 82. 119 Ind. Cas. 888=10 P.L.T. 889=30 Cr.L.J. 1101=1929 Cr.C. 252=A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 500.

—S. 471—Jurisdiction—Trial under S. 196—Facts disclosing offence under S. 471—Procedure.

Where a petitioner was tried for an offence under S. 196 and convicted but from the facts it appeared that an offence under S. 471 was committed, which is exclusively triable by Sessions Court, the conviction was set aside and trial by Court of Sessions was ordered. 96 Ind. Cas. 119=44 C.L.J. 113=30 C.W.N. 840=27 Cr.L.J. 871.

—S. 471—Report of expert—No affidavit in support—No examination—Legality of sanction.

The report of the Government Expert, who never came into the witness-box and whose report is not supported even by an affidavit is inadmissible in evidence and should not form the basis of the order directing the prosecution on a charge of forgery. A sanction based on a piece of evidence that can in no circumstances be called legal evidence and especially when there is positive legal evidence against it is illegal. The power of sanction should be used with great caution. 75 Ind. Cas. 148=21 A.L.J. 399=4 L.R.A. Cr. 92=24 Cr.L.J. 900=A.I.R. 1923 All. 601.

—S. 471—Sanction—Proceedings for patta transfer before a Deputy Tahsildar—Offence committed in—Sanction of Revenue Court.

Certain forged Will was presented by the accused in proceedings for the transfer of a patta before a Deputy Tahsildar.

Held, the Deputy Tahsildar constituted a Revenue authority and his sanction was necessary for the parties to the proceedings to be proceeded against under S. 471, I.P.C. 71 Ind. Cas. 63 = 16 M.L.W. 534 = 24 Cr.L.J. 15=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 87.

—S. 471—Sanction to prosecute for forgery.

Before a conviction can be had under S. 471, I.P.C., the accused must be proved to know or to have reason to believe that the document was forged and unless it is proved, no sanction for his prosecution can be given. 3 Bur.L.T. 151=11 Cr.L.J. 749=8 Ind. Cas. 995.

—Ss. 471 and 474—Stay of criminal proceedings pending civil suit—Registration Act, S. 77.

Where the alleged executant of a document having denied execution before the Sub-Registrar, an enquiry was held and the District Magistrate directed the prosecution of the person presenting the document for registration and the said person filed a civil suit under S. 77 of the Registration Act, the High Court directed the criminal proceedings to be stayed pending the disposal of the civil suit. (1906) 5 C.L.J. 233=5 Cr.L.J. 199. Also 30 M. 226.

—S. 474—Interpretation—‘Intention to use.’

The ‘intention to use’ contemplated in S. 474, Penal Code, should be fructified into an actual use to attract the provisions of S. 195, Cr. P. Code 99. Ind. Cas. 1025 = 28 Cr.L.J. 225=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 1060.

—S. 474—No sanction necessary.

For a prosecution under S. 474, I.P.C., no sanction is necessary. 19 C.W.N. 125=16 Cr.L.J. 309=28 Ind. Cas. 645.

—S. 476—Forgery—Person forging neither deriving benefit nor causing loss or injury to others—Offence, if committed.

Certain tenants of P asked him to apply for agricultural loans and on the loan being sanctioned, a security bond and a receipt bearing the signatures of the tenants were submitted to the Township Officer and the loan was disbursed. Subsequently, it turned out that the application, the security bond and the receipt were not signed by the borrowers. P and certain others were arrested and sent up for trial. It appeared that the money was received by the tenants and was duly returned to the Government :

Held, that though the persons who signed the application, the security bond, and the receipt by impersonating the borrowers practised deception on the Township Officer, they did not derive any advantage therefrom, or cause loss to the Government as the loan was received by the tenants and returned to the Government and that therefore, neither forgery nor abetment of forgery had been proved.

Held, further, that even assuming the accused had committed the offence with which they were charged, the offence was only of a technical nature. A.I.R. 1933 Rang. 114 = 34 Cr.L.J. 922 = 145 Ind. Cas. 229.

—S. 477—Will—Death of testator—Concealment of will—Absence of secretion—Offence under S. 477, if committed.

The executant of a will died and the will, after execution, remained with the solicitors until 2nd February 1926 when it was made over to the accused who was the only son of the testator. The testator also left a widow and a daughter's son. The accused did not take any steps for obtaining probate of the will. In order to obtain some money from the Land Acquisition Court, he swore an affidavit in July, 1930 that his father had died intestate. After the Will had been discovered in August, 1932, attempts were made to bring about a settlement between the widow and the accused and ultimately probate was applied for in respect of the Will in question and probate was obtained. The accused was charged under S. 477, Penal Code.

Held, that if as a matter of fact the accused had been advised that, having regard to the terms of the Will, it was not necessary to obtain probate, that would furnish sufficient explanation for the action of the accused in suggesting in the affidavit of July, 1930 that the testator had died intestate.

Held, also that as the accused obtained possession of the will with the knowledge of the solicitors who were responsible for the custody thereof till February, 1926, it could not be said that there was a secretion in the eye of the law and within the meaning of S. 477, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 217=58 C.L.J. 283=35 Cr.L.J. 716=148 Ind. Cas. 587.

—S. 477—Valuable security—Destruction of administrative order of Court not creating any, legal right—Offence.

In order to make a person guilty of an offence under S. 477, Penal Code, the document should be a valuable security. An administrative order asking the Nazir of the Court to take a document of suretyship from the accused for his being released on bail does not by itself create a legal right in favour of the Nazir and hence, when such an order is destroyed, an offence under S. 477 is not committed. —S. 477—Fraudulent secretion—Will.

The fraudulent secretion of any document purporting to be a Will constitutes an offence within the meaning of the section, quite apart from its validity as defined in S. 3 of the Probate and Administration Act 97 Ind. Cas. 1054=4 Rang. 251=27 Cr.L.J. 1230=A.I.R. 1926 Rang. 202.

—S. 477-A—The terms of S. 477-A, Penal Code indicate that a certain elasticity is permissible in framing a charge under it and it is not necessary to confine the charge to one particular false entry, and a general falsification of specified books, papers, or accounts may be alleged in combination with an allegation of fraudulent intent, no details of the person affected by the fraud, or the amount involved, or the date or dates on which the offence was committed being required. A number of falsifications can be included in a single charge provided they are connected with the same fraud; that is to say, although it is possible to regard them as separate offences, the law provides that they may also be regarded as one offence. 2. Interpretation—"Falsify".

—S. 477-A—Interpretation—"Falsify."

It is not necessary for the prosecution to prove that any person or persons were actually deceived by the false document. It is quite sufficient if in the opinion of the Court the document had that tendency. The expression "falsify" applies to the preparation of an entirely new document containing false information. To falsify means "to render false" and a new document containing false information can be correctly described as a false document and the act of preparing such a document is falsification of the document. 98 Ind. An entry in the accounts which is of significance merely as showing that the accused had formed a criminal intention cannot by itself amount to the offence of falsification of accounts. 3 A.I.Cr.D. 277=A.I.R. 1949 Pat. 326=50 Cr.L.J. 682.

—Ss. 477-A and 409—Public servant entrusted with money misappropriating it and making false entries in cash book is guilty under Ss. 409 and 477-A, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1941 Sind. 204=I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 328=43 Cr.L.J. 241=197 Ind. Cas. 692.

—Ss. 477-A and 465—"Intent to defraud" meaning of—Accused making false entry in diary of Court to screen his own negligence as clerk—Offence.

The meaning of the term "with intent to defraud" is not restricted to cases of "deceit and injury to person deceived". The term means either an intention to deceive and by means of deceit to obtain an advantage or an intention that injury should befall some person or persons.

Advantage which is intended must relate to some future occurrence or in other words, must be of a prospective nature.

Where a clerk of a Court has not committed any offence of criminal breach of trust or criminal misappropriation but he had the false entries made merely for the purpose of screening his own negligence of his duties as clerk of the Court nor had he by these false entries facilitated any misappropriation or embezzlement nor did he intend thereby to cause injury to any other person, it cannot be contended that by means of the deception, he intended to secure his advancement in the service and he cannot be convicted either of the offence under S. 477-A or under S. 465, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 156=40 Cr.L.J. 552=181 Ind. Cas. 439.

—S. 477-A—"With intent to defraud" within meaning of S. 477-A, what is—Difference between act done "dishonestly" and "fraudulently" pointed out.

A reference to S. 25, Penal Code, shows that the expressions "fraudulently" and "with intent to defraud" are synonymous; but there is no further definition of their meaning in the Code.

The difference between an act done dishonestly and an act done fraudulently is this. If there is the intention by the deceit practised to cause wrongful loss that is dishonesty, but even in the absence of such an intention, if the deceitful act willfully exposes anyone to risk of loss, there is fraud. A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 165=16 Pat. 688=4 B.R. 337=39 Cr.L.J. 374=19 P.L.T. 297=173 Ind. Cas. 759=1938 Pat.W.N. 49.

—S. 477-A—Essential ingredients—'Intent to defraud', meaning of — Manager offering bribe out of company's funds—Intention to promote company's interests—Offence, if committed.

One of the most important ingredients of S. 477-A, Penal Code, is 'intent to defraud'. This expression implies conduct coupled with intention to deceive and thereby to injure; in other words "defraud" involves two conceptions, namely, deceit and injury to the person deceived, that is, infringement of some legal right possessed by him but not necessarily deprivation of property. Where, therefore, the manager of a company offers bribe out of the funds of the company, his intention being not to cause any injury to the company but on the contrary to promote its interests, though his act might be punishable under another section of the Penal Code, yet it is clearly not punishable under S. 477-A, Penal Code.

What the law punishes is an act that causes harm illegally to any person in body, mind, reputation or property, or an attempt to commit such an act. Therefore, any body who has committed an act, not with the intention of causing an injury to any body but with the intention of promoting the interests of others is clearly not punishable under the Code. A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 280=38 Cr.L.J. 887=170 Ind. Cas. 257.

—S. 477-A—Person acting as agent many thousands of miles away, whether a servant—Letter filed as exhibit—Witness, if can be allowed to determine which portion of it is to go in evidence—Court, if can hand back the exhibit.

A person who is acting as an agent for another many thousands of miles away must have had power to act on his own initiative which is the ordinary mark of difference between a servant and an agent.

Documents containing accounts in respect of which falsifications were alleged to have been made were prepared by an agent but were never made over to the employer, who was many thousands of miles away in another country and there was no falsification after they reached the hands of the complainant:

Held, that it did not amount to an offence under S. 477-A, Penal Code, as the documents could not be said to be belonging to or in possession of the employer. A Court has inherent powers for refusing disclosure of matters which, in the public interest, should be kept secret, but it cannot allow a witness to put in a portion of a letter and say which portions of it are to go in and which portions are to be concealed from his opponent nor is there any warrant for a letter which once had been made an exhibit, being handed back to a party. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 299=37 Cr.L.J. 927=164 Ind. Cas. 369.

—S. 477-A—Accused obtaining by falsifying accounts securities worth amount justly going to be due to himself in near future but whose realisation is doubtful—Offence.

If together with the intention of deceiving there be an attempt to obtain an undue advantage, there would be in law an intent to defraud.

Where an accountant in a Bank noticing that the Bank might fail any day and that it might become difficult for him to recover the money deposited by him as security which was going to be justly payable back to him shortly, obtained securities worth his deposit by falsification of accounts and without the higher authorities of the bank being aware of the fact and where in an enquiry in respect of a charge under I.P.C., S. 477-A, the accused was discharged.

Held, that the order of discharge was wrong and that there was enough material on the record to direct further enquiry. 21 All. 113, Foll. 89 Ind. Cas. 520=47 All. 948=23 A.L.J. 657=26 Cr.L.J. 1384=6 L.R.A. Cr. 145=A.I.R. 1925 All. 654.

—S. 477-A—Document prepared to conceal fraud already committed—Offence.

Where there is an intention to obtain an advantage by deceit, there is fraud and if a document is fabricated with such intent it is forgery. A man who deliberately makes a false document in order to conceal defraud already committed by him is acting with intent to commit fraud, as by making the false document he intends the party concerned to believe that no fraud had been committed. Where a document is prepared with the intention of concealing a fraud that had already been committed, and thus to enable the person who had made "wrongful gain" to retain the property that he had acquired by unlawful means, it amounts to a false document and the person making the document is guilty of forgery. Accused a clerk of the certificate department was charged with having tampered with requisitions filed under the Public Demands Recovery Act by replacing the stamps on those documents and on the accompanying vakalatnamas by others taken from other papers.

—S. 477-A — Falsification of balance sheet—Manager.

Where the Managing Director and the Manager of the Head Office 'falsified' the books of the Bank so as to show a sham profit of Rs. 3,000, and completed the falsification by manufacturing pro-notes in order to give to the falsified balance sheet and account books an appearance of correctness, both of them are guilty of an offence under S. 477-A. 23 P.W.R. 1915, Cr. = 167 P.L.R. 1915 = 16 Cr.L.J. 473 = 28 P.R. 1915, Cr. = 29 Ind. —S. 477-A — False entries — Accused pleading that his father was partner of complainant's firm and entries were made under his authority—Conviction, when good.

Where the entries in account books according to the prosecution were false entries wilfully made by the accused who was the gomasta of the complainant's firm and the accused's defence was that the entries were merely in the nature of adjustment entries, that the accused's father was a partner of the complainant's firm and that the entries were made in the books of the complainant's firm under the direction and authority of the partners who constituted that firm :

Held, that as the point whether the father was a partner in the complainant's firm was made out or not was not clearly proved, the conviction should be set aside. A.I.R. 1934 Cal. 500 = 59 C.L.J. 83 = 36 Cr.L.J. 74 = 152 Ind. Cas. 226.

—S. 477-A—Falsification of accounts—Nature of charge—Proving more than three instances of falsification—Legality of trial.

When a person is charged with falsification of accounts, any number of falsifications may be proved in order to sustain the principal charge of falsification.

S. 477-A, Penal Code, speaks of two offences, namely, falsification of accounts and making of false entry or, omitting or altering, or abetting the omission or alteration of an entry and these two offences are distinct and not interdependent. —Ss. 478 and 482—Valid trade-mark must be distinctive—Surname, whether suitable for trade mark—Certain mark commonly used in market to denote goods of particular kind, if can be distinctive mark — Trade-mark is acquired by user.

The definition of trade-mark in S. 478 implies that the mark must be "distinctive" in the sense of being "adopted to distinguish the goods of the proprietor of a trade-mark from those of other persons." If a mark merely described the quality or origin of an article, or is such as is commonly used in the trade to denote goods of a particular kind, such a descriptive mark would obviously not be a distinctive mark. For this reason, it has been said, a surname is often not suitable for the purposes of a trade-mark. The device of a pictorial representation would obviously be more appropriate as a trade-mark, but it will still have to be "distinctive". (Systems in England and in India stated and distinguished.)

The complainant was a dealer in and manufacturer of certain brands of umbrellas. All these brands were known in the market as 'Aswini Chhati'. One of the brands bore a design printed on it which consisted of the picture of a swan holding a closed umbrella between its beak in the centre, with the name "Aswini Kumar De" in prominent type stretching over it like an arch from end to end, and the figure 8-A4 (the letter "A" overlapping the digits 8 and 4) on the top of it. Such designs were common to many other brands, in the market. The purchaser purchased the complainant's umbrellas by their name as "Aswini Chhati" and not by the trade mark :

Held, that the complainant could not claim exclusive title to the trade-mark used by him as a distinctive trade-mark. A.I.R. 1938 Cal. 216=66 C.L.J. 210=39 Cr.L.J. 537=I.L.R. (1938) 1 Cal. 665=42 C.W.N. 1121=175 Ind. Cas. 144.

—Ss. 478 and 482—Trade-mark—Invented word, test of—'Trade-mark', if means whole lable.

A mere ordinary addition to, or mis-spelling or variation of a word in use in the English language does not make the word so formed [an invented word by the question in each case is one of fact. The test of an invented word is that it must have been substantially new at the date of registration ; or have been substantially new when first used by the applicant, and have been only used to denote his goods down to the date of registration. It is not necessary that its production should have involved any great ingenuity or anything like "invention" in the sense in which the term is used in patent law.

The word "Agurine" not being an ordinary English word nor a combination of two ordinary English words, must be regarded as a fit subject of a trade-mark.

The expression "trade-mark" in S. 478, Penal Code, includes the whole design on the box and the label, pasted on it.

Where there was a striking similarity in the design of the complainant's bottle and that of the accused and this fact was not disputed :

Held, that the accused had used a false trade-mark within the meaning of S. 482, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1932 Sind 94=26 Sind L.R. 241=33 Cr.L.J. 778=139 Ind. Cas. 335.

—S. 478—Change of trade-mark labels — Merchandise—Meaning of.

In India there is no registration of trade-mark or for a title to a trade-mark. The right of action, civil and criminal, is founded on deceit. If a person passes off his own inferior goods as the superior goods of the complainant and counterfeits his trade-mark the complainant must prove the reputation of his trade-mark. Where, however, the accused puts his own name on complainant's goods to advertise himself, he is guilty under S. 478, I.P.C. 'Merchandise' in Ss. 478 and 485, I.P.C., cover goods selected and guaranteed by the proprietor of the trade-mark, and an importer who affixes his name to the goods selected is a person whose merchandise they are. 12 S.L.R. 129=20 Cr.L.J. 277=50 Ind. Cas. 165.

—Ss. 478 and 482 — Trade-mark — Importer using a distinctive mark.

A distinctive mark may be used by a person who is only an importer of goods and he will require the property in that mark showing that all goods which bear it are imported by him. Hence where the complainants, importers of hand-made sugar used a distinctive mark denoting that the sugar contained in the bags so marked was imported by them (their customers feeling sure from the mark that the sugar was hand-made), and the accused used the same mark.

Held, that the accused were guilty of using a false trade-mark. 39 All. 123=14 A.L.J. 1080=17 Cr.L.J. 535=36 Ind. Cas. 583.

—Ss. 478 and 486—Trade-mark—Counterfeiting—What is.

The expression 'trade-mark' as defined in S. 478 must not be confined to the trade-mark of the complainants as registered but must include the whole design on the top of the box and the block label pasted round the side.

Held, on the facts, that the case clearly came within the definition of 'counterfeit' in S. 28, I.P.C. 19 C.W.N. 957=16 Cr.L.J. 719=30 Ind. Cas. 1007.

—Ss. 478 and 482—Trade-mark—Property mark—Counterfeiting.

Where the object of stamping certain words on certain articles is to inform the public that the articles are the merchandise of a particular person imported, sold and guaranteed by it, the mark is a trade-mark and not a property mark. For the purposes of the Penal Code it is not essential that an imitation should be exact in order to be 'counterfeit'. 8 S.L.R. 199=16 Cr.L.J. 230=27 Ind. Cas. 902.

—Ss. 478 and 486—Design—Trade description.

Where a design covers the whole body of goods and is part and parcel thereof, it is not a trade-mark but a 'design' under the Indian Patents and Designs Act, 1911. Nor is it 'Trade description' within S. 2 (2) of the Merchandise Marks Act, 1889. 8 S.L.R. 39=15 Cr.L.J. 670=25 Ind. Cas. 998.

—Ss. 478 and 482—Merchandise Marks Act, Ss. 4 and 6—Calendar—Name—Trade-mark—Trade description.

The use of the name of the calendar published by another person so as to make the people think that the calendar was issued by that individual is not an offence under S. 482 of the Penal Code or S. 6 of the Merchandise Marks Act because the name of the calendar (which cannot be said to be manufactured, even assuming it to be goods), is not a trade-mark under S. 478 of the Penal Code; nor even though unauthorised is it a false trade description under S. 4 of the Merchandise Marks Act. —S. 478—Evidence and proof—Goods manufactured by complainant alone and reputed to be his.

Under S. 478 complainant has to prove that the goods which are the subject of the mark are manufactured and sold by himself and that goods are known in the market as being of his manufacture alone.

Where the article bearing the mark was proved to have been manufactured and sold by both the complainant and the accused on a large scale and there was no sufficient evidence to support the view that the articles was reputed to be the complainants' exclusive manufacture. A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 235.

—S. 479—Property mark counterfeiting—Moveable property'.

The National Bank of India was importing from England for sale in India bars of gold, each bar being of a uniform size, weight and touch with the words 'National Bank of India' impressed upon it in Guzerati characters as their property-mark. The gold so imported was, on account of that property mark, known in the market as "Narasanna Bak" among the people and it obtained a special value in the market. The accused impressed on the market gold of their own manufacture, the words 'Narasanna Bak' in Guzerati.

Held, that the National Bank of India owned a property-mark in the bars of gold imported and sold by them; and that the accused were guilty of counterfeiting that mark. The term moveable property in S. 479, is intended by the legislature to include a class or category of properties falling under one ownership, not merely the parts of it which may pass from the hands of the owner into other hands. The class is stable, though the units are ambulatory. The term is intended to include collective class nouns, e.g., nouns that express a number of objects of the same class collected together. (1904) 6 Bom.L.R. 513.

—S. 480—Using false trade-mark—Onus proof as to intention.

Where the accused is using a false trade-mark, the onus is on him to show that he is using the mark without intent to defraud. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 96=37 Cr.L.J. 528=161 Ind. Cas. 1007.

—S. 480—Ingredients—Marking goods in a manner calculated to mislead people—Intention to defraud—If necessary.

In order to establish a case under S. 480 the prosecution must prove that the accused marked goods, that he did so in a manner reasonably calculated to cause it to be believed that the goods so marked were the manufacture or merchandise of some other person and that such goods are not the manufacture or merchandise of such person. It is unnecessary for the prosecution to prove that an accused in such a case had acted with intent to defraud; should the latter, however prove that he acted without intent to defraud, he is entitled to be acquitted. 1929 Cr.C. 498=A.I.R. 1929 Rang. 322.

—S. 480—Claim to mark—If justification for infringement—Test of infringement—Resemblance in mark—Same name.

A trader even with some claim to the mark or name cannot adopt a trade-mark, which causes his goods to bear the same name in the market as those of a rival trader. If a purchaser looking at the article offered to him would naturally be led, from the mark impressed on it, to suppose it to be the production of the rival manufacturer, and would purchase it in that belief, the Court considers the use of such a mark to be fraudulent. The actual physical resemblance of the two marks is not to be the sole question for consideration. If the goods of a manufacturer have from the mark or device he has used become known in the market by particular name, the adoption by a rival trader of any mark which will cause his goods to bear the same name in the market may be as much a violation of the rights of that rival as the actual copy of his device. 1929 Cr.C. 498=A.I.R. 1929 Rang. 322.

—S. 480—What is offence under—Accused keeping goods of complainant's mark for sale—Accused acting in good faith—Mark not counterfeit—No offence.

Where accused put for sale goods bearing trade-mark of complainant but it was found that the manufacturers sent those goods to wrong person from whom the accused got them and no intention to defraud was found :

Held, that no offence was committed under Ss. 480 and 482, nor under S. 486 as the mark was not counterfeit under S. 28, Penal Code. 95 Ind. Cas. 275=4 Rang. 16=27 Cr.L.J. 755=A.I.R. 1926 Rang. 134.

—S. 480—False trade-mark.

Where the trade-mark used by the accused is a crescent encircling a crow over the letters A.M.R., and that used by the complainant is a crescent encircling a star over the letters A.G.M., no offence of using a false trade-mark is committed. (1912) M.W.N. 85=13 C.L.J. 175=13 Ind. Cas. 927.

—S. 480—When a bona fide dispute exists between the parties as to the right to use a trade-mark, action should be taken before a civil and not before a Criminal Court. (1907) 11 C.W.N. 887=6 Cr.L.J. 151.

—S. 480—Trade-mark—False mark.

A person who sells to a customer soap not manufactured by a particular manufacturer in a box upon which the name of that manufacturer appears as a maker of soap, is guilty of an offence under the section. The mark is nonetheless a false mark, because it appeared on the box only and not upon the goods themselves. The fact that the manufacturer was not shown to have acquired a trade-mark in the sense in which the word is used in the English Patents, Designs and Trade-Marks Acts is immaterial. (1906) 29 M. 369=1 M.L.T. 409.

1. Essentials of offence.

—Ss. 482 and 486—Trade mark—Infringement—Ingredients of Ss. 482 and 486, stated—What prosecution must prove—False and counterfeit trade mark, distinction—Accused, if can be convicted under both Ss. 486 and 482.

To establish the charge under S. 482, Penal Code, it is necessary to prove that the accused's article is marked in a manner reasonably calculated to be believed that they are the marks of the article manufactured by the complainant. An accused would render himself liable to conviction under S. 482 if he uses a false-trade mark on any goods which may or may not have been manufactured by him. On the other hand, the ingredient of an offence under S. 486 is the sale or exposing or possessing for sale, goods or things with a counterfeit trade-mark. The offence under the first section will be complete as soon as a false trade mark has been used, but under the latter section it will be necessary that goods should be sold or be possessed or exposed for sale. Therefore it is perfectly legal to sustain the conviction under both sections provided that the mark on the goods of the accused is a false trade-mark and also counterfeit trade-mark :

Held, that the accused could not be convicted under S. 486 as it could not be said that the No. 301 used by the accused as trade-mark upon his goods was a counterfeit of No. 501, the registered mark of the complainant ; nor could it be said that words "India" were a counterfeit of "tomco". The accused, however, could be convicted under S. 482 as the accused's goods were a colourable imitation of the complainant's goods. A.I.R. 1941 All. 87 : 1940 A.W.R. (H.C.)

—S. 482—Offence under—Mere imitation, when offence.

In order to constitute to an offence under S. 482, Penal Code, mere imitation is not sufficient unless there is an infringement of a patent or copyright or there is an attempt to pass off goods as goods of another dealer or manufacturer either by using a false trade-mark or false description of a trade-mark or description likely to deceive purchasers by a deliberate imitation of a genuine mark of description or by falsely giving out goods as the goods of some other dealer or manufacturer. A.I.R. 1933 Nag. 344=35 Cr.L.J. 373=30 Nag.L.R. 45=146 Ind. Cas. 1084.

—S. 482—‘Using false trade-mark,’ meaning of.

Not only whosoever marks any goods or package of receptacle containing goods but also whosoever uses any such package or receptacle with any such mark thereon, is said to use a false trade-mark, if the whole thing is done in a manner reasonably calculated to cause it to be believed that the goods are of a certain manufacture, whereas, they are not of that manufacture. A.I.R. 1932 Sind. 94=26 Sind.L.R. 241=33 Cr.L.J. 778=139 Ind. Cas. 335.

—S. 482—Test for determining infringement—Likelihood of deception—Similarity of marks.

The proper test in case of an infringement of a trade-mark is whether the “get-up” of the defendant’s goods is likely to deceive a purchaser, who is acquainted with the plaintiff’s get-up” but trusts to his memory. It is to be assumed that the purchaser will look fairly at the goods without distinguishing features being concealed and the Court must also have regard to the class of purchaser by whom the goods would normally be bought. 8 L.B.R. 561, Rel. on.

In a prosecution under S. 482, looking at the two marks together, it could be most emphatically said not only that no person seeing the two side by side would confuse the one with the other, but also that no person who had seen one of the marks and retained the slightest recollection of what it looked like, could by any possibility mistake the other for it, nor was it suggested that there was anything in the appearance of the two marks to lead to confusion. There was no evidence to show that any person had in fact been deceived and had been led to purchase the goods of the accused believing them to be the merchandise of the complainant. Any prominent and substantial part of the complainant’s trade-mark did not appear as a prominent and substantial part of the accused’s trade-mark. The evidence though perhaps sufficient to show that some people may call the accused’s trade-mark by the same name as that of the complainant, was not sufficient to show that every one would do so nor that the mark of accused must inevitably lead to the attribution to their goods the same name as that of the complainant’s.

Held, that the complainants had not made out a good case for protection and the accused must be acquitted. 118 Ind. Cas. 113=7 Rang. 169=30 Cr.L.J. 882=1929 Cr.C. 617=A.I.R. 1929 Rang. 345.

—S. 482—Using false trade-mark—No intention to defraud.

Where the accused had used a false trade-mark but had no intent to defraud, he could not be convicted of and offence under S. 482. 16 A.L.J. 476=19 Cr.L.J. 722=46 Ind. Cas. 402.

—Ss. 482 and 486—False trade-mark—Merchandise Marks Act (IV of 1889), Ss. 6 and 7.

Where the trade marks are so different that no one would be misled, a conviction under Ss. 482 and 486. I.P.C., is bad but it is good under Ss. 6 and 7 of Act IV of 1889. 7 M.L.T. 309=11 Cr.L.J. 1393=6 Ind. Cas. 683.

—Ss. 482, 486, 216 and 7—Merchandise Marks Act (IV of 1889)—‘Goods’—Books if goods—Onus of proof as to what constitutes property mark and false trade description.

On a complaint alleging that the accused printed and sold an unauthorized edition of a book known as ‘A’ Manual of Telugu Grammar by Abboy Naidu with the contents, outer cover and title page exactly the same as in the authorized edition.

Held, (1) Books are goods within the meaning of the Merchandise Marks Act (IV of 1889); (2) that the words all rights reserved on the cover of the spurious edition could constitute a false trade description, if in fact no rights had been reserved.

Quaere, whether under the circumstances the insertion of all rights reserved could constitute a false trade description in a material respect;

Held, also that in order to bring the case under S. 482 the question will be whether the accused has marked the book he is selling in manner reasonably calculated to cause it to be believed that it is the manufacture or merchandise it is not, or belongs to one to whom it does not belong. (1907) 17 M.L.J. 490=31 Mad. 512.

—Ss. 482 and 416—Selling goods with a false trade-mark.

A person bought in auction goods with the label of another which that other had refused to pay for and katea nd sold the same without removing the label.

Held, that no offence was committed either under S. 482 or S. 486. (1905) 32 C. 969.

—Ss. 482 and 486—False trade mark, using of—Property in mark, proof of—Bona fide Onus.

The complainants, the H. B. T. Company, used for years past to import from Holland, white shirtings bearing the mark "H. B. T. C. 40,000" a label with the design of one lion and a snake and an oval stamp containing written in it the words "Sole importers, Holland Bombay Trading Company Limited" and a buff heading. The accused had in their possession for purposes of sale some packages of white shirtings bearing the marks H. P. F. C. 40,000, a label with two lions and two snakes and oval stamp containing written in it "Sole importers, Holland Export Company" and a buff heading. The letters H. B. T. C., in the complainants' and H. P. T. C. in the accused's marks were printed in similar types and were similar in size colour. The colour and size of the labels, as also the colour, size and type of the oval stamps in both were similar.

Held (where it was proved that complainants had a property in their mark) that the accused had used a false trade mark and were liable to conviction under Ss. 482 and 486. Under S. 486 the onus is not on the complainant to show that the accused acted dishonestly, but on the accused to bring himself within the exception to that section. (1903) 8 C.W.N. 421.

2. Evidence and Proof.

—Ss. 482 and 486—Trade-mark—Infringement—What prosecution must prove.

In the case of an infringement of a trade-mark, the prosecution must prove that the trade-mark on the accused's goods is likely to deceive a purchaser who is acquainted with the complainant's get-up but who trusts to his memory. Mere differences in detail do not prevent the two designs being essentially the same. What degree of resemblance is necessary is a matter incapable of definition a priori. A.I.R. 1941 All. 87=1940 A.L.J. 878=42 (C.L.J. 352=I.L.R. (1940) All. 751=1940 A.W.R. (H.C.) 645=193 Ind. Cas. 189.

—S. 482—Complainant should show that goods sold under his label and get-up were goods which had reputation in market as being manufactured or sold by him.

As a general rule in order to succeed in criminal proceedings something further has to be proved beyond what is required in civil proceedings arising out of the same transaction. An example is trespass. In some cases, proof of the same facts would entitle the plaintiff to a decree in a civil case and a complainant to a conviction in criminal proceedings.

Under S. 482, Penal Code the complainant must prove that the goods sold under his label and get-up were goods which had a reputation in the market being goods manufactured or sold by him of which the label and get up were distinctive and well-known in the particular market. A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 145=40 Cr.L.J. 546=181 Ind. Cas. 404.

—S. 482—Offends under—Punishment—Measure of.

In a case of an offence under S. 482, Penal Code, the measure of punishment should be the damage caused to the complainant. A.I.R. 1936 Pat. 579=17 P.L.T. 667=3 B.R. 71=38 Cr.L.J. 35=4 C.L.T. 12=168 Ind. Cas. 745 (2).

—S. 482—Burden of proof—Absence of intention to defraud—Duty of accused.

On the wording of S. 482 an intent to defraud is an ingredient of the offence, but, when it has been proved that a trade-mark is a false trade-mark, then, it is to be presumed that the accused person had that intent unless and until he rebuts the presumption when the accused person is entitled to an acquittal. The burden of proving the absence of such intent is upon the accused, but the question whether that burden has been discharged must be answered on a consideration of the whole of the evidence in the case. A.I.R. 1929 Rang. 322, Diss. from 118 Ind. Cas. 113=7 Rang. 169=30 Cr.L.J. 852=1929 Cr. C. 617=A.I.R. 1929 Rang. 345.

—S. 482—Absence of intention to defraud—Duty of accused.

Even though no cases of purchasers having been deceived by the use of false trade mark are proved, this fact standing alone is insufficient to justify the contention that the accused acted without intent to defraud. The state of mind or the persons responsible for the introduction of the trade-mark is a most relevant fact which can be established by evidence. In the absence of such evidence, the accused cannot be held to have discharged the onus of proving want of intention which was upon him. 1929 Cr. C. 498=A.I.R. 1929 Rang. 322.

3. Genuine dispute—Jurisdiction of Criminal Court.

—S. 482—Genuine dispute between parties as to who used false trade-mark—Case should be brought in civil Court.

Where, in criminal proceedings regarding infringement of a trade-mark, the accused claims that the label she used is her label and the Magistrate is unable to decide which of the parties, complainant or the accused used the label first, there is a genuine dispute between the parties as to whose mark it is and who has used a false trade-mark, and the case should be brought in the civil Court and not in the criminal Court. A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 145=40 Cr.L.J. 546=181 Ind. Cas. 404.

—S. 482—Infringement of trade-mark—Complainant using a certain trade-mark—Accused using similar label with additions—Complainant using new trade-mark with one of the additions.

Held, complaint should be tried in criminal Court—The case was not one of a dispute between complainant and accused as to who is entitled to use the label which was introduced by the accused. A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 203=38 Cr.L.J. 840=169 Ind. Cas. 880.

—S. 482—Bona fide dispute—Discretion of Criminal Court.

Although the criminal Court has a discretion in view of the peculiar circumstances of a particular case, e.g., if there exists a bona fide dispute as to the right to use a trade mark, or where there has been undue delay in commencing criminal proceedings, to stay its own hands and direct the complainant to establish his rights in a civil Court, it is nowhere laid down by the legislature that an aggrieved person should seek his remedy in a Civil Court and not in a criminal Court. 1930 Cr. C. 765=7 O.W.N. 598=A.I.R. 1930 Oudh. 360.

—S. 482—Discretion of criminal Court.

It is nowhere laid down by the legislature that under no circumstances could a dispute relating to the infringement of a trade-mark be entertained by a criminal Court and that it should always be adjudicated upon by a civil Court. The only thing which can be said is that the criminal Court may in view of the peculiar circumstances of a particular case, stay its own hands and direct the complainant to establish his right in civil Court. 108 Ind. Cas. 607=9 Lah. 491=29 Cr.L.J. 425=29 P.L.R. 610=9 A.I. Cr. R. 406=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 186.

—Ss. 482 and 486—Using a false trade mark or selling goods with a counterfeit, trade mark—Bona fide disputes as to the right to use a trade-mark—Jurisdiction of criminal Court.

Where the accused had in close proximity to the shop of the complainant, opened a shop from which he was selling rose-water in bottles which were similar to those which contained rose-water sold by the complainant and the accused had applied labels to his bottles which were similar to those used by the complainant, but on closer examination great differences in the labels were discernible.

Held, that the accused was not guilty under Ss. 482 and 486 of using a false trade-mark of selling goods to which a counterfeit trade-mark was applied. When a bona fide dispute exists between the parties as to the right to use a trade-mark action should be taken before a civil and not criminal Court. (1907) II C.W.N. 387=6 Cr.L.J. 151.

4. Limitation for prosecution.

—S. 482—Infringement of trade mark—Merchandise Marks Act (IV of 1885), S. 15—Limitation.

There is nothing in S. 15 of the Merchandise Marks Act to prevent a prosecution under S. 482 provided the infringement is within the period limited in the section. The owner of a trade mark cannot stand by for several years while his trade-mark is infringed, continuously for a number of years and then bring a complaint in respect of recent infringement. 17 Cr.L.J. 488=10 Bur.L.T. 19=9 L.B.R. 31=36 Ind. Cas. 168.

—S. 482—Merchandise Marks Act (IV of 1889), S. 15.

The accused was prosecuted once in 1908 and then in 1910 under S. 482, I. P. C. for using a false trade mark. He was acquitted both times, the Court holding in 1910 that the prosecution was time-barred under Merchandise Marks Act, S. 15. A fresh complaint on a fresh use was made.

Held, that the prosecution was barred by time and further that the intention of the whole Act should be considered. 4 Bur.L.T. 83=12 Cr.L.J. 246=10 Ind. Cas. 787.

5. Prosecution of corporate body.

—S. 482—Corporate body—Prosecution.

A body corporate such as a firm, may be prosecuted for an offence under Ss. 480 and 482. 1929 Cr. C. 498=A.I.R. 1929 Rang. 322.

—Ss. 482 and 486—Who can be liable—A corporate body—Mens rea—Evidence of agents and servants.

A body corporate can be lawfully prosecuted under S. 482 or S. 486 of the Penal Code the word “however in the sections, not referring only to definite individual or individuals.

Under Ss. 482 and 486, prosecution has not to prove mens rea, but the burden is on the accused to prove his innocence and in the case of a limited company, innocence can be proved by the evidence of its agents or servants or otherwise. 7 Bur.L.T. 116=7 L.B.R. 306=15 Cr.L.J. 337=23 Ind. Cas. 689.

6. Right to prosecute.

—S. 482—Right to prosecute—Prosecutor not-manufacturer.

A person not necessarily a manufacturer, who uses a mark for the purpose of his trade, may acquire rights to and to respect of that mark. Where in the course of a user extending over a large number of years, goods are sold by a firm bearing a certain mark which had been known to purchasers by that mark, a prosecution would also lie at the instance of the firm. 1929 Cr. C. 498=A.I.R. 1929 Rang. 322.

7. Title to trade mark.

—S. 482—Title to trade mark—Use of distinctive mark for over 10 years—Acquisition of property in mark.

Where a trade mark in question is a distinctive mark which the firm has been using for over ten years, the firm using it acquires property in that mark as indicating that all goods which bear it have been manufactured by the firm and any flagrant imitation of the same with deliberate and dishonest intention will bring the act within the purview of S. 482. Registration of the mark is not necessary to complete the title to trade-mark in India. 7 O.W.N. 598=1930 Cr. C. 765=A.I.R. 1930 Oudh. 360.

—S. 482—Use of mark for 6 years—Proof of actual deception—If necessary.

A mark used for six years can become trade-mark within S. 482. Where the mark used by the accused is likely to deceive the public, evidence of actual deception is not necessary for conviction. 81 Ind. Cas. 922=26 Cr.L.J. 1098=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 149.

8. Miscellaneous.

—Ss. 482 and 486—Order as to costs or confiscation of goods, if can be passed by High Court in revision.

In cases of a prosecution for infringement of a trade mark, the High Court will not pass any order in revision in respect of costs or confiscation of accused's goods. If the complainant has in fact suffered any damage, he must seek his remedy in civil Court. A.I.R. 1941 All. 87=1940 A.L.J. 878=I.L.R. (1940) All. 751=42 Cr.L.J. 352=1940 A.W.R. (H.C.) 645=193 Ind. Cas. 189.

—S. 482—Registrable trade-mark— Essentials of.

A registrable trade-mark must contain or consist of at least one of the following essential particulars ; (1) The name of a company, individual or firm represented in a special or particular manner ; (2) the signature of the applicant for registration or some predecessors in his business ; (3) an invented word or invented words (4) a word or words having no direct reference to the character or quality of the goods, and not being according to its ordinary signification, a geographical name or a surname. (5) any other distinctive mark, but a name signature word or words other than such as fall within the description in the above paras.

(1), (2), (3) and (4) shall not, except by order of the Board or Trade or the Court be deemed a distinctive mark. Where none of the particulars appears, no trade-mark can be said to have been adopted. A.I.R. 1933 Nag. 344=35 Cr.L.J. 373=30 N.L.R. 45=146 Ind. Cas. 1084.

—Ss. 482 and 486—Trade mark—Search warrant, issue of.

To issue a search warrant for the search of a man's house and for the production of all papers and books in it for the purpose of an inquiry as to whether he had used or sold articles with a counterfeit trade-mark is a gross perversion of law. 17 Cr.L.J. 543=9 L.B.R. 45=10 Bur.L.T. 216=36 Ind. Cas. 591.

—Ss. 482, 485 and 486—Trade-mark —What is— Trade name—Distinction—Merchandise Marks Act, Ss. 5, 6 and 7—Dispute as to trade name— Civil nature.

The trade-mark must be some visible concrete device or design affixed to goods indicating the manufacture of a particular person. Improper use of a trade name may fall within S. 5 of the Merchandise Marks Act and be punishable under Ss. 6 and 7 of the same Act, but it is not punishable under Ss. 482, 485 and 486, I. P. C., which deal with trade-marks. A dispute about a trade name is a dispute of a civil nature. 40 Cal. 281=17 C.W.N. 227=14 Cr.L.J. 68=18 Ind. Cas. 404.

—S. 483—It cannot be said that counterfeiting a trade mark is an offence which is made up of parts of possessing the mould for counterfeiting and the act of counterfeiting. A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 445=32 Cr.L.J. 1171=134 Ind. Cas. 446.

—S. 483—Charge of counterfeiting trade-mark —Bona fide dispute—Civil nature.

Where there is a bona fide dispute as to the right to use a trade mark, the Magistrate has no jurisdiction to try a charge of counterfeiting the mark brought by one of the parties the question involved being essentially one of a civil nature. (1905) 32 C. 431=2 Cr. L.J. 236.

—S. 483—Property mark function of—Counterfeiting.

A property mark is intended to denote the ownership over all movable property belonging to a person whether it is all of one kind or of different kinds. So long as the person owns moveable properties his property mark impressed upon them remain his though any particular article out of it may after such impression pass out of his hands and cease to be his. The function of a property mark to denote ownership is not destroyed because any particular property on which it was impressed has ceased to be of that ownership. (1904) 6 Bom.L.R. 513.

—Ss. 485, 486 and 109—Two persons placing with printers Litho Stone for counterfeiting labels of complainant—Their conviction under Ss. 486 and 485 read with S. 109—Printers acquitted for offence under S. 485—Conviction of two persons under Ss. 485 and 109, held uncalled for.

The two petitioners placed with the two accused, an article described as a Litho Stone from which certain labels which were trade-marks of the complainant's goods were to be counterfeited. They instructed those two persons who were printers to make certain alterations in that instrument and it print certain labels from the die as altered. The alteration was such as to make the labels finally printed a clear counterfeit of the labels of the complainant. The two accused were acquitted of an offence under S. 485 but the two petitioners were convicted under S. 485 as well as under S. 485 read with S. 109 ;

Held, that as the two petitioners were convicted under S. 486, the further prosecution of them for offence under S. 485 read with S. 109 was uncalled for. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 351=I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 1=71 C.L.J. 497=44 C.W.N. 867=41 Cr.L.J. 836=190 Ind. Cas. 167.

—S. 485—Offence under—Trade-mark consisting of impression moulded on glass and label—Person found only with mould with intention of counterfeiting trade-mark.

Where a trade-mark consists of an impression moulded in the glass of which the bottles are made together with label and the person is found in possession of the mould in question with the intention of counterfeiting that trade-mark, although the apparatus for counterfeiting the label which would complete the trade-mark has not been found the person can be convicted under S. 485. A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 664=128 Ind. Cas. 33.

—S. 486—See also Penal Code, S. 482.

—S. 485—Trade-mark—Infringement—Tests to see—Test by putting articles side by side—Value of.

In trade-mark cases, the test of comparison of the marks side by side is not a sound one, since a purchaser will seldom have the two marks actually before him when he makes his purchase and marks with many differences may yet have an element of similarity which will cause deception, more specially if the goods are in practice asked for by a name which denotes the mark or the device on it. A.I.R. 1943 Sind. 55=43 Cr.L.J. 927=203 Ind. Cas. 181.

—S. 486—Get up and general appearance of labels of accused so similar to those used by complainant on same kind of goods, as to deceive purchaser—Offence.

In order to prove that a trade mark is an imitation of the other, it is not necessary that there should be a resemblance in every case. It is sufficient if the resemblances are of such a nature as to be calculated to mislead an unwary purchaser. Where therefore, the get up and general appearance of the labels of the accused are so similar to those of the complainant that the class of persons to whom the goods are sold would easily be deceived by the appearance of the accused's labels into supposing that the goods that they were purchasing were those of the complainant, the accused is guilty under S. 486, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 351=I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 1=71 C.L.J. 497=44 C.W.N. 867=41 Cr.L.J. 836=190 Ind. Cas. 167.

—S. 486—"Counterfeit" meaning of—Held, that the designs in both goods were practically same and amounted to counterfeit trade-mark and not mere false trade-mark.

For the purposes of S. 486, Penal Code, the word "counterfeit" does not connote an exact reproduction of the original counterfeit, and the difference between the counterfeit and the original is not limited to a difference existing only by reason of faulty reproduction. A person, for instance, convicted of counterfeiting the king's coin would not be able to avoid conviction on the ground that he had deliberately made a small alteration in the design or omitted a letter from the superscription surrounding the Monarch's head. The same principle would apply in the counterfeiting of a trade-mark :

Held, that Dongre's Balamrit is a commodity not ordinarily purchased by Europeans who are ignorant of the Nagri script, and the Indian purchaser would naturally look at the Nagri script and not at the English of which many purchasers may be presumed to be ignorant. If the English script were removed, the designs would be practically identical, and that the mere substitution of the word "Domre" for the word "Dongre" in the English script, particularly where there was no such substitution in the Nagri, was entirely insufficient to take the label out of the category of a counterfeit trade-mark and bring it within the category of a false trade-mark only. A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 341=20 N.L.J. 183=39 Cr.L.J. 109=I.L.R. (1938) Nag. 192=172 Ind. Cas. 228.

—S. 486—Counterfeiting trade-mark—Offence when committed—Test.

A person who employs a label which in general resembles the label used by another manufacturer, is guilty of counterfeiting a trade-mark under S. 486, Penal Code, irrespective of the circumstance that the registered trade-mark of the one is quite different from the trade-marks of the other. The test is not, whether a literate purchaser would be deceived if he had the two marks side by side, but whether an ordinary unwary purchaser would be deceived. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 1687 = 35 P.L.R. 749 = 16 Lah. 114 = 36 Cr. L. J. 776 = 155 Ind. Cas. 270.

—S. 486 - Offence under - Proper test.

In a case under S.486 the proper test is not whether a purchaser if literate would be deceived if he had the two articles side by side, but the matter should be considered from the point of view of the ordinary unwary purchaser. A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 728=34 C.W.N. 524 = 128 Ind. Cas. 334.

—S. 486 -- Validity of conviction -- Using another firm's soda water bottles innocently -- No offence.

The complainant and the accused were soda-water manufacturers, and each had special bottles of his own firm. It was a common practice of the place that water-manufacturing firms used bottles indiscriminately, i.e., bottles of one firm were sent by customers to another firm for being filled with mineral water. Accordingly the accused's firm used bottles of the complainant's firm.

Held, that as there was no intention to do anything harmful within the meaning of S. 486, conviction under that section could not be valid. 117 Ind. Cas. 691 = 30 Cr. L.J. 832 = 32 C.W.N. 1115 = A. I. R. 1928 Cal. 873.

—S. 486 - Labels - General resemblance.

Where the general get up of the labels of tins of two manufacturers were almost identical,

Held, that an offence was committed under S. 486 and that false trade-mark and counterfeit trade mark were the same thing. 16 Bom. L. R. 78=15 Cr. L.J. 522=24 Ind. Cas. 834.

—S. 486 - Counterfeiting a trade-mark—Representation.

In order to prove that a trade-mark is an imitation of the other, it is not necessary that there should be a resemblance in every case. It is sufficient if the resemblance are of such a nature as to be calculated to mislead an unwary purchaser. A representation that the goods of the manufacture of A are those of B need not be made orally or in writing but it may be made by the manner in which the goods are made up by the wrapper or by the name or design. The counterfeit is itself a representation. (1907) 9 Bom. L. R. 732 = 6 Cr. L. J. 75.

—S. 486 - Mark, whether must be exclusive property of anybody for purposes of S. 486.

For the purposes of S. 486, Penal Code, it is not necessary that the mark in question should be the exclusive property of anybody. The only consideration which is of importance with reference to the provisions of S. 486 is whether the mark in question has come to be so identified with the merchandise of the person using the mark as to be regarded in the market as a distinctive mark to denote that particular merchandise. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 351 = I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 1 = 71 C.L.J. 497 = 44 C. W. N. 867 = 41 Cr. L J. 836 = 190 Ind. Cas. 167.

The signature of the accused in the forwarding note does not necessarily prove that he was in possession of the goods and his conviction under S. 486, Penal Code, cannot be sustained. A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 822=1940 M.W.N. 535=42 Cr.L.J. 28=190 Ind. Cas. 647.

—S. 486 - Defence available to accused - Burden to show that his case comes under exceptions—Defence under Excep. (c) - Whether pre-supposes knowledge of accused not to know that mark was the trade-mark of any firm - Fact that accused gave information with respect to person from whom he got counterfeit goods, whether admissible.

Where the trade-mark is a counterfeit trade-mark, the accused can only escape conviction if he is able to show that he falls within the Exceps. (a), (b) or (c) enumerated in S. 486 Penal Code, and contrary to the ordinary provisions of the Code, the burden lies on him.

To a charge under S. 486, to limit a defence under Excep. (c) to the knowledge of the accused concerning the infringement of the trade-mark is unduly restrictive and at variance with the express terms of S. 486, proviso (c), which permits the accused to offer any evidence he chooses as to his innocence when once he admits that he was not deceived into thinking the label to be a genuine one. He cannot be presumed to be in a position to know whether a trade-mark has been infringed or not: he may, in fact be honestly of the opinion that the trade-mark is a false trade-mark and not a counterfeit, and his conduct in dealing with the wares he stocked and sold can be taken into consideration in deciding whether he has acted innocently.

It is true that proviso (b) to S. 486, Penal Code, as a defence permissible to the accused, is linked with proviso (a) but the fact that the accused did give all the information in his power with respect to the person from whom he obtained the goods is admissible in considering the question whether he acted innocently or not. A. I. R. 1937 Nag. 341 = 20 N.L.J. 183 = I.L.R. (1938) Nag. 192 = 39 Cr. L. J. 109 = 172 Ind. Cas. 228.

—S. 486, Excep. (c) — Scope of S. 486—No attempt at substitution of counterfeit goods with original—Conviction; propriety of.

The provisions of S. 486, Penal Code, are aimed at a retailer who connives with a fraudulent wholesaler or manufacturer in palming off on an unsuspecting public, goods which purport to be other than what they are. Where, therefore, no attempt at substitution is made, the accused cannot be convicted under this section. A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 341 = I.L.R. (1938) Nag. 192 = 20 N.L.J. 183 = 39 Cr. L.J. 109 = 172 Ind. —Evidence Act (I of 1872), S. 13 — Prosecution for infringement of trade-mark—Judgement in Civil Court negating right—Admissibility.

Where, in a prosecution for counterfeiting trade-mark, certain previous proceedings in the Civil Court relating to the exclusive right of the complainant were referred to and the judgments in the prior case were filed :

Held, that the judgments were relevant under S. 13 Evidence Act, as a particular instance when the right was claimed and was disputed. A.I.R. 1931 Oudh 277 = 8 O.W.N. 827 = 32 Cr. L.J. 1177 = 134 Ind. Cas. 477.

A prosecution under S. 486, Penal Code, and S. 15 Merchandise Marks Act, for using a counterfeit trade mark need not be instituted within three years of the first of the series of offences committed by the accused but can be instituted within three years of the specific offence complained against. A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 276 = 1930 M.W.N. 1263 = 32 Cr. L.J. 809 = 131 Ind. Cas. 848 (1).

—S. 489-A—Possession of counterfeit currency note—Guilty knowledge or intention to be proved by prosecution.

Where the accused who was found to be a simpleton produced four currency notes one of which was found to be a counterfeit note, but the accused had no other counterfeit note in his possession and he himself said he had borrowed it from another person the circumstances are so doubtful that it is not safe to maintain his conviction. In such cases, the prosecution should prove the requisite guilty knowledge or intention of the accused. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 596 = 34 Cr. L.J. 1156 = 34 P.L.R. 890 = 145 Ind. Cas. 1013.

—S. 489-A—Essentials—Ability and materials.

In the case of the counterfeiting of a currency-note both ability and materials of a particular kind are required. If those materials and ability are not present it cannot be said that an act performed without the ability to counterfeit and without materials which may help to a useful counterfeiting would be an attempt. 116 Ind. —Ss. 489-A—and 420—Misrepresentation that the accused can prepare counterfeit notes.

A charge of cheating can be based upon the intention of not performing a promise, non-fulfilment of which would not give rise to a cause of action in a Civil Court. Where on the representation of a person that he can counterfeit currency notes another is induced to advance money, the former is guilty of cheating under S. 420, though he did not intend to counterfeit, but not under S. 489-A. 18 Cr. L.J. 362 = 10 Bur. L. T. 255 = 38 Ind. Cas. 746.

—S. 489-B—In a case under S. 489-B, Penal Code, Judge ought not to stop merely at recording the verdict about the accused having uttered particular notes at particular places but should ascertain from them their opinion as to whether the said notes had been uttered with the knowledge of their being forged. A.I.R. 1936 Oudh 164 = 37 Cr. L.J. 182 = 1936 O.W.N. 28 = 11 Luck. 687 = 159 Ind. Cas. 919.

—Ss. 489-B and 120-B—Failure of specific charge of uttering of particular forged notes—Charge of conspiracy, if should be set aside.

It cannot be said that if the specific charge of the uttering of particular forged notes fails, the charge of conspiracy for the passing of forged notes as genuine must also fail. If the conviction for the offences triable by jury is set aside because of certain defect in the verdict, it does not follow as a necessary consequence of it that the conviction for the other offences for which the accused has been tried with the aid of assessors must also be set aside. A.I.R. 1936 Oudh 164 = 11 Luck. 687 = 1936 O.W.N. 28 = 37 Cr. L.J. 182 = 159 Ind. Cas. 919.

A person who knowingly sells a forged note to another is guilty under S. 489-B, whether the purchaser knows it to be forged or not. 94 Ind. Cas. 414 = 7 Lah. 80 = 27 Cr. L. J. 638 = 27 P. L. R. 514 = A. I. R. 1926 Lah. 72.

—S. 489-B—Evidence and also proof—Accused in possession of forged currency note—Genuine note of same number in accused’s house—Paper containing green honey-comb pattern resembling one in forged note also found in his house—Accused father and brother living in same house—Accused disposing forged note to shop keeper—Inference as to knowledge of forgery.

One G was prosecuted under S. 489-B for using as genuine a counterfeit note knowing it to be counterfeit. A counterfeit note was in possession of the accused. A genuine note bearing the same number was found in the house of the accused; one other forged note also bearing the same number was traced to the same village. A piece of paper containing a honey-comb pattern in green ink resembling the pattern on the forged note was also found in his house.

Held, that although there was no evidence that the accused made this pattern, but as it was found in the house in which he lived with his father and brothers it was a very fair inference that this pattern must have been made by some body in that house and that the forged note was copied from the original note, which was also in the same house, and as the accused was disposing of the copy of the genuine note to a shop-keeper no other inference was possible but that it was done with the knowledge that the note was forged. 116 Ind. —S. 489-C—Counterfeit currency notes found in possession of person—Inference as to his intention.

The number of counterfeit notes found in a man’s possession and the circumstances in which they were so found may, by themselves, constitute a sufficient ground for drawing the inference, that the intention was to use them as genuine or that they may be used as genuine :

Held, on facts and circumstances of the case that the accused was in possession of the counterfeit currency notes with the intention of using them as genuine or that they might be used as genuine. Consequently, the accused was guilty of offence under S. 489-C, Penal Code. A. I. R. 1939 Mad. 96 = 1938 M. W. N. 1121 = 48 L. W. 754 = 40 Cr. L. J. 458 = 180 Ind. Cas. 631.

—S. 489-C—Possession of forged note—Ingredients of offence—Duty of prosecution to prove intention of accused to use them as genuine.

Mere possession of forged notes is not an offence. In order to bring a case within the purview of S. 489-C, Penal Code, it is also necessary to establish that at the time of his possession, he knew the notes to be forged or had reason to believe them to be so, and that he intended to use them as genuine or that they might be used as genuine.

The onus lies on the prosecution to prove circumstances which led clearly, indubitably and irresistibly to the inference that the accused had the intention, to foist the notes on the public and such intention, relating as it does to a future conduct could only be proved by collateral circumstances such as that the accused had palmed off such notes before, or that he was in possession of such and similar notes in such large numbers that his possession for any other purpose is inexplicable. A. I. R. 1931 Lah. 24 = 11 Lah. 555 = 32 Cr. L. J. 351 = P. L. R. 867 = 129 Ind. Ind. Cas. 494.

—S. 489-D—Possession of some instruments or materials for purposes of being used for counterfeiting notes—Case, if covered by S. 489 D.

The wording of S. 489-D, Penal Code, is very wide and would clearly cover a case where a person is found in possession of machinery, instruments or materials for the purpose of being used for counterfeiting currency notes, even though the machinery, instruments or materials so found were not all the articles required for the purpose of counterfeiting. A. I. R. 1939 Sind 190 = 40 Cr. L. J. 810 = I. L. R. (1939) Kar. 744 = 183 Ind. Cas. 591.

—S. 489-D—Ability to counterfeit—Proof of, if necessary.

In considering an offence under S. 489-D it is not necessary to prove that the accused had the ability to produce counterfeit currency notes with materials in his possession. 116 Ind. Cas. 797 = 51 All. 470 = 30 Cr. L.J. 690 = 11 A.I.Cr.R. 215 = 1929 A.L.J. 127 = 10 L.R.A. (Cr.) 29 = A.I.R. 1928 All. 754.

—S. 480-D—Dishonest intention—Possession of articles, sufficient to counterfeit—Presumption of intention.

Where the accused was in possession of certain materials sufficient, in the opinion of an expert, to counterfeit a currency note but had given no explanation as to why he was in possession.

Held, that this by itself would raise a presumption of his dishonest intention. 112 Ind. Cas. 911 = 26 A.L.J. 1391 = 9 L.R.A. (Cr.) 138 = 10 A.I.Cr.R. 443 = 30 Cr.L.J. 47 = A.I.R. 1928 All. 759

—S. 489-D—Possession of instruments and materials for counterfeiting currency notes—Nature of proof—Onus—Possession of articles for studying, if an offence.

Per Abdur Rahim and Sundara Aiyar, JJ. Ayling J. contra.)—To establish a charge under S. 489-D, the prosecution must prove first that the machinery, instrument or material found in the possession of the accused is such as would be used for the production of a counterfeit note and then further that the accused knew or intended that such articles would be used for that purpose. The onus of proving both these lies heavily on the crown, with expert evidence, if necessary. The word 'counterfeiting' should be used in the sense that resemblance must be such as may in circulation impose on people of ordinary intelligence. There is no offence committed where all that is proved is that the accused was studying the art of counterfeiting and equipping himself with objects suitable for the purpose.

Per Ayling, J.—The possession of even a single instrument for counterfeiting would be sufficient, provided it were shown that it was intended to be utilised for the purpose. This intention is a matter of inference dependent upon the facts and it is always open to the accused to show that he possessed them innocently. 10 M.L.T. 108 = 21 M.L.J. 766 = 12 Cr.L.J. 377 = 11 Ind. #### 1. Applicability of section.

—S. 494—Applicability—Hindu convert to Christianity marrying Christian wife—Reconversion to Hinduism and marriage with Hindu girl—Offence.

The accused, a Hindu by birth became a convert to Christianity and married a Christian wife. Both of them were later converted to Hinduism and the accused then married a Hindu girl. On a complaint of bigamy by the first wife.

Held, that the accused, so long as he was a Hindu, at the time of the second marriage, did not commit the offence of bigamy, though his first wife, whom he married while a Christian, was alive, and he could not, therefore, be convicted under S. 494, I.P. Code. 51 Cr.L.J. 909 = A.I.R. 1950 Mys. 26.

—S. 494—Bigamy—Hindu convert to Christianity marrying a Christian wife—Reversion to Hinduism—Subsequent marriage with a Hindu woman during the life-time of Christian wife.

The accused, a Hindu convert to Christianity, married a Christian woman according to the Roman Catholic religion; he subsequently again became a Hindu. He then married a Hindu woman according to the Hindu rites, though his Christian wife was alive at that time.

Held, that the accused was not guilty of the bigamy. 3 M.H.C.R. App. VII, Foll. 33 Mad. 371 = 11 Cr. L.J. 682 = 8 Ind. Cas. 572.

—S. 494—Bigamy—Christian marrying a Hindu wife while a Christian wife is living.

A Native Christian who has a Christian wife living commits an offence under S. 494, by marrying a Hindu woman according to Hindu rites, whether he does so without renouncing the Christian religion or not. 3 M.H.C.R. App. VII, not followed, (1907) 17 M.L.J. 476 = 30 M. 550. = 2 M.L.T. 345.

—S. 494—Remarriage after conversion—Remarriage by Mahomedan wife after husband's conversion to Ahmadiyan faith—Ahamadiyans not apostates from Islam—Offence.

The Ahamadiyans, followers of Ahamad, who lived in the Punjab 15 years ago, are merely a sect among Mahomedans and a person's acceptance of Ahamadiyan tenets does not render him an apostate from Islam so as to annul a marriage contracted by that person previous to his acceptance of Ahamadiyan principles. The 5th respondent had been married to the petitioner who subsequently joined the Ahamadiyan faith. Thereafter the 5th respondent without obtaining any divorce married the 3rd respondent on the opinion of certain Muslim theologians, that the petitioner's acceptance of Ahamadiyan doctrines amounted to apostacy.

Held, that the marriage with the 3rd respondent was an offence under S. 494. There was no question of the application of mens rea or of S. 79, Penal Code in the case of an offence under S. 494, I. P. C. 71 Ind. Cas. 65=45 Mad. 986=16 M.L.W. 626=1922 M.W.N. 662=24 Cr. L.J. 17=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 171=43 M.L.J. 663.

—S. 494—Hindu woman converted to Mahomedanism—Marriage.

Where a Hindu Chamar woman became a convert to Mahomedanism and married a Mussalman husband she is guilty of an offence under S. 494 of the Penal Code. Conversion has not the effect of dissolving the marriage tie. 1 Lah. 440=59 Ind. Cas. 33=22 Cr. L.J. 1.

—S. 494—Bigamy—Christians—Apostacy.

A Christian marriage is not dissolved by the apostacy of one of the parties and a subsequent marriage of a Christian wife after her conversion to Islam is a bigamy. 18 Cal. 264; and 49 P. R. 1907, Foll. 20 Cr. L.J. 3=5 P. R. 1919 (Cr.)=13 P.W.R. 1919 (Cr.)=48 Ind. Cas. 493.

—S. 491—Decision of caste punch—Dissolution—Proof of.

A caste punch having no authority to grant a fargati, is not effective to dissolve a marriage contracted between accused and the complainant, and hence a bigamy is committed by the accused and the person with whom she afterwards contracted a marriage. 19 Bom. L. R. 56=18 Cr. L. J. 468=39 Ind. Cas. 308.

—S. 494—Marriage after apostacy of husband but before expiry of iddat.

The marriage of a Mohamedan woman after the apostacy of her first husband but before expiry of iddat is invalid under the Muhammadan Law not by reason of its taking place during the life-time of her first husband and hence she is not guilty of bigamy. 39 Cal. 409=15 C.L.J. 263=16 C.W.N. 451=13 Cr. L. J. 257=14 Ind. Cas. 641.

2. Abetment.

—S. 494—Abetment of bigamy—Charge of, when established.

In order to succeed in a prosecution for abetment of bigamy the prosecution must prove that the person who is alleged to have committed bigamy was married lawfully once and has gone through a second marriage ceremony and that the person alleged to have abetted the bigamy knew, when he arranged or assisted at the second marriage, that the person who was remarried had contracted a valid first marriage and that the husband or wife of the first marriage was still living. A.I.R. 1934 All. 589=1934 A. L. J. 387=35 Cr. L.J. 1053=3 A.W.R. 598=150 Ind. Cas. 139.

—Ss. 494 and 109—Absence of knowledge of prior secret marriage—Abetment of bigamy, made out.

A person cannot be guilty of abetment of bigamy when he marries a woman without being aware of her prior secret marriage. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 164=33 P. L. R. 10603=5 Cr. L. J. 597 (1)=147 Ind. Cas. 1223.

—S. 494—Offences under—Knowledge that woman was married, necessity of—'Void,' meaning of—Remarriage of married Muhammadan woman—Offence.

For abetment under S. 494, I.P.C. there must be evidence that the person accused of abetting the offence knew that the person he married was the wife of another man.

The word "void" in S. 494, I.P.C., is not used in the technical sense in which it is used in Muhammadan Law: the I.P.C. makes no distinction between a void and an invalid marriage and the term "void" used there covers marriage of both classes. A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 194=32 Cr. L.J. 1210=134 Ind. Cas. 589.

—Ss. 494 and 114—Abetment of bigamy.

Where, by reason of a mistake of fact, the accused thought that the previous marriage of a girl had been declared void by a court of competent jurisdiction, and went through a form of marriage with her.

Held, that he had not committed any offence. 31 P.W.R. 1918 Cr. = 19 Cr. L.J. 680=46 Ind. Cas. 40.

3. Complaint by person aggrieved.

—S. 494—Bigamy—Person aggrieved—Code of Criminal Procedure (Act V of 1908), S. 198—Procedure—Commitment.

In a case of bigamy the person aggrieved is either the first husband, or the second husband and not the father. Hence, where in such a case a complaint was preferred by the father of the husband, under S. 494, but not by either of the husbands :

Held, there was no valid complaint before the court and the commitment was bad. 32 A. 78=5 Ind. Cas. 176=11 Cr. L.J. 51=7 A.L.J. 10.

—S. 495—'Person aggrieved'—Brother of second husband—Criminal Procedure Code, S. 198.

Where a woman is charged with bigamy, the brother of her second husband is not a person 'aggrieved' within the meaning of S. 198, Cr. P.C. 10 B. 349. Foll. (1902) A.W.N. 198=25 A. 132.

—S. 494:—See Cr. P.C., 198. 25 A. 209—1903 A.W.N. 7.

—S. 494—Fresh complaint—Complainant failing to prove his alleged marriage with accused—Complaint dismissed—Fresh Complaint—If maintainable.

Where one complaint under S. 494 was dismissed on the ground that the complainant failed to prove his alleged marriage with the accused, another complaint by him cannot be entertained. 11 L.L.J. 197=1929 Cr. C. 87=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 514.

4. Defence.

—S. 494—Defence.

In a charge under S. 494, the accused may plead in his defence that the first marriage was null and void, even though he has not obtained a declaration to that effect under S. 18, Divorce Act. A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 516=47 Cr. L.J. 421=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 80=58 L.W. 446=1945 M.W.N. 421=222 Ind. Cas. 328.

5. Duty of court to decide point of law.

—Necessity of coming to a decision on point of law.

Even though the Court before whom a charge of bigamy or the like is brought is of necessity a Criminal Court, that does not discharge the Judge from the necessity of coming to a decision on a point of law as regards the marriage. A.I.R. 1934 All.

589—1934 A.L.J. 387—35 Cr. L.J. 1053—3 A.W.R. 598—150 Ind. Cas. 139.

6. Essentials of offence.

—S. 494—Valid marriage existing—Legal dissolution not proved—Second marriage—Offence.

A marriage of a Roman Catholic with a Protestant woman is not invalid merely because it was solemnized in a Protestant Church. It is a legal and valid marriage and the husband would be committing an offence of bigamy under S. 494 if he marries during the existence of such a marriage, another woman. The fact that the husband had executed a release deed, in favour of the wife (which he claimed operated as dissolution of the marriage according to the custom of the community to which they belonged) would not operate as dissolution of the marriage. A.I.R. 1945 Mad. 516=(1945) 2 M.L.J. 80=58 L.W. 446=47 Cr. L.J. 421=1945 M.W.N. 421=222 Ind. Cas. 328.

—S. 494—Offence of bigamy—Essentials.

In order that an offence of bigamy may be committed, there must be at the time of the second ceremony of marriage, a previous valid subsisting marriage. A.I.R. 1942 Sind 92=L.L.R. (1942) Kar. 3=43 Cr. L.J. 647=201 Ind. Cas. 163.

—S. 494—Bigamy—Points to be proved—Mahomadan parties

In order that a prosecution for bigamy should succeed, the prosecution must show first of all that at the time of the second marriage, there was the first valid subsisting marriage. Where the parties are Muhammadans, it must be shown that the girl, after she had attained puberty acquiesced in or ratified the first marriage. A.I.R. 1936 Sind 189=38 Cr. L.J. 88=30 Sind L.R. 325=165 Ind. Cas. 745.

—S. 494—Muhammadan woman—Second marriage after exercising option of puberty.

Where a Muhammadan girl was given in marriage during her minority by her mother and when she was about sixteen years, before consummation of the marriage, she made an application to the Deputy Commissioner repudiating the marriage and married another person some time after this :

Held, that she was not guilty of an offence under S. 494, I.P.C. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 88=34 Cr. L.J. 77=33 P. L. R. 1062=140 Ind. Cas. 617.

—S. 494—Second marriage without divorce and against wishes of first husband.

A second marriage during the life time of the first husband and without the first marriage being annulled by divorce or in some formal manner recognized by caste usage as equivalent to divorce (the mere wish of the woman against that of her husband being insufficient) is an offence under S. 494. Such second marriages, though recognized by custom, are against public policy and cannot be recognized by the Courts. A.I.R. 1932 Mad. 561 = 36 M. L. W. 237 = 1932 M.W.N. 1082 = 33 Cr.L.J. 647 = 138 Ind. Cas. 518.

—S. 494—First marriage valid—Subsequent marriage with same woman—If offence.

In the charge of bigamy, where in the first marriage the giving away of the bride was with consent of the legal guardian who was in jail.

Held, that the first marriage was valid and hence the subsequent marriage with the same woman constituted bigamy. 100 Ind. Cas. 711 = 28 Cr.L.J. 327 = 7 A.I.Cr.R. 515 515 = A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 480.

7. Evidence and Proof.

—Ss. 494, 497 and 498—Duty of Court - Duty of prosecution—Going through form of marriage recognised by law must be proved—Marriage need not otherwise be valid.

Judges should be particularly careful to see that Ss. 494, 497 and 498, Penal Code, are not abused for the purpose of private spite or prosecution. It is necessary for the prosecution under S. 494, Penal Code, to prove that the form of marriage was a form recognised by or known to the law, otherwise it would be open to the prosecution by mere assertion to constitute any mutual act on the part of the man and woman a form of marriage. When the word "marriage" is used in S. 494, it means marries by some form of marriage known to or recognized by the law. Section 494, when it uses the word "marries" does not, of course, refer to a valid marriage. A bigamous marriage cannot be a valid marriage, and apart from the bar of the first marriage, it may be that there may be some other legal impediment to the validity of the marriage of the man or woman, some legal impediment, personal to the man or woman such as consanguinity, yet if the second marriage be in a form recognised by or known to the law, that would be sufficient to satisfy this particular provision of the section. A.I.R. 1938 Sind 127 = 39 Cr.L.J. 656 = I.L.R. (1939) Kar. 95 = 175 Ind. Cas. 461.

—S. 494—Custom—Remarriage during life time of first husband—No strict proof of custom—Offence.

Sagai in the form of remarriage of widows is the normal condition in all except the five or six highest castes of Hindus in Bihar. But a custom of sagai, while the first husband is still alive is even assuming the custom to be valid defence under S. 494, something which would require strict proof in respect of the particular caste in the particular area, and in respect of the conditions in which the custom operates. 96 Ind. Cas. 115 = 7 P.L.T. 443 = 27 Cr.L.J. 867 = A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 346.

—S. 494—Evidence of first marriage—Police report to prevent second marriage.

The making of a report to the police with a view to prevent the second marriage is a strong corroboration of the evidence of the first marriage. 21 A.L.J. 187 = 4 L.R.A. (Cr.) 73 = A.I.R. 1923 All. 329.

8. Interpretation.

8. (a) Interpretation—"Marry".

—S. 494—"Marry", meaning of—Second marriage, whether should be valid.

The word "marry" in S. 494, I.P.C. means going through a form of marriage, whether the marriage should prove in fact legal and valid or illegal and invalid. Consequently, the prosecution has merely to show that the accused went through a form of marriage :

Held, that there was sufficient evidence to show that the accused was a legally married wife.

Held, also that the accused went through a second marriage in a recognized form. A.I.R. 1936 Nag. 13 = 37 Cr. L. J. 161 = 159 Ind. Cas. 855.

—S. 494—Performance of rites by Sikh.

A Hindu professing the Sikh religion may have his marriage performed according to the Anand rites and such marriage would be valid for all intents and purposes including the purpose of an offence under S. 494. 82 Ind. Cas. 277 = 25 Cr. L.J. 1269 = A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 168.

8 (b) Interpretation—"Void".

—S. 494—Void and invalid marriages—No distinction—Offence.

The word "void" which occurs in S. 494 is not used in the technical sense in which it is used in the Mahomedan law. Penal Code makes no distinction between a void and an invalid marriage and the term "void" used therein covers marriages of both classes.

A Mahomedan was prosecuted for bigamy. The accused knew of the former marriage of the woman married by him. It was argued that the marriage with the accused being only invalid and not void under Mahomedan law, the accused could not be said to have committed bigamy.

Held, that the accused was guilty. 110 Ind. Cas. 333=29 P.L.R. 533=10 A.I.Cr.R. 500=29 Cr.L.J. 701=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 844.

9. Jurisdiction to try offence.

— S. 494 — Acquittal — Refusal to commit to sessions.

Under the Code of Criminal Procedure, as amended, a magistrate of the First Class has jurisdiction to try an offence under Section 494, Penal Code, and dispose of the same without committing the case to the Court of Sessions. An order of discharge passed by such Magistrate in such a case, after the accused has been called upon to enter on his defence, is tantamount to an acquittal, and not discharge. 75 Ind. Cas. 727=25 Cr.L.J. 39=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 60.

10. Sentence.

— S. 494 — Sentence.

Where the prosecution of the accused was initiated only out of vindictive motives, a light sentence only was inflicted. 91 Ind. Cas. 250=8 N.L.J. 178=27 Cr.L.J. 74=A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 127.

— S. 494—Offence under—Tali tying by use of force—Does not amount to going through the ceremony of being married, knowing that he is not thereby lawfully married.

The accused who wanted to marry a girl but was rejected, waylaid her and pushed her down and tied a tali round her neck. He was convicted of an offence under S. 496, I.P.C. On a perusal of the calendar by the High Court.

Held, that the act of the accused in tying the tali round the neck of the girl in the circumstances did not amount to going through the ceremony of being married, knowing that he is not thereby lawfully married within the meaning of S.496, I.P.C. and hence the conviction should be set aside. Moreover, the accused must be presumed to have known full well that according to the custom of the community that act did not constitute a ceremony of being married. 48Cr.L.J.842=A.I.R. 1947 Mad. 193 = 1946 M.W.N. 762 = (1946) 2 M.L.J. 428.

— S. 496, charge under Essentials to be proved.

To establish a charge under S. 496, I.P.C., it is not enough to show that the marriage may be set aside on the ground of fraud or declared a nullity, it is incumbent upon the prosecution to go further and to prove that the accused knew that there was no valid marriage and he has gone through a show of marriage with a fraudulent or ulterior object in view. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 214 = 41 C.W.N. 540 = I.L.R. (1937) 2 Cal. 221 — 38 Cr.L.J. 577 — Ind. Cas. 708 (F.B.)

— Ss. 496 and 419—Accused misrepresenting himself to belong to same sub-caste as complainant marrying her daughter.

Where the accused who belonged to the Barna Sub caste of Brahmins representing himself to be a Barendra Brahmin went through the ceremony of marriage with the daughter of the complainant who was a Barendra Brahmin and who would not have given her daughter in marriage to the accused but for the misrepresentation and on account of the marriage, the complainant was ex-communicated and thus suffered harm to her mind and reputation :

Held, that the marriage not being invalid, the accused could not be convicted under S. 496, I.P.C., but was liable to conviction under S. 419, A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 214 = 41 C.W.N. 540 = 38 Cr.L.J. 577 = I.L.R. (1937) 2 Cal. 221 = 168 Ind. Cas. 708 (F.B.)

— Ss. 496 and 494—Marriage—Fraudulently going through form of—Essence of offence—Show of Marriage.

The essence of an offence under S. 496, is that the marriage ceremony should be fraudulently gone through and that there should be no lawful marriage. The accused must have the knowledge that there is no marriage. A case of bigamy is not contemplated by S. 496. Where it is intended that there should be a valid marriage and not that there should be only a show of marriage for some ulterior and fraudulent purpose the case does not come under S. 496. 10 C.W.N. 982 = 4 Cr.L.J. 152.

—S. 497.

Synopsis.

1. Applicability of section
2. Complaint by husband
3. Evidence and proof
4. Prosecution by Crown
5. Miscellaneous.

1. Applicability of section.

—S. 497—Applicability—Hindu wife—Conversion to Islam—If dissolves marriage tie—Sexual intercourse by another person with converted wife—Offence.

The conversion of a Hindu wife to Mahomedanism does not ipso facto dissolve the marriage tie with her husband, and she cannot, during his life time, enter into a valid marriage contract with another person. She continues to be the wife of her former husband in spite of her conversion, and if any one has sexual intercourse with her, he commits an offence under S. 497, I. P. Code, whether such intercourse be with or without her consent. I.L.R. (1947) Nag. 205=228 Ind. Cas. 1=48 Cr.L.J. 43=1947 N. L. J. 73=A.I.R. 1947 Nag. 121.

—S. 497—Applicability—Europeans.

The provisions of S. 497 of the Penal Code are not restricted in their application and applies to all classes of persons, including Europeans. Evidence that the accused took up his abode in the house of another man's wife, that both slept on the same bed for 15 days, and that there was considerable attachment between them is amply sufficient to prove adultery. 61 Ind.Cas. 238=22 Cr.L.J. 382=2 U.P.L.R. (All.) 419.

2. Complaint by husband.

—Ss 497, 366, 368—Complaint under Ss. 366 and 368—Requirements of S. 497 fulfilled—Conviction under S. 497, if legal.

If a complaint under Ss. 366 and 368, fulfils all the requirements of a complaint under S. 497 and clearly makes an accusation of an offence under that section, then, if the adultery complained of is proved, a conviction under that section will not be illegal on the ground that there has been no complaint as required by S. 199, Criminal P.C. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 945=36 Cr.L.J. 789=36 P.L.R. 209=155 Ind. Cas. 595.

—S. 497—Dissolution of marriage — Right to complain—If affected.

The dissolution of the marriage does not take away from the complainant the right to lodge a complaint. The words in Section 199 "the husband of the woman" are simply intended to point to the particular person who has the right to start proceedings and that a man does not cease to be "the husband of the woman" within the meaning of Section 199, merely because the marriage tie has been dissolved. The right to start proceedings is given to him simply because he is the person aggrieved. 67 Ind.Cas. 731=16 P.W.R. Cr. 1922=23 Cr.L.J. 462=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 477.

—Ss. 497 and 571 — Intention of attempt—Complaint.

12—F. Y. D.—37-A.

An intention exists before attempt. By itself it is no offence. An offence is complete when it is proved that intent is used to bring the particular act within the category of offences even though further intended acts were not even attempted. The offence of criminal trespass being completed, the complaint of a husband in respect of house trespass to commit adultery is unnecessary. 19 Cr.L.J. 881=47 Ind. Cas. 77 (Nag.).

—S. 497—Marriage—Desertion.

Mere desertion of the husband by the wife for one year does not dissolve the marriage, nor a complaint under S. 497, is liable to be dismissed on the above ground. 18 Cr.L.J. 321=38 Ind. Cas. 433 (L.B.).

3. Evidence and proof.

—S. 497—Adultery, evidence as to—Inference from circumstances — Inference that sexual intercourse took place.

Direct evidence of the fact of adultery can rarely be possible. It has to be inferred from circumstances but the circumstances must be such as to fairly justify the inference that sexual intercourse took place. A.I.R. 1935 Oudh 506=1935 O.W.N. 1015=36 Cr.L.J. 1298=11 Luck. 463=158 Ind. Cas. 6 (2).

—S. 497—Proof of adultery—Circumstantial evidence.

Kulwant Sahay, J.—It is a fundamental rule that it is not necessary to prove the direct fact of adultery; because if it were otherwise, there is not one case in a hundred in which that proof would be attainable; It is very rarely indeed that the parties are surprised in the direct fact of adultery. In every case almost the fact is inferred from circumstances that lead to it by fair inference as a necessary conclusion. The only general rule that can be laid down upon the subject is that the circumstances must be such as would lead the guarded discretion of a reasonable and just mind to that conclusion. 111 Ind. Cas. 762=9 P.L.T. 397=A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 375.

—S. 497.

The mere birth of a child to a married woman after two years after she left her husband does not show necessarily that any one had committed adultery with her; adultery requires knowledge of her status as a married woman on the part of the person having intercourse with her. 1935 M.W.N. 478.

—S. 497—Marriage must be strictly proved—Evidence of husband and wife, whether sufficient—Proof of ceremonies.

In prosecution under S. 497, I.P.C., where marriage is an ingredient in the offence, the fact of the marriage must be strictly proved in the regular way. This implies that the marriage must be proved as an event which took place and not merely as the state in which the parties were living. No particular number of witnesses must be examined to prove the fact of marriage between two persons. It cannot be said that the evidence of a husband and a wife that a marriage in fact took place between them cannot be accepted as sufficient to prove that fact, nor will any presumption against the validity of such a marriage arise unless there is at least some suggestion that a particular part of the ceremony necessary to its validity was lacking.

—Ss. 497, 498—Strict proof of marriage, necessity of, for conviction under Ss. 497, 498.

Strict proof of marriage is necessary for conviction under Ss. 497 and 498, I. P. C. Under S. 498, I.P.C., marriage must be strictly proved and it is not permissible to base a conviction on the presumption of marriage arising from cohabitation for a number of years. A.I.R. 1934 Sind 10=35 Cr. L. J. 816=27 Sind. L. R. 482=148 Ind. Cas. 753.

—S. 497—Proof of marriage—Duty of prosecutor—Admission of accused—Effect.

In a prosecution under S. 497 the question of marriage must be proved strictly and any inference, tacit or otherwise, e. g., tacit admission on the part of the accused that the woman was the wife of the complainant, will not avail the prosecution if they fail to prove strictly the marriage between the complainant and the woman whose chastity has been violated. In case of this kind it is necessary for the complainant or some other person in his behalf to give strict proof of the marriage. In countries where a system of registration prevails, it is sufficient for the petitioner or the prosecutor, as the case might be, to give evidence of his marriage with the woman who is concerned and produce a certified copy of the register. But in a country like India where no registration prevails, it is necessary to set out the facts and circumstances surrounding the alleged ceremony of the marriage in order to enable the Court to determine the question whether the marriage in fact took place and whether the relationship of husband and wife in fact existed at the time of the prosecution. 112 Ind. Cas. 469=29 Cr. L. J. 1045=11 A.I.Cr.R. 364=A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 481.

—S. 497—Presumption of marriage—Man and woman living together as husband and wife—Factum valet.

Where a man and a woman lived together as man and wife, there is a presumption that they were legally married, and even though they belong to castes or classes which ought not to intermarry, nevertheless, factum valet quod fieri non debuit applies. 104 Ind. Cas. 708=6 Bur. L. J. 122=28 Cr. L. J. 868=A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 261.

—S. 497—What must be proved—Existence of marriage.

In a prosecution under S. 497 or S. 498 it must be proved to the satisfaction of the Court that there is in existence a legal marriage before conviction can take place. 100 Ind. Cas. 535=4 O.W.N. 172=28 Cr. L. J. 311=7 A.I.Cr.R. 436=A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 140.

—S. 497—Existence of marriage.

In all prosecutions for adultery under S. 497, Penal Code, the marriage must be strictly proved. 94 Ind. Cas. 603=27 Cr. L. J. 651=4 Bur. L. J. 107=A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 328.

—S. 497—Proof of marriage—Conduct—Evidence Act, S. 50.

Before an accused can be convicted under S. 497, the actual fact of the marriage must be proved. Evidence that the complainant lived with the woman, on whom he alleged that the accused committed adultery, as man and wife, is not sufficient to prove the fact of marriage, for it is mere evidence of conduct. 17 Bom. L. R. 75=16 Cr. L. J. 213=27 Ind. Cas. 837.

—S. 497—Delay in complaining by husband—Delay, not explained—Inference as to connivance.

Where a husband was driven out from his house by a wife and the accused lived with her and the husband, though he saw this, did not prefer a complaint promptly but filed a complaint after 18 months and his silence for this period was not explained:

Held, that this led to the conclusion that he never meant to resent or take action against the accused for the adultery and might, therefore, have connived at it and that under the circumstances he was not the aggrieved husband who could have the adulterer convicted under S. 497, I.P.C. A.I.R. 1934 Sind 10=35 Cr. L. J. 816=27 Sind L.R. 482=148 Ind. Cas. 753.

—S. 497—Connivance of husband—Proof of mere negligence—If sufficient.

In order to establish connivance mere negligence or inactivity will not suffice. To constitute connivance the facts established must lead to a direct and necessary inference that adultery would be committed with the person charged, and that the husband acquiesced in by wilfully abstaining from taking any steps to prevent that adulterous intercourse which, from what passes before his eye or within his knowledge, he cannot but believe or reasonably think is likely to occur. They may not prove privity to the actual commission of the adultery. 91 Ind. Cas. 533=24 A.L.J. 155=6 L.R.A.Cr. 209=27 Cr. L. J. 101=A.I.R. 1926 All. 189.

—S. 497—Evidence—Letter written by complainant's wife to accused, but not proved to have been received by accused—Sufficiency.

Where, in the case of a charge for adultery, the only evidence was a letter written by the complainant's wife to the accused, which was not proved to have been received nor read by the accused.

Held: that conviction on such evidence must be set aside. A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 248.

4. Prosecution by Crown.

—S. 497—Whether offence against public—Crown, if a prosecutor.

Although no Court may take cognizance of an offence under S. 497, I.P.C., except upon a complaint made by the husband as provided in that section, nevertheless, the offence referred to in that section is like all other offences described in the Penal Code an offence against the public in which the Crown, as always, is the prosecutor. The complainant may merely put the Crown in motion. Thereafter the issue is between the Crown and the accused. (36) 163 Ind. Cas. 224=39 C.W.N. 917=62 Cal. 1037=37 Cr. L. J. 825.

—S. 497—Prosecution under—Whether barred by S. 61, Divorce Act (IV of 1869).

Section 61, Divorce Act does not forbid the Crown to prosecute and punish an alleged adulterer under S. 497, I.P.C., when moved to do so by an injured husband who is entitled to relief under the Divorce Act. What S. 61 forbids is a civil suit for damages. A.I.R. 1935 Oudh 506=1935 O.W.N. 1015=36 Cr. L.J. 1298=11 Luck. 465=158 Ind. Cas. 6 (2).

—S. 497—Prosecution by Crown—If permissible.

Section, 61 Divorce Act, is not intended to be anything more and does nothing more than preclude a civil suit for damages of the nature of the English common law action, for criminal conversation which lay at the suit of a husband to recover damages against an adulterer. There is no authority statutory or otherwise, warranting the view that S. 61 forbids the Crown to prosecute and punish an alleged adulterer under S. 497, I.P.C., when moved to do so by an injured husband. 108 Ind. Cas. 381=10 L. L. J. 250=29 Cr. L.J. 332=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 50.

—S. 497.

The Court should do nothing to encourage successive prosecutions. 1941 N. L. J. 606.

5. Miscellaneous.

—S. 497 — Adultery — Damages — Right of husband against adulterer — Tort — Adulterer's conviction—Criminal Court—Effect.

Adultery is an actionable wrong. Want of knowledge that the woman is a married woman is a good defence to a suit for damages. The fact of the adulterer's conviction for adultery is a good ground for not punishing him over again by awarding damages against him unless there is a special reason for doing so. (1916) 225 Ind. Cas. 235=1946 N. L. J. 684=A.I.R. 1946 Nag. 392.

—S. 497 — Charge under — Dates of alleged commission of offence not definitely specified — Charge, if defective.

Where a charge for adultery under S. 497, I.P.C., was sufficiently definite as regards the places where the offence was said to have been committed but as regards the dates it was not possible to assign particular dates on which sexual intercourse took place in one of the places:

Held, that it was enough to specify the period within which the offence was alleged to have been committed and that the omission of the precise dates had not in any way prejudiced the accused. A.I.R. 1935 Oudh 506=1935 O.W.N. 1015=36 Cr. L. J. 1298=11 Luck. 465=158 Ind. Cas. 6 (2).

—S. 497 — Nature of offence—Continued intercourse.

Every act of sexual intercourse amounts to an offence of adultery, and if a person has several sexual intercourses with a woman, it cannot be said that the offence is a continuing offence. 113 Ind. Cas. 70=30 Cr. L. J. 54=53 Bom. 69=11 A.I.Cr.R. 510=30 Bom. L.R. 1435=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 530.

1. Abetment.

—S. 498 — Enticing away a woman—Woman no abettor—Abetment.

When a man is convicted with "enticing away" a woman under S. 498, the woman cannot be guilty as an abettor. (1902) 26 M. 463.

—S. 498 — Abettor.

Where the principal accused is acquitted, the abettor cannot be convicted. 1935 M.W.N. 478.

2. Complaint.

—S. 498—Proceedings under—Requisites for—Held, there was no complaint by husband within meaning of S. 4 (h) Criminal P. C., and accused could not be convicted.

In order that there shall be proceedings under S. 498, I.P.C., it is necessary, first, that there shall be a complaint by the husband (or otherwise as specified in S. 499, I.P.C.), and secondly that a competent Court should take cognizance of the offence.

Proceedings under S. 366, I.P.C., were started against the accused on the information laid at the thana by a local schoolmaster. The schoolmaster stated in his information that the girl's relations were not taking action. The husband was at some distant place but however appeared subsequently in the committing Court when charge sheet had been submitted and cognizance had been taken by Court and deposed. In cross-examination the husband said that he had not personally lodged any complaint in Court against the accused with having enticed away his wife and that he had asked his brother to lodge a complaint to the police. He then added 'I am complaining of the enticement to day.' No charge was framed under S. 498 by the committing Magistrate, but when the case came before the Sessions Court, under the directions of the Judge such a charge was framed:

Held, that the Judge was not justified in framing the charge in the absence of a complaint by the husband. There was nothing which could be called a complaint within the meaning of S. 4 (h), Criminal P. C. and nothing to suggest that the Magistrate considered that there was any such complaint before him on which he could take cognizance nor did he purport to do so. Therefore the conviction under S. 498 could not be upheld. A.I.R. 1946 Cal. 493=47 Cr. L. J. 325=223 Ind. Cas. 44.

—S. 498.

Woman living with husband's father—Husband living away on service—Woman going temporarily to her father's house in another village and enticed away by accused from there—Husband's father, held person having care of woman on her husband's behalf—Complaint by him held proper. A.I.R. 1942 Oudh 434=1942 O.W.N. 431=42 Cr.L.J. 643=1942 A.W.R. 274 (2)=201 Ind. Cas. 146.

—S. 498—Married woman discarded by husband living with her father and brother, not having care of her on behalf of her husband—Her elopement—Offence under S. 498, if made out—Criminal P.C., Ss. 199, 177—Complaint by brother.

It is an essential ingredient of the offence under S. 498, Penal Code, that the person concerned shall have been taken or enticed from a person having the care of her on behalf of the husband. Where therefore the accused is alleged to have enticed a married woman living with her father and brother having been discarded by her husband and the father and brother were taking care of her on their own account and not on behalf of her husband, a conviction under S. 498 cannot be sustained. In such a case, a complaint by the brother is not competent under S. 199 Criminal P.C., as the brother is acting on his own behalf and not under the authority of her husband. A.I.R. 1937 Bom. 186=39 Bom. L.R. 61=I. L. R. (1937) Bom. 244=38 Cr. L.J. 769=169 Ind. Cas. 526.

—Ss. 498 and 497—Complaint by brother and no necessary averments—Conviction, if proper.

For a conviction under S. 497 or S. 498 I.P.C. a complaint by the husband is an essential requirement which cannot be dispensed with. If a criminal charge of adultery is to be preferred, a formal complaint of that offence must be instituted in the manner provided by law, and if it is not, the requirements of S. 199, Criminal P. C., will not have been satisfied. In the absence of a legal complaint for the offence of adultery and in the absence of necessary averments, no offence under S. 497 can be alleged against the accused. A.I.R. 1937 Bom. 186=39 Bom. L. R. 61=I. L. R. (1937) Bom. 244=38 Cr.L.J. 769=169 Ind. Cas. 526.

—S. 498—Absence of complaint as required by S. 199, Criminal P. C.—Charge under S. 498 added—Question, if charge was proper—Whether one of law—Charge under S. 498 without complaint—Jurisdiction to frame—Trial, validity of.

Where a case was committed to the Sessions Court under Ss. 366, 420 and 120-B, I. P. C., but though there had been no complaint by any person competent under S. 199, Criminal P. C., to make one, the Court added a charge under S. 498, I. P. C., and the charges under Ss. 366 and 498 being tried by jury, a verdict of guilty under S. 498 was brought against some of the accused:

Held, that whether the charge under S. 498, I. P. C., was or was not proper was a question of law; and under S. 298, Criminal P. C., it was the Judge's plain duty to decide that question himself instead of leaving it to the jury and that if the Judge was not really satisfied that the additional charge was not proper, there was no reason whatsoever why he should have treated it as question of fact and left it for the jury to deal with:

Held, also that the charge under S. 498 was framed and tried without any jurisdiction at all, having regard to the terms of S. 199, Criminal P. C., and that all the proceedings that followed upon that charge were equally without jurisdiction. A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 357=

—Ss. 498, 366—Complaint by husband under S. 366—Conviction under S. 498—Jurisdiction and test in such cases.

Where a complaint has been filed by a husband, it is a question of construction in each case as to whether it amounts to a complaint of an offence under S. 498. If a petition contains an allegation of facts which, if proved by evidence, would constitute an offence under S. 498, such petition is clearly a complaint by the husband of an offence under S. 498, for which he desires the accused named by him to be prosecuted. The fact that there are other allegations in the petition which, by themselves or in conjunction with those relating to an offence under S. 498, constitute a more serious offence, such as one under S. 366, will not make the complaint any the less a complaint under S. 498. The essence of the matter in such cases is that the husband complains of his wife being taken or enticed away from him, the knowledge and intention of the person accused being as required by the section. If force or fraud is also alleged or if the woman is alleged to be below a certain age, such additional facts may render the accused liable for prosecution for other offences in addition to an offence under S. 498 or in place of it. If such additional facts are not established by evidence but the evidence brings home to the accused an offence under S. 498, the Court cannot refuse to convict the accused merely on the ground that the initial complaint did not mention S. 498 or that it purported to be in respect of an offence under S. 366. The test which may be applied in a case like this is whether if the allegation of the use of force or fraud, misappropriation of ornaments and of the woman's age is eliminated, the remaining part of the complaint fulfils all the requirements of a "complaint" under S. 498. A.I.R. 1934 All. 472=36 Cr.L.J. 404=153 Ind. Cas. 697.

—S. 498—Complaint by father—Evidence recorded—Statement by husband that complaint filed with his consent—Conviction—Conviction under S. 498, Penal Code—If can be converted into one under S. 366-A or S. 373, Penal Code.

Complaint under S. 498, Penal Code, was filed by the father of the abducted girl. After all the evidence was recorded, the husband of the girl stated that the complaint was filed with his consent:

Held, that the conviction under S. 498 was bad in law in that the complaint and the evidence on which the petitioner was convicted had been made by a person who was not authorized in law to make such a complaint at all.

Held further that the High Court cannot alter a conviction on a charge under S. 498, Penal Code only to a conviction under S. 366-A or S. 373, Penal Code as these offences are major offences. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 122=36 Cr.L.J. 423=153 Ind. Cas. 721.

—Ss. 498, 366-A—Report under S. 366-A—Conviction under S. 498.

The accused were prosecuted on a report under S. 366-A, I. P. C. They were convicted under S. 498, though there was no complaint by the husband of the woman, as required by S. 199, Criminal P. C.,

Held, that the conviction was bad and that the accused should be acquitted. A.I.R. 1933 All. 626 = 1933 A.L.J. 701 = 34 Cr.L.J. 1227 = 55 All. 871 = 145 Ind. Cas. 922.

—S. 498—Cr. P. C., 1898, Ss. 199, 537—Complaint by person other than husband of girl—Absence of leave of Court—Jurisdiction—Irregularity.

Section 199, Criminal P. C., was provided in order to discourage prosecutions under S. 498, Penal Code, unless the husband (or in his absence some one on his behalf) feels himself to be injured sufficiently to induce him to institute proceedings. In the absence of evidence to show that leave was obtained from Court under S. 199 allowing some one else to make a complaint under S. 498, in the absence of the girl's husband, the Court has no jurisdiction to try the case. The irregularity cannot be cured by S. 537, Criminal P. C. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 880 = 34 Cr.L.J. 1092 = 38 C.W.N. 1113 = 145 Ind. Cas. 874 (2) (D.B.).

—S. 498—Complaint by second husband—Validity of marriage—Proof.

Where the husband of a woman absolutely abandons her, and she marries another man by a marriage which is recognised as valid among the people to which the parties belong, the second husband of the woman has full authority to institute complaints for enticing the woman away. 1930 Cr.C. 1137 = A.I.R. 1930 All. 834.

—Ss. 498 and 366—Adultery—Deposition of the husband as witness.

The wish in a deposition of the husband to prosecute the accused during the trial at the instance of Police amounts to a complaint, and the accused may be convicted. 38 All. 276 = 14 A.L.J. 233 = 17 Cr.L.J. 72 = 32 Ind. Cas. 664.

—S. 498—No complaint by husband or guardian—If conviction under S. 498, sustainable.

In the absence of a complaint to a Magistrate by the husband or guardian, a conviction under S. 498 is not sustainable. 4 P.R. 1888; 30 C. 910, Foll. 32 P.R. 1910, Cr. = 39 P.L.R. 1911 = 12 Cr.L.J. 50 = 8 Ind. Cas. 1160.

—S. 498—Complainant to establish his marital right.

A complainant cannot prosecute another man under S. 498 for enticing away a woman unless he establishes that he (the complainant) is her lawful husband. 22 P.W.R. 1909, Cr. = 12 P.L.R. 1910 = 11 Cr.L.J. 155 = 4 Ind. Cas. 1042.

3. Compounding.

—S. 498—Compounding—Husband not party—Legality.

Under S. 345 the only person who is authorised to compound an offence under S. 498 is the injured husband and hence an order of acquittal based on compromise entered into by any other person is erroneous. 74 Ind. Cas. 444 = 24 Cr. L. J. 780 = A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 330.

—S. 498 — Proceedings after compromise—Ultra vires.

Once a charge under S. 498 has been compounded before an Inspector of Police, and the complaint is withdrawn, proceedings before Magistrate on the complainant's statement that he was forced to enter into a compromise are ultra vires. 22 P.L.R. 1910 = 11 Cr.L.J. 366 = 6 Ind. Cas. 497.

4. Essentials of offence.

—S. 498—Gist of offence under—It must be shown that wife left by reason of act or assistance proceeding from accused.

It is not enough to constitute an offence under S. 498 that the woman left her husband's house or that she was afterwards seen passing along with the accused. It must be shown that she left by reason of any act or assistance proceeding from the accused. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 460 = 41 C.W.N. 931 = 65 C.L.J. 421 = 38 Cr.L.J. 986 = 170 Ind. Cas. 903.

—S. 498—Complainant's wife choosing to leave her husband and live with accused of her own accord—Absence of evidence of concealment or detention—Offence.

Where, in a case under S. 498, Penal Code, it was found that the accused did not take or entice away the complainant's wife whom he knew to be such, but that she of her own accord chose to leave her husband's house and came to stay in the house of the accused and there was no evidence that he concealed or detained her against her will with the intention that she should have illicit intercourse with him;

Held, that the accused could not be held to be guilty under S. 498, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1934 Oudh 258 = 11 O.W.N. 672 = 35 Cr.L.J. 932 = 149 Ind. Cas. 228.

—S. 498—Renunciation of Muhammadanism, whether dissolves marriage—Enticement after renunciation.

A muhammadan marriage is immediately dissolved on one of the parties to that marriage renouncing the faith of Islam and hence where a muhammadan married woman renounces her religion and she is thereafter taken away by the accused, the latter cannot be convicted under S. 498, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1933 All. 433 = 34 Cr. L.J. 869 = 1933 A.L.J. 733 = 145 Ind. Cas. 156.

—S. 498—Offence under — Knowledge that woman was married, necessity of.

Before a conviction can take place under S. 498, Penal Code it must be established that the person accused knew or had reason to believe the person enticed away to be the wife of some other man. A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 194 = 32 Cr.L.J. 1210 = 134 Ind. Cas. 589.

—S. 498—Knowledge of accused that the enticed person is a married woman.

To sustain a conviction under S. 498, I.P.C., there must be evidence that the accused knew that the woman was the wife of another man; mere presumption that he must have known this is not sufficient. 61 Ind. Cas. 652 = 22 Cr. L.J. 412 = 14 M.L.W. 189 = 44 M. 913.

—S. 498—Essentials of offence.

To sustain a conviction under S. 498 it must be proved that the woman had been enticed or taken away from her husband's house and that she was detained for the purpose of illicit intercourse. The mere fact that she was seen outside the accused's house is not sufficient. 21 Cr.L.J. 383=2 U.P.L.R. (All.) 75=55 Ind. Cas. 863.

—S. 498—Enticing away married woman—Connivance.

A conviction under S. 498 is not bad merely because the husband connived at the taking away or concealing of the wife. 54 Ind. Cas. 619. (Pat.).

—S. 498—Remarried widow—Rajputs—Enticing away.

Among Rathis, one of the lowest sub-divisions of Rajputs of the Kangra District, a marriage with a widow is valid. A person abducting a woman, so married, with knowledge of the marriage, is guilty of an offence under S. 498, I.P.C. 10 P.R. 1919, Cr.=20 Cr.L.J. 554=51 Ind. Cas. 842.

—S. 498—Enticing away a discarded wife.

A person who entices away a married woman who had long ago been discarded, is not guilty of an offence under S. 498. 5 P.W.R. 1915 Cr.=129 P.L.R. 1915=16 Cr.L.J. 216=27 Ind. Cas. 840.

—S. 498—Voidable marriage—Sunnies.

A woman is not the wife of a man within S. 498 if their marriage is voidable. Consequently the enticement, etc., of such woman is not indictable under S. 498. A judicial order is not necessary to effect the cancellation of a voidable marriage among sunnies. 19 C. 79, Foll. 33 P.W.R. 1910 Cr.=11 Cr.L.J. 664=8 Ind. Cas. 494.

—S. 498—Enticing married woman—Consent of the woman—Husband deprived of control—Effect of offence.

The offence contemplated by S. 498 is complete if it appears that the accused went away with the woman in such a manner as to deprive her husband of his control over his wife;—the fact that the woman accompanied the accused of her own free will does not diminish the criminality of the act. (1902) 4 Bom.L.R. 435.

5. Evidence and proof.

—S. 498.

In proving an offence in which marriage is an essential ingredient, it is necessary that the fact of the marriage must be strictly proved. 100 Ind. Cas. 236=5 Bur.L.J. 190=28 Cr.L.J. 268.

—S. 498—Proof of marriage—Rule as to—Second marriage—Mere cohabitation—Sufficiency—Recognition by brotherhood and entry in "phant".

No hard and fast rule can be laid down as to what evidence will suffice to prove a valid marriage. In the case of a first marriage proof of ceremonies would generally be necessary. While the same may perhaps be also said of a second marriage, or re-marriage when it is between strangers, it may not be said of a re-marriage between a widow and her husband's brother in the Punjab. Proof of cohabitation as husband and wife for a number of years and its recognition as a valid marriage by the brotherhood would be sufficient proof for the purpose of a criminal case. Entry in the "phant" of the village is another sure proof. 1948 A.W.R. (H.C.) 291=A.I.R. 1949 A. 237=50 Cr. L.J. 359.

—S. 498—Factum of marriage must be proved.

In a criminal case under S. 498, Penal Code, it is necessary for the prosecution to prove the factum of marriage strictly. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 526=42 Cr. L.J. 653=7 B.R. 890=195 Ind. Cas. 126.

—S. 498.

For conviction under S. 498, marriage must be strictly proved, and it is not permissible to base the conviction on the presumption of marriage arising from cohabitation for a number of years. A.I.R. 1934 Sind 10=27 S.L.R. 482=35 Cr. L.J. 816=148 Ind. Cas. 753.

—S. 498—Proof of marriage, necessity of—Presumption.

In a case under S. 498, there must be proof that the marriage of the girl had been celebrated strictly in accordance with the requirements of custom and law applicable to the parties. Mere presumption that the accused must have known that the woman was married without proof of such knowledge is not enough. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 880=38 C.W.N. 113=34 Cr.L.J. 1092=145 Ind. Cas. 874 (2).

—S. 498—Conviction—Marriage not proved but presumed from cohabitation—Legality.

In dealing with offences under S. 498, marriage must be strictly proved. There may arise a presumption that by co-habitation for a period of 13 years marriage took place, but persons cannot be convicted on a presumption of that kind. 119 Ind. Cas. 332=30 P.L.R. 643=30 Cr.L.J. 1051=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 230.

—S. 498—Proof of marriage—Evidence that husband put vermilion on woman's forehead and feast—If sufficient.

A complaint under S. 498 was made by a low caste Hindu. He alleged that he had married the woman enticed away in nika form. The only evidence of marriage that was adduced was that the complainant put vermilion on the forehead of the woman and that there was a feast of the caste people.

Held, that the evidence of marriage was legally insufficient for a conviction under S. 498. 1930 Cr.C. 639=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 447.

—S. 498—Admission of accused—If sufficient.

In a case of abduction under S. 498 the marriage ought to be proved like any other essential fact in the case. The mere admission of the accused that the woman abducted is the lawful wife of the complainant, though corroborated by the evidence of the woman is not enough to prove the marriage. 5 Cal. 566; 3 O.C. 342 and 5 All. 233, Foll. 89 Ind. Cas. 464=2 O.W.N. 586=26 Cr.L.J. 1376=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh. 701.

—S. 498—Evidence of marriage—Statement of complainant—Strict proof.

Where in the case of a conviction under S. 498, there was no better evidence of marriage between the complainant and the woman than the mere statement of the complainant that he was married to her, the conviction could not be sustained. 18 A.L.J. 411=21 Cr.L.J. 368=2 U.P.L.R. (All.) 87=55 Ind. Cas. 736.

—S. 498—Essentials—Proof of marriage necessary.

In a case under S. 498, the fact and the legality of a marriage are material elements and must be strictly proved; but no particular way of proof is necessary. 36 All. 1=11 A.L.J. 994=15 Cr.L.J. 78=22 Ind. Cas. 430.

—S. 498—Enticing away—Married woman—Proof of marriage—Statement of complainant.

The two essentials of an offence under S. 498 are, that the woman enticed away is the wife of the complainant and that the fact of marriage is known to the accused. The mere statement of the complainant that the woman is his wife is not sufficient evidence of marriage. 20 A. 166, 2 S.L.R. 22, Foll. 5 S.L.R. 270=13 Cr.L.J. 541=15 Ind. Cas. 813.

—S. 498—Voidable marriage—Marriage voidable being performed during the girl's minority—Non-consummation of marriage after she had attained puberty—Inference as to option to avoid marriage.

A girl whose marriage is voidable having been performed during her minority cannot be considered to have exercised the option and ceased to be the wife of her husband unless option has been exercised before the enticement and the mere fact that the marriage was not consummated after she had attained puberty and she had actually left her husband is not sufficient to infer that she exercised the option. 110 Ind. Cas. 794=11 A.I.Cr.R. 35=29 Cr.L.J. 762=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 898.

—S. 498—Knowledge of marriage—Circumstances justifying presumption.

A person charged under S. 498 who lives in a neighbouring village and belongs to the same brotherhood as that of the girl who is alleged to have been enticed by him must be presumed to have the necessary knowledge that she is the lawful wife of her husband. 110 Ind. Cas. 794=11 A.I.Cr.R. 35=29 Cr.L.J. 762=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 898.

—S. 498—Girl living in the same house as accused—If enough to prove offence.

The mere fact that the girl is living in the same house with the accused and his relatives does not prove that she was enticed away by any or all of them. A.I.R. 1934 Lah. 86=35 Cr.L.J. 1032=149 Ind. Cas. 1106 (1).

—S. 498—Absence of proof of kidnapping or abduction or of knowledge of accused that girl was married—No proof of illicit intercourse—Conviction.

Where there is no proof that the accused kidnapped or abducted a girl or that he detained her knowing that she was a married girl and it is not satisfactorily proved that he had or intended to have illicit intercourse with her, a conviction under S. 498, Penal Code, is not justifiable. (1933) 146 Ind. Cas. 40=10 O.W.N. 833=34 Cr.L.J. 1196.

—S. 498—Evidence to support conviction—No cross examination.

Evidence of complainant and his wife even if not subjected to cross examination by the accused is sufficient to warrant a conviction under S. 498. 14 N.L.R. 28=18 Cr.L.J. 1016=42 Ind. Cas. 760.

6. Intention.

—S. 498—There must be abduction with intention of illicit sexual intercourse.

Where it is not established beyond all reasonable doubt that the woman was abducted from the custody of her husband for the purposes of carrying on sexual intercourse with her, conviction under S. 498, I.P.C., cannot be had. (1937) 172 Ind. Cas. 799=39 P.L.R. 191=39 Cr.L.J. 195.

—S. 498.

Married girl going away with real uncle. Intention necessary to constitute offence under S. 498 not proved—Conviction set aside. (1936) 38 P.L.R. 570.

—S. 498—Person assisting girl to leave house—Staying together at night at another house.

Where the accused not only provided the means by which the girl got away from her relation's house, namely the boat but he brought it to the house and himself went away with the girl in the boat from the house and both of them stayed in another house at night:

Held, that he "took" the girl away within the meaning of the section. The fact that the accused and the girl stayed together at night at a relation's house is sufficient to show that there was criminal intent within the meaning of the section. A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 677=39 C.W.N. 1280=37 Cr.L.J. 28=159 Ind. Cas. 140.

—S. 498—Offence under.

A person who entices away a married woman to dispose of her in marriage always commits an offence under S. 498, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 194=32 Cr.L.J. 1210=134 Ind. Cas. 589.

—S. 498—Enticing away a married woman.

A person who entices away a married woman from her husband's house with intent that he may dispose of her in marriage to some one else commits an offence under S. 498. 13 A.L.J. 251=16 Cr.L.J. 315=28 Ind. Cas. 651.

—S. 498—Enticing away married woman—Intention.

For a conviction under S. 498, I.P.C., there must be an intention that the woman should leave her husband's control without any definite intention that she should return to him or an intention that she should remain away indefinitely. 145 P.L.R. 1917=19 Cr.L.J. 441=44 Ind. Cas. 969.

7. Interpretation.

- (a) "Takes or entices away"
- (b) "Detains"
- (c) "Such woman".

7 (a). Interpretation—"Takes or entices away".

—S. 498—"Takes away".

In order that a person should be made liable for an offence under S. 498, I. P. Code, it is not necessary that there should be any enticement. All that is necessary is that if any person "takes away" another man's wife with the intention that she may have illicit intercourse with him, then the offence is completed. Taking away implies that there must be some influence operating on the woman, or co-operating with her inclination at the time the final step was taken which caused a severance of the woman from her husband, for the purpose of causing such step to be taken. 1949 M.W.N. 278=62 L.W. 400=A.I.R. 1950 Mad. 13=51 Cr.L.J. 228=3 A.I. Cr.D. 652=(1949) 1 M.L.J. 610.

—S. 498—"Taking away"—Physical or moral influence is necessary.

To bring S. 498, Penal Code, into operation there must be some influence operating on the woman, or co-operating with her inclination at the time the final step is taken which causes a severance of the woman from her husband for the purpose of causing such step to be taken. A.I.R. 1943 Bom. 179=45 Bom. L.R. 295=44 Cr.L.J. 534=207 Ind. Cas. 225.

—S. 498—"Taking", whether means enticing or taking by force.

There is no definition in the Code of the word "taking". It apparently is intended to mean something different from "enticing". It cannot mean "taking by force," because this would amount to abduction. A case under S. 498, I.P.C., is sufficiently established, if it can be shown that the accused personally and actively assisted the wife to get away from her husband's house or from the custody of any person who was taking care of her on behalf of the husband. Of course, the "taking" must be with the "intention" stated in the section. A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 677=39 C.W.N. 1280=37 Cr. L.J. 28=159 Ind. Cas. 140.

—Ss. 498, 497—Held, elopement was a joint adventure and there was no enticement.

Where a married woman discarded by her husband and living with her father and brother fell in love with her next-door neighbour and they eloped to another place:

Held, that the elopement was a joint adventure in which the motive force was mutual affection, and there was no enticement within the meaning of S. 498. A.I.R. 1937 Bom. 186=1 L.R. (1937) Bom. 244=39 Bom. L.R. 61=38 Cr.L.J. 769=169 Ind. Cas. 526.

—S. 498—Girl taken away from mother's care with mother's consent.

Where the accused takes away a girl from the care of her mother with her mother's consent, it is not taking or enticing away within the meaning of S. 498, Penal Code. (1936) 165 Ind. Cas. 497=39 C.W.N. 1055=37 Cr.L.J. 1155.

—S. 498—The fact that girl went of her free will, whether material.

In cases under S. 498, Penal code the fact that the girl went away of her own accord is immaterial. A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 677=39 C.W.N. 1280=37 Cr.L.J. 28=159 Ind. Cas. 140.

—S. 498—Consent of woman, if material—Evidence of taking or enticing away of the woman by accused—Necessity of—"Benefit of doubt."

In cases under S. 498, Penal Code, consent is immaterial. But it is essential to see that there is evidence that the accused took or enticed away the woman within the meaning of the section. In such cases, the mere fact that the wife went away of her own accord from her husband's house, and was accompanied a part of the way by the accused, is not sufficient to show that the accused took or enticed the woman away within the meaning of the section. There must be some tangible evidence of taking or enticing. When there is considerable doubt in the case, the benefit of that doubt ought to be given to the accused. A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 345=37 Cr. L.J. 73=159 Ind. Cas. 314.

—S. 498—Enticement, to be punishable, must be from control of husband.

The enticement of the wife must be from the control of the husband before the enticer can be convicted under S. 498.

Where it was not proved that there was any inducement of seduction by the accused at the initial stage and the wife, feeling a preferential fondness for the accused, drove her husband out of her house and permitted the accused to live with her:

Held, that he could not be held to have detained her in the sense in which the word is used in S. 498. A.I.R. 1934 Sind 10=35 Cr. L.J. 816=27 S.L.R. 482=148 Ind. Cas. 753.

7 (b). Interpretation—"Detains".

—S. 498—"Detain"—Meaning of—Wedded wife staying away from her husband with another out of her own free will—If detention by the other person.

The word "detain" means to keep back and consequently implies some positive act on the part of the person accused of detaining. It is not necessary that detention should be brought about by physical restraint. It may be brought about even by blandishments and allurements, something akin to enticement mentioned in the first part of S. 498, I. P. Code. There must be either physical restraint or some influence exercised by the accused on the mind of the woman inducing her to keep away from her husband. But where a woman of her own free will desires to keep away from her husband and to stay with the accused, there can be no detention of her by the accused in any sense of that word. 1948 A.W.R. (H. C.) 205=1948 A.L.J. 486=A.I.R. 1949 All. 23=50 Cr. L.J. 82.

—S. 498—"Detains" meaning explained.

The word "detains" in S. 498, Penal Code, means "keeps back." It need not necessarily be by physical force; it may be by persuasion or, by allurement.

and blandishment. But the use of the word does require that there should be something in the nature of control or influence which can properly be described as a keeping back of the woman. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 477 = I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 93=44 C.W.N. 702=41 Cr. L.J. 954=190 Ind. Cas. 632.

—S. 498—Man picking up woman in brothel and taking her to his house, if detains her.

It would obviously be extremely difficult to prove that a man who picks a woman up in a brothel and takes her to his house can be said to have detained her in any sense of the term. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 477 = I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 93=44 C.W.N. 702=41 Cr. L.J. 954=190 Ind. Cas. 632.

—S. 498—Word 'detains,' meaning of.

The word 'detains,' in S. 498, Penal Code, clearly implies some act on the part of the accused by which the woman's movements are restrained and this again implies unwillingness on her part. 'Detention' cannot include persuasion by means of blandishment or similar inducements, which would leave the woman free to go if she wished. The word 'detains' cannot be reasonably construed as having reference to the husband. A.I.R. 1939 Lah. 295 = I.L.R. (1939) Lah. 148=41 P.L.R. 487=40 Cr. L.J. 760=183 Ind. Cas. 318.

—S. 498—'Detention'—Married woman found living in accused's house and sexual intercourse taking place — Persuasion amounting to detention.

Providing shelter for a married woman is such an inducement as to amount to detention within the meaning of S. 498, Penal Code.

Where a married woman was found in the house of the accused where she was living for sometime and sexual intercourse between them had taken place:

Held, that there was persuasion amounting to detention within the meaning of S. 498. A.I.R. 1938 Pat. 432=39 Cr. L.J. 952=19 P.L.T. 795=5 B.R. 14=177 Ind. Cas. 706.

—S. 498—'Detains,' meaning of—Woman eloping and living with accused of her own will—'Keeping back,' if constituted.

The word 'detains' in S. 498, Penal Code, has its ordinary meaning of 'keeping back.' There may be various ways of keeping back. It need not necessarily be by physical force, but the use of the word does require that there should be something in the nature of control or influence which can properly be described as a keeping back of the woman, and it cannot properly be said that a man detains a woman if she has no desire to leave and on the contrary wishes to stay with him. Where, therefore, a married woman elopes with the accused, lives with him willingly and is not willing to leave him and is also a free agent, there is no 'keeping back' within S. 498. A.I.R. 1937 Bom. 186=39 Bom. L.R. 61 = I.L.R. (1937) Bom. 244=38 Cr. L.J. 769=169 Ind. Cas. 526.

—S. 498—Accused inducing wife of complainant to leave her husband—Previous long-standing intrigue—Providing her with shelter, whether inducement.

Where the accused who carried on an intrigue with the wife of the complainant for a number of years, entices her away one day and keeps her with him in another town by providing her with a shelter, his providing a shelter for her is an inducement to her to withhold herself from her husband. This conduct on his part would be sufficient to bring him within the purview of S. 498, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1937 Lah. 617=38 Cr. L.J. 576=39 P.L.R. 488=168 Ind. Cas. 607.

—S. 498—"Detain," meaning of—Enticement and concealment.

"Detain" in S. 498, Penal Code, has to be interpreted eiusdem generis with enticement and concealment. There must be evidence to show that the accused did something which had the effect of preventing the woman from returning to her husband. A.I.R. 1936 Cal. 450=40 C.W.N. 996=38 Cr. L.J. 180 (2) = I.L.R. (1937) 1 Cal. 166=67 C. L.J. 141=166 Ind. Cas. 290 (2).

—S. 498—'Conceals or detains' if include enticing or inducing wife to withhold or conceal herself from her husband—Consent of wife.

Per Rupchand, A. J. C.—Words "conceals or detains" in S. 498, Penal Code, must be taken to extend to the enticing or inducing a wife to withhold or conceal herself from her husband, and assisting her to do so as well as to physical restraint or prevention of will or action.

The mere fact that the wife may have willingly gone to the accused or that she consented to live with him would not be sufficient to take the case out of the provisions of the section. A.I.R. 1934 Sind 72=28 Sind L.R. 140=35 Cr. L.J. 1254=151 Ind. Cas. 175.

—S. 498—'Detains,' meaning of—Woman allowed by accused to go wherever she liked—Offence, if made out.

The word 'detains' in S. 498, Penal Code means by derivation and according to the ordinary use of language, "keeps back." But there may be various ways of keeping back. It need not necessarily be by physical force; it may be by persuasion, or by allurements and blandishment. But the use of the word does require that there should be something in the nature of control or influence which can properly be described as a keeping back of the woman. Proof of some kind of persuasion is necessary to constitute detention.

The wife of the complainant, during the absence of the complainant from home, was taken away by a brother of hers and he married her by natra marriage to the accused and there after she lived with the accused as his wife. The accused was charged under S. 493, Penal Code:

Held, that as the woman was not prevented from going any where she liked, the accused was not guilty of the offence with which he was charged, viz., detention of the woman under S. 498. A.I.R. 1933 Bom. 489=35 Bom. L.R. 1046=35 Cr. L.J. 376=58 Bom. 88=147 Ind. Cas. 43.

—S. 498—Accused detaining complainant's wife for illicit intercourse—Woman refusing to go to her husband—Offence.

Where the accused at first detained the complainant's wife in his house with a view to having illicit intercourse with her, and having been seduced by the accused she felt some natural reluctance to return to her husband and declined to do so;

Held, that the accused was rightly convicted of an offence under S. 498, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1933 Oudh 256=34 Cr. L. J. 729=10 O.W.N. 784=144 Ind. Cas. 213.

—S. 498—Willingness of woman—Detention—No offence.

There can be no detention where a woman is living with a man of her own free will and refuses to go back with her husband and the person with whom she thus lives is not guilty of an offence under S. 498, I.P.C., as the chief element which constitute the offence under the section is wanting. 18 A.L.J. 311, Foll. 107 Ind. Cas. 689=26 A.L.J. 403=9 A.I.Cr.R. 106=9 L.R.A.Cr. 15=29 Cr. L. J. 273=A.I.R. 1928 All. 194.

—S. 498—"Detained"—Meaning.

"To detain" means to keep back from some body or to restrain. Where a woman had left her husband, and is living with another to the knowledge of her husband for a period of six years, and the husband takes no steps to get her back, it cannot be said that she is "detained" by the other within S. 498. 103 Ind. Cas. 559=1 L.C. 235=28 Cr. L. J. 703=8 A.I.Cr.R. 415=A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 318.

—S. 498—No offence.

Where a girl of 16 years travelled with the accused from place to place and there was no evidence that she was unwilling to stay with them and she stayed with them for nearly six months:

Held, that there was no detention. 90 Ind. Cas. 156=7 L. L. J. 217=26 P.L.R. 517=26 Cr. L. J. 1500=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 406.

—S. 498—Detention—Depriving husband of control of wife.

To constitute an offence under S. 498, it is not necessary that the woman should be physically restrained or that she should be actively prevented from the exercise of her free will or action. The gravamen of the offence consist in depriving the husband of his proper control over his wife for the purposes specified in S. 498, and a detention occasioning such deprivation may be brought about by means other than mere physical constraint, e.g. even by the influence of allurements and persuasions. 4 M.H.C.R. 20, Foll. 69 Ind. Cas. 458=23 Cr. L. J. 730=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 45.

—S. 498—Detention—Woman living of her own free will—Refusal to go back to husband.

Where the woman was living with the accused of her own free will, and had no desire to return to the husband and when the husband went to the accused's house and claimed her, she deliberately turned her back on him and walked into the house and the accused did not then make her over to the husband; Held, that the accused could not be convicted of detaining her. 18 A.L.J. 311=56 Ind. Cas. 209.

—S. 498—Detention—Criminal intent.

A man detains a woman within S. 498, if she is kept under his protection in a house provided by him with the knowledge and intention specified in the section. 36 P.W.R. 1913 Cr. =319 P.L.R. 1913=14 Cr. L. J. 595=21 Ind. 467.

7 (c). Interpretation—"Such woman."

—S. 498—"Any such woman" meaning of.

The words "any such woman" in S. 498, I.P.C. refer to woman "who is and whom he knows or has reason to believe to be the wife of any other man." The words "whoever takes or entices away" cannot possibly be interpreted as an adjective describing the woman in question. A.I.R. 1940 Cal. 477=I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 93=44 C.W.N. 702=41 Cr. L. J. 954=190 Ind. Cas. 632.

—S. 498—"Such woman."

The words "such woman" in S. 498, I. P. C. do not mean such a woman as has been so enticed as mentioned in that section, but mean such woman whom the accused knows or has reason to believe to be the wife of any other man. A.I.R. 1937 All. 353=1937 A.W.R. 203=1937 A.L.J. 547=38 Cr. L. J. 621=168 Ind. Cas. 833.

8. Jurisdiction to try.

—S. 498—Accused enticing married woman in Madras and taking her to Bombay—Jurisdiction—Offence, if continuing offence.

The 'taking' under S. 498 I.P.C. is not a continuing offence but is complete as soon as the person concerned is out of the keeping or control of the guardian. The same applies to enticing also. No doubt enticing in itself may be a continuous process, but enticing from a particular person cannot be so, i.e., it cannot continue after that person's control has ceased. The word 'ordinarily' in S. 177 means "except where provided otherwise in the Code." Consequently, where the accused entices and takes a married woman in Madras and brings her to Bombay, the Magistrate in Bombay has no jurisdiction to try the offence. A.I.R. 1937 Bom. 186=39 Bom. L.R. 61=I.L.R. (1937) Bom. 244=38 Cr. L. J. 769=169 Ind. Cas. 526.

9. Procedure.

—S. 498—Accused women—Summons should be issued in first instance.

Where in a case under S. 498, I.P.C., the accused are women, the Magistrate should ordinarily, in the first instance, issue summons instead of warrants upon all the women, and whether their attendance could be dispensed with, should also be considered. A.I.R. 1939 Sind 342=41 Cr. L. J. 310=I.L.R. (1940) Kar. 110=186 Ind. Cas. 391.

—Ss. 498, 366, and 376.

A person who is prosecuted under Ss. 366 and 376 cannot be held to be guilty of having committed an offence under S. 498, if the offences with which he was charged are not established. A.I.R. 1940 All. 201=1940 A.L.J. 97=41 Cr. L. J. 499=1940 A.W.R. 124=187 Ind. Cas. 690.

—S. 498—Complaint and charge implicating one person—Such person acquitted—Appellate Court finding that another person detained girl in his house—Such person, if can be convicted.

Where the complaint and the charge state that the girl was enticed away from her husband for the purposes of illicit intercourse with the accused A, and accused A has been acquitted, another person who was found by the Appellate Court to have detained the girl at his own house cannot be convicted on a charge which he was not called upon to meet. A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 123 = 19 N.L.J. 158 = 38 Cr.L.J. 433 = 167 Ind. Cas. 569.

—S. 498—Charge—Accused not charged with knowledge of marriage—Effect.

Where in a prosecution under S. 498, Indian Penal Code, the accused were not charged with knowledge or reason to believe that the abducted woman was a married woman and the accused knew what they were charged with and what it was necessary for the prosecution to prove:

Held, that this fact by itself would not affect the case. 101 Ind. Cas. 451 = 28 Cr.L.J. 419 = A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 432.

—S. 498—Abduction and detention—Acquittal for abduction—If bar to trial for detention.

Where a woman has been abducted and detained, an acquittal on a charge of abduction is no bar to the trial of a charge of detention. 74 Ind. Cas. 444 = 24 Cr.L.J. 780 = A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 330.

—S. 498—Nature of offence—Detention—Continuing offence—Previous acquittal—If bar to subsequent prosecution.

Detention of a married woman is a continuing offence and a person committing such an offence is always liable to prosecution except for any period in respect of which he has been found innocent, and therefore a previous acquittal for detention on one occasion does not bar a subsequent trial under S. 403 of Cr. P. C. 73 Ind. Cas. 524 = 4 L.L.J. 535 = A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 186.

10. Sentence.

—S. 498—Abducted woman not returned to complainant—Sentence.

Where the accused, on being found guilty of an offence under S. 498, I. P. C., was sentenced to six months' rigorous imprisonment and it appeared that though the accused had promised to return the complainant's wife to the complainant, he had not done so.

Held, that the sentence was not excessive and that the imprisonment for one month and twelve days which he had undergone could not be regarded as adequate for the aggravated offence. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 932 = 35 Cr.L.J. 16 = 34 P.L.R. 966 (2) = 146 Ind. Cas. 444.

—S. 498—Sentence.

When the woman is an active abettor in her own abduction, the sentence should be a light one. 99 Ind. Cas. 84 = 27 P.L.R. 642 = 28 Cr.L.J. 52 = A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 91.

—S. 498—Wife neglected by husband, both not being on good terms—Heavy sentence—If necessary.

Where in a case under S. 498 the husband and wife were not on good terms and the wife had a sheer contempt for her husband who did not care much about her and took no action on the commission of the offence till the lapse of many months, it is not necessary to inflict a heavy punishment on the accused. 91 Ind. Cas. 1008 = 26 P.L.R. 429 = 27 Cr.L.J. 192 = A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 176.

—S. 498—Enticing away married woman—Woman abettor—Sentence.

A light sentence is enough where the abducted woman is an active abettor. 20 P.W.R. 1914 Cr. = 123 P.L.R. 1914 = 15 Cr.L.J. 524 = 24 Ind. Cas. 836.

—S. 498—Woman of bad character—Husband of immature age—Proper punishment—Value of first report to police.

Where a woman of undoubted bad character and married to an immature boy is abducted, and detained not against her wishes the accused should be awarded, a lenient punishment. 29 P.W.R. 1911 Cr. = 224 P.L.R. 1911 = 12 Cr.L.J. 500 = 12 Ind. Cas. 220.

—S. 498—Woman going to accused of her own accord—Sentence.

Where the accused is convicted of an offence under S. 498 and the woman not being on good terms with her husband is found to have gone to accused of her own accord, a sentence of one year's rigorous imprisonment is too severe. 33 P.L.R. 1910 = 11 Cr.L.J. 597 = 8 Ind. Cas. 226.

11. Miscellaneous.

—S. 498—Death of husband pending case—Abatement of prosecution.

S. 89 of the Probate and Administration Act has no application to a criminal prosecution. (44 M. 417 Foll.) And therefore criminal prosecution under S. 498 I.P.C., cannot abate merely on account of the death of the injured party, i. e., the husband. 71 Ind. Cas. 77 = 4 Lah. 7 = 24 Cr.L.J. 29 = A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 72.

—S. 498—Enticing away married woman—Khatiks—Low class Sudras—Divorce.

Among Khatiks, who are low class Sudras, a divorce can be carried out by a written deed. They do not follow strict Hindu Law. 181 P.L.R. 1914 = 31 P.W.R. 1914 Cr. = 15 Cr.L.J. 539 = 24 Ind. Cas. 947.

—S. 498—Enticing away married woman—Validity of marriage—Illegitimacy.

Illegitimacy of the female is no disqualification for marriage under the Hindu Law and a person can be convicted under S. 498 if he entices away such a woman after marriage. 34 All. 589 = 10 A.L.J. 82 = 13 Cr.L.J. 705 = 16 Ind. Cas. 513.

—S. 498—Jhanjara marriages in the Kangra district are not invalid—Cr.P.C., S. 197.

Held, that a strong proof of a custom would be required to justify a person after contracting a Jhanjara marriage with his brother's widow to divorce her and sell her to an outsider. The purchaser is not competent to bring a complaint under S. 498. 12 P.L.R. 1911 = 141 P.W.R. 1910 = 8 Ind. Cas. 814.

1. Civil and Criminal Proceedings.*—Ss. 499 and 500—Civil and Criminal proceedings.

The difference between a criminal case and a civil suit founded upon libel is a difference not merely of form but is one of substance. 115 Ind. Cas. 119=26 A.L.J. 760=A.I.R. 1928 All. 316.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Distinction between civil and criminal liability.

There is a distinction between criminal and civil liability for defamation. Civil liability is to be determined by the principles of English Law, but criminal liability is governed by the provisions of the Penal Code and by those provisions alone. 92 Ind. Cas. 429=24 A.L.J. 329=27 Cr.L.J. 253=7 L.R.A.Cr. 64=A.I.R. 1926 All. 287.

1-A. Counsel's privilege.

See Note 18 (c).

2. Defamation.

- (a) Essentials
- (b) What amounts to
- (c) What does not amount to.

2 (a). Defamation—Essentials.*—Ss. 499 and 500.

A person is not guilty of defamation unless he intends that the words spoken should harm a person or knows or has reason to believe that his words would harm such person. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 9=41 Cr.L.J. 814=6 B.R. 888=190 Ind. Cas. 33.

—S. 499 and 500—Defamation—Essence of offence.

The essence of the offence of defamation is the publication of an imputation with the knowledge that it will harm the reputation of the person defamed. A.I.R. 1935 All. 743=1935 A.W.R. 698=36 Cr.L.J. 816=1935 A.L.J. 676=57 A. 1012=155 Ind. Cas. 638.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Intention to cause harm to reputation.

A person commits defamation within the meaning of S. 499 who publishes any imputation concerning any person intending to harm the reputation of that person whether harm is actually caused or not. A person who publishes defamatory matter against another in a case not covered by any of the exceptions cannot escape punishment on the ground that the reputation of the person attacked was so good or that of the persons attacking so bad, that serious injury to the reputation was not in fact caused. 83 Ind. Cas. 503=22 A.L.J. 639=5 L.R.A.Cr. 119=26 Cr.L.J. 23=A.I.R. 1924 All. 566.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Intention to harm reputation—Actual harm, if necessary.

For an offence under S. 499, I. P. C., there must be an imputation with reference to a person intending to harm the reputation against whom the imputation is made. It is not an essential part of the offence that harm should be caused to the reputation of the person against whom the imputation is made. 59 Ind. Cas. 202=22 Cr.L.J. 58=22 Bom. L.R. 1224.

—S. 499—Essentials.

It is not necessary in order to establish an offence under S. 500 to prove that actual harm was caused. Proof that harm was intended to the complainant's reputation or that the accused knew or had reason to believe that harm will be caused by the imputation is sufficient. 4 Bur. L. T. 48=12 Cr.L.J. 129=9 Ind. Cas. 775.

—Ss. 499, 500—Defamation.

To constitute an offence of defamation it is not necessary that there should be evidence to show that the complainant has been injuriously affected by such alleged defamation, it is sufficient that there should be an intent that the person who makes or publishes any imputation should do so intending to harm or knowing or having reason to believe that such imputation will harm the reputation of such person. (1900) 5 C.W.N. 819=28 Cal. 63.

—Ss. 499, Expl. (4) and 500.

When a complainant makes out a clear case of defamation, Expl. 4, S. 499, does not apply: 9 All. 420, Foll. 108 Ind. Cas. 690=26 A.L.J. 361=9 A.I.Cr.R. 298=9 L.R.A. Cr. 44=29 Cr. L. J. 451=A.I.R. 1928 All. 213.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Defamatory publication—Proof of malice—If necessary.

Malicious publication in the sense of active ill-will against the person defamed is not a necessary constituent of the offence of defamation. 117 Ind. Cas. 355=30 Cr.L.J. 766=26 A.L.J. 509=9 L.R.A.Cr. 104=10 A.I.Cr.R. 145=A.I.R. 1928 All. 321.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Statement made at the instance of a challenge by complainant—No privilege.

A defamatory statement made by accused in the presence of a number of persons though after he had been challenged by the complainant is not privileged. 92 Ind. Cas. 694=7 L.R.A.Cr. 22=27 Cr.L.J. 310=A.I.R. 1926 All. 237.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Finding as to accused's belief about truth or falsity of a statement.

In a case under S. 499 it is necessary to find whether the accused had reason to believe that the defamatory statement made by him was true, though there may be a finding that it was actually untrue. 76 Ind. Cas. 393=25 Cr. L. J. 169=A. I. R. 1924 Nag. 172.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Proof of publication.

For a number of persons to meet and resolve not to associate with a person is not defamation unless the resolution is published; nor does the sending a copy to the person in question make it defamation. 1 Bur. L. J. 39=A.I.R. 1923 Rang. 16.

2 (b). Defamation—What amounts to.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Use of the expression "topsy turvy" in relation to complainant in a newspaper article.

A newspaper editor wrote an article in his newspaper wherein he pointed out the inconsistencies of the complainant's conduct in regard to the question of acceptance of ministerial office. The writer drew and published the inference that the complainant was altogether inconsistent and "topsy turvy".

Held, that the use of such expression as "topsy turvy" was defamatory A.I.R. 1940 Rang. 21=41 Cr.L. J. 271=186 Ind. Cas. 226.

—S. 500.

False report by woman that her modesty was insulted by servants of complainant at his instigation—Offence of defamation is committed. A.I.R. 1936 Nag. 241=38 Cr. L. J. 189=I. L. R. (1937) Nag. 338=166 Ind. Cas. 282.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Statement of accused that complainant was turned out by officer at public auction—Whether defamatory.

Where, at a public auction of Government forest produce, the officer made some statement to the effect that the contractors who did not wish to bid should go away, and the accused said in the presence of witnesses that the complainant was turned out by the officer:

Held, that the words used by the accused 'nikal diya' to the effect that the complainant was turned out, were defamatory, and justification could not be pleaded within the meaning of Excep. 1 to S. 499, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1932 Nag. 158=34 Cr. L. J. 154=141 Ind. Cas. 438.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Imputation of insolvency.

Calling a person discharged bankrupt and gambler convict, in an affidavit, amounts to defamation. 96 Ind.

Cas. 499=27 Cr.L.J. 947=7 A.I.Cr.R. 21=A.I.R 1927 Sind 58.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Imputation of insolvency—Trader.

An imputation of insolvency against a person in the way of his trade is per se defamatory. 98 Ind. Cas. 124=21 S.L.R. 130=27 Cr. L. J. 1276=A.I.R. 1927 Sind. 54.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Proof of actual harm—If necessary.

Publishing an imputation intending to harm, and knowing and having reason to believe that such imputation would harm the complainant's reputation is enough. It is not necessary under S. 499 to prove that actual harm ensued. Davar. J., in 17 Bom. L.R. 82, Dissented from. 28 Cal. 63 and 22 Bom. L.R. 1224, Foll.

Where accused, in a petition to the Commissioner, called the complainant a discharged insolvent and a convicted gambler:

Held, that he was guilty under S. 499. 96 Ind. Cas. 116=27 Cr.L. J. 868=A. I. R. 1926 Sind 258.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Imputation of ingratitude.

It is a question of opinion in each case whether a charge of ingratitude is defamation. 81 Ind. Cas. 129=18 M.L.W. 718=33 M.L.T. 168=1923 M.W.N. 913=25 Cr.L. J. 641=A.I.R. 1224 Mad. 340=45 M.L.J. 754.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Plaintiff's Vakil questioning status of person signing defendant's written statement—Another person coming in and saying that status of the agent was higher than that of plaintiff's Vakil—Offence.

In a suit against a Municipal Board, the plaintiff's pleader questioned the authority of the Acting Secretary of the Board to sign and verify the written statement and added that his pay was only Rs. 10 to Rs. 15 a month. There upon the Chairman of the Board broke in and said that the Secretary's status was higher than the plaintiff's pleader. In a prosecution for defamation:

Held, that the case properly fell within S. 499 of the Penal Code. 63 Ind. Cas. 857=43 All. 497=19 A.L. J. 425=22 Cr.L. J. 715=A.I.R. 1921 All. 30.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Imputation of dishonesty—Defamation.

Where a notice published in a newspaper containing an imputation that the complainant has been dishonest in the management of the affairs of a Company and was trying to conceal that dishonesty by methods that were themselves dishonest, the imputation is defamatory. 97 Ind. Cas. 431=27 Cr. L. J. 1119=A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 17.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Assenting to report of defamatory statement—Offence.

The pleader advised the accused to compromise the civil suit between the accused and another P. Thereupon the accused replied: "There are other reasons for the dispute. I shall disclose them in private." Then a third party who was listening to the conversation, said "There is nothing else. It appears that there is intimacy between P's wife and the accused."

and hence the accused says that P has been trying to trouble the accused." And the pleader warned the accused that he should not give vent to such language since it was defamatory and he would be legally liable.

Held, that under the circumstances, defamation had been committed by the accused. 85 Ind. Cas. 361=26 Cr.L.J. 521=20 M.L.W. 921=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 320=47 M.L.J. 746.

2 (c). Defamation—What does not amount to.

—Ss. 449 and 500.

Imputation of habit of changing opinions to suit circumstances cannot amount to defamation. 1931 M.W.N. 714.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Statement that public servant worked for money for candidate at election.

Statement that Government servant worked for money in favour of a candidate at an election is not charging him with bribery as such work is not in discharge of his official duty. It is on the contrary prohibited. 97 Ind. Cas. 354=6 Pat. 224=7 P.L.T. 608=1926 P.H.C.C. 314=27 Cr.L.J. 1090=A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 499.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Violent expressions in reply to attack—No offence.

Where in reply to a book written by the complainant the accused wrote a book in reply, matters dealt with being highly controversial religious matters, and in expressing his opinion the accused used very violent expressions but did not assail the personal character or the respectability of the complainant:

Held, there was no defamation. 85 Ind. Cas. 144=1924 M.W.N. 768=26 Cr.L.J. 464=A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 898=47 M.L.J. 664.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Moral maxim as to ingratitude on letter to complainant—No defamation.

It is a question of opinion in each case whether a charge of ingratitude is defamation. Where on an envelope sent by the accused to the complainant there is a strongly worded moral maxim against ingratitude but there is nothing in the writing to connect it with the complainant or to show that any people understood it in a defamatory light, it is not defamation.

Where A sends to the complainant a letter stating that he (A) had received it from the accused but A's covering letter is not produced and A was not examined and there was no other evidence that the accused had sent the letter except the complainant's alleged belief, held that there was no evidence sufficient to support complainant's case. 81 Ind. Cas. 129=18 M.L.W. 718=33 M.L.T. 168=1923 M.W.N. 913=26 Cr.L.J. 641=A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 340=45 M.L.J. 754.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Religious head—Order of interdict by, for taking part in all caste dinner—No mala fides proved—No offence.

Where the religious head of the sect issued a temporary interdict against a member of that sect for taking part in an all-caste dinner with pariahs, in order to prevent his taking part in a caste dinner which was to take place very shortly, and there was nothing to show that the Swami was not willing to hear the person aggrieved.

Held, that no offence under Section 499 was committed. 72 Ind. Cas. 165=24 Cr.L.J. 325=17 M.L.W. 500=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 587=45 M.L.J. 116.

3. Defence.

See also: Note 6.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Cross-examination of complainant in regard to his general character and disposition—Permissible limits—Duty of Court in regard to.

While a complainant in a case of defamation is entitled to lead evidence to prove that the imputation must have been made with the intention of harming or with the knowledge or reason to believe that it would harm the reputation of the person concerning whom it is made, the accused is entitled to produce evidence, or put questions in cross-examination of the complainant or his witnesses to rebut it. He can do that by showing that the complainant's reputation was, in view of certain acts of omission or commission already at a low ebb. He is also entitled to show that the complaint was not bona fide. In so doing however he cannot lead evidence of or put questions relating to rumours and suspicions to the same effect as the defamatory matter complained of, or particular facts tending to show the general character and disposition of the complainant. That being so, an important duty rests upon the trial Court to see, on the one hand, that the accused is not prejudiced in any manner by shutting out evidence, which he is entitled to produce, or disallowing questions which he is entitled to put; and on the other hand, that the complainant, who complains of defamation, is not unnecessarily harassed. 1950 A.L.J. 787=1950 A.W.R. 481=51 Cr.L.J. 964=A.I.R. 1950 All. 455.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Accused denying making of statement—He can still prove that allegation is covered by some exception.

Even where the accused has denied having made the statement alleged to be defamatory, he is entitled to adduce evidence to prove that the allegation comes within one of the exceptions to the section. A.I.R. 1946 All. 146=1945 A.L.J. 425=1945 Oudh W. N. (H. C.) 334.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Inconsistent pleas.

It is open to an accused to raise different and inconsistent pleas. Hence, in a case of defamation, the accused can plead that the passage alleged to be defamatory was not defamatory because it bore a different significance or meaning from the one attributed to it by the complainant and also plead that if it was defamatory because it bore the meaning given to it by the prosecution, it was an honest expression of opinion made in good faith and for the good of the public. A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 484=1944 M.W.N. 322=46 Cr.L.J. 71=215 Ind. Cas. 254.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Denial of statement.

Even where the accused deny having made the statements alleged to be defamatory they are entitled to call evidence to prove that the allegations if made by them would bring them within one of the exceptions of the section. 113 Ind. Cas. 816=12 A.I.Cr.R. 144=30 Cr.L.J. 239=A.I.R. 1928 Rang. 167.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Justification can only be under exceptions to S. 499, or privilege.

No man can ever be justified in disseminating defamatory matter unless he can bring himself within one of the exceptions to S. 499, or unless his action is privileged in other respects. When it is held that he did not act in good faith, it must be wrong to say that he was justified in acting as he did. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 394=1938 Rang. L.R. 125=178 Ind. Cas. 592.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Defence—Rumour.

Publication of a defamatory "rumour" is actionable as if the statement were published without qualification and it is no defence to a civil suit a criminal prosecution that the person who published the libel or slander did not originate it, but heard it or received it from another, nor is it a defence that it was a current rumour and the person publishing it bona fide believed it to be true, and, therefore, the editor of a newspaper is as much responsible for a defamatory letter published in his columns as if he had originally penned it. 117 Ind. Cas. 355=30 Cr. L. J. 766=26 A. L. J. 509=9 L.R.A.Cr. 104=10 A. I. Cr. R. 145=A.I.R. 1928 All. 321.

—Ss. 499 and 500—No publication to person mentioned in charge.

A plea that though there was publication of the statement, there was no publication to person mentioned in the charge is a highly technical plea and the defect in the charge is curable under S. 537, Cr. P. Code. 96 Ind. Cas. 499=7 A.I. Cr. R. 21=27 Cr.L. J. 947=A.I.R. 1927 Sind 58.

—Ss. 499 and 500 — Protection under S. 132, Evidence Act.

Ordinarily, it is for the witness to claim protection under S. 132 at the time of giving his self-criminating answer, and to prove it as a defence to a prosecution for defamation. 105 Ind. Cas. 820=28 Cr. L. J. 996=9 A.I.Cr.R. 204=A.I.R. 1928 Nag. 58.

—Ss. 499 and 500—No objection to question—Defamatory statement if protected.

Relevant statements made by a witness on oath or solemn affirmation in a judicial proceeding are not protected by the proviso to S. 132 of the Evidence Act in cases where the witness has not objected to answering the question put to him 93 Ind. Cas. 151=50 Bom. 162=28 Bom. L.R. 1=27 Cr. L. J. 423=A.I.R. 1926 Bom. 141 (F.B.).

4. English Law.

See also: Notes 1 and 18 (c) and (f).

—Ss. 499 and 500.

The question of privilege against the charge of defamation is one which has to be decided by the I. P. C. and by the Evidence Act and not by any maxim, however excellent that maxim may be, which has been universally recognised in England. A. I. R. 1934 Sind, 114=36 Cr. L. J. 78=28 S.L.R. 251=152 Ind. Cas. 346.

—Ss. 499 and 500—English Law—Doctrine of absolute privilege—Applicability.

The English common law doctrine of absolute privilege does not obtain in the mofussil in India. S. 499 is exhaustive and if a defamatory statement does not fall within the specified exceptions it is not privileged. 40 Bom. 162; 40 Cal. 433 and A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 1 (S. B.) Foll. 105 Ind. Cas. 120=28 Cr. L. J. 996=A.I.Cr.R. 204=A.I.R. 1928 Nag. 58.

5. Evidence and proof.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Good faith.

Plea of good faith may be negatived on the ground of recklessness indicative of want of care and caution if the imputation had been made as categorical statements of facts. A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 484=46 Cr.L. J. 71=1944 M.W.N. 322=215 Ind.Cas. 254.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Statement made in cross-examination—Precise question and answer not reduced to writing.

Where the accused, in his prosecution under S. 500 Penal Code, for a defamatory statement made by him in his cross examination in a previous proceeding, does not deny the words used by him when examined under S. 342, Criminal P.C.; it is not material that the precise question and answer had not been reduced to writing. A.I.R. 1913 Pat. 117=21 Pat. 778=9 B.R. 237=44 Cr.L.J. 391=205 Ind. Cas. 531.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Confidential enquiry—Accused asked by Police if had heard anything merely stating what he had heard—Whether defamation—Precise words not before court

Where, in a highly confidential Police inquiry a person being interrogated by the Police merely if he had heard anything, states in good faith merely what he had heard, the statement would not amount to defamation in such circumstances. In any event, it is difficult to base a conviction for a defamation when the precise words uttered by the accused are not before the Court.

Where a charge of defamation is based on an answer to a question, much turns upon the precise form of question and the precise form of the answer. If a Court is not satisfied on these matters, it is impossible to maintain a conviction. It is not sufficient for a Court to come to the conclusion that substantially something or other was said. The Court must be satisfied that certain words were used. A.I.R. 1941 Pat. 9=6 B.R. 888=41 Cr.L.J. 814=190 Ind. Cas. 33.

—Ss. 499 and 500

In construing an agreement (to which an ex-Prime Minister of a province was a party) Courts are not concerned with what the parties intended but with what they did and what they said, what was the meaning of the words actually used; for an agreement does not consist of intentions and mental reservations but rests on the words actually used and in the language actually employed. Therefore, what a party intended or thought is irrelevant in any event. Where he is not able to give the exact words used, Courts can only gather their import from the impressions left in the minds of those present. A.I.R. 1942 Nag. 117=43 Cr.L.J. 856=1912 N.L.J. 503=1.L.R. (1943) Nag. 347=202 Ind. Cas. 543.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Proof of language defamatory of the individual.

Per B. B. Ghose, J.—The words complained of as constituting the offence must be set out in the charge and proved before the accused can be convicted. When there is a denial the evidence in support of the prosecution must be scrutinized. When spoken words are alleged to have constituted the offence, a very slight alternation of a word may give quite a different meaning to them.

Per Buckland, J.—The cardinal rule is that the offence consists in using language which others, knowing the circumstances, would reasonably think to be defamatory of the person complaining of and injured by it. 90 Ind. Cas. 387=29 C.W.N. 904=42 C.L.J. 178=26 Cr.L.J. 1539=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 1121.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Delay—Effect of.

The delay in bringing the complaint is not by itself a ground for acquitting the accused. A.I.R. 1940 Nag. 283=41 Cr.L.J. 585=1940 N.L.J. 410=188 Ind. Cas. 413.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Statement in praise of oneself—Whether implies reflection on others—Duty of complainant in defamation cases—Nature of proof required.

A statement in praise, even exaggerated praise of oneself does not necessarily imply a reflection on some other. In a prosecution for defamation what the prosecution have to establish is not that the accused have indulged in exaggeration, or even falsehood in respect of their own position and importance, but that the matter alleged to be defamatory contains an imputation concerning the complainant calculated to harm his reputation.

Held, on the construction of the letter and advertisement complained of, that they were not defamatory. A.I.R. 1936 All. 143=37 Cr.L.J. 258=1936 A.L.J. 66=1936 A.W.R. 164=160 Ind.Cas. 230.

—Ss. 499 and 500.

Where, in a prosecution for defamation, the occasion of defamatory statements is found to be a privileged one, there should be no conviction even if this exception is not expressly relied on by the accused. A.I.R. 1936 Nag. 119=37 Cr.L.J. 1035=I.L.R. (1936) Nag. 85=164 Ind. Cas. 928.

—Ss. 499 and 500.

The accused, a caste leader signing a Telugu document at a caste meeting, according to which certain honours were not to be accorded to the complainant—Complainant filing complaint for defamation and filing two photographs in evidence, without calling any witness to prove the original document—Libellous passage not stated—Lower Court holding libel proved:

Held, that the unauthenticated photographs were not sufficient to charge the accused and that the accused should have been told what passages were libellous. 1931 M.W.N. 407.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Woman alleged to have illicit pregnancy—Refusal to submit to medical examination—Value of.

It is well settled that in a defamation case based on an allegation that a woman has had illicit pregnancy she cannot be compelled to submit to a medical examination against her consent and her refusal to do so is not evidence against her. 123 Ind. Cas. 841=31 Cr.L.J. 584=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 159.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Impressions of witnesses—Value of.

Per Mukerji, J.—Where the question arises as to whether the words used were intended to harm or had the effect of harming the reputation, the Court must be put in possession not only of the words used but also the context in which they were used, in order to find the intention and the effect of the words. If the Court would accept instead of the words and the context, the "impression left on the minds of the witnesses" it will be yielding its duty to witnesses with the result that the accused person will have no benefit of the opinion of the Court itself. 113 Ind. Cas. 213=51 All. 313=26 A.L.J. 1324=10 L.R.A. Cr. 1=11 A.I.Cr.R. 49=30 Cr.L.J. 101=A.I.R. 1929 All. 1.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Absence of printer in good faith at the time of printing seditious article—Value of.

A declaration made by a person that he is the printer of a newspaper shall be sufficient evidence (unless the contrary is proved) as against that person that he was the printer of every portion of every issue of the newspaper named in the declaration. In order to escape liability the printer must prove that he was not the printer of any issue of the newspaper which may form the subject-matter of legal proceedings. Absence from the place of printing in good faith, and without knowledge of the seditious articles, would be sufficient evidence to the contrary, but not absence in bad faith. When the declared printer of a newspaper pleads absence in good faith, he should prove who was in fact the printer of the newspaper in his absence. 35 Cal. 945, Foll. 113 Ind. Cas. 742=30 Cr. L. J. 201=50 All. 806=26 A.L.J. 746=9 A.I.Cr.R. 533=9 L.R.A.Cr. 81=A.I.R. 1928 All. 400.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Defamation of complainant.

The first step that a complainant must take when commencing a prosecution or a civil suit for defamatory publication is to satisfy the Court that he is the person aimed at by the article. 117 Ind. Cas. 355=30 Cr. L. J. 766=26 A.L.J. 509=9 L.R.A.Cr. 104=10 A.I.Cr.R. 145=A.I.R. 1928 All. 321.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Circumstances of hearers.

Per B. B. Ghose, J.—All circumstances which were apparent to the by-standers at the time the words were uttered should be put in evidence, so as to place the jury as much as possible in the position of such by-standers, and then it is for the jury to say what meaning such words would fairly have conveyed to their minds. We should not construe the words as we would a document of title according to rules of construction of deeds, specially when the words spoken have not been proved with certainty, and we have to decide not merely whether the words are defamatory but also whether the words refer to the complainant. 90 Ind. Cas. 387=29 C.W.N. 904=42 C.L.J. 178=26 Cr. L. J. 1539=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 1121.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Plea of truth—Notes by accused of persons complaining against complainant.

Per B. B. Ghose, J.—At the trial the accused is entitled to prove the notes of statements of complaints against the complainant taken down by him when he went to the locality as evidence of his good faith, and these are relevant on the question although the persons who made the statements are not examined.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Evidence of general repute of the person defamed—Relevancy.

In an action for damages for libel or slander evidence may be given in mitigation of damages to show that the plaintiff had general bad character (8 Q. B. D. 491 and Odgers on Libel and Slander, 5th Edition, page 402). Similarly in criminal prosecution where it is essential, in order to constitute the offence of defamation, that the person who makes or publishes the imputation complained of, should intend to harm, or know or have reason to believe that the imputation will harm the reputation of the person concerning whom it is made or published, the question what reputation the complainant had is relevant. If it is proved that the complainant had a notoriously bad reputation as a bribe-taker, the imputation made as to his having taken a bribe on the particular occasion, even if false, could not damage his reputation as he had done to lose. 73 Ind. Cas. 805=4 Lah. 55=2 P.W.R.Cr. 1923=24 Cr. L. J. 693=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 225.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Admissions of accused.

In a defamation case the prosecution must prove affirmatively the libel alleged and should not fill up the gaps by admissions of an accused in answer to questions put by the Court. The mere fact that the accused did not deny in his written statement does not justify the inference that he admitted the fact, since there are no pleadings in a criminal case. 36 Mad. 457=22 M.L.J. 73=10 M.L.T. 56=(1911) 2 M.W.N. 576=12 Cr. - e. Exception (4)
- f. Exception (8)
- g. Exception (9)
- h. Exception (10)

6 (a). Exception—Burden of proof.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Prima facie case of defamation made out—Accused should be found guilty.

Where a prima facie case of defamation is made out by the complainant, the Court should find the accused guilty under S. 500, I.P.C., unless he is able to bring himself within any of the exceptions to S. 499 of the Code. A.I.R. 1943 Cal. 478=45 Cr. L. J. 129=47 C.W.N. 555=209 Ind. Cas. 273.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Exception pleaded—Burden of proof.

A person who relies upon an exception to the general rule must prove his case, must bring it within the relevant section, and it does not help his case to change from one exception to another and finally to place upon the Court the burden, which, by law, is his, of placing the case for him under the exception which it thinks appropriate. A.I.R. 1941 Sind 92=I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 336=42 Cr.L.J. 684=195 Ind. Cas. 159.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Exception—Burden.

If the accused relies on the exceptions to S. 499, it is for him to prove that they applied. A.I.R. 1940 Nag. 249=1040 N.L.J. 309=I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 208=41 Cr. L. J. 734=189 Ind. Cas. 382.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Burden of proving exception.

In a trial for defamation, the burden of proving the exception lies upon the accused; the burden of proving that the accused really, honestly and in good faith believed the truth of the accusation which he made, is on him. A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 371=1939 Rang. L. R. 479=41 Cr. L. J. 48=184 Ind. Cas. 566.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Burden of proof—Plea of justification.

In a case under S. 500, Penal Code for slander, the burden lies on the accused to establish a plea of justification for the imputations made and not on the complainant to prove that the statements complained of are false. A.I.R. 1937 Nag. 122=39 Cr. L. J. 370=I.L.R. (1936) Nag. 217=173 Ind. Cas. 844.

—S. 499—Exceptional case—Burden of proof.

Although it is for the prosecution to make out a case for conviction, the accused person has under S. 105, Evidence Act, to prove the existence of circumstances bringing the case within any of the general exceptions in the Penal Code, or in cases of defamation under the special exceptions of S. 499, I.P.C. 105 Ind. Cas. 820=28 Cr. L. J. 996=9 A.I.Cr.R. 204=A.I.R. 1928 Nag. 58.

6 (b). Exception (1).

—S. 499, Exception 1—Applicability—Truth of allegations doubtful.

To say something of a person which holds him to contempt is defamatory. If what is said is true then that is a defence under Exception 1, S. 499, I.P. Code; on the other hand, if there is a doubt as to whether it is true or not there is no defence at all and as the matter tends to bring the person defamed into contempt, it is defamatory under S. 500, I.P. Code. 85 C.L.J. 144=51 Cr. L. J. 1288=A.I.R. 1950 Cal. 339.

—S. 499, Exception 1—Publication by accused in form of questionnaire—Questionnaire referring to defamatory allegations against complainant made in leaflet previously circulated—

Questionnaire not making direct imputations and calling upon complainant to explain—Accused, if protected.

The accused who was an editor of a newspaper published an article in the form of a questionnaire referring to certain defamatory allegations against the complainant contained in a leaflet distributed a few days prior to the publication by him. The questionnaire did not make any imputation against the complainant and merely stated that certain complaints had been received against the complainant and called upon him to remove all doubts in the minds of the public by stating as to whether such complaints were correct.

Held, that the questionnaire virtually amounted to a re-publication of the defamatory statements contained in the leaflet, and the accused would be guilty of the offence of defamation unless he was protected by the Exceptions mentioned in S. 499, I. P. Code. To get the benefit of Exception 1, the accused must prove that the statements contained in the questionnaire were substantially true (i.e.), true in regard to the material portion of the allegations and also of the insinuations. 85 C.L.J. 57=51 Cr. L.J. 1293=A.I.R. 1950 Cal. 343.

—S. 499, Excep. (1)—Petition to Magistrate containing allegations of being a bad character and previous convict—Justification by truth.

A petition before the Magistrate represented that a certain person was unfit for the office of Mukhia which he sought for, and was a bad character and a previous convict. It appeared that he had really committed adultery with his sister-in-law and had an illegitimate child by her.

Held, that even if there was a statement in the petition indicating that he had been convicted, the evidence which showed that he ought to have been convicted under S. 497, I. P. C., indicated that the statement was substantially true and that Excep. 1 to S. 499, I. P. C., applied to the case. A.I.R. 1934 All. 974=3 A.W.R. 243=36 Cr.L.J. 260=152 Ind. Cas. 1057.

—S. 499, Excepts. (1) (vii) and (ix)—Truth of imputations and reasonable belief that imputations were true, whether relevant.

Under the first Exception to S. 499, the accused has to establish not only that the imputation which he made was for the public good but also that it was true and the question as to whether the accused had good reason for believing the imputation to be true is relevant to the question of good faith in Excepts. (viii) and (ix) to S. 499. A.I.R. 1933 Sind 403=34 Cr.L.J. 667=144 Ind. Cas. 63 (1).

—Ss. 499 and 500—Justification.

The defendant in proceedings for defamation, whether in a civil suit or under S. 500, Penal Code, must for defence depend upon the facts of each particular case which the defendant is certain can be proved by him or his witnesses. If there is no substantial defence, an immediate apology in the widest and most unreserved terms may fairly be presumed to decrease the damages and lessen the punishment under S. 500, Penal Code. The facts may be so strong that occasionally it may happen that counsel can advise client to "justify". That most dangerous plea should never be put forward unless there is a practical certainty of success, and, if no justification can be

—S. 499, Excep. 1 — Public good—Brahmin providing liquor—Denunciation of.

Denunciation of a Brahmin for providing liquor at a wedding reception to such of his guests as desire to partake of it, is not for the public good. In order that Excep. 1 may apply the statement must not only be proved to be true but it must also be proved that the publication was for the public good. 4 Bur. L.T. 48=12 Cr. L.J. 129=9 Ind. Cas. 775.

—S. 499, Excepts. 1 and 9—Public good—Nature.

Exceptions 1 and 9 codify those portions of the English law of libel and slander under the heads of justification and qualified privilege. In criminal cases it is a good defence that the words are, in fact, true and that it was for the public benefit that the matters charged should be published, though the actual motive of publication was mal-volence. The expression 'imputation on the character' in Exception 9 does not imply that allegations of definite acts are excluded. The exception covers also expressions of opinion and personal inferences. Exception 9 covers Exception 1 and the latter would only be relied on when for some purpose other than that of obtaining an acquittal, an accused person desires to prove the absolute truth of his words. Under Exception 9, the accused must show that he in good faith made the imputations in self-defence or for the public good. The accused published a letter in the local papers describing the Panjibhai Jamayat as a dangerous society, giving every encouragement to murder and assassination, and that the object of the notice given to him by the society was to incite and arouse the intolerance and murderous feelings of the ignorant, deluded and fanatic, members of the society for the express object of taking his life. Held, that the accused could not claim exemption under Exceptions 1 and 9. 4 S.L.R. 57=11 Cr.L.J. 588=8 Ind. Cas. 209.

6 (c). Exception (2).

—S. 499, Excepts. 2 and 9—Article in newspaper consisting of imputations against public officer—Good faith—Test—Opinion of superior officer acquitting the officer concerned of blame—Effect.

Where in an article in a newspaper imputations are made against a public officer, the writer will come under the exceptions 2 or 9 of S. 499 of the Penal Code, if the statements complained of were made in good faith or for public good. It cannot be said that the opinion of the superior officer who enquired into the allegations should be decisive as to the "good faith" of the accused. The fact that the superior officer on enquiry came to the conclusion that the allegations had not been proved does not mean that the allegations were not made "in good faith". It is for the Court to determine whether the writer acted without care and attention in making the allegations complained of. The fact that the accused did not wait before publishing the article till he received a reply to his petition, making almost the same allegations, from the superior officer enquiring into them does not negative "good faith". 1947 M.W.N. 607=60 L.W. 621=A.I.R. 1948 Mad. 266=49 Cr.L.J. 447=(1947) 2 M.L.J. 325.

—S. 499, Excep. (2) — Requirements — Due enquiry, what is.

Where an editor of a newspaper is prosecuted for defamation under S. 500, Penal Code, for publishing some defamatory statements complaining about the conduct of the Jail Superintendent towards the prisoners and about the defective feeding and sanitary and medical arrangements in the Jail, in order to come under Second Exception in S. 499, Penal Code, the accused must show that the opinion expressed by him was confined to the character of the official concerned so far as it appeared in his conduct in the discharge of his public functions and it might be taken to be so where the accused and the official concerned had no acquaintance with each other. But under the Second and Ninth Exceptions to S. 499, the opinion respecting conduct and (what is good faith, due care and attention, explained) character must be expressed in good faith. A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 1=1942 O.W.N. 530=44 Cr.L.J. 33=1942 A.W.R. 333=203 Ind. Cas. 143.

—S. 499, Exception 2 and 9—Remarks about conduct of public servant—Enquiry, nature of.

Where the accused accepted the allegations made by certain prisoners affected by the alleged conduct of the Jail Superintendent as true upon an ex parte enquiry, after hearing one party only, and that party, a very interested party, without giving the other party concerned an opportunity to refute them in publishing defamatory statements about the conduct of the superintendent towards the prisoners, he cannot be said to have acted with due care and attention and therefore, in good faith, so as to bring himself within the second and ninth exceptions to S. 499, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 1=1942 O.W.N. 530=44 Cr.L.J. 33=1942 A.W.R. 333=203 Ind. Cas. 143.

—S. 499 — Public servant — Immunity from criticism.

Public men can claim no immunity from criticisms even when the positions they hold are official. It is the penalty they pay in free countries, for the honour and privilege of occupying posts of exceptional responsibility, power and advantage. But there are limits to the attacks which may be made upon them. They are not wholly without protection; it is for the person who has uttered these things to justify them, or under the Penal Code, to establish affirmatively that he believed them to be true, and that on reasonable grounds. A.I.R. 1912 Nag. 117=43 Cr.L.J. 856=1942 N.L.J. 503=I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 347=202 Ind. Cas. 543.

6 (d). Exception (3).

See also Note 7.

—S. 499—Exceptions 3 and 9—Mis-statements of facts.

There is no difference in principle on the question of "good faith" between Excep. 3 and 9. Exception 3, cannot be used so as to justify a writer repeating in any circumstances with impunity the highly defamatory mis-statements of another based upon mis-statements of facts. A.I.R. 1941 Sind 92=42 Cr.L.J. 684=I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 336=195 Ind. Cas. 159.

6 (e). Exception (4).

—S. 499 Excep.(4)—Statement that complainant was convicted—Statement in the interest of Trust property — Statement of Proceedings of Court,

Where a trustee of temple wrote a post-card to the complainant stating therein that some years previously the complainant had been sent to jail in connection with a case of theft of idols in another temple and the fact of his having gone to jail was admitted by the complainant to be true; Held, that it was no defamation. Per Davies, J.—There is no harm in the trustee publishing in the interests of the temple the fact in order to forestall the complainant from setting up his rights in regard to a joint archakaship. Per Benson, J.—The publication being of the result of proceedings in a court of justice is no defamation by reason of exception 4 to S. 499. (1902) 26 M. 464.

6 (f). Exception (8).

—S. 499, Excep. 8—Applicability—Benefit of exception—Right to—What accused has to prove—Good faith.

In order to take advantage of Excep. 8 of S. 499, I. P. Code, an accused person need not prove that the allegations made by him and complained of as defamatory are true. It would be sufficient if he proves that on reasonable grounds he believed the allegations to be true and in that belief he made the accusation to the lawful authority mentioned in the Exception. All that the accused has to do is to show that there were reasonable grounds for believing in the allegations and that he acted in the bona fide belief that the allegations were true. The fact that a large number of persons made the same allegations would lend support to the plea of good faith by the accused and would entitle him to the benefit of Excep. 8 of S. 499, I. P. Code. 4 Cal. 124, Foll. 3 A.I.Cr.D. 131.

—S. 499, Excep. 8—Good faith—Onus.

If a complaint containing allegations amounting to an offence of defamation has been made in good faith, the person making the complaint will, of course, be protected by Excep. 8 to S. 499, Penal Code, but it is for the complainant to establish his good faith. A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 76 (78)=44 P.L.R. 7=43 Cr.L.J. 572=199 Ind. Cas. 543.

—S. 499, Excep. (8)—Publication of alleged defamatory matter to person in authority intended to give information about some offence with a view to get redress—If offence under S. 500.

Where the publication of the alleged defamatory matter was to a person in authority and was really intended to give information about some offences with a view to get redress or protection, the offence, if any, must be only the furnishing of false information or the making of a false accusation. It cannot be said that the offence of defamation is also committed simply because some part of the information or the accusation may be found to be defamatory and false. Such a case comes under Excep. 8 to S. 499, I.P.C. A.I.R. 1938 Mad. 904=1938 M.W.N. 871 (2)=48 L.W. 320=1938-2 M.L.J. 397=40 Cr.L.J. 69=178 Ind. Cas. 478.

—S. 499.

Defamatory statement in complaint to Police and on a question by Police Officer—Occasion privileged—No offence. 1936 M.W.N. 1383.

—S. 499, Excep. (8)—Petition to President of Union Board that candidate is disqualified for election on account of leprosy, whether amounts to defamation.

Obiter.—A petition to a Local Board President, however malicious, that a certain person was not qualified for election as a member of the Local Board on account of his suffering from leprosy, under S. 55, Madras Local Boards Act (XIV of 1920) does not amount to defamation, the case being covered by Excep. 8 to S. 499. A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 487=1931 M.W.N. 366=32 Cr.L.J. 767=131 Ind. Cas. 654.

—S. 499, Exceptions (8) and (9)—Finding by appellate Court—Interference in revision — Bona fide statement—Prosecution in respect of—Whether opposed to public policy.

Where the appellate Court found that the plea of good faith was made out so as to render Exceptions 8 and 9 of S. 499, I.P.C., applicable, held, that the High Court will not interfere with that finding in revision. Held also, that it is against public policy to prosecute complainants for statements contained in petitions presented in good faith for their protection. 1929 M.W.N. 598.

—S. 499.—Excep. (8) and (9)—Plea of good faith.

Where N was charged with having beaten P B before a panchayat and he made a statement that he had kept the complainant P B for 10 or 11 years, in a case by P B under S. 500:

Held, that the statement of the accused before the panchayat was made in good faith in order to explain his beating and therefore, was covered by Excepis. 8 & 9 to S. 499. 96 Ind. Cas. 394=27 Cr.L.J. 938=A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 504.

—S. 499, Excep. (8)—Report to police that a lost article was in accused's house—No defamation.

A buffalo of one S was lost. He reported the matter to the police and said he had been informed that the buffalo was in the house of one H. The police went to the village and searched H's house but did not find the animal there. H prosecuted S for defamation in respect of the report made at the thana and S was convicted:

Held, that the conviction should be set aside as S cannot be said to have made an imputation concerning H, even if the report that he made was prima facie defamation. The case is covered by the 8th Exception to S. 499, Indian Penal Code. 95 Ind. Cas. 480=27 Cr.L.J. 816 (Lah.)

—S. 499—Complaint bona fide to a proper officer—No offence.

"Communications addressed in good faith to persons in a public position for the purpose of giving them information to be used for the redress of grievances, the punishment of crime or the security of public morals are privileged provided the subject-matter is within the competence of the person addressed". Where the communication was not addressed in good faith and was unfounded, malice in law must be presumed and the privilege disappears. 79 Ind. Cas. 649=22 A.L.J. 65=5 L.R.A.Civ. 95=A.I.R. 1924 All. 445.

—S. 499—Report to Police—Qualified privilege—Proof of honesty.

Statements made in the course of judicial proceedings are absolutely privileged. Information or a report made to the Police does not come within this principle. A report made at a police station though not within the rule of absolute privilege which covers judicial proceedings, is prima facie privileged, that is to say, the person making it has a right to make it if he honestly believes it, and the person receiving it has a duty to receive it. But qualified privilege, as the term indicates, provides only a qualified protection, and the person charged with the defamation must prove that he used the privilege honestly, and the onus of establishing that lies upon him. 77 Ind. Cas. 913=A.I.R. 1923 All. 167.

—S. 499, Excepis. 8 and 9—Statements to persons in authority—Defamation—Implications in letter—Recklessness.

Accused stated in a petition to the forest authorities urging an enquiry into the conduct of a Village Munsif that the Village Munsif was a very rich man, that he had gained over the Range Officer to his side and had been illicitly grazing goats in the reserve. Held, that the accused was guilty of the offence of defamation. The language employed by him was calculated to harm the Village Munsif and lower the Range Officer in the estimation of his subordinates and the public, and the exceptions 8 and 9 to S. 499 of the I.P.C. could not apply to the case inasmuch as the accused had acted recklessly and without due care and caution. 19 Cr.L.J. 115=43 Ind. Cas. 403.

—S. 499, Excepis. 8 and 9—Defamation.

A complaint to a police constable is not privileged. 17 Cr.L.J. 381=35 Ind. Cas. 813 (Mad.).

—S. 499, Excep. (8)—Statements to person in authority.

The benefit of Exception (8) to S. 499 applies to a person charged with defamation under S. 500, I.P.C., where there is a bona fide complaint of a grievance and not a wanton accusation maliciously made with the object of injuring another person.

Where a person with express malice makes a defamatory charge which he bona fide believes to be true, against one whose conduct has caused him injury, to one whose duty it is to enquire and redress such injury, the occasion is privileged, on the ground that the person making the charge has an interest in doing so and the person to whom the communication is made has a duty to hear it. 17 Cr.L.J. 213=9 Bur. L.T. 136=8 L.B.R. 440=34 Ind. Cas. 325.

—S. 499, Exceptions (8) and (9)—Statement to person in authority—Defamation—Imputation—When in good faith.

Where the accused in an appeal presented by him against an order of a mamlatdar to the Assistant Collector under the provisions of the Land Revenue Code stated that the mamlatdar acted towards him unjustly and spitefully actuated by personal ill-will and malice with a view to cause him loss and harassment and the mamlatdar charged the accused for defaming him on such grounds of appeal, Held, that the accused was protected by Exceptions (8) and (9) of Section 499, I.P.C. The mamlatdar having by his previous conduct given ample room for suspicion of personal ill-will, the imputation was made in good faith. The care and attention required by law must have relation to the occasion and the circumstances. 'Due care and attention' imply genuine effort to reach truth and not ready acceptance of an ill-natured belief. Exception 4 describes quality of the imputation and not its effects. 16 Cr.L.J. 177=17 Bom. L.R. 82=27 Ind. Cas. 657.

—S. 499, Excep. 8 and 9—Good faith—Defamation—Imputation.

When the creditors accused a person of receiving stolen property, when they saw him leave the shop of an adjudicated insolvent with a bundle, Held, that the imputation was not made in good faith and that the creditors were guilty of defamation. 8 S.L.R. 55=15 Cr.L.J. 675=25 Ind. Cas. 1003.

—S. 499—Statement to persons in authority—Defamation—Imputation contained in a petition—When privileged.

A statement casting imputation on the character of a co-villager in a complaint to the higher authorities, is privileged only if the imputation is substantially true and made in good faith. 1 L.W. 239=15 Cr.L.J. 281=23 Ind. Cas. 489.

—S. 499, Exceptions (8) and (9)—Statements to persons in authority—Defamation—Good faith—Justification.

In a defamatory statement, intention to harm the reputation is not necessary but reasonable belief that the imputation would harm the reputation would suffice. To bring the case under Exceptions 8 and 9 good faith and absence of prima facie materials of malice must be shown. 34 P.W.R. 1913 Cr.=317 P.L.R. 1913=14 Cr.L.J. 606=21 Ind. Cas. 478.

—S. 499—Excep. (8) and (9)—Statement to person in authority—Libellous complaint to caste—Privilege.

Accused having suspected that the complainants were drinking liquor, made an application to the caste calling for an enquiry into their conduct. The application contained libellous allegations but it communicated to nobody outside the caste, Held, that the libel was a privileged communication protected by Excep. 8 and 9 to S. 499, I.P.C., because the accused had every right to do what he liked so long as he acted in good faith, with due care and attention, and for protection of the interests of the caste. A communication made by one member of a caste to the other members, inviting an enquiry into the conduct of person against whom the allegations are directed, is a privileged communication. 14 Bom. L.R. 585=13 Cr.L.J. 687=16 Ind. Cas. 335.

—S. 499—Defamation by police officer.

A police officer maliciously making a defamatory report about a person to his superior is guilty of defamation. No law protects police officers in this respect. 4 P.W.R. 1910 Cr.=11 Cr.L.J. 205=5 Ind. Cas. 714.

—S. 499, Excep. (8)—Defamatory communication made in official confidence—Malice in fact.

Where a defamatory statement is made on a privileged occasion, the complainant must show there was malice in fact. (1902) 7 C.W.N. 246.

—S. 499, Excep. 9—Applicability—Communication of caste resolution of ex-communication by a member of the caste to another.

A communication made bona fide upon a matter in which the party communicating has an interest or in reference to which he has a duty is privileged, if it is made to a person having a corresponding interest and duty even though it contains incriminatory matter which would be otherwise slanderous and actionable. A caste resolution of ex-communication published to the members of the caste in the discharge of a social duty would normally fall within the above rule since the member who makes the publication is bound both in his interest and in the interest of his caste to publish it for saving himself and the caste from the defilement which would take place by acting against the verdict of ex-communication. A.I.R. 1950 All 619.

—Ss. 499, Excep. (9) and 500—Person refusing to part with his own property on pressure by community—Ex communication from caste—Publication of ex-communication.

A caste panchayat can no doubt deal with offences relating to caste usages and customs, but it has no jurisdiction to decide questions regarding private property or impose any sanction, such as loss of caste, on any member of the community who declines to part with his property.

It can hardly be argued that informing people even one's own community that a certain person has been ex-communicated from his caste does not harm that person's reputation in the eyes of his followers. Nor can it be said that such a consequence is not one which the person who made the publication could not have known to be likely.

The 9th Exception to S. 499, Penal Code, does not mean that in order to bring pressure to bear upon a person to part with his property which he is entitled in law to keep, a defamatory allegation that such person is ex-communicated by the caste can be made on the ground that it is for the protection, either of the person who made it or of the community to which he belongs. A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 382=1939 M.W.N. 127=49 L.W. 268=1939-1 M.L.J. 414=40 Cr.L.J. 385=180 Ind. Cas. 473.

—Ss. 499 and 500 — Ex-communication—Punchas—Privilege—Presumption.

Where the punchas communicated to the members of the community a resolution of the Panchayat ex-communicating the complainant who had not availed himself of an opportunity to answer the charge summons:

Held, that good faith must be presumed and in the absence of direct evidence of malice, the communication must be deemed to be privileged although the resolution was not worded in an absolutely regular and formal manner. (1932) 137 Ind. Cas. 499=1932 A. L. J. 75=33 Cr. L. J. 472 (2).

—Ss. 499 and 500—Ex-communication by sabha of community after notice to complainant—No malice—No defamation.

Where the facts were that the accused as the head of the Sabha, to which complainant was then subordinate, received notice of the charge against him which he after due notice given made no attempt to meet and they then, according to the usual procedure when an accused party fails to appear to answer to a charge, passed an order of ex-communication and in accordance with the usual procedure imparted that fact to the heads of the community in other places in the usual form containing a brief and accurate statement of what had occurred, and there was no suggestion of any publication to any persons who had not a right by virtue of their caste position to know of the fact.

Held, that there was no malice however defective that procedure might appear to more judicial minds; that the accused were acting in good faith and in the interests of their community and that the accused were fully protected by the ninth exception to S. 499. 83 Ind. Cas. 999=19 M.L.W. 639=1924 M.W.N. 541=26 Cr.L.J. 215=A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 670=47 M.L.J. 8.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Informing caste people of ex-communication—No offence.

Where a person was out-casted and the accused informed some persons of his caste not to take water from the hands of that person and that if they did so they will be ex-communicated, held, that no offence was committed. 77 Ind. —S. 499, Excep. (9)—Public good—Ex-communication from caste—Good faith—Test—Publication of resolution of ex-communication in discharge of duty.

There is a dividing line between the passing of a resolution at a caste meeting and its communication by the authorities of the caste to its members in the discharge of their social duty. If any member of a caste publish to all its members a caste resolution in such discharge, the law will hold, the occasion of the publication to be privileged. The member who published it was bound to publish it and the members of the caste had an interest in hearing it. But then there must be good faith on the part of the member who published, that is, it must be proved that the publication was made with due care and attention. That is a question of fact. One test of good faith is whether the circumstances of the case show that the accused made the imputation having reasonable grounds to believe it to be true. 11 Bom.L.R. 638=10 Cr.L.J. 372=3 Ind. Cas. 744.

—S. 499, Excep. (9)—Scope.

The accused, on receiving an information that a theft had been committed at his house by the complainant and on satisfying himself about the truth of the information, communicated that information to the leaders of his caste, who eventually called a panchayat and outcasted the complainant. The complainant charged the accused with defamation:

Held, that the question whether the panchayat had jurisdiction or not was altogether immaterial.

Held, further that although the imputation was of an offence, it would nevertheless be an imputation on the character of complainant. If the accused believed in good faith, as he did, then there was nothing objectionable in his warning other people about the conduct of the complainant so as to put others on their guard against her. In reporting the matter to the panchayat, the accused was on a safer ground, since his action goes to show his anxiety to bring social pressure to bear on complainant and thus induce her to mend her ways. The case fell under Excep. 9 appended to S. 499, I.P.C. (1936) 163 Ind. Cas. 452=18 N.L.J. 204=37 Cr.L.J. 845.

—S. 499, Exceptions (9) and (10)—Publication of resolutions of Pathare Samaj about complainant's criticisms of a member of Samaj—Conduct of accused, held did not concern public—Excep. 1, held not, therefore, applicable—Case, held came under Excep. 9 and 10—Publication, however, held excessive.

The complainant prosecuted the accused for defamation in respect of an article written by him and published in a weekly vernacular newspaper called "Rashtratej." The complainant and the accused were both members of the Pathare Kshatriya community, the members of which live mostly in Bombay and the Kolaba District. The complainant was a journalist, and in a magazine which he published called "Udbhav," he had made criticisms on one R, a member of this community. These criticisms were resented and there was a meeting of a society called Pathare Kshatriya Vaktrutwottejak Samaj which passed resolutions condemning the complainant. The article, which was the subject of the defamation case was published in the "Rashtratej" newspaper. It purported to give an account of the meeting of the Samaj and the resolutions passed there at. The accused claimed that his conduct in writing this article was privileged and covered by Excep. 1 to S. 499, Penal Code, that is to say, his contention was that the imputation made was true and for the public good:

Held, that assuming that the imputation was true, that is to say, that the newspaper article gave a substantially correct account of the resolutions passed by the Samaj, it could not reasonably be argued that the publication of these resolutions was for the public good. The conduct of the complainant was a matter which concerned the Pathare Kshatriya community and did not in any way concern the public. The exceptions which would properly apply to the case were Excep. 9 and 10. Those exceptions required proof of good faith. But, apart from the question of good faith, it would clearly be going too far to say that it was necessary for the protection of the interest of the accused or other members of the community in question that these resolutions should be published in a newspaper. It was clearly excessive publication which would take the case out of the privilege conferred by Excep. 9 and 10. A.I.R. 1941 Bom. 410=43 Bom.L.R. 737=43 Cr.L.J. 174=197 Ind. Cas. 502.

—Ss. 499, Exceptions 9 and 10 and 500—Accused refusing to attend panchayat of which complainant was member—Statement in explanation of refusal—Allegation that complainant had been out-casted—Statement, if falls within Excep. 9 and 10 to S. 499.

Where it was alleged that the accused used the following words in respect of the complainant while refusing to attend a panchayat of which complainant was a member: "biradari ka mulzim hai Huqqa band hai. Biradri main khana khane ka qabil nahin hai. Ucha diya jae", and the accused was convicted of the offence of defamation under S. 500, Penal Code:

Held, that the words only meant that the complainant had committed some offence against the rules of the caste, that he had been outcasted by a part of the caste and that he should be outcasted by the rest and that the allegation was made merely to explain the fact that the accused and his followers were unable to take part in a panchayat to which the complainant was admitted, and that the conduct of the accused in making the statement came within the meaning of the 9th and 10th Exceps. to S. 499, Penal Code. —S. 500—Privilege of caste panchayats—Limits—Defamatory statements made against a person before a panchayat of composite castes and outcasting—Claim of privilege—If available.

While a caste, like the Vannia caste, will have a customary right to go into the allegations of immorality made against a woman of their tribe, in order to safeguard caste purity and prestige, no such customary right has been given for a composite assembly consisting of various castes like barbers, pipers, washermen, yadavas and others to join with the Vannias in holding such an assembly wherein defamatory statements are made and acted upon and a Vannia is outcasted. Hence where some persons belonging to Vannia community assemble such a composite panchayat and institute an enquiry into the conduct of the daughter of a member of that community at which they make defamatory statements and that member is outcasted, a plea of privilege which could have been claimed by them had they confined the panchayat to members of the interested caste, namely, Vanniakula Kshatrias, will not be available to them as the panchayat was of different castes and tribes. 63 L. W. 145=1950 M. W. N. 155=51 Cr.L.J. 716=A.I.R. 1950 Mad. 409=(1950) 1 M.L.J. 194.

—S. 499 Excep. 9—Applicability—Lawyer putting questions containing imputations to witness—Offence committed by client.

If under instructions from his client a lawyer puts questions containing imputations to a witness in open Court, the publication is by the lawyer and the client cannot be charged directly with the offence of defamation because the client at most is an abettor. It may happen in a particular case that the lawyer has a good defence, whereas the client might be still liable for abetment. 50 C.W.N. 545=228 Ind. Cas. 13=48 Cr.L.J. 15=A.I.R. 1947 Cal. 278.

—S. 499, Exception 9—Scope—Social club—Committee—Honest freedom of expression must be preserved to committee.

It is extremely difficult in a social club for a committee faced with any form of disciplinary action against members or quasi-members to act with universal approval. It is for that reason that, even if wrong, committees deserve and are given that protection embodied in Expt. 9 without which it would be impossible for such a body to function. This is most especially so when a complaint has to be issued not to a member himself about his own conduct but to a member relating to the conduct of another person. Honest freedom of expression must be preserved unless committees are always to have the threat of criminal proceedings hanging over them.

Held, in the present case that the accused, viz., the Committee members of a club, acted in good faith even if they were mistaken, and did not act without due care and attention in writing a letter to the member of the club, the husband of the complainant regarding the breach of club rules by her, which letter was alleged to contain defamatory matter. —S. 499, Excep. (9)—Protection under—Plea of good faith—How negated.

Where the accused has made certain imputations only as a matter of opinion in good faith and for public good after taking due care and caution, he is protected by exception 9 to S. 499, Penal Code though the imputations are baseless and incorrect. The plea of good faith may be negated on the ground of recklessness indicative of want of due care and caution if the imputations had been made as categorical statements of fact. —Ss. 499 Excep. (9) and 500—Press, position of.

The press and authors and publishers of books have no special privilege. They are in no better position than any other man. If they make assertions of facts as opposed to comments on them, and those assertions are defamatory, they must either justify those assertions, or, in the limited cases specified in the Ninth Exception to S. 499, I. P. C., show that the attack on the character of another was for the public good and that it was made in good faith. A.I.R. 1942 Nag. 117=43 Cr.L.J. 856=1942 N.L.J. 303=I. L. R. (1943) Nag. 347=202 Ind. Cas. 543.

—S. 499, Excep. 9 and 10.

Exceptions 9 and 10 to S. 499 both require the existence of good faith which implies the exercise of due care and attention. A. I. R. 1940 Nag. 249=I.L.R. (1942) Nag. 208=41 Cr.L.J. 734=1940 N.L.J. 309=189 Ind. Cas. 382.

—S. 499, Excep. (9)—Publication to lawyer—Question by lawyer on instructions—Objection—Question not insisted.

In the course of the trial of a civil suit, the Advocate of the petitioners in cross-examining one of the other party's witnesses, asked him whether his daughter had given birth to a child without having been married to a man. This question was entirely irrelevant to the proceedings and was objected to by the witness and disallowed by the Judge and the question was not pressed. The question had been put by the Advocate under instructions from his client and with a belief that it was permissible under S. 146 (1), Evidence Act. There was nothing to show that the petitioners made this imputation to any other person than their own lawyer and that they made the imputation, not in good faith with the belief that it was open for them to do so:

Held, that the accused could not be convicted under S. 500, I. P. C., in these circumstances. They were entitled to the benefit of Excep. 9 to S. 499, I.P.C., in the publication made by them of the defamation to their lawyer. A.I.R. 1937 Rang. 535=39 Cr. L. J. 229=172 Ind. Cas. 953.

—S. 499, Excep. (9)—Statement by witness in compromise talk—Protection.

A statement by a witness in the course of a compromise talk before the Judge in chambers that the complainant was heavily indebted and an insolvent is protected by Excep. 9 to S. 499, I.P.C. 1937 M.W.N. 884.

—S. 499, Excep. (9)—Election contest—Accused issuing poster against rival Barrister saying that hollowness of his capacity as Barrister is exposed—Protection under Excep. 9, if available.

In the course of an election contest, the accused issued and published a poster against his rival candidate, a Barrister-at-Law which contained the words: "The hollowness of Mr.—'s capacity as a Barrister has been exposed:"

Held, that these words meant that the unsoundness of the rival's knowledge or capacity as a Barrister had been exposed and the imputation undoubtedly was calculated to lower in the estimation of others the intellectual qualities and the aptitude for his profession as a Barrister in him.

Held, also that the accused had no justification whatever in dragging his rival's position as a Barrister into the limelight of publicity in a language which amounted to a serious aspersion upon his professional status and was calculated to lower him in the eyes of the public as a Barrister. The profession as a Barrister is a highly honourable one and to say that his position as a Barrister is hollow and has been exposed in a poster which was broadcast throughout the length and breadth of the constituency does not afford the protection laid down in Excep. 9 to S. 499. Penal Code. A.I.R. 1936 Lah 294=37 Cr. L. J. 1033=164 Ind. Cas. 809.

—S. 499—Report to Police.

If a person receives information that other persons are about to do him harm, he is surely entitled to go to the Police and ask for protection without himself being bound to conduct the enquiry himself. The Police are there to make such enquiries and to protect people in need of protection and if he can show that he did receive the information, it cannot be held that he did not act in good faith and was not acting in the protection of his own interest. Consequently, a prosecution for defamation for reporting to Police cannot be maintained. A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 297=36 Cr. L. J. 1307=158 Ind. Cas. 93.

—S. 499, Excep. (9).

The accused can claim the privilege of Excep. 9 of S. 499, if he proves that the imputations were made in good faith for the protection of the interest of the person making it or of any other person. 1935 M.W.N. 365.

—S. 499 Excep. (9)—Remarks by accused by way of protest and for protection of his interest—Words casting imputation on complainant's character—Accused, if protected by Excep. 9.

A had filed a criminal complaint against the servants of B. The Tahsildar of the place wishing to settle the matter called A and B and under protection from the Tahsildar A agreed not to press his complaint. B compelled A to appear before him whereupon A refused to settle the matter. Verbal altercation followed and in the heat of the moment, A told the Tahsildar that though B was an Honorary Magistrate, he had no faith in his justice. He further said that B was in the habit of telling lies and that he might get A murdered:

Held, that although these words cast an imputation on B's character, they were made in good faith and as a protest against the conduct of the Tahsildar who was trying to use official pressure to bring about the compromise between A and the servants of B and as the remarks were uttered by way of protest and for the protection of his interest in the criminal charge, A was protected by Excep. 9 to S. 499, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1934 Oudh 169=11 O.W.N. 382=35 Cr.L.J. 703=148 Ind. Cas. 514.

—S. 499, Excep. (9)—Mere belief in good faith—If sufficient.

Exception 9, S. 499 only means that a man who makes an imputation in good faith and makes that imputation for the protection of the interest of himself or of any other person is outside the operation of S. 499, I.P.C. There is no justification for reading the exception as meaning that if the person making the imputation believes in good faith that he has been acting for the protection of the interest of himself or any other person, he is not liable. 3 All. 815, Appr. 113 Ind. —S. 499, Excep. (9)—A European lady living with S. as wife and subsequently marrying him—She making attempts to murder her husband—Her father-in-law making statements that she was insane and likely to cause danger to her husband and that she was 'man-mad'—Applicability of exception.

Wife of certain Mr. Thomson became an intimate friend of certain military officer S, Rajput by caste, while he was at Allahabad, and afterwards in the life time of her husband the two met secretly. On the death of Mr. Thomson the two met openly and began to live as husband and wife. One illegitimate child also was born. When the officer was posted at Quetta she too followed him there. Thereafter S was sent to Moradabad for his training, having been transferred to the Political Department. Then the two were married secretly. The head of the training institution having come to know that S was living with a European lady who was reputed not to be his wife pressed for disclosure of their relationship and the fact of marriage was at last disclosed. Thereupon S was reverted to regular military department. In the meantime the couple was not living a happy life and it was found that the wife had made several attempts either for suicide or for murder of her husband. The couple then went to Delhi where the father of S then was living, and then again returned to Moradabad. The father of S then went to Moradabad and interviewed the head of the training institution and also the District Magistrate. During the interview he defamed wife of S firstly by saying that she was of unsound mind and, therefore, likely to murder her husband, and secondly that she was of loose moral character and the word used was a "man-mad". She then complained for defamation.

Held, that the first statement though defamatory was covered by Excep. 9 to S. 499 in as much as the statement was made in good faith and for the protection of his son's interest. While the second statement was not meant to serve any useful purpose and there was no justification for charging the complainant with sexual immorality, it did not, therefore, come within the operation of Excep. 9. 113 Ind. Cas. 213=51 All. 313=26 A.L.J. 1334=10 L.R.A. Cr. 1=11 A.I.Cr.R. 49=30 Cr.L.J. 101=A.I.R. 1929 All. 1.

—Ss. 499 Excep. (9) and 500—Good faith—Meaning—Ignorant and timid man preferring complaint to Magistrate—Object being to protect himself, not to injure others—Offence under S. 500, I.P.C., if constituted.

Good faith in the ninth exception to S. 499, I.P.C., requires not logical infallibility but due care and attention. In determining whether due care was taken by the accused allowances have got to be made, his capacity to reason, the circumstances under which he was placed and the occasion which necessitated his making the imputations. Where a comparatively ignorant and timid man apprehending harassment by the complainant presented a petition to a Magistrate and he was prosecuted for allegations contained therein, held, that the accused apparently acted more to protect himself than to injure others and that considering the circumstances under which he acted, the conviction under S. 500 was not sustainable. 51 C.L.J. 472=34 C.W.N. 1070=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 779.

—S. 499, Excep. (9)—Interest in making allegations—Exception.

Where a lawyer's notice was sent on behalf of the widow of a deceased Hindu in which the accused was charged with criminal breach of trust and theft of the properties of the deceased and he was threatened with civil and criminal proceedings and the accused sent in his reply through a Vakil alleging that the widow was living an adulterous life and that she was discarded owing to her such conduct by her husband and that her daughter was not the daughter of the husband and that she had never lived with the deceased for about twenty-five years and the accused, who was the deceased's nephew, claimed under a Will by the deceased, held, that Exception 9 applied to the case. The accused being directly interested in making these allegations the terms employed were not too violent for the occasion or disproportionate to the facts. 85 Ind. —S. 499, Excep. (9)—Absence of good faith—Effect.

Where on flimsy materials the accused charged a doctor with conspiracy in drugging a certain person so as to render him unconscious and to cause him to be taken to cremation and where the accused had not made any enquiries before the publication of the charge or had not at his disposal or within his knowledge any of the materials which he produced at the trial, held, that he was not protected by the 9th exception as he had not made it in good faith, and as good faith was not established it was not strictly necessary to consider if the public good was involved. Certain evidence produced at the trial cannot be used to establish due care and attention unless the evidence was in the possession of the accused when he made the statement. 83 Ind. —Ss. 499 Excep. (9) and 500—Essentials for conviction—Plea of good faith.

It is dangerous to lay down as a rule of law that a person before publishing defamatory statements should, even as a matter of prudence, seek information as to the truth of the imputations from the person against whom they are made. The position of the person defamed would not make any difference, for however highly placed a person may be, he may not be above human frailties. The contrary view would make the 9th Exception to S. 499 superfluous. For if the person against whom the imputation is to be made admits the truth of it, protection is given by the first exception; if, on the other hand, he denies the truth of it, the defamer will not be entitled to plead good faith under the 9th Exception under any circumstances. Good faith under the 9th Exception requires not logical infallibility but due care and attention. But how far erroneous actions or statements are to be imputed to want of due care and caution must in each case be considered with reference to the general circumstance and the capacity and intelligence of the person whose conduct is in question. It is only to be expected that the honest conclusions of a calm and philosophical mind may differ very largely from the honest conclusions of a person excited by sectarian zeal and untrained to habits of precise reasoning. It is conceivable that there may be mutual confidence or a code of honour even among criminals. 71 Ind. Cas. 792=27 C.W.N. 389=24 Cr. L. J. 248=50 Cal. 518=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 470 (F.B.).

—S. 499, Excep. (9)—Failure of plea under—Applicability of exception to S. 79.

No case can be made out under the general exception of S. 79, I.P.C. when the plea under the ninth exception to S. 499, I.P.C. has failed, since "good faith" must be proved in either case. S. 79 of the Penal Code does not limit or expand the defence available under the 9th Exception; and it does not apply to a case where the Code expressly provides similar ground of exoneration in respect of a particular offence. In a case of defamation, the accused has to establish good faith, if he pleads it, as any other fact and the question whether he committed a mistake of fact or law does not arise. 71 Ind. Cas. 792=27 C.W.N. 389=50 Cal. 518=24 Cr. L. J. 248=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 470 (F.B.).

—S. 499, Excep. 9 — Defamation—Pleader making imputations against prosecution—Witness in cross-examination—Presumption of good faith.

Questions which a pleader asks in cross-examination are presumed to be asked in good faith for the protection of his client. The presumption is, therefore, that a question in cross-examination making an imputation affords no ground for a criminal prosecution. To rebut this presumption of good faith, it must be clearly proved that the pleader was actuated by an improper motive personal to himself, and not by a desire to protect the interest of client. 41 Cal. 514=14 Cr. L. J. 528=18 C.W.N. 424=20 Ind. Cas. 1008.

—S. 499, Excep. (9)—Statement made to protect one's interest — Statement as to inference—Bona fides — Special damage — Civil action, proper remedy by.

K a creditor of J of the firm of J. S. and Co., found his claim against J resisted until he sued and got decrees against him. K came to know that V, a member of J's firm, had presented his petition of insolvency. K also knew that V at the time of filing his petition had claims against J's firm. R thereupon circulated amongst persons who had dealings with the firm of J. S. and Co., a letter warning them not to make payments to the firm and containing the following statements:—(1). That a member of the firm V, had filed his petition under the Insolvency Act, "the object being to collect the outstandings and defeat the creditors"; (2) that the other members were not entitled ed to collect the outstandings and were not in a position to give an effectual discharge to persons making payments; (3) that K was taking steps to have all the other members declared insolvent. It was found that the firm of J. S. and Co., was without capital, and that subsequently to writing the letter K did file the petition of insolvency against the other members of the firm, though unsuccessfully; — Held, on the above circumstances, and taking the letter as a whole, that there was no defamation, the case falling under Excep. 9 to S. 499. That the statement that the object of V's filing the petition of insolvency was to defeat creditors was merely a statement of the reason which induced K to make the request he did to the recipients of the letters, and the insertion of this inference alone was not sufficient to take the letter out of the exception. It was observed that a libel of this kind being analogous to an action on a case for special damage (caused, as alleged, by reason of injury inflicted on complainant's business by specific allegations made with respect to that business) can more properly be dealt with in the civil than in the criminal court. #### 6 (h). Exception (10).

See also Note 6 (g).

—S. 499, Excep. (10)—Applicability—Caste meeting—Untrue allegation as to wife of member having been married before—Offence.

Exception 10 to S. 499, I.P.C., deals with cases for instance where one man wants another against employing a third person in his service saying that he is a dishonest person. Where at a caste meeting the accused was proved to have stated that the complainant's wife had been married before and a prosecution for the offence of defamation was launched against him, held, that exception 10 to S. 499 was inapplicable. 127 Ind. Cas. 553=34 C.W.N. 580=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 645.

7. Fair comment.

—Ss. 499 and 500 — Fair comment—Limits of.

In order that a comment may be fair, the following conditions must be satisfied: (a) It must be based on facts truly stated. (b) It must not contain imputations of corrupt or dishonourable motives on the person whose conduct or work is criticised, save in so far as imputations are warranted by the facts. (c) It must be the honest expression of the writer's real opinion.

Every latitude must be given to opinion and to prejudice, and then an ordinary set of men with ordinary judgment must say (not whether they agree with it, but) whether any fair man would have made such a comment. Mere exaggeration or even gross exaggeration would not make the comment unfair. However wrong the opinion expressed may be in point of truth, or however prejudiced the writer, it may still be within the prescribed limit. The question which the jury must consider is this—would any fair man, however prejudiced he may be, however exaggerated or obstinate his views, have said that which this criticism has said. A.I.R. 1942 Nag. 117=1942 N.L.J. 503=I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 347=43 Cr. L.J. 856=202 Ind. Cas. 543.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Wilful mis-representation or mis-statement without due enquiry—No fair comment.

There is a distinction between "fair comment" based on well known or admitted facts and the assertion of unsubstantiated facts for comment. Where comment is made on allegations of fact which do not exist, the very foundation of the plea disappears. A wilful mis-representation of fact or any mis-statement which an editor could have discovered to be a mis-statement if he had made proper enquiries cannot support the plea of "fair comment" as an editor must make due enquiries as to its truth before disseminating the statement of those facts. 116 Ind. Cas. 99=23 S.L.R. 216=30 Cr. L.J. 548=12 A.I.Cr.R. 365=A.I.R. 1929 Sind 90.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Comment based on mis-statement of facts—No fair comment.

Allegations on the ground of fair comment cannot be justified the moment it is shown that the criticism is based upon a mis-statement of facts. 98 Ind. Cas. 481=7 L.R.A.Cr. 201=27 Cr. L.J. 1361=7 A.I.Cr.R. 3=A.I.R. 1927 All. 116.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Imputing motive to conduct—No fair comment.

Every one has a perfect right to criticise a man's public conduct, to denounce its impolicy and even to denounce its folly or its absurdity or the mischievous consequences which will result from it. But a line must be drawn between hostile criticism on a man's public conduct and the motives by which that conduct may be supposed to be influenced. 76 Ind. Cas. 230=25 Cr.L.J. 134=17 S.L.R. 245=A.I.R. 1924 Sind 129.

—S. 499—Fair comment—Defamation—Attributing motives—Denial of libel—Justification by truth.

To say of a person that he makes gifts to certain funds not out of charity but from self advantage is defamatory if the words used incite public contempt and ridicule. A fair comment must be based upon the facts and the writer is not entitled to invent facts nor can the conduct of public man or of a person in his public character be assailed as dishonest simply because the writer fancies such conduct is open to suspicion. An accused justifying his libel cannot both deny as well as justify it. 19 Cr. L. J. 129=43 Ind. Cas. 417.

—S. 499, Excep. (3)—Fair comment—Exception III—Privileged occasion—Exaggeration.

If the occasion is privileged, it is not necessary to justify every detail, provided the gist of the libel is correct. Where in a newspaper report the main assertion is true, mere exaggeration or departure from strict truth does not deprive the accused of the privilege given him by Exception III. Mere exaggeration or even gross exaggeration does not make the comment unfair, especially where the matter is one of public interest, provided, there is no misrepresentation or suppression of facts. 8 S.L.R. 143=16 Cr. L.J. 141=27 Ind. Cas. 205.

—S. 499, Ex. (9)—Fair comment—Magistrate—Imputation on character of—Journalist—Absence of reasonable grounds.

Where on a charge of defamation the accused sets up a defence under Excep. (9) to S. 499 of the Penal Code the question for the jury is whether in publishing the libels complained of, the accused acted in good faith and in the belief of their being true, after giving due care and attention to their being so.

Where there is no defence (under the exception) to a substantial portion of the libellous matter a conviction under S. 499 is legitimate.

Where in the course of the trial, the evidence revealed that in writing the libel the accused had proceeded on a gross mistake of fact, the mistake should have been acknowledged and a prompt apology tendered. 41 Cal. 1023=41 I.A. 149=18 C.W.N. 785=26 M.L.J. 621=15 Cr.L.J. 309=1 L.W. 461=7 Bur. —S. 499—Fair comment—Dishonest or corrupt motive.

An article in a newspaper which is a fair comment on public affairs and merely an expression of opinion is not defamatory unless proved to be the outcome of a dishonest or corrupt motive. (1914) M.W.N. 351=15 Cr. L. J. 357=23 Ind. Cas. 725.

—S. 499—Fair comment—Matter of public interest.

In the matter of public interest, the Court must not weigh any comment on it, in a fine scale. Some allowance for intemperate language must be made if the writer keeps himself within the bounds of substantial truth. 13 Bom. L. R. 1187=12 Cr. L. J. 595=12 Ind. Cas. 971.

—S. 499, Exceps. 3, 6, 9, Ss. 500, 52—Right of fair comment—Malice—Good faith.

The word "malice" in the legal use of that term is not limited to hostility of feeling, but by virtue of its etymological origin, extends to any state of the mind which is wrong or faulty (whether evinced in action by excess or defect) such as would be unjustifiable in the circumstances and incompatible with thoroughly innocent intentions. It is not necessary that such impropriety of feeling should in all cases be established by evidence extrinsic to the comment which is the subject of the complaint. For whether fair comment is to be regarded as following under a branch of the law of privilege or not, it cannot excuse an enquiry arising not from the mere act of criticism but from a state of mind in the critic which is in itself unjustifiable and the excuse may be so forfeited either by reason of an evil intent in him or by reason of mere recklessness in making an unwarrantable assertion. For then the comment would not be fair comment at all. The right of fair comment involves two essentials; first, that the imputation should be comment on the work criticised, and second, that it should be 'fair,' that is to say if it professes to be an inference drawn from the contents of that work, it must be an inference which it is possible to draw therefrom. Good faith requires not logical infallibility but due care and attention. But how far erroneous actions or statements are to be imputed to want of due care and caution must in each case be considered with reference to the general circumstances and the capacity and intelligence of the person whose conduct is in question. It is only to be expected that the honest conclusions of a calm and philosophical mind may differ very largely from the honest conclusions of a person excited by sectarian zeal and untrained to habits of precise reasoning. At the same time it must be borne in mind that good faith in the formation or expression of an opinion, can afford no protection to an imputation which does not purport to be based on that which is the legitimate subject of public comment. The object of Exception 6 to S. 499 is that the public should be aided by comment in its judgment of the public performance submitted to its judgment. Comment otherwise defamatory is justified on this ground alone. The comment must, therefore, make it clear to the public that decision is invited only on such evidence as is supplied by the public performance. It follows that an imputation on an author made by a critic without reference, express or implied, to the work under criticism, if in terms so general as to be capable of conveying an unfavourable impression of him apart from what appears in his work, cannot be justified by the critic on the ground that his intention was to base his imputation solely on the work reviewed and that he had in his mind a passage there in supporting the imputation. The responsibility of the critic is to be gauged by the effect which his comment is calculated to produce and not by what he says was his intention. It is not enough that he should intend to form his opinion on the work before him. He is also bound in the words of the execution to express his opinion with due care and caution and to give the public no ground for supposing that he is speaking of anything but the performance submitted to its judgment. —Ss. 499 and 500—Enquiry before publication—Editor of a journal.

The editor of a journal is in no better position than an ordinary subject with regard to his liability for libel. He is bound to take due care and caution before he makes a libellous statement. A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 484=1944 M.W.N. 322=46 Cr. L. J. 71=215 Ind. Cas. 254.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Editor's duties.

Before any editor publishes matter which is clearly defamatory on the face of it, he should take steps to have an inquiry made by some members of his staff or some reliable person on the spot, and he should only publish the matter if he considers that he has sufficient evidence available to bring himself within the provisions of one of the exceptions to S. 500, Penal Code.

It is certainly not using due care and attention to publish defamatory statements about a person and also to publish his denial and let the public take their choice. A.I.R. 1933 All. 434=34 Cr.L.J. 926=1933 A.L.J. 1493=145 Ind. Cas. 126.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Enquiry before publication—Duties of editors.

—S. 499.

In dealing with the question of good faith, the proper point to be decided is not whether the allegations put forward by the accused in support of the defamation are, in substance, true, but whether he was informed and had good reason after due care and attention to believe that they were true. A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 1=1942 O.W.N. 530=44 Cr. L. J. 33=1942 A.W.R. 333=203 Ind. Cas. 143.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Good faith—False claim in a post card.

Putting forward a false claim in a post card to the effect that the addressee should pay the addressor a certain sum of money, does not prima facie amount to defamation as defined in S. 499, I. P. C. 3 P.W.R. 1909 Cr.=9 Cr. L. J. 154=1. Ind. Cas. 99.

Held, (1) that the accused could not be convicted of an offence under S. 500, unless express malice was proved by the prosecution; (2) that though a person in a higher social position than the accused would have probably acted differently under the circumstances it did not follow that the accused was therefore actuated by malice in acting as he did. 9. Imputation against company or association of persons.

—S. 499—Company—Imputation against calculated to harm reputation of officers—Offences

—Burden of proof—Duty of prosecution—Want of good faith.

An imputation against a company, such as a Co-operative Bank, or an association or collection of persons as such, which is calculated to harm the reputation of the officers of the Bank would amount to defamation under S. 499, I. P. Code. The onus is, however, upon the prosecution under S. 501, I. P. Code, that not only is the matter complained of defamatory but also that it does not come under any one of the exceptions to S. 499, e.g., good faith, under exception 3. A.I.R. 1950 Pat. 545.

—S. 499, Expl. (2)—Whether applies to complaint of an individual as such.

If a collection or company of persons as such is defamed, one of their members may make a complaint on behalf of the collection or company of persons as a whole according to Expl. 2 to S. 499, Penal Code, but the defamation must be shown to be of all the persons in the association or collection as such; the defamation is of the collection or association as such. If, therefore, the complaint is one of an individual as such, Expl. 2 has no application. A.I.R. 1938 Sind 88=39 Cr. L. J. 518=1.L.R. (1939) Kar. 1=175 Ind. Cas. 9.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Well-defined class defamed—Every member can file complaint.

If a well-defined class is defamed, each and every member of that class can file a complaint. In other cases, the defamatory words must refer to some ascertained and ascertainable person and that person must be the complainant. Where the words reflect on each and every member of a certain number or class, each or all can sue. If the words reflect impartially on either A or B, or on some one of a certain number or class, and there is nothing to show which one was meant, no one can sue. If a person complains that he has been defamed as a member of a class, he must satisfy the Court that the imputation is against him personally and he is the person aimed at before he can maintain a prosecution for defamation. A.I.R. 1937 All. 677=1937 A.L.J. 781=38 Cr. L. J. 1086=1937 A.W.R. 708=171 Ind. Cas. 534.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Imputations against defined class—Right of each member individually to take action.

Where certain articles published in a paper contained scandalous accusations against the girl students of a college and implied that the girls were habitually guilty of misbehaviour described in the article, the inevitable effect on the reader must be to make him believe that it is habitual with the girls of the college to behave in this way. As by the articles all the girls in the college collectively and each girl individually suffer in reputation, an action for defamation is competent by some of them. A.I.R. 1935 All. 743=36 Cr. L. J. 816=57 A. 1012=1935 A.L.J. 676=155 Ind. Cas. 638.

—S. 499—Corporation, when can maintain action for libel.

A corporation may maintain a prosecution or an action for a libel affecting its property, but not for a libel merely affecting personal reputation as a corporation has no reputation apart from its property or trade. The words complained of must reflect on the management of its business and must injuriously affect the corporation, as distinct from the individuals who compose it. The alleged libel must attack the corporation in its method of conducting its affairs, must accuse it of fraud or mismanagement, or must attack its financial position. It cannot bring a prosecution for words which merely affect its honour or dignity. Moreover, it cannot maintain a prosecution for words which reflect, not upon it as a body, but upon its members individually unless special damage has thereby been caused to it. The accused purchased a watch from company who executed a guarantee for two years. The watch having got out of order within 6 months, he took it to the company for repairs, and this they agreed to do on payment. Accused published an open letter in a newspaper warning the public not to be deceived in future. On a complaint for defamation:

Held, that the imputations were defamatory and that the mere fact that when the accused took the watch to the company and asked to have it repaired, they demanded a fee for repairing it did not justify him in imputing dishonesty to them. A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 509=37 Cr.L.J. 328=160 Ind. Cas. 746.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Defamation of newspaper.

A newspaper is not a person, and therefore it is not a criminal offence to defame a newspaper. Defamation of a newspaper may in certain cases involve defamation of those responsible for its publication. 99 Ind. Cas. 347=28 Cr.L.J. 139=4 Rang. 462=A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 43.

—S. 499, Expl. (2)—Defamation of police force as a whole—Right of individual to complaint.

Per B. B. Ghose, J. contra Newbould, J.—The words “the British Government themselves, and the superior officers, including from the District Magistrate down to the daroga and chowkidars were all beasts, etc.” are too wide to admit of the construction that any particular police officer was defamed.

Per Buckland, J.—Excep. 2 to S. 499, I.P.C., is intended to include a company or an association or collection of persons as such within the word “person” as used in the definition, so that the latter should not be limited to individuals. It is doubtful if the police force at a particular place is an association or collection of persons as is contemplated in Excep. 2, S. 499. The police force as such cannot complain of any imputation as regards its personal reputation. The true rule appears to be that if a person complains that he has been defamed as a member of a class he must satisfy the Court that the imputation is against him personally and he is the person aimed at, before he can maintain a prosecution for defamation. 90 Ind. Cas. 387=29 C.W.N. 904=42 C.L.J. 178=26 Cr.L.J. 1539=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 1121.

—S. 499—Imputation against Association.

However reprehensible and morally unjustifiable the words complained of may be, they must, to be actionable, contain an imputation concerning some particular person or persons whose identity can be established. An imputation against an association or collection of persons jointly may also amount to defamation within the meaning of the Section 499, I. P. C., but at the same time it must be an imputation capable of being brought home to a particular individual or collection of individuals as such. 67 Ind. Cas. 609=1 Pat. 414=1922 P.H.C.C. 117=3 Pat. L.T. 209=23 Cr.L.J. 433=A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 101.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Reputation, damage to—Corporation — Unlawful preference — Loss — Damage to property rather than to reputation.

A corporation cannot well suffer damage in mind or body. An incorporated company may have a reputation for the good conduct of the business or undertaking of the company and the company's reputation may be quite distinct from that of any of its officers however highly placed. Allotment of excess wagons to one colliery by malpractices of clerks of a railway company causes damage of its reputation but the damage is too remote. The damage is indirect and ulterior rather than the direct natural or probable consequence of the action which the company was deceived into taking. If a suit might have been brought against the company for damages for undue preference, such a possibility under S. 415 would come under the head of damage or likelihood of damage to property and not of damage to reputation. 84 Ind. —Ss. 499 and 500—To say a man is outcaste when he has not been outcasted.

To say a man is an outcaste when he has not been outcasted is to defame him. Such conduct is to be distinguished from the permissible course of bringing up an allegation before a caste panchayat for a decision whether the person complained against should be outcasted or not. It is also permissible to refuse personally to have anything to do socially with a caste-fellow of whose conduct one disapproves, but it is a different matter to dub him an outcaste and induce other persons to boycott him before there has been a decision of the caste in which the person accused has been given a fair hearing. A.I.R. 1940 Nag. 283=41 Cr.L.J. 585=1940 N. L.J. 410=188 Ind. Cas. 413.

To say that a man is outcasted when he is not outcasted is defamation.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Outcaste.

Imputation to a Hindu that he is an outcaste is defamatory and is not covered by S. 95. 108 Ind. Cas. 690=26 A. L. J. 361=9 A.I.Cr.R. 298=9 L.R.A.Cr. 44=29 Cr. L. J. 451=A.I.R. 1928 All. 213.

—Ss. 499, Expl. (4) and 500—Outcaste—Defamation.

A person making a statement without cause that a Mahomedan was ex-communicated or outcasted is guilty of the offence of defamation under S. 499.

Caste in S. 499, Expl. (4), is not confined entirely to Hindus and refers to any class who keep themselves socially distinct or inherit exclusive privileges. 99 Ind. Cas. 943=25 M.L.W. 357=28 Cr. L. J. 207=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 397.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Calling a person a sweeper by reason of his having associated with sweepers—Defamation.

Where an imputation made clearly suggested that a person was not fit to be associated with, as he had become a sweeper by reason of his having joined a procession or shaken hands with the sweepers:

Held, that the imputation is defamatory and is not privileged. It would be privileged if it had been a decision arrived at by a panchayat of the caste. 92 Ind. Cas. 584=24 A. L. J. 171=6 L.R.A.Cr. 207=27 Cr. L. J. 296=A.I.R. 1926 All. 306.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Public good—Person outcasted—Statement that he was outcasted.

If a person really is out-casted a statement to the members of the brotherhood that he was out-casted is for public good. So long as caste prevails, any attempt to minimise, ignore or brush on one side existing regulations, existing sanctions or respect for existing decisions must be regarded from the Indian point of view as contrary to the public good. 77 Ind. Cas. 183=46 All. 64=21 A. L. J. 765=4 L.R.A.Cr. 221=25 Cr. L. J. 327=A.I.R. 1924 All. 299.

—S. 499, Expl. 4—Imputation as to caste.

Defamation in S. 499 of the Penal Code is wide enough to include caste questions within it even when where these questions do not specify defect of character. To tell a Hindu that he is an outcaste will amount to defamation, unless the words used in respect of the caste of a Hindu amount to saying 'you are an outcaste or you have been excommunicated from your caste,' the words are not defamatory. 28 M. L. J. 58=17 M.L.T. 369=2 L.W. 446=26 Ind. Cas. 460.

—S. 499—Imputation as to caste—'Kulabrashta' whether defamatory.

The term 'Kulabrashta' used in a book is 'Prima facie' defamatory and it should refer to a particular individual to warrant a conviction for defamation. (1911) 2 M.W.N. 8=10 M.L.T. 96=12 Cr. L. J. 497=12 Ind. Cas. 217.

—S. 499—Imputation as to caste—Calling a Kaisth, a chamar.

A person, referring a 'Parsulia Kaisth' as 'Kori Chamar' with the result that the priests refused to attend the religious ceremonies at the person's house is guilty under S. 499.

To utter words having the effect of making little of a person is an offence under S. 499 I.P.C. 11 Cr. L. J. 413=6 Ind. Cas. 876 (All.).

—S. 499—Imputation as to caste—False publication.

A person falsely publishing that a caste panchayat has decided upon the ex-communication of a certain person from his caste is guilty under S. 499. 6 A. L. J. 472=9 Cr. L. J. 535=2 Ind. Cas. 226.

11. Insult or abuse.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Election meeting—Person belonging to rival candidate attending uninvited and calling the candidate on whose behalf meeting was called "liar, barbarous and ungentlemanly"—Offence, held one under S. 504 and not under S. 500.

In the course of the election campaign, a meeting was organised on behalf of the complainant or his adherents in the village which appertained to his estate. The complainant reached the village and was taken in procession to the place of the meeting. But he found that the accused and the rival candidate for whom he was working had already occupied the two chairs, although they were not invited to attend the meeting. When the complainant came near, the accused and his adherents shouted "Go back. Down with 'zamindari'" and tried to create a disturbance. The complainant thereupon wanted to leave the place as he thought that his presence would further annoy the accused who was bent upon creating a disturbance, but the raiyats requested the complainant not to go away. The zamindar then stood on the table to address the villagers numbering about two thousand. The accused then stood on a chair and said that the zamindar was a liar, ungentlemanly, barbarous and tyrannical:

Held, that there was clear intention to insult the complainant. The accused ought to have known that the insult would be likely to lead to a breach of the public peace, which was avoided owing to the most commendable behaviour of the complainant. Though the words used were not defamatory, they amounted to insult within the meaning of S. 504 and the conviction under S. 500 should be altered to one under S. 504. A.I.R. 1945 Pat. 450=11 Cut. L.T. 33.

—Ss. 499 and 500.

Vulgar and abusive epithets are not sufficient in themselves to be the foundation of a criminal prosecution. A.I.R. 1936 Lah. 294=34 Cr. L. J. 1033=164 Ind. Cas. 809.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Insult or abuse.

Complainant's counsel S cited an authority but he could not find his book at the time of argument. Complainant asked him to search for the book in the accused's books thinking that it might be mixed up with them. Accused who heard the suggestion resented it and said to S that he was not in the habit of stealing like him. S filed a complaint under S. 500.

Held, that the accused's reply was not defamation because he did not mean to call him a habitual thief. It is at the most akin to abuse. The matter was too petty to be brought into the Criminal Court. 115 Ind. Cas. 72=30 Cr. L. J. 379=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 234.

—Ss. 499 and 500.

No doubt a mere abuse is not ordinarily a defamation, but the fact that the words used by the writer are of abuse does not of itself take the article out of the definition of defamation, if taken as a whole it is calculated to harm the reputation of the complainant. 112 Ind. Cas. 772=30 Cr. L. J. 4 (Lah).

—Ss. 499 and 500—Inviting a person to dinner and asking him to leave place when he attends without any imputation—No offence.

Criminal law is not meant to punish every insult, however grievous, offered by one person to another in the course of social relations, and, therefore, where a person invites another for a dinner and asks him when he attended, to leave the place without any sort of imputation, his conduct may be reprehensible from a social point of view, but there is no element of criminality in it. 98 Ind. Cas. 606=24 A. L. J. 893=7 L.R.A Cr. 164=27 Cr. L. J. 1390=A.I.R. 1926 All. 711.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Calling a person a beast and a pig.

Per B. B. Ghose, J.—General words of abuse may not be defamatory, but to speak of a person that he is a beast and a pig in his conduct is defamatory. 90 Ind. Cas. 387=29 C.W.N. 904=42 C. L. J. 178=26 Cr. L. J. 1539=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 1121.

—Ss. 499 and 500—‘Pichhlag’ and ‘Lawaris’.

The words pichhlag and lawaris do not amount to defamation. 67 Ind. Cas. 589=23 Cr. L. J. 429=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 452.

—S. 499—Defamation—Obscene language—Street quarrel—Abuse.

Using obscene and insulting language in speaking of a respectable man after an altercation is over is calculated to lower the reputation of the man spoken of and amounts to defamation under S. 500. Obiter.—Words prima facie defamatory when used in the middle of a street quarrel should be regarded as mere vulgar abuse and does not amount to defamation. 16 A. L. J. 498=19 Cr. L. J. 669=45 Ind. Cas. 1005.

12. Interpretation—“Imputation”.*—Ss. 499 and 500—Report to Police—Imputation—Accusation—Suspicion.

An imputation ordinarily implies an accusation or something more than an expression of a suspicion. An expression of a suspicion may have the same effect on the mind of the person to whom the suspicion is communicated as an accusation would have. So where a person makes a report to police that a theft was committed and that he suspects a certain person which results in the search of that person's house, the person must be deemed to have made an imputation within the S. 499. 96 Ind. Cas. 211=8 L. L. J. 97=27 Cr. L. J. 899=27 P.L.R. 171=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 278.

13. Printer's Liability.*—Ss. 499 and 500—Printer's Liability.

A newspaper is in no better position in regard to the law for defamation than a private individual.

A printer is liable under the law for defamatory matter printed by him. A.I.R. 1933 All. 434=34 Cr. L. J. 926=1933 A. L. J. 1493=145 Ind. Cas. 126.

14. Procedure.*—S. 499—Allegations against wife's character—Complaint of defamation by husband—If maintainable—Cr. P. Code, S. 198.

A person may be defamed by a scurrilous attack upon the character of his wife although nothing against him personally is alleged, and he himself can file a complaint for defaming him, although no charge for defaming the wife would lie except upon a complaint made by her unless she can bring herself within the exception provided for in S. 198, Cr. P. Code. A.I.R. 1949 Cal. 567=50 Cr. L. J. 972.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Complaint by aggrieved person.

Where the facts alleged prima facie constitute an offence under S. 500, Penal Code, there is no reason why that offence should not be taken cognisance of on a complaint by the aggrieved person. A.I.R. 1942 Lah. 76=44 P.L.R. 7=43 Cr. L. J. 572=199 Ind. Cas. 543.

Where, on the report of the Municipal Engineer and a Municipal Commissioner that some road metal had been removed, a committee of enquiry was formed and some of the members found the reports to be true while others found otherwise and thereupon the contractor who was named in the report as having removed the road metal complained against the Municipal Engineer and the Municipal Commissioner under S. 500, Penal Code;

Held, that the Municipal Commissioner was exercising his official functions in making the report and hence, in the absence of sanction under S. 197, Criminal P. C., the Magistrate had no jurisdiction to issue process against him, and that the Municipal Engineer was not entitled to the benefit of the provisions of S. 197, Criminal P. The ordinary remedy of the person who has had a false suit brought against him is to apply to the Court to prosecute the plaintiff under S. 209, Indian Penal Code. As a general rule it is undesirable that people should be hampered in their access to the Courts and in getting justice by the fear that if they are unsuccessful they may be prosecuted for defamation and therefore all Courts should be careful when a complaint of defamation is filed in respect of proceedings in a Civil Court to see whether the provisions of S. 209 and of the Criminal Procedure Code generally have not been evaded. 86 Ind. A complaint under S. 499, Penal Code, which is made on oath cannot be dismissed on the ground that there is a possibility that the accused might have some defence to the complaint, if true. —Ss. 499 and 500—Procedure—Allegations of defendant or accused—Opportunity to plaintiff or complainant to meet them.

It is the practice of the Allahabad High Court in appeal to give little or no weight to the allegations or charges of a defendant or accused if they ought to have been put to the plaintiff or complainant or his witnesses and have not been so put. A plaintiff or complainant has an absolute right to know exactly the allegations or charges upon which the opposite side are going to rely and they must be put to him or to his appropriate witnesses clearly, specifically and with the utmost plainness, so that he may have an opportunity of admitting them wholly or in part, or denying them wholly or in part, and of calling witnesses to rebut such allegations or charges as he denies. 115 Ind. Cas. 872=26 A.L.J. 196=9 L.R.A.Cr. 90=10 A.I.Cr.R. 101=30 Cr. L. J. 530=A. I. R. 1928 All. 222.

Where the complaint purported to be under Ss. 193 and 211, Indian Penal Code, but the Magistrate, after hearing the evidence, framed the charge of defamation under S. 500, Indian Penal Code, and convicted the accused under that section:

Held, it is quite sufficient that the complainant shall state the true facts in his own language, and it is for the Magistrate to apply the law to those facts. If, in the opinion of the Magistrate, the offence disclosed fell under S. 500, Penal Code, the Magistrate was at liberty to proceed and frame a charge under that section, provided the complainant satisfied the conditions of S. 198 of the Cr. 15. Publication.

—S. 499—Letter sent to person defamed—Person defamed not knowing how to read getting it read by third person—Effect.

Publication of defamatory matter involves the communication of it to some person other than the person to whom it is addressed. Normally there is no publication when a letter containing defamatory imputations is sent direct to the person defamed but when it is proved that the writer knew that the person defamed could not read when he sent the letter and the person defamed gets it read by a third person, it must be held that there is evidence of a publication to a third person, for, in such a case, the writer must have known that the letter would be read to the person defamed by some third person. —S. 499—Delivery of defamatory letter to complainant.

The delivery of the letter containing defamatory matter by the accused to the complainant is obviously not a publication such as would render the accused liable to punishment for defamation as the letter could not have injured the complainant in the estimation of others to whom they were not made known. A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 736=61 C.L.J. 205=37 Cr. L. J. 133=159 Ind. Cas. 527.

—S. 499—Notice issued by President of Notified Area to close windows and door of a building—Reply of accused defaming President—Reply read by members of committee in official routine—Publication—Offence—Sentence.

A Notice under S. 185, U.P. Municipalities Act, was sent from the office of a Notified Area directing a person to close certain windows and a door. His reply to the notice contained an imputation that the President had sent the notice to him because he had refused to accede to a demand of illegal gratification of the President. In the ordinary course of official routine, the President put this reply on the records of the committee and it was read by members of the committee:

Held, that the reply was defamatory and was intended to harm the reputation of the President and that in as much as the President's act of putting it on the records had to be done in the official routine, the accused must have known that it would be communicated to others; there was publication within the meaning of S. 499, Penal Code, and that therefore, the accused was punishable under S. 500, Penal Code.

Held, also, that a sentence of rigorous imprisonment for the offence was illegal. A.I.R. 1933 All. 210=1933 A.L.J. 266=55 A. 253=34 Cr. L. J. 952 (2)=145 Ind. Cas. 392.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Publication—Sufficiency of proof—Delivery of newspaper within the postal area over which Court has jurisdiction.

To prove publication of a libel through newspapers it is sufficient to prove that the paper was delivered within the postal area over which the Court had jurisdiction and it need not be proved that the article was read by some particular person. The analogies of letters sent through the post to private persons and no proof tendered at the trial that the addressees had read the contents are not good analogies as newspapers are governed by a different rule. Newspaper is a commodity meant for reading and it should be assumed that it was so read. 15 Bom. 286, Foll. 115 Ind. Cas. 872=30 Cr. L. J. 530=26 A.L.J. 196=9 L.R.A.Cr. 90=10 A.I.Cr.R. 101=A.I.R. 1928 All. 222.

—S. 499—Proof of act which had the quality of communicating to third persons.

No doubt, one of the elements of the offence of defamation is that the imputation complained of should be made or published by the accused and the onus of proving it is on the prosecution. In the case of a defamatory libel that element is however sufficiently proved when there is evidence that the accused intentionally did any act which had the quality of communicating to a third person or persons generally the alleged libel. And it is not necessary for the prosecution either to allege or to prove that the act of the accused was directed at communicating the libel, to any specified person or persons or that the libel, as a matter of fact, was brought to the notice of such person or persons. Swearing an affidavit containing libel and using it in Court is sufficient publication. 98 Ind. Cas. 124=21 S.L.R. 130=27 Cr. L. J. 1276=A.I.R. 1927 Sind 54.

The accused made certain defamatory statements against the Government official in a petition to the higher authorities and on enquiry she repeated the same statements before the inquiring officials, which amounted to the publication of the original defamatory statements made in the petition. Where a collecting Punchayat gave a chookidari receipt to the complainant, in which he was described as Brithial Bania, held this was not a publication. Omission to apologise is no proof of malice. A charge that the defamation was committed on or about the 12th day of April and afterwards, by describing the complainant as a Brithial Bania was not proper, as it does not set forth the occasions on which the defamation was said to have been committed. (1902) 7 C.W.N. 74=30 C. 402.

—S. 499—Defamation—Exception—Public good — Publication to wider public.

A defamatory publication, justifiable if published for the benefit of a portion of the public, loses its justification if circulated to a wider public. A married woman having contracted a 'pat' marriage with a stranger, the head of the caste condemned it. The successor of the head declared it valid and certain members protested against the action of the head in vain. Thereupon the members published the adulterous nature of the connection in a newspaper which was circulated to a wider class of people than the members of the community. Held, that the publication was unjustifiable and the accused was guilty of defamation. 3 Bom.L.R. 188.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Publishing defamatory matter under guise of rumours—Accused not expressing regret but further aggravating the offence—Severe sentence.

At a time when Hindu Mahomedan differences were very acute a Mahomedan editor published an article under the guise of rumour containing defamatory matter against the complainant who was of perfectly good character, perfectly good reputation, respected in the town in which he lived, a man of position and a man very closely identified with the activities of the Hindu religion. In the article he was charged with having poisoned his own son and of having done that because the son had wished to become a convert to Islam. On being asked by several persons as to what the publication in the newspaper meant, the complainant wrote a letter to the accused in which he set out forcibly, but quite properly, his feelings of the false and malicious and defamatory attack which had been made upon him and the members of his family. He set out certain conditions upon which he would refrain from seeking his remedy against the accused in the civil and criminal Courts. Thereupon the accused instead of expressing at once by a personal letter and in his paper the utmost regret for its publication wrote a letter aggravating the magnitude of the offence.

Held, that the sentence of six months' simple imprisonment was not in any degree adequate for the offence committed and that a more severe sentence should have been passed. 117 Ind. Cas. 355=30 Cr.L.J. 766=26 A.L.J. 509=9 L.R.A.Cr. 104=10 A.I.Cr.R. 145=A.I.R. 1928 All. 321.

—S. 500—Article calculated to stir up communal feelings—Editor a tool in hands of proprietor bearing ill-will towards complainant—Light sentence.

An editor of a newspaper who at a time of intense communal tension first publishes a false and fabricated account of an innocent social function in terms calculated to stir up communal feelings and then maliciously and incorrectly gives out that the false information on which the publication was based, had been supplied by a person who had in fact never done so, cannot be lightly dealt with. But where the editor is a mere tool in the hands of a proprietor who bears ill will towards the complainant, and the proprietor admits that he wrote the article, lenient view should be taken in awarding punishment, though the mere circumstance that such an editor is not the writer of the article or is a dummy editor is no ground by itself for reduction of the sentence. 110 Ind. It is not a pleasant thing for one man to say to another that his father is an opium consumer and his mother a prostitute but, when these words are uttered in the heat of passion, it cannot be said that a serious case of defamation has arisen which calls for a severe penalty. 2 Bur. —Ss. 499 and 500—Extent of punishment.

A fine of Rs. 400 is wholly inadequate for the offence of defamation calculated to cause a breach of the public peace. But a publication published two years ago can hardly be supposed to threaten seriously the public order. 4 S.L.R. 86 = 11 Cr. L.J. 593 = 8 Ind. Cas. 218.

18 (a). Statement in suit or proceeding—By accused.

—S. 499, Excep. 9 and S. 500—Scope of ninth exception—Good faith—Test—Defamatory statements made in written statement by accused in a rioting case—Statements made in good faith and for protection of themselves—No offence.

To secure the protection of the ninth exception to S. 499 of the I.P. Code it is necessary that the imputation should have been made in good faith and for the protection of the interest of the person making it or of any other person or for the public good.

There cannot be any rule of thumb to determine in any particular case whether an imputation is made in good faith or not. Good faith is relative to a great extent and must be determined by the circumstances under which the imputation is made, the social status and level of education of the persons making the imputation and their reasoning capacity.

The petitioners were charged with an offence under S. 500, I.P. Code, in respect of defamatory statements contained in written statements filed by them in answer to a charge of rioting. It was part of the case of the petitioners that the prosecution for the offence of rioting was at the instigation of M who was described in the written statement as a rich and influential man. The Magistrate who tried the case found that this allegation was substantiated to some extent.

Held, (i) As it was an integral part of the case for the accused that the prosecution against them was foisted on them at the instance of M, any statements connecting any of the prosecution witnesses intimately with M and his agents should be deemed to be statements for the protection of the interests of petitioners.

(ii) As the petitioners were persons who were not well educated and faced with a serious charge for the offence of rioting and it was also not without reason that they suspected that the whole case had been foisted by a powerful man like M, any imputation that they made to attack the credibility of one or other of the prosecution witnesses, must be held to have been made in good faith. In the circumstances, the statements fell under Exception 9 to S. 499 of the Penal Code and the petitioners could not be convicted of an offence under S. 500, 1948 M.W.N. 413 (2) = A.I.R. 1948 Mad. 469 = 49 Cr.L.J. 724 = (1948) 1 M.L.J. 420.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Statements by accused.

The statements made by accused in judicial proceedings are not absolutely privileged. A person making a defamatory statement in a judicial proceeding is liable to prosecution for defamation. —Ss. 499 and 500—Cross-examination of complainant—Accused asking the question, whether complainant's husband is habitual offender—Question put out of malice.

Where an accused, in the course of cross-examination of the complainant, asked her whether her husband was not a habitual offender who was restricted under the Habitual Offenders' Restriction Act and this was not at all true nor necessary for testing the veracity of the witness but was made out of malice.

Held, that the accused was guilty under S. 500.

Held also, that the mere fact that the Pleader approved of the question did not affect the case. Because his pleader failed to appreciate his duties properly and failed to advise his client that such a question was an improper question, the question was not made any the less improper, nor did it excuse the intent of the accused in requesting the Pleader to put such a question. A.I.R. 1935 Rang. 293 = 36 Cr.L.J. 1309 = 158 Ind. Cas. 91.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Statement by accused—Evidence of good faith.

The Court in determining the question of good faith should have to take into account the intellectual capacity of the person, his predilections and the surrounding facts.

Where it was found that an accused acted with a desire to protect himself by an appeal to the Magistrate, rather than to injure others the accused is protected by Excep. 8 and 9 of S. 499: 4 Cal. 124, Foll. 33 C.W.N. 446=56 Cal. 1013=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 346.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Petition to Court with defamatory allegations—Considerations—Intelligence of accused.

In matter of a case under S. 500 when it is said to rest upon allegation made in petition to a Court, in determining whether due care was taken by the accused allowances should be made for the intelligence of the accused, his capacity to reason, the circumstances under which he was placed, and the occasion which necessitated his making the imputation. When the facts seem to show that the accused being a comparatively ignorant and timid man apprehending harassment by the complainant did what a man of superior intelligence and knowledge could not have done, namely presented a petition, there can be little doubt that he acted with a desire to protect himself by an appeal to the Magistrate rather than to injure others and he should not be convicted. A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 779.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Accused—Defamation in answer to question—No offence.

In a prosecution under S. 499, where the accused's answer, alleged to be defamatory, was relevant to the matter in issue and arose out of a question put by the Court in a previous criminal proceeding against him:

Held: that the provisions of S. 342 (2) applied and that the accused was not at any rate punishable for making such statement. 8 L.R.A.Cr. 128=8 A.I.Cr.R. 211=25 A.L.J. 855=A.I.R. 1927 All. 707.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Accused—No absolute privilege.

Relevant statements made by an accused person under S. 342 Criminal P.C., or contained in a written statement filed by him with the Court's permission are not absolutely protected from being the subject of a prosecution for defamation under S. 500, I.P.C. on grounds of public policy or exceptions derived from the Common Law of England: 48 Cal. 388 (S.B.). —S. 499, Excep. (9)—Objectionable remarks about the character of complainant, while showing cause against prosecution under S. 188, Penal Code—Plea of good faith.

Objectionable remarks, made against character of the complainant while showing cause why prosecution under S. 188, Indian Penal Code should not be started would come within the 9th exception of S. 499, Indian Penal Code, if it is shown that the imputations were made in good faith and for the protection of the party making them; there is no absolute privilege. 69 Ind. —Ss. 499 and 500—Defamation—Privilege—Accused's status.

The statement of a person charged with an offence in answer to a question put by the Court trying him, is absolutely privileged and he cannot be punished under S. 499 in respect of it. —Ss. 499 and 500—Statement by accused to his pleader.

A statement made by an accused person to his pleader during the subsistence of his relationship of pleader and client, without any intention of harming the reputation of any person is not an offence under S. 499 of the Code. 13 C.W.N. 1087=10 Cr.L.J. 475=4 Ind. Cas. 27.

18 (b). Statement in suit or proceeding—By complainant.

—S. 499, Excep. 9—Complaint in respect of allegation in petition to Magistrate—Plea of privilege based upon Excep. 9—Duty of Court—Matters to be considered.

When a complaint of defamation is made in respect of allegations made in a petition made to a Magistrate, it is necessary for the Court first to see whether the allegations complained of are of defamatory nature. If they are such the Court has then to consider what exception in particular will apply to the case when the accused pleads privilege. If the Court thinks that Excep. 9 to S. 499, I.P. Code, would apply, the Court will decide what interest the accused was protecting by his petition to the Magistrate and whether it was made in good faith. The Court has to consider whether for the protection of his interest the recourse to the Magistrate was proper, and whether it was proper or necessary for the accused to make the allegations made by him, and also whether he acted with due care and caution. Without considering all these matters, it will not be possible for the Court to come to a finding one way or the other on the merits. 3 A.I.Cr.D. 225=A.I.R. 1949 Cal. 292=50 Cr. L. J. 544.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Complaint containing libellous statements—No absolute privilege—Exceptions if exhaustive—Effect of good faith.

The privilege defined by the exceptions to S. 499 must be regarded as exhaustive as to the cases which they purport to cover and recourse cannot be had to the English Common Law to add new grounds of exception to those contained in the statute. A complainant making libellous statements in his complaint is not absolutely protected so far as criminal proceedings are concerned. Under the 8th exception and the illustration to S. 499 the statements are privileged only when they are made in good faith; 36 Mad. 216 and 37 Mad. 110 Overruled. 96 Ind. Cas. 978=49 Mad. 728=1926 M.W.N. 606=27 Cr.L.J. 1026=25 M.L.W. 207=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 906=51 M.L.J. 112. (F.B.).

—Ss. 499 and 500 — Defamatory statement by complainant, when examined by Magistrate—No privilege.

A witness cannot be prosecuted for defamation in respect of statements made by him when giving evidence in a judicial proceeding. But the protection which may be given upon principles of public policy to a witness cannot be given to a complainant who when asked by the Magistrate to state his grievance deliberately makes a defamatory statement without the slightest justification. 69 Ind. Cas. 94=24 Bom. L. R. 400=47 Bom. 15=23 Cr. L. J. 654=A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 381.

—Ss. 499 and 500 — Complaint to magistrate with defamatory allegations — Offence — Applicability of exception—Burden of proof.

Several persons presented a defamatory petition to the District Magistrate complaining of various acts of oppression against the mukhia of a village. An inquiry was held and certain persons were examined as witnesses with the result that the petition was dismissed. The mukhia then filed a complaint under S. 500, Penal Code, against sixteen persons including those who had signed the petition, but the complaint was dismissed under S. 202 of the Criminal Procedure Code. Held, that the complaint being not only against such persons as were called and examined by the District Magistrate but against all the signatories to the petition to the District Magistrate the order dismissing the complaint could not be sustained.

A witness has no greater protection against a charge of defamation than any other person.

A witness in order to be protected from a statement prima facie defamatory made by him must bring himself within one or more exceptions to S. 499. 59 Ind. Cas. 863=3 U.P.L.R. (A.) 35=22 Cr.L.J. 159.

—S. 499—Information given to police officer—Statement made in course of—Privilege—Dead persons—English and Indian Law—Difference.

Statements made to a police officer under Ss. 154 and 155 of the Cr. P. Code in the course of information given to him are privileged and cannot be made the foundation of a charge of defamation. There is a marked difference between criminal liability for defamation under the English law and under the Indian law. The English Criminal Law has mainly to consider whether the defamation is such as would result in a breach of the peace and not the question whether the person was aggrieved by the statements made. In India the defamation consists in its tendency to cause that description of pain which is felt by a person who knows himself to be the object of the unfavourable sentiments of his fellow creatures and in those inconveniences to which a person who is the object of such unfavourable sentiment is exposed. 41 All. 311=17 A. prosecute under S. 211, I. P. C., was rejected, the petitioners could not be proceeded against under Ss. 500 109, I. P. C., on the same facts. It is doubtful whether complainants and witnesses in this country are absolutely privileged as in England. 44 Cal. 970=21 C. W. N. 253=25 C. L. J. 445=18 Cr.L.J. 377=38 Ind. Cas. 761.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Privilege of advocate — English law.

Under the English Law, advocates have absolute and unqualified privilege in respect of questions asked in cross-examination. Advocates in India have not such unqualified and absolute privilege. 104 Ind. Cas. 717=55 Cal. 85=28 Cr.L.J. 877=46 C.L.J. 227=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 823.

—Ss. 499 and 500 — Privilege of advocate—English law.

Under the Common Law of England an advocate can claim an absolute privilege for words uttered in the course of his duty as an advocate. But an advocate in India is not entitled to an absolute privilege, and in cases of prosecution for defamation his liability must be determined on reference to the provisions of S. 499. 97 Ind. Cas. 354=6 Pat. 224=7 P. L. T. 608=1926 P. H. C. C. 314=27 Cr. L. J. 1090=A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 499.

—S. 499. Excep. 9—Scope and extent of immunity enjoyed by Advocates for words said in his capacity as such.

The immunity which an advocate or pleader enjoys in a criminal proceeding for words uttered or written in the performance of his functions as an advocate is not in the nature of an absolute but of a qualified privilege and it is for the prosecution to prove absence of good faith in such a case. Gratuitous remarks reflecting on the conduct of a party, if made with a malicious intent to lower the person concerned in the estimation of his fellowmen in a case where the party's character is not in issue or relevant for the purposes of a right determination of the case, would not protect an advocate from criminal defamation. I.L.R. (1948) All. 370=1948 A.L.J. 540=1948 A.W.R. (H. C.) 140=A.I.R. 1948 A. 409=1948 O. A. (H. C.) 140=49 Cr.L.J. 701.

—S. 499, Excep. 9—Good faith—Presumption—Questions to witness in cross-examination on instructions—Charge of defamation—Liability of party and advocate.

The liability of an advocate or party for whom he appears, in respect of words spoken or written in the performance of professional duty such as cross-examination of a witness of the opposite party depends upon S. 499, I. P. Code; there is only a qualified privilege under the 9th Exception to S. 499, and there is no absolute privilege as under the English common law. It depends on good faith, and good faith will be presumed unless there is cogent proof to the contrary.

Where it is not possible to assume that the questions were put by the advocate upon definite instructions given by the party, the party cannot be prosecuted for defamation in respect of instructions which he might have given to his Counsel. It is the advocate's business to decide whether he could properly act upon the instructions and whatever responsibility might ensue from acting upon those instructions would be his and not the party's. 48 Cr. L. J. 997=A.I.R. 1948 Pat. 56.

—Ss. 500, 499, Exception 9—Pleading signed by Counsel containing defamatory matter—No defamation, unless statement is made in bad faith or maliciously.

A Counsel owes a duty to his client and he must carry out faithfully his client's instructions. If his client makes serious allegations against another party in a suit, it is Counsel's duty to plead those allegations in the plaint or written statement or other pleading. A Counsel, however, must perform his duty with discretion; he should not plead what are obviously irrelevant, wanton, wild and reckless allegations. On the other hand, a Counsel is not a judge in the case and it is not for him to decide whether the allegations made by his client are true or false. He is bound, except in very exceptional circumstances, to accept his client's word. But as Counsel cannot claim absolute privilege, a Counsel who signs a pleading containing serious allegations, lays himself open to a prosecution for defamation. However, he cannot be prosecuted successfully unless it is shown that he acted in bad faith or maliciously. A Court must presume that Counsel who has signed a pleading has acted bona fide and without malice and no Counsel should be called upon to answer a complaint for defamation merely because he has signed a pleading which contains defamatory matter. It must be presumed that the Counsel acted honestly and without malice, in which case he can never be convicted; otherwise Counsel could not possibly discharge their duties to their clients. No summons should, therefore, be issued against a Counsel for defamation unless the Magistrate who directs the summons to issue has some facts before him which suggest that Counsel has acted in bad faith or maliciously. It is not enough that the pleading contains defamatory matter. A.I.R. 1945 Lah: 97=47 P.L.R. 8=46 Cr.L. J. 530=219 Ind. Cas. 48.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Pleader — No defamation unless remark is made wantonly or malicious or private motive.

The Court should presume, when a complaint is made against a legal practitioner for defamation that the remark was made on instructions and in good faith, and there can be no defamation unless the circumstances show that the remark was made wantonly, or from a malicious or private motive. A.I.R. 1940 Rang. 77=41 Cr. L. J. 480=187 Ind. Cas. 463.

—Ss. 499 and 500.

Question by counsel in cross-examination. The presumption is that a question asked by a counsel in cross-examination is one asked under instructions and in good faith and hence is privileged. 1937 M.W.N. 1195.

—Ss. 499, Expl. 9 and 500 — Questions by counsel.

When there is no proof that the Pleader, in putting the questions, was actuated by any motive of private malice, the Pleader is entitled to the benefit of Exception 9 to S. 499 and the charge under S. 500, I. P. C., cannot stand. 1934 M. W. N. 481.

—S. 499 and 500—Pleader cross-examining under instructions in client's interest.

The presumption in the case of a Pleader asking questions in cross-examination is that such questions are put in good faith for the protection of his client's interests within the Exception to S. 499.

Where a Pleader, in cross-examination, asks a question under instructions and in the interest of his client, he should not be convicted under S. 500, I. P. C., especially when it is admitted by the aggrieved party that the Pleader has no malice or grudge against him. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 185=34 Cr.L. J. 865 (2)=144 Ind. Cas. 935.

—Ss. 499 and 500 — Defamation — Advocate—Privilege—Imputations on a person neither party nor witness—Advocate's duty to withdraw remark—Malice—Burden of proof.

A member of the bar in India has no absolute privilege. An Advocate who makes defamatory statements in the conduct of a case has no wider protection than a layman; that is to say, he has to bring his case within the terms of Excep. 9 to S. 499, and under S. 105, Evidence Act, the burden of proof would normally be upon him. But in practice, the Courts have held on grounds of public policy that an Advocate is entitled to special protection, and that if an Advocate is called in question in respect of defamatory statements made by him in the course of his duties as an Advocate, the Court ought to presume that he acted in good faith and upon instructions and ought to require the other party to prove express malice.

Per Broomfield, J.—An Advocate's privilege is limited where the person against whom the imputations are made is neither a party nor a witness. Where an Advocate makes imputations about another on the strength of instructions from his client, and the instructions turn out to be untrue, the Advocate is bound to withdraw the imputation. A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 490=34 Bom. L. R. 910=33 Cr. L. J. 740=139 Ind. Cas. 275.

—Ss. 499 and 500.

When a complaint is made against an Advocate for defamation, it is the duty of the Court to presume that the statement complained of was made on instructions and in good faith and unless circumstances clearly show that it was made wantonly, or from malicious or private motives, the complaint should not be entertained. But no such special presumption can be made in favour of a party or a witness and if a party or a witness makes a statement which prima facie defamatory, the burden will be upon him of proving that the statement is covered by one of the exceptions to S. 499, Penal Code, the exceptions ordinarily applicable to such cases being Exceptions 8 or 9. A.I.R. 1931 Rang. 83=32 Cr. L. J. 934=132 Ind. Cas. 553.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Presumption of instruction and good faith.

It is the duty of a Court, when complaint is made against an advocate for having used defamatory words to ordinarily presume that the remark or question was made on instructions and in entire good faith. A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 823, Foll. 111 Ind. Cas. 569=29 Cr.L.J. 889=11 A.I.Cr.R. 156 (Cal.).

—Ss. 499 and 500—Imputation on character of witness—Presumption of instruction.

It is not defamatory to make an imputation on the character and position in life of a witness, provided that the imputation is made in good faith and for the protection of the client who has engaged the Advocate. The presumption therefore is that a question asked in cross-examination making an imputation as regards a witness affords no ground ordinarily for a criminal prosecution and that it is the duty of a Court when a complaint is made against an advocate for having used defamatory words that it should ordinarily be presumed that the remark in question objected to was made on instructions and in entire good faith. No doubt there may be circumstances which may show that the question or remark objected to was made wantonly or from malice or from private motive, but the greatest care ought to be taken to enquire into the circumstances and an opportunity should be given to the party accused of such offence to offer explanations before summons is issued. 104 Ind. Cas. 717=55 Cal. 85=28 Cr.L.J. 877=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 823.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Questions to witness without good faith.

A pleader must use a certain amount of common-sense and caution in asking a defamatory question. There may be cases where, under proper instructions, he is entitled to ask questions which are defamatory to the person, so as to impeach his credit.

But where the questions were asked with utter recklessness, and without regard to seeing whether there was any truth in them, and with absolute disregard of whether he was entitled to ask them or not and they were asked not for the good of the case but with no other view than publicly to injure the reputation of the witness.

Held: that the questions were asked in absolutely bad faith. 101 Ind. Cas. 600=54 Cal. 137=28 Cr.L.J. 472=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 303.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Privilege—Presumption of good faith.

Utterances calculated to be defamatory by a lawyer in the course of his professional duties and required by his duty to his client are absolutely privileged: 10 Mad. 28 (F. B.) Foll.

When a lawyer acting in the course of professional duties makes a prima facie defamatory statement, good faith is to be presumed and bad faith is not to be assumed unless there is independent allegation or proof of private malice.

Even the presence of malice will not override the presumption of good faith where the statement made was obviously necessary in the interests of the client and when the lawyer could not omit to make it without gravely imperilling the interests of his client and would in fact not be discharging his duty to his client unless he made it.

Where the pleader defending an accused against a charge of making a defamatory statement against the complainant that the latter had infected his wife with venereal disease, made an oral statement in arguments that the defamatory statement was in substance true and had been set out as a fact in a reported judgment of the High Court and put the same statement in the written notes of arguments and thereupon a complaint of defamation was preferred against the pleader.

Held, that as the publication complained of was imperatively necessary for the conduct of the cases in which the pleader was appearing professionally, the statements were made in good faith and could not be made the subject of a charge of defamation. 100 Ind. Cas. 537=50 Mad. 667=25 M.L.W. 295=38 M.L.T. 130=1927 M.W.N. 164=28 Cr.L.J. 313=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 379=52 M.L.J. 269.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Privilege—Duty of prosecution to prove malice.

The liability of a pleader charged with defamation in respect of words spoken or written in the performance of his professional duty depends on S. 499 and the court would presume good faith unless there is cogent proof to the contrary. The privilege is not absolute but qualified, and the burden is cast upon the prosecution to prove absence of good faith.

Where express malice is absent the Court, having due regard to public policy, would be extremely cautious before it deprives the Advocate of the protection of Exception 9. The Court ought to presume his good faith and not hold him criminally liable unless there is satisfactory evidence of actual malice and unless there is cogent proof that unfair advantage was taken of his position as pleader for an indirect purpose. 19 Bom. 340, Foll. 97 Ind. Cas. 354=6 Pat. 224=7 P.L.T. 608=1926 P.H.C.C. 314=27 Cr.L.J. 1090=A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 499.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Qualified privilege—Presumption of good faith—Proof of malicious or improper motive.

Section 499 of the Penal Code is meant to be universal in its application. The English Law of absolute privilege does not apply in India to statements of advocates in judicial proceedings. But a counsel's position is one of the utmost difficulty. He is not to speak of that which he knows; he is not called upon to consider whether the acts with which he is dealing are true or false. What he has to do is to argue as best as he can without degrading himself in order to maintain the proposition which shall carry with it either the protection or the remedy which he desires for his client. If amidst the difficulties of his position he were to be called upon during the heat of his argument to consider whether what he says is relevant or irrelevant, he would have his mind so embarrassed that he could not do the duty which he is called upon to perform; [Munster v. Lamb, L. R. 11 Q. B. D. 588. Foll.] Therefore when a pleader is charged with defamation in respect of words spoken or written while performing his duty as a pleader, the Court ought to presume good faith and not hold him criminally liable unless there is satisfactory evidence of actual malice and unless there is cogent proof that unfair advantage was taken of his position as pleader for an indirect purpose. To rebut the presumption in the pleader's favour it is not sufficient merely to allege that the client knew the imputation to be untrue for the duty of the pleader is to present his client's case. So far, at any rate, as the purposes of a prosecution for defamation are concerned, it would be wholly unreasonable to say that it is the duty of the pleader to enquire whether his client's case is true or false. To rebut the presumption of good faith in such a case there must be convincing evidence that the pleader was actuated by a malicious or an improper motive personal to himself and not by a desire to protect or further the interests of his client in the cause; [9 Bom. L.R. 1287 and 36 Cal. 375, Foll.] It is the duty, therefore, of a Court when a complaint is made against an advocate or legal practitioner for defamation that it should presume that the remark was made on instructions and in good faith; and unless circumstances clearly show that it was made wantonly, or from malicious or private motives, the complaint should not be entertained. Even if the circumstances suggest recklessness or malice, further enquiry should be made and an opportunity, if possible, should be given to a legal practitioner to offer an explanation before summons is issued. 92 Ind. Cas. 737=27 Cr.L.J. 321=4 Bur. L.J. 147=3 Rang. 524=A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 345.

—S. 499 Exc. 9, S. 52 — Counsel or Pleader—Privilege—Questions in cross-examination, if to be limited to instructions—Questions based on recollection—Good faith—Presumption—Due care and attention—Wrong inference—Express malice.

A pleader, especially in the mofussil of this country, where instructions are very commonly inaccurate and misleading, would certainly be at least as much justified in acting on his own recollection as on specific instructions in putting question to a witness in cross-examination; and because he has merely drawn a wrong inference from a fact recollected, that of itself, in the absence of express malice, should not take him out of the 9th Exception to S. 499. When a pleader is charged with defamation in respect of words spoken to or written while performing his duty as a pleader, the Court ought to presume good faith and not hold him criminally liable unless there is satisfactory evidence of actual malice and unless there is cogent proof that unfair advantage was taken of his position as pleader for an indirect purpose. 19 A. 340 foll. (1909) 13 C.W.N. 340=1 Ind. Cas. 147=9 Cr.L.J. 165=9 C. L.J. 259=36 C. 375.

—S. 499—Pleader—Privilege.

Where a pleader is charged with defamation in respect of words spoken or written while performing his duty as a pleader, the court ought to presume good faith and not hold him criminally liable unless there is satisfactory evidence of actual malice and unless there is cogent proof that unfair advantage was taken of his position as pleader for an indirect purpose. A pleader representing a complainant wrote to the trying Magistrate to enquire when the latter would take up the case for trial; and in the letter described the accused as a "notorious wrong-doer." A complaint then filed against the pleader for defamation; and the Magistrate finding that the pleader was not then acting as a pleader, convicted him of defamation. Held, affirming the conviction that the imputation was not made by the accused at a pleader. (1907) 9 Bom. L.R. 1287=6 Cr.L.J. 387.

18 (d). Statement in suit or proceeding—By Judge or Magistrate.

—Ss. 499—Remarks in judgment.

The existence of exceptions to S. 499 indicates that the provisions of S. 77 cannot by themselves cover the case of remarks made by a Judge or Magistrate in the course of his office, so as to exempt him from any liability under S. 500. Where the words complained of are themselves prima facie defamatory and do not bear directly on the matter in hand, there is a prima facie case and the complaint should be admitted even if S. 77 were held to apply. A. I. R. 1934 Nag. 123=35 Cr. L.J. 947=17 N. L. J. 43=30 N.L.R. 234=149 Ind. Cas. 140.

18 (e). Statement in suit or proceeding—By party.

—Ss. 499—Statement made by party—Privilege.

In a criminal prosecution, the question whether a statement was made on a privileged occasion or not must be decided with reference to S. 499, I. P. C., and S. 105, Evidence Act.

A defamatory statement on oath or otherwise by a party to a judicial proceeding falls within S. 499, I.P.C., and is not absolutely privileged. A.I.R. 1931 Rang. 83=32 Cr. L.J. 934=132 Ind. Cas. 553.

—S. 499—Prosecution on basis of statement in affidavit—Plea of privilege.

Where a prosecution for the offence of defamation was launched on the basis of certain affidavits filed in Court:

Held, that the English doctrine of absolute privilege was inapplicable but that the party could rely on the exceptions to S. 499, I. P. Code. 8 Rang. 359=128 Ind. Cas. 371=1931 Cr. C. 369=32 Cr. L. J. 132=A.I.R. 1931 Rang. 81.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Party—No absolute privilege.

A defamatory statement on oath or otherwise, by a party to a judicial proceeding falls within S. 499 of the Penal Code, and is not absolutely privileged. The Court cannot engraft on the provisions of the Code exceptions derived from the Common Law of England or based on public policy: 48 Cal. 388 (S. B.) Foll. 17 Bom. 127 and 17 Bom. 573, Overruled. 93 Ind. Cas. 151=50 Bom. 162=28 Bom. L.R. 1=27 Cr.L.J. 423=A.I.R. 1926 Bom. 141 (F.B.).

—S. 499, Excep. (9)—Party stating that his witness was won over hence not examined—No defamation.

The law of absolute privilege is not applicable in India. But where a party to a civil suit stated in his evidence that a particular witness though cited by him was not examined, as he suspected that the witness was won over by the opposite party:

Held, that what he said was said bona fide in the protection of his own interests, and that he would therefore be protected by the provisions of the ninth exception to S. 499. 94 Ind. Cas. 600=27 Cr. L. J. 648=4 Bur. L. J. 181=A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 360.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Statements in judicial proceedings—No absolute privilege.

In a criminal prosecution for defamation no absolute privilege exists in favour of statements in course of judicial proceedings as such. 84 Ind. Cas. 977=2 Rang. 333=A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 15.

—Ss. 499, Excep. (9) and 500—Statement by applicant in revenue case.

S. 499, Exception 9 would be applicable to the case of a bona fide applicant making defamatory statements to support his application in proceedings before revenue authorities. 67 Ind. Cas. 589=23 Cr. L. J. 429=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 452.

—S. 499—Party to judicial proceeding—Statements filed in Court—Civil and criminal proceedings.

Questions of civil liability for damages for defamation and questions of liability to criminal prosecution do not, for purpose of adjudication stand on the same basis. If a party to judicial proceedings is prosecuted for defamation in respect of a statement made therein on oath or otherwise, his liability must be determined under S. 499, I.P.C. The Court cannot engraft thereupon exceptions derived from the common law of England or based on ground of public policy. Consequently a person in such a position is entitled only to the benefit of the qualified privilege mentioned in S. 492, I. P. C. If a party to a judicial proceeding is sued in a Civil Court for damages for defamation in respect of a statement made therein on oath or otherwise his liability in the absence of statutory rules applicable to the subject must be determined with reference to principles of justice, equity and good conscience. There is a large preponderance of judicial opinion in favour of the view that the principles of justice, equity and good conscience applicable in such circumstances should be identical with the correspondent relevant rules of the common law of England. A small minority favours the view that the principles of justice, equity and good conscience should be identical with the rules in the Penal Code. To take a case out of the primary rule enunciated in S. 499 of the Penal Code and to bring it within either Exception 8 or 9, good faith on the part of the person who makes or publishes the imputation must be established. 48 Cal. 388=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 1=22 Cr. L. J. 31=24 C.W.N. 982=32 C.L.J. 94=59 Ind. Cas. 143 (S.B.).

—S. 499—Statement by party.

In India the English doctrine of privilege does not apply. A defamatory statement by a party to a judicial proceeding is not privileged. The privilege in such case refers to words spoken in ordinary course of proceedings before the Court. 3 U. B. R. (1918) 101=20 Cr. L. J. 125=49 Ind. Cas. 109.

—S. 499—Statement by party in a suit.

A relevant statement of a party to a suit made in good faith without express malice is privileged. 19 Cr. L. J. 641=45 Ind. Cas. 833 (Nag.).

—S. 499—Statements in application for transfer—Absolute privilege, if applies to Indian Moffussil.

English Common Law doctrine of absolute privilege does not apply to Indian Moffussil. S. 499, I. P. C. is exhaustive and a defamatory statement not coming within the specified exemptions is not privileged. Statements made in bad faith in an application for transfer of a case are not protected. 49 Cal. 433=14 Cr. L. J. 100=17 C.W.N. 297=18 Ind. Cas. 660.

—S. 499—Defamatory statement by party opposing registration of will—Privilege.

A defamatory statement made by a person opposing the registration of a will in his petition to the Registrar, is not absolutely privileged, so as to exempt the party making it from liability to be punished for an offence under S. 499 I. P. C. The Registrar in such proceedings is not a Court. (1912) M. W. N. 473=23 M. L. J. 50=13 Cr. L. J. 508=15 Ind. Cas. 652.

Allegations made by an accused bona fide in a petition for divorce after his wife left his house fall within Exception 9 to S. 499. 5 S. L. R. 133=13 Cr. L. J. 25=13 Ind. Cas. 217.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Statements by party or witness in a suit or proceeding.

A person making a defamatory statement as a party or as a witness in a judicial proceeding, which is prima facie defamatory, is liable to be charged under S. 500, I. P. C., irrespective of the question of perjury. Such person can be protected if he pleads and succeeds in applying any of the exceptions mentioned in S. 499. 7 P. W. R. 1911 Cr.=12 Cr. L. J. 193=10 Ind. A party to a suit making a statement under S. 188 C. P. C. is privileged and is not liable to a prosecution for defamation on grounds of public policy. (1906) 30 M. 222.

—Ss. 499, Excep. (9) 500—Statement made in an affidavit—Privilege.

A person would be rightly convicted under S. 500 for making a defamatory statement sua motu in an affidavit if the statement made was wholly irrelevant to the enquiry to which the affidavit related. (1903) 8 C.W.N. 292.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Plaint with defamatory statement—No absolute privilege.

The rules of the English Common Law apply to questions of civil liability for defamation in India, but criminal liability is determined exclusively by the Penal Code. A defamatory statement whether on oath or otherwise, e.g., one contained in a plaint, falls within S. 499 and is not absolutely privileged. 48 Cal. 388 and 40 Cal. 433, Foll. 98 Ind. Cas. 392=7 P. L. T. 587=27 Cr. L. J. 1320=A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 425.

There is no exception to S. 499, Penal Code, that when the defamation is made in a statement to a public servant or in Court proceedings, by virtue of which the offence was punishable under S. 182 or S. 211, Penal Code, or some other section, then no prosecution under S. 500 would lie. Consequently, a complaint under S. 500 cannot be dismissed even if the same facts constitute also an offence under S. 182 and no sanction as required by S. 195, Criminal P.C., is obtained.

—Ss. 499 and 500—Private complaint against witness by person not party to proceedings.

A person giving evidence in a Court of law is not entitled to an absolute privilege in respect of the statements which he makes and, consequently, he is not immune from a complaint of defamation by reason of words uttered on oath in the witness box. It cannot be held that in the case of a person who alleges that he has been defamed and has not been a party to the proceedings at all, cannot move a Magistrate to entertain a complaint in respect of defamation without moving the Court in which the statement was made to make a complaint under S. 195, Criminal P. C., in respect of perjury committed before it. No doubt the Courts should be slow to admit complaints of defamation where the circumstances are such that the accusation is really one of perjury in which the Court should be moved to make a complaint. But this will not apply where the party who alleges that he has been injured was not a party to the proceedings at all, and the complainant is asking for the redress of a personal grievance. Where, in a Court of the Magistrate, a person states in his answers to the interrogatories served on him that the Chief Reader had friendly relations and influence over the Court which acted dishonestly and imposed a fine of Rs. 40, the statement is defamatory against the presiding officer which is a criminal offence under Penal Code, and for which the officer concerned has a remedy by way of filing a complaint:

—S. 503—Ingredients of the offence under—Speech directed against police force stationed at a particular locality in a district—Members of that force, if should have been actually frightened—Presence of such members among the audience, if should be known to the speaker.

S. 503, I. P. Code, would be inapplicable unless the speech alleged to constitute criminal intimidation threatens injury to the person reputation or property of an individual or group of individuals. Whether as a matter of fact any one was actually frightened or not, cannot affect the question of the liability of the speaker under S. 503. Nor is it necessary for the speaker to know that any member or group of persons who are intended to be frightened by the speech was present among the audience. It is the intention of the speaker that has to be considered in deciding as to whether what he stated comes within the mischief of S. 503.

Where a speech was directed against a particular police force stationed in a particular locality in a district and the purport of the speech was to cause fear in the minds of the group of police officials stationed in that district or place:

Held, The speech was addressed to a defined and ascertained body of individuals and was intended to frighten them with injury to their person, reputation or property and hence came within the mischief of S. 503 of I. Before process can issue at the instance of a party, he must produce some materials to show that the opposite party threatened him with injury to his person, reputation or property. A firm cannot commit an offence under S. 506.

After the accused was no longer in the employ of a company, he adopted the course of circularising a number of Firms and Government Departments making prima facie defamatory accusations against his former employers. For the purpose of self-protection, this Firm instructed their solicitors in regard to those circulars and in the usual course, acting with perfect propriety they warned the respondent of the consequences of continuing to issue these statements; but they were prepared, so they said in one of their letters, to refrain from instituting criminal proceedings against him if he was prepared to give an undertaking not to continue these circulars. So far from giving this undertaking, he invited prosecution and consequently, the firm, by their representatives, instituted a complaint against the accused under S. 500, Penal Code. A few weeks before this was done and whilst the correspondence with regard to the defamation case was still going on, by way of a counterblast, accused proceeded to launch a complaint under S. 506 against the firm represented by their directors.

Held, that the letter on which the action under S. 506 was based could not be regarded as a threat within the meaning of S. 503 and the proceedings ought to be quashed. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 367=41 C.W.N. 831=38 Cr.L.J. 924=170 Ind. Cas. 367.

A notice for service was taken to the accused by a constable and when the accused proceeded to write something on it, the constable said that nothing should be written on the back of the notice, except signature in acknowledgment of service. The accused threw away the notice and threatened the constable by saying, "go away, otherwise I shall break your hands and feet. I have seen many such notices".

Held, that the constable's insistence that the applicant should not write anything on the notice except the acknowledgment of service irritated the applicant who used certain words amounting to an idle threat uttered in anger and that it was impossible to construe the threat as one uttered for inducing the constable to make a false report. The accused could not be considered to be guilty of an offence under S. 189 but that the accused's conduct clearly amounted to criminal intimidation and should be punished as such under S. 503, Penal Code. ## —S. 503—Notice on a person by a self-constituted Arbitration Court that an ex-parte decree would be passed against him, if he did not attend.

Per Newbould and Buckland, JJ. (Suhrawardy, J. contra). The President of a self-constituted Arbitration Court caused a notice to be served over signature to a certain person requesting the latter to be present on a given date and arrange for amicable settlement of a certain claim. The notice stated that if the defendant did not attend and answer the claim on that date, the suit would be decreed ex-parte:

Held, a threat of a decree is a threat of harm to an individual in his person, reputation or property. That the tribunal is incompetent to execute its decree is immaterial. S. 503, I. P. C. says nothing about the capacity of the person making the threat to carry it into execution. Nor does the section say anything about the effect upon the person threatened, and whether or not the complainant knew that the notice was innocuous is equally immaterial.

Under Section 44, I. P. C. injury denotes harm illegally caused. By no legal process or means could this tribunal make or give effect to such a decree but as it was the intention of the notice to cause the belief that a decree would be made if he failed to comply with it therefore in that the notice threatened the complainant with such a decree, it threatened the complainant with harm to be caused illegally. The petitioner, therefore, committed the offence of criminal intimidation.

1. Applicability and scope.

—S. 504—Applicability—Provocation to cause other offence than breach of peace.

A person is within the ambit of S. 504 not only if the provocation offered by him is of such a character as to cause the person provoked to commit a breach of peace but even if it is of such a nature as to cause him to commit any other offence: A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 129 Foll. 32 Bom. L.R. 103=1930 Cr.C. 195=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 120.

—S. 504—Provocation likely to cause the person provoked "to commit any other offence" than breach of the peace.

A person also comes within the ambit of S. 504, I.P.C., if the provocation offered by him is of such a character as to cause the person provoked "to commit any other offence," and hence a complaint made under that section should not be dismissed in limine on the ground that the provocation offered was not likely to cause the breach of public peace. 99 Ind. Cas. 604=28 Cr.L.J. 172=7 A.I.Cr.R. 324=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 129.

—S. 504—Object and scope.

The offence contemplated in S. 504, is a serious one. It is obviously intended to deal with persons who are as responsible for breaches of peace or the commission of offences as those who openly abet or incite them. ## —S. 504—Gravamen of offence under.

The gravamen of the offence under S. 504 of the Penal Code lies in the utterer provoking the victim by his words to commit an immediate breach of the peace. That can only occur if he utters the words in the presence of the victim or has them conveyed to him by letter or messenger, and not in a case where the victim is told about them without the utterer asking them to be conveyed to him. 1949 M. W. N. 837 = 4 A.I. Cr. D. 106 = A.I.R. 1950 Mad 273 = 51 Cr. L. J. 704 = (1949) 2 M. L. J. 767.

—Ss. 504 and 95—Ingredients of the offence under S. 504—Letter written by father from the mofussil to daughter in Madras constituting insult to her and to her husband—If constitutes an offence under S. 504—Desirability of applying S. 95, I. P. Code, to cases of this kind.

A mere insult, however gross it may be, is not sufficient to bring the case within the provisions of S. 504, I. P. Code.

To constitute an offence under S. 504, I. P. Code, there must be a likelihood of the breach of the peace as a result of the provocation caused by the alleged insult, and the likelihood of the breach of the peace must be immediately after the provocation or so soon afterwards that it must form part of res gestae.

A letter written by a father from the mofussil to his daughter in Madras though it may constitute an insult to the daughter and her husband would not constitute an offence under S. 504, I. P. Code.

Apart from this, it is a case in which the Magistrate should apply the principle of S. 95, I. P. Code., as it is a domestic quarrel between the father and daughter. 62 L.W. 287 = 1949 M.W.N. 332 = A.I.R. 1949 Mad. 760 = 51 Cr.L.J. 173 = (1949) 1 M.L.J. 445.

—S. 504—Ingredients of offence—Charge—Contents of—Actual words, gestures or attitudes—Necessity for record of.

Where the insult or provocation given consists in gestures or attitudes, the Court must obviously record what those gestures or attitudes were. Where it consists of words, the Court must also record what those words were either in the charge, when a charge is framed, or in the record of the evidence. Before there can be a conviction under S. 504, I. P. Code, it must be shown that the accused used the words attributed to him intending or knowing it to be likely that it would result in such provocation as would cause the person to break the peace, etc. In the absence of all mention as to what the words were which were used, the conviction cannot be upheld as it would be impossible to establish the requisite intention or knowledge. 3 A.I. Cr. D. 288.

—S. 504—Ingredients of offence under—Use of abusive words—Mere finding that abusive words were used without setting out those words—Conviction not sustainable.

To support a conviction under S. 504 of the Penal Code there should be (i) an intentional insult and (ii) the offender should have by such insult given provocation to any person intending or knowing it to be likely that such provocation will cause the latter to break the public peace or to commit any other offence. Where the act alleged to be intentional insult is the use of abusive words, it would be necessary to know what those words are in order to decide whether the using of those words amounted to intentional insult.

Where the Bench Magistrate in convicting the accused had not set out the abusive words in their judgment but were merely content with finding that the accused had abused the complainant;

Held, that the conviction, cannot be upheld because that finding was not sufficient by itself to warrant a conviction under S. 504, I. P. Code. 60 L.W. 271 = 48 Cr.L.J. 970 = A.I.R. 1948 Mad. 9 (2) = 1947 M.W.N. 279 = (1947) 1 M.L.J. 359.

—S. 504—There must be publication to person insulted.

For the offence under S. 504, Penal Code, it is necessary that the insult should be delivered to the person insulted with the intention that he may be there and then provoked to commit an offence but where there is no such publication, no offence under S. 504 is committed. A.I.R. 1939 Pat. 27 = 39 Cr.L.J. 980 = 5 B.R. 40 = 19 P.L.T. 892 = 177 Ind. Cas. 896 (2).

—S. 504—Sensitive feeling of offended person.

The offence under S. 504, Penal Code, does not depend upon the mere sensitive feeling of the offended but upon the intention or knowledge of the offender. Such an intention may be inferred from the circumstances attending insult. A.I.R. 1935 Cal. 736 = 61 C.L.J. 205 = 37 Cr.L.J. 133 = 159 Ind. Cas. 527.

—S. 504—Essentials of offence—Intention or knowledge.

Section 504, Penal Code, provides a remedy for abusive and insulting language, and it requires intention to insult and thereby to give provocation to the person insulted and an intention that such provocation should cause or the knowledge that that provocation is likely to cause the person so insulted to break the public peace or commit any other offence. A.I.R. 1935 Sind 107 (1) = 36 Cr.L.J. 1461 = 158 Ind. Cas. 608.

—S. 504—Elements of insult—Intention of accused—Vulgar abuse—Offence of trivial nature.

To constitute an offence under S. 504, Penal Code, it is necessary to show that the accused intentionally insulted and thereby provoked some person intending or knowing it likely that such provocation would cause him to break the public peace or commit any other offence.

If abusive language is used in such circumstances that the Court comes to the conclusion that it cannot possibly have been intended, and cannot have been understood by those to whom it was addressed to have been intended, to be taken literally, the language cannot be held to amount to an intentional insult. In such circumstances, even if there be a technical offence under S. 504, the circumstances are covered by the provisions of S. 95, and the accused is entitled to an acquittal. A.I.R. 1932 Bom. 193 = 34 Bom. L.R. 282 = 56 Bom. 196 = 33 Cr.L.J. 463 = 137 Ind. Cas. 186.

—S. 504—Abusive language—Intention.

If abusive language is used intentionally and is of such a nature as would, in the ordinary course of events, lead the person insulted to break the peace or to commit any other offence under the law, the case is not taken away from the purview of S. 504, Penal Code, merely because the insulted person exercised self-control or being terrified by the insult, or overawed by the personality of the offender, did not actually break the peace or commit any other offence. A.I.R. 1912 Lah. 480=33 Cr.L.J. 548=33 P.L.R. 695=14 Lah. 92=138 Ind. Cas. 120.

—S. 504—Essentials—Intention to cause breach.

Mere abuse unaccompanied by an intention to cause a breach of the peace or knowledge that a breach of the peace is likely does not come within S. 504. On the other hand an insult which under ordinary circumstances would be likely to provoke the person insulted to cause a breach of the peace is within the provisions of the section although the person insulted may have been reduced to a state of abject terror so as to render improbable that he would commit a breach of the peace. 32 Bom. L.R. 103=1930 Cr.C. 195=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 120.

—S. 504—Intention to provoke breach of public peace or knowledge of its probability.

An insult is no less intentional because it is incidental to another insult or even to another statement or proceeding which is not insulting. But to insult another intentionally is not an offence punishable under Sec. 504 unless the intention is to provoke the person insulted into breaking the public peace, by assaulting him or getting him assaulted or reviling him in loud and angry tones or in any other way or unless there is knowledge that such a disturbance is a probable result of such an insult. 81 Ind. Cas. 903=7 N.L.J. 124=25 Cr. L.J. 1079=A.I.R. 1924 Nag. 121.

—S. 504—Effect of abuse in ordinary circumstances—Temperament of individual—If material.

In dealing with S. 504 the Court has not to judge the temperament or the idiosyncrasies of the individual concerned. It should try to find out what in the ordinary circumstances would have been the effect of the abusive language used. Where there is no doubt that the abusive language used might ordinarily have resulted in broken limbs or at least in an affray and consequent breach of the peace an offence under S. 504 is committed. 31 P. L. R. 892=127 Ind. Cas. 860=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 344 (2).

—S. 504—Provocation to the person insulted—Breach of peace by him not necessary.

Insult under S. 504, which may be inferred from tone and manner of spoken words, consists in an intentional act causing provocation thereby, with the knowledge that the provocation would under ordinary circumstances cause a breach of the peace to be committed, though the person insulted does not commit a breach of the peace in the particular case. 24 C.L.J. 137=21 C.W.N. 95=18 Cr. L.J. 17=37 Ind. Cas. 849.

—S. 504—Insult—Nature of—Sufficient to cause one to lose temper and say or do something violent—Offence.

To constitute an offence under S. 504 it is sufficient if the insult is of a kind calculated to cause the other party to lose his temper and say or do something violent. The public peace can be broken by angry words as well as by deeds. (1902) 4 Bom. L.R. 78.

3 (b). Offence under—What amounts to.

—Ss. 504, 500 — Election meeting — Person belonging to rival candidate attending uninvited and calling the candidate on whose behalf meeting was called "liar, barbarous and ungentlemanly"—Offence, held one under S. 504 and not S. 500.

In the course of election campaign, a meeting was organised on behalf of the complainant or his adherents in the village which appertained to his estate. The complainant reached the village and was taken in procession to the place of the meeting. But he found that the accused and the rival candidate for whom he was working had already occupied the two chairs, although they were not invited to attend the meeting. When the complainant came near, the accused and his adherents shouted "Go back. Down with zamindari" and tried to create a disturbance. The complainant thereupon wanted to leave the place as he thought that his presence would further annoy the accused, who was bent upon creating a disturbance, but the raiyats requested the complainant not to go away. The zamindar then stood on the table to address the villagers numbering about two thousand. The accused then stood on a chair and said that the zamindar was a liar, ungentlemanly, barbarous and tyrannical:

Held, that there was clear intention to insult the complainant. The accused ought to have known that the insult would be likely to lead to a breach of the public peace, which was avoided owing to the most commendable behaviour of the complainant. Though the words used were not defamatory, they amounted to insult within the meaning of S. 504 and the conviction under S. 500 should be altered to one under S. 504. A.I.R. 1945 Pat. 450=11 Cut. L.T. 33.

—S. 504—Word 'behoda' addressed to president of meeting.

The word 'behoda' is an offensive expression particularly when it is uttered in the course of a defence.

Where it appeared that the word 'behoda,' was addressed to a person occupying the position of the president of the meeting and it was used with an intention to insult him knowing that he will be provoked to cause breach of peace.

Held, that the conviction in the case was proper under S. 504 Penal Code. A.I.R. 1934 Nag. 239=17 N. L. J. 131=35 Cr. L.J. 1420=151 Ind. Cas. 777 (2.)

—S. 504—To police officer—Accused without justification using the expression Pahle munh se bakko towards Police come to serve notice on him—Offence.

Where an accused person without any justification used the offensive expression pahle munh se bakko towards a police official come to serve a notice upon him as instructed by the district authorities:

Held, that the use of the expression was intentionally insulting and likely to provoke a breach of the peace and hence he was guilty under S. 504. 104 Ind. Cas. 437=28 Cr. L.J. 821=A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 702.

—S. 504—Pulling by beard—Offence.

Whatever the previous provocation may be, a man who pulls the beard of a mahomedan in the public street, intentionally insults him and thereby causes him provocation, knowing that such provocation is likely to cause the victim to break the public peace. 86 Ind. Cas. 79=23 A.L.J. 73=26 Cr. L.J. 703=6 L. R. A. Cr. 101=A.I.R. 1925 All. 318.

—S. 504—Abuses in mosque.—Accused entering for prayer—No offence.

The petitioner had gone to mosque for midday prayer as usual; when the service was over he was asked by some others why he had on former occasions abused the moulvi and the congregation. On his attempting a denial, witness was sent for and an altercation followed, the petitioner then began to abuse all and sundry employing obscene epithets and uttering threats.

Held, that the intention of wounding the feelings of the moulvi and congregation was quite clear but the alleged "trespass" was not and that the conviction under S. 297 was wrong.

Held further, that the mere fact that the petitioner was a trustee does not take this case out of the purview of S. 297, and in the circumstances an offence under S. 504 was committed and that being a cognate offence conviction was altered under that section. 81 Ind. Cas. 41=1 Rang. 690=25 Cr.L.J. 553=A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 106.

—S. 504—Imputation of 'badmashi'.

The offence of calling a man beiman and badmashi would fall under Section 504 and not under Section 500. 4 Lah. L.J. 480=51 P.L.R. 1922=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 459.

—S. 504—Barrister not privileged.

A barrister is not privileged when his conduct is likely to cause an assault. 19 Cr.L.J. 666=45 Ind. Cas. 1002 (Nag.).

—S. 504—Abuse and threat to strike.

An abuse and threat to strike offered by persons while being remonstrated with, for intentionally preventing the complainant from irrigating his crops, is an insult causing a breach of the peace which under S. 504 may be of spoken words only or of conduct or actions of men. 1 Pat. L.W. 536=18 Cr.L.J. 463=39 Ind. Cas. 303.

3 (c). Offence under—What does not amount to.

—S. 504—Offence under—Mere vulgar abuse.

Mere vulgar abuse does not amount to an offence under S. 504, Penal Code and even if it is a technical offence, it would be covered by S. 95 of the Penal Code barring cognizance by Courts in view of their triviality 51 Cr.L.J. 764=A.I.R. 1950 M. B. 25.

—S. 504—Gross insult.

An insult, even if a gross insult, is not an offence in itself under S. 504. What is punished under this section is something very much graver than that. A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 672=55 L.W. 421=(1942) 2 M.L.J. 101=1942 M.W.N. 437=44 Cr.L.J. 10=203 Ind. Cas. 321.

—S. 504—Accused in speech abusing zamindarini and her agents while addressing on inam legislation.

Where the accused abuses the zamindarini and her agents in the course of his speech on a certain inam legislation but neither the zamindarini nor her agents are present at the meeting, the conviction of the accused under S. 504, Penal Code, is unsustainable. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 683=1941 M.W.N. 373=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 610=53 L.W. 566=42 Cr. L.J. 827=196 Ind. Cas. 171.

—S. 504—Shouting "shameless fellow, I will shoe you," during discussion.

Shouting the words "shameless fellow, I will shoe you," during discussion with another person does not amount to an offence under S. 504, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 681=1940 M.W.N. 390 (2)=(1940) 1 M.L.J. 655 (1)=51 L.W. 516=42 Cr. L.J. 48=190 Ind. Cas. 630.

—S. 504—Mere vulgar abuse—"De minimis non curat lex."

Held, that the words uttered being mere vulgar abuse, the complaint under S. 504, Penal Code, should have been dismissed at the outset on the principle "De minimis non curat lex," which is contained in S. 95, Penal Code. (1936) 160 Ind. Cas. 420 (1)=18 N.L.J. 170=37 Cr. L.J. 296.

—S. 504.

Retort by the manager of a theatre to the angry audience that "if you ask for money, we will beat you with shoes," held did not amount to an offence. 1935 M.W.N. 819.

—S. 504—Accused saying to Assistant Sub-Inspector, "You are a tyrant. Justice cannot be expected from you".

The accused was convicted under S. 504, Penal Code, for saying to an Assistant Sub-Inspector of Police during an investigation, "You are a tyrant. Justice cannot be expected from you":

Held, that it is absurd to suggest that words such as these are likely to cause a Police Officer of the rank of Assistant Sub-Inspector to commit a breach of the peace and although the act of abusing Police Officers is most reprehensible, it does not, in general, necessarily involve an offence under S. 504, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1935 Pesh. 122=36 Cr.L.J. 1210=157 Ind. Cas. 753.

—S. 504—Complainant engaged in dispute with owner of shop and asked to leave shop.

Where the complaint, in substance is that the complainant, a Police Sergeant, went to a shop and there became engaged in a dispute with the owner as a result of which he was asked to leave the shop, a conviction under S. 504 is not justifiable. A.I.R. 1935 Sind 107 (1)=36 Cr. L.J. 1461=158 Ind. Cas. 608.

—S. 504—Using contemptuous name—Arora being called a kirar—No offence.

The word kirar may sometimes no doubt have a somewhat contemptuous signification. Aroras are kirars, though no doubt they may not be pleased to be called so. Calling an arora a kirar is no offence under S. 504. 65 Ind. Cas. 635=23 Cr. L.J. 171=A. I. R. 1922 Lah. 455.

—S. 504—Intentional insult—Discourtesy and bad manners, whether amount to insult.

To constitute offence under S. 504, insult must be caused intentionally there by provoking with intent that the person should break public peace. Discourtesy and bad manners do not amount to an offence under the section. 2 U.P.L.R. (All.) 124=18 A.L.J. 515=221 Cr. L. J. 451=56 Ind. Cas. 435.

—S. 504—Mere abuse not an offence.

To constitute an offence under S. 504 mere abuse will not do without an intention to cause breach of the peace or knowledge that a breach of the peace is likely to be caused. 39 Mad. 561=28 M. L. J. 505=2 L. W. 463=17 M.L.T. 398=(1915) M.W.N. 365=16 Cr. L. J. 477=29 Ind. Cas. 109.

—S. 504—Abusive language used after provocation—Entry in pleader's room—Objection to—Persistence in entering

Where the complainant who was not a pleader intruded into the pleader's room at Belgaum to see some pleader but whose presence there was objected to by another pleader, but the complainant persisted in intruding whereupon the other pleader used abusive language, held, that the pleader was protected by S. 95 taking into account his subsequent apology. 15 Bom.L.R. 1039=15 Cr.L.J. 14=22 Ind. 4. Sentence.

—S. 504—Punishment—Substantial fine.

Where a person, while under the influence of liquor, abuses another and is convicted under S. 504, the most appropriate punishment is a substantial fine looking to the means of the accused. 21 P. W. R. Cr. 1911=12 Cr.L.J. 435=11 Ind. Cas. 619.

—S. 505.

—S. 506—Offence under—Acquiescence or consent of party—Whether can invest Court with jurisdiction other wise not possessed—Plea of want of jurisdiction not raised during trial—Effect.

Any acquiescence or even consent cannot invest a Court with jurisdiction of which it is not otherwise possessed. Consequently, where an accused is charged under S. 506, Penal Code, an offence not triable by Bench Magistrates invested with Second Class powers, the mere fact that no objection is raised against the jurisdiction of the Bench Magistrates during the trial does not invest the Bench Magistrates with jurisdiction to try the offence. Police officer raiding accused's shop in order to seize revolver in his possession—Accused firing shot at Police officer without causing hurt—Accused charged with attempt to murder under S. 307—Intention of causing death not proved:

Held, accused fired with an object to cause intimidation, and if criminal intimidation amounts to a threat to cause death or grievous hurt it falls under latter part of S. 506 which offence is less grave than the offence coming under S. 307. The accused, therefore, could not be charged under S. 307 and should be convicted under lesser offence. 1931 M.W.N. 861.

—S. 506—Charge for offence under S. 341, I. P. Code—Magistrate framing charge under S. 506 also—Legality.

Where the accused are challaned under S. 341, Penal Code, only, the trying Magistrate is justified in charging them under that section as well as under S. 506, Penal Code, and his procedure in doing so is perfectly regular. 4 O.W.N. (P. C.) 283, Foll. 7 O.W.N. 1048=A.I.R. 1931 Oudh 73=32 Cr.L.J. 350=129 Ind.Cas. 166 (F.B).

—S. 506—Charge under—Discharge of an offence under S. 500.

Where process was issued against an accused under S. 506 and he was tried under that section, but he was discharged under S. 500 his plea under S. 506 not being recorded. Held, that his plea under S. 506 ought to have been recorded, that his discharge under S. 500 was without jurisdiction, and that the proceeding were irregular. 13 Cr.L.J. 488=15 Ind. Cas. 488 (Cal.)

—S. 506—Deterrent punishment—Infliction—of Principles.

It is of some importance that the theory of deterrent punishment should not be loosely put into practice, and that the principles upon which alone a deterrent penalty should as a rule be inflicted clearly, comprehended. Deterrent punishments are now regarded only as of utility under exceptional circumstances. When waves of imitative crime such as for example garrotting, gang robbery, (or dacoity as it is called here) and forgery of counterfeit coin or notes commence to sweep over a State judicious and increasing severity may properly be utilised to check and deter such an inundation; again in times of public tumult when there is a danger of wide breach of the public peace or security or where a highly organised or what one may call semi-professional association of persons engineer series of offences such as swindling or burglary, deterrent punishments may be with caution advantageously inflicted. Such a category is naturally not exhaustive but illustrative only; and sound knowledge, experience and a proper sense of perspective are alone the guides which can safely be followed in concluding whether the use of such an aid to the maintenance of the order and tranquillity of a locality is properly permissible and desirable. To adjust the punishment, so as to make it appropriate and to balance it, so that it justly fits the gravity of the offence but does not shock the public conscience (and thus wrap and dull the public's social sense and appreciation of crime as evil), should be the aim. 63 Ind. Cas. 615=2 P.L.T. 596=1922 Pat. H.C.C. 14=22 Cr.L.J. 679=A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 267.

—S. 507—Proof—Evidence of hand-writing expert.

Where the evidence offered in corroboration of that of the expert is itself unsatisfactory and the expert evidence is further discounted by the fact that the impression which the questioned writing produces on the mind of one conversant with the Urdu characters is quite different from that produced by the admitted writing of the accused and there is absolutely no evidence of a circumstantial nature from which an inference of guilt can be drawn, it cannot be said that the accused was the writer of the abusive document complained of and he cannot be convicted under Ss. 506 and 507, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1936 All. 165=1936 A.W.R. 119=37 Cr.L.J. 263=1936 A.L.J. 317=160 Ind. Cas. 264.

—S. 508—Interpretation.

A mere threat at large that if a debt is not paid, then by operation of divine laws, displeasure will fall upon the debtor is not sufficient to attract S. 508, Penal Code, as that section contemplates that the person intended to be harmed will be made the object of divine displeasure by some act of the offender. A.I.R. 1944 Sind 203=I.L.R. (1944) Kar. 146=46 Cr.L.J. 149=216 Ind. Cas. 216.

—S. 509—Indecent letter sent to a woman by post though closed in an envelope—Offence.

Where the accused sent by post to an English nurse, an unmarried woman having no previous acquaintance with the accused, a letter containing indecent overtures.

Held, that the accused intended to insult the modesty of the complainant and the mere fact that the letter was in a closed envelope before it reached the complainant is immaterial. 93 Ind.Cas. 247=50 Bom. 246=28 Bom. L.R. 99=27 Cr.L.J. 455=A.I.R. 1926 Bom. 159.

—S. 509—Outraging modesty of particular woman.

In order to constitute an offence under S. 509, there must be some individual woman or women whose modesty has been outraged and though it is not necessary that individual woman should herself make a complaint, there must be an allegation that the action complained of, has insulted the modesty of some particular woman or women and not merely of any class or order or section of women, however small. 86 Ind. Cas. 968=19 S.L.R. 87=26 Cr.L.J. 904=A.I.R. 1925 Sind 271.

—S. 509—Ingredients.

S. 509, makes intention to insult the modesty of a woman the essential ingredient of the offence. This intention was held wanting where the accused entered in the middle of the night the room of the complainant with whom he had previous acquaintance, and who used to speak to strangers and give pan supari to visitors. (1903) 5 Bom. L.R. 502.

—S. 510.

Offence under S. 510 is not an offence involving a breach of the peace. The order for security under S. 106, Criminal P.C., in such a case is, therefore, unsustainable. A.I.R. 1940 Mad. 755=1940 M.W.N. 531 (1)=52 L.W. 66 (2)=42 Cr.L.J. 16=191 Ind. Cas. 240.

Synopsis.

1. Applicability of section
2. Attempt
3. Miscellaneous.

1. Applicability of section.

—S. 511—Applicability—Offences punishable with death.

Section 511 is a general section that makes punishable all attempts to commit offences punishable with transportation or imprisonment and not those punishable with death, which is a specific offence under the Penal Code. A.I.R. 1945 Lah. 334=47 P.L.R. 229=I.L.R. (1945) Lah. 403.

—S. 511—Offence under Bengal Food Adulteration Act.

Section 511 has no application to an attempt to commit an offence under the Bengal Food Adulteration Act. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 710=41 C.W.N. 1213=39 Cr.L.J. 252=I.L.R. (1938) 1 Cal. 420=172 Ind. Cas. 869.

—S. 511—Attempt at extortion—Offence.

Section 385 does not expressly provide for the punishment of an attempt at extortion; and the limitation in S. 511 evidently relates to such offences as an attempt to commit suicide or an attempt to obtain illegal gratification which are expressly punishable by other sections of the Code. Therefore, a charge under S. 384 read with S. 511 is not bad. 98 Ind. Cas. 60=27 Cr.L.J. 1244=A.I.R. 1927 Pat. 89.

—S. 511—Application to special laws.

The sections of 'attempt to commit offences' may be applied to offences under special law, though the Code itself does not apply. 40 Mad. 34=4 L.W. 82=20 M.L.T. 180=(1916) 2 M.W.N. 161=31 M.L.J. 178=17 Cr. L.J. 321=35 Ind. Cas. 497.

—S. 511—Attempt to export opium—Exporting of opium—Parcel opened by Post Office and sent for identification of consignee.

S. 511 does not apply to the offence of attempting to export opium. The offence is therefore not punishable at law. The accused tendered a parcel of opium at the Post Office for despatch to Burma, the parcel was opened by the Postmaster at the place of despatch on account of information received and sent on to Burma by the Postal authorities marked 'doubtful' with a view to the identification of the consignee. Held, that the accused did not commit the offence of exporting opium under S. 9 (c) of the Opium Act as the parcel was seized by the authorities for despatch and ceased to be in the Post Office on accused's account before it left India for Burma. 2 P.R.Cr. 1911=6 P.W.R.Cr. 1911=108 P.L.R. 1911=12 Cr.L.J. 116=9 Ind. Cas. 682.

2. Attempt.

- (a) Essentials
- (b) What amounts to
- (c) What does not amount to.

2 (a). Attempt—Essentials.

—S. 511—Attempt to commit offence—What amounts to—Act of preparation.

An attempt to commit an offence, as contemplated by S. 511, I. P. Code, is an act, or series of acts, which leads inevitably to the commission of the offence, unless something, which the doer of the act or acts neither foresaw nor intended, happens to prevent it. An act done towards the commission of an offence which does not lead inevitably to the commission of the offence, unless it is followed or perhaps preceded, by other acts, is merely an act of preparation. 3 A.I.Cr.D. 277=A.I.R. 1949 Pat. 326=50 Cr.L.J. 682.

—S. 511—Attempt and preparation—Distinction—Difference between this section and S. 307.

An attempt to commit a crime must be distinguished from the preparation to commit it. Preparation consists in devising or arranging the means or measures necessary for the commission of the offence. It differs widely from attempt which is the direct movement towards the commission, after preparation has been made. The question whether a certain act is merely one of preparation or one committed in the course of an attempt is a question of fact. Acts remotely leading towards the commission of the offence are not to be considered as attempts to commit it, but acts immediately connected with it are. The difference between mere preparation and actual attempt to commit an offence consists chiefly in the greater degree of determination in attempt as compared with preparation.

There is a clear difference between the definition of attempt in S. 511 and that given in S. 307, I. P. Code. To convict a person of an attempt to murder under S. 307 it must be shown that he has done some act with such intention that if by that act he caused death he would be guilty of murder, i.e., the act must have been capable of causing death and if it had not fallen short of its object it would have constituted the offence of murder. But under S. 511 it is only necessary to prove an act done in the attempt towards the commission of the offence. This section was never meant to cover only the penultimate act towards completion of an offence. 30 P. R. (Cr.) 1904; 14 P. R. (Cr.) 1914; 10 L. 253; I.L.R. (1940) Luck. 194; 15 A. 173 and 20 I.A. 90, fol. Pak. L. R. (1948) Lah. 154.

—Ss. 511, 420.

A man may be guilty of an attempt to cheat although the person he attempts to cheat is forewarned and is, therefore, not cheated. A. I. R. 1941 Oudh 3=1940 O. W. N. 819=41 Cr.L.J. 881=1940 A.W.R. 381=16 Luck. 194=190 Ind. Cas. 259.

—S. 511—Question is whether anything was effected to carry out illegal purpose.

For an offence under S. 511, Penal Code, the question is not whether the persons were preparing to commit or abetted the committing of an offence, but whether anything was effected to carry out the illegal purpose, if any. A.I.R. 1936 Rang. 358=14 R. 597=164 Ind. Cas. 522.

—S. 511.

In order to constitute 'attempt' under S. 511, the actual transaction must have begun and an act to bear upon the mind of the victim must have been done before a preparation can be said to be an attempt. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 893=37 C.W.N. 1151=35 Cr.L.J. 97=61 C. 54=146 Ind. Cas. 590.

—S. 511—Attempt—Essentials—Completion of offence—If necessary.

An attempt to commit an offence is punishable under S. 511 though the final act short of actual commission of that offence has not been accomplished. 110 Ind. Cas. 812=10 Lah. 253=10 A.I.Cr.R. 567=29 Cr.L.J. 780=30 P.L.R. 405=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 551.

—S. 511—"Attempt" defined.

Attempt is an act done in part execution of a criminal design, amounting to more than mere preparation, but falling short of actual consummation, and possessing, except for failure to consummate all the elements of the substantive crime; in other words, an attempt consists in the intent to commit a crime, combined with the doing of some act adapted to, but falling short of its actual commission; it may consequently be defined as that which if not prevented would have resulted in the full consummation of the act attempted.

Where the accused stepped across from his own roof to that of his neighbour at night and caught hold of his daughter, got on to the charpoy with her, undid the string of her pyjama and was seen struggling with her when the neighbour's wife came up in answer to her daughter's cries, and he then ran away:

—S. 511—Essentials.

In the offence of cheating the actual transaction must have begun and an act to bear upon the mind of the victim must have been done before a preparation can be said to be an attempt. 99 Ind. Cas. 127=28 Cr. L. J. 95=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 77=51 M.L.J. 635.

—S. 511.

Under the Penal Code all that is necessary to constitute an attempt to commit an offence is some external act, something tangible and ostensible of which the law can take hold as an act showing progress towards the actual commission of the offence. It does not matter that the progress was interrupted. 103 Ind. Cas. 408=28 Cr. L. J. 680=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 634.

—S. 511—Preparation and attempt — Books wherein entries were changed by accused not having left accused's hands—Difference between attempt and preparation.

There is a wide difference between the preparation and an attempt to commit an offence. The preparation consists in devising or arranging means necessary for the commission of an offence, an attempt is the direct movement towards the commission after the preparations are made.

Where a clerk, in charge of weighing the sugar-canes which were brought to the sugar company for sale, entered in the register higher weight of the sugar-cane but the register had not left his hands:

Held, that his action had not passed from the stage of preparation into that of an attempt to cheat. 65 Ind. Cas. 492=23 Cr.L.J. 108=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 307.

—S. 511—Attempt—Overt-act.

Where an overt act is begun which would have led to the finished offence, but for an interruption arising independently of the will of the accused, it is a complete case of an attempt to commit the offence. 15 Bom. L.R. 568=14 Cr.L.J. 433=20 Ind. Cas. 593.

—S. 511—Attempt—Preparation.

The commencement of action which, if not interrupted, would have ended in the crime, is an attempt to commit the crime and not a mere preparation. 37 Bom. 553=15 Bom. L.R. 564=14 Cr.L.J. 451=20 Ind. Cas. 611.

—S. 511—Attempt—When complete.

An attempt to commit an offence is punishable under the Penal Code. To constitute an attempt it is necessary to prove some external act, something tangible and ostensible of which the law can take hold as an act, showing progress towards the actual commission of the offence. It is immaterial if the progress was interrupted. 34 Bom. 378=12 Bom. L.R. 21=11 Cr.L.J. 180=5 Ind. Cas. 612.

—S. 511—Attempt—Intention.

Attempt implies intention. To constitute attempt something more than mere intention must be done. 32 Mad. 384=5 M.L.T. 393=9 Cr. L. J. 456=2 Ind. Cas. 33.

—S. 511 and 447—Attempt obstructed by an un contemplated obstacle.

If a man who has a evil intent does an act which is the last possible act that he could do towards the accomplishment of the particular crime, he cannot pray in his aid an obstacle, intervening not known to himself. 9 C.L.J. 432=10 Cr.L.J. 57=2 Ind. Cas. 593.

—Ss. 511, 415, 417—Attempt to cheat, what constitutes:

An attempt to deceive by false representation of fact involves that the person charged should have taken some step towards the communication of the representation to the person whom it was his intention to deceive. (1903) 8 C.W.N. 278 (F. B.).

—S. 511—Attempt to commit offence.

Per Ranade, J.—S. 511, does not relate only to the penultimate act, but to all preceding acts if they were done with the intent to commit or facilitate the commission of the act. (1900) 25 B. 90=2 Bom. L.R. 653.

—S. 511—Attempt—Definition.

An attempt is an intentional, premeditated action which, if it fails in its object, fails through circumstances independent of the person who seeks its accomplishment. If its failure is to be attributed to something which he cannot control, its failure is no excuse. (1906) 8 Bom. L. R. 421=30 Bom. 421=4 Cr. L. J. 1.

—S. 511—Intention—How inferred.

Per Hartnoll, J.—To form an intention the man must have the knowledge to do so. But if he has the knowledge he must go a step further than having mere knowledge. (Per Young, J.)—Intention in most cases is to be inferred from the nature of the acts done and the circumstances of the case. The general presumption is that a man intends the ordinary and natural

2 (b). Attempt—What amounts to.

—S. 511—Offence, held fell under S. 511 and not S. 379.

The accused was caught while attempting to steal the purse of P from his pocket. P, however, seized the purse from outside his pocket and also the accused's hand:

Held, that although the accused did move the purse for the purpose of committing theft, he did not commit the offence of theft, because he was unable to move the purse from the possession of P. The offence was therefore, one punishable under S. 511, Penal Code and not under S. 379, Penal Code. A.I.R. 1942 Mad. 521=55 L.W. 297 (1)=(1942) 1 M. L. J. 591=1942 M.W.N. 376=44 Cr.L.J. 501=206 Ind. Held, on facts that there was not merely preparation but attempt to cheat and accused could be convicted under S. 420 read with S. 511. A.I.R. 1941 Oudh 3=1940 O.W.N. 819=41 Cr.L.J. 881=1940 A.W.R. 381=16 Luck. 194=190 Ind. Cas. 259.

—S. 511—Attempt to cheat—A asking Currency Office for payment for two halves of two currency notes—Currency Office making payment already to L—Non-execution of an indemnity bond by A—A prosecuted under Ss. 511 and 420—Offence.

An attempt to commit an offence is punishable under S. 511 though the final act short of actual commission of that offence has not been accomplished.

A informed the Currency Office that he had lost two halves of two currency notes of Rs. 100 during a journey and after getting instructions received in reply to his enquiries, he forwarded to the Currency Office the halves of these two notes still in his possession with the prescribed application forms and affidavits testifying that he was the owner of the notes. The Currency Officer had however already paid the value of these notes to a firm on representation by that firm that the halves of the notes had been stolen from L, one of the partners who was carrying them from Delhi to Ahmedabad. A was prosecuted under S. 511 read with S. 420, Penal Code. The trying Magistrate, without recording any clear finding as to the dishonest intention of the accused in endeavouring to recover the value of the currency notes, acquitted him on the ground that it was the practice of the Currency Offices not to make payment in such cases until the claimant had executed an indemnity bond, and as no such indemnity bond had been executed by A, his conduct had not amounted to an attempt to cheat but had remained within the stage of preparation for the offence.

Held: that acquittal was bad as the execution of the bond of indemnity was not a portion of the application and was an act which would ordinarily take place before the act of cheating is completed. The applicant would be willing to take the money without an indemnity bond and by his making a false attempt in asking for the money the offence would be just as complete whether an indemnity bond was or was not insisted upon: 15 All. 173 and 16 Cal. 310, Foll. 110 Ind. —S. 511—Attempt to cheat—Sending false claim papers as to quantity of paddy burnt.

The appellant had insured his stock of paddy which was burnt by fire; he made a claim on the basis that 75,040 baskets of paddy were stored. It was found that the mill godown could not accommodate more than 15,000 baskets.

Held, that the claim was not a mere exaggeration but was a false statement as to the quantity stored; that the 1st appellant having sent the notice of the fire and also the claim papers, must be regarded as having gone beyond the mere stage of preparation to the stage of attempt. 82 Ind. —S. 511—Cheating—False pretences made and intention to defraud present but they being the means of obtaining of property not proved—Offence.

If an accused is indicated for obtaining property by false pretences and the evidence proves that the accused made the alleged false pretences, that they were false, and that the accused had an intent to defraud but the evidence fails to prove that the accused obtained the property or that the alleged false pretences led to the obtaining of the property, the accused may be convicted of the offence of the attempt to obtain by false pretences. 65 Ind. —Ss. 511, 108 and 135—Helping desertion of sepoys.

The accused who were helping a regimental sepoy, a Head Constable and a Gharwala believing the latter two also to be regimental sepoys, to desert their regiment, were guilty of attempting and abetting the desertion of sepoys in the army under S. 135 and Ss. 108 and 511, I. P. C., although the regimental sepoys never intended to desert and had offered to do so only to entrap the accused. 10 S.L.R. 159=18 Cr. L. J. 431=38 Ind. Cas. 991.

—Ss. 511—Attempt to administer poison—Quantity of poison is not known.

The accused was proved to have put some powder into the food of the prosecutor's family. The Chemical Examiner found in the food some vegetable matter similar to dhatūra seeds. There was no evidence as to the quantity of the poison found in the food, held that the accused cannot be said to have intended to cause anything more than hurt and the offence was punishable under S. 328 and S. 511 of the Penal Code. 5 L.B.R. 79=3 Ind. —S. 511—Offences regarding election—Fraudulently obtaining signature slip—No offence.

The accused went to the officer who had the custody of signature slips. He did not give out his name but produced a certain piece of paper which bore a certain number. The officer looked at that number, then looked at the electoral roll and discovered that against that number the name of one L appeared. On being asked by that officer if he was L, the applicant said he was. A patwari of the village was there and he said that the applicant was not L but was one M. There was a dispute and ultimately the applicant admitted that he was M and not L.

Held, that the obtaining of the "signature slip" was an act which by itself would not have amounted to an application for a voting paper. 84 Ind. Cas. 711=22 A.L.J. 1102=26 Cr. L. J. 359=6 L.R. A.Cr. 20=A.I.R. 1925 All. 226.

—S. 511—Attempt to commit rape—Taking off clothes.

The accused took off the girl's clothes, threw her on to the ground and then sat down beside her. He said nothing to her nor did he do anything more to her. Held, that the accused committed an offence under S. 354 and was not guilty of an attempt to commit rape. 116 P. L. R. 1912=16 P. W. R. 1912 Cr.=13 Cr. L. J. 469=15 Ind. Cas. 309.

Cas. 352 (F. B.).

—S. 8—Criminal P. C., S. 30—Effect of S. 8 of Ordinance and S. 30, Criminal P. C.

S. 30, Criminal P. C. is essentially a section conferring jurisdiction. It gives Magistrates power to try offences which otherwise they cannot try.

The used of the word "Court" in S. 8 of the Penalties (Enhancement) Ordinance, rather than the use of the word "Magistrate" makes no difference. The two words here mean the same thing. S. 30, Criminal P. C. deals with the trial of offences, but confers no power to pass a sentence. Section 8 of the Penalties (Enhancement) Ordinance, 1942, deals with the trial of offences, but confers no power to pass sentences. Section 30, Criminal P. C. may well be read with S. 8 of the ordinance. The effect is to remove the bar to the jurisdiction of the Magistrate, functioning as a Court under S. 30, Criminal P. C., that would otherwise prevent his trying offences punishable with death. Therefore, the Magistrate, under S. 30 of the Code, can try an offence arising out of the contravention of R. 35, Defence of India Rules, even though the offence be punishable with death, and having jurisdiction to try such offences under S. 30, Criminal P. C., it necessarily follows that under S. 34, which supplements S. 30, he has the power to pass a sentence of seven years' rigorous imprisonment, if the offence is otherwise so punishable.

As the offence under R. 35 of the Defence of India Rules is punishable with seven years' rigorous imprisonment under S. 5 of the Ordinance, the Magistrate functioning under S. 30, Criminal P. C. can impose that sentence. A.I.R. 1943 Sind 87 = I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 597 = 44 Cr. L.J. 461 = 206 Ind. Cas. 283.

—Collector—Certificate—Effect of.

Where the Collector once gives a certificate under the Pensions Act, which entitles a party to claim a certain right in a civil court, then the effect of that certificate is to give to the party the right to claim in a Civil Court whatever he is entitled to in virtue of that right. Hence where a certificate given by the Collector refers only to the plaintiff's share in the allowance for particular years, and permits the plaintiff to establish his right to a share in a civil court the plaintiff is not bound under the Pensions Act to get a certificate for each year's allowance before suing for it. (1903) 5 Bom. L.R. 950 = 28 B. 241.

—S. 3—Compensation for forest dues—Sum payable by Government as compensation for forest dues—No pension.

A sum payable by the Government as compensation for forest dues in respect of Jagir land taken over by the Government for forest purposes is not a pension but a grant of money or land revenue and is not exempted from attachment. 121 Ind. Cas. 664 = A.I.R. 1930 Nag. 134.

—Ss. 3 and 4—Grant—Land revenue—Resumption by Government—Suit to declare invalidity.

S. 4 of Act XXIII of 1871 does not require that the grant should be of the land revenue alone in order to shut out the jurisdiction of the Civil Court. The latter has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit relating to a grant of land revenue. Even where land revenue is granted along with the land itself, a Civil Court has no jurisdiction to determine a suit which relates to the land revenue alone. Freedom from liability to land revenue is not identical with holding a grant of land revenue. The land revenue arising from a man's own holding, when it is remitted and the land pays nothing, is rather extinguished than granted. 1 B. 75 at P. 81, Ref. The Pensions Act (XXIII of 1871) contemplates money payments to be received through the Collector from recorded persons bound to pay revenue. Whether when there is a grant of the land revenue only to a person already owing the kudivaram right, there is anything in S. 4 of the Act XXIII of 1871, construed in the light of Regulation IV of 1832, and Act IV of 1862, to take away the jurisdiction of a Civil Court with respect to a claim to the kudivaram right. 23 M.L.J. 687 =

1. Applicability and scope.

—S. 4—Scope—Grant, if falls within—Considerations—Grantee of land revenue becoming owner of land—Effect of.

In order to find out whether a grant falls within the scope of S. 4 of the Pensions Act, we have to look at the substance of what has been granted or continued by Government, whatever may be the purely legal view as to the nature of the right granted and if the grant consists merely in the right to collect the land revenue, at any rate in the time of the British Government, or if it included this right in addition to other rights as well, then what we have to see is whether that right to collect the land revenue comes within the provisions of Pensions Act or not. A distinction cannot be drawn between a grant of land revenue and the right to collect land revenue. S. 9 of the Act, which provides that nothing in Ss. 4 and 8 shall affect the right of grantee of land revenue to collect the revenue for himself, seems clearly to show that the right to collect the land revenue for oneself was regarded in the scheme of the Act as a grant of land revenue. A grant of land revenue does not cease to be such a grant when the grantee becomes himself the owner of the land over which the grant extends. What has to be seen is whether the land itself has, at any time, been made exempt from revenue. The question whether there is a sort of merger, and whether the land becomes revenue-free when the jagirdar purchases the rights of an owner, cannot be made to depend upon the nature of jagir. 222 Ind. Cas. 22=A.I.R. 1946 Lah. 268.

—Ss. 4, 5 and 6—Applicability and scope—Desaigiri—Suit to recover share of allowance received by defendant.

A suit by the plaintiff to recover her share of the desaigiri allowance received by the defendant is not a suit relating to a pension and is not barred under any of the Ss. 4, 5 or 6, Pensions Act. It is a suit for money had and received. A.I.R. 1945 Bom. 496=47 Bom. L.R. 360.

—S. 4—Applicability and scope—Grant of land revenue only—Suit with respect to such grant is barred by S. 4.

Where a jagir is a grant of land revenue only and not of the soil, a suit in respect of such grant is barred by S. 4 of the Pensions Act. A.I.R. 1943 Sind 100 =I.L.R. (1942) Kar. 559=208 Ind. Cas. 138.

—S. 4—Applicability and scope—Bar under—Nature of—Whether applies to appeals.

Quaere (in Order of Reference).—Whether, in view of the provisions of Ss. 4 to 6, Pensions Act, there is an inherent want of jurisdiction in Civil Courts to entertain suits relating to pensions and whether, even after a decree for sale of pension has been passed by a Civil Court, it is open to the judgment-debtor to question the right of the decree-holder to sell the pension in execution of the decree. —Ss. 4, 11—Scope of.

A Suit for declaration to the effect that the plaintiff is entitled to have his name recorded in the register of cash allowances kept by the Collector as the person to whom a cash allowance is to be paid in preference to defendant is not cognizable by a Civil Court. A.I.R. 1931 Bom. 144=32 Bom. L.R. 1420=55 Bom. 119=130 Ind. Cas. 30.

—S. 4 — Applicability and scope.

Section 11 refers merely to pensions whereas S. 4 refers not only to pensions but to grant of money or land revenue conferred whatever may have been the consideration of any such grant. S. 4 is wider than S. 11 and includes matters which do not come under S. 11. 52 A. 868=1930 A.L.J. 1326=A.I.R. 1930 All. 681.

—S. 4—Applicability and scope—Religious endowment.

A suit relating to an endowment for religious or pious purposes does not fall within the purview of S. 4, Pensions Act. 22 Bom. 496, Foll.; A.I.R. 1922 All. 22 and 16 Bom. 537, Rel. on; and 31 Mad. 12 not Foll. 107 Ind. Cas. 899=11 N. L. J. 14=A.I.R. 1928 Nag. 189.

—S. 4 — Applicability and scope — Private parties.

S. 4 applies to a suit between private parties and not only to a suit against Government. 31 Bom. 512; 14 Bom. L.R. 938; 20 Bom. 325 and A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 148, Rel. on. 100 Ind. Cas. 138=28 Bom. L. R. 1477=A.I.R. 1927 Bom. 81.

—S. 4—Applicability and scope.

Section 4 of the Act does not apply to a case of grant of land free of revenue. It applies only where the grant is of land revenue only. 99 Ind. Cas. 452=50 Mad. 441=25 M.L.W. 660=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 140=51 M.L.J. 695.

—S. 4—Applicability and scope—Partition of inam.

Where the plaintiff sued for partition of her share in certain unenfranchised personal inams belonging to her husband's family and devised to her by his Will;

Held, that S. 4 of the Pensions Act did not bar Civil Court's jurisdiction. 99 Ind. Cas. 452=50 Mad. 441=25 M.L.W. 660=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 140=51 M.L.J. 695.

—S. 4—Applicability and scope—Suit for declaration—Intention to claim pension—Effect.

It is not open to a Court when deciding the application of S. 4 of the Pensions Act to enquire into the plaintiff's motives. Simply because the plaintiff intends using the declaration which the Court may grant to him, for the purpose of prevailing upon the authorities concerned to accept his claim to the pension, a suit for declaration under S. 4 of the Pensions Act is not made untenable, nor does there exist a sufficient ground for dismissing such suit in the exercise of the discretion conferred by Section 42 of the Specific Relief Act. 80 Ind. Cas. 606=27 O. C. 353=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 210.

—S. 4—Applicability and scope—Saranjam right—Suit for possession.

S. 4 of the Pensions Act is no bar to a suit to recover back possession of land in which saranjam right is resumed by the Government. 41 Bom. 408=19 Bom. L.R. 117=39 Ind. Cas. 65.

—Ss. 4 and 6—Applicability and scope—Assignment of Government revenue—Jurisdiction of Civil Courts.

A Civil Court is precluded from making any declaration that would in any way directly or indirectly affect the liability of Government to pay a grant of Government revenue to any person. 37 All. 338=13 A.L. J. 460=29 Ind. Cas. 146.

—S. 4—Applicability and scope—Grant of land by Government—Suit about Melwaram—Jurisdiction of Civil Court.

Where certain land is granted by Government, the grant cannot be split up into two distinct grants of Melwaram and Kudiwaram so as to fall under S. 4 of Pensions Act in respect of the claim for Melwaram. But where the grant is of the land revenue only the suit relating to it is not cognizable by Civil Court. 36 Mad. 559=23 M.L.J. 728=(1912) M.W.N. 807=16 Ind. Cas. 18.

—S. 4—Applicability—Suit for partition.

The pre-requisite of filing a certificate under S. 4 of the Pensions Act is not applicable to a suit for partition of the Inam among the members of the family to which it was given and it does not also apply where the grant is of land also and not merely of the land revenue. 7 M. 191; 36 M. 591; 36 M. 559; 33 A. 580, Foll. 1 L.W. 670=16 M.L.T. 239=27 M.L.J. 618=26 Ind. Cas. 87.

—S. 4—Applicability and scope—Grant for charitable purposes—Suit to set aside order imposing full assessment—Jurisdiction.

S. 4 applies only to personal grants and endowments for religious or pious purposes do not fall within the purview of the section. Consequently, a suit for setting aside a Government Order imposing full assessment on lands granted to plaintiff's ancestors for the charitable purpose of feeding Brahmins is cognizable by Civil Courts. (1907) 17 M.L.J. 549=3 M.L.T. 104=31 M. 12.

—Ss. 4—Applicability and scope—Agreement relinquishing claims to pension and family property in consideration of maintenance—Maintenance not made charge on pension—Suit for recovery of maintenance not barred.

Where under a karar the plaintiff, a Hindu woman, gave up to the 1st defendant various claims which she had in regard to the family property and also her claim to portion of the pension granted to her by Government and in consideration therefor the 1st defendant, as the person liable to maintain the plaintiff, agreed to pay her Rs. 100 per mensem until her death; —Held, that a suit by her for the recovery of such maintenance is one not "relating to any pension" and is not barred by S. 4. (1906) 17 M.L.J. 139=30 M. 266=2 M.L.T. 188.

—S. 4—Applicability and scope—Civil Court's jurisdiction.

S. 4 debars the Civil Court from entertaining a suit relating to a pension or grant of money conferred by the Government whatever may have been the consideration for such pension and whatever may have been the nature of the payment in lieu of which such person was granted. 38 Cal. 378=13 Cr.L.J. 360=15 C. W. N. 470=9 Ind. Cas. 859.

—Ss. 4 and 11—Applicability and scope—Sale of unenfranchised inam in execution.

An unenfranchised inam can be attached and sold in execution of a decree of a Civil Court. 6 M.L.T. 132=20 M.L.J. 88=4 Ind. Cas. 1057.

2. Collector's certificate.

—Ss. 4 and 6—Suit without Collector's certificate—Maintainability—Effect of obtaining certificate after filing of suit.

Per Desai, J.:—The words of Ss. 4 and 6 of the Pensions Act absolutely bar a Civil Court's entertaining a suit without the Collector's certificate. The existence of such a certificate is the condition precedent to a Civil Court's assuming jurisdiction over a suit. If there is no certificate it has no jurisdiction at all over the subject matter. The absence of such a certificate is not a defect which can be waived or can be remedied at a later stage in the suit. Where it is obtained after expiry of period of limitation, it is of no effect because the cause of action is dead by that time.

Per Bhargava, J.:—The words "upon receiving a certificate from such Collector" used in S. 6 of the Pensions Act suggest that the certificate may not be filed along with the plaint and it may be received by the Civil Court even after the suit had been filed. Strictly speaking the non-production of the certificate cannot be considered "a defect of a technical character"; but, when the certificate is received by the Civil Court from the Collector or is produced before the Civil Court before the final adjudication of the claim, the Court can take cognizance of the claim as provided in S. 6 of the Act. 1950 A.L.J. 185=A.I.R. 1950 A. 371=1950 A.W.R. 250.

—S. 4—Collector's certificate.

Government granting pension to son-in-law and daughters of Nawab—Death of one daughter—Payment of portion to descendants of daughter and investment of balance for benefit of descendants of daughters on lapse of pension—Death of surviving daughter—Accumulated capital replaced by political pension—Suit for account and administration of fund:

Held, that S. 4 applied and the plaintiff could not sue without obtaining a certificate from the Collector. A.I.R. 1935 Bom. 439=37 Bom.L.R. 763=160 Ind. Cas. 846.

—S. 4—Collector's certificate—Suit for share in cash allowance payable to family—Collector's certificate, if can be produced in Appellate Court.

In a suit for a share in certain cash allowances payable to a family, the certificate of the Collector under the Pensions Act can be produced in the High Court on appeal. A.I.R. 1935 Bom. 227=37 Bom. L.R. 343=156 Ind. Cas. 626.

—S. 4—Collector's certificate—Purchase of 'Desaigiri haq' from Hindu widow—Entry in register—

Subsequent order that entry was only for life of widow—Suit by purchaser for declaration of title—Certificate under S. 4, necessity of.

Where the plaintiff purchased from a Hindu widow an allowance in respect of a Desaigiri haq and on his application, his name was entered in the Watan register with the Commissioner's sanction, but he was subsequently informed that his name was entered only during the widow's life time and the plaintiff instituted a suit against the Secretary of State for a declaration that he was the full owner, without obtaining a certificate under S. 4, Pensions Act:

Held, that the suit was bad for want of the certificate. A.I.R. 1931 Bom. 505=33 Bom.L.R. 1029=134 Ind. Cas. 1217.

—S. 4—Collector's certificate—Jurisdiction of civil and revenue courts.

The jurisdiction of a civil court and of a revenue court alone is limited by the terms of S. 4. It does not take away the jurisdiction of the Court of Revenue to entertain a suit by the transferee of the assignee of the land revenue. Under S. 5 a suit relating to land revenue must be determined by a Revenue Court in accordance with the rules laid down by the chief revenue authority. Under Ss. 4 and 6 a Civil Court cannot entertain such a case except after receiving a certificate from the Collector authorizing it to try the case. 1929 A.L.J. 724=11 L.R.A. Rev. 65=A.I.R. 1929 All. 781.

—S. 4—Collector's certificate—Land revenue and land—Grant of land revenue—Suit for the land—No certificate from Collector—Jurisdiction of Civil Court.

A certain person S was given a pension and at his request a portion of it was commuted into the grant of seven villages in jagir which was to endure for three successive lives. S afterwards applied to Government for the grant of one other village in lieu of six of the seven villages. A careful calculation was made by the Government of the extent as well as the berij of the villages proposed to be given up by S and of the villages asked for in exchange. In the original sanad no intention was expressed to give full ownership in the land. The exchange was then allowed and a jodi of Rs. 11 was fixed on the two villages, which fell into arrears. In order to realize the arrears revenue authorities attached the villages and as dues were not paid, Government resumed the jagir of the villages. S brought a suit against Government to recover possession of the villages:

Held, that what was granted to S was only land revenue and not land, and that the question being whether land was granted or not, it was not incumbent on the Government to prove that the grant was subject to limitations. Provisions of S. 4, Pensions Act, were therefore applicable. Hence in the absence of a certificate from a Collector, the Civil Court's jurisdiction to entertain a suit as regards the grant of the villages was barred. A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 477; A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 1167, not Appl.; 23 M.L.J. 687; 32 Bom. 432, per Batchelor, J., at p. 438; and 12 Mad. 98, Rel. on; A.I.R. 1917 P.C. 94; 31 All. 382; 26 All. 617; A.I.R. 1923 P.C. 6, and A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 140, Dist. 114 Ind. Cas. 626=1928 M.W.N. 763=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 1246.

—S. 4—Collector's certificate—Commutation of Kulkarni vatan—Suit by co-sharer—Certificate of Collector.

Suit by one co-sharer for his share of cash allowance in commutation of kulkarni services received by another co-sharer cannot be maintained without certificate from Collector. 88 Ind. Cas. 975=26 Bom. L.R. 1165=A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 148.

—S. 4—Collector's certificate—Recovery of revenue—Suit by one Inamdar to recover revenue received by another—No certificate—Maintainability of suit.

A suit by an inamdar to recover revenue of inam village received by another person is not maintainable in a Civil Court in the absence of a certificate from the Collector under S. 4. 18 Bom. 516, Dist. 100 Ind. Cas. 138=28 Bom. L.R. 1477=A.I.R. 1927 Bom. 81.

—S. 4—Collector's certificate—Effect.

Though a suit cannot be entertained without a certificate from the Collector, still even an appeal should not be rejected for want of certificate, but plaintiff should be allowed time to produce it. 82 Ind. Cas. 486=6 L.L.J. 343=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 113.

—S. 4—Certificate of Collector—Suit for share in Sar Deshmukhi Haq.

A suit against the Secretary of State to recover a share in the Sar Deshmukhi Haq cannot lie in the absence of the certificate under S. 4 of the Act. S. 4 is not ultra vires. 22 Bom. L.R. 1176=59 Ind. Cas. 452.

—Ss. 4 and 6—Collector's certificate—Suit relating to grant.

A certificate under S. 6 of the Pensions Act is not necessary to entertain a suit relating to a grant which is given to grantee's male descendants. 22 Bom. L.R. 959=58 Ind. Cas. 331.

—S. 4—Declaration—Share in vatan—Collector's certificate.

A suit for declaration that the plaintiff is the owner of a certain share in a kulkarni vatan falls within S. 4 of the Pensions Act and is not maintainable without the certificate of the Collector. 42 Bom. 257=20 Bom. L.R. 325=45 Ind. Cas. 580.

—S. 4—Collector's certificate—Suit for share in Deshpande Kulkarni Vatan.

A suit for a declaration of an eight-anna share in the Deshpande Kulkarni Vatan, consisting of a cash allowance whether coupled with a prayer to recover the actual cash received or not, falls within the class of suits defined by S. 4 and is consequently not maintainable in a Civil Court unless a Collector's certificate is obtained. 37 Bom. 91=14 Bom. L.R. 938=17 Ind. Cas. 661.

—S. 4—Collector's certificate—Grant of the soil.

Where there is a grant of the soil and not merely of the revenue of certain villages, the provisions of the Pensions Act do not apply and a certificate is unnecessary. 32 All. 148=37 I.A. 39=14 C.W.N. 310

—S. 4—Certificate from Collector—Suit based on agreement to receive maintenance out of cash allowance—Suit relating to a pension or grant of money.

Under an agreement between the plaintiff and the defendants the former was entitled to an annual payment of Rs. 52 for her maintenance out of a cash allowance which was received by defendants from Government. She brought this suit to enforce her right under the agreement, but did not produce the certificate from the Collector required by S. 4.—Held, that the certificate was necessary. The words of the section are wide enough to include any suit or to enforce such a claim provided it relates to a pension or grant of money of land revenue; it is immaterial whether the claim is based on an agreement between the parties or arises out of any other legal rights or liability and whether it is a claim for a share by way of partition or maintenance or otherwise. (1907) 9 Bom. L.R. 889=31 B. 512.

—Ss. 4, 9—Collector's certificate—Suits for arrears of assessment—Certificate.

Suits for arrears of assessment from Khatedan holding lands in an inam village by the inamdar whose right to the inam has been admitted by Government are by S. 9 exempted from the necessity of a certificate required by S. 4. 10 A. 396 foll. (1904) 6 Bom. L.R. 423.

—Ss. 4, 6—Collector's certificate—Grant of land revenue—Heritable right—Mortgage—Foreclosure—Certificate—Competent authority—Non-production—Practice.

S. 4 of the Pensions Act is applicable to a heritable right to land revenue granted by Government. A certificate from the Collector or other officer authorized to grant the same should be produced before a suit relating to such heritable right to revenue can be entertained. Where the litigant was misled by the collector or other authority into the belief that the certificate was unnecessary, time was given for the production of such certificate. 1902 A.W.N. 187=25 A. 73.

3. Construction.

—S. 4—Construction—Suit relating to property subject of grant—Plaintiff's claim independent of grant—If falls under S. 4.

The Pensions Act is to be construed strictly in favour of the right of suit. A suit relating to property which has been the subject of a grant but in which plaintiff's claim is quite independent of the grant is not a suit relating to a grant of land revenue within the meaning of S. 4, Pensions Act. A.I.R. 1939 Bom. 513=41 Bom. L.R. 882=185 Ind. Cas. 839.

—S. 4—Construction of—Suit to recover land revenue of inam lands—Grant of soil—Certificate if necessary.

Section 4, Pensions Act, as it ousts the ordinary jurisdiction of the Civil Courts, should be construed strictly. Where, in a suit to recover land revenue of inam lands, the grant is not one of land revenue only but of the soil also, S. 4 will not apply and, therefore, certificate is not necessary though the relief claimed in the suit is with regard to the revenue. A.I.R. 1933 Bom. 23=34 Bom. L.R. 1455=141 Ind. Cas. 360.

—S. 4—Construction.

S. 4 does not cover a suit to recover the possession of land or to obtain a declaration of right to hold land. The words 'relating to' should be construed strictly with reference to the words following them. The right to hold land, even though it be not as proprietor of the soil, is incontestably one of which the civil courts can take cognizance, if not barred by provision of statutes and the fact that the holding is claimed to be exempt from payment of land revenue does not change the suit into one relating to the grant of money or land revenue. (1905) 7 Bom.L.R. 497=29 B. 480.

4. Interpretation.

—S. 4—Interpretation — "Suit relating to pension"—Meaning of.

An action involving the question whether or not a pension which has become due is attachable by the District Magistrate for realisation of punitive tax imposed under S. 15 (3) of the Police Act, is not a suit relating to a pension within the meaning of S. 4 of the Pensions Act. 1948 O. W. N. 241=A.I.R. 1949 Oudh 31.

—S. 4—Interpretation — 'Suit'—Execution proceeding not included.

The word 'suit' in Act does not include execution proceedings. (1905) 7 Bom.L.R. 659=30 B. 101.

5. Pension.

—S. 4—Pension.

A sanad granted by the British authorities to a Prince recited that it had been established that the Prince held the villages in rent-free tenure under the former Government, and that the Chief Commissioner under the authority of the Governor-General in Council, was pleased to maintain the tenure in perpetuity, so long as there are lineal heirs, subject to certain conditions. One of the conditions was that the jahagirdar and his heirs should strictly perform all duties of landholders:

Held, that the language of the sanad was inconsistent with the view that the grant made by the British Government, was merely an assignment of land revenue, and was not a grant of revenue-free property. A mere assignee of the land revenue could hardly be expected to perform the duties of the land-holder and it conveyed a heritable and transferable estate; that it did not amount to a pension, and the provisions of the Pensions Act had no application. A.I.R. 1936 Oudh 121=1935 O. W. N. 1232=11 Luck. 588=159 Ind. Cas. 311.

—S. 4—Pension—Grant of land revenue—No pension.

The legislature meant to make a distinction between grant of land revenue and pensions under Ss. 4 and 11 and grant of land revenue cannot be regarded as a pension for the purpose of S. 11. 4 Bom. 432, Rel. on. 31 P.L.R. 538=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 816.

—S. 4—"Pension"—Assignees of land revenue subsequently becoming proprietors of land—Status.

A grant of immovable property is not to be treated as 'pension' within the Pensions Act. Where originally the Government assigned only the land revenue to certain persons and subsequently, when the proprietors of the soil died or became extinct, a settlement was made with the pensioners themselves.

Held, that the fact that the Government made the settlement with the pensioners did not convert the pensioners into grantees of revenue-free immovable property. The nature of the grant must depend on what the Government gave and not on what may happen irrespective of the wishes of the Government. If the Government gave only the land revenue any acquisition of the lands by the pensioners themselves could not make them "a grantee of the immovable property."

Held further, that so long as the Government did not make a revenue-free grant of the land, it could not be said that there was a merger of the two different rights, simply because the pensioners had been long in possession as zamindars. 87 Ind. Cas. 569=47 All. 557=23 A.L. J. 463=6 L.R.A. Civ. 289=A.I.R. 1925 All. 565.

—Ss. 4 and 6 — Pension — Muafi land since British rule—Pension—Grant of land revenue, meaning of alienation.

A village granted to the ancestor of the defendant by a Hindu Raja long prior to the establishment of the British rule was held as Muafi. The grant of the village is neither a pension nor a grant of land revenue within the meaning of the Pensions Act, 1874, but an ordinary Muafi which could be transferred by sale or mortgage and that the Pensions Act did not apply. 33 All. 580=8 A.L. J. 692=10 Ind. Cas. 353.

—Ss. 4 and 11—Pension—Wasika allowance—Pension.

A 'Wasika' allowance is guaranteed by the British Government in consideration of a loan of 1825 by the then ruler of Oudh and must be deemed to be a pension within Ss. 4 and 11 of Act XXIII of 1871. 12 O.C. 323=4 Ind. Cas. 145.

6. Second appeal.

—S. 4—Second appeal.

Finding that rights in question are not connected with grant of pension within the meaning of Act is one of fact and cannot be disturbed in second appeal. A.I.R. 1940 All. 373=1940 A.L.J. 420=1940 O.W.N. 950=1940 R.D. 452=1 L.R. (1940) All. 603=1940 A.W.R. 397=190 Ind. Cas. 3 (F.B.).

—S. 4—Second appeal—Suit as Pattedar—Collector's certificate necessary—Adjournment—Second appeal.

A suit for a declaration of a right to a share of the Pattedari of a village is not entertainable without the Collector's certificate under the Act. Where a plaintiff is guilty of considerable laches in not curing a technical defect in his plaint, he cannot be given in second appeal after the case has been argued, an adjournment for the purpose of enabling him to cure the defect. 23 A. 104. Dist. 7 S. L. R. 5=20 Ind. Cas. 508.

7. 'ultra vires.'

—S. 4—Not 'ultra vires.'

S. 4, so far as it deals with pensions and grants of land revenue, is not ultra vires. 100 Ind. Cas. 138=28 Bom. L.R. 1477=A.I.R. 1927 Bom. 81.

—S. 4—If ultra vires—Provisions in their application to Ratnagiri District—If ultra vires.

The provisions of the Pensions Act dealing with pensions and grants of land revenue in District Ratnagiri are not ultra vires. 40 Cal. 391; 5 Bom. H. C. App. 1; 2 Bom. 99. Ref. and 27 All. 338, Cons. 59 Ind. Cas. 452=45 Bom. 196=A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 125.

—S. 6.

See: Grant. 28 A. 104=1905 A.W.N. 206.

—S. 6—Certificate under—Cause of action.

It cannot be said that the certificate under S. 6 permitting the plaintiff to bring the suit is part of the cause of action in respect of the suit. The absence of the certificate is a bar to the bringing of the action but no such certificate would be given unless a cause of action already existed. The giving of the certificate under S. 6 removes the bar which prevented the plaintiff from bringing the cause of action into Court. It does not give the plaintiff a new cause of action. A.I.R. 1944 Oudh 139=1944 O.W.N. 37=1944 A.W.R. (C.C.) 11=19 Luck. 515=216 Ind. Cas. 276.

—S. 6—Suit without Collector's certificate—Certificate, if can be allowed to be produced later on.

It would be taking much too stringent a view of the provisions of S. 6, Pensions Act, to hold that the Civil Court is debarred from taking cognizance of a claim even though the certificate has been produced subsequently, if it was not produced at the time of the institution of the suit. The suit is not bad ab initio by reason of its being filed without a Collector's certificate and where at the hearing of such a suit, the necessary certificate is not produced, the Judge ought to grant the plaintiffs' application for an adjournment in order that the certificate might be obtained and produced. A.I.R. 1937 Oudh 484=13 Luck. 584=1937 O.W.N. 1131=171 Ind. Cas. 33.

—S. 6—Applicability—Voluntary grant by Government to shrine—Suit for declaration of right to office of Sajjada Nashin to shrine—Certificate, if necessary—Claim, if affects liability of Government.

Where a voluntary grant is made by Government to a shrine but the grant is resumable at the pleasure of the Government and a suit is instituted for declaration of the plaintiff's right to the office of Sajjada Nashin of the shrine, the claim not being one for a pension or grant, no certificate is necessary under S. 6, Pensions Act, and as the grant has been made voluntarily by the Government which could be withdrawn at any time at Government's absolute pleasure, the decree which the plaintiff sought would not affect any liability of Government directly or indirectly. A.I.R. 1937 Pesh. 65=169 Ind. Cas. 319.

—S. 6—Certificate of Collector—Necessity of fresh certificate for fresh suit.

Under S. 6, Pensions Act, a certificate from the Collector is necessary for every case to be tried by the Civil Court.

Where the predecessors-in-interest of the plaintiff had obtained the certificate and instituted a suit against the defendant's father and obtained a decree:

Held, that the certificate was not sufficient for a suit in 1931 after there had been a novation of the grant in the defendant's favour. A.I.R. 1933 Lah. 336=14 Lah. 48=34 P.L.R. 587=149 Ind. Cas. 952.

—S. 6—Certificate by Collector—Temple receiving grant—Suit by wahiwardar of a temple receiving a grant from the trust fund set apart by the British Government—No certificate from Collector—Maintainability.

The plaintiff brought a suit as wahiwardar of the Shri Jagriteshwar Deostham at Nagpur which claims the amount from trust fund which has been set apart by the Government and placed under the indenture dated 24th October 1866 for three instalments due to him in respect of his services as wahiwardar of the temple against trustees who formed a committee of the temple:

Held, that the suit was not maintainable without a certificate from the Collector. 22 Bom. 496, Foll; 31 Mad. 12, Dist. 107 Ind. Cas. 899=11 N.L.J. 14=A.I.R. 1928 Nag. 189.

—S. 6—Certificate of Collector—Cognizance of suit—Claim to land revenue.

The suit relating to a grant of land revenue by the British Government cannot be taken cognizance of except upon a certificate from the Collector under S. 6. 93 Ind. Cas. 634=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 333.

—S. 6—Saranjam inam—Suit to recover—Certificate of Collector—Failure to produce certificate—Appeal—Remand.

The grant of a Saranjam should be presumed to be a grant of the land revenue and not of the soil. In a suit to recover a saranjam a preliminary issue was raised 'whether the suit lies without a certificate under the Pensions Act.' Plaintiff's pleader having admitted the necessity of the certificate, the Court decided that the certificate was necessary and gave time to the plaintiff to produce it. Plaintiff having failed to produce the certificate, the Court disposed of the suit on the preliminary issue. Held, that the plaintiff was bound by his pleader's admission which was upon an issue regarding which evidence could have been given. 29 I.A. 76, Foll; and that in absence of materials justifying reversal of the decree on the preliminary issue the suit could not be remanded under O. 41, R. 23 of the C.P. Code. 39 Bom. 352=17 Bom. L.R. 187=28 Ind. Cas. 485.

—S. 6—Certificate of Collector—Right to receive Government revenue—Absence of certificate.

A suit to establish a right to collect Government revenue from the villages granted as endowment to a religious office is not maintainable in the absence of a certificate under S. 6 of the Pensions Act. 28 Ind. Cas. 934. (Mad.)

—S. 6—Certificate of Collector—Future payments—Decision without a certificate.

A Court has no power to make any order as to the future annual payments of the allowance by the Collector, and such order is ultra vires in as much as the decision of the question is premature in the absence of a certificate under S. 6 of the Pensions Act. 34 Bom. 154=11 Bom. L.R. 1369=4 Ind. Cas. 842.

—S. 6—Suit for share of inam—Collector's certificate.

A suit relating to a share in an inam consisting of two-third of the revenue is not cognizable without Collector's certificate. Where the plaintiff has not obtained the certificate, the hearing may be adjourned to enable him to produce it. 17 Bom. L.R. 153=27 Ind. Cas. 927.

—S. 6—Collector's order referring the parties to Civil Court—Certificate produced in the Court of appeal.

Where in a partition suit subject-matter of which was subject to the Pensions Act the Subordinate Judge decreed partition, holding that an order of the Collector, referring the parties to a Civil Court to determine whether the said villages were partible, was equivalent to a certificate under S. 6 of the Pensions Act and the High Court on appeal allowed the plaintiff to procure and file a certificate under the said section of the said Act. Held, that the defect was cured and the decree should not be interfered with in appeal. 32 All. 148=37 I.A. 39=14 C.W.N. 310=7 M.L.T. 53=7 A.L.J. 165=11 C.L.J. 281=12 Bom. L.R. 267=20 M.L.J. 164=5 Ind. Cas. 689 (P.C.).

—S. 6—Suit before certificate—Application for declaration to be a sharer in jagir to Collector—Collector declining to interfere and directing the applicant to Civil Court—Civil suit filed without certificate—Order by the Court for its production within a fixed time—Production within the period—Suit if proper.

A applied to the Collector for declaring him to be a jagirdar jointly with B. Collector for declined to entertain the application and directed him to Civil Court. A then instituted a suit against B for a declaration that he was a jagirdar jointly with B and that B was not entitled to recover land revenue from him. He claimed an injunction that B should not recover the land revenue on A's land alleging that Collector's direction was tantamount to a certificate under S. 6. It was contended that the Civil Court had no jurisdiction to entertain the suit without the Collector's certificate. A was given time to produce certificate of the Collector, which was duly produced and placed on record:

Held, that it was a sufficient compliance under S. 6 as the certificate was produced within time fixed by the Court. 111 Ind. Cas. 528=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 713.

—S. 6—Suit for declaration

Under S. 6, Pensions Act, 1871, it is not open to the plaintiff to obtain an order for payment. He can, however obtain a declaration of his rights. A.I.R. 1934 P.C. 108=30 L.W. 748=1934 M.W.N. 437=66 M.L.J. 614=1934 A.L.J. 438=38 C.W.N. 568=59 C.L.J. 282=36 Bom. L.R. 551=58 Bom. 306=3 A.W.R. 663=61 I.A. 190=148 Ind. Cas. 796 (P.C.).

—S. 6—Suit for declaration—Relief for declaration that dismissal after discharge on invalid pension was wrong and for damages—Declaration, if can be granted,

The plaintiff brought a suit against the Secretary of State for India in Council for a declaration that he was wrongly dismissed after he had been discharged on an invalid pension and for damages amounting to Rs. 9,900:

Held, that if the Court was to give a declaration to which it can give effect, it can only be that the order of dismissal of the plaintiff was void. This meant that he was entitled to have his pension restored to him. That remedy would be clearly barred by S. 6, Pensions Act, and hence, the declaration sought for could not be granted. A.I.R. 1934 Mad. 516=40 L.W. 146=67 M.L.J. 123=57 Mad. 857=154 Ind. Cas. 884.

—S. 6—Suit for declaration.

Where a suit for a declaration that the plaintiff is entitled to a certain share in the cash allowance which the Government has decided to pay to the defendant has been filed with a certificate from the Collector, S. 6, Pensions Act, does not preclude the Court from granting such a declaration as it does not affect the liability of the Government. A.I.R. 1931 Bom. 473=33 Bom. L.R. 783=133 Ind. Cas. 851.

—S. 6—Suit for declaration—Suit for declaration of relationship—Maintainability—Refusal of certificate—Effect.

A suit for a mere declaration that one person is related to another is not a suit to establish a legal right or any right as to any property and is incompetent.

A person sued for a declaration that he was the grandson of another. He alleged that he used to receive his share of the pension granted to the latter up to a particular year when it was stopped. He stated in the plaint that he would bring a suit for his share of the pension later:

Held, that the person was able to seek a further relief, namely, a right in future to a share of the pension and for the arrears and so the suit was not maintainable.

Held, further: that the refusal of the certificate under S. 6, Pensions Act, did not remove the bar to the maintainability of such a suit. A.I.R. 1928 All. 309, Foll.; 110 Ind. Cas. 595, Foll.; 31 P.L.R. 900=121 Ind. Cas. 417=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 795.

—S. 6—Suit for declaration—Government allowance to Durga—Right to share—Suit for.

A suit for a declaration that the plaintiff is entitled to get his name entered in place of the last manager of a Durga which is in receipt of a cash allowance from the Government is not maintainable for two reasons: (1) The right of entering the names rests exclusively with the Collector, and none else; (2) The declaration entails a corresponding liability on the Government to pay and a suit to enforce it is barred by S. 6. 32 Bom. L.R. 1420=55 Bom. 119=130 Ind. Cas. 30=A.I.R. 1931 Bom. 144.

—S. 6—Suit for declaration—Darga service grant.

Where the manager of a Darga receiving pension from the Government dies and the name of one of his heirs (nephew) is entered in the Government records, a suit by another heir (brother) for a declaration that he is entitled to have his name entered in preference to that of the other heir is not maintainable. 32 B.L.R. 155; 23 Bom. 101; 40 Bom. 55 and 22 Bom. 344, Dist. 32 Bom. L.R. 1420=55 Bom. 119=130 Ind. Cas. 30=A.I.R. 1931 Bom. 144.

—S. 6—Applicability — Suit for declaration.

S. 6 does not apply to a suit for declaration that funeral expenses cannot be claimed to be paid out of income of a Jagir. A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 365.

—Ss. 5 and 6—Suits for declaration.

Ss. 5 and 6 bar a suit for a declaration against Government that the plaintiff is entitled to muafi rights in a certain mahal. 12 M.L.W. 311=2 U.P.L.R. (P.C.) 19=57 Ind. Cas. 156. (P.C.).

—S. 7—Attachment of pension — Burden of proof.

A pension is not ordinarily attachable for sale. The Burden of proof that a particular pension is attachable lies on the decree-holder. 68 Ind. Cas. 854=20 A.L.J. 679=44 All. 697=A.I.R. 1922 All. 429.

—S. 7—Attachment of pension—Attachment and sale of unenfranchised inam of land revenue or grant of money.

An unenfranchised inam can be attached and sold in execution of a decree of civil court. (1909) 20 M.L.J. 88=6 M.L.T. 132=4 Ind. Cas. 1057.

—Ss. 7, 11 — "Pension", in Ss. 7 and 11, whether cover all kinds of pension.

There is nothing in the Pensions Act, which states that the two kinds of pension in S. 7 and the four kinds of pension in S. 11 of the Act comprise all possible kinds of pension nor is there any reason to suppose that these six kinds do comprise all possible kinds of pension. A.I.R. 1935 All. 862=1935 A.L.J. 910=1935 A.W.R. 1034=58 All. 230=158 Ind. Cas. 1106.

—S. 7—Certificate granted—Pension, whether necessarily comes under S. 7.

No doubt a certificate is not required for a suit about a pension mentioned in S. 7, Pensions Act, but the mere fact that a certificate is not required does not make the proposition correct that if a certificate is granted, then the pension in regard to which it is granted cannot be one mentioned in S. 7. A.I.R. 1935 All. 862=1935 A.L.J. 910=1935 A.W.R. 1034=58 All. 230=158 Ind. Cas. 1106.

—S. 7—Resumption of personal inam—Right of Government to resume unenfranchised personal inams.

Section 7 (1) exempted enfranchised inams from its operation but restricted its scope only to pensions, grant of money and grants of land revenue. This does not, however, mean that the Government have an undoubted and absolute right to resume unenfranchised personal inams whatever may be the object and extent of the grant. 114 Ind. Cas. 626=1928 M.W.N. 763=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 1246.

—S. 9—Section shows that Act applies to right to collect land revenue for oneself.

Section 9 which provides that nothing in Ss. 4 and 8 shall affect the right of a grantee of land revenue to collect the revenue for himself clearly shows that the right to collect land revenue for oneself was regarded in the scheme of the Act as a grant of land revenue. It cannot, therefore, be said that the Pensions Act applies only to revenue which is first collected by Government and then paid out from the treasury to the jagirdar. A. I. R. 1946 Lah. 268=222 Ind. Cas. 22.

—S. 10—"Pension", meaning of.

"Pension" is a periodical allowance or stipend for past services and once it is commuted and ceases to be a periodical payment, it becomes a capital sum. A.I.R. 1935 Mad. 249=68 M.L.J. 118=41 L.W. 146=1935 M.W.N. 89 (2)=58 Mad. 469=157 Ind. Cas. 608.

—S. 11.

Synopsis.

1. Applicability and scope
2. Evidence and proof
3. Liability for attachment.
4. "Pension"

1. Applicability and scope.

—S. 11—Applicability and scope—Money not paid to pensioner only comes within S. 11.

In S. 11, Pensions Act, the words "money due or to become due" by necessary implication mean the money that has not yet been paid and has not been received by the pensioner. A.I.R. 1942 Sind 19=I.L.R. (1941) Kar. 479=198 Ind. Cas. 630.

—S. 11—Applicability and scope—Commuted pension, if protected under S. 11.

Although, after commutation, a pension or a portion thereof ceases to be pension and becomes a capital sum, still the payment of the commutation amount being a payment on account of the pension, falls within the protection of S. 11 of the Pensions Act. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 207=I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 393=1940 M.W.N. 1150=(1940) 2 M. L. J. 782=52 L.W. 719=195 Ind. Cas. 290.

—S. 11—Applicability and scope—S. 11, if limited to cases of execution of simple money decrees.

S. 11, Pensions Act is wide enough to include cases where the property is to be sold in execution of a mortgage-decree and cannot be limited to cases of simple money-decrees. It draws no distinction between a case where the property is directed to be sold by a decree or is directed to be sold in pursuance of an attachment made by the order of a Court. A.I.R. 1935 All. 678=1935 A.W.R. 867=58 All. 98=157 Ind. Cas. 511.

—S. 11—Applicability and scope.

An insolvent cannot be ordered to pay a certain amount monthly out of the pension received by him from Government for past services, to the Receiver. 164 Ind. Cas. 747=40 C.W.N. 142.

—S. 11—Scope of.

S. 11 of the Act protects from attachment, seizure or sequestration a pension or money due or to become due under a pension. 12 O.C. 323=4 Ind. Cas. 145.

2. Evidence and proof.

—S. 11—Evidence and proof—Objection that sale was prohibited—Court's duty to enquire.

A Court is not bound to refuse to hear evidence which is offered to show that the property is one the sale of which is prohibited by S. 11, Pensions Act. The Court must ascertain the truth of the allegation that it has no jurisdiction to sell the property which it is required to sell. A.I.R. 1935 All. 678=1935 A.W.R. 867=58 All. 98=157 Ind. Cas. 511.

—S. 11—Evidence and proof—Compromise decree in regard to pension challenged.

Where a compromise decree in regard to a pension is challenged, it must be proved after making proper allegation, that the pension falls under S. 11, Pensions Act. A.I.R. 1935 All. 862=1935 A.L.J. 910=1935 A.W.R. 1034=58 All. 230=158 Ind. Cas. 1106.

—S. 11—Evidence and proof—Jagir—Political pension—Burden of proof.

There is no initial presumption that a jagir is a political pension and the burden of proving that it is a political pension and as such exempt from attachment is on the person who alleges it. 111 Ind. Cas. 838, Foll. 31 P.L.R. 538=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 816.

3. Liability for attachment.

—S. 11—Attachment of pension for realising punitive police tax—Legality.

The attachment by a District Magistrate of a pension which has become due for realisation of punitive police tax imposed under S. 15 (3) of the Police Act, is not illegal under S. 11 of the Pensions Act, as the attachment is not by a creditor and is not founded upon a decree or order of Court. U.P. 1948 O.W.N. 241=A.I.R. 1949 Oudh 31.

—S. 11—Liability for attachment.

Amount of pension after it is paid over to pensioner ceases to be exempt from attachment. A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 263=57 L.W. 17=1944 M.W.N. 180=(1944) 1 M.L.J. 45.

—S. 11—Liability for attachment—Political pension.

A political treaty pension cannot be attached in execution of a decree. 62 Ind. Cas. 273=3 U.P.L.R. (All.) 11.

—S. 11—Liability for attachment.

A jagir granted on political considerations is exempt from attachment whether or not it was granted for services rendered to the British Government. 61 Ind. Cas. 895 Lah.

—S. 11—Grant of land revenue—Liability for attachment.

For the purposes of S. 11, a grant of land revenue of is not a pension and is, therefore, liable to be attached in execution of a decree. The distinction drawn in the Act between pensions and grants of money and land revenue is not to be disregarded. 11 L.W. 398=54 Ind. Cas. 331.

—S. 11—Liability for attachment—Wasika allowance—Arrears of—Whether can be attached.

The arrears of wasika allowance accruing due in the life time of the wasikadar and paid after his death to his heirs cannot be attached in execution to satisfy the debts of the wasikadar in the hands of his heirs. 6 O.L.J. 137=21 O.C. 329=49 Ind. Cas. 511.

—S. 11—Liability for attachment—Malikana allowance—Execution of decree.

A Malikana allowance is in the nature of a pension and so cannot be attached in execution of a money decree. 8 A.L.J. 126=13 Ind. Cas. 194.

—S. 11—Liability to attachment—Political pension—C. P. C., 60 g (O. C. S. 266 g.)

A pension is a periodical allowance or stipend granted not in respect of any right, privilege, perquisite or office, but on account of past services or particular merits or as a compensation to dethroned princes, their families and dependants. Where certain immovable property was granted in lieu of a pension and it was provided in the sanad that upon the death of the original grantee the estate would be continued in perpetuity in the manner of an hereditary holding (Zemindari mauzusi) and at the desire of the grantee revenue was assessed and the members of the family had treated it as an ordinary Zemindari property, subject simply to the payment of Government revenue: Held, that the Zemindari so granted was not a pension within the meaning of S. 11 and was liable to attachment and sale. (1900) 6 A.L.J. 519=31 A. 382=2 Ind. Cas. 100.

—S. 11—Liability for attachment—Pensions, foreign but payable in India.

See C. P. C., S. 60. 26 M. 423.

4. "Pension".

—S. 11—Pension—Right to lakhiraj or revenue-free land is not pension or grant of land revenue.

There is an obvious distinction between an assignment and a remission of land revenue. A remission of land revenue cannot be regarded as assignment. The Government may remit a liability to pay land revenue in which case no assessment is made, but that is a very different thing from assessing a certain sum and then granting or assigning that sum to some person other than the Government. A right to lakhiraj or revenue-free land is certainly not a pension or a grant of land revenue. A.I.R. 1940 All. 373=1940 A.L.J. 420=1940 O.W.N. 650=1940 R.D. 452=I.L.R. (1940) All. 603=1940 A.W.R. 397=190 Ind. Cas. 3 (F.B.).

—S. 11—Pension—Term "pension," meaning of—Jagir, if pension.

The term 'pension' as used in the Pensions Act implies 'periodical payments of money to the pensioner.' A jagir is not a pension within the meaning of the Act. A.I.R. 1940 Lah. 492=I.L.R. (1941) Lah. 564=44 P.L.R. 204=192 Ind. Cas. 288.

—Ss. 11, 12—"Pension"—Grant of land revenue, if 'pension'.

The grant of land revenue is not a pension within the meaning of S. 11 and S. 12, Pensions Act. A.I.R. 1936 All. 666=1936 R.D. 300 (1)=1936 A.W.R. 702=1936 A.L.J. 1281=164 Ind. Cas. 1066.

—Ss. 11, 12—"Pension"—Every Muafi right, whether pension.

The phraseology of Ss. 11 and 12, Pensions Act, is narrower, and must be presumed to be designedly so. Every "muafi" right cannot be regarded as a "pension" within the meaning of Ss. 11 and 12. A.I.R. 1936 All. 298=1936 A.W.R. 65=1936 A.L.J. 161=162 Ind. Cas. 56.

—S. 11—Pension—Assignment of revenue—If pension.

An assignment of revenue for services rendered was held to amount to a pension within the meaning of S. 11 and therefore not transferable under S. 12 of the Act. A.I.R. 1922 All. 22, Rel. on. (1902) A.W.N. 161, Dist. 52 A. 868=1910 A.L.J. 1326=A.I.R. 1930 All. 681.

—S. 11—Pension—Assignment of land revenue—If pension.

A pension may take the form of an assignment of land revenue. Whether or no particular assignment of land revenue is a pension depends upon the circumstances of the particular case. 86 P.R. 1914 Rel. on. (Case Law referred). 31 P.L.R. 812=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 904.

—S. 11—Pension—Pension from foreign State—If political pension.

The word "pension" is not defined in the Act, but there is nothing in the Pensions Act to exclude allowances granted by the British Government to political prisoners detained under Regulation III of 1818 from its operation in cases where the British Government by some arrangement with a foreign State collects the allowance which it fixes. 26 Mad. 423, Foll; 18 Cal. 216 (P.C.) Expl.

The word "political pension" is a general term and the source from which the money is derived is not an element which should be taken into consideration so long as the payment is made by the Government through its Treasury. 103 Ind. Cas. 339=50 Mad. 711=38 M.L.T. 299=25 M.L.W. 640=1927 M.W.N. 374=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 604=52 M.L.J. 622.

—S. 11—Pension—Commutation of Mogul grant—Cash allowance substituted for land in muafi grant by Mogul Government—No pension.

Where a muafi grant of landed property had been made by the Mogul Government to the plaintiff's family but subsequently the land was resumed and cash allowance was substituted therefor, and is recognized by the British Government, the cash allowance is a substitution for land which can be alienated by the grantee. The allowance is not a pension within S. 11. 95 Ind. Cas. 208=24 A.L.J. 630=A.I.R. 1926 All. 521.

—S. 11—"Pension"—Meaning—Assignment of pension—Validity.

The word 'pension' in S. 11 is used in its ordinary and well-known sense, viz., that of a periodical allowance or stipend granted not in respect of any right, privilege, perquisite or office, but on account of past services or particular merits or as compensation to dethroned princes, their families and dependents. 4 Bom. 432 at page 436, Foll.

Assignments of the pensions to plaintiff upon which he founds his claim are null and void under S. 12 of the Act and the claim is unsustainable. 65 Ind. Cas. 645=44 All. 354=20 A.L.J. 172=A.I.R. 1922 All. 22.

—Ss. 11 and 12—"pension"—Meaning of.

The word 'pension' involves the idea of a fixed periodical allowance or stipend and if it is granted for political consideration or for past services it cannot be assigned and comes with the protection afforded by S. 12. 86 P.R. 1914=233 P.L.R. 1915=26 Ind. Cas. 743.

—S. 11—Pension—Meaning.

'Pension' means periodical allowance or stipend granted for past services or particular merits or as compensation to dethroned princes. 31 All. 382=6 A.L.J. 519=2 Ind. Cas. 100.

—S. 11—"Pension" definition of — Political pension—C. P. C., S. 266.

The word "pension" in S. 11 of the Pensions Act & C. P. C., S. 266, implies periodical payments of money by Government to the pensioner in the manner prescribed by S. 8 of the Act. 1904 A.W.N. 144=1 A.L.J. 338=26 A. 617.

—S. 11—Pension—Definition of.

See 8 C. W. N. 665.

—Ss. 12, 11—Assignment of land revenue—Original grant and subsequent confirmment must be considered.

An assignment of the land revenue itself which entitles the assignee to recover such revenue directly from the zemindars who are liable to pay the same is not contemplated by S. 11 or S. 12 of the Act. Whether such an assignment is transferable or not will depend on the terms of the grant itself. Presumably, if it is an interest in immovable property, the right would be heritable and transferable.

Each case of assignment of land revenue must be considered in terms of the original grant and of subsequent confirmments. Where the original grant was to a certain person and his heirs in perpetuity and there is nothing to indicate that it is not transferable, the grant is transferable and its assignment is not barred by S. 12, Pensions Act. A.I.R. 1936 All. 666=1936 R.D. 300 (1)=1936 A.W.R. 702=1936 A.L.J. 1281=164 Ind. Cas. 1066.

—S. 12—Assignment of land revenue — If prohibited.

Per Sen, J.—A grant of land revenue as such cannot be comprised in the term "pension." A right to share in the Government revenue granted in perpetuity by sovereign power cannot be described either as a pension or as a political pension. Such a grant may be hereditary and partakes of the nature and character of a jagir. Its liability to resumption is dependent upon the terms under which it is created and upon the will of the sovereign power. When a gift of this description is created by contract or grant its transferability will in each case depend upon the terms of the contract or grant. The assignment of such grant is not prohibited by S. 12, Pensions Act.

The word 'pension' in S. 12 does include a grant of land revenue and the assignment of such grant is null and void under S. 12. 1929 A.L.J. 724=11 L.R.A. Rev. 65=A.I.R. 1929 All. 781.

—S. 12—If retrospective.

Section 12 is not retrospective and therefore, cannot be applied to the case of a transfer of pension made before the Act came into force. A.I.R. 1944 Oudh 139=1944 O.W.N. 37=1944 A.W.R. 11=19 Luck. 515=216 Ind. Cas. 276.

—S. 12—If retrospective—Alienation before the Act—Validity of.

The Pensions Act has not a retrospective effect and no alienations made before the Pensions Act came into force are invalid under S. 12 of the Act. 86 P.R. 1914=233 P.L.R. 1915=26 Ind. Cas. 743.

—S. 12—Scope—Arrangement between pensioner and his creditor to pay portion of pension to creditor and deposit pension papers with creditor—If falls under S. 12.

The language of the Pensions Act is very wide and the transaction by which a pensioner arranges with his creditor to pay a certain portion of the pension month by month in liquidation of the sum previously advanced, and to deposit with the creditor his pension pay order and pension papers is clearly one of the class of transactions which S. 12, Pensions Act is enacted to prevent. —Burden of proof—Whether particular property is included in the settlement—Evidence.

It cannot be presumed as a matter of law that the state of things described in the thak and survey maps existed at the time of the Permanent Settlement. The question, what lands were included the Permanent Settlement, is a question of fact and not of law which may or may not be satisfactorily proved by subsequent survey maps. The onus of proving that any particular lands were included in the Permanent Settlement of 1793 is clearly on those who affirm that such was the case, and the burden of proof is not necessarily shifted by the production of the thak and survey maps showing that specific lands are included in a peculiar estate. The thak and survey maps are valuable evidence of the state of things at the time they were made, but it does not follow that they show conclusively what was the state of things at the time of the Permanent Settlement. 65 Ind. Cas. 866=34 C.L.J. 141=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 687.

—Enhancement by zamindar.

The Zamindar holding under the Permanent Settlement has a right from time to time to raise the rent of all rent-paying lands within his zamindari according to the current rate unless he is precluded from the exercise of that right by a contract binding on him or by the law in force. 13 M. I. A. 248 (P. C.); 32 C.L.J. 919, Foll. 87 Ind. Cas. 758=42 C.L.J. 172=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 1248.

—Ground rent of hats—Right to receive ground rent of existing and future hats vested in proprietors at the time of Permanent Settlement.

In resuming the sayer the Government did not intend to divest the land-holders of collections made by them as consideration for the use of grounds shops or other buildings belonging to them and ground rents whether in markets or in other parts of the zamindari were the exclusive property of the zamindar, and therefore the Commissioner of Income-tax is not entitled to deprive the assessee of his right to exemption of income received by him in the markets. Whether the hats existed at the time of Permanent Settlement or spring up subsequently these ground rents were included in the assets as the property of the zamindar at the time of settlement and the mere fact that the lessee may in some instances abuse his rights and enforce illegal exactions from those using the markets, is not by itself any ground for depriving the zamindar of his legal rights. The rents from markets are just as much mal rents as the rent from agricultural or any other species of land. 92 Ind. Cas. 338=2 Pat. L.R.Cr. 242=6 P.L.T. 355=1925 P.H.C.C. 49=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 313.

—Jalkar—Right if included in assets of Permanent Settlement.

Jalkar was included in the assets of the Permanent Settlement and in the rules for the resumption of sayer passed in 1790 which are referred to in Regulation XXVII of 1793. The rights of phalkar, bankar and jalkar were exempted from the resumption and remained vested in the land-holders. 92 Ind. Cas. 338=6 P.L.T. 355=2 Pat. L.R.Cr. 242=1925 P.H.C.C. 49=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 313.

—Liability to future taxes.

Per Mullick, J.—By permanent Settlement a limited right of ownership was conferred upon the Zamindar not only in respect of the owner's share of the produce of the soil but also in the soil itself. The demand was based on contract and it was open to the Zamindar to decline to engage. If he accepted the engagement not even the total destruction of the property was a ground for remission. The demand had some of the attributes of a land-tax but it was not a tax in reality; the transaction was a sale of the owner's rights on the basis of the capitalized value of the assessment. The Company represented the Sovereign and the general community; they were also the owners of the soil; they surrendered to the zamindar no part of their rights in the former capacity which included the right to tax but only a portion of their rights of ownership, namely, the right to the produce of the soil, and it seems clear from the context that the declaration that the jama was unalterable could only refer to the limited purposes of the contract. If this view is not correct then at least the language of the permanent Settlement is ambiguous and does not clearly and distinctly give any exemption from all future taxes and rates. The meaning of the Legislature being doubtful contemporary exposition can be resorted to. The uniform view of the Legislature and its servants has been that the Permanent Settlement Regulation did not intend to surrender all future rights of taxation in respect of the profits of the estates thereby affected. If the language of the Permanent Settlement Regulation is not ambiguous and if it clearly indicates an intention to surrender all such future rights of taxation then the interpretation placed upon statutes similar to the Income-tax Act can be called in aid for the purpose of explaining the meaning of the words used in the Act. If such a course leads to the conclusion that similar general words have hitherto been considered sufficient to revoke the exemption granted by the Permanent Settlement then the absence of express words in the Act will not prejudice the Crown and the affirmative language of the Act is sufficient to revoke the exemption in question. Therefore the profits of jalkar ghatlagi, and market rights are chargeable with Income-tax. 78 Ind. Cas. 783=3 Pat. 470=2 Pat. L.R.Cr. 25=1924 P.H.C.C. 69=5 Pat. L.T. 459=A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 474.

The Madras Permanent Settlement is not based upon the Bengal Settlement. A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 454; A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 399, Foll.; A.I.R. 1926 Mad 511, not Foll. 119 Ind. Cas. 305=30 M.L.W. 129=A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 676.

—Object.

The Permanent Settlement aims at confirming Zemindars in their holdings at a fixed rent and any assumptions made should justify the title rather than make it insecure. 22 M.L.T. 438=26 C.L.J. 590=(1918) M.W.N. 28=20 Bom. L.R. 46=43 Ind. Cas. 361 (P.C.)

—Survey map made since 1793—Inclusion of some area covered by river within ambit of revenue-paying estate — If proves that the area was included in land assessed to revenue.

The inclusion in a survey map made since 1793 of some area covered by a river within the ambit of a revenue-paying estate neither amounts to an admission nor necessarily establishes, in the absence of any other evidence on record, that the said area was included in the land assessed to revenue at the time of Permanent Settlement. 2 D.R. 312.

—Variation—Right of Government — Effect of Income-tax Act.

Per Dawson—Miller, C. J.—Though the legislature has power to vary or modify the bargain entered into between the Government and the proprietors by the Permanent Settlement, yet this can only be done by clear and specific language in a statute and not by general implication. The applications for settlement made by the proprietors at the time of Permanent Settlement were, as a rule, a counterpart of the actual settlement made and were part of a single transaction completed at the same time, just as a kabuliyat is a counterpart of a patta. The Income-tax Act, if and in so far as it charges income derived from property included in the original settlement with the proprietor and assessed to revenue, varies the terms of Reg. I of 1793. The Income-tax Act of 1922 is not explicit enough in its terms to repeal the exemption created by the permanent Settlement Regulation; for such repeal cannot be effected merely by words of general import or by implication. By the Permanent Settlement it was the revenue of rent payable to Government as the paramount land-lord that was fixed in perpetuity. The effect of the imposition of income-tax on the profits arising out of jalkar, bat, and ghatlag is in fact to increase the revenue under another name. The jama permanently fixed at the date of the settlement was calculated on a percentage of the rents and profits at that time derived from the ownership of the land. Income-tax is based upon the same rent and profits as they now exist and it is impossible to escape from the conclusion that a tax under whatever name upon the same sources of income would increase the duty payable under the name of revenue and which by the Permanent Settlement it was agreed should then be fixed for ever. ##### —Assessment on churs in rivers—Churs formed subsequent to settlement—Liability to assessment.

Churs within the limits of the Zemindari formed after the decennial settlement are to be treated as unsettled under Bengal Regulation II of 1890 notwithstanding the fact, that the river-bed from which the Churs have been thrown up belong to the Zemindar at the time of the settlement and the Jama was assessed on the Zemindari as a whole. Therefore under Bengal Act IX of 1847 the Government can assess to public revenue Churs formed in a non-navigable river both where it flows through a permanently settled Zemindari and within the middle line of the river where it is the boundary of the Zemindari. The right of the Government to assess the Churs in question is not affected by the fact that the whole or half of the river-bed was part of the Zemindar's permanently settled estate. Bengal Regulation I of 1793 exempts from further assessment all lands included in a permanently settled estate whether they were cultivated or waste at the time of settlement. 67 Ind. ##### —Effect.

The effect of the Permanent Settlement was that the Government limited its own demand upon the zamindar in so far as that demand related to the income that was derivable from the land. 102 Ind. Cas. 845=54 Cal. 863=45 C.L.J. 323=31 C. W. N. 765=A. I. R. 1927 Cal. 432 (F. B.).

—General taxes on estates—Liability to income-tax.

C. C. Ghose, J.—Buckland and Panton, JJ. concurring.—The clear purport of the declaration made in Regulation I of 1793 is that the re-assessment of the estates dealt with therein was for ever barred. In other words, the land assessment then formed was to be considered the permanent and unalterable revenue of the territorial possessions of the East India Company in Bengal so that no discretion might be exercised by the Company's servants in any case of introducing alteration whatsoever. The Regulation of 1793 was so framed as to operate as an ample and complete guarantee that no resettlement of the estates referred to therein should ever take effect. But no guarantee was ever given that the proprietors of those estates should never, at any time, be called upon to aid in the relief of the future necessities of the Government of the land and there was no promise or engagement of any description whatsoever by which the Government of the day surrendered their right to levy a 'general' tax upon incomes of all persons irrespective of the fact whether they are zamindars with whom the Permanent Settlement was concluded or not. A 'general' tax is no doubt a public demand but it is one which is levied upon a wholly different principle and in respect of a wholly different kind of liability; such a 'public demand' is no doubt a demand made upon zamindars with whom the Permanent Settlement was concluded, but it is made upon them in company with other classes of the community and with no exclusive reference to the source from which their incomes are derived.

Mukerji, J., and Subrawardy, J., concurring.—The public assessment could be augmented in any way, so long as the method adopted did not mean to take away a portion of this income or profits qua such income or profits. Although by the Permanent Settlement right to taxation generally was not given up the income or profits derivable from the lands was not to be taxed as such. Whether a portion is taken as revenue and another under the head of income-tax, both are demands of the State, and when in assessing the revenue, a guarantee was given of its fixity and a declaration was made that the balance will not be altered at any time, to impose a further tax on the income or profits does away with that fixity and alters that which was guaranteed to be unalterable. The object of the Settlement in exempting from further burden income which has already paid toll to the State in the shape of land revenue was primarily to protect and improve agriculture, as that then was the chief source of income, and the exemption of agricultural income from the operation of the Income-tax Act perhaps indicates a continuity of policy on the part of the legislature in that respect. The words of the Settlement, however, are clear enough as indicating an intention to leave untouched for all times to come the surplus that the land-holder will be able to derive as income or profits from the lands of his estate. 102 Ind. Cas. 845=54 Cal. 863=45 C. L. J. 323=31 C. W. N. 765=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 432 (F. B.).

—Right to minerals.

A Zamindar of a permanently settled estate under the Regulations of 1793 is the owner of the soil, and whatever may be the claim of the Crown against him, as between himself and a tenure-holder he has the right to the minerals unless he has expressly parted with them. 114 Ind. Cas. 194=A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 294.

—S. 1—Decennial taluks—If independent.

The mere fact that in various reports made and proceedings taken under the then existing Regulations the taluks are mentioned as decennial taluks does not make them independent taluks. 98 Ind. Cas. 211=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 136.

—Art. 6—Effect on future taxes.

Per Mullick, J.—By Permanent Settlement a limited right of ownership was conferred upon the Zamindar not only in respect of the owner's share of the produce of the soil but also in the soil itself. The demand was based on contract and it was open to the zamindar to decline to engage. If he accepted the engagement not even the total destruction of the property was a ground for remission. The demand had some of the attributes of a land-tax but it was not a tax in reality; the transaction was a sale of the owner's rights on the basis of the capitalized value of the assessment. The Company represented the Sovereign and the general community; they were also the owners of the soil; they surrendered to the zamindar no part of their rights in the former capacity which included the right to tax but only a portion of their rights of ownership, namely, the right to the produce of the soil, and it seems clear from the context that the declaration that the jama was unalterable could only refer to the limited purposes of the contract. If this view is not correct then at least the language of the Permanent Settlement is ambiguous and does not clearly and distinctly give any exemption from all future taxes and rates. The meaning of the Legislature being doubtful contemporary exposition can be resorted to. The uniform view of the Legislature and its servants has been that the Permanent Settlement Regulation did not intend to surrender all future rights of taxation in respect of the profits of the estates there by affected. If the language of the Permanent Settlement Regulation is not ambiguous and if it clearly indicates an intention to surrender all such future rights of taxation then the interpretation placed upon statutes similar to the Income-tax Act can be called in aid for the purpose of explaining the meaning of the words used in the Act. If such a course leads to the conclusion that similar general words have hitherto been considered sufficient to revoke the exemption granted by the Permanent Settlement then the absence of express words in the Act will not prejudice the Crown and the affirmative language of the Act is sufficient to revoke the exemption in question. —Art. 6—General taxes on estate—Exemption from liability.

While the Regulations contain assurances against any claim to an increase of the jama based on an increase of the zamindari income, they contain no promise that a zamindar shall in respect of the income which he derives from his zamindari be exempt from liability to any future general scheme of property, taxation, or that the income of the zamindari shall not be subjected with other incomes to any future general taxation of income, such as income-tax. 57 I. Held, that the grantee did not by his grant obtain any right to win, get or dispose of gas.

Held further, that the ownership of natural gases, so far as they are capable of ownership, remained with Government and did not pass either in 1912 or in 1919 by the rules under Burma Oil-fields Act (1918) to the grantee. 102 Ind. Cas. 830=5 Rang. 133=A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 201.

—Transport—Unlawful possession.

'Transport' of petroleum involves the idea of removal and a mere order for petroleum which is sent accordingly is not transport. A person taking delivery of petroleum in excess of the quantity allowed by law and unable to show he was not in possession of it for a reasonable time is guilty under S. 15 (a). 39 Ind. The accused had been convicted under Ss. 11, 15 of the Petroleum Act for being in possession of 148 tins of kerosine oil at Cuttack, a place to which similar provisions of the Petroleum Act of 1886 had been extended by notification in the Calcutta Gazette, dated 7th April 1891. Held, that the notification of 1891 made the present Act applicable to Cuttack and the conviction was right. That notification has been preserved by the operation of Ss. 8, 24 of the General Clauses Act although the Act of 1886 itself was repealed, and there is no provision in the present Act expressly preserving the notifications issued under the provisions of the repealed Act. The notification was an order within the meaning of S. 24 of the General Clauses Act, and a second notification in the Gazette, under the new Act on the repeal of the old Act was unnecessary. 7 C.W.N. 658.

—Ss. 5, 11 and 15—Transport licence—Accused holding transport licence—Keeping petroleum on premises for transport for short time is not punishable—No offence.

The accused held a licence for storage of 500 gallons of petrol and had a store for that quantity at K. He was the Agent of the Burmah Oil Company and as their agent also held a transport licence for transport of petrol without limit of quantity. On 28th November 1925 evening he took delivery at K of 1000 gallons. He carried these to his premises, put 500 in store, disposed of another 100 before dark, and kept the remaining 400 in bandies on his premises over night with a view to transporting them in the morning to V and M, for which places he had booked orders. At 10 A.M. on the 29th morning the police visited the premises and found 400 gallons in excess.

Held, that a licence to transport includes permission to possess or keep for the process of and during the transport, and the fact that the place at which the bandies were kept was the accused's own premises and that he had a store for petrol there makes no difference. (1917) M.W.N. 720. Appr.

Madhavan Nair, J.—The keeping of petroleum received under a transport licence for a short period, which is incidental to, and necessary for the distribution of it, cannot amount to "keeping" or "possession" within the meaning of Ss. 5, 11 and 15(a). The question whether the period of time is short enough to be considered reasonable or too long to be considered unreasonable, will have to be decided with reference to the particular facts of each case.

Jackson, J.—If a person licensed to keep 500 gallons keeps 900 gallons of petrol in his depot, he commits an offence under Ss. 5 and 15, Act VIII of 1899. He may plead that he had not kept the excess quantity very long, and had not intended to keep it much longer, but this is only a plea of extenuation which cannot be regarded as a plea of acquittal. The word 'possession' in S. 15 (a) and 'amounts to keeping' within S. 11 which defines the quantity of petroleum, the keeping in excess of which amounts to an offence, must be understood with reference to S. 11 of the Act and a person receiving petroleum from the Company on the Railway premises will be adjudged guilty or not according as he is on the Railway premises with the permission of the Railway Company for a reasonable time or he uses it as a godown or store-house for purposes of sale. (1917) M.W.N. 720=18 Cr. L. J. 627=39 Ind. Cas. 995.

—Ss. 15, 9—Storing on licensed premises belonging to another — Conviction for failure to possess licence—Legality of.

Prima facie, a person who has no intention of storing or keeping petroleum but merely orders it with the intention of having it stored on licensed premises belonging to another person is not required to have a licence under S. 6 of the rules framed thereunder. He is not, therefore, liable to conviction under S. 15 for failing to possess one. A.I.R. 1937 Bom. 11=38 Bom. L.R. 967=38 Cr.L.J. 221=I.L.R. (1937) Bom. 106=166 Ind. Cas. 277.

—S. 15 (c) — No offence of licence — Licensee possessing excess quantity but in another's licensed shed.

The licence granted to the accused was headed as "Licence to possess dangerous petroleum." The licence then proceeded: Licence is hereby granted to .....for the storage in the storage shed described below of 1,000 gallons, of dangerous petroleum." The accused on several occasions got possession of more than 1,000 gallons, but he never stored in his shed more than 1,000 gallons, the excess quantity being stored on his behalf by another who had proper licence.

Held, that the heading of the licence was merely descriptive and so, as the accused never stored more than the permitted quantity in his shed, he was not liable to be convicted. 32 Bom. L.R. 761=1930 Cr.C. 889=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 370.

1. Abandonment of plea or relief.

—Abandonment of plea or relief—Impleading trustee as defendant—Claim against the original defendant.

The plaintiff sued the 1st defendant for the value of the goods sold and after the institution of the suit the 1st defendant executed a trust deed in favour of his creditors with the 2nd defendant as trustee. The plaintiff's name was not in the list of creditors. The plaintiff sought to implead the 2nd defendant on the ground that 1st defendant himself was a trustee holding the goods on behalf of plaintiff and that he could follow the trust property in the hands of the 2nd defendant. The Court found that the property was not identifiable and decreed the suit disallowing the claim as against the 2nd defendant. On appeal, the 1st defendant contended that by impleading the 2nd defendant the plaintiff had abandoned his claim against the 1st defendant:

Held, that the plaintiff exercised no election and that he had not given up his claim against the 1st defendant. 96 Ind. Cas. 164=23 M.L.W. 564=A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 720=51 M.L.J. 373.

—Abandonment of plea or relief—Limitation and res judicata.

Although the general rule may be that a plea once abandoned may not be raised, yet such fundamental issues as limitation and res judicata are exception to it. 4 All. 69 (F. B.) and 36 All. 370, Rel. on. 100 Ind. Cas. 40=25 M.L.W. 11=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 273.

—Abandonment of plea or relief—Cause of action—Change of Where plaintiff-mortgagee first alleged that the date of the cause of action was the date when the agreed term expired, viz., 21st February 1905, but later on amended the plaint by saying that it was the date when there was a default in payment of an instalment on the agreed date, viz., 21st February 1894 according to the terms agreed to in the mortgage deed and alleged, but failed to prove payment of interest on later dates:

Held, that he could not be allowed to revert to the position taken in the unamended plaint with respect to the cause of action. 99 Ind. Cas. 650=48 All. 457=53 I. A. 187=24 A.L.J. 736=1926 M. W. N. 520=

24 M. L. W. 241=31 C.W.N. 324=A.I.R. 1926 P. C. 85 (P. C.).

2. Admission.

—Admission of fact—Court coming to opposite view on evidence—Permissibility.

If a fact is unequivocally admitted in a pleading, the other side naturally makes no effort to prove it and it would be unjust and unfair for the Court to pick on stray pieces of evidence which might lend colour to the opposite view and decide on that in the face of what is admitted. Not only would it be unfair, the law does not allow it either. I. L. R. (1950) Nag. 160=A.I.R. 1951 Nag. 259.

—Admission—Defendant asking issue to be decided on allegation of plaintiff—If deemed to admit them.

Where the defendants ask the Court to decide an issue on the very allegations of the plaintiff, they must be taken to admit for the sake of argument that the allegations of the plaintiff in his plaint are true reserving to themselves the right to show that these allegations are wholly or partially false in the further stages of the action, should the preliminary point be overruled. I.L.R. (1947) Nag. 477=1947 N.L.J. 417=A.I.R. 1948 Nag. 334.

—Admission—Failure to deny.

Rules of pleading are not strictly enforced in Courts. Where a pleading has not been specifically denied by defendant, it cannot necessarily be held that he admitted the truth thereof in clear and unmistakable terms. 71 Ind. Cas. 779=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 409.

—Admission—Claim on mortgage—Personal decree can be given where a mortgage deed is not proved.

Where a mortgage was found invalid for want of registration, but the defendant admitted the amount as due it was open to the Court to pass a decree against its defendant for that amount personally. 68 Ind. Cas. 1005=24 Bom. L.R. 502=A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 440.

—Admission.

If the plaintiff cannot prove his allegations and the defendant denies the claim the suit should be dismissed but if the defendant admits the claim partially, that part of the claim may be allowed to the plaintiff. 50 Ind. Cas. 366. (Lah.).

—Admission—To be taken as a whole.

It is permissible for a court to accept part and reject the rest of any witness's testimony. But an admission in a pleading cannot be so dissected, and if it is made subject to a condition it must either be accepted subject to the condition or not at all. 39 Bom. 399=17 M. L. T. 402=28 M. L. J. 589=13 A. L. J. 529=19 C.W.N. 713=21 C.L.J. 507=17 Bom. L.R. 460=2 L.W. 524=(1915) M.W.N. 522=42 I. A. 103=29 Ind.Cas. 223 (P.C.).

—Admission—Effect of.

A statement in a pleading is not an admission so as to dispense with further proof. 25 Ind. Cas. 22 (Mad.).

—Admissions—Two sets of defendants.

Where some defendants admit the plaintiff's claim and the others do not and no separate relief could be given as against those that admit the claim: Held, that no decree could be passed against such defendants, unless the plaintiff fails to establish his case. 1. O. L.J. 591=26 Ind. Cas. 547.

3. Alternative pleas or reliefs.

—Alternative pleas or reliefs.

It is open to the plaintiffs to base their claim on the promissory notes and alternatively on the original debt. A.I.R. 1918 P. C. 146, Foll. 32 Bom. L. R. 1035=128 Ind. Cas. 43=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 424.

—Alternative pleas or relief—Suit for rent.

Where the plaintiff in the first place alleges that there was an existing rental, at a certain rate and in the alternative prays that if it be found that there was no existing rental a fair and equitable rent might be assessed there is nothing wrong in making such an alternative prayer. 123 Ind. Cas. 615=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 485.

—Alternative pleas or reliefs—Pre-emption suit.

Where pre-emptor claims partial pre-emption alleging vendor's want of title to the rest, and in the alternative offers to pre-empt the whole property if Court holds that the vendor had title to the whole, his putting forth such alternative cases is not fatal. 116 Ind. Cas. 16=1929 A.L.J. 589=A. I. R. 1929 All. 398.

—Alternative pleas or reliefs—Where plaintiff alleges his possession and prays for possession.

The plaintiff is always entitled to claim an alternative relief, unless in doing so he offends against some express provisions of the law.

Where a person claimed a decree for a declaration that he was in possession as owner of the land and in the alternative if the Court found that he was not in possession, a decree for possession of the lands, the reliefs claimed in the alternative and the frame of the suit are both legal and proper. 116 Ind. Cas. 890=A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 820.

—Alternative pleas or reliefs—Cannot be treated as an additional prayer.

In the village in suit there was some waste land appertaining to a shamilat patti in which there were twenty or more co-sharers. One of these determined to bring a number of plots of this waste land under cultivation; but instead of occupying them himself he granted a perpetual lease of the same to two lessees. About a year later the lessees induced seven more of the co-sharers in the patti to grant them another perpetual lease. The present suit was brought by two co-sharers who were dissatisfied with this arrangement. The principal relief sought was a declaration that the two leases above referred to "are improper, null and void and are not fit to be enforced." There was an alternative prayer for a decree for joint possession in favour of the plaintiffs and all the co-sharer defendants, "If, for any reason the passing of a declaratory decree be not thought proper by the Court." The Court found the plaintiffs entitled to the declaration sought for and framed its decree accordingly. In appeal plaintiffs prayed for joint possession by actual ejectment of the lessees defendants in addition to the declaration already granted, and not by way of alternative. Held: that the prayer for ejectment could not be granted as it had been preferred in the plaint only as an alternative. 74 Ind. Cas. 331=A.I.R. 1924 All. 271.

—Alternative pleas or reliefs—Ownership and easement.

A claim of ownership and a right of easement can only be advanced in the alternative. 69 Ind. Cas. 183=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 369.

—Alternative pleas or reliefs—Ownership and easement.

Where the defendant contended that the case of easement could not be made out where plaintiffs put forward an allegation of ownership and the evidence in the case made it clear that the plaintiffs were using the dispute lane as a means of access to their survey number:

Held, the real issue in the case was whether the plaintiffs had enjoyed for the statutory period the right of way over the strip in dispute. The Court was entitled to accept the defendant's contention that the lane belonged to him but that would not prevent the plaintiffs from asking the Court to protect their user of the lane. 64 Ind. Cas. 517=46 Bom. 200=23 Bom. L.R. 1009=A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 199.

4. Amendment.

—Amendment of plaint—When to be allowed—

Claim for pre-emption under Mahomedan law as owner of adjacent land—Allegation that plaintiff was pattadar of house in suit—Amendment by adding relief on basis of Shikmidari rules under Land Revenue Act—Permissibility.

Where it is not likely to cause injustice to, or does not take, the defendant by surprise, and where by the amendment the plaintiff is allowed only to rely upon a new ground of relief, it would not and cannot amount to an alteration of the character of the suit or the introduction of a new case, and hence an amendment of the suit could be allowed.

The plaintiff filed a suit for pre-emption under the Mahomedan law of pre-emption alleging that he was the pattadar of the suit house and the owner of the land adjacent to the house. Plaintiff sought leave to amend the plaint by adding a prayer for relief on the ground that he may be granted a decree for pre-emption under Shikmidari rules under the Hyderabad Land Revenue Act on the basis that he was the pattadar of the suit house.

Held, that the amendment applied for was proper and should be allowed. A.I.R. 1950 Hyd. 43.

—Amendment—Duty of Court to allow.

Amendments should be freely allowed unless they change the nature of the suit or unless the allowing of such amendments would interfere with rights which have already accrued to the party who may be adversely affected by the amendments. The party aggrieved by the granting of an amendment can well be compensated if he is allowed costs. I.L.R. (1949) 1 Cal. 75=54 G.W.N. 37.

—Amendment—Plaint praying for partition and separate possession of property—Dismissal for reason that agreement conferring right was unregistered—Appeal—Monies realised during pendency—Right to claim share belonging to plaintiff—Amendment of plaint.

The appellant purchased from the Official Receiver the insolvent's rights in two mortgages one of which was a simple mortgage and the other a usufructuary mortgage. About two years after the sale the appellant entered into an unregistered agreement with the predecessors-in-title of the respondent, who were simple creditors of the insolvent whereby the appellant was to have a three-fourth share and the respondent's predecessors-in-title, an one-fourth share in the rights to the amounts of the said deeds and to the property. Relying on the agreement the respondent filed the present suit for partition and separate possession of the property which was the subject matter of the agreement and for an account of the mesne profits. The trial Court held that as the agreement was not registered and as there was no evidence of any prior agreement the suit was liable to be dismissed. Thereupon an appeal was preferred and during its pendency the amounts due under the mortgages had been realised. Thereupon the plaintiff respondent filed a petition for amendment of the plaint and claimed a share of the sum realised in respect of the mortgage. The appellate Judge allowed the amendment holding that although no rights to the security could be conferred by the unregistered document, a right to the debts could.

Held, that the plaintiff was in any event entitled to a share of the money realised and that the amendment of the plaint was rightly allowed by the lower Court. 61 L.W. 382=A.I.R. 1949 Mad. 52=(1948) 1 M.L.J. 458.

—Amendment of written statement on payment of costs of the other side—Tender of costs and refusal by the other side to accept—Proper procedure—Permission granted if can be withdrawn for non-observance of proper procedure.

Where permission to amend the written statement is granted on payment of costs of the other side and the costs are tendered but refused by the other side, it must be deposited in Court. Where it is not so deposited it is hard to punish the party by withdrawing the permission granted. Instead the party can be ordered to pay the costs. 1948 A.M.L.J. 35.

—Amendment of plaint—Principles governing.

See Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Art. 11-A. (1946) 1 M.L.J. 104=A.I.R. 1946 Mad. 324.

—Amendment—Change of plea.

It is not open to a defendant to change his pleas taken in the written statement without filing a supplementary written statement or making an express request to the Court for permission to so change it and obtaining its orders thereon. 1949 R.D. 120.

—Amendment—Adoption—Administration—Will, construction of—Validity of adoption—Amendment.

In a suit for the construction of a will and administration in which the plaintiff's right to ask for administration depends on the invalidity of an adoption the plaintiff should not only allege its invalidity, but must pray for a declaration to that effect. A mere allegation of the invalidity of the adoption without a prayer to have it declared invalid does not put the validity of the adoption in issue. Plaint directed to be amended by the insertion of a prayer as to the factum and validity of the adoption and the issue of adoption ordered to be tried as a preliminary issue. (1900) 5 C.W.N. 162.

5. Cause of action.

—Cause of action—Decree.

The Court is wrong in passing a decree on a cause of action on which the plaintiff has not based his suit. 5 L.B.R. 46=2 Ind. Cas. 539.

—Cause of action—Erroneous description of.

The fact that the cause of action has been erroneously described does not render it necessary to dismiss the suit. 13 C.W.N. 513=9 C.L.J. 362=5 M.L.T. 297=1 Ind. Cas. 66.

—Cause of action—Hundi.

Where in a suit on a Hundi, the Hundi is inadmissible in evidence for want of proper cancellation of the stamp; the plaintiff can fall back on the original consideration for the hundi provided the terms of the plaint are wide enough to include the original consideration as the basis of the suit. 28 Bom. 432; 28 A. 221, Foll. 26 A. 178, Dist. 18 P.R. 1912=75 P.L.R. 1912=65 P.W.R. 1912=14 Ind. Cas. 512.

—Cause of action—Objection to.

Plea of non-existent cause of action should be taken at the first hearing and it should be allowed to be raised for the first time in the second appeal. 2 P.L.R. 1911=28 P.W.R. 1911=9 Ind. Cas. 385.

6. Construction.

—Construction—Duty of Court to read plaint as a whole.

In construing a plaint, the Court must read the plaint as a whole. 29 P.L.T. 132=A.I.R. 1949 Pat. 166.

—Construction—Court's duty to determine their meaning.

When all the facts necessary for ascertaining what, if any, legal relation is created are on record, the Court can brush aside the label given by a party, determine their true meaning and draw such inference from them as the law enjoins upon it to do. I.L.R. (1949) Nag. 106=A.I.R. 1949 Nag. 286=1949 N.L.J. 591.

—Construction—Liberal construction—Omission of some averments in pleadings—If ground for rejecting case set up.

Pleadings in India ought to be construed liberally as they are not drawn up with such exactitude and clarity as in other countries; and the case of a party cannot be thrown out merely on the ground that certain averments are omitted in the pleadings. 29 P.L.T. 81=13 Cut. L.T. 66.

—Construction not to be strict—Plea not specifically stated—If may be raised.

It is a well-recognised rule that the pleadings of the Mofussil Courts should not be strictly construed, and a plea cannot be ruled out merely because it is not mentioned specifically and in terms in the pleadings. A.I.R. 1949 E.P. 301=51 P.L.R. 44.

—Construction—Rule in India—Duty of Court to avoid technicalities and to do substantial justice by deciding legal effect of facts.

Pleadings in India cannot be regarded with the same meticulous care with which they are scrutinised in the English Courts. Too much insistence should not be laid on technicalities. When facts on both sides are stated with sufficient precision, the legal effect of the facts should be determined by the Court, as rules of pleading are only subordinate to the administration of justice. What has to be looked to is the essential justice of the case and not the observance of forms. A.I.R. 1950 H.P. 12.

—Construction—Mofussil pleadings.

Mofussil pleadings should not be taken exactly as they are drafted and should not be held strictly against the pleaders and their clients, but a good deal of latitude is to be allowed. The intention should be seen. 110 Ind. Cas. 21=1928 M.W.N. 98=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 489.

—Construction.

In India the substance of the pleading and not the form should be considered. In England pleading is an art, and the principles which apply to English pleadings should not be applied whole sale to pleadings in India without due regard to the circumstances and conditions prevailing here: A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 199, Rel. on. 109 Ind. Cas. 199=27 M.L.W. 769=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 445=54 M.L.J. 587.

—Construction—Pleadings in mofussil.

In a case from a District Court in Burma pleadings, and the whole conduct of the case can scarcely be scrutinized with the strictness with which a case would be scrutinized in England. 94 Ind. Cas. 916=4 Rang. 513=1926 M.W.N. 489=3 O.W.N. 735=A.I.R. 1926 P.C. 29 (P.C.).

—Construction.

Pleadings cannot be dissected and accepted in part and rejected as to the remainder but they must be taken as a whole. (39 Bom. 399 (P.C.) and A.I.R. 1924 Nag. 129, Rel. on). 89 Ind. Cas. 1016=A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 60.

—Construction.

In construing pleadings, judgments and decrees in this country the most liberal construction must always be accepted. 72 Ind. Cas. 477=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 342.

—Construction—Indefinite pleadings.

The mere fact that the pleadings do not specifically refer to a contract of sale does not compel the Courts to treat it, as if it were non-existent. 81 Ind. Cas. 857=3 Bur. L.J. 78=2 Rang. 285=A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 214. (F.B.).

—Construction—Pleadings in mofussil.

Where the plaintiff has not expressly asked for a relief but the facts entitling him to such relief are fully set out in the plaint, the plaintiff should not be non-suited merely because of the inartistic method in which his pleas were made in the mofussil Court. 68 Ind. Cas. 559=A.I.R. 1923 Nag. 11.

—Construction—Pleadings in Mofussil.

It is not the duty of the High Court to read pleadings in the Mofussil Courts as strictly as they would be read if they were filed in the Chancery Division of the Supreme Court. The High Court has a much larger range of vision, and the plaintiffs' case cannot be defeated merely on the ground of some technical defect in their pleadings, provided on the real issues in the case they succeed. 46 Bom. 200=23 Bom. L.R. 1009=A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 199=64 Ind. Cas. 517.

—Construction—Liberal construction—Substance to be looked to.

An erroneous description of the claim is not fatal. The law looks at the substance and not at the form. If a claim for money had and received by the defendant was described as damages, it does not much matter. 34 Ind. Cas. 173 (All.).

—Construction.

The substance of the grounds set out in an application must be considered to determine the proper section applicable; the section mentioned in the application is not the criterion. 33 Bom. 698=11 Bom. L.R. 1113=4 Ind. Cas. 253.

—Liberal construction—Strict accuracy, if expected.

The High Court on appeal and dealing with pleadings in the mofussil will not be so strict as it would be in cases from the Original side of the High Court. 27 Ind. Cas. 373. (Cal.)

—Liberal construction—Mofussil.

Pleadings which are loosely drawn and do not contain accurate and legal methods of founding and describing rights alleged are denied, could not be taken too literally and the substance of the averments should alone be looked into. 23 M.L.T. 137=7 L.W. 477=(1918) M.W.N. 346=44 Ind. Cas. 641.

—Liberal construction.

Allowance must be made for the inaccurate mode of setting forth claims of persons and the answers or defences to them. The court must look not only to the mere wording of the plaint but to the issues framed in the case and to the manner in which the case was treated in the lower courts. (1914) M.W.N. 883=26 Ind. Cas. 337.

—Liberal construction.

Mofussil pleadings should not be construed strictly. 12 N.L.R. 90=34 Ind. Cas. 704.

—Liberal Construction.

Pleadings in India should not be too strictly construed. 2 Pat. L.W. 46=41 Ind. Cas. 577.

7. Contents.

—Contents—Particulars—More plea that suit or application is misconceived—Propriety—Duty to give particulars.

No doubt a party is not bound in his pleadings or affidavit to disclose his evidence, but he is certainly bound to give sufficient particulars of his contentions. It would not do merely for the defendant or respondent to say that the suit or the application is misconceived. The practice of merely stating in an affidavit or pleading that the suit or the application is misconceived without anything more ought to be strongly deprecated. 49 Bom. L.R. 468=A.I.R. 1948 Bom. 20.

—Contents—Necessity to plead all material facts.

The rule that material facts should be pleaded is no mere technicality and an omission to observe it deprives pleadings of most of their value and may increase the difficulty of the Court's task of ascertaining the rights of the parties. 74 I.A. 182=I.L.R. (1948) Mad. 139=(1947) 2 M.L.J. 63 (P.C.)=A.I.R. 1947 P.C. 132.

—Contents of plaintiff—Defendant supporting plaintiff—Separate written statement necessary.

Where in a suit for ejectment a third party who is added as defendant supports the plaintiff's case it is necessary that the defendant should file written statement to that effect. It is an erroneous procedure for the plaintiff to state what the defendant intends to read. 52 C.L.J. 357=A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 76.

—Contents.

Mere abuse describing a party as very "cunning and litigious" should not be allowed to find a place in any pleadings. 126 Ind. Cas. 830=A.I.R. 1930 All. 647.

—Contents—Criminal trial.

It is the practice of the Allahabad High Court in appeal to give little or no weight to the allegations or charges of a defendant or accused if they ought to have been put to the plaintiff or complainant or his witnesses and have not been so put. A plaintiff or complainant has an absolute right to know exactly the allegations or charges upon which the opposite side are going to rely and they must be put to him or to his appropriate witnesses clearly, specifically and with the utmost plainness, so that he may have an opportunity of admitting them wholly or in part, or denying them wholly or in part, and of calling witnesses to rebut such allegations or charges as he denies. 115 Ind. Cas. 872=30 Cr.L.J. 530=10 A.I.Cr.R. 101=9 L.R.A.Cr. 90=26 A.L.J. 196=A.I.R. 1928 All. 222.

—Contents—Suit to set aside a decree.

Whatever may be the latitude that may be given or expected in ordinary actions, at any rate in cases where the relief claimed is to have a decree of a Court of competent jurisdiction set aside on certain grounds alleged, it is absolutely necessary that the grounds relied on should be set out clearly and definitely. 108 Ind. Cas. 639=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 945.

—Contents—Should be complete.

A party is not absolved from the necessity of taking up all available grounds for resisting a contention of the other side merely because at the date he has authority of the High Court which, it followed, would relieve him of resisting that contention on any but one ground. 103 Ind. Cas. 277=2 A.L.J. 842=A.I.R. 1927 All. 666.

—Contents.

Pleas should be definitely taken and the facts constituting them should be expressly stated. 84 Ind. Cas. 386=1924 P.H.C.C. 297=6 P.L.T. 465=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 168.

—Contents.

Counsel should not plead their opinion in the plaint in originating summons. 77 Ind. Cas. 83=24 Bom. L.R. 1111=47 Bom. 349=A.I.R. 1923 Bom. 177.

—Contents—Custom.

It is not desirable to pin down both the parties to the precise form of pleadings, though they should allege a custom with distinctness and certainty. But the parties cannot insist the courts upon admitting an obsolete custom. An issue in a case setting up a custom and the allegation in a plaint on which it is based ought to have contained particulars of the custom set up at the trial. 1915 M.W.N. 968=2 L.W. 1214=19 M.L.T. 296=30 M.L.J. 451=31 Ind. Cas. 833.

8. Defence.

—Defence—Plaintiff—Materials on which he can succeed—If can rely on weakness of defendant's case—Defence, if bound to point out defects in plaintiff's title.

It is a well-established principle that the plaintiff can only succeed on the strength of his own case and not on the weakness of the defendant's case. Further it is not necessary for the defendant in his pleadings to point out the defects in the plaintiff's title. He can utilise such defects as appear in that title during the course of the trial. 22 Luck. 164=230 Ind. Cas. 50=1947 O.A. (C.C.) 23=1947 A.W.R. (C.C.) 23=1947 O.W.N. 59=A.I.R. 1947 Oudh 174.

—Defences.

Defences cannot be excluded from the province of procedure unless they negative the rule of procedure. 121 Ind. Cas. 403=56 Cal. 704=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 53.

—Voidable transaction—Defence.

Reliance by plaintiff upon a voidable transaction in support of his title justifies defendant in impeaching its validity by way of defence for which he need not file a separate suit. 82 Ind. Cas. 369=28 C.W.N. 805=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 26.

—Defence—Eviction suit.

A lessee can set up eviction by a person having title paramount in a suit by lessor for rent. 43 Cal. 554=36 Ind. Cas. 33.

—Defence—Jus Testis—How to be set up.

A defendant in raising the plea of jus Testis should state definitely the name of the person in whom that right resides. 1 Ind. Cas. 525 Cal.

9. Evidence and proof.

—Evidence and proof—Pleadings and proof—Duty of party.

A party is expected and is bound to prove the case as alleged by him and as covered by the issue framed.

This is in accordance with the main principle of practice that a party can only succeed according to what was alleged and proved. Secundum allegata et probata. A.I.R. 1950 E.P. 256.

—Evidence and proof—Pleadings and proof—Variation—Effect—Suit to eject tenant on determination of tenancy—Tenancy not proved—Proof of title and permissive possession of defendant—Decree—Right to Where in a suit to eject a person as a monthly tenant whose tenancy had been determined by notice, the tenancy set up is not proved, but it is found that the plaintiff had title and the defendant entered into possession with the plaintiff's permission a decree for possession may nevertheless be passed on the facts proved, though they are different from the facts alleged. It is not necessary that the suit should be dismissed. 226 Ind. Cas. 137=12 B.R. 691=1945 P.W.N. 395=A.I.R. 1946 Pat. 103.

—Evidence and proof—Variance of—Cause of action

It is for the party alleging that there was complete contract to show that the contract was complete on the particular date, the party cannot be allowed to prove a contract of different date when it definitely alleges the contract of a particular date. A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 325.

—Evidence and proof—Variance of—Rule as to.

Although the determination of a case should be founded upon a case either to be found in the pleadings or involved in or consistent with the case made thereby, it does not follow from this that every variance between the pleading and proof is material and justifies a dismissal of the claim. 11 P. L. T. 447=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 476.

—Evidence and proof—Oral gift.

A party relying upon an oral gift is bound to prove with the utmost precision the words on which he relies with other circumstances of time and place. 117 Ind. Cas. 456=6 O.W.N. 51=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 134.

—Evidence and proof—Claim as partner—Evidence as assignee of a partner.

It is a fundamental principle of the law of pleadings that a plaintiff in a suit can only succeed on the cause of action set forth in the plaint or on a cause of action consistent with his pleadings.

Where in a suit for a share in partnership the plaintiff bases his claim on his being a partner, but it is subsequently proved that he is the assignee of a partner:

Held, that he is not entitled to a decree. 101 Ind. Cas. 367=5 Bur. L.J. 233=A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 118.

—Evidence and proof.

A claim should be decided secundum et allegata et probata and proof must accord with pleas. 33 Bom. 35 Foll. 95 Ind. Cas. 18 Nag.

—Evidence and proof—Claim for easement on behalf of all—Acquisition of right by some only.

If a plaintiff comes into Court and says that he as well as other persons have acquired a right of easement over a certain land, and does not succeed in proving that the other persons had such right, there is nothing to prevent him from succeeding in his claim if he can prove that he has used the land in the way required by law for the purpose of acquisition of a right of easement. 91 Ind. Cas. 648=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 647.

—Evidence and proof—Attachment of joint family property—Plaintiff alleging partition—Failure to prove.

Where A comes into Court with an allegation that certain property was exclusively his by reason of its allotment to his share at a partition effected between him and his other co-parcener B, and that it was not, therefore, liable to attachment and sale in execution of a money decree obtained by a creditor against his debtor B, but fails to prove the allotment and the attaching creditor who similarly contended that the said item of joint property had become the exclusive property of his judgment-debtor by virtue of its allotment to his share also fails to prove the alleged allotment and the Court finds that the property was the joint property of the family it is open to the Court to grant to the plaintiff such relief as flows from the findings and if the Court does it, it cannot be successfully impeached in second appeal. 90 Ind. Cas. 263=A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 203.

—Evidence and proof—Oral will.

Where a party sets up a Will and gives the facts on which he relies, the Court is entitled to infer from those facts the execution of an oral Will. 94 Ind. Cas. 796=13 O.L.J. 152=A.I.R. 1926 Oudh 342.

—Evidence and proof.

Evidence of party is not part of pleading. 89 Ind. Cas. 639=47 All. 867=23 A. L. J. 795=6 L.R.A. Civ. 405=A.I.R. 1925 All. 759.

—Evidence and proof—Pleadings and proof—Variance between—Defendants admission—Effect of.

Every variance between pleadings and proof is not fatal. The rule that the plaintiff is entitled to succeed upon the allegations made by him in the plaint and pleadings is intended for the protection of the defendant so that he may have notice, from the very commencement, of the case which he has to meet and may not be taken by surprise. This rule has no application where a finding though at variance with the plea of the plaintiff has been arrived at by the admission of the defendant and on the evidence adduced by him. 1 N.L.R. 4 and 12 N.L.R. 57 Foll. 89 Ind. Cas. 486=A.I.R. 1925 Nag. 434.

—Evidence and proof.

In a suit for damages for loss of goods conveyed by a railway under Risk-note B, the plaintiff put forward an argument that Risk-note B was not justified at all and that the plaintiff had paid full rate and not the reduced rate. This issue was not put forward in this form in the trial Court. Further there was evidence on the record of two witnesses to the effect that the goods were booked at reduced rates. Plaintiff desired the Court to give another opportunity to disprove those statements and prove as a fact that the rate charged was a reduced one.

Held: that he was not entitled to any such privilege. 87 Ind. Cas. 215=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 631.

—Evidence and proof—Variance of—Plea of custom.

It is not every variation between pleading and proof which is fatal to a suit or a defence. Where a custom was alleged in defence but not proved and it was not framed as a distinct issue:

Held, that it did not prejudice the defence. 78 Ind. Cas. 480=A.I.R. 1924 All. 831.

—Evidence and proof—General ownership alleged—Legal implications not mentioned.

Where the plaintiff alleged tarwad ownership of the money, but it did not say distinctly whether a certain deed was taken in the defendant's name benami or the money was given to her.

Held, it submitted the general facts to the Court without specification of their exact legal implications, and whether the plaintiff proved the narrower case of gift by the first defendant of what was found to be trust money or the wider case of benami, the evidence required would be the same, and therefore no surprise or misapprehension had been established on defendant's behalf. 74 Ind. Cas. 1012=1923 M.W.N. 657=A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 174.

—Evidence and proof—Claim for exclusive possession—Decree for joint possession.

A suit cannot be dismissed merely on account of a false averment. A Court is entitled to apply the law to the fact actually proved by the evidence even though they show the allegations of both the parties to be untrue, incorrect or incapable of proof and judicial recognition. A plaintiff who claims exclusive possession of land can be awarded its joint possession. A Court is justified in giving the plaintiff relief to which he is entitled on facts found proved irrespective of what his original claim was. (12 N.L.R. 67; 5 N.L.R. 105; 20 B. 569, Foll.) 76 Ind. Cas. 200=A.I.R. 1924 Nag. 189.

—Evidence and proof—Suit on title.

A suit based on title could not succeed on the ground of possessory title in case plaintiff failed to prove his real title. 33 All. 174 Foll. 72 Ind. Cas. 924=A.I.R. 1923 All. 117.

—Evidence and proof—Variance between—When material—Prejudice to defence.

The rule that the pleading and proof must correspond is intended to serve a double purpose: first, to apprise the defendant distinctly and specifically of the case he is called upon to answer; and secondly, to preserve an accurate record of the cause of action as a protection against a second proceeding upon the same allegations. The test thus is, whether the defendant will be taken by surprise if relief is granted on the facts established by the evidence; or, a variance between a pleading and what is proved is immaterial unless it hampers a defence or unless it relates to an integral part of the cause of action. The principle of variance between pleading and proof should not be applied in an abstract way; the whole of the circumstances must be taken into account and carefully scrutinised, as the question is, in ultimate analysis, one of circumstances and not of law. 74 Ind. Cas. 793=36 C.L.J. 356=50 Cal. 292=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 142.

—Evidence and proof—Fraud—Proof of.

Where a case of fraud is attempted to be made out and the evidence adduced in the case is equally consistent with the allegations of the plaintiff as with the denial of the defendants a case of fraud is not established. 71 Ind. Cas. 843=4 P.L.T. 102=1923 P.H.C.C. 137=1 Pat. L.R. 252=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 327.

—Evidence and proof—Evidence consistent with allegation of plaintiff and denial of defendant—Plaintiff must fail.

Where the undoubted evidence is consistent both with the allegation of the plaintiff as with the denial of the defendant, the plaintiff must fail. 67 Ind. Cas. 451=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 165.

—Evidence and proof—Variance of—Prejudice to the other party.

Neither party to a litigation can be allowed to set up at the hearing an entirely new and inconsistent case. The plaintiff must be held to the state of facts alleged in his plaint or substantially consistent therewith. The defendant also must be held to the state of facts alleged in his written statement or in harmony therewith. In allowing an objection that the case has been decided on a ground not raised in the pleadings, the test to be applied is whether the party aggrieved has really been taken by surprise. 64 Ind. Cas. 565=35 C.L.J. 103=26 C.W.N. 294=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 254.

—Evidence and proof—Variation—Proof—Object of the rule against.

Every variance between pleading and proof is not fatal; the Court must carefully consider whether the objection is one of form or substance having in view the purpose which the rule that allegation and proof must correspond is intended to serve; viz., first to apprise the defendant distinctly and specifically of the case he is called upon to answer so that he may properly make a defence and not be taken by surprise and secondly to preserve an accurate record of the cause of action as a protection against a second proceeding founded upon the same allegations. 24 C.W.N. 662=30 C.L.J. 475=55 Ind. Cas. 689.

—Evidence and proof—Variation—Change of case.

The determination in a cause should be based upon a case either to be found in the pleadings or involved in or consistent with the case thereby made, although the Court is competent to determine that the rights of the parties litigant are really different from what is alleged either by the plaintiff or by the defendant. 22 C.W.N. 853=29 C.L.J. 1=41 Ind. Cas. 378.

—Evidence and proof.

The principal practice is that a plaintiff can only recover according to his allegations and proof 10 Bur. L.T. 119=36 Ind. Cas. 464.

—Evidence and proof.

Every variance between pleadings and proof is not fatal, though the determination of the case should be founded upon the allegations in the pleadings or involved in or consistent with the case made thereby. The rule that the pleading and the proof must correspond is intended to serve a double purpose: (1) to apprise the defendant distinctly and specifically of the case he is called upon to answer and (2) to preserve an accurate record of the cause of action as a protection against a second proceeding upon the same allegations. Where the plaintiff fails to make out the precise title set up in the plaint but the court comes to the conclusion upon the entire evidence that he is entitled only to one half of what he claimed, the court is entitled to give a decree therefor. 23 C.L.J. 429=34 Ind. Cas. 444.

—Evidence and proof—Variance—When fatal to suit—Variance not affecting cardinal point in issue—Nature of the principle.

Held, that the High Court in relying for the dismissal of the suit on, amongst other grounds, that of variance between pleading and proof had applied that principle in an abstract and unsatisfactory way which had misled them in estimating the merits of the case. The question in ultimate analysis was one of circumstances and not of law. The evidence adduced in support of the transaction having been effected on the 7th Nov. was not necessarily perjured or fabricated when it appeared that the statements of witnesses and entries in account books might be due to bona fide mistake 20 C.W.N. 297=30 M.L.J. 444=3 L.W. 308=(1916) 1. M.W.N. 137=34 Ind. Cas. 268. (P. C.).

—Evidence and proof—Variation—Evidence gone into—Effect of.

Where evidence has been fully taken on a plea arising in the case it is not proper for the court to decide against a party on a strict construction of the pleadings without considering the evidence when such a technical view might have been obviated by a mere amendment of the pleadings. 39 Bom. 399=17 M.L.T. 402=28 M.L.J. 589=13 A.L.J. 529=19 C.W.N. 713=21 C.L.J. 507=17 Bom.L.R. 460=2 L.W. 524=(1915) M.W.N. 522=42 I.A. 103=29 Ind. Cas. 223 (P. C.).

—Evidence and proof—Variance.

Where both parties understood the real point in issue and give evidence, the fact that the pleadings subsequent to the plaint and the evidence disclosed facts at variance with the plaint is immaterial. 25 Ind. Cas. 280. (All.).

—Evidence and proof.

Where a Mahomedan lady soon after her return from Mecca, impeached a deed of gift, she had made to the defeddant before her setting out on account of fraud and misrepresentation and sued for accounts, when there was a finding that she was entitled only to one fourth of the properties, Held, that in spite of a general issue as to liability to account the defendant could not be called to render accounts as regards the one-fourth to which she was entitled. 17 C.W.N. 427=23 Ind. Cas. 332.

—Evidence and proof—Variance.

It is not every variance between the pleadings and proof that justifies dismissal of the suit; the variance must be in material respects. The object of the rule requiring that the proof must correspond with allegation is to apprise the defendant distinctly of what he is called on to meet and to preserve an accurate record of the cause of action as a protection against a second proceeding on the same allegations. 18 C.W.N. 473=16 Ind. Cas. 741.

—Evidence and proof—Variance.

To the general rule that the parties ought to be kept to their pleadings and the Court should not raise for them in appeal a new point there are some exceptions. Agreements between persons in the relation of mortgagor and mortgagee or trustee and 'cestui que' trust, are some of them.

A Court as a Court of equity is bound to examine into the nature of such agreements if it finds prima facie ground to suspect that the transaction is oppressive or unconscionable. When a question is fairly raised either at the original trial, or in appeal and it is met there by one of the parties on a specific ground though other grounds were open and the specific ground fails that party should not be allowed as a general rule, to rely upon any of the other grounds in second appeal if the allowing of that ground necessitates a remand for the taking of fresh evidence. 12 Bom.L.R. 795=7 Ind. Cas. 977.

—Evidence and proof—Denial of plaint—Allegation—Duty of plaintiff to prove.

Where an allegation in a plaint is not admitted by the defendant, the plaintiff, if he ignores the point, does so at his peril for the defence puts him to prove his title. Action for damages for breach of trade mark was dismissed on the ground of want of proof of plaintiff's title to sue. 13 C.W.N. 82=4 Ind. Cas. 318. (P. C.).

—Evidence and proof—Variation—Decision Court must be based on.

The determination in a cause should always be founded upon a case either to be found, in the pleadings or involved in or consistent with, the case thereby made. 6 W.R. (P. C.) 57; 14 C. 801 (P. C.), Foll, 5 L.B.R. 76=3 Ind. Cas. 719.

—Evidence and proof—Variance.

A variance between a pleading and what is proved is immaterial unless it hampers a defence or unless it relates to an integral part of the cause of action. 15 C.W.N. 882=11 Ind. Cas. 540.

—Evidence and proof—Variation of.

The determination of a case should be founded either on allegations in the pleadings or involved or consistent with the case thereby made. 8 Ind. Cas. 713 (Cal.).

—Evidence and proof.

Where the plaintiff is unable to prove his assertions his suit should be dismissed. 78 P.L.R. 1911=74 P.W.R. 1911=9 Ind. Cas. 591.

—Evidence and proof—Defective pleadings should be supplied by evidence and documents.

A plaintiff ought not to be non-suited in other than absolutely plain cases; in case of defective pleadings, the proper course is to hear the evidence and examine the documents. 29 M.L.J. 786=31 Ind. Cas. 704.

—Evidence and proof.

A party need not prove an allegation of fact neither denied nor expressly admitted by his opponent. A Court is bound to accept a party's repudiation of his interest in the suit. 101 P.W.R. 1912=131 P.L.R. 1912=16 Ind. Cas. 122.

—Evidence and proof—Variation—Proof—Form of decree.

Where the case of the plaintiff as made in the plaint is that she has been all along in possession and she is not found to be in possession, a decree for recovery of possession is inconsistent with the suit. 14 C. W. N. 366=4 Ind. Cas. 547.

—Evidence and proof—Plea of mala fides.

The plea of mala fides must be conclusively established so that the facts from which it is inferred must not admit of any other explanation. 33 Bom. 334 = 10 Bom. L. R. 821=3 Ind. Cas. 361.

—Evidence and proof—Prayer for exclusive possession—Decree for joint possession, if can be given:—

It cannot be affirmed as a general proposition of law that whenever a party asks for recovery of property on the allegation that he is exclusively entitled to possession there-of, his suit must necessarily be dismissed if he proves that he is entitled to joint possession; but if he claims possession of a specific portion of a large area as representing his share he cannot recover joint possession of the whole property upon failure to prove his exclusive title. (1909) 10 C.L.J. 213=2 Ind. Cas. 492.

10. False averments.

—False statements—Suit for declaration by reversioner.

The fact that the plaintiff made certain false allegations to establish his right as the presumptive reversioner does not disqualify him from maintaining the suit if the facts found invest him with a status in which he can sue for the declaration he seeks. 1930 A.L.J. 1428 = 128 Ind. Cas. 782=A. I. R. 1930 All. 734.

—Effect of false averments.

The effect of a false assertion in the plaint on a certain matter does not entitle the court in refusing the plaintiff another relief to which he is entitled. 9 M.L.T. 478=10 Ind. Cas. 498.

—False averments—Dismissal of suit.

A Court should not dismiss a suit mainly on the ground of false averments in plaint. 12 N.L.R. 57=33 Ind. Cas. 497.

—False case—Plaintiff's failure to prove case set up—Decree upon case proved—No surplus to defendant.

Where plaintiff brought the suit for possession of house and damages and not for arrears of rent alleging due termination of tenancy and it was found that the defendant was not tenant but merely in permissive occupation and never before asserted an adverse title:

Hold, that the court may pass a decree in favour of plaintiff although he had failed to prove the case he set up, the new case not being such as could have possibly taken the defendant by surprise. (1884) A.W.N. 285, (1901) A.W.N. 157 dist. 1903 A. W. N. 18=25 A. 256.

11. Finding.

—Finding—Basis of.

No finding can be based upon statements, however true, made in an affidavit by a person about 18 or 19 years of age, where the statement is made at the instigation of persons who have some interest to serve thereby. 33 C.W.N. 930=51 C.L.J. 320=57 Cal. 434 = A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 69.

—Finding — Pleadings found untrue—Binding nature.

If a particular fact is alleged in his pleadings by a party and an enquiry is made regarding its truth or otherwise and as result of that enquiry it is found to be untrue and decision is given on the basis of such finding in favour of the opposite party, such opposite party is no more in a position to ignore that finding and to ask the Court to hold the party originally taking such a plea to be bound by it: A. I. R. 1915 P. C. Foll. 111 Ind. Cas. 843=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 41,

—Finding.

It is of absolute necessity that the determinations in a cause should be founded upon a case either to be found in the pleadings or involved in or consistent with the case thereby made: 11 M.I.A. 7 (P.C.) Foll. 20 S.L.R. 220=A.I.R. 1927 Sind. 219.

—Finding.

It is open to a Court to find that the case of a party lies somewhere between the cases of both parties. 12 N.L.R. 57 Rel. on. 89 Ind. Cas. 991=A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 48.

—Finding — Party impeaching prior suit—Reliance on pleadings.

A party pleading that he is not bound by certain previous proceedings, he being not a party to those proceedings, is not entitled to take advantage of any finding in those previous proceedings which is in his favour. 85 Ind. Cas. 454=20 M. L. W. 798=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 300.

—Findings—Inconsistent findings against co-defendants.

Where after both parties have given evidence and the Court has come to the conclusion that the plaintiff had failed to prove the case set up by him, it would not lie in the mouth of the plaintiff to turn round and ask for a decree against one of the defendants who had not expressly denied one of the facts in issue. (25 All. 159, Foll.) 77 Ind. Cas. 609=45 All. 571=A.I.R. 1924 All. 150.

—Finding—Claim not denied.

Where plaintiffs claimed mesne profits which were not specifically denied in the written statement, the absence of specific issue on the point is no ground for disentitling plaintiff to mesne profits. The Court should have framed an issue if necessary and decided the point. 69 Ind. Cas. 389=16 Mad. L.W. 752=A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 168.

—Finding.

The Court of first instance, although it declared the plaintiff's title, nevertheless passed an order for maintaining the defendant's possession as manager:

Held, this was a wrong order in as much as the defendant did not profess to be in possession as manager but was setting up an adverse title. 66 Ind. Cas. 148 = 20 All. L. J. 231 = A.I.R. 1922 All. 114.

—Finding—Pleading not specific

When the plaint is drawn so as to cause confusion the issue may be taken to ascertain the plaintiff's case. 8 M. L. T. 202 = 7 Ind. Cas. 800.

—Finding—Acknowledgment of full consideration—Finding of failure of consideration in part in favour of some of the defendants.

Where in a suit upon a mortgage the mortgagor either by acknowledgment or otherwise estopped himself from disputing the receipt of the full consideration, but the court found that the consideration was true only partially, the finding can be taken advantage of even by the mortgagor. 3-A. 82 foll. 1902 A.W.N. 218 = 25 A. 159.

12. Fraud or undue influence.

—Fraud or undue influence.

See also Evidence Act, S. 44.

—Fraud—Particulars—Necessity.

Where a defendant merely says that the suit bond was obtained from him by fraud and does not specify anywhere in the pleadings or his deposition the particulars of the fraud or in what the fraud consisted, it cannot be held on such materials that the bond was obtained by fraud. A.I.R. 1950 Kut. 67.

—Fraud or undue influence—Raising of and relief on—Absence of specific label of undue influence—Written statement containing all particulars and material facts—Plea of undue influence—Duty of Court to go into.

The mere fact that no plea of undue influence is specifically raised in a written statement does not debar the party from raising it before the Court or the Court from going into it and deciding it. Though it is true that a plea of undue influence has to be pleaded with precision, it does not mean that the relevant particulars in the pleadings giving rise to that plea must be labelled as undue influence. If there are sufficient facts on record to justify the inference of undue influence, the omission to specifically raise the plea as such will not prevent the Court from deciding the case on that ground and giving relief to the party on that ground. The absence of the label of undue influence is not of much importance; when all the material facts are set out in the written statement, the claim to relief must be decided with reference to them, independently of their being labelled as undue influence or fraud as the case may be. The Court will not be justified in refusing to go into the question in such a case. 58 Mad. 454; 27 N.L.R. 19 rel. A.I.R. 1950 Hyd. 55.

—Fraud—To be pleaded with particularity.

No case of fraud can be gone into by Courts unless it is pleaded with the utmost particularity and unless it is proved as laid. Details of the fraud and why the fraud was necessary and how it was carried out has to be given. A.I.R. 1948 Nag. 170.

—Fraud—Plea of—Particulars to be set forth—General allegations—Sufficiency.

Litigants who prefer charges of fraud or other improper conduct against persons should be compelled to place on record precise and specific details of those charges even if no objection is taken on behalf of the parties who are interested in disproving the accusations. General allegations are insufficient even to amount to an averment of fraud of which any court ought to take notice. Full particulars of the fraud alleged must be set forth. 48 Bom. L. R. 341 = A.I.R. 1946 Bom. 516 = 1947 Comp. C. 21 = 229 Ind. Cas. 84.

—Fraud.

Where fraud or undue influence is alleged detailed particulars must be given in the pleadings and parties must be strictly confined to that state of facts. Where particulars of fraud or undue influence alleged are wholly rejected and evidence disbelieved and a vague and different kind of fraud of undue influence is held to have been probable on other circumstances and doubts and conjectures, there is a substantial error in procedure resulting in a finding not according to the pleadings and evidence and not sustainable in law. A charge of fraud must be substantially proved as laid and where one kind of fraud is charged another kind of fraud cannot, upon failure of proof, be substituted for it. The same rule applies when undue influence is a species of fraud. 11 Bom. 620 P. C. and 22 Cal. 324 (P. C.) Rel. on. 110 Ind. Cas. 91 = 5 O.W.N. 435 = A.I.R. 1928 Oudh 330.

—Fraud—Allegations.

In suits on the basis of fraud definite and clear allegations must be made. 14 A.L.J. 25 = 38 All. 126 = 33 Ind. Cas. 913.

—Fraud—Who can set up.

A person cannot be allowed to plead fraud of his own predecessors to avoid the legal consequences of those transactions. 37 Bom. 217 = 13 Bom. L. R. 1011 = 12 Ind. Cas. 583.

—Fraud—Proof.

A plea of fraud must be specifically raised and clearly proved. 24 C.L.J. 335 = 37 Ind. Cas. 707.

—Fraud.

A general allegation unaccompanied by particulars do not amount to an averment of fraud of which any Court would take notice. Walingford v. Mutual Society 5 A.C 685 Rel. 17 C.W.N. 524 = 14 Ind. Cas. 53.

—Fraud—Alternative plea.

If a plaintiff fails in establishing a plea of fraud he cannot be allowed to raise another plea, unless he has asked the relief alternatively. 37 Cal. 856 = 12 C. L. J. 70 = 6 Ind. Cas. 472.

—Fraud—undue influence—If consistent.

Two pleas, in a plaint to set aside a document of fraud and undue influences are not inconsistent, where there is a clear indication in the plaint that the plaintiff intended to plead undue influence; if there was any omission of any specific plea as to undue influence, it will be cured by the subsequent statement that undue influence was used. 72 P.W.R. 1917=90 P. R. 1917=39 Ind. Cas. 798.

—Fraud—Plea of.

A party relying on fraud ought to allege it specifically in the plaint. 15 P. W. R. 1915=121 P. L. R. 1915=26 Ind. Cas. 426.

—Fraud—Definite allegations.

All allegation of fraud must be made in the pleadings definitely and categorically according to O. 6, R. 10, C. P. C., and must in no circumstances, be allowed to be made at a later stage of the suit. (1916) 1 M. W. N. 180=34 Ind. Cas. 1.

—Fraud—Proof of.

The Court should not insist upon direct proof of fraud in every case, since fraud could not be proved positively. 21 Ind. Cas. 69 (Oudh).

—Fraud—Suit for cancellation of mortgage deed on the ground of fraud—Declaratory decree that mortgage true and valid in part.

When the plaintiff brings a suit for cancellation of a mortgage deed on the ground of fraud, and fraud is found against, the proper course is for the court to dismiss the suit. It cannot grant a decree declaring that the mortgage is true and valid to the extent of a portion of the amount, especially when the plaintiff, being entitled to a consequential relief, fails to claim it. (1905) 29 M. 298.

—Fraud—Question of.

See Fraud. 10 Bom. L.R. 276=32 B. 255.

13. Highway.

—Highway—Public and private rights of way—Allegations.

In pleading a public right of way the Termini need not be set out because the public have a right to use the way for all purposes and at all times, but in pleading private rights of way, the Termini or the way and the course which it takes must be shown with reasonable precision. 57 Ind. Cas. 151 (Pat.).

14. Inconsistent pleas.

—Inconsistency in—If affects maintainability of suit.

Where inconsistent allegations are made in the pleadings, the inconsistency may be, and probably would be, a ground for viewing both the allegations with the greatest suspicion, but it would not, as a matter of pleading, render the suit not maintainable. I.L.R. 34 Cal. 54, Foll. 1950 A.W.R. 166=A.I.R. 1950 A. 352=1950 A.L.J. 172.

—Inconsistent pleas—Permissibility.

It is a fundamental principle that a party, whether he is a plaintiff or a defendant, cannot make a new case, much less a new case which is inconsistent with the case as made in his pleading. 53 C.W.N. 284.

—Inconsistent reliefs—Suit to revoke gift and for possession of gifted property and defendant's failure to fulfil conditions of gift to pay maintenance—Claim to arrears of maintenance under gift—Competency—Election of remedies.

In a suit by a Mahomedan woman for revocation of a deed of gift executed by her on the ground that the donees had failed to maintain her out of the produce of the property gifted, as stipulated in the deed of gift (the consideration for the gift having failed) and for possession of the property it is not open to the plaintiff to claim arrears of maintenance due to her under the gift deed. Though it would be open to the donor to sue for arrears of maintenance on the basis of a breach of contract or breach of trust committed by the defendants, the plaintiff must elect between the two alternative course open to her, namely, possession of the property after revocation of the gift or arrears of maintenance on the basis of the gift deed. If a decree for arrears of maintenance be passed and the amount due under it be paid, then the donees would have fulfilled their obligation and would then be entitled to have the property gifted. But if the plaintiff elects to recover possession, no decree for arrears of maintenance can be legally passed. A. I. R. 1950 Pat. 300.

—Inconsistent pleas—Co-tenancy and adverse possession.

Once a plaintiff pleads co-tenancy, he could not at the same time advance a plea of adverse possession 1950 R.D. 57.

—Inconsistent pleas in the alternative—Competency.

A defendant in a suit is not precluded from raising inconsistent pleas in the alternative. 1950 K.L.T. 143=A.I.R. 1950 T.C. 66 (F.B.).

—Inconsistent pleas—Permissibility.

A litigant is within his rights in taking alternative and inconsistent points, as in the case of a borrower of an article belonging to the plaintiff who was alleged to have damaged that article and pleaded (1) that it was irreparably broken when he had it; (2) that it was perfectly all right when he returned it. I.L.R. (1945) 1 Cal. 565=80 C.L.J. 297.

—Inconsistent pleas—Right set up as owner and as holder of easement—Dismissal of suit not proper.

Plaintiff cannot be allowed to take the impossible position of being the owner of and of having a simultaneous right of easement over the same land. But where the reliefs claimed upon ownership and upon the right of easement in respect of the same property are not claimed simultaneously, but in the alternative, the action of the plaintiff must be condemned, but the plaintiff should not be penalized by a total dismissal of the suit. 128 Ind. Cas. 755=1930 A.L.J. 1537=A.I.R. 1930 All. 877.

—Inconsistent plea.

Where plaintiff based his suit on the averment that A was the last male holder but it was found that B and not A was the last holder:

Held, that plaintiff's suit cannot be dismissed on the ground of false averment. 12 N.L.R. 57 Foll. 100 Ind. Cas. 446=22 N.L.R. 175=10 N.L.J. 5=A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 104.

—Inconsistent pleas.

A person is not precluded from setting up an inconsistent case in a subsequent litigation. (33 A. 344 P.C. Foll.). 90 Ind. Cas. 124=21 M.L.W. 551=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 645.

—Inconsistent pleas—Existence of contract denied—Plea as to enforceability.

A plea that the policy was not in existence at the time of the fire and that there was no contract of insurance at all coupled with a plea, that if there was any then by reason of certain conditions precedent to the attaching of any liability the defendants would not be liable, is not contrary to the law of India. 83 Ind. Cas. 593=2 Rang. 144=A.I.R. 1924 Rang. 317.

—Inconsistent plea.

Where the defendant's witnesses said that the property gifted was worth a thousand rupees or more, and the witnesses for the plaintiff said that the property was only worth Rs. 200, the plaintiff cannot contend that the property involved in the transfer is so valuable as to make it grossly improbable that the defendant's second party should have made a gift of it, and at the same time to claim that it is worth only Rs. 200 and was in fact transferred for its market value. 73 Ind. Cas. 295=4 L.R.A. Civ. 85=A.I.R. 1923 All. 135.

—Inconsistent pleas—Character of suit.

Where a plaintiff has rested his case upon fraud, when the case of fraud has failed, he cannot be permitted to support it upon an entirely different and inconsistent ground. Although, therefore, a suit, brought as one for possession, may, in the discretion of the Court, where the circumstances of the case permit it, be converted into one for redemption on the assumption that the mortgage was valid and binding, a plaintiff must ordinarily succeed on the case he has made in the plaint, and unless there are special circumstances, an action instituted for purposes absolutely inconsistent with redemption cannot properly be converted into an action to redeem. As it would in reality amount to conversion of a suit of one character into a suit of another and inconsistent character. 67 Ind. Cas. 394=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 296.

—Inconsistent pleas.

It is well settled that a party litigant cannot be allowed to take inconsistent positions in Court to the detriment of his opponent. 64 Ind. Cas. 903=35 C. L. J. 58=A. I. R. 1922 Cal. 114.

15. Nature of suit.

—Nature of suit.

Nature of a suit is to be determined from the plaint as framed and not from the pleas of the defendant. A. I. R. 1930 Lah. 613.

—Nature of suit.

The nature of suit is determined by the allegations in the plaint and not by the question of finding. 120 Ind. Cas. 421=A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 386.

—Nature of suit.

A suit must always be regarded as having relation only to the legal obligations previous to the institution of the suit. 108 Ind. Cas. 319=1927 M. W. N. 527=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 245.

16. Omissions.

—Omissions.

—Court finding a case for party.

In the absence of any pleading and issue on a point, a Court is not justified in setting up a case for a party which he did not try to assert in pleading. 31 P. L. R. 578=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 803.

—Omissions—Adverse inferences.

Pleadings in this country are generally defective and carelessly drawn and it is not always conducive to justice to draw an adverse inference against a party because he has omitted to mention certain facts in his pleadings which ought to have been mentioned. 11 P.L.T. 403=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 455.

—Omissions—Effect of.

If a particular point is not alleged in the pleadings and consequently no issue is framed on it, the mere fact that argument is addressed to the Court on that point will not remedy the defect in pleadings. 1929 A.L. J. 1132=A.I.R. 1929 All. 657.

—Omissions—Provision of law.

Omission to specify the provision of law in an application is not a serious objection, which can deprive the plaintiff of his rights. 92 Ind. Cas. 314=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 305.

—Omission—Pleadings—Want of consideration.

If the defendant does not plead want of consideration, the question of consideration cannot be gone into. 5 L. B. R. 46=2 Ind. Cas. 539.

17. Pleas included in other pleas.

—Pleas included in other pleas — Major plea includes minor.

Where the defence Pleader gave four reasons for a gift being invalid and one of these was that it was never given effect to.

Held, that such a plea can very well include the plea of want of acceptance by the donee. 74 Ind. Cas. 818=A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 164.

—Pleas included in other pleas—Loan repudiated—Plea as to high rate of interest.

It is not possible to say, after the decision of the Board in the case of Nazir Begum v. Rao Raghunath Singh, (23 C.W.N. 700), that a plea of no legal necessity for a loan and that the property is not at all liable for payment of the amount claimed, does not open the door for a defendant to say that the rate of interest is excessive, and place on the plaintiff the onus of proving that the rate of interest is not excessive, having regard to all the circumstances which prevailed when the loan was made. 71 Ind. Cas. 933=2 Pat. 285=25 Bom. L.R. 568=1923 M. W. N. 382=38 C.L.J. 25=4 P.L.T. 29=32 M.L.T. 129=50 I.A. 14=28 C.W.N. 446=18 M.L.W. 767=1 Pat. L.R. 445=4 L.R.P.C. 75=A.I.R. 1923 P. C. 37=44 M.L.J. 615 (P.C.).

—Pleas included in other pleas—Confirmation of possession—Prayer for possession.

The words "confirmation of possession" have now acquired a technical meaning and include a prayer for recovery of possession if the Court thinks the plaintiff is out of possession. It is for this reason that such a relief has been held to be consequential relief within S. 7 (iv) (c) of the Court Fees Act. 68 Ind. Cas. 316=73 Ind. Cas. 43=2 Pat. 198=1922 P.H.C.C. 337=4 P.L.T. 71=1 Pat. L.R. 25=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 137.

18. Procedure and duty of Court.

—Procedure and duty of Court—Duty of Court to confine parties to pleadings.

Parties should be confined to their pleadings and a Court of law should not allow itself to be persuaded to enter into a roaming inquiry or to undertake to decide points on which the party adversely affected has not been given an opportunity to put forward his defence or to adduce evidence. 21 Luck. 222=225 Ind. Cas. 45=1946 A.W.R. (C.C.) 127=(1946) O.W.N. 160=1946 O.A. (C.C.) 127=A.I.R. 1947 Oudh 22.

—Procedure and duty of Court.

A plaintiff who is purposely vague in hopes of his case being misunderstood by the Court in his favour ought to be carefully examined and tied down to definite pleadings. 127 Ind. Cas. 524=A. I. R. 1930 All. 321.

—Procedure and duty of Court—Different custom pleaded on each side.

Where plaintiffs set up a particular custom and the defendants in terms deny the custom set up by the plaintiffs and go on to plead a different custom, it is not permissible in such a case to split up the custom but the case as regards the custom set up either by the plaintiffs or by the defendants must be taken as a whole and not piecemeal. 114 Ind. Cas. 113=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 204.

—Procedure and duty of Court.

Baker, J.—The Court is bound to apply the law to the facts proved or admitted whatever the case of the parties may be. 110 Ind. Cas. 633=52 Bom. 393=30 Bom. L.R. 591=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 291.

—Procedure and duty of Court—Omission to plead—Objected by defendant in Second Appeal.

Where a defect in the plaint was not pointed out by defendants in the trial or appellate Court and it was also not raised in grounds of appeal to 2nd Appellate Court but it was found that both the lower Courts dealt with the aspect of the case as, according to defendants, the plaintiffs ought to have presented as though a direct issue was raised in respect thereof.

Held: that it would not be in the interests of justice to non-suit the plaintiffs on the mere ground that the plaint did not contain any averments with regard to it. 111 Ind. Cas. 266=28 M.L.W. 213=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 703=55 M.L.J. 369.

—Procedure and duty of court—Omission which can be cured by amendment.

It is, no doubt, true that a cause should be decided secundum allegata et probata but that rule should not be applied in an abstract way regardless of the circumstances. It would not be satisfactory to decide against a party on a view which might have been obviated by a mere amendment of the pleading, and in a case where the parties had been allowed to go to proof: A.I.R. 1915 P.C. 2 Foll. 104 Ind. Cas. 412=A.I.R. 1927 Sind 248.

—Procedure and duty of Court—Fraud or forgery allegations—Proof of.

Where defendants challenged the contract of sale by plaintiffs on the grounds of forgery and fraud but these points were not pointedly put in the defendants' written statement, and, though perhaps open under the general words of the defence and on the issues, it was put without detail or colour, was not raised in the cross-examination of the plaintiffs or his witnesses, and was only disclosed when defendants' witnesses, after an interval of several months, came into the witness box.

Held: that these defences should not be easily accepted: 97 Ind. Cas. 543=1926 M.W.N. 812=3 O.W.N. 731=25 A.L.J. 20=38 M.L.T. 3=31 C.W.N. 538=A.I.R. 1926 P.C. 109 (P.C.).

—Procedure and duty of Court—Suit on lost bond.

In a suit on lost bond the trial Court must exercise the greatest circumspection and care in deciding the fundamental question of fact, namely, loss of original. 97 Ind. Cas. 82=49 All. 78=24 A.L.J. 964=A.I.R. 1926 All. 741.

—Procedure and duty of Court—Evidence of plaintiff.

As a general rule, however wide and unsatisfactory a claim in the plaint may be, it is better for the trial Court to take the plaintiff's evidence before it dismisses it. 96 Ind. Cas. 89=A.I.R. 1926 All. 672.

—Procedure and duty of Court—Misrepresentation and fraud.

Per Kincaid, J. C.—Pleas such as misrepresentation and fraud must be examined with the utmost rigour.

They are not pleas that an honest man would make save in the most exceptional circumstances. They are pleas too, which, if allowed, would be capable of the most dangerous extension. 82 Ind. Cas. 81 = A.I.R. 1923 Sind 25.

—Procedure and duty of Court.

Tendency on the part of Subordinate Courts to ignore the provisions of O. 8, R. 9 and O. 10, R. 1, condemned. A written replication is not a substitute for the oral examination under O. 10, R. 1. 66 Ind. Cas. 222 = 8 O.L.J. 439 = A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 178.

—Procedure and duty of Court.

Where an agent's authority to bring the suit is questioned, the court ought not, on principle to grant a decree unless the authority is proved. 19 C. 678, Ref. If merely the form of the authority is questioned it is a question of practice and procedure and the lower court cannot dismiss suit on this ground without giving opportunity of correcting the defect. 39 All. 343 = 15 A.L.J. 309 = 39 Ind. Cas. 462.

—Procedure and duty of Court.

The object of pleadings is that each side may be fully alive to the question about to be argued in order that they may have an opportunity of bringing forward evidence appropriate to the issues. When the pleadings are vague it is the duty of the court to have them clearly specified. 1 O.L.J. 591 = 26 Ind. Cas. 547.

—Procedure and duty of Court—Verification—Judges duty.

Judges must see that plaints are signed by authorised persons and that verifications are not treated as mere formalities. 7 Bur. I.T. 310 = 26 Ind. Cas. 240.

—Procedure and duty of Court—Vague allegations.

Where vague and loose allegations are made it is the duty of the court to ascertain the real controversy between the parties. 35 Bom. 182 = 13 Bom. L.R. 92 = 9 Ind. Cas. 765.

—Procedure duty of Court—Public policy.

It is the duty of Judge, even though no objection may be taken by any one, to consider whether a rule of public policy does not prevent the disclosure of the documents or information sought by a party to suit. 21 Q.B.D. 509, 521 foll. (1902) 4 Bom.L.R. 342.

19. Raising pleas in appeal.

—Raising pleas in appeals — Defendant's evidence supporting the plea.

Though generally a ground not taken in the plaint ought not to be allowed to be urged, the matter should be considered when the defendant's own document supports it and when it appears to have been raised in the lower Appellate Court without any objection; and the High Court in second appeal may in order to do substantial justice between the parties permit such ground to be advanced. 119 Ind. Cas. 556 = A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 237.

—Raising pleas in appeal—Pleas depending on evidence.

It is undesirable that a party, when he has omitted to raise a question depending upon evidence for its determination in the pleadings, and has failed on the points which he has raised, should be allowed in first appeal to entirely alter his case according to the circumstances and rely upon a fresh ground for the purpose of defeating the plaintiff's claim. 95 Ind. Cas. 573 = 28 Bom.L.R. 513.

—Raising plea in appeal—Objection depending on a question of fact.

An objection not taken in the lower Courts and involving a question of fact cannot be gone into in appeal. 69 Ind. Cas. 1005 = A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 372.

—Raising pleas in appeal—Validity of notice.

Validity of the notice, not challenged in the lower Courts cannot be, as of right challenged in the Appellate Court, though it is open to the Court to allow such a point to be raised in second appeal. Ordinarily, however, it should not allow it to be raised since, plaintiff will be prejudiced as he would lose the advantage of withdrawing his suit when he finds that a notice was not a proper notice and of bringing a fresh suit at once, after giving a proper notice. 82 Ind. Cas. 956 = 20 M.L.W. 433 = 1924 M.W.N. 830 = A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 904.

—Raising pleas in appeal—Partition suit.

Where the plea of out and out division was raised and proved false in the lower Court;

Held, that it could not be pleaded for the first time in appeal that there was at least a severance in status. 79 Ind. Cas. 902 = 1924 M.W.N. 485 = A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 845.

—Raising pleas in appeal—Plea depending on evidence.

When it is impossible for the Court to come to a decision on a new point in the absence of any evidence the Court ought not to allow the point to be taken for the first time in appeal. 64 Ind. Cas. 952 = 20 All. L.J. 92 = A.I.R. 1922 All. 346.

—Raising pleas in appeal—Mortgage by Coparcener—Plea as to consideration.

In a suit by the mortgagee on a mortgage executed by the karta of a joint family the onus is on the mortgagee to prove that the mortgage was a valid one and although the defendants have not raised a plea in their written statement that the debt for which the mortgage was excused was time-barred, they can raise the same in appeal for the first time. (14 Bengal L.R. 21 Rel. on.) 61 Ind. Cas. 20 = 2 P.L.T. 318 = 6 P.L.J. 256 = A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 99.

20. Redemption.

—Redemption—Mortgage not proved.

Plaintiffs sought for redemption against persons alleged to be mortgagees and appellants who were purchasers in execution of a decree against some other persons. The mortgagees admitted the title of the plaintiffs but the defendant appellants denied the mortgage and the right of plaintiffs. The lower Appellate Court holding that the mortgage was not proved, dismissed the suit. Held, that the lower appellate Court having found that no mortgage was proved a single Judge of the High Court was not justified in sending down an issue as to the fact and nature of the possession of plaintiffs within the statutory period. The plaintiffs having failed to prove the case set up by them, the suit was rightly dismissed. 13 A.L.J. 342=28 Ind. Cas. 602. [On appeal from. 12 A.L.J. 1233=27 Ind. Cas. 35.]

—Redemption suit—Mortgage set up but not proved—Dismissal of suit.

Where in a suit for redemption the mortgage mentioned in the plaint is not proved, the suit must fail. 25 Ind. Cas. 197 (All.).

—Redemption—Suit on foot of one mortgage—Relief on foot of another admitted by defendant.

Where the plaintiff fails to prove the mortgage set up by him he may be allowed to redeem on the basis of a different mortgage under which the defendant claims to hold. 30 M. 388 foll. (1916) 1 M.W.N. 171=32 Ind. Cas. 624.

—Redemption—Variation—Proof.

In a suit for redemption based on a specific mortgage to two persons a decree for redemption could not be had on prior mortgages in favour of the two separately, if the specific mortgage alleged is not proved. 37 Ind. Cas. 976 (Pat.).

21. Relief.

—Relief—Power of appellate Court.

It is an absolute necessity that the determinations in a cause should be founded upon a case to be found in the pleadings or involved in or consistent with the case thereby made. The appellate Court should not offend against this principle. 77 I.A. 15=63 L.W. 232=1950 M.W.N. 168=A.I.R. 1950 P.C. 68=1950 A.L.J. 326=1950 A.W.R. 292=1950 R.L.W. 31=52 Bom. L.R. 498=85 C.L.J. 352=(1950) 1 M.L.J. 417 (P.C.).

—Relief—Duty of Court.

The whole foundation of a case rests upon pleadings and no Court has got the right to decide a dispute on a consideration of a fact which has no basis in pleadings. I.L.R. (1950) Nag. 679=1949 N.L.J. 550.

—Relief—Subsequent agreement to pay enhanced interest by transferee of the mortgagor.

After mortgaging certain properties the mortgagors transferred part of them to others. The transferees agreed by a letter to pay an enhanced rate than that fixed in the mortgage but the period within which it was to be paid was not fixed. In a suit by the mortgagees enhanced rate was not claimed in the plaint but was claimed in the oral pleadings when it was time-barred.

Held: that this latter relief which was a personal one against the transferees on the basis of subsequent agreement and not against all the holders of the property together cannot be claimed in the suit though in this suit it was bound to fail being time-barred. 114 Ind. Cas. 309=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 303.

—Right not found in pleadings but decided.

No doubt relief not founded on the pleadings should not as a rule be granted, but where substantial matters which constitute the title of all the parties are touched in the issues, and have been fully put in evidence and formed the main object of discussion and decision in the Courts, the case does not come within the rule; and a declaration of the rights of the parties, though not founded on the pleadings may be made; (25 All. 53 (P.C.) Foll; 39 Mad. 634 (P.C.), Dist.) 95 Ind. Cas. 1011=43 C.L.J. 501=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 1003.

—Relief—Suit for possession—Joint possession.

Where in a suit for possession it is found that parties are joint owners of the land, the proper course is to pass a decree for joint possession and not to dismiss the suit and not to refer the parties to Revenue Officer for partition. 96 Ind. Cas. 253=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 567.

—Relief—Defective pleadings.

Where, on account of badly drafted plaint, the relief sought is not clearly brought out, but evidence is led on right issues and no party is prejudiced, the proper relief should be granted to the plaintiff. 93 Ind. Cas. 928=8 L.L.J. 166=27 P.L.R. 344=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 417.

—Relief—Prayer as to.

Where a suit is brought for the recovery of money charged on a property, the mere circumstance that the plaintiff does not expressly ask for relief against the property, but asks that a decree may be passed against the defendants is not a sufficient indication that he intended to claim relief against the defendants personally, and not against the property: 95 Ind. Cas. 1004 (Oudh).

—Relief—Prayer for general relief.

A prayer for general relief must be consistent with a specific claim and the case raised in the pleadings. A plaintiff, claiming only confirmation of possession cannot get a decree for recovery of possession. 63 Ind. Cas. 2 (Pat.).

—Relief—Additional.

Where the plaint contains charges putting material facts in issue, the plaintiff can get the relief sought for, if it comes under the general prayer. But he cannot desert the special relief prayed for and ask for another, unless the facts in the plaint will consistently with the rules of the Court, maintain the relief. The test is, whether the defendant will be taken by surprise and there can be no surprise, if relief not specifically claimed is consistent with that specifically claimed as well as with the case raised by the pleadings. 43 Cal. 743=20 C.W.N. 446=22 C.L.J. 419=32 Ind. Cas. 437.

—Relief—Decree.

Relief granted to the plaintiff should be restricted to the property, set out in the original plaint. 10 C.L.J. 213=2 Ind. Cas. 492.

—Relief—Further relief.

Where plaintiff sued for cancellation of pattah on the ground of forgery, the court should not go into the question of its invalidity as regards plaintiff's share as it assumes the pattah to be genuine and no relief on this ground can be given under the common form of prayer for further relief. 1 Ind. Cas. 657 (Cal.).

—Relief—Discretion of Court.

Where a large relief is claimed the plaintiff is not necessarily debarred from any relief to which on the facts proved he might be entitled e. g., plaintiff suing for a particular declaration may in the discretion of the court get any other declaration to which he is found entitled. 9 C.L.J. 623=1 Ind. Cas. 530.

—Relief—Reduction in claim—Court's power.

No reduction can legally be made, when the sum sued for is considerably less than the sum legally due from defendant even after deducting all the items claimed by the defendant excluding the interest payable thereon. 68 P.W.R. 1914=166 P.L.R. 1914=24 Ind. Cas. 669.

—Reliefs—Plaintiff must succeed in his own title.

A plaintiff must succeed upon the strength of his own title and not upon the weakness of the defendant's case. 201 P.W.R. (1913)=323 P.L.R. 1913=20 Ind. Cas. 879.

—Relief—Mixing up barred claims with reliefs not barred—Suit, if can be dismissed.

A suit is not liable to be dismissed because a barred claim is set up along with other reliefs which are not barred. 4 L.W. 441=(1916) 2 M.W.N. 325=37 Ind. Cas. 642.

—Relief.

Decree for one share may be granted in a suit for the possession of whole estate. (1915) M.W.N. 968=2 L.W. 1214=19 M.L.T. 296=30 M.L.J. 451=31 Ind. Cas. 833.

—Reliefs—Powers of Court—Relief not claimed in the alternative.

It is not competent for a court to give a decree for Quantum Meruit when there is no alternative claim in a suit for commission. 17 Ind. Cas. 106 (Mad.).

—Relief—Plaintiff to get relief on his own right.

No relief ought to be granted to a plaintiff except to his own rights. 11 M.L.T. 25=(1912) M.W.N. 50=22 M.L.J. 225=13 Ind. Cas. 788.

—Relief—General prayer for—Effect of.

Where, in a suit for possession of a house, there was no prayer that the decree which was alleged to have been fraudulently obtained should be set aside it was held that the general prayer for any other relief embodied one for cancellation of the decree. 4 Ind. Cas. 356 (Mad.).

—Relief—Principal and ancillary.

The claim for principal relief does not fail merely because the claim for ancillary relief is found not maintainable. 11 Ind. Cas. 537 Oudh.

—Relief.

A suit once framed as a suit for fair and equitable rent cannot be changed into a suit for enhancement of rent and the court is competent only to pass a decree for rent for the year in suit, the rent of the holding being presumed to be a fair and equitable rent until the contrary is proved. 5 Pat. L.J. 406=57 Ind. Cas. 558.

—Relief—Several reliefs, claim for—Failure to prove some—Decree.

If a plaintiff claiming two reliefs failed to prove one relief he can get a decree for the one which he proves only. If in a suit for possession and declaration of permanent and heritable right, plaintiff fails to prove the latter, but proves former he is entitled to a decree for possession. 2 Pat. L.J. 15=38 Ind. Cas. 543.

—Reliefs—Smaller relief—Contribution.

The main principle of practice is that plaintiff can only recover according to his allegations and proofs. 11 B.L.R. 391 (P.C.); 8 L.B.R. 334, ref. If plaintiff claimed restitution of the whole amount of a decree on a pronote which he was jointly liable with the defendants on the ground that he was only a surety for them, but it was found that he borrowed the money for partnership purposes the plaintiff could not be given a decree for contribution. 10 Bur. L.T. 119=36 Ind. Cas. 464.

—Relief—Claim—Reduction.

Where plaintiff sues for a sum after giving up a portion to which he is entitled, the defendant will not be allowed any reduction if the net amount after deducting the reduction claimed, from the amount due, is still greater than the suit amount. 68 P.W.R. 1914=166 P.L.R. 1914=24 Ind. Cas. 669.

—Relief.

A plaintiff cannot succeed on a case not to be found in the pleadings nor involved in or consistent with the case made thereby. 6 W.R. (P.C.) 7; 9 W.R. (P.C.) 7 foll. The Court may afford the relief which the plaintiff forgot to ask in his prayer, under the prayer for general relief, provided such relief is conformable to the case made in the plaint. It should be carefully seen whether the relief sought may be granted upon the facts stated in the plaint and established by the evidence and whether the variance, if any, between the pleadings and the proof will take the defendant by surprise. 11 C.L.J. 2=3 Ind. Cas. 408.

—Relief—Plaintiff claiming too much while really entitled to less—Decree.

A plaintiff ought not, by reason of his having claimed too much, to be precluded from recovering what is really found due to him undoubtedly, when the pleadings in the case are wide enough to cover the latter claim. The question as to whether a decree for the lesser amount is to be passed is hardly one of indulgence. 3 C.L.J. 481=3 A.L.J. 360=28 A. 482=1 M.L.T. 143=8 Bom. L.R. 397=16 M.L.J. 269=10 C.W.N. 626 (P.C.).

22. Time for raising pleas.*—Time for raising pleas—Where the plea goes to the root of the transaction.

An objection to the validity of a deed of transfer or relinquishment does not become inadmissible merely by reason of the fact that the period for cancellation had run out, if the person impeaching the validity of the same does so on the fundamental ground of its execution. 128 Ind. Cas. 433=A.I.R. 1930 All. 605.

—Time for raising pleas—Proof of title.

Where it is incumbent upon a person to prove his title and not on the opponent to disprove it, it is not necessary that the objection to sale deed by the prior person in favour of another should have been raised by the opponent, who does not know of the existence of the conveyance until that fact was disclosed by the prior person. A.I.R. 1929 P.C. 303 (P.C.).

—Time for raising pleas—Question of fact.

Plaintiffs cannot be allowed to amend their plaint and found their cause of action on a question of pure fact not alleged in the plaint.

Where plaintiff company alleges in the plaint that its director had interest in the Contract entered into on behalf of the company but does not aver its non disclosure as part of the cause of action, plaintiffs will not be allowed, after issues are framed and evidence is closed, to make the allegation of non-disclosure. (Imperial Mercantile Credit Association v Coleman 6 Ch. App. 558 and Costa Rica Ry. Co. v. Forwood, 1 Ch. 746, Foll.) 115 Ind. Cas. 486=1928 M. W. N. 481 =A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 353.

—Time for raising pleas.

It is desirable that parties should be allowed to state their pleas whenever possible, provided no further delay is caused by such indulgence. 105 Ind. Cas. 288 =39 M.L.T. 273=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 1007=53 M.L.J. 504.

—Time for raising pleas—Prohibition to adopt.

Plaintiff relying on the rule of prohibition of adoption of daughter's son among regenerate classes should raise the point in his plaint allowing defendant to plead family custom to the contrary. 106 Ind. Cas. 620=6 Pat. 506=8 P.L.T. 34=A.I.R. 1927 Pat. 145.

—Time for raising pleas—Non-compliance with statutory requirements.

Where the plaintiffs sued for damages on a contract of Sea Insurance and there was no 'sea policy' effected within the meaning of S. 7, Indian Stamp Act but the defendants failed to plead the non-compliance of the Statutory enactment:

Held, No Court can enforce as valid, that which competent enactments have declared shall not be valid, nor is obedience to such an enactment a thing from which a Court can be dispensed by the consent of the parties, or by a failure to plead or to argue the point at the outset. 86 Ind. Cas. 545=27 Bom. L.R. 770=29 C.W.N. 893=23 A.L.J. 105=52 I.A. 126=1925 M. W. N. 257=6 L. R. P. C. 66=52 Cal. 408=A.I.R. 1925 P. C. 83=49 M.L.J. 136 (P. C.).

—Time for raising pleas—Admissibility of a document.

The question as to whether a document is admissible or not for want of registration or irrelevancy is eligible to be raised at any stage of the case. 82 Ind. Cas. 949=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 370.

—Time for raising pleas—Rule obtained by private party—Plea of misjoinder taken by the Crown at the final hearing.

On a rule obtained by a party against an order for fresh trial, the Crown took the objection of misjoinder for the previous trial for the first time when the rule was about to be made absolute, but their Lordships declined to give effect to it. (1904) 31 C. 710.

23. Variation and new case.

—Variation and new case—Determination of cause—Power of Court.

Where the plaintiff sets up in the plaint the existence of certain things and fails to establish it, the Court has no power to decree a difference in state of things or to introduce the existence of new things when such facts fly in the face of the allegations pleaded. The determination in a cause should be founded upon a case either to be found in the pleadings or involved in or consistent with the case thereby made. 6 W.R. 57 (P.C.), referred to. A.I.R. 1949 H.P. 7.

—Variation and new case—Suit on title—Plea of adverse possession.

In a suit for declaration of title to and possession of land if title has been pleaded that title can be based on adverse possession extending over 12 years and going into this question does not mean making a new case; (24 Mad. 387. (P.C.). Foll.) 124 Ind. Cas. 710=A.I.R. 1930 All. 576.

—Variation and new case.

A party having claimed on basis of investment in commercial speculations cannot claim on another basis when he finds that the first basis is prejudicial to him. 114 Ind. Cas. 565=1929 A.L.J. 406=49 C. L.J. 335=33 C.W.N. 493=31 Bom. L.R. 710=1929 M.W.N. 422=30 M.L.W. 835=A.I.R. 1929 P.C. 77=57 M.L.J. 581 (P.C.).

—Variation and new case—Contract—Allegation of fraud.

Per Kemp, J.—Where the real cause of action alleged in the plaint is one ex contractu the plaintiff cannot by merely alleging fraud base a cause of action on fraud. 117 Ind. Cas. 417=53 Bom. 271=31 Bom. L.R. 21=A.I.R. 1929 Bom. 119.

—Variation and new case—Agent—Express and implied authority.

Where plaintiff pleads that an agent, who has purchased goods from him, had an express authority from the principal for making purchases, it does not exclude him from setting up a case of implied authority if a case of implied authority can be made out from the facts and circumstances and other evidence. 110 Ind. Cas. 817=A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 863.

—Variation and new case—Appeal.

A party must not be allowed in appeal to make out a new case or a case inconsistent with the case set up by him in the lower Court. Nor can an appellate Court make out a new case for him which never made himself at any period of the trial. 110 Ind. Cas. 91=5 O.W.N. 435=A.I.R. 1928 Oudh 330.

—Variation and new case.

Plaintiff cannot change his case at the last moment especially when he has made no application to amend his plaint. 107 Ind. Cas. 440=23 S.L.R. 370=A.I.R. 1928 Sind 103.

—Variation and new case—Easement and easement of necessity.

It is not open to a Court to make a new case for a plaintiff which does not arise in the pleadings and give him relief on the basis of an easement of necessity when he fails to establish his claim as to a right on an easement. 99 Ind. Cas. 922=8 L.L.J. 546=27 P.L.R. 771=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 36.

—Variation and new case—Finding by Court.

A Court is not bound to find the facts exactly as alleged by one party or other. It may rightly hold that the truth lies in between. In such cases the opposite party is entitled to notice of the new aspect of the case. 95 Ind. Cas. 294=A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 385.

—Variation and new case—Ends of Justice.

When it appears to the Court that the plaintiff is entitled to an equitable relief it would be well advised to allow the plaintiff where the defendant has been obviously in default to avail himself of any such equitable relief to which he is entitled under the law and if necessary to treat his pleadings as amended for that purpose even at the appellate stage of the suit. 82 Ind. Cas. 964=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 434.

—Variation and new case—Property acquired by a co-percener.

If it is stated in the plaint that certain lands were acquired by A about which the plaintiff could not possibly have any definite information, but if in the course of the proceedings it transpires that it was not A but B who had acquired the lands as a member of the Joint Hindu Family for the family there is no variation in the plaintiff's case disentitling him to a decree or discredit his case altogether. 80 Ind. Cas. 432=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 257.

—Variation and new case—Court finding a new case.

A Court ought not to set up, on behalf of a party, a new case which has never been pleaded by him, but if neither party in his pleadings discloses the entire truth and the evidence adduced discloses a set of facts which is either midway between, or at any rate different from, the case which either party has set up in his pleadings, the Court is obviously bound to take notice of the true state of facts as proved by the evidence, and to give effect to the legal rights which arise on that state of facts. (23 O.C. 104, Ref.) 87 Ind. Cas. 822=2 O.W.N. 364=12 O.L.J. 342=28 O.C. 397=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 617.

—Variation and new case—Appeal—Principle.

Plaintiff's allegation was that although the consideration was Rs. 3,000 it was deliberately stated to be Rs. 2,000 because they were unable to procure a stamp-paper of the proper value.

Held: in such circumstances if they are permitted in second appeal to contradict the statement in the conveyance they would only be permitted to allege that they have violated the law. Under these circumstances the principle applies that a party cannot come into Court with fraud on his lips and ask for a relief as to such the Courts of Justice are not open. (25 California 622 at P. 657, Foll.)

The parties should not be permitted to depart from the deeds and to establish a case which is contrary to their pleadings. The principle is that the determination of a case should be founded upon allegations in the pleadings or a case involving and consistent with such allegations. 75 Ind. Cas. 557=37 C. L. J. 552=27 C.W.N. 496=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 570.

24. What is.

—What is—Petition for leave to execute a decree—Whether.

A petition for leave to execute a decree is not a pleading. 2 Pat. L.J. 24=38 Ind. Cas. 85.

25. Miscellaneous.

—Miscellaneous—Admissibility of a document—Objection as to.

The objection to a document for want of registration is not a mere technical objection, but is an objection, of substance going to the fact and the bona fides of the whole transaction. 122 Ind. Cas. 158=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 530.

—Miscellaneous—Premature suit—Scope of plea.

The defendant by taking the plea that the suit is premature, certainly means that the suit should be dismissed, if the Court found that the cause of action had not accrued when the suit was filed. 116 Ind. Cas. 646=A.I.R. 1929 Nag. 137.

—Miscellaneous—'Demurrer'—Plea has not been recognised in India.

It is not desirable to use the word 'demurrer' as the same in English practice has been abolished since the passing of the Judicature Act while the term has never been recognised in India by any of the Codes of Civil Procedure. It can only be used in India by way of analogy to a by-gone English form of procedure. 67 Ind. Cas. 326=24 Bom. L.R. 328=47 Bom. 182=A.I.R. 1923 Bom. 24.

—Miscellaneous—Statute alleged to be ultra vires.

According to the rules of pleading an allegation of infirmity in any statute on the ground of ultra vires is sufficient without assigning further reasons and the question of ultra vires can be considered in its wider application and the Court need not bind itself to the one assigned reason of invalidity. A.I.R. 1921 P. C. 163 (P.C.).

—Miscellaneous—Demurrer—Plea of—Allegation in plaint to be taken as true for purposes of argument.

Where the court is asked to decide a preliminary issue as to whether the plaint discloses a cause of action, the defendants must be taken to admit for the sake of argument that the allegations in the plaint are true modo et forma. In doing so they reserve to themselves the right to show that these allegations are wholly or partially false in the further stages of the action if the preliminary point be overruled, but so far as the preliminary point is concerned everything contained in the plaint must be taken to be true as stated. 40 Cal. 598=40 I. A. 56=17 C.W.N. 541=(1913) M.W.N. 406=13 M.L.T. 406=11 A.L.J. 413=17 C.L.J. 478=15 Bom. L.R. 472=184 P.L.R. 1913=25 M.L.J. 104=18 Ind. Cas. 949 (P.C.).

—Miscellaneous—Failure to prove plaintiff's case.

It is a principle of sound common sense and justice that a plaintiff who brings a case and fails cannot get a decree on the ground that the defendant has failed to prove the counter-case set up in defence by him. 9 Bur. L.T. 114=8 L.B.R. 334=33 Ind. Cas. 163.

—Miscellaneous—Dismissal of suit on.

To non-suit a person because he has not sufficient legal advice to draw up the pleadings as fully and carefully as they might be, would involve great hardship on litigants. (1912) 1 U.B.R. 141=18 Ind. Cas. 568 (L.B.).

—Miscellaneous—Waiver—Validity of plea.

There may be circumstances under which a plea of waiver cannot be entertained by a court of justice as being contrary to public policy. 6 C.L.J. 62, 6 C.L.J. 111, rel. on. 13 C.L.J. 192=9 Ind. Cas. 698.

—Miscellaneous—Value of—Untenable pleading, if other side can avail itself of.

An untenable pleading by one party cannot be availed of by the other party in support of his case. 3 O.L.J. 462=19 O.C. 328=37 Ind. Cas. 23.

—Miscellaneous—Variance—not permitted.

A party cannot be allowed to retire from the position taken up by him on which pleas were recorded and issues drawn. 8 P.L.R. 1913=220 P.W.R. 1913=18 Ind. Cas. 553.

Pledge.

See Contract Act, Ss. 172, 173, 176, 178 to 180.

—Pledgee—Re-pledger—Sale by—Right of pawn-er to sue for conversion—Tender—Necessity—Suit for redemption—Prior tender—If necessary. See Specific Relief Act, S. 10. Illus. (b). 53 Mys. H.C.R. 73.

Pledging of Children's Labour Act

—S. 2 Agreement to pledge labour.

An agreement whereby the labour pledged is not to be expended till after the time by which the child has become 15 years of age is not one to pledge the labour of a child under 15. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 359=178 Ind. Cas. 680.

Poisons Act (1 of 1904).

—S. 10 Cl. (a) and (b)—Sale of retail poisons—Offences.

A person acting in contravention of S. 10 and rules made thereunder of Indian Poisons Act by selling retail poisons, if he is not a qualified medical practitioner or a registered chemist or druggist to claim exemption under S. 10, is guilty of an offence. The rules have no application to wholesale sales of poisons. 8 Bur. L.T. 244=16 Cr. L.J. 764=8 L.B.R. 532=31 Ind. Cas. 364.

Police Act (5 of 1861).

—S. 1—'Police officer'—Meaning of—Police patels in Berar.

Primarily the term "Police officer" in S. 25 of the Evidence Act means the same as it does in the Police Act but it can be extended beyond the definition in S. 1 of the Police Act to cover only those persons who like Police officers, coming within that definition are so much more interested in obtaining convictions than any member of the community is, that they might possibly resort to improper means for doing so. That class does not include police patels in Berar. 101 Ind. Cas. 599=23 N.L.R. 23=28 Cr.L.J. 471=8 A. I. Cr. R. 66=A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 222.

—S. 2.—Dismissal of Police officer declared void and inoperative—Officer is entitled to salary withheld.

When a declaration is granted to the dismissed Police Officer that his dismissal is void and inoperative, the Officer continues to be a member of the Police force and is entitled to his salary for the period during which the salary was withheld from him. The Government is under statutory obligation under S. 2 of the Police Act to pay it. A.I.R. 1943 Oudh 368=1943 O. W. N. 118=19 Luck. 163=207 Ind. Cas. 178.

—S. 7—Police discipline.

See for observations in 9 Bom. L. R. 681=31 B. 480.

—S. 7—Charge against—Enquiry entrusted to the hands of Superintendent—Inexpediency.

The inadvisability of directing a District Superintendent of Police to enquire into the truth of charges laid against a Sub-Inspector of Police was also pointed out. (1904) 9 C. W. N. 199=2 Cr.L.J. 51.

—S. 7—Local Government if can delegate disciplinary powers under S. 7.

The General Police Act confers the powers of appointment (which connote punishment), on certain designated officers, and the local Government cannot by any rules framed by it, delegate disciplinary powers to those officers. The powers of punishment rest in the officers appointed in such behalf by S. 7, General Police Act, and therefore the delegation of these powers to such officers is ultra vires of the Local Government which is not the authority empowered to punish such authority being the officers designated. A.I.R. 1938 Rang. 181=1938 Rang. L. R. 104=39 Cr.L.J. 614=175 Ind. Cas. 442.

—S. 7—Offence punishable under S. 7 is also punishable under Penal Code.

Section 7 of the Police Act deals merely with powers of superiors officers (Police) in regard to the control of their subordinates and does not secure the offender from further prosecution under Penal Code. 26 P. R. 1915 Cr.=16 Cr.L.J. 788=52 P. W. R. 1915 Cr.=31 Ind. Cas. 644.

—S. 7—Sub-Inspector if a public servant.

In view of S. 7 of the Police Act as amended by Government of India (Adaptation of Indian laws) order, 1937, it cannot be said that the Sub-Inspector of police is, a public servant 'who is not removable from his office save by or with the sanction of the provincial Government or some higher authority.' This being so S. 197, Criminal P. C. does not apply to him. A. I. R. 1940 Oudh 382=41 Cr.L.J. 695=1940 O. W. N. 494=1940 A. W. R. 250=15 Luck. 740=188 Ind. Cas. 846.

—Ss. 7 and 29—Suspension pending enquiry—Prosecution under S. 29.

Section 7 contemplates punishment to be awarded after the police officer has been adjudged by his superior officer to be remiss or negligent in the discharge of his duty. Where the police officer has been suspended, not by way of punishment but under R. 840 of the Orissa Police Manual, Vol. I, 1940 page 364, pending the result of the inquiry into his conduct, S. 7 has no application. Hence, where a police officer has been reported against as having been negligent in the discharge of his duties with the result that a proceeding has been started against him for holding an inquiry into his alleged misconduct and the Superintendent of Police having taken the view that his continuance on duty pending the enquiry would be prejudicial to public interest, places him under suspension and asks the officer to report himself at the headquarters of the district to take his orders from the inquiring officer, the order is not by way of punishment under S. 7. If the officer commits breach of the order he is liable to be prosecuted under S. 29. A.I.R. 1944 Pat. 256=10 C.L.T. 20=11 B. R. 72=23 (Pat.) 225=46 Cr.L.J. 24=215 Ind. Cas. 155.

—Ss. 7, 29—Suspension and confinement of Police Officer for indefinite period—Legality.

An order for suspension and confinement of a Police Officer for an unlimited period of time exceeding the limits laid down in cl. (b) of S. 7 of Police Act 1861, is illegal and is not an order which a Superintendent of Police can legally pass at all, nor one which he can pass in the alternative under S. 7 of the Act, and no conviction under S. 29 of the Act for disobeying such an order is maintainable.

To order a Police Officer to live in the Police lines until further orders and not to leave the lines without permission is to confine him in those lines. A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 285=58 Cal. 1132=35 C.W.N. 547=33 Cr.L.J. 15=134 Ind. Cas. 891.

—Ss. 7, 29—Suspension and confinement for unlimited term—Cumulative punishment, if legal—Police officer.

An order for suspension and confinement of a Police officer for an unlimited period of time exceeding the limits laid down in clause (b) of S. 7 is illegal and is not such an order which a District Superintendent of Police can legally pass at all nor one which he can pass in the alternative under S. 7 and no conviction under S. 29 for disobeying such an order is maintainable. (1905) 2 C. L. J. 616=3 Cr. L. J. 110.

—S. 7—Rules under—R. 226, C. P. and Berar Police Regulations is integral part of Act—Order retrospective in effect and contrary to R. 226 is void and inoperative.

For purpose of interpretation, R. 226 in Part II, Chap. VIII, C. P. and Berar Police Regulations made by Provincial Government by virtue of authority vested in it by S. 7, Police Act should be read as integral part of the Police Act. Hence, an order of dismissal with retrospective effect contrary to the provisions of R. 226, Note, (i) passed by the Inspector-General of Police is void and inoperative. A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 190=1945 N. L. J. 216=I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 469.

—S. 7—Rules under—Rr. 247 and 249 (Central Provinces)—Applicability.

Rules 247 and 249, C. P. and Berar Police Regulations apply only to an officer who has been suspended pending the enquiry. Hence, in a case where District Superintendent of Police far from suspending the Sub-Inspector, only recommends reduction of his salary, Rr. 247 and 249 have no application. A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 190=1945 N. L. J. 216=I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 469.

—S. 7—Rules under—Central Provinces—R. 258—S. 2—Sub-Inspector—Scope and applicability.

The word "men" in S. 2 does not include a Sub-Inspector and as R. 258, C. P. and Berar Police Regulations is applicable to "men" only, the Inspector-General of Police has no power to make a retrospective order involving forfeiture of pay of a Sub-Inspector. Hence, in a case where the order of the Inspector-General of Police dismissing a Sub-Inspector is void, the Sub-Inspector can claim his salary upto the day he is validly dismissed. A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 190=1945 N. L. J. 216=I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 469.

—S. 8—Scope—Liability of police officer under suspension to prosecution under S. 29.

Under S. 8 of the Police Act, as amended in 1895, a Police Officer does not by reason of being suspended from office, cease to be a Police Officer; hence he does not by reason of suspension cease to be liable to prosecution under S. 29 of the Act for absentsing himself from barrack 1945 P.W.N. 391.

—S. 8—Suspended Sub-Inspector does not cease to be Police Officer.

In the eye of law, a Sub-Inspector who is suspended from service does not cease to be a Police Officer and his responsibilities continue until he is validly dismissed from the service. A.I.R. 1945 Nag. 190=1945 N.L.J. 216=I.L.R. (1945) Nag. 469.

—Ss. 8 and 29—Scope and applicability—Police Officer under suspension is liable to be prosecuted under S. 29.

Section 8, as amended, explicitly declares that Police Officer shall not by reason of being suspended from office cease to be a Police Officer. Therefore the Police Constable, who, while under suspension, is alleged to have absented himself from barrack is liable to be prosecuted under S. 29. 1945 P.W.N. 391.

—S. 9—Leave—Failure to return to duty—Punishment—Order to return to duty—Refusal to obey—Second offence.

The accused, a police constable, did not return to duty on the expiry of casual leave for which he was prosecuted and fined. During the pendency of the trial he was suspended. After his trial he was reinstated and asked to join, which he did not do. He was tried and sentenced to imprisonment. Held, that they were distinct offences and the accused was rightly convicted. 42. All. 22=17 A.L.J. 873=20 Cr.L.J. 575=52 Ind. Cas. 63.

—S. 13 (B), Cl. (c)—Police Constable—Possession of money against orders of Police Commissioner.

A Police Constable who pleads guilty of having money in his possession contrary to the order of the Commissioner of Police but states that he was not on duty cannot be convicted without his defence being considered and adjudicated upon, as his plea merely amounted to an admission of the fact that he had at the time in question money upon his person. 18 C.W.N. 1272=15 Cr.L.J. 703=26 Ind. Cas. 151.

—S. 15 (4)—Burden of proving that in assessing means of person under S. 15 (4), his income from outside disturbed area was taken into account is on that person.

Under S. 15 (4), Police Act, only the means within the disturbed area can be considered. The burden to prove that the Magistrate, in making assessment under S. 15 (4) took into consideration a person's means from outside the disturbed area is on such person because the act being an official act, will be presumed in the first instance to have been regularly performed in accordance with law. A.I.R. 1940 Nag. 123=1940 N.L.J. 18=187 Ind. Cas. 703.

—S. 15 (4)—Magistrate's discretion regarding means of person not illegally exercised—If cannot be attacked in Civil Court.

The Magistrate is given absolute discretion in determining the means of a person under S. 15 (4). That being so, unless it is proved that the Magistrate has exercised his judgment illegally which means to say not in accordance with that section, his decision cannot be attacked in a civil suit. A.I.R. 1940 Nag. 123=1940 N.L.J. 18=187 Ind. Cas. 703.

—S. 15 (4)—“Means”, how determined.

While considering the means of a person under S. 15 (4), Police Act, what the Magistrate is entitled to look to is not only the income derived by the person from the disturbed area but also the means which he had of raising the money required for the assessment. A.I.R. 1940 Nag. 123=1940 N.L.J. 18=187 Ind. Cas. 703.

—Ss. 15, 16—Cost of additional Police quartered in village—Distress warrant for realization given to Assessment Officer—Whether can be endorsed to clerk.

Where a distress warrant for realisation of amount due by way of cost of additional Police quartered in a village is entrusted for execution to the Assessment Officer, there is no provision either in the Code or the rules framed by the Local Government under S. 386 of the Criminal P.C. enabling him to endorse the warrant to his clerk. A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 214=1 B.R. 446=16 P.L.T. 295=36 Cr.L.J. 714=155 Ind. Cas. 421 (2).

—Ss. 15, 16—Property attached, not exclusive property of accused but joint family property—Liability to be attached.

Where the warrant is not for the realisation of fine imposed on any individual but for the realisation of cost of the additional Police quartered in a particular village which was apportioned on the inhabitants of that village, the entire family is the defaulter and the warrant for realization is issued against its head, not in his individual capacity but in his capacity as head of the family which was assessed to that cost and the family property is liable to be seized. The cost may be realized as a fine but is not fine. A.I.R. 1935 Pat. 214=1 B.R. 446=16 P.L.T. 295=36 Cr.L.J. 714=155 Ind. Cas. 421 (2).

—S. 15, Cls. 4 and 16—Apportionment of cost of quartering additional police among inhabitants—Deputy Magistrate if can make.

A Deputy Magistrate has no jurisdiction to apportion the costs of quartering additional police among the inhabitants and the fact that an appeal therefrom to the District Magistrate is dismissed by him will not amount to apportionment by the District Magistrate. 40 Cal 452=17 C.W.N. 315=17 C.L.J. 216=18 Ind. Cas. 112.

—S. 15-A, Cl. 4—Assessment by Collector—No irregularity—Suit for recovery of amount paid—Remedy.

When a statute provides a particular remedy, a general remedy in the Civil Court becomes barred. Section 15-A, Cl. 4 of the Police Act provides that every declaration or assessment made or order passed by a Magistrate of the district under sub-s. (2) shall be subject to revision by the Commissioner of the Division or the Local Government but save as aforesaid, shall be final. A suit in respect of the amount realized from the plaintiff on account of compensation paid to the person injured in a ryot, under the Government Notification under the Police Act, is not maintainable in the Civil Court. Even if it is maintainable, it is maintainable only on the ground of material irregularity in the proceedings of the Magistrate. A.I.R. 1941 Oudh 355=1941 O.W.N. 63=16 Luck. 421=1941 A.W.R. 82=192 Ind.Cas. 545.

—S. 15-A, Cl. (2)—Expression “after such inquiry”—Inquiry by subordinate of Collector under Collector's orders and supervision—Whether inquiry by Collector.

The words “after such inquiry” in S. 15-A, Cl. (2), Police Act, are very material. Where the inquiry was made by the subordinate of the District Magistrate, but under his supervision and he sanctioned the assessment recommended by the Deputy Collector after fully considering it together with the evidence given in its support and the objections made against it, this is a sufficient inquiry of the District Magistrate. A.I.R. 1941 Oudh 355=1941 O.W.N. 63=16 Luck. 421=1941 A.W.R. 82=192 Ind. Cas. 545.

—S. 15-A—“Inhabitant” in S. 15-A—Person having kothris in town, whether inhabitant of the town.

Where a person derives his income from some kothris within the area of a town, and those kothris are not waqf property, the person is an “inhabitant” of the town within the meaning of S. 15-A, Police Act. A.I.R. 1941 Oudh 355=1941 O.W.N. 63=16 Luck. 421=1941 A.W.R. 82=192 Ind. Cas. 545.

—S. 17—Special constables—Qualification—Punitive appointment, what constitutes—Appointment of influential Congressmen as special constables—Validity.

The appointment of a person as a special constable under S. 17, Police Act, is not illegal merely because he is an influential Congressman engaged in an anti-government movement or because he is old.

In appointing special constables under S. 17, Police Act, prima facie, it is a straightforward effort to secure the assistance of leading and influential men, whose authority is likely to be respected by the villagers in the preservation of peace and order in the conditions set out in S. 17. Physical force is not the sole or even necessarily a predominant qualification of a Police Officer even in the regular force and still less when the appointment is under S. 17. A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 140=12 P.L.T. 69=32 Cr.L.J. 782=10 Pat. 596=131 Ind. Cas. 785.

—Ss. 17, 19—Special constable, appointment of—Refusal to act—Old age, whether disqualification.

The plea that the accused was too old to act as a special constable must be raised in defence before the Magistrate who tries the charge under S. 19 and not before the High Court in revision. A.I.R. 1931 Pat. 140=12 P.L.T. 69=32 Cr.L.J. 782=10 Pat. 596=131 Ind. Cas. 785.

—Ss. 17 and 19—Appointment of special constables, when legal—Parties to criminal proceedings.

Special constables should be appointed under S. 19 of the Police Act only when it is really intended to use them as Police Officers and to strengthen the ordinary police force, and not otherwise.

It is objectionable to appoint as special constable, parties to dispute against whom complaints have been lodged or proceedings under S. 107, Cr.P.C., are pending, so as to handicap them in their defence. 43 Cal. 277=17 Cr.L.J. 197=20 C.W.N. 855=34 Ind. Cas. 309.

—S. 17—C. P. C., S. 435—Special constables—Appointing order—Revision.

An order under S. 17 of the Police Act appointing special constables is of an executive nature and not open to revision under S. 435, Cr.P.C. 20 O.C. 229=18 Cr.L.J. 900=42 Ind. Cas. 132.

—Ss. 17 and 19—Special constable—Refusal to serve.

The failure of a person appointed as a special constable under S. 17 of the Police Act to obey a lawful notice issued to him to attend a police station amounts to a neglect or refusal to serve as a special constable within S. 13 of the Police Act. 28 Cal. 411, Dist. 19 Cr.L.J. 91=43 Ind. Cas. 251 (Cal.).

—Ss. 17, 18, 19, 29—Special constable—Absence from parade without permission—Breach of duty—Appropriate remedy.

The penalties provided in S. 29 of the Police Act for neglect of duties, etc., by Police Officers were not intended to apply to the case of special constables with regard to whom special provisions have been made in S. 19 of the Act. Quaere:—Whether S. 18 of the Act makes the provisions of S. 29 applicable to such cases. Where the offence charged against a special constable was stated to be ‘absence from special constable parade without permission’:—Held, that even if S. 29 of the Act applies to special constables, it ought not to be applied to cases of the kind, but recourse should be had to S. 19 which is expressly enacted to meet the very case of special constables. (1888) 2 C.L.J. 565=10 C.W.N. 79=3 Cr.L.J. 178.

—S. 17—Special constable, appointment of, when illegal—Refusal to serve—Penal Code S. 173.

The only legitimate object for appointment of special constables is to strengthen the ordinary police force by the addition of suitable persons to their number when the ordinary force find themselves too few to meet an emergency. In a case of dispute regarding the right to the possession of an estate between two parties one of whom was represented by the Court of Wards, the Magistrate of the District took up the cause of the latter and alleging that it would be impossible to preserve the peace without employing a special police force, appointed the native men of the opposite party as special constables and on the latter refusing to serve as such, proceedings under S. 137 of the Penal Code were drawn up against them. Held, that assuming the Magistrate's allegation about the necessity of additional police to be correct, it was an abuse of the law and an act of oppression to appoint the native men on one side as special constables in order to prevent their asserting their alleged rights and so to give an advantage to the opposite party. That the charge under S. 174 of the Penal Code had no relation to the offences alleged and the proceedings thereunder should be quashed. The Magistrate in explanation of his action in this case had stated that he believed that the party which the man appointed as special constables belonged was not in possession. Held, that the law contemplates not the opinions of Magistrates on such questions but their judicial decisions. [Decision of 1888] (1886) 10 C.W.N. 82=2 C.L.J. 555=3 Cr. L. J. 169.

—Ss. 17, 19—Circumstances justifying appointment of special constables—Disobedience of order under S. 17, when no offence under S. 19.

The circumstances which justify the appointment of special constables under S. 17 of Act V of 1861 are that a disturbance of the peace is apprehended, and that the police force available is insufficient to preserve the peace and protect the inhabitants of the place where the disturbance is apprehended. In the absence of these circumstances an order under S. 17 is improper and there should be no conviction of the persons appointed special constables for disobedience of the same. 35 Cal. 454=7 Cr. L. J. 186=(1907) 12 C.W.N. 366. (1908) 12 C.W.N. 727=8 C.L.J. 66=35 C. 454.

—S. 19—Special constable—Refusal to go station to take badges and arms:

Refusal to accompany a police officer to the police office situated at some distance not for any purpose of police duty, but simply to obtain the authority of appointment to serve as special constables and the necessary badges and arms, does not amount to a refusal to serve as special constable, and it does not constitute an offence under S. 19. (1900) 5 C. W. N. 134=I.L.R. 28 Cal. 411.

—S. 22—Assault while on duty—Controlling traffic in a private place.

Where a police officer was deputed in a private place to control the traffic on the road leading from that private place to the public road and he was assaulted while so discharging his duty:

Held, the police officer was acting in the lawful discharge of his duty and the accused was guilty of an offence under S. 353, I.P.C. 111 Ind. Cas. 665=29 Cr. L. J. 905=A.I.R. 1928 Lab. 230.

—S. 23—Offences under Excise Laws—Assistance of Police requisitioned under S. 75, Excise Act—Forbearance to send arrested person for trial.

Offences against the Excise Laws are not excluded from the operation of S. 23, Police Act. Section 23 requires Police Officers to prevent the commission of offences and to detect and bring offenders to justice.

When the assistance of Police Officers has been requisitioned under S. 75, Excise Act, it is the duty of the officers to comply with the provisions of the Act. Hence, in forbearing to send an arrested person for trial, they forbear in concert with the Excise Officers to do an official act within the meaning of S. 161 I.P.C. A.I.R. 1943 Pat. 229=22 Pat. 76.

—S. 23—Powers under.

The preventive action of the Police is not restricted to the prevention of cognizable offences only. The Police derive their power, not only from the Criminal P.C., but also from the Police Act and S. 23 of the latter Act gives them wide powers for prevention of offences and breaches of the law generally. A.I.R. 1940 Oudh 413=1940 O.W.N. 655=1940 A.W.R. 305=41 Cr. L. J. 778=16 Luck. 55=189 Ind. Cas. 655.

—S. 23—Non-cognizable cases.

There is nothing either in the Police Act, Ss. 23, 24 and 25 or in the Criminal Procedure Code, which would in any way prevent a police officer from lodging a complaint with regard to a non-cognizable offence. 120 Ind. Cas. 297=10 P.L.T. 601=1929 Cr.C. 274=31 Cr.L. J. 55=A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 514.

—S. 23—Cr. P.C., S. 149—Powers of Police.

Section 149, Cr.P.C., does not restrict the police in their preventive action to cognizable offences only. Their powers are defined by Cr.P.C. and the Police Act, S. 23. 8 L.B.R. 329=10 Bur.L.T. 17=17 Cr.L.J. 347=35 Ind.Cas. 523.

—S. 23—Report about suspects.

Section 23 prescribes the duties of a police officer and one of the duties mentioned is to collect and communicate intelligence affecting the public peace. A report, therefore, made by a Sub-Inspector of Police to a Superior Officer regarding suspicions against persons residing within the jurisdiction, falls within the meaning of S. 23, and a suit brought after a month from the date of notice is time barred. 125 Ind. Cas. 379=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 592=31 P.L.R. 883.

—S. 25—Orders of Magistrate under—executive orders—Revision.

Where a suit for ejectment was dismissed on the ground that the relationship of land-lord and tenant was not proved but subsequently the land-lord presented an application to the Magistrate that the defendant had disappeared and that his moveables should be taken into possession by the police and the Magistrate ordered as prayed on 26th November 1928.

Where the defendant subsequently applied for rescinding the order and the Magistrate dismissed the same on 19th January 1929:

Held, that the first order passed by the Magistrate on 28th November 1928 was passed by him as an executive officer purporting to act under the Police Act and not as a Court of law or as a Magistrate acting in judicial capacity. The second order of 19th January 1929 was merely consequential on the first order and stood or fell therewith. The question of the power of the Magistrate to pass such an order was one to be dealt with by his superiors on the executive side and the High court had no jurisdiction to reverse the said orders under the provisions of the Criminal P.C. 1930 Cr.C. 687=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 539=31 P.L.R. 725=129 Ind.Cas. 294.

Where a police officer was served with one order of transfer and then with another order which he could reasonably have construed as cancelling the previous order and he did not comply with the first order:

—S. 29—Cowardice in duty.

A man doing his best to keep rioters out and who is carried into a building by a rush of the very men whom he is trying to protect, is clearly showing no cowardice up to the time that he enters the building, and if after entering the building the persons inside refuse to let him go out, he is not guilty of cowardice. 112 Ind. —S. 29—Diaries with mukhtar.

A mukhtar who is allowed to have possession of the diary by the Police Officer is guilty of the abetment of the offence under S. 29, Police Act, as the offence continues so long as the diary is in mukhtar's hand. 10 P.L.T. 703=9 Pat. 31=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 195.

—S. 29—Escape of prisoner.

While the accused, two constables, were taking an under-trial prisoner by a camel cart at night the prisoner wanted to get down to make water and was permitted to do so. The night was dark. The prisoner got himself free from the rope which was tied to his handcuffs and bolted:

Held, that whatever the rule may be against travelling after dark in this case the constables had orders to travel by camel cart and that they committed no breach of rule thereby. 83 Ind. Cas. 663=26 Cr. L. J. 103=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 281.

—S. 29—Essentials for conviction—Deliberate violation of duty—Escape of prisoner.

Before the police officer can be convicted of an offence under S. 29, it must be found that he is guilty not of mere neglect but of deliberate and intentional violation of duty. Where therefore there is not even mere neglect on his part, let alone intentional violation of duty, offence under the section is not made out: 17 W.R. (Cr.) 34, Rel. on.

The mere escape of a prisoner from lawful custody does not make the constable, in whose charge he was guilty of an offence under S. 29 of the Police Act 103 Ind. Cas. 200=1 L.C. 47=28 Cr. L. J. 664=A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 257.

—S. 29—Failure to prosecute—D. S. P. ordering prosecution.

When the Superintendent of Police asks a Sub-Inspector, Police, to register a case in the Police Diary and send up for trial the person concerned, the Sub-Inspector has no discretion in the matter and a failure to obey the orders of the Superintendent is an offence under S. 29. 95 Ind. Cas. 765=7 L.R.A.Cr. 135=27 Cr. L. J. 845=A.I.R. 1926 All. 562.

—S. 29—Illness—Treatment by private practitioner.

There is nothing in the law to require a Police Officer to enter a Civil Hospital and not place himself under the treatment of a private practitioner when he is ill and therefore, he should not be convicted under S. 29 if he chooses to be treated by a private practitioner. 97 Ind. Cas. 423=27 Cr.L. J. 1111=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 15.

—S. 29—Illness—Reasonable cause.

Where a police officer who is really ill and is on leave fails to report himself for duty on the expiration of his leave, his failure to report is not without reasonable cause. 97 Ind. Cas. 423=27 Cr. L. J. 1111=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 15.

—S. 29—Interpretation—Violation of duty.

Section 29 is to be construed quite widely. The words "rules and regulations" refer to such rules and regulations as are properly framed by competent authorities, that is to say, by the Inspector General. So also the words "lawful order" refer to any order which any officer may lawfully give to any individual or specific body of individuals under his command. Offences under S. 29 are not limited to the wilful breaches or neglect of a rule or regulation or a lawful order but include any "violation of duty". 21 Cr.L.J. 465, Rel. on. 124 Ind. Cas. 396=10 P.L.T. 703=9 Pat. 31=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 195.

—S. 29—Interpretation—Police Officer.

—S. 29—Keeping diaries.

The meaning of R. 278 of Police Manual Part I is that the Court officer is to keep the diaries in his own possession and that if the accused or his agent call for the diary in any circumstances other than those mentioned in the earlier part of para. (b) of the rule the Court officer should refuse to comply with the request. 10 P.L.T. 703=9 Pat. 31=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 195=124 Ind. Cas. 396.

—S. 29—Negligence—Violation of duty.

Every negligence does not amount to "violation of duty," within S. 29 much less when it is not wilful. 107 Ind. Cas. 771=29 P.L.R. 30=29 Cr.L.J. 285=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 164.

—S. 29—Object—Intentional acts.

Section 29 really is intended to punish intentional or wilful acts of the police officers as described therein and the expression "withdrawal from duty" imports intentional refusal or cessation to perform one's duty.

A police constable who had gone to another station to escort an offender, delayed his departure from that station for two days. No order was given to him for the date of his return. There was some evidence to show that under similar circumstances police officers had been given two days' halt:

Held, that he was not guilty under S. 29: 6 Cal. 625 and 6 All. 495, Rel. on. 116 Ind. Cas. 611=30 Cr. L. J. 635=13 A.I.Cr.R. 46=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 325.

—S. 29—Order by Police Superintendent regulating duties of subordinates—Legality.

An order by a Superintendent of police regulating the duties of mounted police under command, e.g., directing them to groom their horses is a lawful order under S. 29 and a disobedience of such order renders the guilty person liable to conviction. 21 Cr.L. J. 465=56 Ind. Cas. 497 (Pat.).

—S. 29—Overstaying leave.

Where it could not be said that the accused failed without reasonable cause to report himself to duty on the expiration of his leave.

Held, that he could not be convicted under S. 21 for neglect of duty. 66 Ind. Cas. 67=25 C.W.N. 408.

—S. 29—Rules under.

The words "document or information" used in R. 803 of Police Manual Pt. I are comprehensive enough to include the police diaries, although they have been specifically dealt with under R. 278. 10 P.L.T. 703=9 Pat. 31=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 195=124 Ind. Cas. 396.

—S. 29—Rules under.

The object of Police Manual, Chapter XIII, para 314, is to have a record of the opinion of the Magistrate upon the first information reports and final reports in cognizable cases received from stations and outposts. —Ss. 29, 18, 19—Special Constable—Order of appointment—Interference by High Court on revision—Object of appointment—Executive order—Refusal to act—Punishment—Prosecution.

A person who has refused to act as a special constable cannot be prosecuted under S. 29. The provisions of that section were not intended to apply to special constables, and cannot be interpreted as so applying by the operation of the provision of S. 18. (1906) 10 C.W.N. 322.

—S. 30. — SYNOPSIS

1. Conditions in licence.
2. Duty of licensee.
3. Interpretation.
4. Liability of processionists.
5. Point of doubt.
6. Scope and powers of police.

1. Conditions in licence.

—S. 30 — Conditions in licence — Vague and indefinite terms.

In a licence issued under S. 30 (2), there was a condition that the "speed of the procession shall be under the directions of the Ilaka Magistrate and the local police."

Held, that before such a condition can be made the subject of prosecution it must be entered in the licence in clear and unambiguous terms and a licence cannot be prosecuted for the violation of a condition which is so vague and indefinite that it is difficult to hold that the licensee was bound to obey the orders of the Magistrate and the local police as to the speed of the procession. 114 Ind. Cas. 716=30 P.L.R. 261=30 Cr. L.J. 371=10 Lah. 852= A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 404.

2. Duty of licensee.

—S. 30—Object of licence under S. 30—Duty of licensee.

Per Bhide, J.—The object of the licence is to secure observance of certain conditions by every member of the procession and not merely by the licensee. The licence is granted to the directors or promoters of the procession as a matter of convenience as it will not be practicable to require every potential member of a procession to take out a licence. The directors or promoters of a procession who take out a licence in such a case, therefore, become responsible for the conduct of the processionists. It will obviously be the duty of the licensee in such a case to explain the conditions of the licence to all who wish to take part in the procession.

Obiter : Per Bhide, J.—Where the conditions of the licence merely make the licensee responsible for certain things and there are no conditions binding on the members of the procession as such, the licensee alone can be held liable for breach of conditions of the licence, for, owing to the very nature of the conditions none except the licensee can violate them. A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 372=43 Cr. L.J. 145= I.L.R. (1941) Lah. 820=197 Ind. Cas. 339 (F.B.)

—S. 30—Duty of licensee — Responsibility for conditions—Sureties.

It is the applicant for the licence alone to whom the licence can be given and who is bound by the conditions of the licence under S. 30.

Where the names of certain persons were included in the licence as sureties according to the particular form of licence used on the occasion.

Held, that the provision in the licence as to sureties was unauthorised by law. 114 Ind. Cas. 716=30 P.L.R. 261=30 Cr. L.J. 371=10 Lah. 852=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 404.

—S. 30—Duty of licensee — Procession before getting licence.

Once an application is made in time the applicant is free to take out his procession whether the licence had by then been issued or not. If the licence has been issued, he is bound to obey the conditions whether it has been delivered or not: If, on the other hand, it has not been issued he is bound only to see that the general law was not broken. 93 Ind. Cas. 986=4 Pat. 795=7 P.L.T. 622=27 Cr. L.J. 522 = A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 173.

3. Interpretation.

—S. 30 (4) Interpretation—Regulation of music—Order that no procession with music would be allowed to pass within 40 paces of mosque, if amounts to stopping of music or regulation of music.

An order that no procession with music would be allowed to pass within 40 paces from a certain mosque is clearly a regulation of music that falls within the ambit of S. 30 (4). It does not amount to stopping of music. A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 199= I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 295=1943 N.L.J. 352=44 Cr.L.J. 782=208 Ind. Cas. 417.

—Ss. 30 and 32—Interpretation — 'Procession', meaning of—Merely carrying idol and immersing it in river, whether amounts to procession.

A 'procession' is the action of a body of persons going or marching along in orderly succession in a formal or ceremonial way, especially as a religious ceremony or on a festive occasion.

Where an image was merely carried down by some four or five carriers and immersed in a river and there was nothing to be described as a body of persons going or marching along in orderly succession in a formal or ceremonial way.

Held, that there was no procession. A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 128=32 Cr. L.J. 482=130 Ind. Cas. 239.

—S. 30—Interpretation—'Issue'.

In the Act the word "issue" has not been defined; but it signifies that, if the D.S.P. or Assistant D.S.P. signs the licence and delivers it to some one with directions that it shall in due course be delivered to the applicant, the licence has been issued within the meaning of S. 30. 93 Ind. Cas. 986=4 Pat. 795=7 P.L.T. 622=27 Cr. L.J. 522=A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 173.

4. Liability of processionists.

—S. 30 — Liability of processionists — Every procession, if requires licence—Joining procession licence for which is not taken out, if offence.

Per Bhide and Ram Lall, JJ.—A licence under S. 30 is not required for every procession. A licence is required to be taken under S. 30 only when a breach of the peace is apprehended by the authorities concerned. It is, therefore, no offence to join a procession merely because no licence has been taken for it under S. 30.

Even when a general or a special notice is issued under S.30, requiring persons directing or promoting a procession to apply for a licence but no licence is obtained and yet a procession is taken out, it is only those persons who are directors or promoters of the procession who can be convicted under S. 32 for disobedience of the order and not ordinary members of the procession. A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 372=43 Cr. L.J. 145=I.L.R. (1941) Lah. 820=197 Ind. Cas. 339 (F.B.)

—Ss. 30 and 32—Liability of processionists.

Licence given under S. 30 to take out procession—Procession led by person not licensee—Order of Magistrate to procession to move faster while passing mosque—Order disobeyed by leader and resulting in breakout of riot—Leader charged under S. 32 for disobeying order of competent authority and convicted—Conviction, held proper—License, held governed all processionists. A.I.R. 1938 Lah. 425=40 P.L.R. 148=I.L.R. (1938) Lah. 258=39 Cr. L.J. 590=175 Ind. Cas. 503.

—Ss. 30 (2) and 32—Liability of processionists—Ordinary members of procession—Whether liable to conviction—Offence under S. 32, essentials of.

Conviction under S. 32, Police Act, is proper only if it is established that the accused were directors or promoters of a procession and being under an obligation to apply for a licence, did not apply for the same. In the absence of a finding by the Magistrate that they were convening or collecting the assembly, or directing or promoting the procession, the conviction should be set aside. The mere fact that they were at the head of the procession and wearing garlands is not sufficient for a conviction. If the accused were merely ordinary members of the procession, S. 30 (2) does not apply to them. A.I.R. 1933 Cal. 353=34 Cr.L.J. 688=144 Ind. Cas. 185.

—S. 30—Liability of processionists.

Order under S. 30, Police Act, banning procession without licence—Procession taken out without licence—Offence under S. 143, I.P.C. is committed. A.I.R. 1931 Mad. 484=54 Mad. 1025=1931 M.W.N. 489=32 Cr. L.J. 806=33 L.W. 671=61 M.L.J. 842=131 Ind. Cas. 844.

5. Point of doubt.

—Ss. 30 and 32—Point of doubt—Purushothamdas Park in Allahabad, if a public thoroughfare—Court in doubt on the point.

The Purushothamdas Park in Allahabad is not a public thoroughfare and Police authorities are not justified by law in calling the whole of the park a thoroughfare and in issuing an order under S. 30, Police Act, relating to the whole park on the ground that it was a public thoroughfare. If the Court be in doubt on the point, it is the duty of the Court to give the benefit of the doubt to the accused and not to the prosecution in a charge for an attempt of the accused to hold a meeting there. A.I.R. 1933 All. 614=34 Cr. L.J. 1062=1933 A.L.J. 1197=55 All. 862=145 Ind. Cas. 738.

6. Scope and powers of police.

—S. 30 (4)—Scope and powers of police—Music, if can be regulated on future occasion.

Sub-section (4) of S. 30 clearly gives the District Superintendent of Police a right to regulate the extent to which music may be used in the streets on future occasions, and it is not necessary for him to pass a separate order on every occasion. A.I.R. 1943 Nag. 199=I.L.R. (1943) Nag. 295=1943 N.L.J. 352=44 Cr. L.J. 782=208 Ind. Cas. 417.

—S. 30—Scope and powers of police—Power of absolutely refusing permission to take out a procession—Breaking promise not to take out procession.

It is the right of a citizen to use the public thoroughfares, provided that he commits no offence in doing so, and the taking out of a procession is not in itself an offence, nor does it require a special licence, except as provided by S. 30, Police Act. Section 30 empowers the authorities to control processions, and the manner in which they are to be controlled, if it is necessary to control them, is set forth in sub-section (2). Neither in the marginal note, nor in the body of the section, is any express power given to the authorities absolutely to forbid the taking out of a procession. It is impossible to read into the Act any authority for absolutely refusing permission to take out a procession.

To break a promise to the Superintendent of Police made by a person that he would not take out a procession is not to disobey an order issued under the Act and he cannot be convicted. A.I.R. 1985 All. 657=1935 A.L.J. 386=36 Cr. L.J. 782=57 All. 790=1935 A.W.R. 314=155 Ind. Cas. 605.

—S. 30—Scope and powers of police—General order that no one shall take out procession without licence.

Section 30, Police Act, does not empower the Superintendent of Police to issue a general notice that anyone taking out a procession which might pass by a mosque, must take out a licence under that section. The Superintendent of Police has first of all to be satisfied that it is intended by a person or a class of persons to take out a procession or hold a meeting. He has then to take the option of the District Magistrate or the Sub-Divisional Magistrate and if, in the opinion of that officer, such assembly or procession, if uncontrolled, may cause a breach of the peace, he might then issue a notice, general or special, that these persons shall apply for a licence. A.I.R. 1932 Cal. 286=35 C.W.N. 187=58 Cal. 879=32 Cr. L.J. 1005=133 Ind. Cas. 192.

—S. 30—Scope and powers of police—Regulating music in streets.

The District Superintendent of Police under S. 30 is authorized to regulate the extent to which music may be used in the streets on the occasion of festivals and ceremonies, but a prohibition of every kind of music is not covered by the word "regulate", 39 All. 131, Rel. on. 116 Ind. Cas. 814=51 All. 485=1929 A.L.J. 180=10 L.R.A. Cr. 42=11 A.I.Cr.R. 294=30 Cr. L.J. 696=A.I.R. 1929 All. 201.

—S. 30—Scope and powers of police—Operation of notification.

A notification under S. 30 cannot be held to be operative after the occasion which called for the notification has passed away. 106 Ind. Cas. 718=32 C.W.N. 162=29 Cr. L.J. 126=A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 272.

—S. 30—Scope and powers—Power to control procession, but not to forbid.

Section 30 of the Act gives the police power to control processions. In order that this power may be exercised the Act in certain circumstances authorizes the police to require persons to apply for licences. The object of this is that adequate arrangements for control may be made in time. But the police have no power to forbid the issue of a procession. The power to control does not include the power to forbid. 93 Ind. Cas. 986=4 Pat. 795=7 P.L.T. 622=27 Cr.L.J. 522=A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 173.

—S. 30—Scope and powers of police—Nature and scope of—Enforceability—Procedure.

Where the Superintendent of Police issued the following notice under S. 30 of the Act.

"I prohibit any procession, formed by any person within the municipal area of this district other than under licence granted by me, for a period of 3 months as I consider such prohibition to be necessary for the preservation of the public peace and safety."

Held per Mullick, J.—

(1) that S. 30 only means that the S. P. has to be satisfied that the procession is, in the judgment of the District Magistrate likely to cause a breach of the peace;

(2) that the notification of prohibition though general is within the powers of the S. P. to issue;

(3) that the order is a 'law';

(4) that though it did not follow the exact language of clause (1) of S. 30 the notification was on the whole a substantial compliance and the public were in no error or doubt as to its purport.

Per Das, J.—(1) A notification under S. 30 of the Act cannot be regarded as the "law" for any purpose as there is no provision in that Act giving such a notification the same effect as if they were contained in an Act.

(2) The notification, even if it is a 'law' is not enforceable as such for the following reasons:—

First, the police have no power under the Act to prohibit a procession where the promoters thereof decline to apply for a licence.

Secondly, there is no power to issue an order to have operation for 3 months. The language of the section is perfectly clear that the police have the power to deal with each case as it arises and that the District Magistrate has to exercise his discretion on each occasion. Cr. Ref. No. 32 of 1917, Foll.

Thirdly, assuming the police have the power to prohibit, they have no power to prohibit a procession anywhere within the municipal area. Such a prohibition will be ultra vires as it covers even meetings in private houses for a lawful purpose.

Lastly, the Act requires that the judgment shall be exercised by District Magistrate and the order shows that instead of that, the S. P. has exercised his judgment and has thereby arrogated to himself a power not conferred by the Statute.

(3) The only way by which the order under S. 30 could be executed (assuming they could be executed at all) is only by proceeding against the persons opposing such order, under S. 32 of the Act, and not by an order for disposal as such a power is not given by the section. 68 Ind. Cas. 945=3 P.L.T. 585=1922 P.H.C.C. 274=2 Pat. 134=23 Cr.L.J. 625=1 Pat. L.R. Cr. 199=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 1 (S.B.).

—Ss. 30, 31 and 32—Scope and powers of police—Order of dismissal—Legality of.

Orders passed under Ss. 30, 31 and 32 do not define rights of persons nor decide who is in the wrong in the case of any dispute in public place.

With respect to orders issued by police, the presumption is that they are issued in pursuance of duty.

Whether orders issued by police, are in the exercise of duty and are reasonably necessary, is a question of fact. 15 N.L.R. 51=20 Cr.L.J. 313=50 Ind. Cas. 489.

—S. 30, Cl. (2)—Scope and powers of police—Licence to control procession—Notice on each occasion.

Under S. 30 of the Police Act there must be a notice special or general on each occasion on which an intended assembly or assemblies is or are required by the Superintendent of Police to be controlled by means of licence to be taken out by the persons celebrating the festivals concerned. 20 Cr. L.J. 213=49 Ind. Cas. 773 (Pat.).

—Ss. 30, 31 and 32—Scope and powers of police—Duty of Police—Whether they can regulate persons or they can regulate assemblies under S. 30.

The police cannot regulate persons or class of persons visiting or resorting to a public place. They have no authority under S. 31 to issue a general order while 'keeping order'.

Such order of the D.S.P. was held to be ultra vires: The police can only regulate assemblies and processions and music on festivals under S. 30. 39 All 131=14 A.L.J. 1072=17 Cr. L.J. 448=35 Ind. Cas. 1008.

—S. 30-A—Applicability.

S. 30-A of the Act does not apply unless a licence has been got and there is a violation of the conditions thereof. 68 Ind. Cas. 945=3 P.L.T. 585=1922 P.H.C.C. 274=2 Pat. 134=23 Cr. L.J. 625=1 Pat. L.R. Cr. 199=A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 1 (S.B.).

—S. 30-A—Conditions of licence—Carrying of lathi.

Where a person took out a licence for a procession to proceed through Patna City, one of the conditions of which was that no member of it was to carry a lathi or a sword:

Held, that the object of a licence under the Police Act is to ensure the preservation of public order and clearly the licensee must undertake the duty of maintaining order throughout the course of the procession and, therefore, the licensee was responsible for seeing that no member carrying a lathi joined the procession on the way though at the start it had no such member.

The fact that S. 30-A, Police Act, gives the power to the officers mentioned to stop a licenced procession which violates the conditions of the licence does not excuse a licensee from strictly complying with the conditions of his licence. 106 Ind. Cas. 706=6 Pat. 763=29 Cr. L.J. 114=9 A.I. Cr. R. 401=9 P.L.T. 395=A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 166.

—S. 30-A—Procession ordered to disperse—Disobedience—Offence—Penal Code, S. 143.

Where a procession has been ordered to disperse under powers given by S. 30-A, Police Act, because the conditions of a licence have been violated, any person who omits to obey the order to disperse is liable whether he was aware of the conditions of the licence or not. The liability in such a case would be that a person who neglects or refuses to disperse would be deemed to be a member of an unlawful assembly and punishable under S. 143, I. P. C. This would be an independent offence committed by a processionist just as the act of picking a pocket in the course of the progress of the procession would be an independent offence. A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 372=I.L.R. (1941) Lah. 820=43 Cr. L.J. 145=197 Ind. Cas. 339 (F. B.)

—S. 30-A—Prosecution for breach.

Section 30-A merely gives an additional power to the officers concerned to stop the procession and then, if it does not disperse, to deal with its members as members of an unlawful assembly. It is not a condition precedent to the prosecution of the licensee for violation of the conditions of the licence that action should first be taken under S. 30-A. 114 Ind. Cas. 716=30 P.L.R. 261=30 Cr. L.J. 371=10 Lah. 852=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 404.

—S. 31—Scope of—Issue of order prohibiting doing of legal act.

Section 31, Police Act, is intended primarily for the purpose of keeping order on the public roads, preventing confusion, regulating traffic and avoiding obstruction. Orders passed in such cases would be well covered by the provisions of that section. But the section does not authorise a Police Officer to issue an order which a Magistrate might have issued under S. 144, Criminal P.C. to refrain from doing a perfectly legal act. Section 31 is obviously intended to empower Police Officers to regulate traffic on public roads, to prevent the commission of offences on such roads, for example, affrays, and also to do their best to prevent obstruction.

Held, therefore, that the act of the accused was a perfectly legal action taking out the bridegroom and the bride in palanquins along public roads or highways, and their failure to agree to carry out the instructions of the Police Officer to dismount did not amount to an illegal act within the meaning of S. 153, I.P.C. because the Police Officer was not empowered to issue such an order. If there had been any apprehension of an immediate breach of the peace, he might have asked the assembly to disperse under S. 127, or if he had previous intimation of it, he might have obtained an order under S. 144 from the Magistrate. Failing to have adopted either of these courses, he could not arrogate to himself the power to order that the bridegroom and the bride should not go in palanquins. A.I.R. 1936 All. 534=1936 A.W.R. 424=1936 A.L.J. 579=37 Cr. L.J. 866=58 All. 934=163 Ind. Cas. 866.

—Ss. 31 and 30—Procession—Obstruction to traffic whether ground for dispersal.

Under S. 31, Police Act, the Police have power to pass any order reasonably necessary for "keeping order" or "preventing obstruction." But the question whether a particular order could be to be legally justifiable under the section must depend on the facts of each case.

The accused were going in a procession on a public road. Though the procession was not disorderly, the Sub-Inspector of Police passed an order under S. 31, Police Act, asking them to disperse on the ground that there was obstruction to the traffic and the accused were convicted for disobedience of that order.

Held, that if the procession caused obstruction to traffic, the Police would have been justified in ordering the processionists to make room for the traffic; the order for dispersal was, however, illegal in the circumstances of the case, and the accused were not guilty of any offence. A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 33=32 Cr. L. J. 532=32 P.L.R. 52=130 Ind. Cas. 425.

—S. 31—Order dispersing processions which are not disorderly is in excess of S. 31.

Under S. 31 the police have power to pass any order reasonably necessary for "keeping order" or "preventing obstruction." But the question whether a particular order could be held to be legally justifiable under the section must depend on the facts of each case. Where the processionists were not disorderly and all that was alleged was that there was some obstruction to traffic, which the police could have easily prevented by ordering the processionists to make room for the traffic.

Held, that under the circumstances the Sub-Inspector of Police exceeded his powers in giving an order for the dispersal of the procession, 1931 Cr. C. 97=A.I.R. 1931 Lah. 33=32 P.L.R. 52=130 Ind. Cas. 425=32 Cr. L. J. 532.

—S. 31—Oral order.

An order issued under S. 31 may be an oral order. 91 Ind. Cas. 56=27 Cr. L.J. 24=27 A.I.R. 1926 All. 264.

—S. 32 See also S. 30, POLICE ACT.

—S. 32—Applicability—Processionists—Onus of proof.

Per Full Bench.—It cannot be said that S. 32, Police Act, applies only to the licensee and only the licensee can violate the conditions of a licence. Any member of the procession with knowledge of the terms of the licence may be proved to have violated the terms of the licence and consequently, may come within the purview of S. 32.

Per Ram Lall J.—In such a case it is always for the prosecution to prove that a processionist charged with having violated the conditions of a licence was aware of the existence of conditions which are alleged to have been violated before he can be held liable. The mere fact that a person joined a procession or even continued to remain in the procession will not be sufficient to prove this knowledge or shift from the prosecution the onus of proving this knowledge. A.I.R. 1941 Lah. 372=I.L.R. (1941) Lah. 820=43 Cr. L. J. 145=197 Ind. Cas. 339 (F. B.)

—S. 32—Applicability—Licence for procession granted under S. 30 (2)—Persons in procession other than licensee violating condition of licence, if guilty under S. 32.

Under S. 32, Police Act, the person violating the condition of the licence granted under S. 30 (2), Police Act, for taking out a procession need not be the licensee, where the persons in the procession who are aware of the condition, violate it, not only is the licensee guilty under S. 32 but also the persons violating the condition. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 99=52 L.W. 623=(1940) 2 M.L.J. 819=1940 M.W.N. 1119=42 Cr. L.J. 272 (2)=192 Ind. Cas. 311.

—S. 32—Essentials.

Knowledge of order is a necessary ingredient of the offences punishable under S. 181, I.P. Code and S. 32, Police Act. A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 535=1937 M.W.N. 172=45 L.W. 400=(1937) 1 M.L.J. 473=38 Cr. L.J. 620=168 Ind. Cas. 848.

—S. 32—Breach of licence—Licensee cannot plead want of knowledge.

A licensee assumes responsibility for the entire conduct of the procession and its component members and he cannot repudiate such responsibility by alleging that the violation of the conditions took place without his consent or even his knowledge or in his absence. If any member of the procession is guilty of the breach of the conditions of the licence, the licensee is liable to be prosecuted for it. 114 Ind. Cas. 716 = 30 P.L.R. 261 = 30 Cr.L.J. 371 = 10 Lah. 852 = A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 404.

—S. 32—Interpretation—Expression, “violating the conditions”, meaning explained.

The expression ‘violating the conditions’ which has been used in S. 32, Police Act, connotes the idea of direct violation on the part of the person whom it is sought to prosecute, for example, by carrying a weapon himself or by expressly permitting weapon to be carried or passive violation by not taking due care to see that the conditions of the licence were fulfilled. A.I.R. 1941 Cal. 113 = 44 C.W.N. 706 = I.L.R. (1940) 2 Cal. 122 = 42 Cr.L.J. 325 = 102 Ind. Cas. 850.

—S. 32—Prohibition of organisation—Joining the procession.

When a notice has been issued under S. 30 (2) prohibiting the organizing or promotion of a procession without license and a procession is taken out without such license the mere fact of joining in the procession which was promoted or organized by other persons would not amount to a disobedience of the order. 101 Ind. Cas. 475 = 8 P.L.T. 245 = 28 Cr.L.J. 443 = 8 A.I.Cr.R. 38 = A.I.R. 1927 Pat. 191.

—S. 34—Essentials for conviction—Accused drunk and not capable of taking care of himself—Conviction.

A finding that the accused committed any offence to the obstruction, inconvenience, annoyance, risk, danger or damages to the passengers on the road is an essential ingredient of an offence under S. 34, Police Act. It is not sufficient to find that he was drunk and incapable of taking care of himself. A.I.R. 1937 Cal. 312 = 38 Cr.L.J. 850 (1) = 170 Ind. Cas. 224 (1).

—S. 34. (7)—Essentials for conviction—Obstruction, proof of—Ingredients of offence.

Unless it is proved that an act complained of was the obstruction, inconvenience, annoyance, risk, danger or damage of the residents or passengers, there cannot be a conviction under S. 34 of the Police Act. 20 Cr.L.J. 452 = 51 Ind. Cas. 340 (Pat.)

—S. 34—Interpretation and scope—‘Cause’—C. P. Municipal Act, S. 110—Offence under—Conviction under Police Act, if legal.

The word ‘causes’ in S. 34 of the Police Act, is not a word of art but has the ordinary meaning ‘allows to exist’. A conviction under S. 34 of the Police Act is not illegal merely because the act complained of also constitutes a breach of S. 110 of the C.P. Municipal Act, and as such is punishable under that Act as well. 20 Cr.L.J. 671 = 52 Ind. Cas. 495 (Nag.)

—S. 34, Cl. (b)—Interpretation and scope—‘Riotous’.

The word ‘riotous’ covers the case of a person who creates a room in a thoroughfare. 7 P.R. 1916

Cr. = 35 P.W.R. 1916 Cr. = 17 Cr.L.J. 273 = 34 Ind. Cas. 993.

—S. 34—Keeping car by road side.

Although easing by a man on a public road may constitute an offence inasmuch as it causes annoyance to the residents or passengers, the mere fact that a cart was kept in the partland by the side of the road with a width of 40 feet, cannot raise any presumption by implication that it caused annoyance to the public. (20 Cr. L.J. 452, Rel. on.) 9 Pat. 97 = A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 246 = 125 Ind. Cas. 130 = 11 P.L.T. 615.

—S. 34—Making water.

The expression ‘easing oneself’ comprises within its ambit ‘making water’ so as to constitute it an offence within Cl. 7, S. 34. 51 C.L.J. 342 = A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 444 = 127 Ind. Cas. 261.

—S. 34 (7)—Making water.

Although making water by the side of road was an offence under S. 34 (7) where the Sessions Judge had acquitted the accused on wrong construction of the section, High Court taking into consideration the evidence of annoyance on record and the hour of occurrence refused to set aside order of acquittal. 51 C.L.J. 342 = A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 444 = 127 Ind. Cas. 261.

—S. 34 Offence under - Requisites to be proved - Sentence of rigorous imprisonment for one month in default of payment of fine—Legality.

To constitute an offence under S. 34 of the Police Act, not only is it necessary that there should have been some sort of an obstruction on the road but it must also be proved that the obstruction in question was such as to cause inconvenience or danger to the public. Further in such a case it is the duty of the Police under S. 31 of the Act in the first instance, to require the offender to remove the obstruction and it is only on his refusal that necessary action should be taken.

A sentence of a month's rigorous imprisonment in default of payment of fine for an offence under S. 34 of the Act is not warranted by the section and is illegal. Act. 22 Luck. 181 = 228 Ind. —S. 34—Playing cards in street.

Playing cards is not an offence and does not come within any of the eight clauses of S. 34, and the act of a constable in prohibiting the men from playing cards is not in the discharge of his duty. So any assault by the persons so playing on the constable does not come under S. 332, I.P.C., but is an offence under S. 323, I.P.C. 92 Ind. Cas. 889 = 27 P.L.R. 74 = 27 Cr.L.J. 377 = A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 250.

—S. 34—Receiving tips for—Supplying water.

The expression ‘exposes for sale’ implies that every person who takes any quantity of it (water) has to pay for it. A person setting up a chauki (wooden board) with an earthen jar filled with water over it and supplying water to all those who wanted it is not guilty under S. 34 (4) merely because sometimes some of the persons who took water did voluntarily give tips. 92 Ind. Cas. 591 = 24 A.L.J. 292 = 27 Cr.L.J. 303 = 7 L.R.A. Cr. 49 = A.I.R. 1926 All 288.

—S. 34—Scope of—Offence under, if cognizable.

It the power to arrest without a warrant is limited to any particular class of Police Officers, that does not prevent the offence being regarded as a cognizable one.

The phrase "it shall be lawful for any Police Officer to take into custody, without a warrant, any person who, within his view, commits any of such offences" in S. 34, Police Act, is to be construed as a conditional power; rather it limits the power to certain Police Officers, not by any category or class, but by the conditions existing at the time of the commission of the offence, and any Police Officer witnessing the offence has an unfettered power of arrest. Consequently, an offence under S. 34 can be regarded as cognizable offence. A.I.R. 1939 Nag. 95 = I.L.R. (1939) Nag. 488 = 1939 N.L.J. 101 = 40 Cr.L.J. 905 = 184 Ind. Cas. 231.

—S. 34—Validity of conviction—S. 279, I.P.C.

The finding of a Magistrate that the accused was not guilty of an offence under S. 34 of the Police Act necessarily and logically means that the accused could not be convicted of an offence under S. 279 of the Penal Code. 88 Ind. —S. 42—Scope of—False statement by Deputy Superintendent of Police that he caught under by setting a trap.

Section 42, Police Act only deals with anything intended to be done under the provisions of the Police Act, or under the general Police powers thereby given. Where a Deputy Superintendent of Police is accused of falsely saying that he had set a trap and had caught an offender, this cannot be said to be something done under the provisions of the Police Act, or under the general police powers thereby given. He was then acting under his powers of investigation possessed generally by a superior officer over an inferior officer or it may be under Chap. 16, Criminal P. S. 3—Applicability—Speech attacking police and calculated to create disaffection among them—Written report not in shorthand but only extracts taken by a constable—Conviction based on—Legality—Speech, if should have been addressed to members of the police force.

Where a person was convicted of an offence under S. 3 of the Police (Incitement to Disaffection) Act for making a speech which was not only an attack on the police, but was also calculated to create disaffection among them against the Government and also to incite them to go on strike, on the contentions that the conviction was bad as it was based on a report of a constable who had not taken down the entire speech in shorthand but only extracts from the speech as and when he could take it down and that the speech was not addressed to the members of the police force.

Held, while the Court would not encourage mutilated reporting of a speech to support a conviction, it will not be in the interests of justice not to support a conviction merely because every word uttered by the speaker has not been taken down verbatim. In the circumstances, as there was not only the report but also the oral evidence of the constable who reported the speech as to the general drift of the speech and since it was not proved there were serious omissions that could have given a different aspect to the speech and as there was no doubt as to the general trend of the speech, the speech fell within S. 3 of the Police (Incitement to Disaffection) Act.

Held, further; that it is not necessary that the words spoken should be addressed directly to the members of the police force to attract the application of S. 3 of the Act. The speaker must have intended that his words should reach the members of the police force so that they may act according to his appeal. I.L.R. #### 1. Burden of proof.

—Burden of proof—Jungle land—Plaintiff alleging adverse possession—Proof.

In a suit for title to and possession of a jungle it was found that the title was decided to be in the defendant in a previous suit and possession was also decided to be his in proceedings under Criminal P.C., S. 145 out of which the present suit arose. The plaintiff claimed right by adverse possession.

Held, that under the above circumstances it lay upon him to establish affirmatively his adverse possession for 12 years prior to the proceedings under S. 145. The possession which the plaintiff has to prove must be adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent to show that it was possession adverse to the competitor and there was special difficulty in establishing this in the case of uncultivated jungle land in dispute which produced nothing beyond self-sown trees and a seasonal crop of wild grass. 27 Cal. 943 (P.C.) and A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 181, Rel. on. A.I.R. 1930 P.C. 281=57 I. A. 273=32 Bom. L.R. 1559=11 Lah. 638=31 P.L.R. 828=1930 A.L.J. 1369=127 Ind. Cas. 537=59 M.L.J. 399=34 C.W.N. 1101=52 C.L.J. 283=32 L.W. 385 (P.C.).

—Burden of proof—Limitation.

In a suit for possession of immovable property plaintiff claimant must prove that his claim is within limitation. 111 Ind. Cas. 577=48 C.L.J. 511=28, M.L.W. 787=55 M.L.J. 302.

—Burden of proof—Limitation.

In a suit for possession the plaintiff cannot succeed without proving possession and dispossession within 12 years, 15 Cal. 473 (P.C.), Foll. 94 Ind. Cas. 417 (Lah.).

—Burden of proof—Prima facie, title proved.

Where a person in possession sues for injunction to prevent defendant from disturbing his possession and proves prima facie title, the defendant, in order to resist plaintiff's claim successfully must prove superior title in him. 25 Bom. 287 Foll. 87 Ind. Cas. 696=27 Bom. L.R. 474=A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 377.

—Burden of proof—Jungle and—Possession of owner and that of adverse possessor—Distinction.

Where in a suit for recovery of possession of forest lands the plea of the defendant was title by adverse possession and it was proved that the defendants exercised certain fugitive acts of possession:

Held, that where there is a title in plaintiff the defendant should prove the alleged adverse possession has all the qualities of adequacy, continuity and exclusiveness.

Held, further that where the holder of the title proves that he too has been exercising during the currency of his title various acts of possession, then the quality of these acts, even although they might have failed to constitute adverse possession against another may be abundantly sufficient to destroy that adequacy and interrupt that exclusiveness and continuity which is demanded from the adverse possessor. 66 Ind. Cas. 451=48 I.A. 395=24 Bom. L.R. 669=26 C.W.N. 666=30 M.L.T. 42=44 Mad. 883=14 M.L.W. 721=1921 M.W.N. 847=A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 181=41 M.L.J. 650.

—Burden of proof—Dispossession—Land unfit for enjoyment.

Where land is shown to have been unfit for actual enjoyment and it continued to be so till within twelve years before suit, the plaintiff was presumably in possession of it until the contrary is shown. 2 U.P.L.R. (Pat.) 111=(1920) Pat. H.C.C. 245=1 P.L.T. 229=56 Ind. Cas. 344.

—Burden of proof—Defendants in possession for 12 years but land is uncultivated.

If the defendants held the land uncultivated though for 12 years the plaintiff is presumably in possession of them. 30 Ind. Cas. 191 (Mad.).

—Burden of proof—Title, proof of.

In a suit for possession it is for the party who comes into Court to oust the other party to establish the alleged superior title. 240 P.L.R. 1914=26 Ind. Cas. 341.

—Burden of proof.

The person out of possession must prove the nature of the transaction by which the person in possession obtained that possession. This rule does not apply when the original relation of the parties is that of mortgagor and mortgagee. The party who alleges that the said relation has ceased must prove it. 5 Bur. L.T. 161=17 Ind. Cas. 913.

—Burden of proof—Jungle lands.

The person entitled to property is presumed to be in possession of jungle lands all along. 15 C.W.N. 887=(1911) 2 M.W.N. 101=10 M.L.T. 157=13 Bom. L.R. 806=14 C.L.J. 319=8 A.L.J. 1176=11 Ind. Cas. 542 (P.C.).

—Burden of proof—Suit—Plaintiff to prove a better title.

In a suit for possession the plaintiff must prove a better title than the defendant. 8 A.L.J. 849=11 Ind. Cas. 981.

—Burden of proof—Suit—Proof by plaintiff of enjoyment and dispossession.

Where plaintiff proves enjoyment and wrongful dispossession by the defendant he is entitled to a decree unless the defendant establishes his title. 9 M.L.T. 409=9 Ind. Cas. 595.

—Burden of proof.

A plaintiff who seeks possession must show the date of suit he was entitled to possession. 19 M.L.J. 347=5 M.L.T. 213=4 Ind. Cas. 30.

2. Constructive possession.

—Constructive possession—Possession of part whether possession of whole.

Possession of part is constructive possession of the whole which is an incident of ownership resulting from title. This doctrine does not apply where the occupant depends on ground of possession only without proving title. (1920) Pat. H.C.C. 146=5 Pat. L.J. 273=56 Ind. Cas. 184=1 Pat. L.T. 760.

—Constructive possession—Symbolical possession.

Symbolical possession in execution proceedings to which judgment-debtor is a party amounts to actual possession as against them. 55 Ind. Cas. 646 (Lah.).

—Constructive—Unoccupied land.

Where a land is unoccupied, the possession must be deemed to be with the person having lawful title thereto. 21 C.W.N. 304=25 C.L.J. 133=38 Ind. Cas. 547.

—Constructive possession—Symbolical possession—Evidence of—Legal fiction—Value of.

A formal delivery of symbolical possession is conclusive evidence that possession was delivered but not that it continued. It is but a legal fiction in most cases any yet is valuable in that it affords a starting point for limitation. 18 C.W.N. 940=23 Ind. Cas. 298.

—Constructive possession.

The doctrine of constructive possession cannot be applied in favour of a wrong doer. 13 C.L.J. 625=6 Ind. Cas. 392.

—Constructive possession—Possession of part—Claim on title.

Possession of part is possession of the whole, if the whole is vacant and if the claim proceeds from title. Occupation of a part by a wrong doer does not mean constructive possession of the whole. 12 O.C. 58=2 Ind. Cas. 63.

3. Co-sharer.

—Co-sharers—Forcible dispossession.

Where forcible possession is taken civil Courts should restore possession without exercising their discretion in the matter of equitable relief to the persons who have taken forcible possession. Thus where a plaintiff co-owner acquires a tenant right for his exclusive benefit the defendant co-owner has a right to claim joint occupancy or occupancy in common in the acquired land but where the latter who is also a lambardar, forcibly disposes the former the Court should pass a decree restoring possession 122 Ind. Cas. 439 = 25 N.L.R. 186 = A.I.R. 1930 Nag. 56.

—Co-sharers—Building on common land.

Where one of the co-owners builds on the common land without the consent of the rest, the building should not be demolished unless the remaining co-owners can prove that the action has caused them such a material injury as cannot be remedied by partition of the common land. 60 Ind. Cas. 531 = 3 U.P.L.R. (Lah.) 22.

—Co-sharer—Ouster.

Cases between co-owners should be decided according to justice, equity and good conscience. Ordinarily one co-sharer is entitled to keep possession of a portion of the joint property and to enjoy it in exclusive possession so long as he does not deny the title of his co-owner or oust him in the eye of law. The remedy of the co-owners in these circumstances is to apply for partition or compensation. 3 Pat.L.J. 426 = 46 Ind. Cas. 162.

—Co-shares—Exclusion.

Possession of co-owners is prima facie joint. One co-sharer seeking to defeat another's claim must prove special circumstances justifying exclusive occupation of the joint property. A co-sharer ousted by another from joint property can recover joint possession. 24 C.L.J. 165 = 20 C.W.N. 1258 = 35 Ind. Cas. 36.

—Co-sharers—Joint possession—Purchaser from tenant-in-common.

Where at a Court-sale the purchaser buys the rights of some tenants-in-common who were never in possession of piece of land sold, a decree for joint possession ought not to be passed in favour of the purchaser. 18 C. 10, Rel. on. 25 M.L.J. 352 = 14 M.L.T. 346 = 21 Ind. Cas. 314.

—Co-sharers—Existence of tenants settled by co-sharer—If sufficient answer to claim for khas—Occupancy rights.

The mere fact of the existence of tenants settled by another co-sharer is not sufficient answer to a claim for joint khas possession unless rights have been acquired which would form a complete defence, e.g., occupancy right. 13 Ind. Cas. 694 (Cal.).

4. Dispossession.

—Dispossession—Underground rights.

The mere omission of the mineral owner to do anything with the subject-matter of his grant will not be a decision or dispossession of him in favour of the surface owner. 91 Ind. Cas. 169 = 5 Pat. 80 = 7 P.L.T. 188 = 1925 P.H.C.C. 254 = A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 130.

—Dispossession—Mutation order.

Where the adoptive father made a declaration in a deed that he was holding certain properties as trustee for the adopted son, and subsequently the Revenue Court on the application of the adopted son ordered mutation in his name held, that these constituted clear dispossession of the adoptive father. 69 Ind. Cas. 971 = 20 A.L.J. 945 = 45 All. 169 = A.I.R. 1923 All. 58.

5. Evidence.

—Evidence—Proclamation by Crown.

Where the question was whether the appellant's statement of claim contained an allegation, either express or by necessary intendment, that the land in question ever came into the possession of the Crown or of some agent for the Crown, and it appeared that the only relevant allegation in the statement was one which referred to the provisions of a proclamation by the Crown by which it vested the land in its alleged agent and gave a direction that he should sell the same, held, that there was no allegation of possession by the Crown or by its agents. The provisions of the proclamation do not involve and vesting in the agent of possession or of any taking by him of possession. The whole of the duties of the agent under the proclamation could be performed without possession. 31 L.W. 566 = 58 M.L.J. 375 = 131 Ind. Cas. 141 = A.I.R. 1931 P.C. 51 (P.C.).

—Evidence.

Where parti land has been leased for a special purpose, e.g., bandh, i.e., throwing up earth from the tank, the fact, that the lessee merely used it for scraping grass does not indicate any possession of it by him. 127 Ind. Cas. 524 = A.I.R. 1930 All. 321.

—Evidence—Order under S. 145, Cr. P. Code.

An order under S. 145 of the Magistrate is admissible as evidence of the fact as to who was declared entitled to retain possession and these orders are admissible against all persons when the fact of possession on the date of the order has to be ascertained. But as between parties to the proceedings such an order is also admissible as evidence as regards possession before two months of the date of the order. 29 Cal. 187 (P.C.) Rel. on. 34 C.W.N. 358 = A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 450 = 57 Cal. 987 = 128 Ind. Cas. 251.

—Evidence—Entries in survey proceedings.

Where plaintiffs were entered as in possession in the cadastral survey of 1897, and in the revisional survey of 1918 the defendants were entered as in possession, the plaintiffs cannot be presumed to be in possession upto immediately prior to the date of the revisional survey, and the two entries are quite consistent with the fact that the defendants came into possession long before. 12 P.L.T. 543 = A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 410.

—Evidence—Patta.

Though pattas issued by revenue authorities may not be evidence of title, they are certainly evidence as to possession. 108 Ind. Cas. 760 = 51 Mad. 1 = 27 M.L.W. 611=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 299=54 M.L.J. 174 (F.B.).

—Evidence—Poramboke.

The mere fact that the fishery in a common poramboke village tank was leased out by the temple trustees would not go to establish the ownership of the temple in the tank, and where one of the villagers in the exercise of his right to the common tank fishes in the tank, it is a bona fide assertion of a civil right, and not a theft. 92 Ind. Cas. 855=22 M.L.W. 673=27 Cr.L.J. 343=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 210.

—Evidence—Title to zamindari—Payment of revenue and receipt of rent.

The proof of possession or receipt of rent by a person who pays the land revenue immediately to Government is prima facie evidence of an estate of inheritance in the case of an ordinary zamindari. The evidence is still stronger if it be proved that the estate has passed on one or more occasions from ancestor to heir: 1 I.A. 268.

But the mere fact that the plaintiff is in possession and pays Government revenue for the estate will not prove that he is the nearest heir of the last holder and if the property is not an accretion to the Raj, he cannot succeed only upon his possessory title. 93 Ind. Cas. 454=5 P.L.T. (Sup.) 1=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 68 (F.B.).

—Evidence—Recitals in deed.

A formal recital as to the delivery of possession, like a formal recital as to the price, which is to be found in nearly every sale deed, would be a very weak piece of evidence even between the parties to the deed. The vendor cannot be deemed to have delivered possession by the mere act of executing the deed. 69 Ind. Cas. 409=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 31.

—Evidence—Realisation of rent.

Payment of revenue may or may not be an act of ownership according to circumstances, but the realisation of rent from tenants is, and is evidence of possession. 69 Ind. Cas. 883=A.I.R. 1923 Nag. 95.

—Evidence—Nature of.

Word "possession" is a legal term and no importance can be attached to the evidence of witnesses, who come and swear that the land was in possession of somebody or other. The evidence that would satisfy Court would be evidence of acts giving rise to the inference that a party has been in possession. 2 P.L.T. 59=A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 234=57 Ind. Cas. 744.

—Evidence—Possession.

In a suit for possession of land by the Secretary of State, it is not necessary to give any further evidence of possession than that of the plot of the land in dispute is a part of nazul lands belonging to Government. 12 A.L.J. 894=26 Ind. Cas. 86.

—Evidence—Fire arms.

The knowledge of the existence of fire arms found in a hut on search should not without further evidence, be imported to any other person than the occupier of the hut nor would that presumption operate even against him if it could be proved that it was possible the arms might be there without his knowing it.

41 Cal. 350=18 C.W.N. 498=15 Cr.L.J. 385=23 Ind. Cas. 985.

—Evidence—Length of possession.

An order as to mutation of names is not sufficient evidence of the actual period of possession. 9 Ind. Cas. 456 (All.).

—Evidence of—Proof.

So long as possession can be referred to a right consistent with the subsistence of an ownership in being at its commencement, so long must the possession referred to that right rather than to a right contradicting ownership. 33 All. 463=8 A.L.J. 324=9 Ind. Cas. 572.

—Evidence of—Presumption.

If the evidence of possession is found to be of equal weight on both sides the presumption is that possession goes with the title. 13 C.L.J. 625=6 Ind. Cas. 392.

6. Meaning of.

—Meaning of. See SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT, S. 42.

—Meaning of.

Possession is a legal expression and can be proved in many ways. A man can be in possession by cultivating himself through his tenants. 14 A.L.J. 1066=36 Ind. Cas. 427.

—Meaning of—Ownership differs from possession.

Ownership and possession are two distinct conceptions and it is not necessary that in every transfer of ownership by act of parties there should be a transfer of possession. 33 All. 683=8 A.L.J. 746=11 Ind. Cas. 762.

—Meaning of—Physical contact.

Not merely physical contact, but mere possibility of the person dealing with a thing exclusively constitutes possession. 43 Bom. 550=21 Bom.L.R. 251=20 Cr.L.J. 391=50 Ind. Cas. 999.

—Meaning of—Three main divisions.

Possession may roughly be divided into three main divisions: detention, imperfect or qualified possession, and perfect or unqualified possession. Qualified possession is that kind of possession to which the law has always attached the right to possessory remedies. 11 Bom.L.R. 926=4 Ind. Cas. 652.

—Meaning of.

Possession means the physical possibility of a person dealing with a property as he likes and not physical possession. 231 P.L.R. 1914=133 P.W.R. 1914=14 P.R. 1915=25 Ind. Cas. 35.

—Meaning of—Lawful possession—What is.

Lawful possession means possession which has been got neither by force nor fraud. 1 O.L.J. 225=17 O.C. 157=24 Ind. Cas. 45.

—Meaning of—Juridical possession.

Possession could not be said to be juridical where it is taken behind the back of the defendant who did not acquiesce therein but sought to evict the plaintiff as soon as he discovered his dispossession. 9 S.L.R. 220=34 Ind. Cas. 494.

7. Nature of possession.

—Nature of possession—Animus.

When a person has possession of another man's property, the legal character in which he holds it is to be determined by his animus.

N was in possession of property belonging to K. K made a contract of sale of the property to M. Subsequently K sold the property to N.

Held, that N had taken possession of the property in his own right under sale deed and that he could not be regarded as having taken possession under any express trust for the benefit of M merely because N had notice of his prior contract of purchase. 116 Ind. Cas. 70=A.I.R. 1929 Nag. 298.

—Nature of possession—Zamindari—Parti land—Mere possession of.

The parti land of a village is presumed to be in the possession of the zamindar and Court of Wards representing the zamindar must be held to be in possession of the land. Mere physical possession without any title gives no right and, where the defendants are unable to set up any title though they may have been in physical possession of the land, they cannot set up any right. 6 O.W.N. 859=10 L.R.A. (Rev.) 388=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 447.

—Nature of possession—Symbolical possession.

All possession of immoveable property, and indeed of all but the smallest pieces of moveable property, is symbolical. The difference between actual and symbolical possession according to the ordinary use of the terms in reference to immovable property, is a difference in the duration of the possession only; possession for short but undefined period, is called symbolical and for any longer period it is called actual. 93 Ind. Cas. 125=A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 328.

8. Possessory title and right.

—Person in possession of immovable property—Rights of.

When a person is in actual physical possession of immovable property, nobody can oust him from his possession except the owner. 5 J. & K. L.R. 194.

—Possessory title—Nature of.

A person who is in lawful and undisturbed possession of any property though without title, has the right to continue in possession until he is evicted by the person who is the real owner of the property. His peaceful possession is by itself a title which is good against the whole world except the rightful owner. I.L.R. 20 Cal. 834, Rel. on. 1950 A.L.J. 615.

—Possessory title—Possession of co-sharer.

Mere previous possession will not entitle a plaintiff to a decree for possession except in a suit under S. 9 of the Specific Relief Act. If the previous possession of the plaintiff was merely that of co-sharer, it cannot be said that he was in possession of a share greater than that to which he was entitled and he cannot recover possession of the whole of the property. 82 C.L.J. 320=A.I.R. 1947 Cal. 434.

—Possessory title—Relief on basis of.

Where a person who had been in peaceful possession of a certain land for a number of years under an unregistered patta from his landlord had been dispossessed by a trespasser, his prior possession is prima facie evidence of title sufficient to enable him to recover possession, from the latter who cannot establish a better title to the property. A.I.R. 1947 Pat. 444=29 P.L.T. 17.

—Possessory title and rights—Right to set up as defence.

Possession is a good title against all except the rightful owner. Where a person purchased certain property in execution of a simple money decree against a Hindu father and it was not provided that the debt for which the property was sold was tainted with illegality or immorality.

Held, that he could defend his possession by contesting a suit on a mortgage executed by the father on the ground that it was executed for an immoral or illegal purpose. 128 Ind. Cas. 829=1930 A.L.J. 1528=A.I.R. 1930 All. 852.

—Possessory title and right—True owner.

A person in actual possession had a possessory title against the whole world and can be dispossessed only by true owner. (137 P.L.R. 1902, Foll.). 117 Ind. Cas. 904=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 220.

—Possessory title and right—True owner.

A plaintiff can be given a decree for possession on the basis of his possessory title even in cases other than those under S. 9, Specific Relief Act, but such a decree can be granted only against a person which not the rightful owner. 7 O.W.N. 547=A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 374=126 Ind. Cas. 675.

—Possessory title and right—True owner.

A decree cannot be given on the ground of possessory title against a true owner unless such a title has ripened into complete ownership by adverse possession extending for more than 12 years. 119 Ind. Cas. 872=A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 184.

—Possessory title and right—Trespasser.

Where the plaintiffs had a lawful possession of the land and it appeared that the contesting defendants were interfering as mere trespassers.

Held, that the plaintiffs could rely on their possessory title and obtain an injunction under S. 54 of the Specific Relief Act. 115 Ind. Cas. 480=10 Lah. L.J. 480.

—Possessory title and right—Stranger.

Persons in possession whether they have a title to the land or not, are entitled to retain possession as against the persons who are out of possession and cannot prove any title. 111 Ind. Cas. 718=10 L.R.A. Rev. 75.

—Possessory title and right—True owner.

A possessory title is good against the entire world except against the true owner. 100 Ind. Cas. 315=A.I.R. 1927 All. 760.

—Possessory title and right—Proof of title.

Possession lawfully attained in the sense that it was not procured by force or fraud but peaceably, no one interested opposing, is entitled to be maintained against all comers except such as could plead preferential title. fail to prove that he had a title to the land. 78 Ind. 12 All. 51 (P.C.), Foll. 100 Ind. Cas. 278=45 C.L.J. Cas. 228=A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 709.

126=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 931.

—Possessory title and right—True owner—Applicability of English Law.

The principle of the English Law to the effect that possession is a good title against all but the true owner and entitles the possessor to maintain an action for ejectment against any other person than such owner who dispossesses him has been adopted in India. 97 Ind. Cas. 369=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 11.

—Possessory title and right—Trespasser.

A person is entitled to bring the suit for possession merely on a possessory title and the defendants who are only trespassers cannot plead the title of the true owner. 100 Ind. Cas. 62=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 572.

—Possessory title and right.

A person is entitled to enjoy his own land in the way he chooses to do, unless he interferes with his neighbours or causes them injury or inconvenience. 100 Ind. Cas. 21=A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 378.

—Possessory title and right.

No question of possessory right can attach to property frequented by-passers by as if it were a public road. 85 Ind. Cas. 608=6 L.R.A. (Civ.) 122=A.I.R. 1925 All. 348.

—Possessory title and right—Extension of beyond actual user.

If user of a wall to support a roof has given the plaintiff any possessory right, that possessory right must exist on those portions of the wall alone which support this buildings or beams. His possessory right cannot be extended by any fiction of law, or as a matter of inference, over any other portion of the wall, a portion only of which is in plaintiff's use. 85 Ind. Cas. 608=6 L.R.A. (Civ.) 122=A.I.R. 1925 All. 348.

—Possessory title and right—Trespasser.

Where a plaintiff has been forcibly dispossessed of immovable property by a person having no title, he can sue for possession simply on the strength of the possession which he had before he was dispossessed, provided he sues within the twelve years' period allowed by Art. 142 of the Limitation Act. (78 P.R. 1902; 13 A. 53, Foll.) 75 Ind. Cas. 837=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 47.

—Possessory title and right—Trespasser.

A person in peaceful possession has a right to remain in possession against the whole world except the true owner and a suit for an injunction by such a person against any person except the true owner, who threatened to dispossess him is maintainable. 26 Mad. 514; 20 Cal. 834, (P.C.), Foll. 80 Ind. Cas. 82=20 M.L.W. 14=A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 722.

—Possessory title and right—Trespasser.

If a person is in possession of land even without title thereto he cannot be successfully turned out by another person who has so had no title and if such a thing should happen the person first in possession is entitled to be put again in possession even if he should

—Possessory title and right—Trespasser.

Plaintiff is entitled to recover possession on the strength of his possessory title if defendant has no title. (26 Mad. 514; 37 Mad. 298 and Asher v. Whitlock, (1866) 1 Q.B.D. 1, Foll.) 62 Ind. Cas. 396=1921 M.W.N. 243=41 M.L.J. 78=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 642.

—Possessory title and right—Good against all but true owner.

A person in actual possession has a possessory title against the whole world and can only be dispossessed by the true owner and those claiming under him. (1920) M.W.N. 698=39 M.L.J. 626=28 M.L.T. 342=12 L.W. 598=60 Ind. Cas. 109.

—Possessory title and right—Trespasser.

Plaintiff's previous possession even for a shorter period than the statutory period entitles him to a decree against the trespasser. 57 Ind. Cas. 320 (Pat.).

—Possessory title and right—Good against all but true owner.

A person in possession of property without title has a good title against the whole world except the true owner. The possessory title is heritable. 54 Ind. Cas. 398 (All.).

—Possessory title and right—Good against all but true owner.

A person in possession without a title has the right to maintain his possession against all the world except the rightful owner. The minor possession is itself a root of the title and the prior possessor has all the rights of a true owner except of course against the owner himself. 32 M.L.J. 85=21 M.L.T. 162=5 M.L.W. 690=40 Ind. Cas. 50.

—Possessory title and right—Trespasser.

As against a trespasser, possession is title even though it be for less than 12 years if peaceful. 2 Pat.L.J. 280=1 Pat.L.W. 327=(1917) Pat.H.C.C. 164=39 Ind. Cas. 458.

—Possessory title and right—Trespasser—Ejectment.

A person in possession though not owner can eject a mere trespasser and the plea of jus tertii does not stand unless the trespasser claims through such third person. 39 Ind. Cas. 26 (Pat.).

—Possessory title and right—Good against all except true owner.

The person in possession has stronger claim when both the litigants are parties to an invalid transaction. 32 Ind. Cas. 593 (All.).

—Possessory title and right—Good against all but true owner.

A person in possession of land is entitled to retain possession of it until some one who can show that he has got a good title sues him and gets a decree. 8 Bur.L.T. 127=8 L.B.R. 165=29 Ind. Cas. 894.

—Possessory title and right—Trespasser—Entry by.

A mere trespasser cannot obtain possession in law by an act of entry or by the continuance of that act so long as the act is disputed and resisted. 39 Mad. 57=1 L.W. 911=15 Cr.L.J. 723=26 Ind. Cas. 171.

—Possessory title and right—Trespasser—Person in possession dispossessed by stranger without title.

A person in possession though under a defective title cannot be dispossessed by a stranger without title. 36 All. 51=11 A.L.J. 1012=22 Ind. Cas. 622.

—Possessory title and right—Good against all but true owner.

Whether possession originated lawfully or not, the person in possession is entitled to the property and the trees thereon as against all the world except the true owner. 2 Lah.L.J. 271.

—Possessory title and right—Trespasser.

The true owner of property can retain possession though obtained from a trespasser by force or other unlawful means without bringing himself within the law of estoppel. 36 Bom. 185=13 Bom.L.R. 1200=12 Ind. Cas. 913.

9. Presumption about title and possession.

—Presumption about title and possession.

There is no warranty of title in a sale in execution of a decree. A person who sets up a title to property by purchase must prove that his vendor had title in the property sold. Where there was no proof of title in the plaintiffs and the defendants were shown to have been in actual possession.

Held, that the plaintiff's suit to recover possession must fail and that the presumption under S. 110 of the Evidence Act will apply in the defendant's favour. 116 Ind. Cas. 546=10 Lah.L.J. 488.

—Presumption about title and possession.

Ordinarily a person in possession of property must be deemed to be so in his own right unless this presumption can be displaced by proving facts which are sufficient to rebut it. 113 Ind. Cas. 145=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 959.

—Presumption of title and possession.

When plaintiff's title to a vacant plot was not only disputed by Government but was actually taken over formally as nazul to the plaintiff's knowledge.

Held, that the principle that where a certain land is vacant legal possession is deemed to be with the owner, would not apply. 108 Ind. Cas. 445=A.I.R. 1928 Nag. 238.

—Presumption of title and possession.

Possession goes with title, but this presumption cannot be of any avail in the presence of clear evidence to the contrary. 104 Ind. Cas. 514=8 P.L.T. 817=A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 36.

—Presumption about title and possession—Jewels.

The mere fact that a woman wore the jewellery at her wedding would not go far towards proving that the jewels were hers as Burmans habitually borrow jewellery for great occasions. But her continued possession of the jewellery and her taking it away with her when she went to live at various places with her husband would raise a strong presumption that the jewels were hers. 102 Ind. Cas. 670=39 M.L.T. 544=27 M.L.W. 175=A.I.R. 1927 P.C. 105=53 M.L.J. 629.

—Presumption about title and possession—Where title is proved.

Where title is found with the plaintiff in a suit for possession and the evidence of possession is equally balanced, possession must be presumed to follow the title. 100 Ind. Cas. 197=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 344.

—Presumption about title and possession.

Where land is covered with water, possession is determined by title. 94 Ind. Cas. 5=43 C.L.J. 180=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 97.

—Presumption about title and possession—Long and continued possession.

Although origin of possession is not known, wrong and continued possession will raise a presumption of ownership. 10 N.L.R. 188, Rel. on. 99 Ind. Cas. 769=A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 158.

—Presumption about title and possession—Taking possession—Hindu widow.

There is a presumption in law that a person takes possession under title rather than as a trespasser, and so possession of a widow of her deceased husband's estate is possession as a Hindu widow. 92 Ind. Cas. 637=1 Luck. 98=3 O.W.N. 267=13 O.L.J. 216=A.I.R. 1926 Oudh. 277.

—Presumption about title and possession—Vacant site between houses.

Until the contrary is proved, it may generally be presumed, that the open space in a pole belongs to the owners of the surrounding houses, and it would be for the owners of the other houses and not the municipality nor the Government to protest against any obstructions caused by the owner of one house against their common rights. 76 Ind. Cas. 591=A.I.R. 1935 Bom. 27.

—Presumption about title and possession—Animus possidendi.

Where title is not proved the law will raise from definite physical control of part of land, a presumption of possession of that which the possessor has shown a clear and unambiguous intention to possess. 80 Ind. Cas. 544=3 Pat. 915=6 P.L.T. 191=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 210.

—Presumption about title and possession—Vacant site.

In the case of vacant site of which no effective physical possession is feasible the presumption is that possession will follow title. 79 Ind. Cas. 1011=19 M.L.W. 621=34 M.L.T. 287=1924 M.W.N. 628=A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 676=46 M.L.J. 560.

—Presumption about title and possession—Trees.

Presumption of ownership arising from possession is stronger in the case of trees than that arising from the ownership of land. 79 Ind. Cas. 545=5 L.R. Oudh 109=A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 304.

—Presumption about title and possession—Evidence strong on both sides.

Where there is strong evidence of possession on the part of the respondents, opposed by evidence, apparently strong also on the part of the appellant in estimating the weight due to the evidence on both sides, the presumption may well be regarded that possession went with the title. 70 Ind. Cas. 555=36 C.L.J. 396=27 C.W.N. 305=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 228.

—Presumption about title and possession—Vacant land.

According to the general presumption the land being waste land the owner would be presumed to be in possession as possession follows title. 69 Ind. Cas. 4=4 L.L.J. 467=58 P.L.R. 1922=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 25.

—Presumption about title and possession—Evidence equally balanced—Waste lands evidence of title is sufficient to prove possession.

The presumption of possession from title can be raised only where the evidence is equally strong on both sides and cannot be called in aid to give weight to evidence unworthy of credit any more than if no evidence at all had been given. Where definite evidence of acts of possession is forthcoming there is no difference between the proof of possession in the case of jungle waste or uncultivated lands and in that of cultivated lands. But whereas in the case of cultivated lands the plaintiff will fail if he does not prove his possession within 12 years, in the case of jungle or waste lands, if he proves his title, there is a presumption in his favour where having regard to the nature of the land, possession cannot be expected to be proved by acts of actual user and enjoyment. If, however, the plaintiff asserts that he exercised acts of ownership upon the land and adduces evidence in support of such assertion, he cannot, where such evidence is disbelieved by the Court, turn round and rely upon any presumption because the case set up by him negatives the existence of circumstances which would give rise to the presumption and is inconsistent with it. 67 Ind. Cas. 673=26 C.W.N. 724=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 557.

—Presumption about title and possession.

If a land is such over which nobody can exercise possession, possession would ordinarily follow title. 70 Ind. Cas. 853=A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 503.

—Presumption about title and possession—True owner.

Whether possession originated lawfully or not the person in possession is entitled to the property and the trees thereon as against all the world except the true owner. 67 Ind. Cas. 948=2 L.L.J. 271.

—Presumption about title and possession.

Land covered by the underground foundations belongs presumably to the person who builds the footings. 38 Cal. 687 foll., 62 Ind. Cas. 199=33 C.L.J. 26=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 378.

—Presumption about title and possession—Sale by a Revenue Court.

Purchaser at a revenue sale should ordinarily be presumed to be in possession of all the zerati lands of the expropriators. 1 Pat.L.T. 659=61 Ind. Cas. 712.

10. Suit for.

—Suit for—Title—Failure to prove—Applicability of S. 9, Specific Relief Act.

If a plaintiff in a suit for possession claims a decree on the basis of title and further claims a decree for damages, the suit does not come within the purview of S. 9, Specific Relief Act, and if the plaintiff fails to prove his title, either possessory or as a rightful owner he cannot be granted a decree for possession even though the suit may have been brought within six months of the date of dispossession. 103 Ind. Cas. 428=25 A.L.J. 857=A.I.R. 1927 All. 669.

—Suit for.

A plaintiff in a suit for possession against defendant is bound to succeed if he is able to show a 'better title in himself than the defendants. 68 Ind. Cas. 601=1922 P.H.C.C. 313=2 Pat 75=4 P.L.T. 267=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 72.

—Suit for land—Omission to cultivate—No abandonment of possession.

Plaintiff respondent worked the land in suit for 2 years, and admittedly paid him revenue for these two years. The land was not cultivated or worked in the third year. The Revenue Surveyor then of his own motion and without reference to plaintiff struck out plaintiff's name and omitted to assess the land to revenue. When plaintiff discovered this, he sent a man to the Revenue Surveyor who demanded plaintiff's personal presence. In the fourth year the defendant-appellant asked the permission of the Revenue Surveyor to enter on the land and did so and was assessed to revenue. In a suit by plaintiff to recover possession from the defendant.

Held, that plaintiff had not abandoned the land and had no intention of abandoning the land and his claim should be decreed. 79 Ind. Cas. 817=2 Bur.L.J. 15=A.I.R. 1923 Rang. 138.

—Suit for—Suit under S. 9, Specific Relief Act and on possessory title—Distinction.

A suit lies for possession on the basis of possessory title and is not barred by S. 9 by its being brought more than 6 months after dispossession. There is a difference between a suit based on possessory title and a suit under S. 9 of the Specific Relief Act. In the former the Court awards the claim only when it finds that the plaintiff had peaceful possession before dispossession, the plaintiff's previous possession being in law sufficient proof of his title. In the latter, the Court can only go into the question of dispossession within six months before the suit and cannot inquire into the defendant's title. 70 Ind. Cas. 99=1 Bur.L.J. 165=11 L.B.R. 415=A.I.R. 1923 Rang. 54.

—Suit for—Title in plaintiff—Dispossession under S. 145 Cr. P. Code.

The plaintiff's title was established in previous litigation in the presence of the Secy. of State and also of the present contesting defendants with whom the land had been settled by the Revenue authorities. The plaintiff was placed in possession in execution of the decree. Thereafter the plaintiff was dispossessed by an order under S. 145 Cr. P. Code. Held, it is unquestionably open to the plaintiff to maintain a suit and to seek recovery of possession. 65 Ind. Cas. 833=49 Cal. 57=32 C.L.J. 497=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 345.

—Suit for—Defendant's title failing.

After plaintiff's adoption, his natural father sold plaintiff's property as plaintiff's guardian during plaintiff's minority. After majority plaintiff sued the vendee as trespasser for possession. Vendee relied on the sale but it was proved that the sale was not binding on the plaintiff, not being for his benefit.

Held, that it being shown that defendant had no title, plaintiff's suit should be decreed. 78 P. R. 1902, Foll. 67 Ind. Cas. 941=3 L.L.J. 402=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 397.

—Suit for—Forfeiture of term—Parties.

When a suit for possession is based upon forfeiture of term, all persons in possession including constructive possession, at the date of suit, should be joined as parties. 60 Ind. Cas. 969=47 Cal. 907.

—Suit for—Trespasser.

Possession in law being a substantive right or interest which exists and has legal incidents and advantages apart from the true owner's title, a person in possession of land without title has an interest in the property which is good against all the world except the true owner. Therefore, where a plaintiff has been forcibly dispossessed of immovable property by a person having no title, he can sue for possession simply on the strength of the possession which he had before he was dispossessed, provided he sues within the twelve years period allowed, by Art. 142, Limitation Act. In such a suit, unless defendant proves a title plaintiff should succeed without being asked to prove his own title to ownership, and even if the defendant proves that he has no such title. (78 P.R. 1902 Foll); 60 Ind. Cas. 101=3 L.L.J. 35=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 149.

—Suit for—Riayas.

There can be a suit between riayas for possession of village land appurtenant to a dwelling house where one has ousted the other. 19 O.C. 169=37 Ind. Cas. 116.

—Suit for—Possessory title—Rights under.

A person who has a merely possessory title is entitled to a decree for possession against a person who has no title. 17 Ind. Cas. 167 (Mad.).

—Suit for—Title admitted—Defendant to prove tenancy—Burden of proof—Land in suit contiguous to holding of defendant—Shifting of onus.

The plaintiff's title as patnidar, being admitted the defendant cannot resist plaintiff claim for khas possession, unless he can show that he has a tenancy entitling him to retain possession. The mere fact that the defendant holds some lands as tenant under the plaintiff does not shift the burden of showing that, in respect of any other land which the defendant may be found to be in possession of he has no right as a tenant. If the lands sought to be recovered are admitted by the plaintiff, to be contiguous to the holding of the defendants or where they have come to the possession of the defendants by encroachment, the plaintiffs must prove that the lands in suit are outside the holding of the defendants. 19 C.W.N. 140 = 11 Ind. Cas. 696.

—Suit for—Right of possessor to sue in ejectment.

Possession is good title against all persons except the rightful owner and a suit in ejectment may be maintained against any person other than such owner 11 Ind. Cas. 537 (Oudh.).

—Suit for—Trespasser—Suit against by person in possession—Previous possession—Ground.

A person in possession of property for a long time, dispossessed by a trespasser, is entitled on the strength of his previous possession to recover possession of the same from a mere trespasser. 11 Ind. Cas. 279 (Oudh.).

—Suit for—Trespasser—Disturbance by defendant of plaintiff's long continued possession—Effect on plaintiff's title.

Disturbance of long continued possession of plaintiffs by the defendants may be sufficient to entitle the plaintiffs to a decree for possession even if they are not able to sufficiently establish their possession on rights alleged by them. 11 Ind. Cas. 94 (Oudh.).

—Suit for—House purchased with purchaser's money—Benami.

If a house was purchased with, the purchaser's own money he is entitled to possession of the house. 29 M. 336, Foll. 8 M.L.T. 283=8 Ind. Cas. 383.

—Suit for—Title at date of suit.

In a suit for recovery of possession the plaintiff can succeed only on the title as it stood on the date of the institution of the suit. (1907) 7 C.L.J. 282.

II. Miscellaneous.*—Miscellaneous—Trespasser.

A trespasser who enters on another person's land and plants thereon does not thereby become entitled to the produce. 84 Ind. Cas. 961=2 Rang. 488=A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 87.

—Miscellaneous.

A person who is entitled to possession of property need not as a preliminary to that set aside document which may have been executed by somebody else from whom the plaintiff does not derive his title. 78 Ind. Cas. 705=3 Pat. 575=5 Pat.L.T. 581=2 Pat. L.R. 306=A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 551.

—Miscellaneous—Mere user not ripened by prescription.

A mere user which had not ripened by prescription would not give rise to any right upon which an action could be found unless some kind of possessory title existed in the plaintiff's favour. 70 Ind. Cas. 367=14 M.L.W. 449=1921 M.W.N. 510=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 627=41 M.L.J. 490.

—Miscellaneous—User not the sole test.

Possession is not always the same thing as occupation or actual user. When land is incapable of being used in any of the recognised modes by the proprietor, it cannot be said that in law he is of possession 2 P.L.T. 59=57 Ind. Cas. 744=A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 234.

—Miscellaneous—Grazing cattle if an act of possession.

The grazing of cattle occasionally by a person will not amount to an act of possession. Whether an act amounts to an act of possession depends upon that facts of the case. 7 Ind. Cas. 700, Foll. 13 Ind. Cas. 125 (Cal.).

—Government Officer delivering possession.

The Revenue Officers of the Government are not deemed to deprive the village community of their right to the land in giving its possession to a certain person and entering it in the Register kept for Natham lands for cultivation. (1910) M.W.N. 443=8 M.L.T. 248 = 6 Ind. Cas. 419.

—Enforcement of by a person out of possession.

A person out of possession must enforce his right if any, in lawful manner and not by use of criminal force. 17 O. C. 21=15 Cr.L.J. 232=15 O.L.J. 527 =23 Ind. Cas. 184.

—Revenue records —Entry.

An entry in the revenue records does not transfer possession. 7 S.L.R. 169=24 Ind. Cas. 813.

Synopsis.

1. Burden of proof.
2. Co-sharers.
3. Evidence.
4. Incorporeal rights.
5. Presumption.
6. Sufficiency of.
7. Suit based on.
8. Miscellaneous.

1. Burden of proof.

—Burden of proof.

A person dispossessed but not suing under S. 9 of the Specific Relief Act, must prove a title which is based on adverse possession and must be for at least 12 years. (1918) 3 U.B.R. 125=50 Ind. Cas. 575.

—Burden of proof—Good against all but true owner.

Possession is good title against all persons except the true owner. In a suit for possession on the ground of dispossession, the plaintiff must show that he was in continued possession before defendant's entry. 11 N.L.R. 31=27 Ind. Cas. 977.

—Burden of proof—Government.

The Government must prove prior possession in itself or disprove the presumption of title in plaintiff arising from his possession at the time of suit. The onus is not discharged by proof that the Government had levied penal assessment on the land in suit. (1912) M.W.N. 881=16 Ind. Cas. 589.

—Burden of proof—Trespass—Ejectment suit.

Plaintiff relying for his title on prior possession can get a decree in an ejectment suit if he proves a possessory title with himself or his predecessor. 5 N.L.R. 33=22 Ind. Cas. 25.

2. Co-sharers.

—Co-sharers—Ejectment.

The peaceful possession of a co-sharer of a plot of a common land will, if disturbed by other sharers give him a right to sue on his possessory title. 104 P.R. 1919=53 Ind. Cas. 569.

3. Evidence.

—Evidence—Decision on—If evidence of title.

A decree based upon possessory title is prima facie evidence of title against a stranger. 15 C.L.J. 1=13 Ind. Cas. 407.

4. Incorporeal rights.

—Incorporeal hereditament.

There cannot be a possessory right with regard to incorporeal hereditaments. If the enjoyment has not ripened into an easement, then the person in actual enjoyment has no remedy against any interference. 38 M. 280, Foll. 34 M.L.J. 425=(1918) M.W.N. 276=23 M.L.T. 337=45 Ind. Cas. 80.

—Incorporeal right—Easement—Water—Right to take—Channel running through Govt. lands—Non-user for some years.

A person having had enjoyment of an easement for less than the statutory period can obtain an injunction against a trespasser. 5 M.L.J. 24; 34 M. 173, Foll. 18 M.L.T. 515=30 Ind. Cas. 989.

—Incorporeal rights—Easement.

Easements are not capable in an exact sense of being possessed. There cannot be a possessory right in respect of an easement before the full period of adverse enjoyment. 38 Mad. 280=29 Ind. Cas. 255.

—Incorporeal right — Enjoyment of water-course—Injunction.

Where the plaintiffs were in enjoyment of a water-course for less than the prescriptive period sufficient to give them an easement they are entitled to an injunction restraining a trespasser from interfering with their enjoyment. 8 S.L.R. 218 = 27 Ind. Cas. 999.

—Incorporeal right—River changing course—Right of fishery.

If a river changes its course, the old course of the river, if not part of the public domain must be taken to become private property, and the owner of the soil is entitled to all Beels in which water remains but which do not communicate with the river except at the time. The proposition that when a tidal and navigable river shifts its course, the fishery rights continue to subsist in the river in its new course, has been followed though in a long series of decisions, with considerable doubt and reluctance. 12 C.L.J. 216=7 Ind. Cas. 140.

—Incorporeal right—Easement—Jalkar.

A person who is in possession of Jalkar for 11 years before suit is entitled to possession against all except the true owner. 15 C.W.N. 163=6 Ind. Cas. 806.

—Incorporeal rights.

The principle that a person in possession of property for less than the statutory period should be protected applies to the case of incorporeal rights as well. 34 Mad. 173=(1910) M.W.N. 117=7 M.L.T. 352=20 M.L.J. 803=6 Ind. Cas. 266.

5. Presumption.*—Presumption.

If there are two persons in a field, each asserting that the field is his, and each doing some act in the assertion of his right of possession the person having the title is considered as in actual possession. 10 C.L.J. 527=4 Ind. Cas. 442.

6. Sufficiency of.*—Sufficiency of—Trespasser—Maintainability.

Possession is not merely evidence of ownership but is also the foundation of a right to possession and is sufficient in point of law to maintain a suit for possession against a mere trespasser. 4 Pat.L.W. 130=43 Ind. Cas. 338.

—Sufficiency of—Possession after scramble, whether sufficient for decree.

Where both plaintiff and defendant put a lock to the door of the property in suit, plaintiff possession is not peaceful and exclusive so as to entitle him to a decree on the basis of possessory title. Mere possession, which is sufficient under S. 9 of the Specific Relief Act, is not sufficient. 1 Lah. 588=60 Ind. Cas. 101.

—Sufficiency of—Infringement—Suit on, when maintainable—Suit for declaration against tenants regarding their status.

A mere possessory title is not sufficient for the maintenance of a suit against tenants, for a declaration that they are not under-proprietors. Nor is the probability of some danger arising in the future to the exercise of possessory rights sufficient for this purpose. An application by tenants to the revenue Court to be recorded as under-proprietors does not amount to an invasion of, or interference with, the rights of a person whose only right is merely to remain in possession. 6 O.L.J. 499=53 Ind. Cas. 746.

—Sufficiency of—Obstruction—Damages.

Where plaintiff has proved only a mere possessory right over a chawl for a period of 40 years.

Held, it amounted has sufficient possession to entitle the plaintiff to claim damages for obstruction in the enjoyment of that right. 27 Ind. Cas. 772 (Mad.).

—Sufficiency of—Suit on—Maintainable.

A person who has been in possession and has a title to possession, if dispossessed, has a right to possession. 41 Cal. 394=25 Ind. Cas. 76.

7. Suit based on.*—Receipt of rents.

Possession by receipt of rents is a possession known to and respected by law and if that is interfered with by a rival landlord a suit is maintainable without impleading the tenants of the land. 37 M.L.J. 544=10 L.W. 496=26 M.L.T. 359=(1919) M.W.N. 815=53 Ind. Cas. 771.

—Suit based on—Reversionary rights—Vested interest.

A person entitled to property in present or future can assert his title by suit. The person in possession has no vested right to the application of any specific period of limitation not in force at the date of suit. 69 P.R. 1909=103 P.W.R. 1909=2 Ind. Cas. 981.

—Suit based on—Trespasser if can set up right of third party.

A mere possessory title, except under the provisions of S. 9 of the Specific Relief Act, will not in India support a suit in ejectment. A trespasser can therefore set up jus tertii successfully unless plaintiff proves his ownership. 42 Ind. Cas. 884 (Cal.).

—Suit based on—Trespasser—Suit against—Interest enforceable by suit.

Mere possession of property gives an interest enforceable in a suit against a trespasser. 1 Q.B. 1; 12 A. 51 (P.C.) and 26 M. 514, Foll. 1 L.W. 853=(1914) M.W.N. 784=25 Ind. Cas. 934.

—Suit based on—Possession of the rightful owner—Intermediate possession of a wrongdoer—Relinquishment by wrongdoer of his possession.

Plaintiff sued to have it declared that the land in dispute belonged to him alleging that defendant took wrongful possession. It was found that plaintiff's title was proved and that the defendant had made no permanent use of it inconsistent with its being the plaintiff's land.

Held, (1) that the plaintiff was entitled to succeed. The proved circumstances of the case invited the application of the presumption that possession goes with the title. 20 W.R. 25 and 13 App. Cas. 798, Foll. (2) That the use by the defendant of the land was no evidence of adverse possession. 16 B. 338, Foll. Where a person enters upon the land of another and holds possession for a time, and then, without having acquired title under the statute, abandons possession the rightful owner, on the abandonment, is in the same possession in all respects as he was before the intrusion took place. (1909) 11 Bom.L.R. 1087=33 Bom. 712=4 Ind. Cas. 244.

—Suit based on—Suit for possession based on possessory title of plaintiff's predecessor —

Plaintiffs never themselves in possession—Cause of action.

Per Aikman, J. (Knox, J. dissentiente)—Possessory title of ancestor coupled with plaintiff's title to inherit to that title is enough to entitle plaintiff to maintain a suit for possession against all but the rightful owner even though plaintiff himself was never in possession. Wazir Jan, the owner of certain Zamindari property, died on the 18th of December, 1889, leaving no direct heirs. After her death the property was taken possession of by the four nephews of Musamat Wazir Jan's deceased husband. One of these nephews, Bisharat died on the 7th of August, 1890, whereupon the share of which he had been in possession was appropriated by his son Kasim to the exclusion of Kasim's two sisters Ayesha Begam and Kudrat Begam. While in Kasim's possession the property, or part of it, was sold in execution of a decree against Kasim and purchased by Sri Gopal and others.

On the 7th of August, 1902, Kasim's sisters sued to recover their shares of the property as heirs of Bisharat.

Held, by Knox, J. (Aikman, J. dissentiente), that inasmuch as the plaintiffs had never at any time been in possession of the property claimed by them, their suit would not lie.

Aikman, J. Contra.—The plaintiff's father Bisharat having held a possessory title—heritable and transferable—good as against all except the true owner, there was nothing to prevent his heirs bringing the present suit. 1906 A.W.N. 264=3 A.L.J. 775=29 A. 52.

8. Miscellaneous.

—Miscellaneous—Trespasser—Suit against.

A title by adverse possession though not yet perfected by the lapse of 12 years is heritable, transferable and divisible. But one trespasser cannot be allowed to add to his possession the possession of another previous trespasser whom he dispossessed. 14 N.L.R. 82=43 Ind. Cas. 943.

—Miscellaneous—Mortgage—Prior and puisne mortgagees.

Where prior mortgagee bought the mortgaged property under a decree on his mortgage where the puisne mortgagee was not the party and the puisne mortgagee afterwards purchased the same property under a decree in a suit to which prior mortgagee was not a party the prior mortgagee is entitled to possession subject to his being redeemed by the puisne mortgagee or his successor in title. 12 O.C. 133=2 Ind. Cas. 836.

POST OFFICE ACT (6 OF 1898), S. 3—Charge and conviction—Discovery of postal article outside Post Office—Finder giving it back to Postmaster—In course of transmission.

M, a servant of K, having discovered a number of letters lying in a knola opposite a post office, handed them over to his master. One of the letters was addressed to P and K took it to the addressee who stated that the letter had never been delivered to him. The matter was reported to the Post master F who took possession of the letters saying that he would take necessary action in the matter. No action being taken by F, the matter was reported to the Postmaster-General with the result that F was sent up for trial. The Magistrate framed two alternate charges against him, first under S. 52, Post Office Act and the other under S. 201, Penal Code. The Magistrate found F guilty only under S. 210. It was contended that the charge framed by the Magistrate was defective and prejudiced the accused, the alternate charge was illegal and contravened the provisions of S. 236, Cr.P. Code.

Held, that the first charge was not defective as, at postal articles in question were "in course of transmission by post" according to S. 3, Post Office Act, when they were made over to F by K and, therefore, the mere fact that the letters had been posted when F was not the Postmaster of the Post Office was immaterial. The framing of the charge in the alternative under S. 201 did not contravene S. 236, Cr.P. Code. A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 460=129 Ind. Cas. 760.

—S. 6—The word 'default' is used in S. 6, Post Office Act, in the sense of failure in duty, care, etc. as the cause of some untoward event.

Where an insured cover containing promissory notes was lost and in a suit against the Postmaster, the only fact proved against him was that in the list of insured articles sent to the sorter in the ordinary course of his duties, he did not mention the missing article and the District Judge found that the defendant was not guilty of default:

Held, the finding of the District Judge was one of fact. A.I.R. 1932 All. 139=1931 A.L.J. 961=136 Ind. Cas. 569.

—S. 6—Non-tracing addressee—Liability of the Post Office.

Where the article sent was never lost in the course of transmission, but all that happened was that by reason of the label having been torn it was not possible to deliver it to the addressee,

Held, that S. 6 or 34 did not exempt the Post Office from liability. 79 Ind. Cas. 334=46 All. 455=5 L.R.A. (Civ.) 384=A.I.R. 1924 All. 692.

—Ss. 19, 61 and 71—Sending cocaine by post—Noxious or dangerous substance—Excise Act, S. 60 (a).

Cocaine, not being an 'explosive' 'dangerous' 'filthy' 'noxious' or deleterious substance is not an article the sending of which is prohibited by S. 19 of the Act and a person who sends cocaine by post is not guilty under S. 61 of the Post Office Act, though a conviction under S. 60 (a) of Excise Act is proper. 37 All. 289=13 A.L.J. 356=16 Cr.L.J. 319=28 Ind. Cas. 655.

—S. 20—'Indecent'.

"Indecent" means immodest and offending against the recognized standard of decency and suggestive of or tending to obscenity. 31 P.L.R. 129=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 552=127 Ind. Cas. 367.

—S. 34—Value payable insured article—Article delivered by Post Office but money not collected—Breach of contract—Measure of damages—Claim cognizable by Court of Small Causes—Liability of Secretary of State.

Where a person sent an article through the Post Office as a value payable insured article after paying the necessary fees and the article is delivered to the addressee but the money was not recovered from him :

Held, (1) that the transaction amounted to a contract by which the Post Office became the agent of the sender for the collection of money ; (2) that if the Post Office failed to collect the money when the article was delivered there was a breach of contract for which the Post Office (viz., the Government) was liable in damages ; (3) that the effect of the proviso to S. 34 was that the Post Office did not guarantee the collection of the money but that the provision did not absolve the Post Office from the common law liability to pay damages for delivering a parcel without collecting money ; (4) that the measure of damages was the value of the article sent ; and (5) that the suit for recovery of such damages was not one of tort, was maintainable against the Secretary of State, and was cognizable by a Court of Small Causes. (1904) 15 M.L.J. 226=28 M. 213.

—Ss. 35, 64 and 74 (1)—Value payable post.

No order or willingness can be inferred from the silence of the addressee though he does not return the articles sent or reply to any cards sent to him. But if he pays for one of the articles sent and then continued to receive the further issues of the magazine, an order could be inferred. 33 Mad. 511=7 M.L.T. 69=20 M.L.J. 402=11 Cr.L.J. 215=5 Ind. Cas. 738.

—S. 43—Rules under, R. 100—Petitioner sending money from T to some institution at D—Petitioner then requesting Post Master at T to send telegram to D to stop payment—Amount paid to payee even after receiving telegram—Suit against Secretary of State for damages.

An omission to do a thing is a "failure" to do it and it is unnecessary that there should have been either an attempt or an intention to do it.

The petitioner sent through the Post Office, Tellicherry, a money-order to the address of the Director, Royal Institute of Technology, Delhi. Having sent off the money order, the petitioner, fearing that the Institute was not a bona fide one, wished to stop payment of the money-order and requested the Post Master, Tellicherry, to send an express telegram to the Delhi Post Office to stop payment of the money-order to the addressee and remitted money towards the expenses. The Post Master, Tellicherry, accordingly sent an urgent telegram to the Delhi Post Office and it was received at Delhi. In spite of this, however, the Delhi Post Office paid the money over to the payee. The petitioner used the Secretary of State of India in Council holding him responsible for all damages and costs which he had suffered. The respondent denied liability relying upon R. 276, Post and Telegraph Guide, which is a reproduction of R. 100 made by the Governor-General in Council under the Post Office Act (6 of 1898) and further contended that the payment was made through inadvertance :

Held, that there was a "failure" by the Delhi Post Office to stop payment of the money-order within the meaning of R. 100, made under the Post Office Act (6 of 1898) and R. 276, Post and Telegraph Guide, That being so, the Secretary of State was not liable. A.I.R. 1937 Mad. 797=1937 M.W.N. 294=175 Ind. Cas. 231.

—S. 44 (1)—Money remitted through Post Office—Ownership of—Attachment.

Money remitted by money order through the Post Office does not cease to be the property of the remitter until it is actually paid to the remitee. 12 Bur.L.T. 105=52 Ind. Cas. 925.

—Ss. 52 and 53—Offence under—No complaint as required by S. 72—Offence under S. 52 can be taken cognizance of.

The offence under S. 52 of the Post Office Act can be taken cognizance of without any complaint made by order of or authority from the Director General or Post-Master General according to S. 72. That the acts of the postman also constitute the minor offence under S. 53 of the Act is no bar to the trial of the offence under S. 52. A.I.R. 1941 Mad. 392=53 L.W. 70=1941 M.W.N. 57=I.L.R. (1941) Mad. 345=42 Cr. L.J. 773=(1941) 1 M.L.J. 44=195 Ind. Cas. 555.

—S. 52—Ingredients of.

It is a necessary ingredient of S. 52, Post Office Act, that a paper should have been extracted from the parcel and not merely examined. A.I.R. 1939 Mad. 283=1938 M.W.N. 962=40 Cr.L.J. 483=181 Ind. Cas. 364.

—S. 52—Breach of trust.

Where a sub-postmaster of 13 years' service taking possession of the V.P.P. cover addressed to him and also of the railway receipt, obtained delivery of the goods, but in order to put off payment manipulated the register maintained in the Post Office, sentence of one year's rigorous imprisonment and a fine of Rs. 100 was adequate punishment. 118 Ind. Cas. 498=29 M.L.W. 522=1929 M.W.N. 275=2 Mad. Cr.C. 90=52 Mad. 534=30 Cr.L.J. 929=A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 447=56 M.L.J. 551.

—S. 52—Misappropriation—Postmaster opening a V.P. article addressed to himself without paying for it and making false entries in the P.O. books.

A branch postmaster who was also a shop-keeper ordered a consignment of flour in order to meet the requirements of his shop and a value payable envelope containing the railway receipt for the flour arrived the branch post office. The postmaster opened it, extracted the railway receipt, went down the station where the goods had by that time arrived, and took delivery. After six days he paid the price of the goods into the post office. In the meantime he made in the books of the post office entries and repeated daily "on account of the absence of the addressee."

Held, that, although the offence was a technical one in the sense that no loss was incurred by the post office and the money involved was voluntarily returned, it amounted to criminal misappropriation within the meaning of S. 403, Penal Code, and the postmaster was guilty under S. 52, Post Office Act. 109 Ind. Cas. 236=8 Lah. 662=29 P.L.R. 151=29 Cr.L.J. 508=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 92.

—S. 52—Suspicion, if ground for decision.

Where the only evidence against the accused charged with misappropriating a Telegraphic money order is that the account contained entries of delivery on dates different from the actual dates of delivery it simply creates suspicion and is not sufficient to prove misappropriation. 16 Cr.L.J. 3=27 Ind. Cas. 307.

—S. 55—Sanction—Can be obtained after cognizance of the offence.

Although S. 72 requires sanction before a postal employee can be prosecuted under S. 55 still as long as sanction is obtained, it does not matter whether it is obtained before the Court takes cognizance of the offence or not. 118 Ind. —Ss. 61 and 72—Transmission of obscene article—Prosecution—Complaint—Criminal procedure Code, S 4, Cl. (h).

Prosecution under S. 61 although authorized by the Post Master General is illegal unless such prosecution takes place on a complaint as defined in S. 4, Cl. (h), of the Criminal Procedure Code. (1906) 10 C.W.N. 1029=4 C.L.J. 170.

—S. 64—Declaration.

Though an article which it is proposed to insure must be presented at the post office with the amount, for which the sender wishes it to be insured clearly written on the cover, that writing cannot be held to constitute the sender a person who is required by the Post Office Act or even by the rules framed under it, to make a declaration within the meaning of S. 64 in respect of the article. 125 Ind. Cas. 770=31 Cr. L.J. 934=9 Pat. 126=11 Pat. L.T. 224=1930 Cr. C. 1214=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 622.

—Ss. 64, 67, Cl. (2)—V.P. order—Declaration—"Order", meaning of—Conduct of parties—Duty of addressee of paper unordered—Statute—Construction—Bye-Laws.

According to the general canon of interpretation when a statute empowers the Government or any other authority to frame rules or bye-laws for the purpose of carrying out the objects of the statute, rules or bye-laws so framed must, if within the scope of such powers, be regarded as part of the enactment. Rule No. 68, Notification dated 5th August, 1908, Gazette of India, Part I, August 1908, p. 747, requiring the sender of a V.P. article to make a declaration is a valid one and if the sender makes a false declaration or a declaration which he does not himself believe to be true, he makes himself liable to the penalty prescribed by S. 64 Cl. (2) of S. 74 is obviously meant to meet cases for which no penalty is prescribed by any of the sections of the Act itself. An order cannot be said to have been received by one person from another to send an article by post unless the latter is shown to have communicated a request or a desire to the former to that effect. The communication of the request need not perhaps be made by means of words written or spoken and may be inferred from the previous conduct of the addressee. There is no obligation on the part of the receiver of a paper not ordered by him either to return it or to reply to the sender's letters; and the receipt of the paper, though perhaps indicative of a willingness to pay on the part of the receiver, cannot be construed as an order to send the article by V.P. for realization of the amount due within the meaning of the rule. (1910) 20 M.L.J. 402=5 Ind. Cas. 738=33 M. 511.

—S. 64—Want of sanction.

Where the accused was proved to have sent blank papers in an insured cover addressed to himself and claimed the value of the currency notes which he alleged had been enclosed in the cover and he was prosecuted for offences under S. 64 of the Post Office Act and Ss. 420 and 511, I.P.C. and convicted for the latter offences only.

Held, that it was doubtful if an offence under S. 64 of the Post Office Act had been committed, and that at any rate the prosecution under S. 64 was rendered unsustainable for want of sanction under S. 72.

Held also, that the conviction for the major offences under the Penal Code was perfectly valid. 125 Ind. Cas. 770=9 Pat. 126=11 Pat. L.T. 224=31 Cr. L.J. 934.

POWERS

—Joint power—Death of one—Survivor—When can execute.

If power is given to A and B persona designata to do an act if and when they think it desirable the occasion cannot arise nor can the power be exercised unless they are both living and in agreement as to the act. This cannot be the case after the death of one of them, and the consequence is that the survivor cannot do the act because he has not the warrant of the agreement of his late colleague, nor can he then do the act, seeing that the authority to do is only given to the two acting jointly. The case is different when the power is vested not in persona designata but in the occupants for the time being of a specified office such as executors or trustees. 37 Mad. 199=41 I.A. 51=(1914) M.W.N. 299=12 A.L.J. 315=18 C.W.N. 554=26 M.L.J. 411=15 M.L.T. 285=16 Bom. Powers are to be construed in accordance with the intention of the donor or grantor; that intention is to be gathered from the instrument itself, although a reference may sometimes be had to the circumstances under which it was given. # 1. Construction—Principles and rules of.

—Construction — Principles — Special powers followed by general words—Powers if and how far enlarged or limited.

One of the most important rules for the construction of a power-of-attorney is that regard must be had to the recitals which, as showing the scope and the object of the power, will control all general terms in the operative part of the instrument.

Another rule is that where the special powers are followed by general words, the general words are to be construed as limited to what is necessary for the proper exercise of the special powers and as enlarging those powers only when necessary for the carrying out of the purposes for which the authority is given. 51 Bom. L.R. 1004=A.I.R. 1950 Bom. 130.

—Construction—Rules.

Powers-of-Attorney must be strictly pursued, and are construed, as giving only such authority as they confer expressly or by necessary implication. The following are the most important rules of construction : (1) The operative part of the deed is controlled by the recitals. (2) Where authority is given to do particulars acts, followed by general words, the general words are restricted to what is necessary for the proper performance of the particular acts. (3) General words do not confer general powers, but are limited to the purpose for which the authority is given and are construed as enlarging the special powers only when necessary for that purpose. (4) The deed must be construed so as to include all medium powers necessary for its effective execution. 52 P.L.R. 84.

—Construction—Principles and rules of—Authority must be express or be necessarily implied.

The Power-of-Attorney must be strictly construed and it is necessary to show that on a fair construction of the whole instrument the authority in question is to be found within the four corners of the instrument either in express terms or by necessary implication. 109 Ind. Cas. 737=30 Bom. L.R. 470=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 225.

—Construction—Principles and rules of.

Where an act purporting to be done under a power of attorney is challenged as being in excess of the power, it is necessary to show that on a fair construction of the whole instrument the authority in question is to be found within the four corners of the instrument either in express terms or by necessary implication. 1893 A.C. 170. Foll. 43 Cal. 527=30 M.L.J. 232=20 C.W.N. 329=3 L.W. 210=19 M.L.T. 176=(1916) M.W.N. 150=14 A.L.J. 217=23 C.L.J. 348=18 Bom. L.R. 387=9 Bur. L.T. 1=8 L.B.R. 436=43 I.A. 48=32 Ind. Cas. 419 (P.C.) (Reversing 7 Bur. L.T. 126=23 Ind. Cas. 516).

—Construction—Rules of.

Power-of-Attorney should be strictly construed and general powers of borrowing should be restricted to matters ejusdem generis with those already stated 39 Mad. 918=38 Ind. Cas. 638.

—Construction—Principles and rules of.

In a power-of-attorney which should be strictly construed, the operative part being controlled by the recitals, general words following an authority to do particular acts should not be taken to confer general powers, but should be limited to the purpose of the authority or to those necessary for the proper performance of particular acts. 10 S.L.R. 72 =36 Ind. Cas. 968.

—Construction—Principles and rules of.

Powers of attorney are to be construed strictly. If an act is challenged as being in excess of the power it must be shown that the authority is to be found in the four corners of the power either expressly or by necessary implication.

Per Twomey, J.—A power to sign accommodation notes may well be inferred from a power to sign promissory notes jointly with others. 8 Bur L.T. 1=8 L.B.R. 168=26 Ind. Cas. 253.

2. Power to alienate.

—Power to alienate—Strict construction.

A pardanashin lady executed a power-of-attorney in favour of her husband with full powers to do such acts as were described in it.

The power set out various acts relating to the management of the property and to litigation, and matters relating to execution arising out of the litigation. The power, however, did not mention in explicit terms the authority to sell, mortgage and lease. The husband contracted to sell the property but the sale deed was not executed, whereupon the purchaser brought a suit for specific performance of the contract.

Held, that the husband had no authority to enter into the contract of sale. 11 P.L.T. 121=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 181=127 Ind. Cas. 457.

—Power to alienate—Joint Hindu family.

A power-of-attorney executed by two brothers in favour of the third provided among other things "in respect of any mauza or share of land owned and possessed by us, the executants, the said Mokhtar-Am shall grant simple or Zarpsheshgi-Thika or make mortgage with possession."

Held, that these words were quite sufficient to confer the power to execute mortgage for debts for which the joint family, consisting of the three brothers was liable. 101 Ind. Cas. 377=1927 M.W.N. 433=31 C.W.N. 890=39 M.L.T. 270=A.I.R. 1927 P.C. 111=53 M.L.J. 592 (P.C.).

—Construction—Power to alienate.

Power-of-attorneys must be strictly construed. Where am-mukhtearnama conferred the power on the agent to borrow any money for any purpose and do any other work as necessity arises,

Held, that as no express power to mortgage had been given, it was difficult to say that the terms of the am-mukhtearnama can be construed into a power for giving a mortgage. 7 Cal. 253; 10 Cal. 901 (P.C.), Foll 104 Ind. Cas. 833=54 Cal. 687=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 836.

—Construction—Power to alienate—"Thing" whether includes a mortgage.

A power-of-attorney provided for sale of "goods effects and things belonging to":

Held, that a mortgage is included in the word thing in the power-of-attorney, as the deed did not suggest that the thing was to be limited to a chose in possession. 13 C.W.N. 1190=3 Ind. Cas. 859.

3. Power to assign decree.

—Construction—Power to assign decree.

Where a power-of-attorney allowed an agent "to conduct and manage—the estate, property, moneys, affairs concerns of the Zamindar—and in all respects as fully and absolutely as the principal himself—and to do all such acts and deeds whatever as may be considered requisite for the above purpose as amply and effectually as the principal could do in his own person" the words are wide enough to give the agent power to assign a decree to another even less than the decree amount. 38 Mad. 832=15 M.L.T. 143=26 M.L.J. 185=23 Ind. Cas. 235.

—Construction—Power to assign decree.

A power-of-attorney must be construed strictly. Such a construction would not prevent the exercise of all powers necessary and incidental to the powers expressly conferred. A power-of-attorney conferring the right to execute a decree does not confer a right to assign the decree. Power expressly conferred in a power-of-attorney to execute the decree does not imply any power to transfer a decree for consideration. A power-of-attorney provided "to execute all decrees in the name of my father or in any other name on my behalf or otherwise to attach and realize all moneys due thereon."

Held, that the agent acting under the power could not assign the decree. 23 M.L.J. 595=12 M.L.T. 528=(1912) M.W.N. 1204=17 Ind. Cas. 139.

4. Power to compromise.

—Construction—Authority to compromise—If includes power to refer suit to arbitration.

A power-of-attorney authorised the agent "to compromise and to sign compromise petitions." It also contained a general clause in the following words:—"Whatever would be required to be done in the conduct of this suit would be done by the agent and the same would be binding on me as if I had done the same". The Vernacular expression used for the word "compromise" was ap-sattad-jod. It was contended that a power to refer the suit to arbitration was not included in the power to compromise and that the general clause was restricted to matters done in the conduct of the suit and that it did not include a power to remove the dispute from the jurisdiction of the Court and transfer it elsewhere. It was also contended that the Vernacular expression literally translated meant "to give and take between ourselves."

Held, that the general clause read in conjunction with the clause about "give and take" left no doubt that the intention was to confer the wide powers and several meanings which are embraced in the single English word "compromise" which includes a power to refer a dispute to arbitration and that therefore, the power of attorney in this case conferred the power to refer the suit to arbitration. I.L.R. (1946) Nag. 824=229 Ind. Cas. 402=1947 N.L.J. 1=A.I.R. 1947 Nag. 17 (F.B.).

—Power to compromise—Legal Practitioner.

For effecting a compromise on another's behalf neither a general power-of-attorney nor the ordinary powers of a pleader are sufficient express authority is absolutely necessary. 41 Mad. 233, Rel. on. 119 Ind. Cas. 430=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 746.

—Power to compromise.

Power-of-attorney for filing a compromise does not necessarily imply an authority for making a compromise on behalf of principal without his knowledge and consent. 111 Ind. Cas. 829=5 O.W.N. 677=A.I.R. 1928 Oudh 386.

—Power to compromise—Principal illiterate

The expression as to power to compromise in a power-of-attorney were ambiguous and the principal being illiterate had made only a thumb-mark. It was not proved to the satisfaction of the Court that at the time of making the mark the principal knew or understood that she was authorizing the agent to make compromises on her behalf without her knowledge or consent.

Held, that the power-of-attorney was not binding on her in that respect. 111 Ind. Cas. 829=5 O.W.N. 677=A.I.R. 1928 Oudh 386.

———Construction—Power to compromise suit.

A power-of-attorney authorising the agent to manage the business of the principal to institute suits and oppose all suits that might be brought by or against the principal in respect of the business does not confer on agent the power to compromise a suit. 23 C.L.J. 436=20 C.W.N. 943=34 Ind. Cas. 394.

———Construction—Agent—Power to compromise.

Where a power-of-attorney was executed on behalf of one of the plaintiffs authorising him specifically to engage a pleader to present applications to Court and to refer to arbitration.

Held, that the power did not confer an authority upon him to put in a compromise and that the power to compromise or confess judgment was not ejusdem generis with the powers set forth by the powers-of-attorney. 50 P.R. 1898, Foll. 20 P.W.R. 1912=28 P.L.R. 1912=13 Ind. Cas. 92.

5. Power to conduct suit.

———Power to conduct suit—Right of agent to act as guardian on behalf of principal.

A suit was instituted by the general attorney of a minor principal's guardian, without the guardian's knowledge and permission, both on his own behalf and for the minor's guardian, professedly as the guardian's authorized agent.

Held, that the minor not being fully represented, the judgment cannot be conclusive as against him. 128 Ind. Cas. 763=A.I.R. 1930 All. 875.

———Construction—Power to conduct suit—Authority to manage—Jagir—Power to defend suit, and make admissions.

A power-of-attorney should be strictly construed. A power of authority authorising a person to look after the management of a minor's jagir does not, in the absence of express terms, empower the agent to defend the owner's title to the jagir in a suit. Any admission made by such agent, in the course of a trial is not binding on the owner. 47 Ind. Cas. 528 (Nag.).

6. Power to execute or sign pronote.

———Construction—Power to execute or sign pronotes.

A lady is not liable on a pronote executed by her agent authorised to borrow on her behalf only for necessity where he did not purport to borrow on her behalf or for actual necessity. 4 O.L.J. 299=40 Ind. Cas. 452.

———Construction—Scope of authority—Mortgage—General power to—Power to sign a pronote.

A general power to sell, mortgage, or pledge property implies a power to borrow money on mortgages on the principal's account, and to create an equitable mortgage by deposit of title deeds, but not to sign promissory note executed. 9 Bur.L.T. 166=36 Ind. Cas. 19.

———Construction—Power to execute or sign pronote.

Power-of-attorney must be construed strictly and unless an express power is given to an agent to enter into contracts of guarantee on behalf of his principal or to execute negotiable instruments for his principal jointly with others the person alleging such power must show that the agent had the power to enter into the transaction. 7 Bur.L.T. 126=23 Ind. Cas. 516. [Reversed on Appeal 43 Cal. 527=32 Ind. Cas. 419 (P.C.)].

7. Power to prefer appeal.

———Power to prefer appeal—Legal Practitioner.

Where in a printed form of the power-of-attorney, the clause authorising an advocate to file an appeal has been struck off by the client, it does not mean that the said power has been taken away from him, if it otherwise existed. It only means that the power was not expressly given. 116 Ind. Cas. 184=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 68.

———Power to prefer appeal—Scope of.

The power to prefer an appeal to the High Court must be liberally interpreted and it must be held that it includes the power to prefer petition for revision. 107 Ind. Cas. 390=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 244.

———Power to prefer appeal.

Where a general power-of-attorney confers upon a person authority to do the acts enumerated below i.e., to take and use all lawful proceedings and means for recovering and receiving debts and advances and also to commence and prosecute and to defend at law all actions, suits, claims, demands and disputes.

Held, that the powers are wide and comprehensive enough to include the power to prefer an appeal. 63 Ind. Cas. 748=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 74.

8. Revocation.

———Revocation.

Where a power-of-attorney was given to the plaintiffs to recover all sums due to the grantor of the power under a contract with the defendants for doing certain work and under which the defendants are to pay the plaintiffs only after the production of the power which is to remain in force till the completion of the work under the contract,

Held, that the defendant's agent was not justified in making payments to the grantor of the power after production of it by the plff. to the defts., even though the grantor revoked the power afterwards while the work was being done. 105 P.L.R. 1917 = 86 P.W.R. 1917 = 40 Ind. Cas. 280.

—Revocation of—C.P.C. (1882), Ss. 2 and 39.

Appointment of attorney cannot be revoked by a letter to the attorney. 36 Cal. 609 = 13 C.W.N. 1172 = 2 Ind. Cas. 830.

9. Scope of authority under.

—Scope of authority under—Power to issue notice.

Proper execution of am-mukhtearnamas, giving authority to sue in ejectment, confers also power to issue notices but it is not necessary that the authority should be in writing. 120 Ind. Cas. 455 = 33 C.W.N. 559 = 49 C.L.J. 555 = 57 Cal. 10 = A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 651.

—Scope of authority under—Power to manage temple affairs.

In the case of temples, a trustee can hardly claim the right to borrow as a matter of course. His right to borrow will arise only in cases of financial necessity, and he will have to use his discretion whether even in such circumstances he should borrow or not. It cannot be assumed, in the absence of words to that effect, that by executing a power-of-attorney to a person to manage the temple affairs by collecting the debts and amounts due to the temple and meeting the necessary expenses, that the trustee authorized the manager to bind the temple by borrowing.

Powers-of-Attorney are to be construed strictly. 113 Ind. Cas. 554 = A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 1059.

—Scope of authority under—Power to transfer securities.

A power-of-attorney authorizing the attorney to transfer securities of any description authorizes him to endorse demand promissory notes though there is no express clause empowering the attorney to endorse demand promissory notes. 107 Ind. Cas. 213 = A.I.R. 1928 Sind 89.

—Scope of authority under.

An agent who is empowered to conduct a suit in any manner he may deem fit even to the extent of withdrawing it or entering into a compromise has power to bind his principal by an agreement to abide by a special oath entered into with the opposite party. 22 O.C. 181 = 1 U.P.L.R. (J.C.) 89 = 53 Ind. Cas. 453. 12—F.Y.D. 45.

—Scope of authority under—Power to execute deeds of sale if includes power to execute agreement for sale.

A power given to an attorney to execute deeds of sale does not authorise him to execute agreements to sell. 16 C.L.J. 119 = 13 Ind. Cas. 637.

—Scope of authority under—Power to carry on business, if includes power to enter into forward contracts.

By a power-of-attorney the defendant empowered his manager to contract, superintend and carry on the business of general merchants in Singapore. The manager entered into forward contracts with the plaintiff in respect of sugar. The defendant's firm was accustomed in Calcutta to enter into forward contracts in the sugar trade.

Held, that the manager had sufficient authority to enter into the contract sued upon. 10 Ind. Cas. 895 (Cal.).

10. Miscellaneous.

—Miscellaneous—Power under old law—C.P. Code, O. 3, R. 4.

Where a power-of-attorney is granted before passing of amendment but the appeal is filed after it, the power-of-attorney must be interpreted on the date of the presentation of the appeal in the light of the statutory provisions which were in force on such date. 116 Ind. Cas. 184 = A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 68.

—Miscellaneous—Repudiation of—Estoppel.

A general power does not necessarily imply an unlimited authority to borrow and the agent has only such powers as are necessary to carry out the special powers. Where a pardanishin lady deliberately makes herself jointly and severally liable for a debt incurred by her husband on the strength of a power given to him by her, she cannot afterwards repudiate the same. 12 C.L.J. 115 = 3 Ind. Cas. 330.

—Miscellaneous—Special—Genuineness—Registration.

Though registration of special Power-of-Attorney is not compulsory yet the court is not bound to presume its genuineness if registered. 43 Cal. 884 = 20 C.W.N. 287 = 23 C.L.J. 297 = 32 Ind. Cas. 395.

POWERS-OF-ATTORNEY ACT (7 OF 1882), S. 2. Scope of—If can override specific provision in R. 6 of the Income-tax Rules. See INCOME-TAX ACT, S. 26-A AND INCOME-TAX RULES R. 6, (1946) 1 M.L.J. 332 = I.L.R. (1947) Mad. 167 = A.I.R. 1946 Mad. 411.

—S. 3.—Scope of.

Section 3 does no more than indemnify the holder of a power-of-attorney for actions done by him in good faith if the determination of his power by the death of the person granting it was unknown to him at the time. A.I.R. 1934 Nag. 274 = 31 N.L.R. 57 = 153 Ind. Cas. 251.

—S. 5—Minor married woman—Power to appoint attorney.

By virtue of the provisions of S. 5 of the Powers-of-Attorney Act, 1882, a married woman, even though a minor, can validly appoint an attorney to do any act on her behalf and the presentation of an application by way of appeal to the Registrar by an attorney so appointed is not invalid. A.I.R. 1933 Mad. 407 = 37 L.W. 471 = 64 M.L.J. 449 = 1933 M.W.N. 636 = 142 Ind. Cas. 646.

1. Abandonment of plea.

See also C.P.CODE, O. 41, R. 1.

—Abandonment of plea—Presumption.

When the appellate judgment is silent on certain grounds of appeal it is to be presumed that that ground was abandoned. A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 107, Foll. 117 Ind. Cas. 905 (Lah.).

—Cross-objections not pressed at time of dismissal of appeal will be deemed to have been abandoned. 70 Ind. Cas. 79 = 25 O.C. 280 = A.I.R. 1923 Oudh. 108.

—Abandonment of plea—Point not argued.

Where an appeal which comes before an appellate Court is heard upon the merits, a point which goes to the root of the suit being not argued, must be taken to be abandoned. 40 Ind. Cas. 621 (All.).

—A party, abandoning his case, set up in the trial Court, cannot advance it in second appeal. 63 Ind. Cas. 490 = 3 U.P.L.R. (All.) 179.

—A party ought not to be allowed to be harassed by a superior Court on a point which was either never raised or deliberately abandoned in the Court below.

Hence an appellant who has abandoned on the ground in the lower Court cannot prefer an appeal on that ground. 64 Ind. Cas. 185 = 24 O.C. 181 = A.I.R. 1921 Oudh 41.

—Abandonment of plea in lower appellate Court.

Plea given up in lower appellate Court, cannot be advanced in second appeal. 88 P.W.R. 1911 = 11 Ind. Cas. 408.

—Abandonment of plea—Appellate Court—Point not appealed against.

Appellate court cannot interfere with lower court's decree on a matter against which no appeal has been preferred. 9 Ind. Cas. 121 (Cal.).

—Abandonment of plea—Point not pressed.

If the appellant's counsel does not press his claim in the lower appellate court, it cannot be urged in second appeal. 5 N.L.R. 47 = 2 Ind. Cas. 29.

—Irrelevant points—Whether can be re-opened.

A point relevant to liability in a suit, which has been taken or may have been taken and abandoned, cannot be re-opened, but this principle does not apply to points which are irrelevant before decree. 62 Ind. Cas. 273 = 3 U.P.L.R. (All.) 11.

—Abandonment of plea—Giving up grounds of relief.

A party to a suit may give up any of the grounds of relief before the case is decided. 2 O.L.J. 335 = 30 Ind. Cas. 207.

—Abandonment of plea—Proof—Statements in Judgments.

A statement in a judgment that a point is not seriously pressed in the first court must be taken proof of its having been abandoned. 50 Ind. Cas. 743 (Cal.).

—Abandonment of plea—Statements in Judgment—Misapprehension—Proof.

The trial Judge found on the plaintiff's evidence and certain pedigrees produced by him that he was the nearest reversionary heir of a deceased Hindu. The court of appeal reversed the judgment and dismissed the suit, finding that the plaintiff had practically made no attempt to support the finding of the court below and that plaintiff was not entitled to succeed.

Held, by the Privy Council that the decree of the First Court must be affirmed, the evidence being sufficient to sustain it, and there having been some misapprehension on the part of the Lower Appellate Court in thinking that no attempt was made to support it. 30 All. 510 = 35 I.A. 166 = 13 C.W.N. 1 = 8 C.L.J. 447 = 5 A.L.J. 701 = 1 Ind. Cas. 175 (P.C.).

2. Additional Evidence.

See also C.P.C., O. 41, R. 27.

—Additional evidence.

Although the Court may not be justified in ignoring a new defence set up by the defendant, yet if the defendant is allowed to shift his ground after the plaintiff has closed his case the latter is ex debito justitiae entitled to rebut the defendant's evidence on the point. 120 Ind. Cas. 277 = A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 507.

—Additional evidence—Ex parte decree—C. P. Code, O. 41, R. 27—Ex parte case—Formal evidence given.

Where plaintiff in an ex parte case gave formal evidence to prove his case, he might be allowed to give further evidence in appeal from such decree, if the appellate Court disagrees with the decree of the lower Court. 50 Ind. Cas. 363 (Cal.).

—Additional evidence—Appellate court—Evidence.

The appellate Court cannot admit evidence which becomes relevant because of the discovery of some documents which were previously out of the reach of the parties. 21 C.L.J. 596 = 30 Ind. Cas. 398.

—Additional evidence—Appeal.

Where the importance of a document is realised for the first time in appeal, opportunity for proving the document should be given to the party affected by it. 21 C.L.J. 574 = 22 Ind. Cas. 833.

—Additional evidence—Second appeal.

In second appeal, the party cannot urge that he should have been allowed to adduce evidence which was dispensed with in the first court. 13 Bom. L.R. 1021 = 12 Ind. Cas. 691.

—Additional evidence—Document not admitted in lower Courts—Admission in second appeal.

A court of second appeal ought not to admit a document which the lower courts refused to admit on the ground that the same was not forthcoming at the first hearing of the case. 11 Ind. Cas. 289 (Oudh).

—Additional evidence—Trial—Absence of defendant—Right of plaintiff to be allowed to adduce all his evidence.

When at the trial of a suit, the plaintiff tenders only enough evidence to establish his claim owing to the absence of the defendant, and obtains a decree which is reversed on appeal, on the ground that the plaintiff had not sufficiently proved his case, the Appellate Court, before dismissing plaintiff's suit, should give him an opportunity of putting on record the additional evidence which he had filed in Court but which he abstained from tendering owing to the defendant's absence. (1910) M.W.N. 612 = 8 M.L.T. 360 = 7 Ind. Cas. 494.

- (3) CRIMINAL TRIAL.

—Adjournment—Inherent power.

Every Court and every officer exercising quasi-judicial functions has an inherent power to grant an adjournment. 31 M.L.W. 587 = 1930 M.W.N. 373 = A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 618 = 59 M.L.J. 33.

—Refusal to postpone the hearing for an hour or two to give time for a party to appear can be hardly called proper. 108 Ind. Cas. 879 = 11 N.L.J. 78 = A.I.R. 1928 Nag. 165.

—Adjournment of a few hours.

Where on the date of hearing of a small cause case, the plaintiff was not ready with his evidence, but requested only two hours time to produce evidence.

Held, that the Court should grant the time as requested. 95 Ind. Cas. 679 (Lah.).

—Pending case.

No pending case should ever be postponed without a date being fixed. 93 Ind. Cas. 1056 = 7 L.R.A. (Cr.) 101 = 27 Cr.L.J. 560 = A.I.R. 1926 All. 421.

—Discretion.

It is in the discretion of the trial Court to allow a party to produce a witness for giving rebuttal evidence and to give adjournments for the purpose. 96 Ind. Cas. 1006 = A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 486.

—Medical certificate—Court should not distrust certificate and penalise party without summoning doctor. 74 Ind. Cas. 845 = 21 A.L.J. 500 = 4 L.R.A. (Civ.) 423 = A.I.R. 1923 All. 549.

—Party's default.

Where a case has been definitely fixed for hearing and witnesses have been called and expense has been incurred, if it should turn out that owing to some default on the part of one of the parties the Court has no power to hear the case, then apart from any express provision of law to that effect, the Court is not bound to adjourn the case and has discretion to dismiss it. 1921 P.H.C.C. 1 = 5 P.L.J. 390 = 57 Ind. Cas. 250 = 1 Pat. L.T. 666 = A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 76.

—Adjournment—Discretion of Court.

Where a case has been definitely fixed for hearing and witnesses have been called and expense incurred, and if, owing to the default of one of the parties, the court has no power to hear the case, the Court has a discretion to adjourn or dismiss it, but apart from an express provision of law, is not bound to grant an adjournment. 5 Pat. L.J. 390 = 57 Ind. Cas. 250.

—Adjournment and [procedure—Notice of hearing—Parties not getting summonses not served in time—Court, power of.

When parties do not get summonses served on their witnesses in time for them to appear on the hearing day, the Court should deal with the case on the materials at the time before it. 7 Bur. L.T. 310 = 26 Ind. Cas. 240.

—Adjournment—Refusal.

At the first hearing, defendant represented that his witnesses were absent and applied for the issue of warrants against them and also for adjournment. The Court adjourned the hearing but did not pass orders on the application for warrants. The defendants took no steps to secure the attendance of his witnesses at the adjourned hearing, when he again prayed for a further adjournment.

Held, that the adjournment was rightly refused. 15 Ind. Cas. 584 (Mad.).

—Adjournment—Consent of parties.

A court must always consider the convenience of parties and any contingency which may necessitate an adjournment. But it is not the business of the parties to decide when their suit shall be heard as the regulation of its procedure is entirely in the Court's discretion. 13 Bom. L.R. 161 = 10 Ind. Cas. 748.

—Refusal—Prejudice—Retrial.

Where on the day to which a small cause suit had been posted for trial both parties applied for time on the grounds that one of the material witnesses was unwell, that another had not brought the documents summoned, and that a third had not been served, and the Court refused the adjournment and tried the case on the merits.

Held, that it was a proper case for the grant of an adjournment and there should be a retrial. 65 Ind. Cas. 599 (Cal.).

—Notice of—Signatures of pleaders of both parties on order sheet.

The form of the order sheet especially requires that signatures of the parties or their pleaders should be taken on the order sheet in token of information of the order of adjournment having been communicated to them. The statement in the order sheet that the case was adjourned at the request of the pleaders does not necessarily imply that they actually came to know of the date fixed. 93 Ind. Cas. 257 = 4 Pat. 440 = 7 P.L.T. 456 = A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 807.

— Adjournment—Costs.

When a case is adjourned, the court should not direct immediate payment of the costs but should direct that the hearing on the adjourned date should be conditional on payment of costs before that date. 36 Cal. 566 = 13 C.W.N. 525 = 11 C.L.J. 150 = 1 Ind. Cas. 366.

4. Administration.

See also (1) ADMINISTRATION. (2) C.P. CODE, O. 20, R. 13.

—Administration—Accounts, if may be examined by Court.

The account of the administration need not be investigated by the court, there being no procedure or practice for doing so. 18 C.W.N. 320 = 24 Ind. Cas. 447.

—Administration suit by members of family.

In a non-administration suit by one member against another member of the family, the claim should be adjudicated upon on its own merits. 29 M.L.J. 704 = 18 M.L.T. 518 = 31 Ind. Cas. 322.

5. Admissions.

See also—

(1) C. P. CODE, O. 12.

(2) EVIDENCE ACT, Ss. 18, 19 ET SEQ.

—Admissions—Pleadings—Admissions in—If can be resiled from.

Where the plaintiff based his claim on an indent alleged to have been signed by the defendant and filed it along with the plaint and the defendant admitted in his written statement the correctness of the averments made in the plaint and where subsequently he resiled from this admission and contended that the admission in the written statement was not in respect of that indent but another indent suppressed by the plaintiff.

Held, that in view of the fact that the indent was filed along with the plaint and was on the record when the written statement was filed, the defendant ought not to have been allowed to resile from the admission and to deny that that indent was the document in respect of which the admission in the written statement had been made. 120 Ind. Cas. 277 = A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 507.

—But where in a general claim for a large sum of money due in respect of professional services a defence was put forward explaining why the defendant refused to accept liability for a sum in excess of a certain amount and that sum was paid into Court in satisfaction of the entire claim and the plaintiff accepted the sum in such satisfaction under Rule 377 of the Rules of Civil Procedure, Eastern Africa, but he never accepted it in any form which contained an admission that he had been negligent, or that he accepted the calculations by which the defendant had arrived at the amount.

Held, that so far as the plaintiff was concerned all to which he was bound to look was whether the money in Court was the sum which he was prepared to take in satisfaction of his claim, and he might have been influenced by many circumstances in making that decision.

Hence the acceptance of the amount under the words of the rule as satisfaction in full of the plaintiff's claim did not amount to an admission of the grounds of defence set up by the defendant. A.I.R. 1921 P.C. 231 (P.C.).

—Admissions—Suit on mortgage—Admission of portion of claim—Dismissal of suit, improper.

If in a suit on a mortgage, the mortgagor admits that a certain sum thought short of the amount claimed, is due to the plaintiff mortgagee, it is not proper to dismiss the suit altogether, on the ground that the mortgagee failed to produce the original mortgage deed. 30 Ind. Cas. 32 (Cal.).

—A Court is entitled to disregard an admission, if it finds its truth inconsistent with other reliable evidence. 98 Ind. Cas. 821 = A.I.R. 1927 All. 175.

—Admissions must be taken as a whole.

Where an admission by witness examined by opposite party is relied upon, the whole admission must be taken into consideration. 60 Ind. Cas. 482 (Pat.).

—Admission—Adoption—Issue not definitely raised.

The plaintiff claimed the suit properties as the son of his father. The defendant at an early stage of the case, without protest or objection by the plaintiffs, made the case that the plaintiff had been adopted into another family. Deeds under the hands of plaintiff and his natural father containing express statements to that effect were given in evidence by the defendant. Questions directed more or less pointedly to the matter were addressed to the plaintiff's witnesses. Evidence was given by and on behalf of plaintiffs to explain away the admissions and no suggestion was made on behalf of the plaintiffs that they were taken by surprise.

Held, that though it is to be regretted that a definite issue was not framed upon the point and the matter put beyond all controversy, yet in the circumstances of the case, there being no suggestion that the plaintiffs were not fully informed that the question of adoption would be raised, the finding could not on that account be disturbed. (1906) 4 A.L.J. 102 = 5 C.L.J. 115 =

9 Bom. L.R. 267 = 11 C.W.N. 321 = 17 M.L.J. 103 =
29 A. 184 = 34 I.A. 27 (P.C.).

—Admissions—Defendants—Co-defendants.

An admission by one defendant will not bind another.
22 Ind. Cas. 916 (Cal.).

6. Amendments.

- (a) Amendment of judgment and decree.
- (b) Amendment of pleadings.

- (a). Amendment of judgment and decree.

See also C.P.C., SS. 151, 152 AND 153.

—Amendment—Clerical error—Judgment—Review.

When during an appeal, an official receiver resigned, a successor was appointed and the High Court ordered the previous official receiver's name to be deleted, the High Court by mistake added his name in the judgment order, it was held that there was a mere clerical error and it ought to be corrected and there was no ground for review. Quaere: Whether the decision was vitiated by not bringing the succeeding official receiver on record. 5 L.W. 507 = 32 M.L.J. 520 = 40 Ind. Cas. 170.

—Amendment of decree—Delay—Effect.

On a mere question as to whether they should get such and such a sum of money or little more the Court should refuse to entertain application for amendment of decree after a considerable delay such as of 18 months unless there is a reason justifying delay. 50 C.L.J. 12 = 33 C.W.N. 958 = A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 676.

—Amendment—Decree—Appellate Court.

The lower court cannot add to the decree of the appellate Court a direction which has been omitted, though wrongly by the latter. 1 O.L.J. 193 = 24 Ind. Cas. 113.

- (b). Amendment of pleadings.

See also—

- (1) C.P.C., O. 6, R. 17.
- (2) PLEADINGS.

—Amendments—Appellate Court allowing defendant to raise the plea by allowing amendment—Plaintiff ought to have been allowed to meet the case.

A trial Judge after reserving judgment decided the case in the defendant's favour on an issue or a plea that had not, throughout the proceedings, been raised or tried. The Court of Appeal allowed the defendants to amend their plea so as to raise the defence discovered by the trial Judge.

Held, that an opportunity should have been afforded to the plaintiffs of dealing with the matters involved on the new basis which that amendment established. 122 Ind. Cas. 30 = 31 M.L.W. 12 = A.I.R. 1929 P.C. 306 (P.C.).

—Court—Power to amend plaint or to direct amendment of plaint.

The law does not authorise a Court to amend a plaint or to direct the amendment of the plaint. The Court can only allow the amendment of the plaint and, if the plaintiff chooses not to amend it, the Court has to decide whether the said suit as framed can proceed or not. 116 Ind. Cas. 890 = A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 820.

—Plea of limitation.

Where the Appellate Court ordered that the plaintiff be permitted to amend his plaint subject to the law of limitation, it is open to the lower Court to consider the question whether at the time when the amendment was allowed, a new suit on the cause of action would be barred by limitation or not. 110 Ind. Cas. 529 (Cal.).

—(Obiter).

A plaintiff cannot be allowed without amending his plaint to succeed in a case which directly negatives everything he has alleged in his plaint. 101 Ind. Cas. 346 = 33 M.L.T. 205 = A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 1116.

—Suit on allegation of tenancy falling—Plaintiff was not allowed to succeed on title.

The plaintiffs brought a suit on the footing that the defendants were their tenants. The defendants pleaded that they were not tenants under plaintiffs. The defendants proved their case. The third party whose title was set up by the defendants was not a party to the case. That party was in possession.

Held, that it was not open to the plaintiffs to shift their ground and claim to eject the defendants as trespassers and that the plaintiffs should not be allowed to amend or implead the said third party. 89 Ind. Cas. 103 = 6 L.R.A. (Civ.) 348 = A.I.R. 1925 All. 705.

—Where a plaintiff has framed his suit bona fide believing that consequential relief is not open to him and that he is entitled to a declaration, the Court would be justified in allowing him to amend the plaint even in appeal.

And the cases have been gone so far as to permit a plaintiff who is suspected of asking for a declaratory decree simply for the purpose of evading stamp duty, to amend his plaint at the appellate stage in the High Court upon its being shown that consequential relief was available and upon his offering to pay the necessary Court-fee. 76 Ind. Cas. 347 = 2 Pat. 919 = 5 Pat. L.T. 315 = A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 310.

—C. P. Code, O. 6, R. 17.

Suit for pre-emption based on custom cannot be decreed on the basis of contract not set up. 65 Ind. Cas. 242 = 20 A.L.J. 15 = A.I.R. 1922 All. 5.

—Powers of Court.

The Courts do not sit as disciplinary bodies to punish parties for inept procedure when their right is clear, and no misunderstanding, surprise or prejudice can occur to the other side. Where the real meaning of the application is perfectly well understood by both parties, and by the Court, the application ought to be amended in suitable form. 63 Ind. Cas. 184 = 19 A.L.J. 549 = A.I.R. 1921 All. 321.

—Amendment—Reliefs.

Where in a suit upon a mortgage a decree for sale is asked for, the court can even at a late stage allow the plaintiff to amend the plaint by adding an alternative prayer for a simple money decree. 3 O.L.J. 164 = 34 Ind. Cas. 397.

—Amendment—Procedure—Pleadings.

Different procedure and sanctions, apply to (1) amending pleadings, (2) furnishing particulars and (3) presenting a pleading subsequent to written statement, though it may be that disobedience to an order to do any of them may have the same result (i.e.) adverse decision in the suit. (1915) M.W.N. 122 = 17 M.L.T. 48 = 26 Ind. Cas. 927.

—Amendment—Trial Court.

The order of amendment by the lower appellate Court is bad when the High Court directed an amendment to be made by the first Court. 19 C.W.N. 200 = 22 Ind. Cas. 778.

—Amendment—C.P.C., S. 27.

The plaintiff is entitled to an amendment under S. 27, C.P.C., if it is found that he along with others is interested in the suit debt, as partners. 17 B. 413, Foll. (1902) 27 B. 157 = 4 Bom. L.R. 968.

—Amendment—Party—Addition of.

Prayer for amendment is not to be refused merely because another party will have to be joined and against him the suit would be time-barred. 7 N.L.R. 43 = 10 Ind. Cas. 737.

—Written statement—Amendment of written statement—When allowed.

It is a general rule of pleading that the defendant must raise all such grounds of defence as if not raised would be likely to take the opposite party by surprise or would raise issues of facts not arising out of the previous pleadings as for instance, release payment, performance, etc. So too all facts which show a subsequent discharge of a once subsisting cause of action must be specially pleaded, such, for instance, as that the defendant had paid the debt or that it had been released. The rule as to amendment of pleadings rests upon a deduction from the broad principle of estoppel. The test is whether owing to the party who wishes to amend having kept back either intentionally or through carelessness an attack or defence which he afterwards wishes to use and thereby placed his opponent in such a position that if the use of that defence or attack turns the scale against him, he could not be restored to the same position as he would have been in had it been disclosed to him at the proper time, then it cannot be allowed. (1909) 11 Bom. L.R. 926 = 4 Ind. Cas. 652.

—Plaint amendment to be allowed, when objection is taken for the first time in second appeal. See 11 C. W.N. 889 = 6 C.L.J. 410 = 34 C. 999.

—Amendment, when to be deprecated. 25 B. 337 = 27 I.A. 216 = 10 M.L.J. 368 (P.C.).

—Appeal—Competency of Judge.

Provincial Insolvency Act, Ss. 43 and 48—Judge ordering prosecution under, is not disabled from hearing appeal from conviction. 71 Ind. Cas. 363 = 21 A.L.J. 90 = 24 Cr.L.J. 144 = 4 L.R.A. Cr. 12 = A.I.R. 1923 All. 193.

—Appeal—Maintainability—Parties—Non-contesting defendant left out in appeal by contesting defendants.

Where in an appeal by contesting defendants non-appearing defendants against whom proceedings were ex parte were left out, the subsequent appeal by the plaintiff is not incompetent by reason of the fact that such defendants were not impleaded as parties respondents. 34 C.W.N. 642 = A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 748.

—An appeal against a decision is not incompetent merely because the appellant has subsequently filed a suit in pursuance of the adverse finding as a precaution. 11 P.L.T. 483 = A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 521.

—Second appeal.

Where the lower Appellate Court entertains an appeal which does not lie to that Court a second appeal lies against the decision of that Court. 122 Ind. Cas. 589 = 11 P.L.T. 156 = A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 280.

—Two appeals from same decree.

There is no legal bar to the institution of two suits on the same cause of action, although under S. 10, C. P. Code, one of them will have to be stayed; and the same rule applies to two appeals from the same decree. 114 Ind. Cas. 62 = 10 Lah. 447 = A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 1.

—Appeal—Competency.

Same Judge presiding over Small Cause Court and Township Court and by mistake trying suit of Small Cause nature as Township Court—No appeal lies from his decree. 121 Ind. Cas. 803 = 7 Rang. 809 = A.I.R. 1939 Rang. 139.

—It is not necessary or desirable that the law should regard an appeal as incompetent unless there is sound reason in principle. 119 Ind. Cas. 814 = 33 C.W.N. 359 = 56 Cal. 622 = A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 519.

—C.P. Code, O. 31, R. 6—Order for security and order for attachment combined—Combined order is not always proper—if combined order leads to doubt as to competency of appeal, benefit of doubt goes to appellant. 101 Ind. Cas. 9 = 31 C.W.N. 432 = A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 354.

—Doubt as to right of appeal—Appellant should get benefit. 97 Ind. Cas. 1038 = 30 C.W.N. 850 = 44 C.L.J. 414 = A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 1113.

—Right to—Parties requesting the Court to have a local inspection and agreeing to abide by its decision after such inspection—Right of appeal is not lost—Appeal.

Held, that the Court did not act as arbitrator nor the agreement before the Court in that case amounted to an agreement that the Court should act extra cursum curiae. The right of appeal of the parties is not therefore barred. 72 Ind. Cas. 149 = 47 Mad. 39 = 17 M.L.W. 303 = 1923 M.W.N. 154 = A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 444 = 44 M.L.J. 258.

—Appeal—Right to—Defendant—Dismissal of suit.

A defendant against whom the suit has been dismissed cannot appeal against the decree. 22 Ind. Cas. 916 (Cal.).

—Appeal—Right to Suit where appeal is open.

Where under the rules an appeal is provided against the order of a Municipal committee refusing refund of customs duty, a suit for compensation for such refusal is premature before the institution of the appeal even though the procedure by way of appeal may be onerous. 118 P.L.R. 1911 = 38 P.R. 1911 = 97 P.W.R. 1911 = 9 Ind. Cas. 1000.

—Appeal—Rights of—Party can contend for all legal consequences arising out of facts.

In an appeal so long as the facts given in the pleadings are not altered, it is open to a party to contend for the legal consequences arising out of those facts. 6 O.W.N. 1109 = A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 54.

—Appeal—Right subject to grant of leave—Procedure.

Wherever any matter is appealable only after leave to appeal has been obtained, the memorandum of appeal should be accompanied by a petition for such leave. 33 Ind. Cas. 773 (All.).

—Appeal—Connected suits.

C.P. Code, O. 2, R. 3—Connected suits decided by only one judgment—Only one defendant appealing—Other decrees are unaffected unless appellate decree affects them specifically. 1923 P.C. 118 (P.C.), Foll. 91 Ind. Cas. 121 = 2 O.W.N. 894 = A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 732.

—Two suits having common issue tried together—One appealable to District Judge while the other is to the High Court—Joint trial of both appeals demanded—Procedure.

The right way is to appeal to the District Judge from the decision appealable to that Court and an application for transfer should then be made to the High Court, but if the appellant has failed to adopt this course, it would be a manifest abuse of the process of Court to put the appellant to the unnecessary trouble of going first to the District Court when there is no intention of permitting that Court to take any action beyond registering the appeal. 101 P.R. 1912, Foll. 99 Ind. Cas. 682 = 27 P.L.R. 775.

(c). Conversion into revision.

See also C.P.C., S. 115.

—Appeal—Conversion into revision.

In a case where substantial justice has been done, the High Court will not convert a second appeal which is found to be incompetent into a revision petition. 120 Ind. Cas. 174 (Lah.).

—The High Court has power to convert a Memorandum of Appeal into a revision petition in a suitable case. 63 Ind. Cas. 730 = 14 M.L.W. 85 = 1921 M.W.N. 487 = A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 612 = 41 M.L.J. 54.

—Appeal—Conversion into revisions—Technical objection—Revision.

The High Court can mete out substantial justice treat an appeal presented to it as a revision petition where technical objections as to adequacy of court-fees, etc., prevents its entertaining the appeal. 19 A. 142: 22 A. 380, Foll. (1917) M.W.N. 306 = 40 Ind. Cas. 846.

—Appeal—Conversion into revision.

Where an appeal filed in a matter wherein there is no such appeal, the appeal could be treated as revision under the special circumstances of the case. 3 O.L.J. 201 = 34 Ind. Cas. 689.

—Appeal—Conversion into revision.

An appeal was treated as a revision. 5 S.L.R. 61 = 10 Ind. Cas. 211.

—Appellate Court—Case filed as second appeal—Judge admitting it as revision—At the hearing it can be treated again as appeal even by the admitting judge. 98 Ind. Cas. 993 = 49 All. 178 = 24 A.L.J. 1036 = A.I.R. 1927 All. 120.

(d). Court Fee.

—Appeal—Court-fee.

Suit for accounts—Preliminary and final decrees—Single appeal from both is permissible but Court-fee merely in respect of final decree is not enough. 70 Ind. Cas. 392 = 14 M.L.W. 389 = 1921 M.W.N. 558 = A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 406.

—Appeal—Delay—Court-fee—Delay in payment.

According to the practice of the Madras High Court an order of the Admission Judge excusing delay in payment of deficient court-fee is subject to objections by the other side before the Court hearing the appeal and its decision therein. 1 L.W. 440 = 23 Ind. Cas. 946.

(e). Delay in filing.

—Appeal—Delay in filing—Implied extension of time by hearing appeal on the merits.

Held, that by allowing the appeal to be argued on the merits and deciding it, the High Court had in effect extended the time for filing the appeal. 43 Mad. 550 = 38 M.L.J. 444 = 22 Bom.L.R. 568 = 18 A.L.J. 489 = 28 M.L.T. 28 = 12 L.W. 92 = (1920) M.W.N. 419 = 2 U.P.L.R. (P.C.) 118 = 56 Ind. Cas. 163 (P.C.).

—Appeal—Delay in presentation—Procedure—Endorsement on memorandum of appeal.

The question of delay in presentation of an appeal is to be determined at the stage of admission and not to be postponed till the final hearing. If an appeal is presented out of time the court should endorse on it the date of presentation and direct notice to the Respondents. 43 Bom. 376 = (1919) M.W.N. 254 = 23 C.W.N. 753 = 21 Bom.L.R. 1148 = 46 I.A. 15 = 52 Ind. Cas. 897 (P.C.).

—Appeal—Delay in filing—Sufficient cause—Question of, to be determined before admission.

Where there is delay in filing an appeal the question of excusing it for sufficient cause ought to be determined at the stage of admission of the appeal after notice to respondent. The practice of admitting the appeal subject to objections at the hearing condemned. 41 Mad. 412 = 45 I.A. 25 = 34 M.L.J. 63 = 4 Pat. L.W. 54 = 16 A.L.J. 57 = 7 L.W. 156 = 23 M.L.T. 101 = 27 C.L.J. 253 = 2 P.L.R. 1918 = 22 C.W.N. 481 = 21 Bom L.R. 541 = 11 Bur. L.T. 121 = (1918) M.W.N. 906 = 43 Ind. Cas. 493 (P.C.).

—Appeal—Forum—Change in law—Effect of.

An appeal should lie to the Court to which an appeal lay at the time the suit was filed in spite of subsequent change in the law applicable to the case, whether the Act provides for an appeal or not. 118 Ind. Cas. 380 = 1929 A.L.J. 864 = 10 L.R.A. Rev. 600 = A.I.R. 1929 All. 756.

—The course of appeal is determined not by what the Court should have done but what the Court did or purported to do. 108 Ind. Cas. 400 = 29 P.L.R. 270 = A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 376.

—Suits—Valuation—Accounts, suit for—Jurisdiction—Appellate forum.

In a suit for accounts where the plaintiff has valued his claim at a sum not exceeding Rs. 5,000 the appeal against the preliminary decree passed in favour of the plaintiff lies to the Divisional Court and not to the Chief Court. When in a case appeal lies to the Chief Court but is filed in and heard by the Divisional Court and a further appeal is filed in the Chief Court, the further appeal may be converted into a first appeal if this course does not prejudice any of the parties. 87 P.L.R. 1909 = 4 Ind. Cas. 929.

(g). New plea.

—Modification regarding matters left undecided—Legality.

Where in a scheme suit the trial Court framed a scheme and at the same time permitted the parties to apply subsequently for further directions.

Held, that the Appellate Court cannot modify the scheme in respect of matters not decided by the trial Court. 12 Lah. L.J. 199. = 31 P.L.R. 1018 = A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 1056.

—New plea—Decision on facts found not bad.

Where the decision of the lower Court proceeds upon a ground of law arising out of facts as were either admitted or fully proved from the evidence on the record it cannot be objected on the ground of new plea having been entertained. 135 Ind. Cas. 840 = 7 O.W.N. 652 = A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 508.

—Appellant cannot be allowed to raise a point in argument long after limitation for appeal has expired, where such a point was not raised in the grounds of appeal. 67 Ind. Cas. 44 = 3 L.L.J. 165 = A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 228.

—Appeal—Necessaries of—Formal order—Production.

Elementary practice both on the Original Side and in the English High Court is that an appeal lies not from what a Judge says but from what he orders and that what he orders is to be found in the sealed or signed formal order which is entered in the records of the Court. Apart from urgency or some special ground no appeal should be determined without the production of the formal order under appeal. 77 Ind. Cas. 83 = 24 Bom. L.R. 1111 = 47 Bom. 349 = A.I.R. 1923 Bom. 177.

—Appeal—Form of—Oudh Court—Persons jointly tried and convicted—Appeal on one petition and one copy of judgment, if valid.

In Oudh, it is not practice to permit persons convicted together and not in jail to prefer an appeal on one petition of appeal and one copy of judgment. 4 O.L.J. 82 = 18 Cr.L.J. 512 = 39 Ind. Cas. 480.

—Appeal—Reversing judgment—Decree reversed on some point only without expressing opinion on other points.

Where the Privy Council reverses a decree on one point only without expressing an opinion on other points, their judgment cannot be taken to have decided inferentially any other of those points in favour of the appellants merely because the appeal was liable to be rejected if the other points had not been decided in appellant's favour. 32 P.W.R. 1911 = 9 Ind. Cas. 966.

—Appeal—Reversal of order—Effect of.

The order of the High Court setting aside the order allowing an objection of limitation taken by the judgment-debtor before the executing Court in a transferred decree, puts the parties in the same position, in which they were before the papers were returned by the executing court to the original trying Court; and so after the order the executing Court can proceed with the execution application, as if no order of Appellate Court allowing the objection was passed and no certificate required under S. 41 of the C.P. Code was sent. 58 Ind. Cas. 987 (Pat.).

(j). Right of Respondent.

—Appeal—Evidence.

Where a party has raised a matter in his grounds of appeal in the lower Court, he can support the judgment of that Court in second appeal by referring to documents which that Court disregarded. 116 Ind. Cas. 315 = A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 964.

—Appeal—Right of respondent to support decree.

When all the facts are before the appellate Court, the respondent can support the lower Court's judgment even on ground not taken in the Court below. 17 O.C. 108 = 24 Ind. Cas. 542.

—Appeal—Respondent's case.

A respondent can without filing cross-objections support the lower Court's judgment on all points which may have been found against him by the Lower Court on failure to do so, the appellate court will simply accept the findings of the lower court on those points. 24 Ind. Cas. 69 (Cal.).

—Appeal—Ex parte—First hearing of an appeal—Respondent not appearing—Right to appear at subsequent stages.

It is doubtful, whether a respondent who fails to appear at the first hearing can appear at subsequent stages as a matter of right. 24 Ind. Cas. 1007 (Mad.).

—Appeal—Acceptance of inadmissible evidence—If ground for interference.

Section 167, Evidence Act, provides that acceptance of inadmissible evidence is no ground for setting aside judgment or granting new trial, if there is new evidence upon which finding could be arrived at. It cannot be said that because inadmissible evidence has been admitted, the judgment is not in accordance with law. A.I.R. 1934 Pat. 55 = 150 Ind. Cas. 841.

—Appeal—Minor.

It would be simplifying procedure if an appeal were allowed to be preferred within the time allowed by law by another next friend, coupled with an application for the removal of the guardian ad litem on any of the grounds mentioned in O. 32, R. 1, and if such an application is ultimately granted, the appeal may be treated as having properly filed. 124 Ind. Cas. 474 = 1930 A.L.J. 771 = A.I.R. 1930 All. 456.

—Appeal—Pleader's fees—Appeals under S.47, C.P. Code.

That appeals from orders under S. 47 appear in the same register as appeals in regular suits is no reason for regarding them as such for the purposes of calculating pleader's fees. 118 Ind. Cas. 816 = 6 O.W.N. 391 = A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 287.

—Appeal—Review—Decree amended on review—Need for filing fresh appeal.

It is possible for a party to make an application for review and at the same time before that is decided to file an appeal. The right course where parties adopt simultaneous remedies or endeavour to do so if the review measures are successful to any extent whatever is that a new decree should be drawn up and the party choosing to file an appeal should file it against the decree as it appears in its final shape.

Per Suhrawardy, J.—In a proper case the Court may grant time to a party to file an appeal from the final decree in the place of the appeal from the original decree. 34 C.W.N. 1002 = A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 323.

—Refractory conduct—Party's deposition wrongly discarded—Party is justified in refusing to produce further evidence and obtaining a dismissal of application and appealing against the dismissal. 91 Ind. Cas. 675 = A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 979.

—Order setting aside ex parte decree cannot be challenged in appeal from the decree in the suit. 24 All. 464; 25 All. 280; 3 A.L.J. 30; 14 A.L.J. 610, Foll.; 79 Ind. Cas. 69 = 5 L.R.A. (Civ.) 345 = A.I.R. 1924 All. 929.

—Appeal—Execution proceedings—Interlocutory order.

An appeal need not be preferred against every order in an execution proceedings. The aggrieved party may challenge in appeal from the final order, the propriety of interlocutory orders passed in the course of proceedings. 36 Cal. 422 = 9 C.L.J. 251 = 2 Ind. Cas. 338.

—Appeal—Technical defect—Mere omission to frame an issue.

If there is no issue framed on a question but the parties have adduced evidence and discussed it before the Court, and the Court decides it as if there was an issue about it, the decree need not be set aside in appeal on the ground merely that no such issue was framed. 96 Ind. Cas. 827 = 28 Bom. L.R. 743 = A.I.R. 1926 Bom. 384.

—Appeal—Grounds.

The Appellate Court did not in its judgment express a finding on one of the grounds of appeal which was as follows:—“7. That the lower Court should have held that the deed dated the 10th September, 1894, was executed for legal necessity.”

The deed of the 10th September, 1894, was a mortgage of the village Pakauri granted by the widow while she was in possession of a Hindu widow's interest in the estate. On that mortgage a decree for sale was made and at the sale the two-thirds share in the village claimed by the appellant was purchased by some of the defendants to this suit. The trial Court had found in this suit that the mortgage was not made for necessity.

The Appellate Court said in its judgment: “They the defendants denied the adoption and they denied the widow's power to adopt. They also plead that even if the adoption was proved, it could not affect the interest acquired by the purchasers before the adoption: on this last pleading no issue was framed and nothing has been said in argument in appeal. It must therefore be taken to have been dropped.”

Held, the question as to whether the mortgage was or was not granted for necessity was involved in the question as to whether the purchasers at the sale under the decree had acquired title by their purchase. Under the circumstances the lower Appellate Court was justified in holding as it did, that the only question which remained for it to decide in the appeal was the question as to the validity of the adoption. 73 Ind. Cas. 244 = 18 M.L.W. 88 = 26 O.C. 228 = 50 I.A. 179 = 1923 M.W.N. 620 = 38 C.L.J. 299 = 33 M.L.T. 289 = 10 O.L.J. 379 = 23 C.W.N. 790 = A.I.R. 1923 P.C. 90 = 45 M.L.J. 215 (P.C.).

—Appeal—Letters patent—Whole case open.

In an Appeal under Letters Patent, the whole case is open. 32 Mad. 95 = 4 M.L.T. 110 = 18 M.L.J. 497 = 1 Ind. Cas. 977.

—Appeals (criminal) against acquittal by Sessions court on preliminary point—High Court could go into facts and need not remand.

Where there was an appeal against an order of acquittal by a Sessions Court on a preliminary point, the High Court could go into the facts and come to a finding, and need not remand. 1901 A.W.N. 10.

8. Appellate Court.

(a). Absence of finding.

—Appellate Court—Absence of finding.

Point not mentioned in judgment was held to have been not pressed. 113 Ind. Cas. 465 = 56 Cal. 813 = 51 I.A. 74 = 33 C.W.N. 289 = 49 C.L.J. 112 = A.I.R. 1929 P.C. 50 (P.C.).

—Inference of not pressed.

Where the lower Court failed to give any finding on the pleas of adverse possession and of limitation directly raised by the defendant, the Appellate Court did not draw a conclusion that the points which had not been determined by the lower Court were not pressed before it. 117 Ind. Cas. 663 = 29 P.L.R. 607 = A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 81.

—Plea—Judgment not referring to—Abandonment will be presumed. 68 Ind. Cas. 740 = A.I.R. 1923 Lah 124.

—Appellate Court—Duty of—Criticism of lower Courts' decisions should be temperate and grounds of criticism should be stated.

It is wrong for an appellate Court to say of the judgment of the trial Court that from beginning to end it was full of misstatements and special pleading without specifying any of the alleged misstatements. It is no doubt the right and the duty of an appellate Judge to criticise fearlessly where necessity arises by pointing out judicial shortcomings in a lower Court but respect for the judicial office and common fairness require both that the criticism should be expressed temperately and that the grounds for the criticism should be stated. 123 Ind. Cas. 557 = 34 C.W.N. 593 = A.I.R. 1930 P.C. 170 = 58 M.L.J. 629 (P.C.).

—“Local inspection.”

An Appellate Court is not bound to make any local inspection. 122 Ind. Cas. 685 = 1930 A.L.J. 452 = A.I.R. 1930 All. 127.

—A final Court of fact must always ascertain on evidence as to whether a case made out before it is one which can be sustained on the evidence and not depend merely on the admissions and statements of the counsels. A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 559 = 126 Ind. Cas. 715.

—Party alleging gross mismanagement of case in trial Court and calling upon appellate Court to take judicial notice of facts—Court is not bound to do so. 119 Ind. Cas. 881 = A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 559.

—C.P. Code, O. 34, R. 4—Appellate Court confirming lower Court's preliminary decree is not bound to fix period of six months for repayment. 118 Ind. Cas. 670 = 1929 A.L.J. 976 = A.I.R. 1929 All. 677.

—The chief functions of an appellate court is to redress the error of the court from whose decision it has jurisdiction to entertain an appeal. 72 Ind. Cas. 394 = 9 O.L.J. 543 = A.I.R. 1923 Oudh. 18.

—Appellate Court is bound to give decision only on those pleas which are urged and argued and not on every plea. 66 Ind. Cas. 935 = 3 L.L.J. 26 = A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 229.

—Appellate Court—Duties of.

The functions of an Appellate Court are not the same in England and America as in India and consequently great care has to be exercised before the decisions based on practice and procedure of a highly technical character are followed in considering questions arising under the C.P. Code. 30 M.L.J. 379 = 19 M. L. T. 268 = (1916) 1 M.W.N. 223 = 33 Ind. Cas. 9.

—Appellate Court—Duty of.

In an appeal the Appellate Court should not reverse the decree unless it is clearly shown to be erroneous. 12 Bom. L.R. 801 = 7 Ind. Cas. 986.

—Appellate Court—Duty of—Decree dismissing claim—When to be set aside.

A decree dismissing a suit should not be set aside, unless the court of appeal can decree the plaintiff's claim, in whole or in part or direct the Lower Court to take some other action. 5 L.B.R. 11 = 2 Ind. Cas. 357.

(c). Evidence.

(i) Commission.

(ii) Documents.

(iii) Findings of fact.

(i). Commission.

—Appellate Court—Evidence on commission—Trial Court dependent on printed records alone—Weight to its appreciation.

In an action for damages for breach of contract brought by the respondents, shipowners, against the appellant a shipper, the latter admitted the contract and the non-performance of it, and pleaded that the contract had before breach been duly rescinded by mutual consent. All evidence upon the vital issue of rescission had before the hearing been taken on commission, and the Trial Judge had, therefore, not had the advantage of seeing the witness in the box. The Trial Judge held that the appellant had made good his plea of rescission and dismissed the suit with costs. On appeal, the Appellate Bench of the High Court, however, held that the appellant had failed to establish his case of rescission, and decreed the suit.

On further appeal to the Privy Council, held, that the judgment of the Appellate Court expressed on the evidence was the only conclusion judicially permissible. 32 M.L.W. 223 = A.I.R. 1930 P.C. 309 = 123 Ind. Cas. 705 = 59 M.L.J. 1. (P.C.).

—Bulk of evidence recorded on commission.

No doubt a Court of appeal should not lightly interfere with a finding of fact by the trial Court. But when the bulk of the evidence is recorded on commission, that preponderating weight should not be attached to the findings of fact by the trial Court. 112 Ind. Cas. 722 = 23 S.L.R. 97 = A.I.R. 1928 Sind 179.

(ii). Documents.

—Appellate Court—Evidence—Documents.

Courts should refrain from sending for the records in an informal manner for the purpose of looking into documents which had never been legally tendered in evidence. A.I.R. 1930 Lan 750 = 126 Ind. Cas. 437.

—Document admitted in trial Court without formal proof—Appellate Court cannot reject on the ground of its not having been proved. 98 Ind. Cas. 301 = A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 60 = 51 M.L.J. 637.

—Appellate Court—Construction of document.

Where two inferences can be drawn in the construction of a document, the one chosen by the lower Court should be accepted. 46 Ind. Cas. 794 and 21 Bom. 91, Foll. 97 Ind. Cas. 293 = 27 P.L.R. 693 = A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 672.

(iii). Findings of fact—Interference.

—Examination of witness—Judge taking witnesses out of hands of counsel and examining and cross-examining them—Propriety and effect of—Observations of trial judge as to demeanour of witness—Value of in appeal.

It is improper for a trying Judge to take the witnesses out of the hands of counsel and examine and cross-examine them himself. Such a practice is undesirable and ought to be deprecated. Where the Judge does so, any significance that might attach to the observations of the trial Judge as to the demeanour of the witnesses is entirely lost, and the appellate Court in such a case will be entitled and indeed bound to attach no importance to the trial Court's remarks about the demeanour of the witness and to decide the case for itself on the record as it stands. 51 Bom. L.R. 523 = A.I.R. 1949 Bom. 346 = I.L.R. (1950) Bom. 110.

—Appellate Court—Interference with findings of fact.

Generally speaking it is undesirable for an Appellate Court to interfere with the findings of fact of the trial Judge who sees and hears the witnesses and has opportunity of noting their demeanour, especially in cases where the issue is simple and depends on the credit which attaches to one or other of conflicting witnesses. Therefore, the view of the trial Judge should not be put aside on a mere contention or probabilities by the Appellate Court and in order to succeed the appellant must prove that the judgment appealed from is wrong and if all he can show is nicely balanced calculations which lead to equal possibilities of the judgment on either the one side or the other being right, he cannot succeed. A.I.R. 1915 P.C. 1 and A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 39, Foll. 6 O.W.N. 1046 = A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 108.

—Appellate Court—Interference with finding.

Trial Court—Opportunity to note demeanour of witnesses—Conclusion as to evidence being reliable—Interference by appellate Court. 7 O.W.N. 135.

—Appeal—Trial Court influenced by witness' demeanour—First appellate Court can come to a different conclusion. 99 Ind. Cas. 769 = A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 158.

—Finding of fact based on demeanour of witnesses should not be lightly set aside on appeal, but where finding is based on supposed discrepancies, Court of first appeal can give its own findings. 103 Ind. Cas. 163 = 5 Bur.L.J. 249 = A.I.R. 1927 Rang. 200.

—Disbelief in witness owing to his demeanour is generally not upset by Appellate Court. 94 Ind. Cas. 916 = 4 Rang. 513 = 1926 M.W.N. 489 = 3 O.W.N. 735 = A.I.R. 1926 P.C. 29 (P.C.).

—Circumstances entitling Appellate Court to differ from trial Court.

Where the Judge, who has seen a witness, and has heard his evidence, comes to the conclusion that the witness is credible, that is to say, a witness who to the best of his recollection intends to tell the truth, it requires circumstances of exceptional character to justify a Court of Appeal in coming to a different conclusion. It is not a question of the weight of evidence, but of the attitude, the trustworthiness of the witness, and of the effect of his whole demeanour in the witness box. 77 Ind. Cas. 63 = 29 C.W.N. 610 = 1 Rang. 451 = 2 Bur. L.J. 260 = 33 M.L.T. 361 = 1923 M.W.N. 711 = A.I.R. 1923 P.C. 156 = 46 M.L.J. 334 (P.C.).

—Witnesses' credibility—From demeanour trial Court alone can judge—If found upon arguments on proved facts then Appellate Court is equally competent, as the trial Court is, to judge. 70 Ind. Cas. 949 = 27 C.W.N. 414 = 17 M.L.W. 1 = 31 M.L.T. 307 = A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 315 (P.C.).

—Generally speaking it is undesirable to interfere with the findings of fact of the trial judge who sees and hears the witnesses and has an opportunity of noting their demeanour, especially in cases where the issue is simple and depends on the credit which attached to one or other of conflicting witnesses. 8 O.L.J. 4 = A.I.R. 1921 Oudh 42 = 61 Ind. Cas. 135.

—Appellate Court—Appreciation of evidence.

The Appellate Court should be guided in believing a witness by the impressions made on the judge who saw the witness' manner and demeanour, but other circumstances showing the contrary, if existing in the case, should be taken into account. 14 A.L.J. 1066 = 36 Ind. Cas. 427.

—Findings of fact of trial Court—Value to be attached—Question of pedigree.

The findings of the trial Court in pedigree cases, in so far as they are based on an appraisalment of the oral evidence are entitled to great weight, though the weight to be attached to them would not be so great as it would be if the trial Judge has based his decision on the worth of any witness on the demeanour of that witness while giving evidence. 22 Luck. 249 = 231 Ind. Cas. 203 = 1947 O.A. (C.C.) 83 = 1947 A.W.R. (C.C.) 83 = 1947 O.W.N. 197 = A.I.R. 1947 Oudh 164.

—Finding of fact—Lower Court not basing decision regarding credibility of witnesses on personal observation but merely giving argumentative reasons for view taken by it as to effect of evidence—Appellate Court can examine evidence again. A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 293 = 126 Ind. Cas. 369.

—The pronouncement of the trial Court with respect to the credibility of a witness ought not to be lightly set aside by the Court of appeal but it is within the rights of the Appellate Court to believe the evidence of a witness who is disbelieved by the trial Court, not on account of his demeanour in the witness box but because it thought that he was gained over by the other party on account of certain inconsistency or discrepancy in the evidence. A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 328 = 126 Ind. Cas. 897.

—An appellate Court ought not to set aside the decision of a trial Court based upon oral evidence without giving some substantial reason for differing from the findings of the trial Court before whom the witnesses had actually given evidence. 123 Ind. Cas. 390 = A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 568.

—Finding of fact—Oral evidence conflicting—No documentary evidence to balance either way—No sufficient balance of improbability to displace trial Judge's finding—Finding should not be disturbed. 112 Ind. Cas. 375 = 29 M.L.W. 155 = A.I.R. 1929 P.C. 15 (P.C.).

—Conflict between testimony of parties—No sufficient ground to reverse trial Court's judgment—Finding of reversal was disturbed. 111 Ind. Cas. 169 = 28 M.L.W. 737 = A.I.R. 1928 P.C. 277 (P.C.).

—Conflict in—Weight must be given to the impression of trying Judge. 90 Ind. Cas. 624 = A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 116.

—Findings of fact—Case depending on credibility of witnesses—Finding should not be disturbed unless clearly erroneous. 112 Ind. Cas. 375 = 29 M.L.W. 115 = A.I.R. 1929 P.C. 15 (P.C.).

—Where the trial Judge applies his mind fairly and intelligently to the examination of evidence the value of the Judge's opinion is very great. 121 Ind. Cas. 91 = 6 O.W.N. 725 = A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 469.

—No doubt the appellate Court is bound to have great weight to the fact that the trial Judge saw the witnesses, still it is not bound to accept the conclusion if it does not agree with it. 112 Ind. Cas. 20 (Oudh).

—It is the duty of the Court of appeal to consider the matter before it both as regards law and fact de novo, but where there is a decision upon facts depending upon the credibility of witnesses, the appeal Court ought not to interfere with the decision arrived at unless it is satisfied that the decision which was reached in the lower Court was wrong. 103 Ind. Cas. 700 = A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 830.

—It has been the practice of Sind J.C's Court following the practice of the Bombay High Court to accept the finding of fact of learned Additional Judicial Commissioner trying an original suit. 17 Bom. L.R. 455 : 39 B. 386, (P.C.), Foll.

Where the conclusion of the trial Judge turns on the construction of documents as well as on the appreciation of oral evidence, but the documents or the accounts of a Hindu family of Sind and the trial Judge is himself a Sindhi and a Hindu and is perfectly acquainted with the systems by which the joint Hindu families and separate Hindu families keep their accounts, the appellate Judge, if a member of another community and of another faith, would be reluctant in the extreme to vary the trial Judge's finding on facts concerning the incidents of a Hindu family. 97 Ind. Cas. 505 = 20 S.L.R. 295 = A.I.R. 1926 Sind 216.

—Appellate Court must discuss evidence independently and give its own finding. 97 Ind. Cas. 853 = 1 Luck. 489 = 3 O.W.N. 645 = 13 O.L.J. 696 = A.I.R. 1926 Oudh 578.

—Conjectural grounds.

Per Simpson, A.J.C.—It would not be right for an appellate Court to set aside the decision of the Court of trial on conjectural grounds of what might have happened in the face of the sworn testimony of what actually did happen.

Wazir Hasan, A.J.C.—Questions of fact may be decided by the trial Court on two different lines altogether. One line may be the drawing of inferences from proved and admitted facts and a finding of fact on the other line may be founded upon credibility of witnesses alone. In the former case the Court of appeal is in as good a situation as the trial Court. The latter case may give rise to two positions: (1) Where the credibility of witnesses is based on their demeanour in the witness-box and impression which that demeanour creates on the mind of the Judge who sees and hears the witnesses. In such a case the finding of fact arrived at by the trial Court should not be lightly disregarded. On the other hand considerable weight should be attached to it, but the finding is not binding. The second position arises where the judgment of the trial Court is not founded on the demeanour of the witnesses and the impressions derived therefrom. In such a case the Court of appeal is free to come to its own conclusions as to the credibility of a particular witness. It is an unjust ridicule to characterize probabilities and presumptions of facts as conjectures. If probabilities and natural presumptions were ruled out of order the jurisdiction of Courts would be reduced to a wooden constitution. 93 Ind. Cas. 1025 = 2 O.W.N. 931 = 27 Cr.L.J. 529 = A.I.R. 1926 Oudh 120.

—The decision in A.I.R. 1923 P.C. 156—General application of.

The remarks of Privy Council in A.I.R. 1923 P.C. 156 on the duties of the Appellate Court on questions of fact should be read with reference to the special aspects of that particular case in which a witness had been examined at very great length and had been severely cross-examined by an able advocate and his credibility had been especially commented on, discussed and accepted by the Judge who had tried the case and challenged by the Appellate Court. It should not be treated as having a too general application. 89 Ind. Cas. 361 = 3 Rang. 177 = A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 308.

—The principle that Appellate Court should not reject trial Court's conclusions of facts except in exceptional cases, applies specially where the trial Judge is a judicial officer of great experience. 84 Ind. Cas. 415 = 3 Bur. L.J. 200 = A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 117.

—Working rule is not to lightly interfere—But rule not to be pressed too far.

In all cases where there is an appeal on questions of fact, it is a good working rule that the appellate tribunal will not lightly interfere with the findings of the fact of the Court below. This rule applies most strongly where there has been a conflict of oral testimony and the Judge had the advantage of seeing the witnesses and of observing their demeanour. But it is a rule which should not be pressed too far for there are many cases where there has been a conflict of evidence in the Court below in which the Court of appeal is bound to give effect to its own view of it if it differs from that of the Judge, e.g., probabilities may be strongly against the view of the Judge or there may be documents consistent with the evidence of appellant and inconsistent with that of respondent, etc. The demeanour of witnesses is not invariably a safe guide to the truth of their evidence. 70 Ind. Cas. 736 = 1922 M.W.N. 434 = 31 M.L.T. 40 = A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 103 = 43 M.L.J. 199.

—Trial Judge's opinion as to veracity of witnesses—Weight of.

The verdict of a Judge trying the case should not be lightly disregarded by the Appellate Court where the issue is simple and straightforward and the only question is, which set of witnesses is to be believed. But where the determination of the question of genuineness of anything depends not merely upon the assertion of witnesses but upon surrounding facts and circumstances whose existence is either admitted or indisputably proved, the judgment of the trying Judge may be vitiated by his failure to test the veracity of the witnesses by reference thereto. Two conflicting viewpoints have thus to be reconciled, namely, on the one hand, the undoubted duty of the Court of Appeal to review the recorded evidence and to draw its own inferences and conclusions and on the other hand, the unquestionable weight which must be attached to the opinion of the Judge of the Primary Court, who had the advantage of seeing the witnesses and noticing their look and manner. 66 Ind. Cas. 782 = 49 Cal. 132 = 34 C.L.J. 384 = 25 C.W.N. 779 = A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 260.

—An appellate Court ought not to differ from the trial Court on questions of fact unless there are strong and weighty reasons for doing so. The appellate Court has, however, certain responsibilities, as an appellate Court and it is bound to examine the evidence with a view to see whether the trial Court in giving its judgment did not misdirect itself. 67 Ind. Cas. 57 = A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 111.

—Appellate Court should be convinced that Trial Court's decision is wrong before upsetting it—Due allowance should be made to Trial Courts having seen and heard the witnesses. 66 Ind. Cas. 745 = 34 C.L.J. 178 = 25 C.W.N. 519 = A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 543.

—Appellate Court—Findings of fact—Appreciation of evidence.

Per Richardson:—A Court of Appeal should in general be slow to differ from the trial Court on a question of fact depending on the credibility and veracity of witnesses. But there are cases where the trial Judge had approached the evidence from a wrong stand-point or has applied to that evidence wrong standards of probability or improbability. If a trial Judge says that a servant speaking for his master ought never to be believed, the appeal Court is not obliged to accept his estimate of the servant's evidence. In such a case the question is not merely a question of the credibility of the particular witness but the witness has not been given a fair chance. They are verdicts or findings which are contrary to the weight of evidence. 24 C.W.N. 800 = 58 Ind. Cas. 879.

—Appellate Court—Finding of fact.

Appellate Court may arrive at a finding as to intention if omitted by the trial Judge provided the trial was without jury. 47 Cal. 254 = 31 C.L.J. 209 = 24 C.W.N. 425 = 21 Cr.L.J. 522 = 56 Ind. Cas. 778.

—Appellate Court—Evidence—Appreciation of.

Where the appellate Court disagrees with the finding of the trial Court, it should come to an independent finding of its own upon the evidence on record. 56 Ind. Cas. 248 (Cal.).

—Appellate Court—Findings of fact—Interference.

A court of appeal should be slow to differ from the primary court on a question of estimate of oral testimony. But this rule does not apply to a case where some of the important witnesses never appeared before the Judge but were examined on commission and others examined by the appellate Court itself. 30 C.L.J. 475 = 24 C.W.N. 662 = 55 Ind. Cas. 689.

—Appellate Court—Question of fact—Decision of trial Judge, not to be lightly set aside.

Where the issue involves a simple question of fact to be decided chiefly, if not solely on oral evidence, a court of appeal should be slow to set aside the finding of the trial judge who had the witnesses before him. 30 C.L.J. 433 = 54 Ind. Cas. 736.

—Appellate Court—Findings of fact—Appreciation of evidence.

Per Kanhaiyalal, A. J. C.—The object of an appeal is to obtain a pronouncement from the Appellate Court both on law and facts, and the discretion of the Appellate Court is unrestricted. In many instances a trial Judge is in a better position to appraise the value of the oral evidence before him and where the issue is simple and straightforward, the findings of facts arrived at by him are entitled to weight. But where the evidence in a particular case, consists of the statements of the persons whose evidence is tainted, and there are circumstances showing that the signature and the handwriting of the alleged testator on the will are not genuine, the Appellate Court would look into the evidence as a whole and come to such conclusion as the materials placed before it and the circumstances proved might justify. 6 O.L.J. 178 = 51 Ind. Cas. 419.

—Appellate Court—Findings of fact by trial Judge.

Per Seshagiri Iyer.—The question which an appellate Court has to put before itself on a question of fact is not what its decision would have been, had it been the trial Court, but whether there are sufficient grounds for not accepting the conclusion of the trial Court. (1919) M.W.N. 52 = 9 L.W. 385 = 25 M.L.T. 204 = 49 Ind. Cas. 929.

—Appellate Court—Findings of fact—Reversal of.

A court of appeal should not readily disturb the findings of fact arrived at by the trial Judge even if it might be inclined to take a different view from reading the evidence but if the Appellate Court is satisfied beyond all reasonable doubt on considering the evidence that the findings were erroneous then it ought to interfere. 3 Pat. L.J. 663 = 7 Pat. L.W. 1 = (1919) P.H.C.C. 162 = 48 Ind. Cas. 625.

—Appellate Court—Question of fact—Weight due to the trial court's decision.

Where a case has been decided on oral evidence weight should be given by the Appellate Court to the opinion of the trial Judge who saw and heard the witnesses. The Court of Appeal should not allow an appeal unless it is satisfied that the Court below is wrong, the burden of proof being upon the appellant to show grounds for reversal. 28 C.L.J. 306 = 48 Ind. Cas. 561.

—Appeal—Finding of fact—Not attacked.

The Court should not question a fact not disputed by the parties themselves. 3 O.L.J. 367 = 35 Ind. Cas. 713.

—Appellate Court—Finding of fact—Collision cases—Decision of trial Judge—Weight to be attached to.

In collision cases, where questions of fact alone arise, a Court of Appeal should be most slow to interfere with the decision of a trial Judge who sees the witnesses and has the opportunity of forming his estimate of them by their demeanour. In exceptional cases and for special reasons such a Court should reverse the judgment of the trial judge on questions of fact. 20 C.W.N. 1022 = (1916) 1 M.W.N. 446 = 31 M.L.J. 159 = 4 L.W. 176 = 35 Ind. Cas. 193 (P.C.).

—Evidence—Appreciation of—Appellate Court.

When the appellate Court reverses a finding of fact it ought to apply its mind to the consideration of the whole evidence in the case. 31 M.L.J. 311 = (1916) 2 M.W.N. 133 = 20 M.L.T. 228 = 35 Ind. Cas. 421.

—Appellate Court—Questions of fact—Opinion of trial Judge—When to be differed.

The opinion of a trial judge on a question of fact proved after seeing the witnesses and hearing their evidences ought not be differed from by the Court of appeal except upon very clear grounds. 20 C.W.N. 304 = 23 C.L.J. 314 = 34 Ind. Cas. 707.

—Appellate Court—Duties of—Weighing of evidence.

The appellate Court must weigh conflicting evidence and draw its own inferences and conclusions, though it should always bear in mind that it has neither seen nor heard the witnesses, should make due allowance in this respect. If the decision of a question depends to a large extent upon the verbal evidence of witnesses examined before the trial Court which had the advantage of seeing and hearing the witnesses, the Appellate Court ought not to interfere with such a decision unless it is clear that Court has come to a wrong decision. Per Woodroffe, J.—If after arguments an appellate Court has a conviction that the judgment under appeal is erroneous, it should not be affirmed and this is not the less so because the judgment raised a question of fact. 43 Cal. 833 = 23 C.L.J. 190 = 34 Ind. Cas. 807.

—Appellate Court—Finding of fact on oral evidence by trial Judge—Weight due to.

Upon a question of fact, great weight ought to be attached to the opinion of the trial judge who had the advantage of seeing and hearing the witnesses and who might presumably be acquainted with the manners and customs of the people among whom the transactions in question is alleged to have occurred. 43 Cal. 707 = 43 I.A. 73 = 20 C.W.N. 802 = 14 A.L.J. 621 = (1916) 1 M.W.N. 406 = 31 M.L.J. 1 = 18 Bom. L.R. 490 = 3 L.W. 556 = 24 C.L.J. 116 = 20 M.L.T. 267 = 23 Ind. Cas. 583 (P.C.).

—Appellate Court—Appreciation of evidence—Trial Judge—Opinion of—Will.

On a question as to the truth of a verbal authority to adopt given by the deceased the view of the judge who tried the case and saw the witnesses is entitled to great weight. (1916) 1 M.W.N. 377 = 4 L.W. 587 = 20 C.W.N. 650 = 33 Ind. Cas. 852 (P.C.).

—Appellate Court—Findings of fact—Reversal of—Reasons should be shown.

Judges on appeal although they might have come to a different conclusion had they been judges in the first instance should be shown strong reason to reverse findings of a judge of first instance who has seen and heard the witnesses examined before him. 20 C.W.N. 760 = 1 Pat. L.J. 48 = 3 Pat. L.W. 405 = 33 Ind. Cas. 711.

—Appellate Court—Oral evidence—Weight due to opinion of trial Judge.

It is no doubt true that on appeal the whole case including the facts are within the jurisdiction of the Appeal Court. But where the issue is simple and straightforward and the only question is which set of witnesses is to be believed, the finding of fact of the trying judge who has seen and heard the witnesses and has had an opportunity of noting their demeanour, should not be lightly disregarded. Nor should his pronouncement with respect to their credibility be put aside on a mere calculation of probabilities by the Appellate Court. 39 Bom. 386 = 42 I.A. 110 = 19 C.W.N. 617 = 17 M.L.T. 408 = 28 M.L.J. 593 = 21 C.L.J. 528 = 17 Bom. L.R. 455 = 2 L.V. 521 = (1915) M.W.N. 788 = 29 Ind. Cas. 229 (P.C.).

—Appellate Court—Findings of fact—Interference.

Where the case is one not so much of estimate of credibility of witnesses who have been believed by the trial Court as of the effect of their statements, on the assumption that they have spoken the truth the appellate Court will refuse to adopt the conclusion of the trial Court if good grounds are shown. 20 C.L.J. 501 = 19 C.W.N. 826 = 27 Ind. Cas. 276.

—Appellate Court—Appreciation of evidence—Evidence conflicting.

In the case of conflicting evidence the Appellate Court in order to arrive at a proper appreciation of the same, must attach a great regard for the opinion formed by of the trial Judge in whose presence the evidence was given. 22 Ind. Cas. 512 (Cal.).

—Appellate Court—Finding of fact.

The appellate Court should be very careful in disturbing the finding of the lower Court based on facts when the Court, who heard and was them disbelieves them. 10 M.L.T. 304 = (1911) 2 M.W.N. 330 = 12 Ind. Cas. 393.

—Evidence—Appreciation of—Appeal.

Where the questions at issue entirely depend on a proper appreciation of the evidence of the witnesses in the case, the appellate tribunal is not to disturb the conclusion of the first court unless the Judge of the Court has, in dealing with the evidence of witnesses before him, adopted an erroneous procedure and has decided against the clear weight of evidence. 11 M.L.T. 38 = (1911) 2 M.W.N. 495 = 12 Ind. Cas. 751.

—Appellate Court—Function and duty of.

Per Abdur Rahim, J.—The appellate tribunal ought not to refuse to apply in judging of the truth of the evidence given by hill people, the general tests of probability which are based on universal experience of human conduct. The application of such tests may have to be modified to some extent but we cannot altogether exclude those tests in dealing with the evidence of his tribes. Per Ayling, J.—In the case of witnesses of a primitive type, the advantage of hearing them depose is unusually great and the remarks of the first Court as to the impression left on its mind by their demeanour seem to deserve considerable weight. Per Coutts Trotter, J.—The knowledge of locality and people of the trial Judge is relevant on the point as to what weight should be attached to his opinion. 7 Cr.L.R. 147 (Mad.).

—Appellate Court—Finding of trial Judge.

Where there is a finding of the trial judge as to due and proper execution of will, based on evidence the Appellate Court should not upset it without cogent reasons. 32 Mad. 400 = 10 C.L.J. 276 = 11 Bom. L.R. 1206 = 6 M.I.T. 304 = 19 M.L.J. 640 = 36 I.A. 185 = 3 Ind. Cas. 799 (P.C.).

— If a particular finding of the trial Court is accepted by the appellant in his grounds of appeal, the Appellate Court cannot go behind such a finding and the fact that appellant's pleader acted carelessly in drafting the grounds is not material. 59 Ind. Cas. 689 = 44 P.L.R. 1921 = A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 182.

8 (d). Onus.

— Appellate Court—Onus—Unsuccessful party seeking to reverse decision has heavy burden to discharge.

The trial Court on giving a considered judgment ten days after the last hearing in Court found that the story of the adoption was untrue, that the alleged will was fictitious and dismissed the suit. He founded his decision partly on the demeanour of the plaintiff's witnesses, partly on inconsistencies in their testimony and partly on the improbabilities of their story as tested by subsequent conduct. He believed the witnesses for the defendants. The Appellate Court reversed the finding of fact but its judgment did not show that the then appellant-plaintiff had discharged the heavy burden of showing that the decision was wrong. In these circumstances Privy Council restored the trial Court's finding. 123 Ind. Cas. 557 = 34 C.W.N. 593 = A.I.R. 1930 P.C. 170 = 58 M.L.J. 629 (P.C.).

— Appeal—Onus—Appellant must show good reasons to disturb trial Court's judgment.

When the plaintiff's witnesses and the defendant's witnesses have sworn to diametrically opposite stories and in which the probabilities are evenly balanced, the appellants must show to the Appellate Court good reasons for disturbing a careful and considered finding of an intelligent Judge. 105 Ind. Cas. 479 = 1 L.C. 508 = A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 485.

— Duty of appellant.

It is the duty of the appellant to satisfy the Court of appeal that the decision of the trial Court is erroneous. 84 Ind. Cas. 732 = 40 C.L.J. 303 = A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 224.

— Appellant will fail if he can show only that nicely balanced calculations make the possibility of judgment of the lower Court being either right or wrong. 83 Ind. Cas. 563 = 11 O.L.J. 87 = A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 326.

— Onus is on appellants to show that lower Court's judgment is wrong. 63 Ind. Cas. 898 = 25 C.W.N. 866 = 17 N.L.R. 72 = A.I.R. 1921 P.C. 55 (P.C.).

— Appellate Court—Questions of fact—Procedure.

On appeal the appellate Court is not bound to accept the decision on facts of the Lower Court. The appellant should however satisfy the Appellate Court that the judgment of the lower Court is erroneous. 20 C.W.N. 66 = 32 Ind. Cas. 53.

— Appellate Court—Question of fact—Will—Genuineness.

On questions of fact the onus is on the appellant who invites the appellate judges, who have not heard or seen witnesses, to overrule the decision of judges who, after a prolonged and elaborate enquiry have arrived at the conclusion that they could not believe the evidence called in support of a Will. 13 C.W.N. 782 = 5 M.L.T. 384 = 3 Ind. Cas. 997 (P.C.).

8 (e). Powers of.

See C.P.C., SS.107 AND 108, O. 41, R. 33.

— Appellate Court—Powers of.

Appellate Court can go into matter clearly in issue but for which no distinct issue is framed. A.I.R. 1930 All. 525.

— Part of case not set out in plaint but coming within issue framed, from documents and materials on record—Court of first appeal can allow it to be agitated before it. 11 Pat. L.T. 637 = 124 Ind. Cas. 385 = A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 7.

— Ground not taken in memo. should not be gone into.

Where an objection is not taken in the written statement and the matter is not discussed in trial Court and is not mentioned in grounds of appeal the Appellate Court should not go into the question at all. 120 Ind. Cas. 455 = 49 C.L.J. 555 = 33 C.W.N. 559 = 57 Cal. 10 = A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 651.

— Issue not properly decided by the trial Court—Appellate Court may reverse the judgment but cannot send the issue for retrial. 114 Ind. Cas. 409 = 32 C.W.N. 867 = 49 C.L.J. 1 = 56 Cal. 6 = A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 546.

— Appellate Court—Powers of.

Appeal against order rejecting application for setting aside ex parte decree—Appellate Court can decide the case finally treating it as appeal against ex-parte decree itself. 97 Ind. Cas. 313 = 45 C.L.J. 117 = A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 1232.

8 (f). Remand.

— Appellate Court—Remand.

It is not desirable to direct a remand in a case which has been tried on various issues not preliminary ones and has already involved parties on great labour, time and expense with regard to adducing evidence. If in such a case the Appellate Court finds that the suit is bad for multifariousness the Judge should put the plaintiffs upon their election or strike out a particular party from the array of defendants and proceed with the trial of the appeal upon all questions of law and fact which are raised before him. 123 Ind. Cas. 324 = 1930 A.L.J. 99 = A.I.R. 1930 All. 180.

— In the above absence of proof of some fact within Evidence Act, S. 32, what the appellate Court has to do is to find whether or not there was any real contention that the writer was still alive and if so, grant a remand. 104 Ind. Cas. 733 = 46 C.L.J. 253 = A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 855.

— Finding not based on pleadings and inconsistent with them—Retrial.

Where the lower Court up held the plea of estopped on grounds which were not only not pleaded in the written statement, but which were inconsistent with what was stated therein and with regard to which no issue had been framed :

Held, that there was no proper trial of the suit in the lower Court and it should be remanded for retrial. 106 Ind. Cas. 474 = 28 P.L.R. 303 = A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 802.

—Appeal—Remand.

Burden of proof shifted in appeal—Remand should be ordered. 99 Ind. Cas. 4 = A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 148.

—Findings—Finding of lower Court—Unsatisfactory—Proper way is to send the case back—Judgment in favour of opposite party should not be passed. 96 Ind. Cas. 551 (Pat.).

8 (g). Miscellaneous.

—Appellate Court—Finally of order.

When the appellate Court makes an order, the subordinate Court is bound to carry it out whether it is right or wrong, and it has no jurisdiction to question the propriety of such an order which can only be corrected by way of appeal from order of the appellate Court or by review, if that is allowed by law. 110 Ind. Cas. 529.

—Appellate Court—Contempt.

Contempt of Court case which should have been tried by a Magistrate though tried by the Court itself is not in valid. 94 I.L.J. Cas. 532 = 53 Cal. 401 = 43 C.L.J. 41 = A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 701.

—Appellate Court—Expunging remarks—Only way of interference.

Where the judgment of the lower Court contained a passage which on appeal was found to be unnecessary for the purpose of the case.

Held, that the only way in which High Court could interfere with it would be to order that particular sentence to be expunged from the judgment. 78 Ind. Cas. 844 = A.I.R. 1924 All. 724.

9. Arguments.

—Argument.

Court has no power to cut short counsel's argument unless they are irrelevant and involve repetition—Legal practitioner. 107 Ind. Cas. 763 = 29 Cr. L.J. 279 = A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 319.

—Practice of allowing counsel or vakil to file memorandum of arguments in writing was condemned. 111 Ind. Cas. 849 = 28 M.L.W. 511 = 1928 M.W.N. 788 = 1 M. Cr.C. 293 = 29 Cr.L.J. 929 = A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 1130 = 55 M.L.J. 712.

—Pleader—Notes of arguments by pleaders should not be submitted to Court—If submitted must first be submitted to the other party's pleader and then to Court. 73 Ind. Cas. 706 = 37 C.L.J. 42 = A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 425.

10. Burden of proof.

See also—

- (1) C.P.C., O. 21 Rs. 58 AND 63.
- (2) CRIMINAL TRIAL—BURDEN OF PROOF
- (3) EVIDENCE—BURDEN OF PROOF.
- (4) EVIDENCE ACT, SS. 101 TO 114.

—Burden of Proof.

A party can sustain the onus cast on him by eliciting the necessary facts by cross-examination of the opposite party's witnesses and not necessarily by adducing evidence on his own side. 122 Ind. Cas. 378 (Nag.).

—Burden of proof—Evidence.

If a burden of proving some issues is laid on the plaintiff and of others on the defendant, the plaintiff, can reserve his case and produce rebutting evidence after defendants evidence only on those issues the burden of proving which is laid on the defendant. 66 P.R. 1911 = 104 P.L.R. 1912 = 190 P.W.R. 1911 = 12 Ind. Cas. 862.

—Where the evidence on both sides has been weighed, the question of burden of proof possesses little real importance in appeal. 122 Ind. Cas. 378 (Nag.).

—Burden of proof—Immaterial after evidence.

Whether a piece of evidence is enough for discharging the burden of proof depends upon the weight to be attached to that evidence and is not a question of law. So where each party had adduced evidence to prove or disprove an issue, the importance of the burden of proof disappears almost entirely. 13 M. 394, 34 A. 511 : 24 M.L.J. 517, Foll. 28 M.L.J. 92 = 26 Ind. Cas. 899.

—Burden of proof—Immaterial after evidence tendered.

A Court should weigh the evidence tendered as a whole without paying much heed to the arguments as to the allocation of burden of proof, treat the pleadings of parties as admissions and endeavour to arrive at a clear finding upon the facts involved. 1 O.L.J. 591 = 26 Ind. Cas. 547.

—Burden of proof—Question—Immaterial—After evidence.

There can be no question of burden of proof when the Court has only to determine the case on evidence fully recorded on both sides. 37 Ind. Cas. 353 (Pat.).

—Plaintiff has to prove his own title—Showing that defendants' title is weak is not enough. A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 868.

—A plaintiff must always succeed on the strength of his own title and on the weakness of the defendant's title. 119 Ind. Cas. 337 = 6 O.W.N. 549 = A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 494.

—A claimant cannot succeed without giving prima facie proof in support of his case whether he be a plaintiff or a defendant. 97 Ind. Cas. 1023 = A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 32.

—Burden of proof—Plaintiff must succeed or fail on his own allegations.

The Plaintiff vendor, sued for a part of the consideration alleging that the defendants had orally agreed to pay the amount in cash, though fictitiously entered in the sale deed, as due to certain creditors of his and to be paid by the vendee to prove 'necessity'. In his oral statement the plaintiff said that the amount was entered fictitiously to defeat pre-emptors. The claim though allowed by the original Court was rightly rejected on appeal. 40 P.L.R. 1910 = 8 Ind. Cas. 230.

—Party voluntarily assuming burden cannot afterwards change position.

When a party by its pleadings and conduct volunteers to bear the burden of proving a particular thing, it cannot afterwards turn round and say that the burden was on the other party, especially when its action in promising to produce certain documents must have had the effect of preventing the party on whom the burden would really have been placed to produce from producing these documents. 95 Ind. Cas. 743 = 24 A.L.J. 593 = A.I.R. 1926 All. 497.

—Burden accepted once and attempted to be discharged—Party cannot complain subsequently. 4 L.L.J. 426 = A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 284.

—Burden of proof—Change of, on appeal—Remand.

Where an appellate Court changes the allocation of the burden of proof, it should remand the case to the first court to enable the party, on whom it has been placed, to adduce evidence in support of the issue. 98 P.R. 1910 = 36 P.L.R. 1911 = 8 Ind. Cas. 1153.

—Burden of proof of minority.

The burden of proof as to his minority lies on the minor. Where there is no prima facie evidence of minority, it does not matter in the least whether the evidence adduced by the opposite party on the point is sufficient to show that the minor was a major at the time in question. A.I.R. 1940 Rang. 191 = 1940 Rang. L.R. 481 = 191 Ind. Cas. 21.

—Plea of Act of State.

Where there existed a right either admitted or that could be established by decree of Court, and that right, it was alleged, was taken by an Act of State.

Held, it would be necessary so specifically to plead but the moment that Cession is admitted the subjects necessary become petitioners and have the onus cast on them of showing the acts of acknowledgment, which give them the right they wish to be declared. 82 Ind. Cas. 779 = 21 M.L.W. 28 = 1924 M.W.N. 694 = 48 Bom. 613 = 51 I.A. 357 = 22 A.L.J. 951 = 5 L.R.P.C. 199 = 26 Bom. L.R. 1143 = 40 C.L.J. 473 = 29 C.W.N. 317 = A.I.R. 1924 P.C. 216 = 47 M.L.J. 574 (P.C.).

—Burden of proof—Bona fide purchase.

The proposition that the defence of a bona fide purchaser for value without notice is a single defence and cannot be split up refers more to the form of pleading and cannot be treated as decisive of the question of onus in all cases. 4 L.W. 200 = 35 Ind. Cas. 893.

11. Cause of action.

See also (1) CAUSE OF ACTION

(2) C.P.C., SS. 11, 20: O. 2, RR. 1 AND 2.

—Practice—Declaration—Suit for—Cause of action—Law enacted but neither brought into force nor action taken thereunder—Suit to declare law unconstitutional—If lies. See SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT, S. 42. ILLS. (g). A.I.R. 1951 Pat. 246.

—Cause of action—Suit to determine boundaries—Maintainability.

Confusion of boundaries between estate of two independent proprietors is per se no ground to support a bill for fixing the boundaries, unless some equity is superinduced by act of the parties, i.e., unless some confusion has arisen from some misconduct on the part of the defendant or those under whom he claims. (1904) 6 Bom. L.R. 782 = 29 Bom. 73.

—Non-accrual of cause of action set out in plaint.

Where cause of action set forth in the plaint is found never to have accrued, the suit fails and should be dismissed. (1904) A.W.N. 207 = 1 A.L.J. 628 = 27 A. 174.

—Joinder of causes of action—Suit for recovery of secured debt as well as unsecured debt of different period—Misjoinder—Suit on two mortgages in respect of some property.

A claim for recovery of unsecured debt of a different period cannot be joined in the same suit with a claim for recovery of a secured debt, as the causes of action for the two are quite separate and of different character: in the absence of an express contract to the effect that the unsecured debts can be added on to the secured debts for the purpose of recovery, they cannot be combined in one suit though the parties are the same. But the claims arising under two similar contracts referring to the same property can be added and there will be no misjoinder, e.g., mortgage of a part of the property and a second mortgage of the other part of the same property. A.I.R. 1950 Kut. 21.

—Mis-joinder of causes of action—Dismissal of whole suit—Propriety—Dismissal of one claim improperly joined—Effect on rest of the claims in suit.

Merely because there has been a misjoinder of causes of action, the entire suit cannot be dismissed. When the claim in respect of one cause of action which was irregularly or improperly joined is dismissed, the irregularity stands cured with such dismissal and the rest of the claim can be gone into and decreed. A.I.R. 1950 Kut. 21.

—Mis-joinder—Causes of action—Form of suit on an award—If an alternative prayer to decide suit on merits can be asked for.

There is no objection to a suit on an award being coupled in the alternative with a suit on the merits of the dispute between the parties. Such a combination is convenient and does not prejudice any party. 12 P.R. 1917 = 39 Ind. Cas. 349.

—Mis-joinder—Plea of when not to be taken.

A plea of mis-joinder of causes of action cannot be taken for the first time in the High Court. 26 Ind. Cas. 781 (Cal.).

—Mis-joinder—Cause of action—Amendment.

A claim to future relief in respect of 'harra' on the basis of a lease from the mortgagee cannot be joined with a claim for redemption. A suit bad for multifariousness is not to be dismissed without giving plaintiff opportunity to amend the plaint and restrict his claims. 7 N.L.R. 43 = 10 Ind. Cas. 737.

12. Chief Court.

—Chief Court—Death sentences—Fine.

The practice of the Chief Court is not to impose fines where death sentences have been given. 18 P.R. 1913, Cr. = 14 Cr.L.J. 522 = 41 P.W.R. 1913 Cr. = 326 P.L.R. 1913 = 20 Ind. Cas. 1002.

—Chief Court—Punjab—Conviction by Superintendent, Hill States under special powers given by the Local Govt.—Local Govt. statement

The Chief Court, cannot entertain and hear an appeal from the order of Supt. Hill State specially appointed by the Local Govt. to try criminal cases in a Native State outside Br. India, though the officer happens to be a Dt. Magistrate in British India nor can the Chief Court question the validity of such an appointment. It is bound to accept as conclusive the statement of the Local Govt. with regard to the capacity in which that officer has acted. 20 P.W.R. 1910, Cr. = 14 P.R. 1910 Cr. = 11 Cr.L.J. 390 = 45 P.L.R. 1910 = 6 Ind. Cas. 640.

—Chief Court—Division Bench.

Where a question of law based on facts decided by a single Judge is referred to a Division Bench the latter can go into the whole case and decide the same. So also when a similar question is referred to a Full Bench, the latter can correct the erroneous finding of fact and decline to answer the reference if it does not arise upon the facts. 12 P.W.R. 1910 = 59 P.L.R. 1910 = 5 Ind. Cas. 835.

—Chief Court—Division Bench—Decision of single Judge.

The Division Bench is not competent to re-open questions as to irregularities decided by a Judge sitting as a single Bench. 150 P.W.R. 1909 = 151 P.L.R. 1909 = 4 Ind. Cas. 1006.

13. Civil Dispute.

—Civil dispute—Criminal dispute—Police being allowed to assist parties in enforcing rights of a civil nature.

Police officers should not be employed to assist parties to enforce what they claim to be their right in a matter of civil dispute, until the matter had been decided by the Civil Courts. 1 Pat. L.W. 580 = 18 Cr.L.J. 640 = 39 Ind. Cas. 1008.

—Civil dispute—Criminal Courts.

Disputes between landlords and tenants should be left to Revenue Court and not taken up by Criminal Courts. 17 Cr.L.J. 406 = 35 Ind. Cas. 966 (Mad.).

—Civil dispute—Criminal case—Jurisdiction.

Parties should not resort to the Cr. Courts where the point at issue between them can more appropriately be decided by a Civil Court. 33 P.R. (Cr.) 1910, Foll. 4 P.W.R. Cr. 1916 = 17 Cr.L.J. 7 = 32 Ind. Cas. 135.

—Civil-dispute—Criminal trial.

The habit of rushing to the criminal court where a civil dispute arises should be discouraged. 33 P.L.R. 1913 = 10 P.W.R. 1913, Cr. = 14 Cr.L.J. 128 = 18 Ind. Cas. 688.

—Civil dispute—Abuse of Criminal Process.

It is undesirable that Criminal process should be abused, with the object of furthering a civil claim and it is intolerable if a person can evade the law by reason of his position. 10 Cr.L.J. 160 = 2 Ind. Cas. 825.

—Civil dispute—Criminal case.

A court is bound to see that the machinery of criminal law is not utilised for the gratification of petty spite. 5 P.W.R. 1909, Cr. = 9 Cr.L.J. 158 = 1 Ind. Cas. 101.

14. Commission.

See C.P. CODE, O. 26.

—Commissioners—Scope of investigation—Messengers deputed by Court to make spot inspection and to report—Messengers examining witnesses during investigation—If acting beyond province—Judgment based on report—If vitiated.

Where messengers are appointed by the Court and deputed to view the land in dispute and to report, they are not bound to confine themselves to a scrutiny of the locus and to a report of the results of their own observation. It is open to them to examine witnesses on the spot and when they do so in the presence of the parties in the course of their investigation, and the parties co-operate with the messengers in activities, without raising any objection or complaint to such procedure, it cannot be said that the messengers have gone beyond their province and that the judgment of the Court based in part on their report is vitiated. The messengers must be held to have discharged their task in a reasonable manner. A.I.R. 1949 P.C. 291.

—Commissioner.

The Commissioner is a delegate of the Court acting under the Court's authority and the procedure adopted by him should naturally be the procedure of the Court from which he derived his authority. 42 Mad. 661, Diss.; 45 Cal. 825, Appr. 74 Ind. Cas. 445 = 9 O.L.J. 593 = 24 Cr.L.J. 781 = A.I.R. 1923 Oudh 119.

—Commissioner—Partition suit.

In a partition suit a relation of one of the parties or their pleader is not to be appointed as a commissioner except with the consent of the other party. 39 Ind. Cas. 951 (All.).

—Commissioner—Damages—Assessment—Reference to officer of Court.

Cases are not to be referred to other persons for assessing charges etc., except when the enquiry involves questions of detail, resulting in waste of time. (1890) 6 T.L.R. 356 Foll. The market rate of coal in a suit for breach of contract to supply coal can be ascertained by the Judge without referring it to assessors. 42 Cal. 819 = 19 C.W.N. 609 = 30. Ind. Cas. 990.

—Evidence—Commission—Ruler of native state—Cross-examination of.

Ruler of a Native State who is exempt from attendance in British Courts cannot be cross-examined except by issuing a commission to be executed in his State. 4 S.L.R. 88 = 8. Ind. Cas. 897.

15. Consolidation.

See C.P.C. O. 45, R. 4 AND O. 41, R. 1.

—Consolidation—Civil Revision Petitions.

Court has no inherent jurisdiction to consolidate Civil Revision Petitions in cases which have been disposed of by a single judgment of the lower Court so as to enable the party to file one vakalat in the petitions and pay one process fee for the common respondents. 123 Ind. Cas. 606 = 53 Mad. 262 = 31 M.L.W. 294 = A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 381 = 58 M.L.J. 521 (F.B.).

—Consolidation of appeals—Power of High Court.

The power of the High Court to consolidate appeals is one which is inherent in it and consolidation can be allowed in proper cases. 109 Ind. Cas. 651 = 27 M.L.W. 366 = 1928 M.W.N. 271 = A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 463 = 54 M.L.J. 595.

—Consolidation of appeals.

Order declaring appeals are analogous, does not result in their consolidation. 93 Ind. Cas. 129 = 4 Pat. 448 = 7 P.L.T. 431 = 1925 P.H.C.C. 345 = A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 765.

—Where parties agreed to make decision in one suit dependent on another they cannot resile from it after the decision in the suit. 83 Ind. Cas. 970 = 39 C.L.J. 537 = A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 940.

—Consolidation of suits—Suit by agent and against—Trial of both if could be together.

A suit for accounts by a principal and a counter suit by the agent for monies due to him under the agency may, for the sake of convenience be tried together but that does not mean that they should not be tried separately. 15 C.W.N. 930 = 11 Ind. Cas. 161.

16. Contempt.

See CONTEMPT.

—Calcutta High Court—Contempt proceeding—Representation of Party.

Held that in contempt proceedings before the High Court it cannot be said that in every case the party if represented must appear through an advocate instructed by an attorney. Nature of High Court's jurisdiction in matters of contempt indicated. 34 C.W.N. 928 = 129 Ind. Cas. 366 = A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 759.

—Breaking undertaking given to Court justifies refusal to hear.

A breach of an undertaking given to a Court by a litigant pending proceedings, on the faith of which the Court sanctions a particular course of action or inaction, is misconduct amounting to contempt. When a person is guilty of such contempt he places himself in a perilous situation so as not to be heard by the Court till he has purged his contempt. A person in contempt may be denied certain favours of the court and privileges until he has purged himself of contempt. The rule denying privileges is limited to proceedings in which the contempt occurs. A litigant in contempt has no standing in Court. 82 Ind. Cas. 292 = 39 C.L.J. 217 = A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 953.

17. Costs.

See C.P.C., S. 35.

—Costs—Appeal based on a decision which is overruled—Liability of appellant for costs.

Where an appeal filed on the strength of a ruling which is overruled by the Full Bench, is argued fully before and during the reference to the Full Bench the appellant cannot claim that it is a fit case for dismissing the appeal without costs. (The appeal however was dismissed with half the costs of the respondent). (1919) 37 M.L.J. 271 : I.L.R. 43 Mad. 61, dis. I.L.R. (1951) Mad. 305 = 1950 M.W.N. 851 = 63 L.W. 1130 = (1950) 2 M.L.J. 674 = A.I.R. 1951 Mad. 48 (F.B.).

—Delay in litigation—Effect of.

Their Lordships think it is of the utmost importance that the people in India should realize that the statements their Lordships have made, as to the essential duty on the part of litigants to use all reasonable speed to bring their cases to trial, are not mere empty phrases: and their Lordships mean to enforce and make them effectual by the only instrument in their hands, by dealing with the question of the costs on the appeal where the delay arises. 122 Ind. Cas. 305 = 31 M.L.W. 326 = 34 C.W.N. 512 = 32 Bom. L.R. 492 = A.I.R. 1930 P.C. 42 = 58 M.L.J. 285 (P.C.).

—Costs.

Where the form of action lent support to the judgment that was delivered by the High Court but the High Court refused to exercise a power, that they possessed, to modify the relief that the plaintiff asked but the Privy Council did modify the relief, the costs in the High Court were refused. 122 Ind. Cas. 305 = 31 M.L.W. 326 = 34 C.W.N. 512 = 32 B.L.R. 492 = A.I.R. 1930 P.C. 42 = 58 M.L.J. 285 (P.C.).

—Interlocutory orders for costs made by the Court of appeal during the progress of the suit may be taxed forthwith and execution levied therefor. 57 Cal. 469 = A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 465.

—Documents—Failure to produce—Effect.

Apart from the question of the onus of proof, it lies upon a party, whether he be plaintiff or defendant, to produce all such material documents relating to the suit as may be in his possession, even though no application has been made for their production by the other party. High Court would deprive party of costs for failure to do so. 112 Ind. Cas. 791 = 1929 A.L.J. 262 = A.I.R. 1929 All. 134.

—Where a trial Court leaves the parties to bear their own costs, and one of them appealed from such order while the other does not, the appellate Court cannot make the former pay the costs of the latter in the trial Court. 118 Ind. Cas. 464 = 30 P.L.R. 600 = A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 177.

—Omission to point out correct law.

It is clearly the party's business to direct the mind of the Court to the authorities which show him the right practice, and if a party has failed to do this he should not be allowed costs although case is decided in his favour. 94 Ind. Cas. 306 = 1926 M.W.N. 465 = A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 642 = 50 M.L.J. 428.

—Payment of costs to several respondents individually must be specifically decreed.

Where more than one party appears as defendant or respondent, an order or decree directing payment of the defendants' or respondents' costs does not necessarily mean that each defendant or respondent appearing is entitled to his costs from the losing party. When such parties appear separately they should apply for separate sets of costs at the time when the judgment is delivered. 79 Ind. Cas. 704 = 48 Bom. 348 = 26 Bom. L.R. 209 = A.I.R. 1924 Bom. 317.

—Costs—Expert witness—Special fees.

An expert witness who has conducted elaborate and technical experiments ought to be allowed special expert fees as part of the costs in the case. 10 L.B.R. 203 = 13 Bur. L.T. 62 = 59 Ind. Cas. 823.

—Costs—Taxation—Review—Sind Judicial Commissioner's Court Rules, R. 23, 24 and 27.

Under R. 27 of Rules of the Court of the Judicial Commissioner in Sind, no application for review of taxation of costs is allowable, unless made before decree is signed. Where the final incidence of the burden of costs is left for the decision of the lower court, as in the case of remand, a party desiring his pleaders fees, to be included in the costs must file the usual certificate of fees in the Appellate Court before the decree of that Court is signed. 5 S.L.R. 254 = 15 Ind. Cas. 828.

—Costs—Abandonment of appeal with a claim for costs cannot be allowed.

An appellant must abandon an appeal unconditionally and he cannot abandon an appeal and at the same time claim costs of the suit and the appeal. 5 N.L.R. 121 = 3 Ind. Cas. 572.

—Costs—Income-tax reference—Assessee successful—Right to recover deposit.

All fiscal enactments must be construed in favour of the subject and it cannot be said that if an assessee has not been properly taxed and if he succeeds on a reference in the High Court, yet he must lose a sum of Rs. 100 simply because the Income-tax Officer has chosen to make an assessment. 1930 A.L.J. 1548 = A.I.R. 1931 All. 123.

—Administration actions.

The usual practice in summons for construction and in administration actions where the executor has not been guilty of misconduct, is that the costs of all parties as between attorney and client should come out of the estate. 70 Ind. Cas. 178 = 24 Bom. L.R. 1124 = A.I.R. 1923 Bom. 96.

—Divorce Suit—Liability of husband.

Where a petition for the dissolution of marriage on the ground of adultery is filed by the husband and the wife enters an appearance and denies the allegations against her, she has an absolute right to require her husband to furnish her with funds sufficient to enable her to make a full and satisfactory defence and to obtain such assistance from counsel as is reasonable under the circumstances. 77 Ind. Cas. 133 = 44 All. 745 = A.I.R. 1922 All. 504 (F.B.).

—Costs—Partition suit.

Where a suit has to be brought for effecting a partition between the members of a family and neither party has been guilty of unfair contention, the costs till the preliminary decree should come out of the estate. 34 Cal. 878 and 42 Cal. 451, not Foll. 11. L.W. 5 = 54 Ind. Cas. 382.

—Costs—Redemption suits.

In redemption suits, a mortgagor is ordinarily entitled to costs unless he forfeits his right to it by laches. In Malabar, though question of compensation complicates redemption suits, yet where the mortgagor fails to deposit even the mortgage amount in full, the mortgagee must be given the costs of the suit. (1917) M.W.N. 275 = 38 Ind. Cas. 655.

—Costs—Solicitor—Expert knowledge as to hand-writing—Extra charges for the work—Taxing Master's decision—Review by Chamber Judge.

In a suit to obtain probate of a will, the defence was that the will was a forgery. The defendant's solicitor failing to obtain an expert in hand-writing, made a special study of the subject occupying 128 hours, and arrived at the conclusion that the will was not genuine. He then notwithstanding counsel's opinion to the contrary, got the suit decided in his client's favour. In his bill of costs the defendant's solicitor claimed his extra fees for the special work, but the Taxing Master disallowed the claim.

Held, in review of taxation, that the solicitor was entitled to a special remuneration for his work in qualifying himself as an expert in hand-writing. (1907) 9 Bom. L.R. 819 = 31 Bom. 430.

—Costs—Taxation—Certifying counsel—Originating summons.

In a originating summons, parties are entitled to instruct counsel; and without any certificate the costs of one counsel must be allowed on taxation. (1907) 9 Bom. L.R. 1071.

—Stay of costs.

Where a party has been successful in a Court of Appeal and has been awarded his costs it is not the practice of the High Court to stay execution for costs except in cases where it is abundantly clear that there will be no chance of recovering the costs if they are allowed to go unprotected to the person entitled to them. 90 Ind. Cas. 703 = A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 54.

18. Court-fee.

See also (1) COURT-FEE.

(2) COURT-FEES ACT.

—Filing of appeal with patently deficit court-fee—Appellant unable to secure funds for payment of full court-fee—Not a ground for excusing delay—Grant of time by Judge in the Admission Court to pay the deficit—Right of other side to question.

Assuming that an appellant as a matter of fact was unable to raise sufficient moneys till date of application to excuse delay, that by itself cannot be a sufficient ground to have the delay excused. An appellant who did not have the means to pay the court-fee on an appeal should, if so advised, file the appeal in forma pauperis. The practice of filing an appeal with a patently deficit court-fee simply because before the last date of filing the appeal, the appellant is unable to secure enough money for payment of the full court-fee, and then taking time to raise the deficit amount and getting the delay excused as a matter of course, cannot be tolerated.

Where the delay is excused by a judge sitting in the Admission Court without notice to the other side, it is assumed that the other side would be always at liberty at a subsequent stage or even at the hearing of the appeal to contend that the delay should not have been excused. It is desirable that notice should be given in such cases to the other side to obviate inconvenience and expense which might be avoided if the Court were to eventually refuse to excuse the delay. (1914) 1 L.W. 440, approved. I.L.R. (1950) Mad. 775 = A.I.R. 1950 Mad. 769 = 63 L.W. 70 = 1950 M.W.N. 67 = (1950) 1 M.L.J. 79.

—Court-fee.

Insufficient court-fee—Point not free from difficulty—Pleader should be allowed to make up deficiency. A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 101 = 124 Ind. Cas. 318.

—Failure to pay promised court-fee justifies refusal to entertain appeal.

A suit for possession and mesne profits was undervalued but the Court tried the suit on merits on the plaintiff's undertaking that he would pay up before the decree is drawn up. The suit was dismissed and the plaintiff did not pay the deficit court-fee. He however appealed against the decree so far as the costs were concerned.

Held that the plaintiff being in contempt could not appeal. 82 Ind. Cas. 292 = 39 C.L.J. 217 = A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 953.

—Deficit in Lower Court.

In all cases where the question of recovering the deficit in the lower Court arises on appeal the appeal should first be admitted before the point is decided. 62 Ind. Cas. 43 = 2 P.L.T. 383 = 6 P.L.J. 293 = 1921 P.H.C.C. 161 = A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 88 (F.B.).

—Use of stamps.

The words "for use in the High Court only" impressed on the back of Court-fee stamps do not limit their use to High Court only. The words may have some significance for administrative purposes, but they are not capable of invalidating the stamps themselves if filed in lower Courts. 97 Ind. Cas. 822 = 8 P.L.T. 33 = A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 408.

19. Criminal Trial.

See also CRIMINAL TRIAL.

—Prosecution under S. 211, I.P.C.

The practice that a complainant or first informant should not be prosecuted under S. 211, until his complaint or police case has been disposed of, is not based on any statute and is merely a precautionary rule of safety in respect of a special class of criminal case. While a prosecution under S. 211 might in certain circumstances be delayed or even set aside in accordance with this practice, the practice could per se be no ground for setting aside a conviction, for there is no illegality in the trial. 125 Ind. Cas. 770 = 9 Pat. 126 = 31 Cr.L.J. 934 = 11 Pat. L.T. 224.

—Criminal—Evidence—Quantum or value of evidence.

The fouler the crime, the clearer and plainer the proof ought to be, though it cannot be laid down as a proposition of law that the quantum or value of evidence must be proportionate to the enormity of the crime or the consequences which may follow from convictions. 1 Pat. L.T. 684 = 59 Ind. Cas. 858.

—Criminal trial—Guilt—Evidence.

The practice of engineering offences in order to find out whether a person will commit an offence when tempted, is strongly to be deprecated. 17 Cr.L.J. 139 = 33 Ind. Cas. 315 (All.).

—Criminal trial—Filing of written statement by accused.

The practice of filing written statements on behalf of the accused persons is nowhere provided for, and should not be allowed. 20 C.W.N. 128 = 17 Cr.L.J. 9 = 32 Ind. Cas. 137.

—Criminal trial—Defence—Accused denying fact against him.

An accused is not bound by any statement denying any fact against him if he desires subsequently to take a defence inconsistent with the denial. 16 Cr.L.J. 76 = 26 Ind. Cas. 668 (Cal.).

—Criminal trial—Record of case—Contravention of Government order—Proof of.

A copy of the Government order or an extract therefrom or a reference thereto should be placed on the record if a person is convicted for contravening that order. 18 C.W.N. 1272 = 15 Cr.L.J. 703 = 26 Ind. Cas. 151.

—Criminal trial—District Magistrate—Interference by—In the course of trial by Subordinate Magistrate.

The District Magistrate cannot order that certain witnesses in a case before a Subordinate Magistrate should be made co-accused with the accused. A Magistrate should not ordinarily be interfered with in the course of the trial and if it transpires that certain witnesses in the case should be criminally proceeded against, the proceedings ought ordinarily await the conclusion of the case and should be instituted ordinarily by the order of or on the application to the Magistrate who has tried the case. 16 Bom. L.R. 259 = 15 Cr.L.J. 428 = 24 Ind. Cas. 164.

—Criminal trial—Conviction—Complainant's Case.

A conviction must be based on facts found amidst conflicting evidence and not on the exact proof of the complainant's statement. 14 Bom. L.R. 135 = 13 Cr.L.J. 300 = 14 Ind. Cas. 764.

—Criminal trial—Magistrate bound to proceed with case—Witness in attendance—Magistrate unable to record evidence—Witness must be informed to appear at the adjourned hearing.

When a Magistrate has entertained a complaint, he is bound to proceed according to law. Where the witnesses are in attendance but the Magistrate is not able to record evidence the witnesses must be asked to appear at the adjourned hearing and cannot be left to be summoned by the issue of process. 3 P.W.R. 1912 Cr. = 13 Cr.L.J. 176 = 60 P.L.R. 1912 = 13 Ind. Cas. 928.

—Criminal trial—Prosecution—Witnesses.

It is the duty of the prosecution to put in the box all persons having special knowledge of relevant facts. 8 P.W.R. 1909 Cr. = 10 Cr.L.J. 321 = 3 Ind. Cas. 622.

—Criminal trial—Intention—Presumption.

Neither the judge nor the jury are justified in assuming guilty knowledge on the part of an accused. 32 P.L.R. 1911 = 12 Cr.L.J. 125 = 9 Ind. Cas. 731.

—Criminal trial—Charges against Government servants.

Summary procedure should not be employed in cases in which Government servants, whatever their rank may be, are concerned. The power of a court to punish a public servant for an offence is not taken away simply because he has been punished by his departmental superiors. 15 P.W.R. 1911 Cr. = 184 P.L.R. 1911 = 12 Cr. L.J. 143 = 9 Ind. Cas. 831.

—Criminal trial—Argument of counsel.

Arguments of counsel should bear some relation to the charge brought and the facts on record. It is not proper to charge a man with one thing and argue that he has been guilty of something quite different. 4 P.W.R. 1910 Cr. = 11 Cr.L.J. 205 = 5 Ind. Cas. 714.

—Criminal trial—Charges—English rules of indictment.

In respect of charges the Courts are guided by Cr.P.C. and not by English rules as to indictment. 32 Mad 384 = 5 M.L.T. 393 = 9 Cr.L.J. 456 = 2 Ind. Cas. 33.

—Criminal trial—Sessions Judge—Duty of.

It is the duty of the Sessions Judge to sift the facts if pleaders appearing for the prosecution or the defence have not sufficiently done it. 10 Cr.L.J. 567 = 4 Ind. Cas. 391 (Mad.).

—Criminal trial—Conviction—Illegality.

Where the Magistrate convicted the accused against his own conscience the conviction was set aside as illegal. 10 Cr.L.J. 583 = 4 Ind. Cas. 428 (All.).

—Criminal trial—Offence—Penal Code, Ss. 299 and 300.

The Sessions Judge cannot convict an accused for culpable homicide not amounting to murder, when he had recorded his plea of guilty to a charge of murder. 3 S.L.R. 58 = 10 Cr.L.J. 5 = 2 Ind. Cas. 372.

—Criminal trial—Notice—Police Inspector.

Notice to the police Inspector in charge of case is necessary before the Magistrate disposes of it. (1915) M.W.N. 554 = 16 Cr.L.J. 736 = 31 Ind. Cas. 176.

—Criminal trial—Prosecuting inspector.

The proper place for a prosecuting Inspector in a Magistrate's Court is along with the pleader for the defence and in equality with him below the dais. His sitting on the dais near the Magistrate should be avoided as it is likely to raise a doubt as to the impartiality of the judge in trying cases. 8 A.L.J. 1235 = 12 Cr.L.J. 579 = 12 Ind. Cas. 843.

—Criminal trial—Magistrate—Knowledge of the people.

It is the duty of the Magistrates to make themselves acquainted with the character of the population within their jurisdiction. 11 Bom. L.R. 849 = 10 Cr.L.J. 427 = 3 Ind. Cas. 958.

—Criminal trial—Plea of not guilty.

Where the plea of guilty is not accepted by the Sessions Judge and the case is proceeded with, the accused must be directed, following the practice in England, to enter a plea of 'not guilty.' 9 C.L.J. 55 = 10 Cr.L.J. 325 = 3 Ind. Cas. 625.

—Criminal trial—Judgment—Review.

Under the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code, the High Court has no power to review its own judgment. 23 B. 50, 19 B 732 : 10 B. 176 : 7 A. 672 : 14 C. 42, Foll. 19 Bom. L.R. 695 = 18 Cr.L.J. 889 = 41 Ind. Cas. 1001.

—Review—Criminal case—Judgment.

Generally, a Criminal Court cannot review its own decision. 4 Bur. L.T. 211 = 12 Cr.L.J. 473 = 12 Ind. Cas. 31.

—Criminal trial—Magistrate discharging accused—If can revive the case on application.

A Magistrate who discharges the accused can legally revive the case on an application being made therefor. 29 C. 726, Foll. 38 Cal. 828 = 13 Cr.L.J. 120 = 13 Ind. Cas. 776.

—Criminal trial—Appeal—Dismissal for default.

A criminal appeal should not be dismissed for default but must be considered on its merits, though it can be summarily dismissed if no sufficient ground for interfering is seen. 12 Cr.L.J. 481 = 12 Ind. Cas. 89 (A.M.).

—Criminal trial—Photograph of under-trial prisoner.

There is no warrant or justification for the practice of taking photographs of under-trial prisoners. 38 Cal. 559 = 15 C.W.N. 593 = 12 Cr.L.J. 286 = 10 Ind. Cas. 582.

—Criminal trial—Civil law—Principles.

Principles of Civil law may be applied in the criminal law, if they are not directly opposed to any principle of the criminal law. 26 P.W.R. 1910 Cr. = 11 Cr.L.J. 428 = 12 P.R. 1913 Cr. = 269 P.L.R. 1914 = 6 Ind. Cas. 964.

—Criminal trial—Sentence—Deterrent sentences—Prosecuting authorities, duties of—Jurisdiction of lower Court.

It is not desirable to trust exclusively to the High court's power of correcting sentences of lower courts, where they ought to be deterrent and prosecuting authorities in such cases ought to put before the trying Court circumstances justifying the imposition of deterrent sentences. 16 Bom. L.R. 203 = 15 Cr.L.J. 367 = 23 Ind. Cas. 735.

—Criminal trial—Sentence—Deterrent Sentence—Authority desiring—Duty of.

Where the authorities desire that a specially deterrent sentence should be imposed, they should bring it to the notice of the trying court and inform it of the reasons therefor. 16 Bom. L.R. 200 = 15 Cr.L.J. 362 = 23 Ind. Cas. 730.

—Sentence—Adjournment.

No court has an inherent power to adjourn the passing of a sentence for an indefinite time. An order convicting the accused and directing him to furnish security and to come up for sentence after a long time is really an adjournment of sentence and is therefore bad. 14 Bom. L.R. 144 = 13 Cr.L.J. 288 = 14 Ind. Cas. 672.

—Sentence—Offence technical.

In case of technical offence a nominal sentence is always sufficient to meet the ends of justice. 34 C.749 : 7 Bom. L.R. 474, Foll. 16 P.R. 1910 Cr. = 11 Cr.L.J. 421 = 91 P.L.R. 1910 = 23 P.W.R. 1910 Cr. = 6 Ind. Cas. 952.

—Criminal trial—Magistrate complainant ought not to try.

A magistrate is incompetent to make any order in any case in which he is even the nominal complainant. 16 Cr.L.J. 801 = 31 Ind. Cas. 817 (All.).

—Stay of trial—Criminal proceedings—Issues substantially the same as the civil suit.

The executant of a deed denied the execution before the Sub-Registrar. But the District Registrar registered the deed and ordered prosecution under S. 82 (a) of the Registration Act. The executant sued in a Civil Court for a declaration that the deed was a forgery and moved the High Court for stay of the criminal proceedings.

Held, that as the issue in both the proceedings civil and criminal was the same and as there was no likelihood of the evidence becoming stale or unobtainable, the High Court would be justified in ordering the stay of the criminal proceedings and in such a case the High Court can direct the lower Court to expedite the disposal of the civil suit. 62 Ind. Cas. 185 = 22 Cr. L.J. 489 = 1 Pat. L.T. 697.

—Stay of trial—Criminal proceeding—Pendency of civil suit between the parties on substantially same issues.

Where the parties to, and the issues in, two proceedings, civil and criminal are substantially the same and the prosecution, before the Magistrate is but a private prosecution, it is not ordinarily desirable that both the cases should go on at the same time and the prosecution should be stayed. 7 Bur. L.T. 73 = 15 Cr.L.J. 488 = 24 Ind. Cas. 576.

—Stay of trial—Criminal proceedings—Civil Suit.

If a civil suit follows criminal proceedings, on the same facts, the latter should not be stayed. 11 Cr.L.J. 291 = 6 Ind. Cas. 181 (Cal.).

20. Decree.

See C.P. CODE, SS. 2 (2) AND 33.

—Maintenance decree—Provision for liberty to apply for varying it—If can be inserted.

No provision can be inserted in the maintenance decree for liberty to apply to vary the rate according to the exigencies of circumstances of either spouse. The remedy of either party for varying the rate on change of circumstances by way of a suit will always be available. 1948 M.W.N. 133 = A.I.R. 1949 Mad. 100 = 61 L.W. 181 = (1947) 2 M.L.J. 544.

—Preliminary decree wrongly granting widow a share in agricultural lands—No appeal—Whether can be rectified by refusing in final decree—Direct and collateral attacks in validity of decree—Distinction pointed out.

Where a Court wrongly allows an untenable claim, the error may be corrected by resort to one or other of the modes known to law, viz., by review, appeal, revision or by suit, according to circumstances. Such attempt to vacate, modify or correct a decree of a competent court by proceeding in one of the modes permitted by law or what may be termed 'direct attack' which will succeed if the error of fact or the deviation from law which is said to vitiate the decree or order is established. But a collateral attack is an attempt to avoid, defeat or evade the decree or order or to deny its effectiveness by or in a proceeding, other than a direct attack, with object of rendering it a dead letter, a nullity to be ignored. A collateral attack can only succeed if an absolute lack of jurisdiction over the subject-matter is established and the application by the Court of an Act which is inapplicable is not such a lack of jurisdiction. A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 513 = I.L.R. (1945) Mad. 216 = (1944) 2 M.L.J. 67 = 1944 M.W.N. 480 = 218 Ind. Cas. 58.

—Decree—Only one decree should be drawn up.

Per Findlay, J.C.—Apart from the question of preliminary and final decrees in suits the intention of the Civil Procedure Code is that there should be only one decree in any given suit and, therefore, when an appellate Court has to deal with two appeals arising out of the same suit it is desirable that it should draw up as a single decree, a comprehensive document which would give its adjudication in the whole matter of the litigation involved. 12 N.L.J. 101 = 25 N.L.R. 183 = A.I.R. 1929 Nag. 229 (F.B.).

—A Court should not pass a decree which cannot be given effect to. 79 Ind. Cas. 365 = A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 411.

—Record—Loss of—Lost decree can be reconstructed from evidence of person who read it. 77 Ind. Cas. 258 = 4 U.B.R. 135 = A.I.R. 1923 Rang. 113.

—Decree for amount more than the subject matter of the plaint.

Where a widow sues for the recovery of her husband's property both for herself and a co-widow impleaded as defendant, the Court can pass a decree for the whole property if the co-widow agrees to such a course. 60 Ind. Cas. 246 = 12 M.L.W. 544 = (1920) M.W.N. 721.

—Decree—Setting aside—Effect of—Suit to set aside fraudulent decree.

Semble.—The remedy of the plaintiff if he succeeds in getting the declaration that a decree was fraudulently obtained, is to apply to the Court to proceed with the suit.

Per Srinivasa Iyengar J.—The more appropriate mode of setting aside a consent decree for fraud is by a separate suit instituted for that purpose rather than by a motion in the cause in the nature of a review. A decree obtained by fraud is not a nullity and is not wholly void. 41 Mad. 213 = 6 L.W. 368 = 33 M.L.J. 499 = 41 Ind. Cas. 937.

—Decree—Setting aside—Effect of—Whether plaintiff can bring a fresh suit.

A decree which was declared null and void against the defendant on account of fraud, does not revive the plaintiff's original suit: the plaintiff may bring a fresh suit. 32 P.W.R. 1916 = 33 Ind. Cas. 890.

—Decree—Construction—Reference to pleadings.

A court can refer to the pleadings and judgment for ascertaining the real meaning of a decree. 13 Ind. Cas. 82 (Cal.).

—Decree—Motion—Case not on the list—Practice of Bombay High Court.

There is no fixed practice in Bombay preventing the passing of a decree on motion without the suit appearing on the list of hearing. (1901) 3 Bom. L.R. 431 = 26 B. 76.

21. Discretion.

—Discretion—Relief for declaration.

A relief of declaration is discretionary with the Court which should be granted with due regard to all circumstances of a case and a High Court will not be justified in interfering with the discretion in second appeal. 129 Ind. Cas. 446 = A.I.R. 1930 All. 620.

—Specific relief in second appeal.

Discretion to grant or refuse specific performance can be exercised in second appeal. 122 Ind. Cas. 740 = A.I.R. 1930 All. 166.

—Motive of a party—Relevancy of.

In judicial proceedings the question of motive is not altogether irrelevant. If there is a discretion in the Courts to allow a party to enforce one remedy in preference to another, where more remedies than one are open, or if an enforcement of a remedy will amount to an abuse of the processes of the Court, motive may in some cases have to be considered: but there again it is not so much to find out what the real motive of the party is, but rather to determine what resultant injury would accrue to his antagonist. 102 Ind. Cas. 513 = 31 C.W.N. 653 = A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 581.

—Discretion to appoint Receiver.

Appellate Court should not interfere with the discretion exercised by the lower Court in appointing a Receiver without sufficient reasons. 94 Ind. Cas. 39 = 27 P.L.R. 138 = A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 65.

—Exercise of—In case of fraud.

Where a party gives absolute discretion to the other to do a certain thing its exercise in the absence of fraud is not open to review.

A discretion, although absolute, is nonetheless a discretion to be exercised with reference to the true position and with perhaps even a greater sense of responsibility in that it is within limits final. 88 Ind. Cas. 54 = 28 Bom. L.R. 1488 = 28 P.L.R. 29 = 1925. M.W.N. 459 = A.I.R. 1925 P.C. 150 (P.C.).

—Exercise.

The discretion of the Court must be exercised on recognised principles and should not be arbitrary. Where the circumstances of a case demand it the High Court will interfere with the orders of the lower Courts if they were inconsistent with sound principles. 85 Ind. Cas. 796 = 29 C.W.N. 643 = A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 1027.

—Canada—Vancouver Island Settlers Rights Act, (1904), S. 3—Lieutenant-Governor in Council should act judicially in deciding a question under S. 3—But he is not bound by technical rules of evidence or procedure. A.I.R. 1921 P.C. 234 (P.C.).

—Discretion—Question of law.

A Judge should decide questions of law for himself and should not accept a view suggested by counsel unless he is satisfied as to its soundness. 9 Bur. L.T. 53 = 31 Ind. Cas. 875.

—Interference.

Where the lower Court has reasonably exercised its discretion, that discretion should not be lightly interfered with by the Appellate Court. 114 Ind. Cas. 360 = 28 M.L.W. 687 = 1929 M.W.N. 196 = 2 M. Cr.C. 19 = 30 Cr.L.J. 322 = A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 21 = 56 M.L.J. 208.

—Interference—Delay condoned without sufficient cause.

In matters of discretion a Court of second appeal ought not and ordinarily does not interfere with the exercise of discretion on the part of the subordinate Courts, but that non-interference must necessarily be limited to cases where there is sufficient material on record to justify the exercise of discretion in any particular way. Where, however, it appears that the lower Appellate Court has exercised its discretion in a judicially unsound manner without proper legal materials to support its decision, the High Court will surely interfere.

A memo. of appeal was accepted by the Appellate Court after the period of limitation had expired, without enquiring into sufficient cause for condoning the delay in the presentation of the memo. The appeal was accepted on merits setting aside the decree of the lower Court.

Held, that the Appellate Court acted wrongly in entertaining appeal as it had no jurisdiction to touch the decree, and decide the case on merits on the basis of time-barred memo. 25 Mad. 166, Foll. 114 Ind. Cas. 612 = 11 N.L.J. 186 = A.I.R. 1929 Nag. 8.

—Interference.

Although there is jurisdiction in the Appellate Court to correct a wrong exercise of discretion by the trial Court the former should be slow to interfere with the exercise of discretion by the trial Court, unless it is satisfied that the discretion has been unreasonably exercised. 119 Ind. Cas. 817 = 8 Pat. 153 = 10 P.L.T. 259 = A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 164.

—It is mistake for superior tribunal to lay rules as to exercise of such discretion.

When a tribunal is invested by statute with a discretion without any indication of the grounds upon which the discretion is to be exercised, it is a mistake for a superior tribunal to lay down any rules with a view to indicating the particular grooves in which the discretion should run. 113 Ind. Cas. 329 = 9 P.L.T. 672 = 8 Pat. 235 = 30 Cr.L.J. 137 = 12 A.I.Cr.R. 41 = A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 630.

—Interference—Refusal to recast charges.

An Appellate Court should be very slow to interfere with the discretion of a trial Court if not exercised in a perverse or arbitrary manner.

Where the trial Court feared that the recasting of the charges would embarrass the Jury and possibly prejudice the accused in his trial.

Held, that it cannot be said that such a reason was capricious or involved any disregard of any legal principle and certainly does not call for interference by High Court in appeal. 97 Ind. Cas. 1041 = 21 S.L.R. 55 = 27 Cr.L.J. 1217 = A.I.R. 1927 Sind 28.

—Interference.

An Appellate Court has power to interfere with the discretion of first Court as to a presumption of genuineness of a suspicious document. 95 Ind. Cas. 261 = A.I.R. 1926 All. 537.

—Interference.

If a lower Court does not exercise a discretion which it might have exercised, it is open to the appellate Court to exercise that discretion. 92 Ind. Cas. 966 = 27 P.L.R. 18 = A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 223.

—Appellate Court won't interfere with discretion judicially exercised though it differs in conclusion. 76 Ind. Cas. 285 = A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 629.

—Discretion as to admissibility should not be disturbed.

The question of the admissibility of secondary evidence is a point properly to be decided by the Judge of first instance and is treated as depending very much on his discretion. His conclusion therefore should not be overruled except in a clear case of misapprehension. 19 Cal. 438 (P.C.), Foll. 71 Ind. Cas. 568 = A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 303.

—Arbitration.

Whether an award should be set aside or remitted can be determined by the Court of first instance and an Appellate Court will not set aside its decision unless discretion is misused. 76 Ind. Cas. 275 = A.I.R. 1924 Sind 132.

—Interference.

Where the exercise of discretion has not been made on sound legal principles appellate Court can interfere with the order of the lower Court. 72 Ind. Cas. 569 = A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 48.

—Discretion—Appellate Court—Interference when proper.

It is opposed to sound practice for an appellate court to substitute its own discretion for that of the court from which an appeal has been preferred, unless the court below has acted capriciously or in disregard of any legal principles in the exercise of its discretion. 42 Bom. 380 = 22 C.W.N. 601 = 16 A.L.J. 513 = 27 C.L.J. 623 = 5 Pat. #### —Discretion—Appellate Court—Interference when to be made.

Where in the exercise of a judicial discretion a judge fails to apply a rule laid down for its exercise, the appellate court should either remit the case or itself exercise the discretion. 45 Cal. 17 = 22 M.L.T. 403 = 22 C.W.N. 74 = 26 C.L.J. 557 = 16 A.L.J. 1 = 34 M.L.J. 1 = 20 Bom. #### —Discretion—Appellate Court.

Where a Judge assumes that there is no general rule for exercising discretion when in fact there is one, he misdirects himself and the superior court must either remit the case or exercise the discretion itself. 45 Cal. 94 = 33 M.L.J. 486 = 22 M.L.T. 362 = 6 L.W. 592 = 126 P.W.R. 1917 = 15 A.L.J. 777 = 19 Bom. #### —Discretion—Appellate Court.

The Court of appeal ought to be slow to interfere with an exercise of a discretion by the Lower Court. 22 C.L.J. 293 = 31 Ind. Cas. 315.

—Discretion—Appellate Court—Interference.

In the matter of appointment of a guardian for a minor the appellate court will not interfere, with the discretion of the lower Court unless weighty reasons have been made out for setting it aside. 26 Ind. Cas. 300 (Cal.).

—Discretion—Appellate Court—Interference with discretion of lower Court.

A Court of Appeal will be reluctant to interfere with the Lower Court's discretion. 18 C.W.N. 1193 = 25 Ind. Cas. 112.

—Discretion—Appellate Court.

A Lower Court cannot use judicial discretion when the Appellate Court gives specific directions. 10 M.L.T. 284 = (1911) 2 M.W.N. 240 = 21 M.L.J. 1018 = 12 Ind. Cas. 139.

—Discretion—Co-owners—Interference.

Courts should be very cautious of interfering with the enjoyment of joint estates between the co-owners though they will do so for proper cases. 7 N.L.R. 82 = 11 Ind. Cas. 687.

—Discretion—Appellate Court—Interference.

The court of appeal should not interfere without good and sufficient reasons, with the orders of the lower Court which are within the lower court's jurisdiction. 14 C.W.N. 532 = 5 Ind. Cas. 127.

—Duty of Court—Court of equity—Shortening of litigation.

The Court of equity delights in shortening litigation and not in lengthening it or in multiplying litigation proceedings. 28 Pat. 102=A.I.R. 1949 Pat. 293=30 P.L.T. 201.

—Duty of Court—Successive applications by party after adverse order—Maintainability—Res judicata—Application of.

Although the principles of res judicata as such might not apply to a particular case, the Court would certainly be guided by principles analogous to res judicata. The Court should not countenance any harassment of the parties at the instance of litigants who would flood the tribunal with applications one after another, even though the tribunal had pronounced adversely to them. I.L.R. 1949 Bom. 766 = 49 Bom. L.R. 454=A.I.R. 1947 Bom. 413.

—Duty of Court—Charge against public officer of partiality and neglect of duty—Pleading and proof of—Duty of Court to insist on and to protect public officer against attacks without basis.

When a Court or a Judge comes across any case where it finds that a public officer has departed or deviated from the path of rectitude, the Court or Judge realising how necessary purity of administration is in the state, should in no uncertain terms condemn such action on the part of the public officer. But it is equally important and essential that when a particular officer is conscientiously doing his duty, the Court should not permit any suggestions to be made with regard to his impartiality and uncertainty. Before making a serious charge against a public officer namely that he showed deliberate partiality to a certain party and did not fully have regard to the interests of his institution, it is necessary that there should be proper pleadings in which the charge is formulated and proved. It is easy for a party to fling mud at persons who very often find it very difficult to defend their conduct, and it is the duty of the Courts to protect public officers from such mud-slinging. I.L.R. 1950 Bom. 233=51 Bom. L.R. 190=A.I.R. 1949 Bom. 229.

—Duty of Court—Suit against judicial officer—Act done in discharge of judicial duties—Ex parte preliminary investigation by Court.

It should be the duty of Court in which any suit is filed, which on the face of the plaint shows a case made against a judicial officer in respect of an act done in the discharge of his judicial duties, to make a preliminary investigation ex parte of its own motion, before any summons in the suit is even served. In such a case the plaintiff should be called upon, before an issue by the Court of any summons, to show cause, by way of establishing a prima facie case against the judicial officer why a summons should be served on the defendant. 2 D.R. 71.

—Disputed signature—Undesirability of Appellate Court constituting itself an expert—Proper course to take.

It is not proper for an Appellate Court to constitute itself an expert where there is a dispute as to the genuineness of the signatures in documents. Where a Judge finds that the decision of the matter is not free from difficulty, the proper course for him is to requisition the services of an expert, especially when he is differing from the opinion of the trial Judge on a matter which the latter was by reason of his familiarity with the language and script more competent to speak. 1947 A.L.J. 110=1947 A.W.R. (H.C.) 125=1947 A. L. W. 264=A.I.R. 1947 A. 411.

—Duty of Court—Duty of Judges to maintain temper.

It is a matter of public policy that justice should not merely be done but should appear to be done. Though judges are human, it is always to be regretted if their patience even appears to give way. 1945 A.L.J. 34=A.I.R. 1945 P.C. 38=221 Ind. Cas. 603=1946 A.W.R. (P.C.) 15=1946 O.A. 15 (P.C.).

—Duty of Court—Separate suit pending between parties in another Court—Observations in appeal on merits of pending suit—Propriety of.

Where another suit between the parties to an appeal is still pending, the Court should generally avoid making any observation in the appeal which might prejudice the parties in that litigation or which might embarrass the Court in the trial of that other suit. The issue which has to be decided in that pending suit should not be decided in the appeal before the Court though between the same parties. 30 P.L.T. 359.

—Duty of Court—Comment.

Court ought not to comment adversely on witnesses' conduct relying on matters which are not 'evidence'. 85 Ind. Cas. 143=5 Lah. 476=26 Cr.L.J. 463=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 187.

—Remarks prejudicial to the character of stranger are undesirable.

It is very undesirable that a Judge or a Magistrate should make remarks which are prejudicial to the character of a person who is neither a party nor a witness in the proceeding before him, and who has therefore no opportunity of giving an explanation or defending himself against the remarks made by the Court. 61 Ind. Cas. 63=45 Bom. 1127=23 Bom. L. R. 357=22 Cr. L.J. 335=A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 394.

—Duty of Court—Wart of jurisdiction.

Where the Court is of opinion that the suit is not cognizable by the Civil Court, the proper order to make is to return the plaint to the plaintiff for presentation to the proper Court and to dismiss his suit. 1930 A.L.J. 1251=14 R.D. 656=130 Ind. Cas. 292=A.I.R. 1931 A. 33.

—Avoidance of multiplicity of suits.

Rights of various parties should be decided in one suit rather than in a number of suits, as it is obviously undesirable that the matter in controversy, which may be settled without disadvantage to any of the parties in a single litigation should be repeatedly agitated in a succession of suits. 17 C. W. N. 1161, Approved. 114 Ind. Cas. 369=30 Bom. L. R. 1604=A. I. R. 1629 Bom. 60.

—Duty of Court—Recording reasons.

Where any enactment requires the recording of reasons by the Court for an order which it is empowered to pass it should not overlook that requisite. 119 Ind. Cas. 43=30 M. L. W. 230=1929 M. W. N. 74=A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 718.

—Duty of Court—Standing over.

Appeal called on—Appellant going to call his pleader who was arguing case in another Court—Case should be allowed to stand over for a few minutes in order that parties may have their case decided on merits. 119 Ind. Cas. 435=51 All. 758=1929 A. L. J. 559=A. I. R. 1929 All. 399.

—Duty of Court—Injury to parties—It is not the duty of a Civil Court to punish offences.

Where a Civil Court held that the defendant ought to be made to suffer for entering into an illegal agreement and breaking the law.

Held, it was not the duty of a Civil Court to punish offences. 110 Ind. Cas. 351=A. I. R. 1928 Nag. 232.

—Duty of Court.

It is never the duty of the Court to initiate any proceedings on behalf of the parties. 89 Ind. Cas. 992=7 P. L. T. 39=A. I. R. 1926 Pat. 62.

Even if parties have not taken every step open to them or have not shown a prompt sense of their obligation or a right appreciation of the appropriate procedure it is nonetheless the object of Courts to decide the rights of parties and not to punish them for mistake they make in the conduct of their case by deciding otherwise than in accordance with their rights. 82 Ind. Cas. 184=22 A. L. J. 791=5 L. R. A. (Civ.) 545=46 All. 864=A. I. R. 1924 All. 818.

—Duty of Court—Protection of subjects—Inroad upon the liberty of subject will not be tolerated by Courts.

Where there are breaches of law and order it is the duty of the High Court to relentlessly apply the law and to look neither to the possession nor the motive of the person committing or encouraging breaches of law and order. But while this is so it is equally the duty of the Court to assert from time to time and as often as it may be necessary that the subject has his rights as well as his duties and to assert further that the High Court as the guardian of the rights and the liberties of the subject will sternly repress, any attempt on the part of the executive government to tamper with such rights and liberties; and that an order in the garb of an order for the maintenance of law and order will not be allowed to stand, if its object is not to maintain law and order but to make a very serious inroad upon the liberty of the subject. 63 Ind. Cas. 945=3 P. L. T. 585=1922 P. H. C. C. 274=2 Pat. 134=23 Cr. L. J. 625=1 Pat. L. R. (Cr.) 199=A. I. R. 1923 Pat. 1 (S. B.).

—Complaint—To be made in open court.

Complaints such as those by a judgment-debtor that bidders had not come or that the process-server had wrongly proclaimed that the sale would be held at some place other than the place at which it was to be held in fact, should be considered by the Court only when they are made to it in open Court in the usual way and not through a subordinate officer. 59 Ind. Cas. 167=44 Mad. 35=A. I. R. 1921 Mad. 583=12 M. L. W. 182=39 M. L. J. 188.

—Judge—Duty to protect witnesses harassed.

It is for the Judge when he sees that a counsel is harrasing or brow-beating a witness unduly or trying to suppress his answers, to intervene and protect the witnesses in the interests of justice. Duties of the Bench and the Bar to each other discussed. (1917) P. H. C. C. 230=2 Pat. L. W. 83=18 Cr. L. J. 670=40 Ind. Cas. 318.

—Judge—Interested in case—Duty of.

A judge should not try any case in which it is presumed he has the smallest personal interest or bias. 15 C. L. J. 162=14 Ind. Cas. 458.

—Court's Duty—See Minor 9 Bom. L. R. 1114.

—Issues—Appealable case—Duty of Judge to give findings.

In all cases from which an appeal lies the trying Judge should determine and give findings on all issues, so that the appellate Court might have the benefit of the view of the evidence taken by the trying Judge. A. I. R. 1949 H. P. 7.

—Duty of Court—Appealable case—Duty to decide and give findings on all issues.

It is the duty of lower Courts, which are Courts of fact, to pronounce their opinion on all the important points in appealable cases, as failure to do so usually necessitates a remand. The practice of Courts of fact forbearing from deciding all the issues in the case ought to be severely disapproved. (1946) P. W. N. 321=13 B. R. 382=230 Ind. Cas. 88=A. I. R. 1947 Pat. 185. (S. B.).

—Duty of Court—Disposal of suit on preliminary issues without recording findings on all issues—Propriety of—Necessity to avoid—Duty of Court.

The practice of disposing of suits on findings arrived at on some issues only without recording findings on all the issues in the case must be avoided as, in the event of the appellate Court disagreeing with the findings of the trial Court there has to be a remand of the suit, and consequent prolongation of the proceedings with needless expense to the parties. 53 Mys. H. C. R. 322.

—Duty of Court—Finding on all points to be recorded—Disposal of case summarily on one or two issues only—Propriety of.

The practice of Subordinate Courts disposing of cases summarily without recording evidence on all the issues and disposing of the cases on one or two issues which they consider sufficient to decide the case is extremely unsatisfactory and must be deprecated. In all appealable cases Courts should record their findings and pronounce their opinion on all the important points in the case, in order to avoid a remand on appeal resulting in additional heavy cost. 53 Mys. H.C.R. 73=28 Mys. L.J. 117.

—Duty of Court—Findings on all points to be recorded in appealable cases.

It is the duty of lower Courts to pronounce their opinion on all the important points in appealable cases as a failure to do so often necessitates a remand with the consequence of heavy additional costs. 52 Mys. H.C.R. 426=28 Mys. L.J. 14.

—Duty of court—Complete consideration of all issues.

It is better for trial Court to decide all the issues in order to save time and prevent remands in case the Appellate Court disagrees with it on questions of law or on questions of fact. 119 Ind. Cas. 330=30 P.L.R. 645=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 221.

—Judgment—Completeness—Walsh, J.

Even if a suit is dismissed upon a preliminary point it is of the greatest advantage to the parties and to the appellate Court that all the issues should be determined because preliminary points are sometimes unsound and if they are overruled in the appellate Court, the appellate Court is then seized of all the material which enables it to dispose of the suit if it happens to disagree with the first Court. 103 Ind. Cas. 428=25 A.L.J. 857=A.I.R. 1927 All. 669.

—Court must decide every issue allowing both parties, opportunity to be heard, though question raised in the issue was one which might have been disposed of on the allegations in the plaint itself. 90 Ind. Cas. 749=48 All. 44=23 A.L.J. 901=6 L.R.A. (Civ.) 488=A.I.R. 1926 All. 36.

—In appealable cases an opinion should be expressed on all the important points, to avoid the necessity of a remand by the appellate Court. 76 Ind. Cas. 772=A.I.R. 1923 Nag. 322.

—In appealable cases the Courts below should as far as may be practicable, pronounce their opinion on all the important points so as to avoid remand expense and delay. 74 Ind. Cas. 906=32 M.L.T. 115=50 Cal. 243=27 C.W.N. 749=37 C.L.J. 561=50 I.A. 247=A.I.R. 1922 P.C. 405=44 M.L.J. 388 (P.C.).

—Judgment—General issues—Judgment to be full.

Where petitions raising important questions of law or fact are made to a court, it should proceed to deal with them fully as the failure in many cases involves remand which is undesirable. 1 Pat. L.T. 582=(1920) P.H.C.C. 261=58 Ind. Cas. 489.

—Judgment—Decision—Duty of Court if issue framed and evidence taken thereon.

Where an express issue is raised and evidence is given thereon by both parties, it is incumbent on the court to come to a conclusion thereon. 57 Ind. Cas. 524 (Pat.).

—Judgment—Trial Court—Decision—Issues.

A trial Court should not after recording all the evidence confine its decision to the trial of one issue 5 L.W. 228=38 Ind. Cas. 188.

—Judgment—Contents of—Appealable cases—Duty of Lower Court.

In appealable cases, the Lower Court should as far as possible pronounce its opinion on all the issues raised. 5 W.R.P.C. 53 Foll. 1 L.W. 416=94 Ind. Cas. 87.

(c). Conduct of suit.

—Duty of Court—Reliance on and decision on basis of suspicions and conjectures—Duty to give effect to documents proved in the case.

The rights of parties to a litigation cannot be decided on mere suspicions or conjectures; the law presumes in favour of honest dealing. Where the documents proved in the case evidence a definite arrangement or fact, they cannot be explained away on hypothetical grounds. 1949 F.C.R. 441=A.I.R. 1950 F.C. 21=51 Bom. L.R. 906=1949 F.L.J. 374.

—Documents forming basis of claim—Consideration of.

When the rights of the parties are governed by a written document, it is essential to study and to follow the terms of such document, just as it is necessary, when a Court is administering the sections of a Code that it should study the exact language of the section, before troubling itself about decided cases on general considerations. 26 A.L.J. 446=A.I.R. 1923 All. 230.

—Plaintiff alleging defendant is a co debtor and that defendant asserting that he is a surety—Case to be disposed of only after taking evidence.

Where the plaintiff alleges that a particular defendant is co-debtor while that defendant asserts that he is only a surety, the Court should dispose of the case only after taking down the evidence of the parties in the matter. A.I.R. 1950 Ajmer 9 (I).

—Fraud on Court—Party obtaining adjournment on strength of telegram of witness.

Where a party obtains an adjournment on the strength of a telegram from one of his witnesses that he had missed a train, even if the statement of the witness was false, the party to the suit cannot be made to suffer because there was no fraud on his part. 1949 A.M.L.J. 28.

—Duty of Court—Case between aborigines and sophisticated persons—Duty of Court to be on guard and to take commonsense view.

When dealing with simple aborigines liable to exploitation at the hands of more sophisticated people, the Courts are in duty bound to be perpetually on their guard to take a commonsense view and to endeavour to penetrate through the statements made before them to the actual realities behind. 228 Ind. Cas. 192=13 B.R. 150=29 P.L.T. 93=A.I.R. 1948 Pat. 10.

—Duty of Court—Evidence tendered at late stage—Conflict between procedure and substantial rights of parties.

As a general rule, evidence should never be shut out. Opportunity should always be given to the parties to give evidence, if the justice of the case requires it. It does not matter if the original omission to give evidence arose from negligence or carelessness. However negligent or careless may have been the first omission and however late the proposed evidence, it should be allowed if that can be done without injustice to the other side. There is no injustice if the other side can be compensated by costs. But if the other side by the production of such evidence is seriously prejudiced, which cannot be remedied, the Court shall not exercise the discretion.

The procedure of the Court is to aid the administration of justice and not to hamper it. Where in the peculiar circumstances of a case, there is a conflict between the law of procedure and the substantial rights of the parties, it is the duty of the Judge or the Court to ignore the procedure. 53 C.W.N. 770=84 C.L.J. 313.

—Duty of Court—Trial of suit—Defendant not appearing—Evidence required of plaintiff.

Where the defendant does not appear and the Court requires the plaintiff to adduce prima facie evidence, it should take just enough evidence to satisfy itself that a prima facie case has been established. In any event it should at least tell the plaintiff how much evidence it requires. Otherwise the plaintiff will be bound to adduce all his evidence in every undefended case and proceed as fully as he would have done in a defended action. I.L.R. (1947) Nag. 982=A.I.R. 1948 Nag. 168=1948 N.L.J. 72.

—Undefended suit—Mere absence or defence is not enough for plaintiff's success which should be founded on the strength of the plaintiff's claim by itself. 84 Ind. Cas. 65=39 C.L.J. 569=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 75.

—Duty of Court—Evidence—Lower Court should carefully consider entire material on record for giving finding of fact.

The High Court is bound to accept as final the findings of fact arrived at by the lower Appellate Courts. It is therefore all the more necessary for these Courts to give such finding after a careful consideration of the entire important material on the record which may have a bearing on the questions at issue. 123 Ind. Cas. 573=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 12.

—Question of fact—Court should examine parties and sift the evidence.

A suit was instituted for the recovery of money due on a promissory note alleged to have been executed in favour of plaintiff by the defendant who was illiterate. The promote bore a blurred thumb mark. The defendant denied the execution of the promote and pleaded enmity. The trial Court did not examine the plaintiff and defendant. While the scribe, one of the two witnesses examined, said that no money was paid in his presence and that the defendant refused to affix his thumb mark, the other stated quite the opposite. The Trial Court believing the latter witness decreed the claim.

Held, where the decision on a question of fact is final the duty of examining the parties and thoroughly sifting the evidence ought to be better realised by the Trial Courts. 25 O.C. 69=A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 122.

—Duty of Court—Impartiality—Correspondence with any one in the matter pending judicially before it.

It is objectionable for a Court to enter into correspondence with regard to a matter pending judicially before it, and it is illegal to take notice of the statements made in such correspondence by a person who has not chosen to substantiate them either by himself going into the witness-box or by leading other evidence. 107 Ind. Cas. 397=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 456.

—Court should not act on information received in absence of parties.

The Court is not entitled to act on information received in the absence of the parties nor can it base its judgment on its own knowledge of the facts. To say that the Court could have come to the same conclusion on the other material before it is no answer. If the case is brought within the general principle that the Judge's mind may, by a possibility, have been biased, there is sufficient objection. 92 Ind. Cas. 792=47 Mad. 800=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 145=48 M.L.J. 89.

—Court's mind should not be influenced by irrelevant and inadmissible evidence. 95 Ind. Cas. 137 (Lah.).

—Duty of Court—Hearing—Allahabad High Court Rules—Time fixed for the sitting of Subordinate Judges—Taking up of a fresh case by the Subordinate Judge after the expiry of the time fixed—Propriety.

Though a Subordinate Judge might be justified in sitting beyond the period of time fixed by the Allahabad High Court for the sitting of Subordinate Judges in that Province for the purpose of continuing the hearing of a case the hearing of which has already started, or taking up a fresh case, with the consent of parties, it would be too much to expect that the litigants should wait for indefinite hours, without being told when their cases are likely to be taken up. 121 Ind. Cas. 551=1930 A.L.J. 670.

—A case fixed on a particular date cannot be taken up prior to that date unless the parties consent to it. 105 Ind. Cas. 271=6 Pat. 108=A.I.R. 1927 Pat. 354.

—Duty of Court—Moral rules.

Moral rules which may be very satisfactory as moral rules should not be introduced into the administration of justice. 97 Ind. Cas. 604=24 M.L.W. 318=1926 M.W.N. 661=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 1017=31 M.L.J. 387.

—Duty of Court—Point not raised by parties.

Court ought not to decide a case on a point not raised by parties. 92 Ind. Cas. 241=7 L.L.J. 542=26 P.L.R. 840=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 96.

—Duty of Court—Pleadings.

Subordinate Courts should confine themselves to the pleadings of the parties and not usurp the functions of the Kaji of old who sat under a tree and dispensed natural justice without being hampered by any pleadings or evidence. 81 Ind. Cas. 573=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 142.

—Court should dismiss suit if it disbelieves plaintiff or should allow amendment—Passing decree in plaintiff's favour after such disbelief is wrong.

78 Ind. Cas. 162=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 521.

—Court is nobody's agent.

The Court is nobody's agent. It is a tribunal to decide disputes between two parties and must, with a view to perform its functions justly and properly, act independently of any of the two parties engaged in a litigation before it. 75 Ind. Cas. 267=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 264.

—Failure of the suit on the main cause of action—Trial of suit on other unnecessary issues—Parties.

Plaintiff sued for possession of their mother's property on the ground that she was dead.

Held, that the cause of action in the case was the death of the mother, and if that was found against, it was not competent to the Court to deal with the questions of the paternity of the plaintiff and the validity of the gift by the mother. Where these questions were not presented by the plaintiffs as separate and substantive questions affecting rights other than that of possession.

Held, also, that the validity of the gift by the mother, the mother being alive, could only be determined with her as a party to the suit. The circumstance that some of the media concludendi might be the same in another action does not vest the Court with any right or duty to pronounce upon them in a suit, which has gone before the Board because of the failure of the ground of the action. (1907) 7 C.L.J. 44=17 M.L.J. 626=12 C.W.N. 227=35 C. 189=10 Bom. L.R. 9=2 M.L.T. 509=14 Bur. L.R. 101=35 I.A. 38 (P.C.).

—Hearing—Deciding case without hearing party—Proper procedure.

It is an elementary principle which is binding on all persons who exercise judicial or quasi-judicial powers, that an order should not be made against a man's interest without there being given him an opportunity of being heard. The proper remedy of the party against whom the order has been made without hearing him is to apply to the same authority for a re-hearing. (1906) 4 C.L.J. 177=3 A.L.J. 698=8 Bom. L.R. 719=16 M.L.J. 365=1 M.L.T. 308=10 C.W.N. 969=33 C. 1178=33 I.A. 134 (P.C.).

Mistake of Court—Relief to parties against injustice caused by its own mistake or oversight. See C.P. CODE, S. 151. A.I.R. 1950 Pat. 350.

—Mistake of party leading to mistake on part of Court's officers—Right of party to take advantage of own mistake and plead mistake of Court as excuse.

A party cannot be allowed to take advantage of his own wrong; where the decree-holder-purchaser's wrong calculation and mistake lead to a mistake and wrong calculation on the part of the officers of Court and the deposit made by the decree-holder falling short, application is made by judgment-debtor for setting aside the sale, the decree-holder cannot be heard to say that the sale should not be set aside on the ground of the inadequacy of the deposit and plead the mistake of the Court's officers in defence. A.I.R. 1951 Cal. 319.

—Duty of Court—No injustice.

Where the facts of the case show that the claim of the plaintiff is utterly inequitable and unjust, his case is clean out of the principle: "One of the first and highest duties of all Courts is to take care that the act of the Court does no injustice to any of the suitors." 1930 M.W.N. 524=32 M.L.W. 357=53 Mad. 943=128 Ind. Cas. 509=59 M.L.J. 893=A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 921.

—A general duty is obligatory on Courts and a corresponding power is inherent in them to see that no party suffers from their own acts. 83 Ind. Cas. 138=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 365.

—Courts having jurisdiction are bound to see that no injury is done by their acts.

One of the first and highest duties of all Courts is to take care that the act of the Court does no injury to any of the suitors and when the expression 'the act of the Court' is used, it does not mean merely the act of the primary Court or of any intermediate Court of

12 F. Y. D—47.

Appeal, but the act of the Court as a whole from the lowest Court which entertains jurisdiction over the matter up to the highest Court which finally disposes of the case. It would be inequitable and contrary to justice that the judgment-debtor should be restored to his property without making good to the auction-purchaser the moneys which have been applied for his benefit. 69 Ind. Cas. 278=27 C.W.N. 582=37 C.L.J. 351=21 A.L.J. 490=25 Bom. L.R. 643=1923 M.W.N. 368=4 L.R.P.C. 117=18. (e). Formal Defects.

—Duty of Courts is not to allow mere technicalities.

It is the duty of the Courts to administer justice taking a broad view and not to allow litigants to take advantage of legal technicalities and commit what is practically robbery by process of law. 74 Ind. Cas. 47=1 Bur. L.J. 111=A.I.R. 1923 Rang. 57.

—Formal defect—Court whether bound by technicalities.

A court should not be bound by any technicalities which regard to the form of the statement of claim in a plaint. 26 C.L.J. 105=41 Ind. Cas. 842.

—Formal defect—Not to defeat justice.

The object of rules of procedure is to provide for the best and most convenient mode of adjudication and they should not be converted into mere mechanical tests by which courts may save themselves the trouble of deciding the real issues between the parties. 24 Ind. Cas. 822 (Mad.).

—Formal defect—Application—Erroneous provision cited.

A court should not refuse an application simply because it asks the Court to exercise its admitted powers under a wrong section. 16 Ind. Cas. 614 (Cal.).

—Formal defect—Court's duty.

Mere grounds of equity do not justify a court in construing an application as something essentially different from what it is. 5 S. L.R. 68=11 Ind. Cas. 77.

—Formal defect—Not to be penalised.

Courts must look to the essential justice of the case and the substance and merits and not matters of form. 10 C.L.J. 517=3 Ind. Cas. 34.

—Formal defect—Application under wrong section.

A Court will not refuse an application, proper on the merits, and within the power of the Court to grant, merely because it was asked for, under a wrong section. 10 C.L.J. 91=1 Ind. Cas. 677.

(f). Framing of Issues.

—Practice—Duty of Court—Illegality appearing on facts and not raised by opponent—Duty to frame issue.

Both in India and in England Courts are bound to take notice of any ground of illegality appearing on facts stated in a party's pleading or disclosed otherwise though his opponent does not raise it in his pleading. A Court could frame an issue if it finds that it arises out of pleadings or is involved thereon. I. L. R. (1950) Nag. 105=A.I.R. 1950 Nag. 71=1950 N.L.J. 297.

—Duty of Court—Issues—Framing of—Duty to read pleadings carefully and frame issues and note points really in dispute—Adoption of draft issues—Propriety—Admission of evidence.

It is always safe for the Judges of lower Courts to read the pleadings carefully, frame issues (without adopting the draft issues framed by the advocates of parties blindly) and be familiar with the points really in dispute so as to enable them not merely to check unnecessary evidence but also unnecessary arguments on points which do not really arise. Copies of numerous documents should not be lugged in at a late stage or relied upon without any evidence of the same. A.I.R. 1950 Mys. 33 (F. B.).

—Court need not raise issue not put forward by parties—Where parties have not been misled, defect in form of issues is immaterial. 83 Ind. Cas. 360=16 S.L.R. 207=A.I.R. 1922 Sind 159 (F.B.).

—Issues—Duty of Court to raise.

An issue should be raised and a finding given by the Court on every question necessary for the right decision of a suit. But where the pleadings raise an issue with sufficient clearness it is immaterial that the plea was not put forward in a particular form. (1914) M.W.N. 595=25 Ind Cas. 123.

(g). Grant of relief.

—Duty of Court—Right to relief—Basis of.

It is the duty of a Court to apply the principles of law to the particular case before it, and determine not merely the right but the extent to which the parties are entitled to remedy. A party seeking a relief has to prove his right to it and the Court cannot give him relief on inferences. A.I.R. 1950 M. B. 41.

—Duty of Court—Incorrect provision of law quoted—If conclusive as to relief to be granted—Substance of prayer to be considered.

The duty of Court is to look at the substance of the application presented to it in order to grant relief, and the fact that the applicant quotes an incorrect provision of law should not be taken into account. 3 A.I. Cr. D. 242.

—Duty of Court—Precedents.

The Court should be reluctant to dissent from the view expressed in long established decided cases and thereby not only to unsettle the law but also to endanger the security of property and title, dangers which are not associated with changes brought about by legislative intervention. 68 Ind. Cas. 219=35 C.L.J. 36=26 G.W.N. 703=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 331.

—Consideration of cases cited.

Where the lower Appellate Court refused to consider cases cited by the appellant and reserved the decision of the trial Court on flimsy grounds.

Held, that it was the duty of the lower Appellate Court to consider the cases cited and that his refusal to do so was improper. 63 Ind. Cas. 290=3 Pat. L.T. 143=1 Pat. 44 1921 P.H.C.G. 349=A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 56.

—Precedents—Unanimity among judicial decisions in India.

Per Jenkins J.—It is desirable, and is in the interests of justice, that so far as possible there should be unanimity among several courts on those matters where local conditions do not call for different results. (1902) 4 Bom. L.R. 688=27 B. 1 (F.B.).

(i) Question of law.

—Duty of Court—Practice—Point not raised in first Court—Consideration of.

Per Halifax, A J.C.—There is no justification for a refusal to consider a plea of law that the parties being Gonds are not governed by the Hindu Law, in appeal on the fact that it is not raised in the first Court. It is the business of the Court to discover the law applicable to the facts laid before it even without the aid of suggestions made to it by the parties in the form of pleas. 118 Ind. Cas. 871=A.I.R. 1930 Nag. 35.

—The Court is in duty bound to consider the legal aspect of the case as they appear on the record whether specifically pleaded or not. 127 Ind. Cas. 173=A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 264.

—Courts have no right to legislate however desirable that legislation may be on principle. 119 Ind. Cas. 376=49 C.L.J. 422=30 Cr.L.J. 1030=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 508.

—Cannot alter law but can only administer it.

It is not the province of the Judge to alter the law however opposed it may be to the consciousness of the people. It is his duty to administer it as he finds it. Where the law has been uniform for the last 60 years it will not be proper for Courts to alter it merely because it is opposed to the present consciousness of people, when the legislation could have altered it. 32 Mad. 351, Considered. 74 Ind. Cas. 27=16 M.L.W. 768=31 M.L.T. 389=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 153.

—Judge—Duties of.

The Judge's duty is to decide what according to the best of his judgment the law is and not to declare what the law ought to be. 4 S.L.R. 209=12 Cr.L.J. 119=9 Ind. Cas. 718.

—Court—Functions of—Duty to declare the law.

The court has to ascertain and declare what the law is and not what it ought to be. 34 Bom. 72=11 Bom. L.R. 255=2 Ind. Cas. 173.

—The proper method of trying a case is by arriving at findings of fact first and applying the law to them afterwards. 116 Ind. Cas. 285=51 All. 519=1929 A.L.J. 115=A.I.R. 1929 All. 170.

—A Court should first decide the points or law involved in issues and then, if necessary, refer any matters to a commissioner. 113 Ind. Cas. 646=A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 121.

—Court must itself find and examine all pleas of law that apply to facts of the case.

Court must find and examine all pleas of law that may possibly apply to the facts for itself. It must not wait for the parties even to suggest them, still less for the parties to plead them, which they are expressly forbidden to do by the Civil Procedure Code. Refusal by a Judge to examine a question of law applicable to the facts because it was not "pleaded" earlier is his own condemnation; he ought to see it for himself earlier.

but anyhow he should hasten to repair the results of his own inadvertence when a party reminds him of it. 107 Ind. Cas. 513=A.I.R. 1928 Nag. 206.

—Court itself should find out law applicable to the case.

By R. 2 of O. 6 parties are forbidden to state more than facts in their pleadings, and though counsel can and do help in finding out the law applicable to those facts and presenting it to the Court, it still remains the duty of the Court alone to discover and apply the law applicable to the facts found proved. 93 Ind. Cas. 103=A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 313.

—Court must find and apply law though not pleaded.

The common idea that a Court is not bound to consider, or rather is bound not to consider, any view of the law in respect of the facts before it except such as is laid before it formally by the parties or their pleaders, if they happen to have any, and further is required to answer nothing but 'yes' or 'no' to any plea of law that may be taken is wrong. It is the duty of the Court whether with or without help of the parties or their pleaders to discover for itself and to apply the law applicable to the facts pleaded and proved. 92 Ind. Cas. 926=A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 265.

23. Practice—Ejectment.

See also EJECTMENT.

—Ejectment suit—Burden of proof—Duty of plaintiff.

A plaintiff in a suit for ejectment has to prove not only his possession within 12 years but also his title to the property in suit. If he fails to prove his title, his suit has to be dismissed. Where the plaintiff sues for possession of lands on the basis of a permanent heritable grant of the lands in favour of his ancestor burdened with the performance of a duty, he can only succeed if he proves his title, namely, he must prove by evidence when, why and to whom the grant was made and who was in possession of the lands before his ancestor. On failure of proof, no grant in favour of his ancestor or family can be inferred. A.I.R. 1950 Pat. 302.

—Ejectment—Redemption—Separate suit necessary.

In a suit for possession by vendee the defendant can redeem the mortgage if the plaintiff is found entitled to possession as mortgagee. A separate suit for redemption is not necessary. 7 O.L.J. 342=2 U.P.L.R. (J. C.) 123=57 Ind. Cas. 541.

—Ejectment—Redemption.

The practice of the Bombay High Court to pass a decree for redemption in a suit in ejectment is purely discretionary. 35 Bom. 507=13 Bom. L.R. 895=12 Ind. Cas. 387.

—Ejectment—Suit on title—Decree on the strength of prescriptive acquisition.

The question whether a plaintiff can succeed on a title by adverse possession not set up in the plaint depends mainly on the facts of each particular case and more particularly on whether the defendant has or has not been taken by surprise and whether he has had an opportunity of meeting the case so set up. 53 Ind. Cas. 639 (Cal.).

—Ejectment—Suit on title—Plea of adverse possession—Burden of proof.

The onus is on the defendant to plead and prove the adverse possession for the statutory period in a suit for declaration of title based on the defendant's alleged repudiation of it. 39 M. 617, Foll. 37 Ind. Cas. 794 (All.).

—Ejectment—Title—Pleadings.

A sued B for possession of certain property. A claimed under a registered deed of gift made by the daughter of the last owner of the property. B claimed as the adopted son of the last owner. The question to be decided was whether B, failing in his defence as to adoption could set up that A's deed of gift was invalid.

Held, that B could not set up that plea. He could not rely on the ground of attack open to the donor if the latter sued the donee, within limitation, to set aside the deed. The title of the donee could not be challenged by a third party without a title so long as the registered deed is there. 36 Bom. 37=13 Bom. L.R. 947=12 Ind. Cas. 532.

—Ejectment—Partition suit by Hindu sons for possession of property improperly alienated by their father—Suit allowed—Decree, form of.

In a suit by Hindu sons for possession of property improperly alienated by their father the decree which allows the sons' claim should direct recovery of the whole property declaring at the same time that the purchaser had acquired the share and interest of the alienor and is entitled to take proceedings to have it ascertained by partition. But if there is an alternative prayer for partition, the Court should at once decree partition as the theoretical objection to it disappears. 41 Bom. 347=19 Bom. L.R. 69=39 Ind. Cas. 23.

—Ejectment—Decree for redemption—Costs—Conditional decree.

To avoid further litigation over matters substantially ripe for settlement, the Privy Council acceded to the plaintiff's prayer that his suit in ejectment should be converted into one for redemption of certain mortgages to which the property was held to be subject, on terms as to costs viz., that plaintiff should pay the defendant's costs in the Courts in India and each party to bear his costs of the Privy Council appeal. 35 All. 211=25 M.L.J. 111=(1913) M.W.N. 500=13 M.L.T. 488=11 A.L.J. 494=17 C.L.J. 555=15 Bom. L.R. 502=17 C.W.N. 853=40 I.A. 105=19 Ind. Cas. 267 (P.C.).

—Ejectment—Decree for partition.

A suit in ejectment cannot be converted into one for partition. 37 Mad. 529=23 M.L.J. 189=(1912) M.W.N. 1127=15 Ind. Cas. 299.

—Ejectment—Decree for joint possession.

It is open to the Court to pass a decree for joint possession in a suit for exclusive possession, the plaintiff having been found so entitled, but the plaintiff cannot claim such a decree as of right. (1912) M.W.N. 1116=15 Ind. Cas. 665.

—Ejectment—Decree for joint possession..

Plaintiff sued for exclusive possession of certain lands and it was found that the lands belonged to him jointly with the defendant.

Held, the plaintiff could be given a decree for joint possession along with the defendant to the extent of his interest. 26 B 141, Foll. (1910) M.W.N. 261=8 M.L.T. 97=6 Ind. Cas. 502.

—Ejectment—Joint possession.

A plaintiff who has brought a suit in ejectment, finding that it is barred by limitation, cannot claim relief on the basis of a tenancy in common and ask joint possession. 33 Mad. 356=7 M.L.T. 95=5 Ind. Cas. 764.

—Ejectment—Decree for joint possession.

If the evidence establishes plaintiff's title to joint possession, decree should be passed to that effect though he claims exclusive possession. 19 C.L.J. 213=2 Ind. Cas. 492.

24. Practice—Election of remedies.

—Election of remedies.

Where there is nothing in the Code to limit a party to one particular mode of procedure, the fact that he gets a longer period of limitation by adopting a particular course is no ground for refusing relief. 9 L.W. 311=(1919) M.W.N. 246=37 M.L.J. 59=50 Ind. Cas. 327.

—Election of remedies—Inconsistent reliefs.

On election of one of two alternative remedies, a party on failure cannot seek the other remedy. 15 A.L.J. 661=33 Ind. Cas. 798.

—Election of remedies—Two remedies given by law—Right of party.

Where two remedies are given by law to a party he is entitled to avail himself of either of them unless they are inconsistent. 37 Mad. 29=10 M.L.T. 437=21 M.L.J. 1063=12 Ind. Cas. 664.

25. Practice—English Law.

See (1) PRECEDENTS AND (2) NOTE 40

—English law—Principles of—Applicability.

It is unsafe to adduce principles of English law without trying to discover whether there corresponds to those principles anything in our own law which may be said to constitute a recognition of those principles in all details. Pak. L.R. (1950) Lah. 1=A.I.R. 1950 Lah. 106.

—English law—Applicability.

English law may no doubt be useful in some cases but it can properly be invoked only when it is found applicable to the circumstances of this country. 11 Lah. 564=129 Ind. Cas. 21=31 P.L.R. 934=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 920.

—English law—Applicability to cases under Hindu law.

One must, in applying the principles of the English common law and not rules of the nature of procedure to a state of things which is created not entirely by the acts of the parties but by the necessary consequence of the relation in which they stand to one another by virtue of the provisions of Hindu law, remember that he is applying them to a totally different subject-matter. In view of that the provisions of law in such matters should be applied with greater flexibility than they would be applied in England. 101 Ind. Cas. 386=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 23.

(f) What is.

(g) Miscellaneous.

(a). Admission of.

—Evidence—Examination of witnesses—Prospective witness present in Court during examination of another witness—Bar, if, any to his examination as a witness.

The fact that one of the plaintiffs was present in Court when his co-plaintiff was giving evidence is no ground, for objecting to the recording of the former's evidence. But it will be for the trial Judge to decide how much weight is to be attached to that evidence. There is nothing in the C.P. Code, prohibiting the recording of evidence in such circumstances. 1946 A.M. L. J. 43.

—Examination of witnesses de bene esse—Irregular deposition—Objections should be taken at the earliest opportunity and not at hearing of action. 64 Ind. Cas. 785=33 C.L.J. 577=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 852.

—Evidence—Marking document by consent—Effect—If proof of allegations in the document.

Permitting a document to be marked by consent only means that the party consenting is willing to waive his right to have the document in question proved. Agreeing to the document being marked by consent certainly does not mean that the consenting party accepts the correctness of every statement made in that document. 1947 M.W.N. 753=A.I.R. 1948 Mad. 298=60 L.W. 803=(1947) 2 M.L.J. 535.

—Evidence—Document (Judgment) produced at late stage—Objection to admission on ground of production at late stage—If to be allowed.

A technical objection to the admission of a document, e.g., a judgment of a Court of law, on the question of the existence of ancient custom, based on the ground that it is produced at a late stage, should not be allowed to prevail, when the evidence is important and relevant to the case. A.I.R. 1950 Sind 26.

—Evidence—Admissibility.

—Objection to admission of document not taken in trial cannot be allowed to be taken in appeal. But the position is not the same where the document is inadmissible and unless it is admitted there is no alternative method of proving it. 57 Cal. 775=126 Ind. Cas. 550=A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 94.

—Objection as to improper admission of evidence, which is not inherently inadmissible, should be taken at the earliest opportunity and cannot be raised for the first time in appeal if the evidence has been allowed to be let in at the trial. 1 Pat. 606, Foll. 112 Ind. Cas. 385=A. I. R. 1929 Lah. 145.

—Evidence—Objections to.

—When a document has been accepted in evidence without an objection in the trial Court, the Appellate Court cannot allow the objection for the first time in appeal. 112 Ind. Cas. 461 (Lah.).

—Objections as to the admissibility of evidence will not as a general rule, be entertained for the first time in second appeal. 104 Ind. Cas. 518=39 M.L.T. 198=A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 1107.

—When application is made at a late stage in the case to put in evidence res noviter ad notitiam pervena, one of the primary duties of the applicant is to show that it was owing to no want of diligence on his part that the matter was not discovered before. 100 Ind. Cas. 77=31 C.W.N. 245=25 M.L.W. 400=1927 M.W.N. 190=38 M.L.T. 57=45 C.L.J. 308=29 Bom. L.R. 786=A. I. R. 1927 P.C. 27=52 M.L.J. 492 (P.C.).

—Where a party accepts the certificate of a thumb-impression expert without formal proof in the trial Court, he cannot be allowed in appeal to say that his evidence should be excluded for want of proof. 100 Ind. Cas. 922=A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 396.

—Evidence—Proof of.

The question of proof is a question of procedure and if it can be shown that the documents went in without any objection, it cannot be urged in the appellate Court that they were not properly proved in the Court below. 98 Ind. Cas. 968=8 P.L.T. 255=A. I. R. 1927 Pat. 117.

—Evidence—Formal defect.

High Court ought not in second appeal to reject a document admitted by lower Court in consequence of an error in form rather than in substance. 97 Ind. Cas. 200=43 C.L.J. 479=A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 988.

—Where a copy of the original document is allowed to be filed by the Court without objection, the question involved is not one of relevancy but is one of admissibility, and the objection as regards admissibility not having been raised in the Trial Court is not open in appeal. 84 Ind. Cas. 921=20 M.L.W. 719=35 M.L.T. 129=1924 M.W.N. 923=A. I. R. 1925 Mad. 257.

—Where the objection as to inadmissibility of the deed was taken in the first Court in the written statement but was afterwards dropped and was not put in issue and it was not taken in the grounds of appeal to the lower Appellate Court.

Held, no reason for remanding the case for an inquiry into the actual value of the property covered by the deed was clearly made out. 79 Ind. Cas. 440=A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 21.

—Where a document has not been tendered as a piece of evidence in the lower Court, but has been merely produced in compliance with an order of discovery, the argument of party being estopped by reason of his not having objected in the lower Court, from questioning the admissibility of the document in the Appellate Court, does not arise. 4 L.L.J. 385=A. I. R. 1921 Lah. 328.

—Evidence—Admissibility—Omission to object—Irrelevant document.

It is the duty of the Court to exclude an irrelevant document from evidence even if no objection is taken to its admissibility by the parties. Omission to object would not render it admissible. 5 Pat. L.J. 410=57 Ind. Cas. 561.

—Evidence—Admissibility—Objections on appeal.

The plea of the inadmissibility of a document for want of registration must be raised in the first Court and not in appeal. 57 Ind. Cas. 58. (Lah.).

—Evidence—Admissibility—Objection to second appeal.

No objection to the admissibility of a document can be taken for the first time in second appeal when an answer to the objection involves an enquiry into facts. 56 Ind. Cas. 816 (Cal.).

—Evidence—Admissibility—Objection to.

The objection to the admissibility of a document in evidence should be raised when the document is tendered. To raise objections to the admissibility of evidence, documentary or otherwise, for the first time in appeal is improper. 38 All. 366=14 A.L.J. 449=35 Ind. Cas. 701 (F.B.).

—Evidence—Admissibility of document—Objection in appellate Court.

Where no objection is taken to the admissibility of a document in the Lower Court, no such objection can be taken in the Appellate Court and the latter also cannot raise such an objection suo motu. 216 P.W.R. 1912=14 Ind. Cas. 539.

—Evidence—Admissibility—Award—Unstamped—Objection on appeal.

Objection that an award is ineffective as it is not stamped, cannot be taken for the first time in second appeal. 37 Cal. 63=10 C.L.J. 41=14 C.W.N. 75=2 Ind. Cas. 414.

—Non-objection to admissibility—Inadmissible document is not made admissible. 121 Ind. Cas. 334=8 Pat. 783=A. I. R. 1929 Pat. 739.

—Where no objection is raised to the admissibility of a document and both parties rely on it the document can be the basis of decision. A. I. R. 1924 Lah. 265, Foll. 9 L.L.J. 32=A. I. R. 1927 Lah. 888.

—The evidence of a witness cannot be admitted until the opposite party had an opportunity of cross-examining him. 117 Ind. Cas. 824=A. I. R. 1929 All. 236.

—Where there is any objection to the admissibility of an evidence, a final decision on the objection must be recorded before the Court proceeds to judgment. 93 Ind. Cas. 101=43 C.L.J. 237=30 C.W.N. 259=A. I. R. 1926 Cal. 752.

—Evidence—Admission of document—Subject to objections.

A Court acts improperly in admitting a document "subject to objection" and not deciding the objection. 1 Pat. L.T. 491=58 Ind. Cas. 247.

—Evidence—Procedure.

To admit everything first and afterwards determine the question of admissibility is entirely erroneous procedure. 84 Ind. Cas. 987=3 Bur. L.J. 231=2 Rang. 441=A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 61.

(b). Appellate Court.*—Evidence—Appellate Court.

Where in a protracted proceeding in lower Courts a party is offered plenty of opportunity to prove his case by adducing evidence, and the party does not produce the evidence then available, it is not permissible to that party to have the same evidence admitted in second appeal. 122 Ind. Cas. 342=A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 361.

—To put a translated copy of the vidence is not a satisfactory method of placing evidence before the High Court. 98 Ind. Cas. 1008=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 232.

—Second appeal—Lower Appellate Court improperly admitting additional evidence—Procedure.

Where the lower Appellate Court has admitted additional evidence improperly, the High Court can itself dispose of the case only in such cases where independently of the evidence improperly admitted the lower Court has apparently arrived at its conclusion upon other grounds. 98 Ind. Cas. 129=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 140.

—Appellate Court will interfere with decision as to admissibility of evidence to prevent a clear miscarriage of justice. 97 Ind. Cas. 785=24 M.L.W. 227=A. I. R. 1926 Mad. 1003.

—Public document rejected and produced with a new entry at later stage requires special application.

Where after the return of a public document by the trial Court and before its production again in the Appellate Court an entry is made therein, and the party producing it wishes the Appellate Court to treat the new entry as part of the record, a special application should be made to that effect. 75 Ind. Cas. 465=18 M.L.W. 324=1923 M.W.N. 732=A. I. R. 1924 Mad. 117.

—There is no precedent for allowing an appellant to lead evidence, which could have been led in the Court below, in appeal. 77 Ind. Cas. 515=A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 147.

—Evidence—Shutting out of—Appellate Court—Duty of.

The failure of a Court to examine witnesses is a good ground for interference under S. 100, C.P.C. The Lower Appellate Court should not disregard the plea even if its raised at the hearing of the appeal without having been raised in the memorandum of appeal as it is a matter which could not take the other side by surprise and which clearly affects the decision on the merits. 3 Bur. L.T. 146=8 Ind. Cas. 990.

(c). Appreciation.

See also C. P. CODE, O. 20, R. 14.

—Maxims—Falsa demonstratio non nocet—Deed with map annexed to it—Map inaccurate—Map can be disregarded.

No doubt a map annexed to a deed is a part of the contract and as a rule must be used as evidence of the parcels, but an inaccurate map does not affect or vitiate a clear description of the parcel, although under certain circumstances a map or survey may override a description of parcel. If further the parcel of land be loosely described in deed and map inaccurate, but the boundaries demarcated on the land by cairns of stones which have been in perfect accordance with the agreement map if inaccurate is a falsa demonstratio and boundary marked on land is conclusive. 31 Bom. L.R. 1433, =A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 125=124 Ind. Cas. 113.

—Where both the parties have tendered evidence the question of weight is not a question of law. 120 Ind. Cas. 193=31 Cr.L.J. 1=1930 Cr.C. 39=1930 A. L. J. 254=A.I.R. 1930 All. 23.

—It is not open to a Court in second appeal to appraise the value of evidence on the value of which both the lower Courts had agreed. 111 Ind. Cas. 843=A. I. R. 1929 Oudh 41.

—The fact that an attesting witness does not remember at a distance of time where ants the execution signed the mortgage bond and which of the attesting witnesses signed first is no reason for disbelieving his evidence which is formally sufficient to prove execution and attestation, nor is the fact that his signature finds a place on the deed below that of another attesting witness who stated that he signed the deed as a marginal witness, although the executants did not sign it in his presence, sufficient to show that his evidence of attestation is untrue. 119 Ind. Cas. 405=8 Pat. 450=10 P.L.T. 379=A.I.R. 1929 Pat. 422.

—Cumulative effect of all documents should be taken into account.

It is an erroneous method of dealing with the evidence to consider whether each document produced in a case is by itself sufficient to rebut the prima facie presumption that the family is joint, but what ought to be done should be that cumulative effect of all the documents should be taken into account. 31 All. 412; 4 O.L.J. 124, and A.I.R. 1926 Oudh 511, Foll. 112 Ind. Cas. 387=5 O.W.N. 992=4 Luck. 138=A. I. R. 1928 Oudh 509.

—Conspiracy case.

In cases of conspiracies it is difficult for the prosecution to secure outside and independent evidence. The prosecution has to depend upon evidence of people who are engaged in detecting crimes of this sort. In a case like this therefore the evidence of such persons should be scrutinized and received with a great deal of caution. 100 Ind. Cas. 113=31 C.W.N. 239=28 Cr.L.J. 241=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 265.

—Absence of entry—Value of.

The absence of entry in a document may be evidence though its effect is to be determined in the light of the general evidence and if it is admissible in evidence it is for the Court dealing with the facts to attach such weight to it as it thinks proper. A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 64.

—Entry in a Register.

Where the question was as to the date of death of one L and the plaintiff appellants produced in support of their assertion that L died on a certain day, an alleged private register in which the crucial entry was apparently interpolated among faded brown entries and was seen in bright blue ink.

Held, that the register was not of such a character as to enable their Lordships to pronounce affirmatively that the entry in question was made at the date alleged. 26 Bom. L.R. 563=20 M.L.W. 1=A.I.R. 1924 P. C. 136=46 M.L.J. 541 (P.C.).

—Discrepancies in small details.

Discrepancies in small details, such as whether the deceased was standing or sitting, facing north or facing south when he was struck, who it was that pulled out the spear and so forth are of no help to discredit the evidence. 71 Ind. Cas. 657=37 C.L.J. 173=24 Cr.L.J. 193=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 463.

—Interested witnesses—Corroborated by other evidence—Testimony can be believed. 75 Ind. Cas. 359=6 L.L.J. 62=24 Cr. L.J. 935=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 598.

—A few (say two) casual and somewhat ambiguous phrases in a deposition cannot destroy the very clear effect of the whole deposition. 79 Ind. Cas. 422=7 N.L.J. 217=A.I.R. 1923 Nag. 265.

—Evidence—Appreciation—Corroboration,

Part of a statement of an unreliable witness may be admitted if corroborated by other reliable witnesses. 47 Cal. 254=31 C.L.J. 209=24 C.W.N. 425=21 Cr. L. J. 522=56 Ind. Cas. 778.

—Evidence—Appreciation of—Attention paid to witnesses speaking to good character of accused.

A Court in taking proceedings under S. 110, Cr. P. Code ought to pay particular attention to the evidence of witnesses produced by accused about his good character, and though not bound to believe, should have good reasons to disbelieve such evidence before making an order. If it fails to do so, the order can be revised. 13 A.L.J. 1055=16 Cr.L.J. 810=31 Ind. Cas. 826.

—Evidence—Appreciation of—Witness improving on his former statement.

It is unsafe to rely upon a witness who materially improves upon his former statement. The presence of blood-stains on articles of clothing or on the accused's person is not conclusive evidence of guilt in a murder case and may be explained in various ways. 43 P.W.R. 1914 Cr.=16 Cr.L.J. 75=212 P.L.R. 1915=26 Ind. Cas. 667.

—Evidence—Appreciation of—Evidence distrusted in part, if should be rejected altogether.

When the evidence produced in a particular case is distrusted in certain particulars by the Court, it is not necessary that it should distrust the whole. 89 P.L.R. 1914=15 Cr. L.J. 148=30 P.W.R. 1914 Cr.=22 Ind. Cas. 724.

—Evidence—Appreciation of—Conflicting evidence—Mass of oral and documentary evidence.

Where there is a mass of oral and documentary evidence of a directly conflicting nature let in on behalf of the two parties on a vital question in a case, the decision should be based on the documentary evidence, which should afford a basis for decision as to the credibility of witnesses. The safe principle is to consider which story fits in with the admitted circumstances. 14 Ind. Cas. 99 (Oudh.)

—Evidence—Appreciation of—Divergent allegation of parties—Conflict of oral testimony—Safe course.

Where there are divergent allegations of the parties and there is also a conflict of oral testimony, the safe course to adopt is to test the evidence in the light of facts, admitted or proved beyond doubt. 15 C.L.J. 621=13 Ind. Cas. 678.

—Evidence—Appreciation of—Variation in evidence—Finding of Court—Discretion.

For a Court to come to the conclusion that evidence as given by either party does not represent the true state of affairs, is not uncommon. (1911) 2 M.W.N. 197=12 Ind. Cas. 208.

—Evidence—Cross-examination—Court, if can fix time limit for.

A court cannot fix a time limit within which the cross-examination of a witness is to be finished. 8 Ind. Cas. 418 (Oudh).

—Evidence—Pleadings.

A plaintiff must succeed upon the strength of his own title rather than upon the defendant's weakness. 6 Ind. Cas. 709 (All.).

—Evidence—Appreciation of.

Where witnesses of the same status, on the two sides contradict each other and their evidence is not easily reconcilable, the only safe course will be to rely upon the action and conduct of the principal parties and the contents of documents produced. 31 All. 116=36 I.A. 9=5 M.L.T. 58=9 C.L.J. 172=13 C.W.N. 370=11 Bom. L.R. 196=19 M.L.J. 186=1 Ind. Cas. 128 (P.C.)

—Evidence—Court's duty.

Court must record all evidence whether satisfactory or otherwise—It cannot discard witnesses merely because party himself says that they are not likely to improve on witnesses gone before. 119 Ind. Cas. 330=30 P.L.R. 645=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 221.

—Evidence—Record of, how made.

A Magistrate should record the evidence for the defence with the same care and precision as that for the prosecution; otherwise his opinion that the evidence is false cannot be easily found out. 2 U.P.L.R. (All.) 113=21 Cr. L.J. 55=56 Ind. Cas. 856.

—Party privileged under law—Court must look for evidence to hold that he had contracted out of privilege. 110 Ind. Cas. 750=10 L.R.A. (Rev.) 73=A.I.R. 1928 All. 693.

—Cross-examination, stopping of.

The Courts have full power to prevent any abuse of the rights of cross-examination in any manner appropriate to the circumstances of the case; but before passing an order stopping further cross-examination, it must satisfy itself that questions were being asked which could not affect the result of the suit, in short, that the right of cross-examination was being abused. A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 124.

—Suspicious circumstances—Decision must be based on legal testimony and not suspicion. 11 M.I.A. 28, Foll. 62 Ind. Cas. 455=2 P.L.T. 658=6 P.L.J. 218=A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 125.

—Evidence—Examination of witness after close of case.

It is bad procedure to examine a party, after the arguments in the case are over, regarding a clear statement made by him on a previous occasion. 48 P.W.R. 1909=2 P.L.R. 1909=4 Ind. Cas. 632.

Quantum of.

—Principles applicable to civil cases as distinguished from those applicable to criminal cases explained.

So far as civil cases are concerned, there are certain well-recognized principles which could be invoked for guidance. If the matter arose in a criminal case, then the standard of proof that would be required before the accused could be convicted would be quite different from the standard of proof required in disposing of civil disputes. In civil proceedings a mere preponderance of probability is sufficient, whereas in criminal proceedings there must be such a moral certainty as convinces the minds of the tribunal as reasonable men beyond all reasonable doubt. Again if the Court should find in any particular case that the evidence is so equally balanced, that it is not able to prefer the evidence on the one side to the evidence on the other, then naturally it has to ask itself the question: On whom does the burden of proof in this particular case lie? If the person on whom such onus of proof lies does not discharge it to the satisfaction of the Court then the case of that person must fail. 110 Ind. Cas. 21=1928 M.W.N. 98=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 489.

—Proof in civil and criminal cases.

What circumstances will constitute proof can never be the subject of a general definition. But one thing is clear that in civil cases what is required or considered sufficient is preponderance of probability, while in criminal cases owing to the serious consequences of an erroneous condemnation both to the accused and society, the persuasion of guilt must amount to such a moral certainty as convinces the minds of the tribunals as reasonable men, beyond all reasonable doubt. 79 Ind. Cas. 609=A.I.R. 1924 Nag. 385.

—Evidence—What is.

The mere sending for a record does not make the record evidence in the case. 98 Ind. Cas. 881=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 69.

—A party cannot be allowed to refer to a document not on the record and deliberately withheld by him both from inspection and from the proof. 99 Ind. Cas. 507=1926 P.H.C.G. 344=8 P.L.J. 431=A.I.R. 1927 Pat. 93.

—Conviction for criminal trespass is no evidence as to title 84. Ind. Cas. 983=40 C.L.J. 246=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 207.

—Penal Code, S. 297—Local inspection—Magistrate's own opinion is not evidence. 81 Ind. Cas. 602=1 Pat. L.R. Cr. 256=25 Cr. L.J. 954=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 573.

—Evidence—Historical works—Not referred in the first Court—Admissibility.

Reference to works of history not given in evidence or referred to in the Court of First Instance at the appellate stage is irregular and should be avoided. 1 Pat. L.J. 225=20 C.W.N. 1082=36 Ind. Cas. 206.

(g). Miscellaneous.

—Evidence—Who must lead—Evidence need not be always led by party under burden of proof.

It is not always necessary that the party who has the burden must himself lead evidence. It is open to him to sustain the onus cast upon him by the facts which he may elicit by cross-examination of the other party's witnesses. 78 Ind. Cas. 330=A.I.R. 1924 Nag. 367.

—Document produced alleged to be forgery—Party alleging must prove it before asking Court to reject it. 72 Ind. Cas. 971=24 Cr. L.J. 507=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 31.

—Evidence—Relevancy.

Plaintiff's kabuliat to superior landlord is not relevant on question of defendant's status before kabuliat. A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 375.

—Evidence—Application for filing documentary evidence.

An application made on the first hearing for permission to file documentary evidence at a later stage should be decided at once. Obiter: An appeal cannot be preferred under O. 43, C. P.C. against an order of refusal or acceptance of documentary evidence. 3. O.L.J. 538=19 O.C. 314=37. Ind. Cas. 34.

—Evidence—Oath—Defendant's agreement to abide by plaintiff's oath—Resiling from—Effect.

A plaintiff cannot get a decree merely because the defendant having agreed to abide by plaintiff's oath afterwards refused to abide by it. 19 O.C. 161=37 Ind. Cas. 75.

—Evidence—Objection to—Party not pleading a point, if can object to rebutting evidence by opposite party.

A party trying to prove a point not raised in his pleadings cannot object to the opposite party tendering rebutting evidence as to that point. 1. O.L.J. 591=26 Ind. Cas. 547.

—Evidence—Opinion of Judge and Jury—How much weight to be given.

In India the opinion of a judge is to be weighed by the High Court in exactly the same balance as the opinion of a Jury. 41 Cal. 752=18 C.W.N. 580=15 Cr. L.J. 402=23. Ind. Cas. 1002.

—Evidence—Custom—Validity of, to be determined when custom established.

The question of the validity of a custom should not be considered till the custom itself has been established with precision. 20 C.L.J. 426=26 Ind. Cas. 954.

—Evidence—Agreement to dispense with.

Where in the trial of a suit the parties agreed not to let in oral evidence but to abide by the result of local inspection by the Judge, his successor cannot act on the result of inspection made by his predecessor, and no question of estoppel can arise if the case is not tried by him in the regular course. 12 A.L.J. 48=22 Ind. Cas. 51.

—Evidence—Admissions—Statement of accused.

If the conviction is to be based solely on the statement of the accused, it is fair that the statement should, unless there is good reason to the contrary, be taken as a whole. (1911) 1 M.W.N. 199=9 M.L.T. 316=12 Cr. L.J. 142=9 Ind. Cas. 790.

—Evidence—Indian woman.

An Indian woman is at a great disadvantage in conducting her case in Court and not infrequently makes errors of omission and commission. 75 P.L.R. 1910=54 P.W.R. 1910=6 Ind. Cas. 661.

—Evidence—Court applying for information other than in the manner provided by law.

It is improper for a court to receive any information of any kind in reference to a case, whether it be relevant or not, other than such as comes before it in the way which the law recognizes to be the form of legal evidence. (1904) 6 Bom. L.R. 789.

—Duty of Court.

It is the duty of the Court executing a decree to see that parties to the proceedings are properly before it. 80 Ind. Cas. 716=3 Pat. L.R. (Civ.) 242=6 P.L.T. 164=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 160.

—Execution—Copy of decree and vakalatnama if necessary.

A copy of decree as also a fresh vakalatnama are not necessary in execution proceedings. 15 C.L.J. 89=16 C.W.N. 736=13 Ind. Cas. 365.

28. Practice—Ex-parte hearing.*—Ex-parte hearing—Slip in the order.

If there is a slip in the order in an appeal heard ex-parte, the error is attributable to the appellant. 16 C.W.N. 793=12 M.L.T. 482=10 A.L.J. 379=(1912) M.W.N. 1150=23 M.L.J. 738=14 Bom. L.R. 1223=17 C.L.J. 14=16 Ind. Cas. 830 (P.C.).

—Ex-parte decree—Remedies open to defendant.

A defendant against whom an ex parte decree is passed has three remedies open: (1) to file an application to set aside the decree; (2) to file an appeal against the decree; and (3) to file an application for review of judgment. These are concurrent remedies. But in most cases the only effective remedy is an application to set aside the ex parte decree. I.L.R. (1946) Nag. 586=224 Ind. Cas. 526=1946 N.L.J. 349=A.I.R. 1946 Nag. 393.

29. Practice—Federal and Supreme Court.*—Concurrent findings—Rule against interference with—Scope of—Adherence to the rule by the F. C.

The rule as to concurrent findings is not a rule based on any statutory provision. It is a rule of conduct which the Privy Council had laid down for itself. Following this rule the Judicial Committee usually declined to review the evidence a third time unless there were special circumstances which would justify a departure from this practice. The practice is not a cast iron one and the grounds given in the decisions justifying departure from the above rule are merely illustrative. In an appropriate case and on a suitable occasion the matter may have to be fully considered and elucidated in all its aspects. In the absence of circumstances justifying departure from this rule, the Federal Court would adhere to the practice developed by the judicial Committee during the course of a century. 1949 F.L.J. 90=A.I.R. 1949 F.C. 88=62 L.W. 403=(1949) 1 M.L.J. 568 (F.C.).

—Leave to appeal to Supreme Court—Separate application—Necessity—Question whether the Provincial Insolvency (Amendment) Act (XXV of 1948) is ultra vires the Dominion Legislature—Leave to appeal to the Supreme Court—If can be granted.

It was agreed that there need be no separate petition for leave to appeal to the Supreme Court.

The question whether the Provincial Insolvency (Amendment) Act (XXV of 1948) is ultra vires the Dominion Legislature involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Constitution and leave to appeal to the Supreme Court can be granted. A.I.R. 1950 Mad. 691=(1950) 2 M.L.J. 817.

There is no provision actually prohibiting the use of an affidavit in the Dacca High Court which has been sworn before a Commissioner of another country in another Dominion. It is within the discretion of the Dacca High Court to accept an affidavit even though not sworn before a person appointed a Commissioner in India of the Court of Pakistan if it is in a form in which the Court considers it to have been duly sworn before a Commissioner of the Calcutta High Court.

After the enactment of the Diplomatic and Consular Officers (Oaths and Fees) Act XXI of 1948, persons living in Calcutta and concerned with litigation in the Dacca High Court can swear an affidavit in Calcutta before the Deputy High Commissioner of Pakistan, which will automatically without further question be admissible for proceedings in the Dacca High Court 1 D.R. 71.

High Court—Division Bench—Power to express opinion on abstract question of law. See High Court. 48 P.L.R. 205=A.I.R. 1946 Lah. 419.

—Even where one Division Bench of the High Court has issued Rule, the propriety of the order can be questioned by the Bench hearing the Rule on the ground that the application was made too late. 103 Ind. Cas. 63=54 Cal. 394=28 Cr. L.J. 639=8 A.I. Cr. R. 257=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 574.

—Case heard by a Bench, but not finally disposed of.

Even if a case has been heard by one Bench, but is not finally disposed of, it is open to the Chief Justice to ask another Bench to proceed with the trial of the case. Further it is questionable whether, under S. 439, the High Court cannot suo motu interfere in cases of this sort where the final orders have not already been passed by it. 106 Ind. Cas. 686=32 M.L.T. 548=1927 M.W.N. 835=28 Cr. L.J. 974=27 M.L.W. 239=9 A.I. Cr. R. 127= A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 961=53 M.L.J. 633 (F.B.).

—Division Bench—Order of, cannot be objected to before another Division Bench.

—If a question is in fact decided by the Division Bench by its decision once, it is not open to another Division Bench at another stage of the same case to allow the question to be re-agitated before it. 78 Ind. Cas. 200=3 Pat. 371=5 P.L.T. 145=1924 P.H.C.C. 33=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 1 (F.B.).

—High Court—Appeal heard ex parte—No jurisdiction to another Bench to order rehearing of appeal.

An appeal was heard and decreed ex parte by Division Bench of the High Court. Another Division Bench set aside the judgment and directed the rehearing of the appeal by the former Bench. Held that the order directing the rehearing of the appeal was without jurisdiction. If there were any grounds for setting aside the judgment of the former Bench the application ought to have been made to that Bench and none other. 30 Ind. Cas. 27 (Cal.).

—Chief Justice cannot direct the conduct of suit.

It is open to the Chief Justice to appoint a special bench of two Judges to try a suit but having done so it is not open to him in any way to fetter the discretion of the bench as to how the suit shall be tried. It is for the bench and the bench alone to decide how the suit is to be tried, that is to say, whether issues of fact and law are to be tried, or whether the issues of law shall be tried first. 80 Ind. Cas. 637=27 C.W.N. 955=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 186.

—High Court—Judgment delivered by one Judge on behalf of absent colleague.

—High Court—Division Bench—Powers.

It is not necessary that a division Bench of the Calcutta High Court must refer any particular case to a Full Bench, but it can follow a decision of the Court which it does not wholly approve of. 38 Ind. Cas. 643 (Cal.).

—High Court—Madras—Criminal appeals—Power to admit.

A Division Bench hearing criminal appeals has power to admit criminal appeals presented through the Bench Clerk although a single judge is sitting at the time as an admission Court. 39 Mad. 527=29 M.L.J. 101=18 M.L.T. 95=(1915) M.W.N. 504=16 Cr.L.J. 593=30 Ind. Cas. 145 (F.B.).

—High Court—Single Judge—Division Bench—Judgment.

A single Judge of the High Court doubting the correctness of the decision of a Division Bench cannot do any thing else than refer it to the larger Bench. 1 Pat. L.T. 349=58 Ind. Cas. 459.

(e). Full Bench.

—Practice Full Bench—Powers of Power to interfere with findings of Division Bench on questions not referred.

The Full Bench has power to interfere with the findings of the Division Bench on questions not referred to it, in cases where the whole appeal or revision case is referred. I.L.R. (1946) 2 Cal. 214=225 Ind. Cas. 280=81 C.L.J. 16=50 C.W.N. 578=A.I.R. 1946 Cal. 348 (F.B.).

—Full Bench—Full Bench cannot proceed to decide an issue no longer arising.

The function of High Court Judges, whether sitting singly or sitting as a Bench, whether a Division or a Full Bench, is limited to deciding some issue in being between two parties.

Where an appeal fails on merit, not as a result of any argument on behalf of the respondent or of any evidence read on his behalf but on the simple statement of the case for the appellant, there is no justification even for a Full Bench to proceed to decide an issue which no longer arises. 111 Ind. Cas. 670=26 A.L.J. 1201=10 I.L.Cr.R. 390=29 Cr.L.J. 910=9 L.R.A. (Cr.) 130=A.I.R. 1928 All. 680 (F.B.).

—High Court—Reference to Full Bench, in second appeal—Full Bench holding that point referred does not arise—Case should be sent to referring Bench for decision. 53 Ind. Cas. 955=100 Ind. Cas. 289=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 256 (F.B.).

—A difference of opinion prevailing upon the Bench, in accordance with the usual custom, the Judges holding the view of the minority will deliver judgment first. 96 Ind. Cas. 1039=24 A.L.J. 825=A.I.R. 1926 All. 369 (F.B.).

—Judgment—Validity.

A Full Bench judgment is not rendered invalid by being pronounced at a time when one of the Judges constituting the Full Bench was absent on other duty. 83 Ind. Cas. 91=1924 M.W.N. 692=21 M.L.W. 12=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 58=47 M.L.J. 397.

—There is power under R. 64 or otherwise for the the Chief Justice to direct that a point of law be dealt with by a Full Bench, although the suit has only come before a single Judge. 103 Ind. Cas. 906=51 Bom. 371=29 Bom. L.R. 1124=A.I.R. 1927 Bom. 487 (F.B.).

—Reference to Full Bench for opinion on question of law.

When a question of law is referred to a full Bench Per Tek Chand J. for opinion, the Full Bench does not constitute a Court of appeal so as to examine whether the question has been correctly framed. 104 Ind. Cas. 849=8 Lah. 384=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 289 (F.B.).

—Full Bench's judgment—Nature of.

Where the Full Bench is asked for a ruling on an abstract question of law to guide the Division Bench charged with the duty of deciding an appeal and the parties to the appeal, being interested in the same abstract question, are allowed to appeal and argue the question, there is no reason to hold from that fact that, contrary to the ordinary practice of the Court, the appeal was before the full Bench for the determination of any issue or ground of appeal peculiar to it. The judgment of the Full Bench is in the nature of an opinion intended for the guidance of the smaller Benches and one which would be binding on them if not subsequently reviewed and altered by a higher authority. 93 Ind. Cas. 612=7 Lah. 376=28 P.L.R. 245=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 264.

—High Court—Full Bench—Function of.

Obiter—The province of a Full Bench ordinarily is to decide merely difficult questions of law or custom upon which divergent opinions or decisions have been expressed. 28 P.R. 1913=10 P.L.R. 1913=275 P.W.R. 1912=16 Ind. Cas. 967.

—High Court—Full Bench—Reference to Full Bench on point of law—Powers of Full Bench to deal with whole case.

A Full Bench has power, where a reference is made to it on a point of law, to look into the circumstances of the whole case and deal finally with the appeal out of which the reference has arisen. 10 P.R. 1911 Cr.=24 P.W.R. 1911 Cr.=19 Cr.L.J. 364=205 P.L.R. 1911=11 Ind. Cas. 132.

—A case already decided cannot be referred to a Full Bench. Where a reference to a Full Bench was asked for in an application for a review of a judgment.

Held, that there could be no such reference. 87 Ind. Cas. 1029=A.I.R. 1925 Nag. 384.

—Hypothetical question should not be referred to Full Bench.

The practice of submitting a hypothetical question of law to a Full Bench before the Divisional Bench has satisfied itself that the facts really exist which would necessarily raise that question was depreciated. 76 Ind. Cas. 886=46 Mad. 919=18 M.L.W. 953=33 M.L.T. 53=1924 M.W.N. 14=A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 271=45 M.L.J. 528 (F.B.).

—Reference to Full Bench.

Where a case was referred to a Full Bench on the ground that "it is advisable that the rights of decree-holders against the property of a deceased person in the hands of his legal representatives should be clearly defined."

Held, that the reference was one which ought not to have been made. 80 Ind. Cas. 163=47 Mad. 411=34 M.L.T. 17=1924 M.W.N. 346=A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 530=46 M.L.J. 261 (F.B.).

—High Court—Full Bench—Reference to, on difference of opinion.

In the ordinary course, on a difference of opinion arising between two Division Benches of the same High Court, the case should be referred to a Full Bench. 38 All. 581=14 A.L.J. 1055=21 C.W.N. 1=18 Bom.

—High Court—Full Bench—Conflict of decisions—Private consultation bad.

It is usual and expedient whenever a difference of opinion arises in the same High Court, to refer the point to the Full Bench. It is undesirable to introduce the opinions of another judge (not a party to the judgment) obtained on a private consultation, for the purpose of enforcing the conclusion arrived at. 37 All. 604=42 I.A. 208=13 A.L.J. 1007=18 M. —Full Bench decision doubted by Division Bench.

In a case in which a Division Court doubts the correctness of a Full Bench decision, by which the Division Court is bound, and the Division Court considers that the matter should be considered by a Bench, specially constituted, it has been the practice for the Division Court to bring the matter to the notice of the Chief Justice and to consult him as to the propriety of a Bench being specially constituted to consider the matter. 98 Ind. Cas. 220=54 Cal. 266=44 C. L. J. 194=31 C.W.N. 14=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 1153 (S.B.).

—High Court—Original Side—Decision of single Judge.

A Judge on the original side is ordinarily bound to consider the decision of another judge on the original side but he need not follow it, if he considers it to be erroneous. 24 C.W.N. 1032=60 Ind. Cas. 406.

—High Court—Original Side—Single Judge on Original Side when bound by rules of law laid down by other Judge.

A Judge sitting on the original side is not bound to follow the judgment of another judge on a question of law when it is contrary to reason or law or a manifestly absurd decision based on finding of facts which lead him to different conclusion. 33 Bom. 122=10 Bom. L.R. 417=1 Ind. Cas. 834.

—High Court—Original Side—Order—Modification.

Judge sitting on the original Side of the High Court has jurisdiction to modify the minutes of his order before the formal order is drawn up. 42 Mad. 269=24 M.L.T. 500=36 M.L.J. 28=(1918) M.W.N. 928=9 L.W. 217=49 Ind. Cas. 373.

Cas. 808=41 C.L.J. 371=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 750.

—High Court—Original Side—Decree—Appeal—Date of payment.

Where by a decree on the original side, payment was to be made by a certain day, and proceedings were stayed on appeal, which was however later dismissed and the date fixed elapsed in the meanwhile.

Held, that application on the original side for fixing a fresh date was rightly made as it was a proceeding in execution 22 Ind. Cas. 368 (Cal.).

—High Court—Original Side—Consent decree, if can be set aside or varied by notice of motion.

A consent decree cannot be set aside, varied or altered by a judge on an application based merely on notice of motion. 13 Bom. L.R. 332=11 Ind. Cas. 356.

—High Court—Original Side—Death of plaintiff after date of order for payment—Fresh order for payment necessary.

If the plaintiff dies after the date of the order for payment in a mortgage suit, and his heir is substituted, a fresh order must be taken before the sale of the mortgaged property takes place. 12 C.L.J. 596=8 Ind. Cas. 806.

—High Court—Original Side—Third party directions.

Third party directions are generally given by Courts on the following principles:—

1. In clear cases of contribution or indemnity from the third party.

2. Where all disputes arising out of a transaction as between plaintiffs and defendants and between defendants, and a third party can be tried and settled in one action.

3. In case of current and sub-contract, where the contract between plaintiff and defendants, has been imported into the contract between the defendants, and third parties.

Where the ascertainment of the terms of contract and between defendant, and third parties requires a preliminary issue to be tried, the court should refuse to issue third party directions. It cannot issue such directions under rules at present in force even if there is no question identical as between plaintiff and defendant as between defendants and third parties. 34 Bom. 423=11 Bom. L.R. 1056=4 Ind. Cas. 131.

—High Court—Original Side—Taxation of costs.

According to the practice of the original side of the Court taxation of the bills of attorneys is optional and bills of costs are frequently adjusted without taxation. 36 Cal. 493=2 Ind. Cas. 553.

(g) Rule nisi.

—High Court—Rule nisi—Perversion of facts—Rule, if can be made absolute.

A rule applied for in astute and intelligent perversion of facts cannot be made absolute unless there are strong grounds for doing so. 15 C. L. J. 162=14 Ind. Cas. 458.

—High Court—Rule granted on one of several grounds—Fresh rule on other ground, wheather may be issued.

The High Court has no jurisdiction to grant a fresh rule when on the same facts a rule was granted on one only of several grounds. 38 Cal. 933=15 Cal. C.L.J. 325=12 Cr.L.J. 407=11 Ind. Cas. 591.

—High Court—Rule nisi—Jurisdiction to decide question of right.

In a proceeding initiated by a rule nisi, the High Court (Bombay) has no jurisdiction to vary a decree when it involves the decision of a question of right. 33 Bom 216=Bom. L.R. 488=2 Ind. Cas. 294.

—High Court—Rule nisi—Decision in.

The Court need not decide a point, which is not specifically raised in a rule nisi. 13 C. W. N. 305=1 Ind. Cas. 152.

(h). Miscellaneous.

—High Court—Duty to interpret, not to make law.

The function of the Judges of High Court is to interpret the law and not to make it, jusdicera and not jusdare. 31 Punj. L.R. 842=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 1034.

—Reference.

It is not the practice of the Allahabad High Court or any other Court to give a decree or pass an order to express an opinion on a reference when such decree, order or opinion must of necessity be infructuous. 128 Ind. Cas. 1=1930 A.L.J. 763=A.I.R. 1931 All. 26.

—Question of attendance of witness—Master's powers.

Question how far the attendance of a witness is necessary and material is one for master to decide and that discretion must be exercised in a fair and reasonable way according to the usual and established practice and allowance in respect of such matters, otherwise the Court or Judge will interfere and review the discretion of the master who has not so exercised it. 122 Ind. The judgment of a High Court is not complete until it is sealed and it can alter it without any application for review. 10 B. 176, Not followed. 38 Cal. 828=13 Cr. L.J. 120=13. Ind. Cas. 776.

32. (a) Duty and Power of Court.

—Inconsistent pleas.

The Court while preserving sacred the rights of parties to frame their own pleadings, must see that they do not offend against rules of pleadings or tend to embarrass, delay or prejudice the trial of the suit. 4. O.L.J. 230=40. Ind. Cas. 488.

—Inconsistent pleas.

A defendant may raise by his written statement as many distinct and separate, i.e., inconsistent defences as he may think proper; if the defence is embarrassing, the Court may under O. 6, R. 16 direct one of two inconsistent defences to be struck out and the pleading amended. The defendant pleaded that the bond in suit was a forgery and denied execution and in the alternative that if it was executed it was done under circumstances which did not make it binding upon her. When the evidence came to be adduced the defendant was allowed to go into both these matters.

Held, that the plaintiff cannot in appeal raise any objection on the ground that the defences put forward were inconsistent. 12 C.L.J. 357=7 Ind. Cas. 166.

—Inconsistent pleas,—Effect of document—Duty of Court.

Where a party takes up inconsistent positions regarding the effect of the instrument in controversy, it is the duty of the Court to give effect to the real intention of the parties, subject to an order as to costs. 33 All.

344=14. O.C. 133=38 I.A. 104=15 C.W.N. 497=8 A.L.J. 465=13 C.L.J. 519=9 M.L.T. 507=13 Bom. L.R. 404=21 M.L.J. 637=(1911) 2 M.W.N. 242=10 Ind. Cas. 285 (P.C.).

—Inconsistent pleas—Plaint—If can be set up.

A Court has power to allow the plaintiff to amend the plaint and put forward two inconsistent cases, viz., first that the defendant never rendered accounts and should be called upon to render one; secondly, that if the defendant has rendered accounts they ought to be reopened on the ground of fraud or the plaintiff should be given liberty to surcharge and falsify them because vitiated by overcharges and material errors. 13 C.L.J. 165=7 Ind. Cas. 270.

32. (b) Practice—Inconsistent Pleas—New Case.

—A co-sharer can maintain a suit of ejectment against a trespasser on behalf of the proprietary body. But where a co-sharer comes forward clearly as the exclusive owner of the property to be recovered from the trespasser, and fails to prove his exclusive title, a new case cannot be made in appeal that his suit was of a representative character. 112 Ind. Cas. 402=10 L.L.J. 360.

—New plea—Inconsistent plea.

Plea not only not raised in lower Court but inconsistent to those raised—Appellate Court should not allow. 112 Ind. Cas. 462=30 Bom. L.R. 889=A.I.R. 1929 Bom. 114.

—Where the defence in the lower Court was fraudulent misrepresentation as to the area concerned and in second appeal S. 20, Contract Act, was pleaded for the first time, the defence was held to be unsustainable as the plea was inconsistent. 119 Ind. Cas. 205=33 C.W.N. 626=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 547.

—Where a plaintiff raises a plea in second appeal which is not only not set up in the plaint but is quite inconsistent with it, he should not be allowed to get a decree. 118 Ind. Cas. 291=20 M.L.W. 787=A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 349.

—Plaintiff's pleader making statement at hearing—Case proceeding on that basis—Plaintiff's cannot in appeal raise plea inconsistent with it. 114 Ind. Cas. 113=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 204.

—If can be allowed in appeal.

Where the whole controversy between the appellant's predecessor and the Government proceeded upon the admission or the tacit assertion of the appellant that he was in occupation of the lands or at all events that he took upon himself the burden of indicating the action of his own lessees or sub-lessees in cultivating it, and where a period of nearly 25 years had elapsed between the date when the Government first definitely intimated their claim to the lands in suit.

Held, that it is too late for the Board to entertain the contention that the lessees of the appellants who actually cultivated were liable for the assessment as Government had no opportunity of meeting the new plea.

A litigant who has all along maintained a position in support of one branch of his suit cannot be permitted when he fails upon this branch to withdraw from the position and assert the contrary more especially when he thereby places his opponent at a great disadvantage of State. 94 Ind. Cas. 501=49 Mad. 249=53 I.A. 64=43 C.L.J. 378=28 Bom. L.R. 865=24 M.L.W. 9=1926 M.W.N. 585=A.I.R. 1926 P.C. 18=50 M.L.J. 301 (P.C.).

—Where original frame of suit is for enforcement of contract and for damages for breach, plaintiff cannot afterwards without amendment of plea, allege that the contract was illegal and claim the repayment of money on that ground, paid under the contract. 84 Ind. Cas. 295=2 Rang. 414=A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 49.

—It is not permissible to allow before the Privy Council for the first time an argument contradictory of the case as put up in the lower Courts 11 M.I.A. 7 (P.C.), Foll. 59 Ind. Cas. 767=19 A.L.J. 97=23 Bom. L.R. 713=33 C.L.J. 171=25 C.W.N. 654=13 M.L.W. 256=1921 M.W.N. 77=29 M.L.T. 164=A.I.R. 1921 P.C. 27=40 M.L.J. 144 (P.C.).

—New plea—Second appeal—Possession—Specific performance.

If a suit is based on an alleged completed sale, the plaintiff, cannot urge in second appeal that the suit may be regarded as one for specific performance of a contract to sell as the later suit is inconsistent with the alleged completed sale and cannot be entertained without an amendment of the plaint being allowed. 7 Ind. Cas. 568 (Lah.).

—Inconsistent plea—New case—Not allowed.

A plaintiff suing for possession on the strength of a sale deed, cannot on the sale being declared invalid, set up a right to remain in possession as mortgagee since such a claim is inconsistent with the absolute right, claimed in the plaint. 20 M.L.J. 141=4 Ind. Cas. 37.

32. (c) Practice—Inconsistent pleas—Right of parties.

—Inconsistent pleas.

The Code of Civil Procedure does not prohibit inconsistent pleadings; and there is nothing to prevent either party from setting up two or more inconsistent sets of material fact and claiming relief thereunder in the alternative. A plaintiff may rely upon several different rights alternatively although they may be inconsistent; so a defendant may raise, by his statement of defence, without leave, as many distinct and separate and therefore inconsistent defences as he may think proper. (34 Cal. 51; 22 C.L.J. 254; 30 C.L.J. 428; 8 C.L.J. 289; 15 C.L.J. 439, Foll.)

But the litigant who avails himself of the right to press inconsistent cases before the Court, and endeavours to establish both the alternatives by contradictory oral testimony, plainly places himself in peril and may find himself entangled in inextricable difficulty; for evidence adduced in support of two absolutely inconsistent cases which are mutually destructive can hardly be expected to secure confidence. 82 Ind. Cas. 934=28 C.W.N. 131=39 C.L.J. 140=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 467.

—As a matter of law there is nothing to prevent a party from setting up an inconsistent plea. 60 Ind. Cas. 393=2 P.L.T. 285=A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 326.

—Inconsistent pleas—Parties if can take.

Litigant parties cannot be allowed of take up inconsistent positions in court. 24 Ind. Cas. 181 (Cal.).

—Inconsistent pleas—Defence.

A defendant can plead as many separate distinct and inconsistent defences as he thinks proper in the alternative in his written statement. 15 C.L.J. 439=13 Ind. Cas. 128.

—Inconsistent pleas—Defence.

A defence cannot be ruled out merely because it is inconsistent with another defence. 5 N.L.R. 189=4 Ind. Cas. 801.

32. (d) Practice—Inconsistent pleas—When allowed.
—Rule of approbate and reprobate—Applicability.

The rule that when an order shows plainly that it is intended to take effect in its entirety and that several parts of it depend upon each other, a person cannot adopt one part and repudiate another, does not apply to a case where the various directions in an order or judgment are intended to be distinct and independent of each other. Thus, if a suit is dismissed but the plaintiff is awarded costs, he is not precluded from impeaching the judgment by receiving the costs. 123 Ind. Cas. 337=31 M.L.W. 30=1933 M.W.N. 50=A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 268=58 M.L.J. 137.

—Suit against son to recover deceased father's debts—Son alleging ignorance of father's dealings—Pleas of satisfaction or criminal nature of debts in the alternative were allowed to be raised. 112 Ind. Cas. 748=51 All. 386=26 A.L.J. 1353=A.I.R. 1928 All. 582.

—Where the plaintiff, who in the earlier litigation had been resisting a rafanama (settlement) as defendant, pleaded that a certain village was a ghatwali village and there had been disputes and the Government had intervened and a rafanama had been drawn up to settle the disputes, and claimed such rights as the rafanama gave, not because it represented his real rights, but because he could not get anything more.

Held, that there was nothing contrary to natural justice in plaintiff's accepting this course. 96 Ind. Cas. 188=6 Pat. 51=1926 P.H.C.C. 199=A.I.R. 1926 Pat. 340.

—Partnership suit.

Under O. 30 a defendant is not precluded from taking alternative defences in the from, viz., that the defendant is not a partner in the firm sued, and alternatively that assuming that he is a partner, the firm itself is not liable. 93 Ind. Cas. 380=A.I.R. 1926 Sind 154.

—Inconsistent pleas—Dismissal of suit on basis of evidence of a witness.

Plaintiff sued the defendant to recover a certain sum of money for a breach of contract and contended that under a contract to deliver "China" or "Small" mills rice either the delivery of "China" or "small" mills rice or the delivery of special big mills rise would be a good delivery. After issues were framed, the evidence of one of the plaintiff's witnesses was taken but it was unfavourable to plaintiff. He therefore intimated his wish to call several other witnesses in support of his contention. But the Court refused and dismissed the suit.

Held, that the plaintiff did not take up any inconsistent positions and that the mere fact that the evidence of one witness was unfavourable to him was not a good ground for dismissing the suit without examining the other witnesses whom he wished to produce. 4 Bur. L.T. 260=6 L.B.R. 17=11 Ind. Cas. 930.

—Inconsistent pleas—Avertments in plaint.

In a suit to set aside a sale-deed, plaintiff a young woman, alleged that the document was a forgery and that it was brought about by fraud and when the Court asked her to elect which plea she would stand by, she stated that she denied execution; held, that the suit was not liable to be dismissed for inconsistent averments in the plaint. 13 M. 549, not approved. 1913) M.W.N. 821=9 M.L.T. 210=8 Ind. Cas. 845.

—Inconsistent pleas—When allowable.

A plaintiff or defendant will be allowed to raise inconsistent pleas where they are founded on transactions to which he is a stranger and which have reference to matters not within his personal knowledge. 6 N.L.R. 33=5. Ind. Cas. 745.

—Inconsistent pleas—When successful.

If special circumstances are established, a plaintiff may succeed on claim inconsistent with his plaint. 15 C.L.J. 391=2. Ind. Cas. 85.

32. (e) Practice—Inconsistent Pleas—When not allowed.

—Inconsistent pleas.

Plea that cause of action accrued on first default and limitation was extended owing to payment of interest is inconsistent with plea of waiver. A.I.R. 1926 P.C. 85, Foll. 33 C.W.N. 250=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 292.

—Blowing hot and cold.

—Where a respondent to a revision petition gets the revision petition dismissed on the ground that the order can be attached in appeal under S. 105 of the C.P. Code, he cannot afterwards, when the appeal is filed, be heard to say that the proper remedy was by way of revision. 120 Ind. Cas. 594 (Lah.).

—Where the appellant definitely claimed in the memo of appeal the whole amount of interest entered in the plaint on the ground that the condition for enhancement was not a penalty but conceded at the hearing that the finding of the lower court regarding condition being penal was correct.

Held, the Court cannot listen to an entirely different plea which was not entered in the memorandum of appeal that the condition was penal but that reasonable compensation should be granted. 89 Ind. Cas. 879=26 P.L.R. 240=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 11.

Where parties accept a consent decree as one under O. 34, R. 5, they cannot afterwards contend that O. 34, R. 5 did not apply to the decree. 87 Ind. Cas. 820=A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 152.

—One basis of suit failing another cannot be adopted.

In a suit for specific performance plaintiff based their suit on a document, which was found to be a manufactured one. The suit failed and thereupon plaintiffs in second appeal invited the Court to look into previous correspondence to see if a completed contract was made out.

Held, that the plaintiff cannot be permitted to abandon the case they made in the plaint and to invite the Court to examine whether a completed agreement may or may not be spelt out of the antecedent correspondence. 72 Ind. Cas. 651=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 461.

—Inconsistent pleas can't be allowed even in a subsequent suit if such suit grows out of first judgment.

Where defendant pleaded that the deeds as engrossed accurately represented the contract between the parties, that he executed them in that state, and that they were then materially altered by the plaintiff with the result that they no longer represented the real agreement and the Court pronounced the draft agreement to be genuine and held that the disputed documents were in the form provided by the contract between the parties.

Held, this was the ground-work of the decision of the Court when it came to the conclusion that the documents had not been altered after execution and must be deemed genuine and the defendant is not competent to re-agitate the question of the conformity of the documents to the contract between the parties. It is no longer open to him to contend that the documents had been materially altered after execution. Where the defendant contended at a late stage that interpolations had been made not after execution, as pleaded in the previous suit but before execution.

Held this new defence must be ruled out on two grounds. In the first place, it contradicts the prior decision that the documents as presented for registration were correct representations of the contract. In the second place the appellant cannot be allowed to take up in this suit a position entirely inconsistent with that adopted in the previous suit. It is an elementary rule that a party litigant cannot be permitted to assume inconsistent positions in Court, to play fast and loose, to blow hot and cold, to approbate and reprobate to the detriment of his opponent. This wholesome doctrine applies not only to the successive stages of the same suit, but also to another suit than the one in which the position was taken up provided that the second suit grows out of the judgment in the first. 11 C.W.N. 284; 27 C.L.J. 535; A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 114, Foll. 79 Ind. Cas. 520=39 C.L.J. 40=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 600.

—Inconsistent positions.

Where a party failed to object to a wrong order of a Court and thus deprived the opponent of certain remedies open to him if the party had objected, he cannot afterwards raise that objection. 78 Ind. Cas. 958=83 Ind. Cas. 438=51 Cal. 690=28 C.W.N. 559=39 C.L.J. 434=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 633.

—Inconsistent claims.

Where the mortgage has been challenged as fraudulent and the fraud has been attempted to be proved and the plaintiff failed to prove it, he should not be allowed to redeem. 67 Ind. Cas. 394=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 296.

—Inconsistent pleas—Benefit of decision—Right of party to.

Where it appeared that throughout the case and previously, instead of joining the other co-parcener in his litigation as against the trespasser, the plaintiff threw in his lot with the trespassers, and tried to defeat the title of the other co-parcener, he cannot be allowed, on failure of that attempt, after the Court had decided in favour of the other co-parcener, to turn round and claim a share of that property on the ground that it was acquired for the benefit of the joint family. A party ought not to be permitted to allege two absolutely inconsistent pleas each of which is destructive of the other. 26 N.L.R. 367=130 Ind. Cas. 108=A.I.R. 1931 Nag. 57.

—Will.

An adopted son cannot, while approbating the provisions of the will under which his adoption was made, reprobate other provisions of the same will. 73 Ind. Cas. 991=17 M.L.W. 31=32 M.L.T. 47=1923 M.W.N. 111=46 Mad. 300=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 376.

A person who denies the existence of the will cannot claim to be executor under the will, if the will is held as genuine. 71 Ind. Cas. 207=A.I.R. 1923 Nag. 141.

—Party cannot adopt contradictory positions to the damage of the other party.

In 1305 B. S. there was a compromise between the plaintiff and the defendants under which the latter made over possession of the lands in dispute to the plaintiff in satisfaction of his dues from them. The plaintiff entered into possession under the compromise but the defendants having refused to execute a koḥala in his favour for the lands, he executed the decree and purchased himself this as well as other property of the defendants in the auction sale. The defendants applied to the Court under S. 311 of the G. P. Code of 1882 for setting aside the sale on the ground that the plaintiff had no right to execute the decree as it had already been satisfied by virtue of the compromise between the parties and as under it the plaintiff had been put in possession of the lands in dispute. The sale was accordingly set aside and the plaintiff was dispossessed of the lands in 1322 B.S. He, therefore, sued for recovery of possession of lands and declaration of his title to the property purchased by him in the auction sale.

Held, that the defendants are precluded from disputing—the title of the Plaintiff to the lands by virtue of the compromise entered into by them with the plaintiff and by virtue of which the plaintiff was put in actual possession of the lands and remained in possession for about 17 years. A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 313.

Suit for determination of fair and equitable rent—Plaintiff cannot claim decree for enhancement of rent. 68 Ind. Cas. 433=2 P.L.T. 642=A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 435.

—Inconsistent pleas—Private and public way.

A right to a private way and a right to a public way over the same soil cannot be pleaded together, as they are inconsistent. The private right, if pre-existing, can be relied on, for there is no compulsion in such a case to resort to the public right which might possibly be disputed by conflicting evidence. 57 Ind. Cas. 151 (Pat.)

—Inconsistent pleas—Objection to jurisdiction.

A party who objects to the jurisdiction of a Court of Small Causes on the ground that it is cognizable only by a munsif's court, is estopped from pleading that the munsif has no jurisdiction. 21 C.W.N. 784=27 C.L.J. 96=41 Ind. Cas. 929.

—Inconsistent pleas—Defence—Criminal trial.

An accused cannot set up entirely inconsistent pleas in defence. The accused must be given the benefit of the doubt if the case for the prosecution is doubtful and cannot be believed. 18 Cr. L.J. 435=33 Ind. Cas. 995. (All.)

—Inconsistent pleas—Objection to jurisdiction.

A defendant is precluded from raising the question of jurisdiction when the case is transferred to the higher Court according to his objection in the lower Court. 9 S.L.R. 164=32 Ind. Cas. 629.

—Inconsistent pleas.

The defence ought not to be allowed in appeal to raise a plea inconsistent with their main defence. 9 Bur. L.T. 53=31 Ind. Cas. 875.

—Inconsistent pleas—Denial of contract—Void as wager.

Quære: It hardly lies in the mouth of a person to say in the same breath, "I did not make the contract, but if I did make the contract, I am sure it was a wager". 39 Bom. 715=17 Bom. L. R. 293=28 Ind. Cas. 538.

—Inconsistent pleas—Suit on tenancy.

Where in an ejectment suit the plaintiff treated the defendant as a tenant but failed to prove the tenancy, he should not be allowed to prove his title for the purpose of ejecting him as a trespasser. 21 Ind. Cas. 560 (Mad.).

—Inconsistent pleas.

A plaintiff, alleging that a certain agreement of relinquishment was not binding on him cannot, when the agreement is declared to be valid, claim the benefit of its terms. 21 Ind. Cas. (All.).

—Inconsistent pleas—Litigation—Party cannot be allowed to take up.

A litigant will not be allowed to take inconsistent positions in court. A party to a foreclosure suit stated that the present title to the property was in himself. He cannot subsequently be permitted to assert that he was entitled to succeed on the death of a widow who was in possession at the time. 41 Cal. 69=17 C.W.N. 877=19 C.L.J. 155=19 Ind. Cas. 686.

—Inconsistent pleas—Party not allowed to set up procedure successfully objected to by him.

A party cannot be heard to say that a procedure, to which he himself successfully objected in a former proceeding, was the proper procedure to be adopted by the latter. 38 Mad. 36=23 M.L.J. 513=(1912) M.W.N. 1152=17 Ind. Cas. 420.

—Inconsistent pleas—Trial finished—Effect.

An issue whether the alleged shikmi taluk existed or not was framed in the first Court. Both parties went into evidence on that question and it was the subject of decision in both the lower Courts.

Held, that the defendant could not raise any objection in the High Court to the trial of that issue by the lower Courts. 14 C.L.J. 310=12 Ind. Cas. 462.

—Inconsistent pleas—Order erroneous—Who can impeach.

A party taking benefit under an erroneous order cannot subsequently ask that the order may be treated as nullity and be disregarded. 37 Cal. 897=14 C.W.N. 1019=6 Ind. Cas. 813.

—Inconsistent pleas—Not to be allowed.

Where the lessor based his suit on a lease for a fixed term he cannot plead that there was no fixed term. 5 Ind. Cas. 350 (All.).

—Inconsistent pleas.

A party having got a declaration that it will be invalid cannot rely upon the same will in a subsequent suit against the same opponent. 2 Lah. L.J. 431.

—Inconsistent pleas—Fraud—Party if can be allowed to take advantage of his own fraud.

The court should sternly refuse to allow any party in a suit to take advantage of his own fraud. 27 P.R. 1909=33 P.W.R. 1909=46 P.L.R. 1909=1 Ind. Cas. 888.

33. Practice—Injunction.

See C. P. CODE, O. 39.

—Injunction—Jurisdiction of Court—Suit for declaration that proposed provincial law is unconstitutional and for injunction to restrain Provincial Government from bringing it into force—Duty of Court to try—Injunction ex debito justitiae.

There have been cases in which the Court has granted an injunction ex debito justitiae to restrain a nuisance; and the Court has, at the same time, suspended the operation of the injunction in order to enable Parliament to introduce legislation which would legalise the nuisance. There is no warrant for the argument that it is not the province of a Court to sit as a third branch of the legislature and to invalidate legislation passed by it with plenary powers in any particular subject. It is or will be the duty and the privilege of the High Court or any other Court, when the occasion arises to interpret and give effect to the will of the sovereign people as embodied and expressed in the Constitution Act. The Court is also not unmindful that the principles to be applied in construing the Constitution Act, are not precisely the same as it would apply in construing an ordinary document; nor is it insensible to the responsibility which it undertakes if and when it pronounces any law to be an unconstitutional law. At the same time it is also the duty of the Court to see that to no suitor who comes before it justice is either delayed or denied. The plaintiff may or may not be entitled to relief, and any relief to which he may be entitled may, in the event, be illusory and of no avail to him. But that is no reason why his suit should not be tried.

12 F. Y. D.—48.

Hence a person whose interests are likely to be affected by a law which has been passed by a Provincial Government and has received the assent of the Governor-General is entitled to ask for a declaration that the law is unconstitutional and for an injunction restraining the Provincial Government from bringing the law into operation. The Court cannot be prevented from trying such a suit though ultimately it might be that the plaintiff is entitled to no relief or only to an illusory relief. A.I.R. 1950 Pat. 179.

—Payment of batta—Confirmation of interim injunction against a party represented by counsel—Batta to effect service of the injunction, not necessary.

It is not incumbent upon a party in whose favour an injunction by way of continuation or confirmation of a previous interim injunction, is granted, to pay batta to effect service of notice of the order of continuance or confirmation, when the order is passed in the presence of either of the party himself or of his counsel, inasmuch as the party himself has full knowledge of the Court's order and he must abide by it. 26 Mad. 260 and 42 All. 98, foll. I. L. R. (1948) Mad. 643=A.I.R. 1949 Mad. 362=60 L.W. 787=1947 M.W.N. 744=(1947) 2 M.L.J. 551.

—Duty of Court—Temporary injunction—Discharge of—Reasons for discharge—Remarks about merits of suit—Propriety—Expunging of remarks in appeal—Appellate Court's powers—Interference with discretion.

Where a Court discharges a temporary injunction which it had previously granted, it is open to the Court to support its order discharging the injunction with reasons, but, in doing so, the Court should scrupulously guard itself against making any remarks prejudicial to the merits of the case. Nothing shall be said which may tend to convey the suggestion that the Court has made up its mind one way or the other so far as the merits of suit are concerned. This principle should not be overlooked, and if, in disregard of this, the Court makes remarks tending to show that it has formed an opinion as to the merits of the case, the appellate Court, in the ends of justice, will expunge those remarks which are likely to prejudice the parties on the merits. At the same time, if the appellate Court is satisfied that so far as the discharge of the injunction is concerned, the lower Court has exercised a correct discretion, it would not interfere with that order in appeal. A.I.R. 1949 Ajmer 63 (1).

34. Practice—Interest.

See also (1) C. P. CODE, S. 34.

(2) INTEREST.

—Practice—Interest—Custom (Punjab).

It is a well-known fact so far as the province of the Punjab is concerned, that in documents where the rate of interest only is specified, and the document is silent as to whether it is payable monthly or annually it is understood that such interest is payable monthly. 121 Ind. Cas. 75=30 P.L.R. 741=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 144.

—Interest—Contract or usage.

In the absence of a mercantile custom or usage, interest cannot be charged for either the day on which money was advanced or on which it was repaid.

Where there are conflicting rights as between subject and subject, a fraction of a day will be treated as a whole day. 30 M.L.J. 607=34 Ind. Cas. 825.

—Interest—Decree—Provision in.

The prevailing practice in Bengal is to allow interest at the contract rate up to the date fixed for payment by the decree nisi and thereafter interest at the usual court rate at 6 per cent. "Date of realisation" means date fixed for payment and not date of actual payment by the mortgagors on realisation by execution sale. 9 C.L.J. 288=4 Ind. Cas. 56.

(2) NOTE 22 (b) AND (f).

—Issues—Suit for declaration of title to patta land—Scope of inquiry—Inquiry as to possession—Relevancy—Party in possession—Joinder of—Necessity.

In a suit for declaration of title to patta land any inquiry regarding the possession of the land or impleading the person in possession is unnecessary. The inquiry as to possession of the land is irrelevant in the suit. A.I.R. 1950 Hyd. 58.

—Issues.

Issues settled by a Judge who knows nothing about the case and who merely signs the issues drafted by counsel who know a little more are worse than useless and have a fictitious importance which they do not deserve. 123 Ind. Cas. 15=30 M.L.W. 914=A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 78=57 M.L.J. 609.

—If an issue can legitimately arise in a case it should be tried upon evidence. 91 Ind. Cas. 784=7 L.L.J. 405=26 P.L.R. 778=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 571.

—Court should find on all issues. 82 Ind. Cas. 618=24 Bom. L.R. 1162=47 Bom. 110=A.I.R. 1923 Bom. 17.

—It would be better if all the issues in the case are raised. And then, if there was a preliminary issue, that could be dealt with first in appeal. 64 Ind. Cas. 568=46 Bom. 435=23 Bom. L.R. 1236=A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 292.

—Due execution of a mortgage according to law—Proper issue to be framed indicated.

An issue raising the question "whether the suit mortgage bond was true, bona fide, supported by consideration and binding on defendants does not raise the question as to the execution of the bond in the manner required by law. The issue upon a question of this sort ought to have been whether the mortgage bond was executed as required by the law. 71 Ind. Cas. 390=14 M.L.W. 563=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 701.

—Issue—Frame of—Objection.

No objection to the frame of an issue can be entertained for the first time in second appeal, where the issue is wide enough to cover all the grounds of attack and defence and all the available evidence has been produced before the Court. 35 P.W.R. 1917=40 Ind. Cas. 184.

—Issue—Points not raised may be tried if arising in the case.

A Court can try a question arising in a case, though not specifically raised in the pleadings. 4 O.L.J. 305=40 Ind. Cas. 456.

—Issues—Additional issues—Framing or alteration of.

Where the plea of invalidity of a mortgage bond due to want of proper attestation, was raised not in the pleadings, but at the trial, the proper course for the court to judge its validity or otherwise is to raise a distinct and supplemental issue on the point and give the parties opportunity for adducing fresh evidence. (1915) M.W.N. 637=29 Ind. Cas. 291.

—Issue—Decision by analogy.

A judge is not bound to decide an issue of fact by analogy, e.g., to follow the opinion of another Judge in some other similar case. 10 N.L.R. 51=24 Ind. Cas. 808.

—Issue—Ambiguity in—Effect of.

Where an issue, ambiguous in its nature, is understood and acted upon by the parties in its narrower sense a wider interpretation cannot be put upon it at a late stage of the case; but if put forward earlier, opportunity is to be given to the parties to contest it on the wider ground. 24 M.L.J. 271=21 Ind. Cas. 724.

—Issues—New issue—Raising of, before argument—Issue depending on evidence.

A court will be acting rightly in refusing to entertain at the very last stage of the hearing after all the evidence is closed, a new question of which the solution must be dependant on evidence (e.g.) the question of a custom of the adoption of a daughter's son. 36 Cal. 789=6 A.L.J. 567=10 C.L.J. 58=13 C.W.N. 920=5 M.L.T. 423=11 Bom. L.R. 833=19 M.L.J. 548=93 P.R. 1909=146 P.W.R. 1909=68 P.L.R. 1910=36 I.A. 103=3 Ind. Cas. 382 (P.C.).

—Issue—Adverse possession—Whether could be inquired into.

On an issue of limitation no enquiry into adverse possession could be made as the question of adverse possession is a question of title. 32 Mad. 242=5 M.L.T. 248=1 Ind. Cas. 221.

—Finding without issue is bad.

Where execution of a kabuliat is admitted and the defendant does not plead that there is fraud, coercion or undue influence:

Held, it is not open to the Courts below without a special issue upon the point to find that the defendant in executing the kabuliats was not aware of their contents. 1922 Pat. H.C.C. 154=A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 184.

—Specific issue not raised—Matter put into issue in another suit—Evidence in that suit can be considered to determine the question as no surprise is caused. 57 Ind. Cas. 564=44 Mad. 283=48 I.A. 1=25 C.W.N. 145=13 M.L.W. 301=18 A.L.J. 1041=1920 M.W.N. 371=A.I.R. 1921 P.C. 84=39 M.L.J. 98 (P.C.).

—Issue—Omission to frame specific issues.

The omission to frame a specific issue cannot prejudice the parties in the trial, if the issues framed already are wide enough, and the parties are not taken by surprise. The Court has power to amend an issue even after trial, when a plea has been inadvertently ignored, and call for evidence on that issue. 1 O.L.J. 204=24 Ind. Cas. 72.

—Issue—Not raised—Law governing parties.

In the absence of special evidence to show whether Mahomedan or Hindu Law governs the parties but where from the beginning it was made to appear that they were governed by Muhammadan Law, the High Court would not allow the parties in the second appeal to disturb that assumption. 37 Bom. 116=14 Bom. L.R. 1129=17 Ind. Cas. 834.

—Issue—Omission to raise—Evidence adduced—No prejudice or surprise.

The master is entitled to drop the allegations of fraud and misconduct and rely entirely on negligence and breach of contract in an action for damages for wrongful dismissal. The object of any system of pleading is that each side may be made fully aware of the questions that are about to be argued in order that each may bring forward evidence appropriate to the issues. No question of surprise arises if a point is covered by the pleadings and evidence is adduced by both sides regarding it, although no issue on the point has been framed by the Lower Court. 5 S.L.R. 192=15 Ind. Cas. 757.

—Issues—Not raised—Right of an appellate Court to adjudge on a question not raised in issue.

An appellate court has no power to adjudge on a question which is not included in the issue. It should frame an issue, take evidence and then give the finding. (1911) 2 M.W.N. 393=10 Ind. Cas. 351.

—Issue—No specific issue framed—Question of fact decided.

If evidence is adduced by both parties on a question of fact and decision given, the decision is good even if the fact is not specifically put in issue provided neither party is prejudiced thereby. 9 M.L.T. 407=10 Ind. Cas. 291.

—Issue—Absence of pleadings—Abandonment of plea.

Where no issue is raised, on a point covered by the pleadings the parties must be presumed to have given up the point. 7 M.L.T. 106=5 Ind. Cas. 813.

36. Practice—Judge.

See also NOTE 22.

—Judge—Statement of as to what happened in court—Affidavit of Advocate—Admissibility.

Question as to what happened in Court—Statement of presiding Judge is conclusive and an affidavit of the Advocate in the Court is not admissible to controvert it. A.I.R. 1944 Mad. 450=(1944) 1 M.L.J. 396=57 M.L.W. 318.

—Judge—Framing of decree.

The work of the Courts is not completed once they have played about with contention of the parties and conflicting rulings, but they should pay special attention to the decree which they prepare. 127 Ind. Cas. 524=A.I.R. 1930 All. 321.

—Judge cannot delegate his functions to Commissioner.

A Judge cannot delegate any of his functions to the Commissioner and ask him to take evidence and try an issue although it may not have the effect of entirely divesting him of his responsibility in the matter. A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 557=11 P.L.T. 456=127 Ind. Cas. 841.

—Judge—Delegation of functions.

A judge cannot delegate to the Police his judicial functions. 57 Ind. Cas. 940 (Cal.).

—Judge—Delegation of authority.

Judicial functions cannot be delegated without statutory authority. 9 S.L.R. 148=32 Ind. Cas. 634.

—Acceptance of post of Arbitrator.

Practice of some Judges of accepting also the post of an arbitrator is strongly deprecated, for Civil Procedure Code nowhere contemplates such procedure. 117 Ind. Cas. 610=1929 A.L.J. 808=51 All. 903=A.I.R. 1929 All. 747.

—Proof of erasure of writing in absence of other party.

It is a thoroughly improper proceeding to have something done by a pleader to prove to the private satisfaction of the Court, that it is possible to remove writing from paper without leaving a trace of the writing having been there. The Court should have this performance done in Court and in the presence of the other side. 118 Ind. Cas. 887=56 Cal. 442=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 479.

—Reference to documents outside record in absence of parties.

No Court has a right to look at any documents or any papers other than those on the record, unless it gives to the parties to the suit an opportunity of being heard and making their submissions with regard to what is contained in documents outside the record to which the Judge desires to refer if it becomes necessary to refer to other matters in accordance with the provisions in that behalf contained in the Code of Civil Procedure; reference to such evidence must only be made in the presence of the parties and after hearing them upon the evidence. 67 Ind. Cas. 871=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 194.

—Local investigation.

The Judge should not in civil cases himself hold a local investigation with a view to gather information which he might use as the foundation of his judgement although he might inspect the locality with a view to enable him to understand the evidence and in the absence of prejudice to the parties the mere fact that the Judge held the local investigation without recording a note thereof is not a sufficient ground for setting aside his decision. 15 C.L.J. 138, Applied. 91 Ind. Cas. 715=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 660.

—Judge—Personal inspection by a Judge.

A Judge can take a personal inspection of the site in dispute in an easement case, and decide the case on facts which he finds in his personal inspection and not inferences drawn from such facts. 35 Bom. 317=13 Bom. L.R. 313=10 Ind. Cas. 914.

—Local inspection—Magistrate, when to make.

A local inspection by a Magistrate must be held sparingly and only to understand the evidence in the case and it should never be substituted for evidence in the case. The party against whom the result of the inspection is used is greatly prejudiced and is put to irreparable disadvantage is not being able to remove the wrong impression from the mind of the Magistrate and the danger is intensified by the Magistrate holding the local inspection ex parte. 61 Ind. Cas. 712=22 Cr. L.J. 424=1 Pat. L.T. 569.

—Holding Court beyond office hours.

For practical purposes it is quite improper for a Judge to insist on sitting beyond the prescribed hours unless, of course, the lawyers in the case agree. The lawyers are professional men who have to regulate their interviews in accordance with the regular and prescribed hours of the Court's sittings and it is not reasonable except for really unavoidable necessity or for the agreed convenience of all concerned that a Court should insist on sitting at times neither prescribed nor suitable. 89 Ind. Cas. 961=4 Pat. 646=26 Cr. L.J. 1441=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 772.

—Court in camp—Pleaders not attending—Court to deliver judgment without hearing them. 69 Ind. Cas. 640=A.I.R. 1923 Nag. 208.

—Successor should not condemn predecessor's order in strong words.

It is a very grave thing for one Judge to say that the order passed by another Judge particularly by his own predecessor in office is a 'nullity and utterly void' however much he may doubt its correctness. 83 Ind. Cas. 220=51 Cal. 715=28 C.W.N. 795=39 C.L.J. 399=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 830.

—A Judge is free to change his opinion as often as he likes until he has definitely made a final order. 75 Ind. Cas. 682=27 C.W.N. 792=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 685.

—Judge—Acting once as counsel in a cause.

It is a long usage that a judge would refuse to adjudicate on a case in which he was working as counsel before he was raised to the bench. But if he was acting in another case on behalf of one of the parties he, when raised to bench, may adjudicate a case in which that same person is a party. 31 C.L.J. 313=57 Ind. Cas. 22.

—Judge acting in two capacities.

A Judge acting as Sub-Judge and Additional District Judge exercises jurisdiction as two distinct courts. 13 N.L.R. 203=42 Ind. Cas. 746.

—Judge—Statement of—Events in trial.

The statement of the Judge trying a case as to what happened before him is conclusive on questions of fact. 55 Ind. Cas. 628 (Cal.)

—Judge—Anonymous letters.

Impropriety of addressing anonymous complaints to Court in connection with pending cases pointed out. 43 Cal. 685=20 C.W.N. 278=23 C.L.J. 237=17 Cr. L.J. 5=32 Ind. Cas. 657.

—Judge—Reason of their existence.

Courts do not exist for the sake of discipline but for the sake of deciding matters in controversy. (1914) M.W.N. 883=26 Ind. Cas. 337.

—Judge—Knowledge of, not to be imported.

A judge cannot without giving evidence as a witness, impart into a case his own knowledge of particular facts. In such a case the judge should decline to hear the matter. 16 Ind. Cas. 859 (Cal.).

—Judge—Personal opinion.

A magistrate cannot import into his judgment matters of opinion and inference based on circumstances not on record. 39 Cal. 476=16 C.W.N. 425=15 C. L. J. 403=13 Cr. L.J. 156=13 Ind. Cas. 844.

—Judge—Private opinion.

It is illegal and improper for a judge to introduce a private man's opinion in his judgment nor can he allow his judgment as to conviction or sentence to be influenced by the said opinion. 8 P.W.R. 1909 Cr.=10 Cr. L.J. 321=3 Ind. Cas. 622.

—Judges trying a cause consulting another judge, propriety of.

Judges who have heard the arguments and who are responsible for the decision can hardly with propriety rest it on the authority of one who has not heard the arguments and is not responsible for the decision though he also may be a judge of the High Court. (1901) 5 C.W.N. 729=28 C. 621=3 Bom. L.R. 808=28 I. A. 159 (P.C.).

—Judge—Duty of—Adjudication of claim.

It is the duty of the court to adjudicate on a claim as brought. It cannot direct parties to alter their claims. 1 P.R. 1911=47 P.L.R. 1911=22 P.W.R. 1911=9 Ind. Cas. 673.

—Judge—Demeanour—Pleader.

Magistrates should not by their demeanour give room to the suspicion that one practitioner is favoured at the expense of the others. (1911) 1 M.W.N. 327=21 M.L.J. 283=12 Cr. L. J. 150=10 M. L. T. 84=9 Ind. Cas. 897.

—Judgment—Binding force of.

A judgment of a Court, so long as it subsists is binding on the parties to the action in which it was given and their privies: it can however have no binding effect on persons, who were not any way privies to the judgment. A.I.R. 1949 P.C. 54.

—Judgment—Signed by after retirement—Same pronounced by succeeding Judge—Legality.

A District Judge retired from office on October 4, 1927. The judgment was signed by him on 9th October, 1927 and the same was pronounced in Court by his successor on 17th October, 1927.

Held, that the judgment was valid in law. 53 A. 133=A.I.R. 1931 A. 90=1930 A.L.J. 1566.

—Judgment—Amendment.

Mistake of fact committed by High Court should be corrected in the High Court and not in Privy Council. 94 Ind. Cas. 916=4 Rang. 513=1926 M. W. N. 489=3 O.W.N. 735=A.I.R. 1926 P.C. 29 (P.C.).

—Erroneous statement, by counsel or misunderstanding by a judge can be corrected only by a review and not by appeal. 80 Ind. Cas. 601=22 A.L.J. 647=5 L.R.A. Civ. 404=A.I.R. 1924 All. 518.

—Judgment—Finality.

When issue cannot be re-opened, decision thereon must be accepted without inquiry. A. I. R. 1929 All. 761.

—Legal judgments cannot be treated as mere counters in the game of litigation. They are serious pronouncements, for the most part by the judicial officers of the State, touching the rights or disputes of subjects, bringing home to those subjects what the rules of justice required and are enforceable, if need be, by the forces of the State. Moreover, when once pronounced they cannot be lightly set aside.

The Court has no jurisdiction after the judgment at the trial has been passed and entered to rehear the case. The only cases in which the Court can interfere after the passing and entering of the judgment are: (1) where there has been an accident or slip in the judgment as drawn up, in which case the Court has power to rectify it, and (2) where Court itself finds the judgment as drawn up does not correctly state what the Court actually decided and intended. (1896) 1 Ch. 673. Foll.

The mere fact that the parties to a suit were under the impression that the result of suing and being sued in the names of the respective attorneys of their respective principals would be the same as if the principals themselves were the parties litigant, is not sufficient to vitiate a judgment regularly pronounced. 99 Ind. Cas. 742=1926 M.W.N. 832=4 O.W.N. 1=25 M.L.W. 163=A.I.R. 1926 P.C. 136 (P.C.).

—Judgment—Setting aside.

In the judgment in a suit for damages for malicious prosecution it is not proper for the Judge to discuss the judgment in the criminal case, but if the conclusions arrived at by the Judge are not based on the findings of the Magistrate or on evidence recorded by him but he has come to independent conclusions on the evidence produced in the case on the issues framed, his judgment is not vitiated merely on this ground. 99 Ind. Cas. 628=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 120.

—Technical defect.

The High Court refused to set aside the proceedings in the lower Court or order an appeal to be re-heard as a first appeal in that Court merely on the ground of a technical objection to the form of the judgment. 88 Ind. Cas. 586=6 L.R.A. Civ. 393=A. I. R. 1925 All. 808.

—Ambiguity in judgment of lower Court is a good ground.

Where the Judge in the lower Court found in the earlier part of his judgment that M was undoubtedly in possession of the house, and further on he said:—"I have been shown no ruling which requires that the possession of the house on the part of the widow must be exclusive. All that appears to be necessary is to show that she is in actual possession and that there has been no division between her and any other person."

Held, that this was not a clear finding and the sentence in question may mean one of two things. It may mean either that M and the other heirs of the family were in actual joint possession of the house, in which case the decree of the court below would be clearly incorrect; or it may merely mean that M was not in possession adversely to the other heirs.

Held, further that as M and her husband had given evidence that they were in exclusive possession of the house, as they were not cross-examined and as there was no evidence to the contrary and as the plaintiffs admitted they were out of possession at the time of the institution of the suit, the Judge could not have meant that M was not in sole possession of the house and his decree cannot be attacked on this ground. 78 Ind. Cas. 214=A.I.R. 1924 All. 729.

—Observations in Judgment.

Where the order of a Munsif is set aside on appeal by the District Judge, the observations of the Munsif on the question of benami though not touched upon by the Appellate Court, cannot be relied upon by a party on the question of the benami nature of the transaction. 76 Ind. Cas. 241=27 C. W. N. 38=37 C.L.J. 265=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 121.

—Per Coutts-Trotter, J.—An unappealed order of predecessor could not be effectually reversed by the succeeding Judge. 68 Ind. Cas. 921=16 M.L.W. 608=31 M.L.T. 284=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 44=43 M.L.J. 480.

—Erroneous judgment and void Judgment.

An erroneous judgment is a voidable judgment, for the argument that a judgment is erroneous assumes both the regularity of the procedure and the jurisdiction of the Court to render it. An erroneous judgment is one which though regularly rendered, is contrary to law or facts, and is therefore liable to be reversed by an appellate tribunal.

An irregular judgment is also a voidable judgment but the distinction between an erroneous judgment and an irregular judgment is this that whereas an erroneous judgment will always be reversed by an Appellate Court an irregular judgment will be reversed in Appeal or ignored in a collateral proceeding only when it is shown that the irregularity in the proceedings has affected the merits of the case between the parties.

A void judgment, on the other hand, is a judgment where there was total lack of jurisdiction in the Court to render it. Such a judgment is a mere nullity. It is not necessary to set it aside.

Where there does exist a jurisdiction but, in the exercise of the jurisdiction, the Court has acted illegally or with material irregularity, the judgment is voidable, and it can be vacated in an appropriate proceeding either by the Court which rendered it, or under C.P.C., by the Appellate Court, either in appeal or in revision. 71 Ind. Cas. 705=2 Pat. 335=4 P.L.T. 147=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 242.

—Where the Appellate Court recorded a finding merely stating that the plaintiff has failed to discharge the burden of proof which lay very heavily upon him.

Held; that the judgment is not a good judgment. A.I.R. 1923 All. 412.

—Judgment simply repeating arguments of Counsel is unsatisfactory.

Where the judgment of the Court is practically nothing but a recapitulation of the arguments of Counsel with a brief indication of the Court's opinion with regard to the said arguments, the judgment cannot be regarded as satisfactory. 64 Ind. Cas. 929=2 Lah. 271=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 119.

—Failure to establish a custom.

Where a plaintiff in order to succeed has to establish a particular custom and he fails to establish it, the Court should only dismiss the suit. 60 Ind. Cas. 147=7 O.L.J. 474.

—Hard case—Bad law.

Hard cases must not be allowed to make a bad law. 7 O.L.J. 164=2 U. P.L.R. (J.C.) 96=56 Ind. Cas. 299.

—Judgment—Statements in, as to admission of pleader—Value of—Rebuttal.

The suggestion that the judges of the High Court might have misunderstood the conduct of the pleader in making certain admissions, could not be entertained in the absence of anything showing that the pleader called the attention of the court to the fact that the statement in the judgment regarding his conduct was wrong while the matter was still fresh in the minds of the judges. An affidavit filed before the Judicial Committee long afterwards by a person who said he was present at the trial and the pleader made no admission as stated and the fact that the pleader was unable to recall whether in fact he made the admission or not, are wholly insufficient to prove that the statement in the judgment was erroneous. 21 C.W.N. 897=(1917) M.W.N. 518=6 L.W. 437=42 Ind. Cas. 527 (P.C.).

—Judgment—Statements in—Court if can go behind.

A Court should not go behind any statement in the judgment of another court. 13 Ind. Cas. 311 (Cal.).

—Judgment—Findings of judge—To be specific.

Judges, whatever reasons they may give in judgments, must make specific and precise statements of their findings. 37 Ind. Cas. 304 (All.).

—Judgment—Preliminary point—No hearing on merits.

An appellant is not entitled to a hearing on the merits if the appeal is liable to be dismissed on a preliminary ground. 2 L. W. 999=18 M.L.T. 383=19 M.L.J. 784=(1915) M.W.N. 817=31 Ind. Cas. 74.

—Judgment—Additions to, before decree.

Where a decree has not been drawn up and issued, the High Court can supplement its judgment with directions for carrying out the decision and to embody these in the decree. (1913) M.W.N. 906=21 Ind. Cas. 545.

—Judgment—Delivery of judgment on holiday—Not illegal—Remedy of aggrieved party.

Delivery of judgment on a holiday is not illegal but if any person is injuriously affected thereby he is entitled to a redress for the grievances. The English rule as to Sundays being dies non does not apply to India. (1912) M.W.N. 65=11 M.L.T. 84=22 M.L.J. 212=13 Ind. Cas. 463.

—Judgment lost.

Where a judgment has been lost, it is open to the judge to rewrite from memory the substance of it. (1907) 8 C.L.J. 521.

—Appellate Court—Findings must be clear.

It is the duty of the Judge when sitting as the final Court of fact to state in his judgment clearly what his findings are, and the High Court sitting in second appeal cannot deduce from casual statements in the judgment, findings of fact which are not clearly expressed. 67 Ind. Cas. 998=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 278.

—Judgment—Appellate Court—Grounds of appeal to be specifically dealt with.

An Appellate Court ought to dispose of specifically the grounds of appeal urged before it. Where the first court had recorded that a party has closed his case, it cannot be urged in appeal that that court had refused to receive further evidence, without conclusively proving that the record is wrong. 3 P.W.R. 1914=27 P.L.R. 1914=23 Ind. Cas. 352.

(b). Basis of.*—Judgment—Suspicion.

Court's decision must not rest on suspicion but upon legal grounds established by legal testimony. 123 Ind. Cas. 220=7 O.W.N. 373=A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 272.

—Judgment—Surmise.

Judgment must be based on legal evidence and not on surmise. 98 Ind. Cas. 129=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 140.

—The Court's decision must rest not upon suspicion but upon legal grounds established by legal testimony. 94 Ind. Cas. 420=A.I.R. 1926 Oudh 469.

—Decision—Grounds for.

A Court must base its decision upon legal ground established by legal testimony and not upon suspicion. 80 Ind. Cas. 692=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 171.

—A judgment is liable to be set aside where it is conjectural and based on inadmissible evidence. A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 37.

—Court's decision should rest not on suspicion but legal grounds established by legal testimony. 66 Ind. Cas. 694=34 C.L.J. 33=25 C.W.N. 942=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 435.

—Judgment—Conjecture.

A contention on conjectural grounds is of no weight. 25 Ind. Cas. 955 (Cal.).

—Judgment—Suspicion—Decision based on.

Suspicion though a ground for scrutiny cannot be made the foundation of a decision. 34 All. 511=12 M.L.T. 392=15 O.C. 278=14 Bom. L.R. 1073=10 A.L.J. 373=17 C.W.N. 49=16 C.L.J. 629=(1912) M.W.N. 1052=23 M.L.J. 741=39 I.A. 68=17 Ind. Cas. 396 (P.C.).

—Judgment—Conjecture—Surmises independent of surrounding facts—Miscarriage of justice.

The practice of singling out one fact and making a surmises independent of the surrounding circumstances is very likely to mislead and cause a miscarriage of justice. 14 Ind. Cas. 95 (Cal.).

—Judgment—Conjectures.

A judge should not base his decision in favour of party on conjectures as to matters of fact, nowhere alleged by the party. 93 P.R. 1910=128 P.W.R. 1910=186 P.L.R. 1910=8 Ind. Cas. 353.

—Judgment—Conjecture.

Conjectures are no substitute for proof where a solemn deed by the father is sought to be set aside by the son.

35 Cal. 1039=42 P.R. 1910=12 C.W.N. 1049=35 I.A. 206=8 C.L.J. 359=18 M.L.J. 379=128 P.W.R. 1908=4 M.L.T. 207=10 Bom. L.R. 790=6. Ind. Cas. 721. (P.C.).

—Discussion about speculative theories built on medical books without any facts established by the evidence in the case was condemned: 23 Cal. 1 (P.C.), Appr. 98 Ind. Cas. 567=1 Luck. 403=3 O.W.N. 761=29 O.C. 305=31 C.W.N. 438=A.I.R. 1926 P.C. 97 (P.C.).

—It is not open to a Court to speculate. 76 Ind. Cas. 881=30 M.L.T. 168=A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 341=42 M.L.J. 124.

—Judgment—Propriety.

Judgment based on evidence recorded in another suit at the request of one party but in teeth of the opposition of the other party is liable to be set aside. 85 Ind. Cas. 912=35 M.L.T. 101=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 230=47 M.L.J. 640.

—Judgment—Materials for.

Every Court is bound to base its decision not merely on "evidence" but on "matters before it". The expression "matters before it" in S. 3 of the Evidence Act includes matters which do not fall within the definition of "evidence" as given in that section. Therefore in determining what is evidence other than "evidence" in the phraseology of the Act, the definition of "evidence" must be read with that of "proved" given in the said section. 79 Ind. Cas. 609=A.I.R. 1924 Nag. 385.

—Judgment—Extraneous matter.

Where judgment of a trial judge on a question of fact was vitiated by extraneous matter, the appellate judgment was liable to be reversed as it must have been influenced by the finding of the trial Judge on that question. 44 Cal. 711=25 C.L.J. 66=21 C.W.N. 549=18 Cr.L.J. 477=39 Ind. Cas. 317.

—Judgment—Validity of—District Judge following a finding of Divisional Judge in another case—Validity.

Where a District Judge affirms a decree following a finding as to the customs arrived at by a Divisional Judge in another case, he does not apply his mind to the point and his procedure is irregular. 221 P.W.R. 1915=43 P.L.R. 1915=27 Ind. Cas. 980.

—Judgment—Conviction—Magistrate seeking advice of Dt. Magistrate as to jurisdiction, improper.

Where a Magistrate before whom an accused was placed on trial became doubtful as to his jurisdiction, and thereupon sought the advice of the District Magistrate and on the receipt of the latter's opinion on the question of jurisdiction, proceeded to try the case.

Held, that the Magistrate should not have asked for the advice of the Dt. Magistrate in the way he did, but was bound to finish his inquiry, complete his record by the reception of all evidence of relevant facts including the facts which bore upon the question of accused's amenability to his jurisdiction, and then as a Magistrate pass such order as seemed to him to be legal and proper. 37 Bom. 144=14 Bom. L.R. 891=13 Cr. L.J. 786=17 Ind. Cas. 530.

—Judgment—Validity—Judgment on materials not evidence or on personal knowledge of the Judge.

A Judgment on materials that are no evidence or on personal knowledge of the judge is invalid. 38 Cal. 153=12 Cr. L.J. 355=10 Ind. Cas. 955.

(c). Consistency with pleadings.

—Judgment—Pleadings.

Judgment inconsistent with pleadings and issues—Pleading should be amended and issues framed if necessary, giving counsel opportunity of dealing with case as then set up. 32 Bom. L.R. 454=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 249.

—Plea—Decision in a case should be consistent with the pleadings; else the defendant may be taken by surprise.

The general rule is that it is necessary that the determinations in a cause should be founded upon a case either to be found in the pleadings or involved in or consistent with the case thereby made: (11 M. I. A. 7, Foll.). But there are exceptions to that general rule, of which the underlying principle is mainly for the protection of a defendant, so that he should not be taken by surprise: 115 Ind. Cas. 379=52 Bom. 875=30 Bom. L.R. 1277=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 484.

—A Court is not competent to rest its decision on a plea which does not arise out of the pleadings. 74 Ind. Cas. 369=9 O.L.J. 629=27 O.C. 64=A.I.R. 1923 Oudh 114.

—Tort—Damages—Collision between motor and motor cycle—Suit for damages—Decision must be absolutely consistent with pleadings. 66 Ind. Cas. 745=34 C.L.J. 178=25 C.W.N. 519=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 543.

—Judgment—Redemption suit—Finding on a point not set up in defence.

A finding that the transaction was in fact a sale is wrong when defendant only pleads that the transaction was a sham one to mask the real fact. 7 O.L.J. 389=58 Ind. Cas. 115.

—Judgment—Case not set up in the plaint.

A party is not entitled to a claim not set up in the pleadings nor consistent with it though the court sets forth such a claim for him. 3 U.B.R. (1920) 201=57 Ind. Cas. 873.

—Judgment—Suit on easement—Decree on footing of natural right.

A plaintiff who claims a right of easement but fails to establish the exercise of the right for the statutory period, cannot succeed upon his natural right. The Court cannot make out a case not set up in the plaint and then grant relief. 56 Ind. Cas. 970 (Pat.).

—Judgment—Court not to set up.

The Court is not entitled to set up a case for plaintiff which not only he did not set up but on the contrary which he definitely repudiated through his counsel. 56 Ind. Cas. 638 (Lah.).

—Judgment—Not to be set up.

The Court is not justified in setting up a new case for the plaintiff on grounds not raised by him in the plaint or pleadings. 50 Ind. Cas. 160 (Lah.).

—Judgment—Decision on point not raised by either party—Procedure.

A judge commits an error in ignoring the allegations of the parties and deciding the case on a point which found no place in the pleadings. 136 P.W.R. 1918=46 Ind. Cas. 646.

—Judgment—Case not set up by plaintiff or defendant.

The Court cannot set up a case which is neither the plaintiff's nor the defendant's and where in such a case, an appeal is dismissed, the High Court remanded the case for rehearing. 40 Ind. Cas. 467 (Cal.).

—Judgment—Case to be based on pleadings.

The Court should never arrive at a conclusion in accordance with the case of neither side and each case must be based upon the pleadings. 34 Ind. Cas. 466 (Pat.).

—Judgment—New case not to be made.

If a point is outside the pleadings, a court is not competent to decide on the point. 34 P.R. 1916=54 P.W.R. 1916=31 Ind. Cas. 386.

—Judgment—New case not to be set up.

A suit should not be decreed on the basis of a claim not set up in the plaint or raised in the issues or even in the memo of appeal. 131 M. 531; 2 C. 411, Foll. 1 L.W. 853=1914 M.W.N. 784=25 Ind. Cas. 934.

—Judgment—New objection—Not to be raised.

Where in a suit for mere declaration challenging an adoption no objection was taken by the defendant as to the form of the suit and no issue was raised regarding the right to the property.

Held, that it was not open to the court to take up the point suo motu in its judgment and decide it adversely to the plaintiffs. 287 P.L.R. 1913=177 P.W.R. 1913=94 P.R. 1913=29 Ind. Cas. 454.

—Judgment—Court's duty.

The Court cannot make out a case not set up in the plaint, and not supported by plaintiff's witnesses. 5 Bur. L.T. 167=6 L.B.R. 74=17 Ind. Cas. 900.

—Judgment—Decision different from the case of either party.

The Court should not decide a suit in a way which is not the case of either party and on a matter on which no issue was raised. (1912) M.W.N. 177=15 Ind. Cas. 185.

—Judgment—Pleading—Dismissal of suit.

A suit cannot be dismissed on the finding on a point which is not raised either in the written statement or specifically raised in the issues. 11 Ind. Cas. 25 (Sind).

—Judgment—Pleadings—Finding of Court.

When the plaintiff claimed a certain plot as their own and defendants claimed a right of way.

Held, the lower court cannot give a finding of common ownership. 9 M.L.T. 350=9 Ind. Cas. 640.

—Judgment—Suit brought on one ground—Decree passed on another ground.

Suit brought on one ground cannot be decreed on a different ground, which the defendant had no opportunity of meeting. 34 Bom. 244=11 Bom. L.R. 237=2 Ind. Cas. 146.

See (1) C.P.C., S. 151 AND O. 20, R. 4.

—Judgment—Expunging from—Finding if can be expunged on the ground that it is unnecessary.

Where evidence is produced by both parties on all the issues and definite findings arrived at, it is not open to the party adversely affected thereby, to ask in appeal that a finding be expunged from the judgment on the ground that it was not necessary for the decision of the case. 51 Ind. Cas. 392 (Cal.).

—Judgment—Expunging from—Pleader's remarks against, by court.

Where a pleader is justified in making a suggestion the court should not make any remarks describing the suggestion as a daring attempt to mislead the court.

Such a remark should be expunged from the record. 15 Cr. L.J. 420=24 Ind. Cas. 156.

—Suit upon judgment—Competency—Suit upon preliminary mortgage decree for sale—Maintainability.

It is true that a suit can be filed upon a debt created by a decree. But a debt is a personal obligation to pay an ascertained sum of money and therefore, the relationship of a debtor and creditor is necessary to found an action upon a judgment which creates a debt. Where no such personal obligation exists, as in the case of a preliminary mortgage decree for sale, it follows that an action upon a preliminary mortgage decree is incompetent. A personal obligation can arise only when the mortgage security is insufficient to discharge the mortgage debt and when an order is made pursuant to O. 34, R. 6, C. P. Code. I.L.R. (1946) Kar. 110=228 Ind. Cas. 54=A.I.R. 1947 Sind 12.

38. Practice—Judicial order.

See also JUDICIAL ORDER.

—Order by Court made or deemed to be made in presence of parties—Finality and binding character of—Right of parties to reopen. See C.P. CODE, O. 33, R. 9 (b). I.L.R. (1949) Cut. 578.

—Judicial Order.

Court is not justified in passing an order to the detriment of judgment-debtor without giving him an opportunity to show cause against it. 116 Ind. Cas. 714 (Lah.).

—Formal order—Necessity for.

There is no provision in the C.P. Code, requiring a Court when deciding any matter which is other than a regular suit to draw up a formal order in addition to and distinct from the document containing the reasons for the order: 6 C.W.N. 283, Foll. 113 Ind. Cas. 646=A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 121.

—Court overlooking small formalities and granting relief—Order is not illegal.

Forms and rules are prescribed for the guidance of the Courts and the litigants. Where a Court overlooks certain small informalities and grants the relief asked for, it is not open to the party against whom the relief is granted to question the correctness or the legality of the Court's order on the ground that the application on which the relief is granted is not in the proper form. Where one relief is claimed and another is granted, the Court may be said to act illegally or with material irregularity but when a certain prayer is specifically made under a rule which permits the making of that prayer and when the Court grants the prayer overlooking the informality, if any, the order of the Court is legal. 107 Ind. Cas. 298=A. I. R. 1928 Mad. 129.

—Finality.

A wrong order when passed becomes final unless set aside in accordance with law. 92 Ind. Cas. 235=7 L.L.J. 553=26 P.L.R. 837=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 24.

—The general principle is that persons whom it is desired to bind by proceedings can and must be impleaded in them. 69 Ind. Cas. 977=16 M.L.W. 623=1922 M.W. N. 731=32 M.L.T. 98=A. I. R. 1923 Mad. 57=43 M.L.J. 559.

—Courts are forbidden to issue prohibitory orders by telegram. 67 Ind. Cas. 771=11 L. B. R. 294=1 Bur. L.J. 28=A.I.R. 1923 Rang. 6.

—Ex-parte order—Application to set aside—Must be considered on merits.

When a widow of one of the decree-holders got her name recorded in place of her husband without notice to other decree-holders and when the other decree-holders applied to be heard as to whether the order was wrong.

Held, that the Court is bound to decide whether the ex-parte order was correct. 70 Ind. Cas. 859=A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 280.

—Judicial order—Successor if bound by that order.

An order made by a judge is binding on his successor, till set aside in due course of law. 21 C.L.J. 571=29 L.C. 966.

—Judicial order—Order by predecessor in office—Whether successor can go behind.

In one and the same Court a successor in office cannot go behind the order of his predecessor and cancel it as incorrect. 1 O.L.J. 682=26 Ind. Cas. 872.

—Judicial order—Transfer of presiding officer of court—Judge cannot re-open.

If the presiding officer of a court has decided a question involved in a case and is transferred and succeeded by another officer the latter cannot re-open the same question again except on the ground of some palpable mistake committed by the former. 204 P.L.R. 1910=8 Ind. Cas. 779.

—Judicial order—Hearing parties—Omission of—Remand.

If a court passes an order on application without hearing the objection of the other party, the appellate court must set it aside and remand the case for a fresh decision on the evidence of both parties. 17 P. W. R. 1912=240 P.L.R. 1912=14 Ind. Cas. 379.

—Appeal—Opportunity not given to appellant to be heard—Dismissal—Propriety.

Where on the presentation of appeal, appellant's pleader was asked to argue the case at once and on his failure to do so, the appeal was dismissed.

Held, that the appeal ought to be reheard as reasonable opportunity was not given to the appellant to be heard. 6 M.L.T. 309=10 Cr. L.J. 491=4 Ind. Cas. 97.

(2) Jurisdiction

- (a) General
- (b) Civil and Criminal Court
- (c) Civil and Revenue Court
- (d) Objection to
- (e) Waiver.

39 (a). Practice—Jurisdiction—General.

—Jurisdiction of Court—Question doubtful—Duty of High Court.

Where the question involved is one of jurisdiction and it is not free from doubt, it is the duty of a High Court to seize it. 50 P.L.R. 318=A.I.R. 1949 E.P. 262.

—Exercise of unusual jurisdiction of making bargain which parties themselves had not specifically made to prevent fraud.

The Court does not exist for the purpose of making a new contract between the parties, but merely to determine and enforce such a contract, if any, as the parties themselves have made. But in very exceptional circumstances such as to prevent a fraud on a party who has erected buildings on another man's land in consequence of certain expectations held out to him the Court can exercise that very unusual jurisdiction of making a bargain which the parties themselves had not specifically made. This jurisdiction, however, being unusual, and at the same time of a powerful character, must be exercised with all due discretion; 123 Ind. Cas. 481=53 Bom. 792=31 Bom. L.R. 1310=A.I.R. 1930 Bom. 84.

—A Civil Court has no jurisdiction to restrain a party by an injunction from pursuing her remedy, under S. 488, Cr. P. C. in a Criminal Court. 1930 Cr.C. 1153=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 763.

—Where a Court of a particular place is vested with the powers of a Small Cause Court to try suits up to a particular amount, whoever occupies that Court is competent to try those suits. 121 Ind. Cas. 803=7 Rang. 809=A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 139.

—Court disowning jurisdiction by assigning to suit character which plaintiff did not intend it to have.

It is not permissible for a Court to disown jurisdiction by assigning to the suit a character which was not intended by the plaintiffs to have and which cannot be assigned to it without resorting to a far-fetched theory not based on the allegations contained in the plaint and on a proper consideration of the entire frame of the suit. 116 Ind. Cas. 802=1929 A.L.J. 890=10 L.R.A. Rev. 363=51 All. 926=A.I.R. 1929 All. 669.

—Power to add a person who has not attained probate.

In a case of an originating summons Court has jurisdiction, notwithstanding S. 213, Succession Act to add a person, who has not yet obtained probate or letters of administration, as representing the estate of the deceased, provided such person undertakes to take out probate or letters of administration prior to any formal decree being drawn up: In Re, Richardson, (1893) 3 Ch. 146, Foll. 120 Ind. Cas. 338=31 Bom. L.R. 511=A.I.R. 1929 Bom. 289.

12—F. Y. D.—48-A.

—Person has remedy in Civil Court if act of Municipal Committee is arbitrary, oppressive and ultra vires. 115 Ind. Cas. 755=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 774.

—Mortgage suit—Objection as to paramount title not raised and decision reached.

When the parties to a mortgage suit allowed a matter of paramount title to go to trial without objection, a reversal of the judgment of the first Court on the ground that the issue was not properly triable in the action should not be allowed. There cannot be said to be a flaw in the matter of jurisdiction. At the most there is an undue or unnecessary extension of the frame of the litigation and the scope of the enquiry. 113 Ind. Cas. 884=A.I.R. 1928 Nag. 306.

—Suit premature at institution—Cause of action maturing during pendency of suit—Suit should not be dismissed. 89 Ind. Cas. 333=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 145.

—No Court can confer jurisdiction on itself by wrongly deciding facts necessary to be proved to determine a question of jurisdiction. 98 Ind. Cas. 65=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 1089=51 M.L.J. 394.

—Jurisdiction—Want.

No jurisdiction can be conferred by practice however long continued it may be. 4 L.W. 402=37 Ind. Cas. 436.

—Jurisdiction over foreign subject.

When the jurisdiction of a Court in British India is involved against a subject of a foreign State on the ground that by coming within the physical boundaries of the jurisdiction of that Court he is liable to be sued as if he were a subject of His Majesty, a duty is cast upon the Court to be as jealous in safeguarding his liberties as if he were for all purposes a subject of His Majesty. 94 Ind. Cas. 512=50 Mad. 27=1926 M.W.N. 328=24 M.L.W. 94=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 584=50 M.L.J. 348.

—Valuation.

Valuation found by Sub-judge was challenged in High Court which increased the valuation and held that appeal lay to it on the increased valuation though on the valuation of the sub-Judge appeal lay to District Judge. 94 Ind. Cas. 343=1 Luck 202=13 O.L.J. 229=A.I.R. 1926 Oudh 428.

—Successor can override predecessor's order regarding application under O. 9, R. 13.

Where, on the application under O. 9, R. 13 the Court passed the order that it should be considered after taking the evidence of the parties:

Held, that the successor of the Judge who passed the order is not precluded from going into the propriety of the application. 90 Ind. Cas. 512=42 C. L.J. 224=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 1010.

—The Lower Court is incompetent to deal with directions and costs on commissioner's report while an appeal is pending from an order on objections to the commissioner's report. 72 Ind. Cas. 401=25 Bom. L.R. 237=A.I.R. 1923 Bom. 200.

—Parties should place before Court all available materials.

Where the jurisdiction of the Revenue authorities was challenged by a party as against the Government it was incumbent on the advisers of the Crown to place before the Court all the materials available with a view to establish that jurisdiction had been assumed in strict compliance with statutory requirements. 70 Ind. Cas. 510=36 C.L.J. 345=50 Cal. 276=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 233.

—The plaint must be read before anything else is done, and, if it discloses no cause of action, the suit dies without reaching the point when jurisdiction can be discussed, or rather there can be no jurisdiction unless there be a cause of action. 75 Ind. Cas. 165=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 290.

—Jurisdiction—Special court.

Ordinarily when jurisdiction has been conferred upon a special Court for the investigation of matters which may possibly be in controversy such jurisdiction is exclusive. 10 C. 991 followed.

The Land Acquisition Act creates a special jurisdiction and provides a special remedy. It would not be reasonable to hold that the Legislature having provided a special remedy in the Land Acquisition Act intended to make it optional with a party to apply for a reference under S. 18 or to institute a suit in the ordinary Civil Court.

A person having been served with a notice under S. 9 was bound to apply for reference under S. 18 when he was dissatisfied with the award. He cannot maintain a suit in the ordinary Civil Court. 65 Ind. Cas. 711=26 C.W.N. 506=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 4.

—Appeal against question of, lies.

The practice in the Madras High Court is to allow an objection to be taken to an order on the ground of want of jurisdiction by way of appeal. 72 Ind. Cas. 482=1922 M.W.N. 483=A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 416.

—Contract—Breach—Canada—British Columbia—Rules of the Supreme Court of British Columbia—O. 11, R. 1 (c)—Leave to sue—Contract for sale of ships—Reasonable evidence of contract is sufficient—Defendant can prove absence of contract, at hearing. A.I.R. 1921 P.C. 193 (P.C.).

—Court is not bound to pass nugatory order.

Obiter.—Where facts have come into existence which would make an order for relief nugatory, a Court has always jurisdiction to refuse to make the order, so that if a registered proprietor has already been adjudged by a competent Court to have no title, he will not be given a decree for rent notwithstanding S. 60 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. 61 Ind. Cas. 386=6 P.L.J. 658=2 P.L.T. 337=1921 P.H.C.C. 201=A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 363.

—Jurisdiction — Irregularities in initial procedure—Effect.

Where, in a case which a Court is competent to try, the parties go to trial on the merits without objection one of the parties cannot subsequently dispute the jurisdiction of the Court on the ground of irregularities in the initial procedure which if objected to at the initial stages would have led to the dismissal of the suit. 9 A. 191 Foll. 40 Ind. Cas. 2 (Pat.)

—Jurisdiction—New enactment.

The Court competent to decide appeals filed before a new Act was introduced but pending in the Court, is the Court which would dispose of them, had they been filed after the new Act. 43 P.W.R. 1916=88 P.R. 1916=132 P.L.R. 1916=35 Ind. Cas. 67.

—Jurisdiction—Court having no jurisdiction—If can go into merits.

Where a Court finds it has no jurisdiction, it should not go into and dispose of the case on the merits. 45 P.W.R. 1912=73 P.L.R. 1912=13 Ind. Cas. 401.

—Competency of court to call upon plaintiff to prove bona fides of claim if there is reason to believe that allegation in plaint is falsely made to avoid jurisdiction of Small Cause Court.

Where the court of first instance thinks that there is reason to believe that an allegation in the plaint is falsely made to avoid jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court, it can require the plaintiff to satisfy the court that the allegation is bona fide and not merely colourable for changing the venue. (1899) 24 M. 158.

39 (b). Practice—Jurisdiction—Civil and Criminal Court.

—Jurisdiction—Matter agitated and decided in civil Court—Same matter cannot be agitated in criminal Court again.

A criminal Court should not, except for very exceptional and cogent reasons, go behind the finding of a civil Court which has been arrived at on merits.

Where the civil Court grants a decree on the basis of a bond which is alleged to have been executed under duress, and the plea of wrongful confinement, extortion and duress raised by the complainant in the civil suit is decided against him, the complainant shall not be permitted to agitate the same plea in a criminal Court; 33 P.R. 1910 (Cr.). Foll. 120 Ind. Cas. 186=31 P.L.R. 60=1930 Cr.C. 30=31 Cr.L.J. 48=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 62.

—Criminal Court cannot usurp the function of Civil Courts in ordering the return of goods got lawfully by a third party. 4 L.B.R. 25 followed. 65 Ind. Cas. 1000=23 Cr.L.J. 216=11 L.B.R. 217=A.I.R. 1922 L.B. 17.

39 (c). Practice—Jurisdiction—Civil and Revenue Court.

—Jurisdiction—Civil and Revenue Court.

Where from the plaint as framed it is possible to deduce that the one and only object of the plaintiff is really to obtain a declaration of his right to a tenancy the suit is triable by a revenue Court only, whether or no one of the reliefs asked for is such a relief as could, if that alone had been asked for, be entertained by a Civil Court, because it is the essential object of the plaintiff which has to be considered and if he can obtain that object by a suit in the revenue Court, the revenue Court is the proper Court. 118 Ind. Cas. 583=1929 A.L.J. 1026=10 L.R.A. Rev. 356=A.I.R. 1929 All. 613.

—A suit for profits was instituted in Revenue Court wherein the Court held that the plaintiff's name had been rightly recorded in respect of the shares for the profits of which the suit was brought. The question of title was referred to the Civil Court which however did not completely decide the same and during the pendency of the suit the Revenue Court made alterations in the Revenue papers, to plaintiff's detriment:

Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to obtain profits in respect of the share which stood recorded in her name at the date of the institution of the suit and during the years for which profits were claimed. 29 Ind. Cas. 509, Dist. 18 A.L.J. 1008, Foll. 63 Ind. Cas. 976=43 All. 697=19 A.L.J. 732=A.I.R. 1921 All. 124.

—Jurisdiction—Civil or Revenue Courts—Case partly triable by each.

In a case cognizable partly by Civil Court and partly by a Revenue Court, the Civil Court should dispose it off to the extent cognizable by it leaving the rest to the plaintiff to lodge a fresh suit in the Revenue Court if so advised. 247 P.L.R. 1912=261 P.W.R. 1912=16 Ind. Cas. 752.

—Jurisdiction—Civil or Revenue Courts—Difference of opinion Matter to be referred to Chief Court.

Where a difference of opinion arises as to whether a suit is cognizable by the Revenue Court or a Civil Court, the matter should be referred to the Chief Court. 49 P.W.R. 1912=101 P.L.R. 1912=13 Ind. Cas. 447.

—Civil Court holding suit non-entertainable by it but entertainable by revenue Court cannot dismiss suit but must return plaint for presentation to proper Court. 116 Ind. Cas. 802=1929 A.L.J. 840=10 L.R.A. Rev. 363=51 All. 926=A.I.R. 1929 All. 669.

39 (d). Practice—Jurisdiction—Objection to.

—Jurisdiction—Objection to jurisdiction in second appeal.

Where defect as to jurisdiction is manifest an objection to jurisdiction must be allowed even in second appeal and even though the objection is not taken in grounds of appeal: A.I.R. 1924 P.C. 95, Foll. 123 Ind. Cas. 681=A.I.R. 1930 All. 519.

—Small Cause suit tried as ordinary suit without objection in trial or first Appellate Court—Objection as to jurisdiction cannot be entertained in second appeal. 21 Cal. 249, Appr. 98 Ind. Cas. 1071=A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 120.

—Objection whether can be raised in revision.

The objection as to jurisdiction is not one merely of the place of suing but as to the nature of the Court itself and it may affect the right of appeal. Consequently the objection as to jurisdiction can be entertained in revision because on that question there can be no estoppel by conduct of parties. 1930 A.L.J. 997=52 A. 947=A.I.R. 1930 A. 873.

—Objection to, can be raised at any stage if facts proved disclose the defect. A.I.R. 1924 P.C. 95, Foll. 101 Ind. Cas. 524=49 All. 686=25 A.L.J. 421=A.I.R. 1928 All. 38.

—Plea of—When to be raised.

The question of jurisdiction should be raised in the Court of first instance and it should be given effect to by the Appellate Court only when prejudice is caused by the trial in the first Court. 79 Ind. Cas. 857=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 171.

—The question as to whether Civil Court has jurisdiction to try a suit, though abandoned in the trial Court can be raised in appeal. 11 Mad. 26 P.C. Foll. 77 Ind. Cas. 795=50 Cal. 948=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 233.

—Jurisdiction—Objection to rescissions.

An objection to jurisdiction must be decided by the Court. 26 Cal. 713=9 C.L.J. 563=13 C.W.N. 654=1 Ind. Cas. 356.

39 (e). Practice—Jurisdiction—Waiver.

—Jurisdiction—Submission by parties—If can be questioned Waiver—What is.

Where the parties to a suit which a Court is competent to try, join issue and go to trial, they cannot afterwards dispute the jurisdiction and they must be presumed to have waived their objection by their submission to it. 36 Cal. 193=5 C.L.J. 611=1 Ind. Cas. 913.

40. Practice—Justice, equity and good conscience.

—Justice, equity and good conscience—Common Law of England.

When a case has to be decided according to justice, equity and good conscience what should be followed is the Common Law of England: 48 Cal. 338, Foll. 96 Ind. Cas. 913=27 P.L.R. 375=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 479.

—English Law should be applied.

The decision of a case according to the principles of justice, equity and good conscience has generally meant decision according to the principles of English Law applicable to a similar state of circumstances. Where rights of parties are determined according to the general principles of equity and justice this must be done without any distinction, as in England, between that partial justice which is administered in the Courts of Law and the more full and complete justice for which it is frequently necessary to seek the assistance of a Court of Equity. 74 Ind. Cas. 975=37 C.L.J. 145=27 C.W.N. 587=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 538.

—In all cases for which no specific statutory directions are given in India, Judges are bound to act according to justice, equity and good conscience and the principles of justice, equity and good conscience applicable in such circumstances should be identical with the corresponding rules of the Common Law of England (10 Mad. 28) followed. 66 Ind. Cas. 861=1 Pat. 371=1922 Pat. H.C.C. 85=3 P.L.T. 276=A.I.R. 1922 Pat. 104.

—Justice, equity and good conscience—Duty of Court where no procedure is prescribed by Code.

Where no specific rule exists, the Court can act according to justice, equity and good conscience. 36 Cal. 193=5 C.L.J. 611=1 Ind. Cas. 913.

—Justice, equity and good conscience—Mistake of Court—Rule that party should not suffer—Limits.

Held, that the rule that a party should not be prejudiced as a consequence of an order of Court is inapplicable to a case wherein the party seeking relief has no equity in his favour. A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 921=1930 M.W.N. 524=59 M.L.J. 893=55 Mad. 943=32 M.L.W. 357=128 Ind. Cas. 509.

—Equitable set off—Right to claim apart from C. P. Code.

An equitable set off can be claimed independently of the specific provisions of the C. P. Code. 27 All. 145, Foll. 128 Ind. Cas. 763=A.I.R. 1930 All. 875.

—Hardship.

It is always desirable to follow a definite rule rather than to be guided by considerations of hardship in individual case: (1923) A. C. 1, Foll. 49 C.L.J. 505=33 C.W.N. 715=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 568.

—Court cannot grant relief on equitable principle about a cause of action which is created by and especially provided for in a statute if the matter does not fall within its provisions. 96 Ind. Cas. 378=30 C.W.N. 735=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 957.

—Misguidance by Judicial Officer vitiates proceedings.

It would be absolutely shocking, if the Court were to enforce against a mortgagor or any one interested in the equity of redemption a foreclosure decree when he had been misled by its duly accredited agent owing to the issue of a notice for a decree for sale. 82 Ind. Cas. 184=22 A. L. J. 791=5 L.R.A.Civ. 515=46 All. 864=A.I.R. 1924 All. 818.

—Evading law indirectly.

A person should not be allowed to do that indirectly which is forbidden to be done directly. (18 W. R. 359, Foll.) 79 Ind. Cas. 950=11 O.L.J. 423=27 O.C. 137=A.I.R. 1924 Oudh 420.

—Where the plaintiff is guilty of instituting a suit which is partly false, the whole suit should be dismissed. 4 L. L. J. 416=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 336.

—Equitable considerations.

Equitable considerations have no room in matters of procedure. (1903) 8 C.W.N. 408=31 Cal. 433.

41. Practice—Law governing.

—Codified law cannot be modified by rules of practice.

When law has been codified, it cannot be modified gradually from day to day as the changing circumstances of a community, require, by rules of practice made to meet these imperceptibly changing conditions. Any modification, however small, must be made by the legislature, when a suitable opportunity arrives. 115 Ind. Cas. 258=32 C.W.N. 945=56 Cal. 150=30 C.L.J. 435=12 A. I. Cr. R. 265=A.I.R. 1929 Cal. 57.

—Law must be applied as it stands.

If there is a law, then that law must be applied whatever the result may be, and whatever the past practice may be, and however inconvenient it may be to litigants and everybody else connected with the administration of that particular branch of the law. 103 Ind. Cas. 791=52 Bom. 459=30 Bom. L. R. 402=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 123.

—Processual law changed but not retrospectively after order but before appeal—Effect.

Lower Court made an order for execution of a decree, and the other was strictly in conformity with the processual law existing at the time of the order. After the order but before an appeal against it was preferred, the processual law was amended; but the amendment was not retrospective.

Held: that the Appellate Court should not interfere with the lower Court's order. Execution legally started cannot by change in the processual law become illegal. 114 Ind. Cas. 823=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 1194.

—Procedure is governed by local laws of the country in which action is brought.

All matters of procedure are governed wholly by the local or territorial law of the country to which a Court, wherein an action is brought or other legal proceeding is taken balance and the term "procedure" includes inter alia remedies and process, evidence, limitation of an action or other proceeding and set-off or counter claim: 40 Bom. 504, Foll. 95 Ind. Cas. 366=22 N.L.R. 92=A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 406.

—Parties not governed by same personal law.

It is a well-settled rule that the law to be observed in the trial of suits shall, in the absence of any enactment or usage having the force of law, be the law of the defendant, and in the absence of any specific law and usage, justice, equity and good conscience. 89 Ind. Cas. 690=47 All. 823=23 A. L. J. 768=A.I.R. 1925 All. 720.

—Law, ascertainment of.

That private judgments and analogical deduction are in appropriate circumstances and to a greater or lesser extent legitimate methods of ascertaining the law, is recognised in the Text Books. 71 Ind. Cas. 65=45 Mad. 986=16 M.L.W. 626=1922 M.W.N. 662=24 C.L.J. 17=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 171=43 M.L.J. 663.

—Retrospective operation—Days of grace.

A new law ought not to be applied so as to kill causes of action which were alive on the date of its enactment. One underlying principle of the cases which lean against retrospective operation, is that, if the new Act gives no days of grace for its coming into operation, but makes it law as soon as it is passed,

Courts should hold that the Legislature did not intend to interfere with vested rights. But where litigants had previous notice and could have enforced their rights before the Act became law, they cannot claim relief. The law of limitation is a law of procedure and laws of procedure have retrospective effect. 70 Ind. Cas. 743=16 M.L.W. 178=1922 M.W.N. 514=31 M. L. T. 135=A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 417=43 M. L. J. 184.

—Law, governing.

Per Tennon, J.—The practice of a Court must give way to the law and to the rights conferred by law.

Per Chaudhuri, J.—The practice of the Court forms the law of the Court and the Court should be reluctant to depart from the established practice unless it has not the sanction of law and is grossly erroneous. 25 C. L. J. 401=21 C.W.N. 654=18 Cr. L. J. 793=41 Ind. Cas. 313.

—Alteration of law after filing of suit—Old law to govern rights of parties.

Where the law is altered when a suit is pending, the law which existed when the suit was commenced must decide the rights of the parties. 3 B. H. C 45 foll. (1908) 10 Bom. L. R. 625.

42. Practice—Legal Practitioner.

- See also: (1) Legal Practitioner.
(2) Legal Practitioners' Act.
(3) Practice—Pleaders Fees.

—Punjab High Court—Criminal case—Right of counsel to take copies from records—Need for amendment of rules.

According to the rules which are in force in the Punjab High Court a counsel appearing for petitioner, or on appellant in a criminal case, even while his client is in jail, is not allowed to make copies even for the limited purpose of arguing his appeal, unless he applies for certified copies. Also, copying of the document in extenso during the inspection of record is not allowed, but only taking of short notes of the documents is permitted. Need for amendment of rules on the lines of the Allahabad High Court rules indicated in view of the prohibitive cost of obtaining copies. 1930 Cr. C. 1185=32 P.L.R. 104=129 Ind. Cas. 197=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 1024.

—Legal practitioner—Duty of.

In Subordinate Courts the easy method of tripping a principle of law without much understanding should not be adopted by counsel while the more difficult method of collecting and carefully producing all the available evidence on facts should not be abandoned. It is enough in the Subordinate Courts to ruin any case on facts only if some principle of law is dangled before the eyes of learned counsel. After all, every principle of law has to be applied to facts and there is no easy method of avoiding facts and deciding cases on easily available rulings. 87 Ind. Cas. 208=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 658.

—He should not inform Court privately of his client's hopelessness of defence.

Per Mookerji, J.—It is not the duty of the pleader to approach the trial Judge and to apprise him that in his opinion the man, whose fate has been entrusted to his care, has no defence to make.

His duty is to protect his client as far as possible from being convicted except by a competent tribunal and upon legal evidence sufficient to support a conviction for the offence with which he is charged.

A man's rights are to be determined by the Court, not by his attorney or Counsel. A client is entitled to say to his Counsel, 'I want your advocacy, not your judgment. I prefer that of the Court.' 81 Ind. Cas. 353=28 C.W.N. 170=38 C.L.J. 411=25 Cr.L.J. 817=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 257 (F.B.).

—Counsel cannot make the Court wait for him.

The Court cannot be expected to await the convenience of Counsel, and it is time that Counsel should understand that it is incumbent on them to see that their clients are properly represented when the case is called on for hearing. 68 Ind. Cas. 785=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 97.

—Authority to bind client by compromise.

Barristers practising in Indian Courts do so, not because they are members of the bar, but because they are entitled under rules for the admission of advocates of the Court, and are subject to the same liabilities as other advocates of the Court. A Barrister practising in Burma cannot bind his client by a compromise made, or consent given without the client's express authority. 64 Ind. Cas. 528=13 Bur.L.T. 224.

—Facts stated by counsel cannot be ordinarily challenged by the party at later stages. 80 Ind. Cas. 601=22 A.L.J. 647=5 L.R.A.Civ. 404=A.I.R. 1924 All. 518.

—No fresh Vakalatnama is required in claim proceedings. 73 Ind. Cas. 455=25 Bom.L.R. 462=A.I.R. 1923 Bom. 412.

—Vakalatnama containing name of pleader can be accepted by him after it is filed in Court.

A Vakalatnama once filed in Court may be subsequently accepted by a vakil or pleader whose name appears in the Vakalatnama. The Court has only to see whether the name of the pleader proposed to be appointed, appears in the Vakalatnama or not and if his name does appear, then the pleader is entitled to sign the Vakalatnama and appear and act in the case. 68 Ind. Cas. 659=3 P.L.T. 447=A.I.R. 1922 Pat 504.

—Pleader—Delegation of authority—Pleader employing another to act jointly with him or for him.

Pleader employing another pleader to act for or jointly with him must conform to O. III, R. 4, C.P.C. in case there is no exemption under Cl 3, of the rule. 36 A. 46 Foll. 12 N.L.R. 189=37 Ind. Cas. 103.

—Pleader—Appearing for opposite side.

A legal practitioner engaged from the beginning to appear for one party should not appear for the opposite side unless under extraordinary circumstances. 19 O.C. 237=37 Ind. Cas. 142.

—Pleader—Right to be heard—Amicus curiae.

It is the general practice to hear Pleaders on behalf of persons in Civil and Criminal matters and secure their assistance as amici curiae though parties have no right to be heard either by pleader or personally. 8 A.L.J. 237=12 Cr.L.J. 231=10 Ind. Cas. 740.

—Pleader—Indiscriminate attacks on the police.

The practice of making indiscriminate attacks upon police servants in criminal cases when they are unable to defend themselves and when such attacks are not justified by the record, should be deprecated. 11 Cr.L.J. 66=15 P.R. 1909 Cr.=37 P.W.R. 1909 Cr.=4 Ind. Cas. 264.

—Objection that appeal to lower court was not presented within time—Reason that vakalat was not signed by the party.

Where in second appeal an objection was taken by the appellant that the respondent's appeal to the lower appellate court was not presented within time for the reason that the vakalat did not bear his mark, their Lordships overruled the objection on the ground that as a matter of fact the party had appointed the pleader to file the appeal. 1903 A.W.N. 177=26 A. 14.

43. Practice—Legal Representative.

See: C.P.C., Ss. 2 (11), 50, 52 and 53; O. 22, Rr. 3, 4 and 5.

—Legal Representative—Plea of co-defendant's death prior to decree, can be raised by his legal representatives.

It is not necessary that, in order to enable the legal representative of a deceased defendant to take the objection that the decree is a nullity on the ground that the defendant was dead at the time when the decree was made, the deceased defendant should have been the sole defendant in the suit. 32 All. 301, Foll. 75 Ind. Cas. 321=1923 P. H. C. C. 374=A.I.R. 1924 Pat. 339.

—Legal representatives—Addition of.

Where the representatives of a deceased party were substituted in the chief Court on appeal from interlocutory order, no fresh substitution need be made again in the lower Court in the suit. 45 Cal. 94=44 I. A. 218=33 M.L.J. 486=22 M.L.T. 362=6 L.W. 592=126 P.W.R. 1917=15 A.L.J. 777=19 Bom.L.R. 856=3 Pat. L.W. 313=26 C.L.J. 572=104 P.R. 1917=(1917) M.W.N. 811=22 C.W.N. 169=127 P.L.R. 1917=42 Ind. Cas. 43 (P.C.).

44. Practice—Limitation.

See: Limitation Act, S. 3.

—Limitation—Time barred demand as defence.

The law of limitation, as distinguished from the law of prescription, merely bars the remedy of the plaintiff but does not extinguish his right. A barred debt can constitute a valid consideration for a fresh contract. Limitation affects only the claim of the plaintiff and has no application to a plea urged by the defendant. The defendant may therefore interpose a demand though barred as a defence to the suit. 96 Ind. Cas. 844=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 633.

—Limitation—Time fixed by Court—Expiry of—Mode of calculation.

Where time is given by a Court to a party to a suit for the performance of an act till a certain date, it includes that date. 39 Mad. 583=2 L.W. 729=18 M.L.T. 199=30 Ind. Cas. 544.

—Limitation—Proof of.

The plaintiff must prove from his own allegations that his suit is not barred by limitation. He cannot rely on defendant's allegations. 6 P.R. 1912=218 P.L.R. 1911=204 P.W.R. 1911=12 Ind. Cas. 453.

- (i) When allowed.
- (ii) When not allowed.

45 (a) (i). Practice—New plea—Appeal—When allowed.

—New plea—No injury to opponent.

Plea not taken in trial Court can be raised in appeal to show fundamental flaw in opponent's case if latter does not suffer thereby. 117 Ind. Cas. 385=6 O.W.N. 1251=3 Luck. 521=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 97.

—Plea of registration can be raised for the first time in appeal.

An objection that a document which requires registration, but is not registered, is not admissible in evidence under S. 49, may be taken in the Court of appeal though no objection was taken to its admissibility in the Court of first instance: 2 Bom. 489, Foll. 101 Ind. Cas. 155=51 Bom. 231=29 Bom. L.R. 269=A.I.R. 1927 Bom. 157.

—A fresh plea if raised at the earliest possible opportunity should be allowed.

At the date at which an appeal was filed a Privy Council decision which has made a change in the law favourable to the appellant had been given. But there was no authentic report available at the time. The appellant instead of including the point in his grounds of appeal raised it subsequently.

Held: that in the circumstances of the case, the plea was raised at the earliest possible opportunity and ought to be allowed. 88 Ind. Cas. 127=12 O.L.J. 306=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 435.

To say that certain party had no saleable interest in land was held to amount to plea of relinquishment by that party and the appellate Court was held justified in deciding on relinquishment. 78 Ind. Cas. 503=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 524.

—A matter which is patent on the record can and ought to be taken into consideration even at the appellate stage for the first time. 22 P.R. 1898; 31 P.R. 1918 and 44 Cal. 47 Foll. 59 Ind. Cas. 877=3 L.L.J. 239=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 39.

—New plea—Appeal—Case not set up in pleadings but put forward in cross-examination—If can be raised in appeal.

A case definitely put forward by a party in cross-examination of the opposite party's witnesses and not objected to by the opposite party can be put forward as a ground of appeal, though not specifically raised in the pleadings. 46 Ind. Cas. 184. (Cal.).

—New plea—Appellate Court—Pleadings—Point arising out of—No issue.

An appellate Court is competent to base its decision on a point arising from the pleadings if there is evidence in the record regarding it, although it was not expressly taken before the Court nor covered by any issues raised. 5 O.L.J. 165=46 Ind. Cas. 12.

—New plea—Appeal—Objection going to the root of the case.

It is a grave irregularity of an appellate Court to disregard a point utterly which goes to the very root of the case. 8 P.L.R. 1912=254 P.W.R. 1911=12 Ind. Cas. 623.

—New plea—Appellate Court—New point, touching the very root of the case can be allowed.

A contention touching the very root of a case and appearing on the face of the pleadings can be allowed to be raised in appeal for the first time. 5 Ind. Cas. 397 (Cal.).

—Revenue sale—Irregularity in publication—Objection—Time.

The plea of non service or of any informality in publication may be taken at any stage of the suit or even for the first time in appeal. (1902) 30 C 1=6 C.W.N. 688. But See 26 M. 363.

45 (a) (ii). Practice—New plea—Appeal—When not allowed.

—New plea—Plea of want of legal necessity or benefit to alienation by manager of joint Hindu family—

Consequent unenforceability—If can be raised for first time in appeal—Failure to plead and raise issue in trial Court—Effect. See Hindu law—Alienation—Manager. A.I.R. 1950 Pat. 535.

—New plea—Appeal.

Plea raised in written statement and in appeal—No issue before trial Judge nor point taken at the trial—Plea cannot be allowed on appeal. 121 Ind. Cas. 205=51 C.L.J. 136=31 M.L.W. 176=32 Bom. L.R. 499=1930 M.W.N. 60=A.I.R. 1930 P.C. 18=58 M.L.J. 245 (P.C.).

—Plea as to non-joinder of parties.

Where the plea of non-joinder of parties is neither raised in the trial Court nor in the grounds of appeal, the Appellate Court should not go into it at all. If it raises it and dismisses the suit on that grounds its action is contrary to the provisions of O. 1, R. 9. 129 Ind. Cas. 508=A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 295.

—New plea—Appeal.

The plea of fraud or undue influence, not raised in the first Court, cannot be allowed to be raised for the first time in appeal. 129 Ind. Cas. 281=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 985.

—New plea—Appellate Court—Fresh pleas—Plea of fraud.

An appellate Court ought not to allow a plea of fraud to be raised for the first time at the hearing of an appeal without giving an opportunity to the opposite party of rebutting the plea. 52 Ind. Cas. 501 (Cal.).

—Plaint based upon contract for "sale"—"Agency" cannot be set up in appeal. 1930 M.W.N. 295=31 M.L.W. 840=A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 606=58 M.L.J. 653.

—To decide a new issue in appeal of which there is nothing in pleadings or issues upon evidence let in for some other purpose collaterally, is not, a satisfactory mode of disposing of such a case; A.I.R. 1914 P.C. 41 Foll. 120 Ind. Cas. 573 (Mad.).

—New plea—Altering nature.

—Where a suit for a specified amount of rent for a number of years was fought out in the Courts below on the footing whether the tenants had been dispossessed from any portion of the land leased,

Held: that the plaintiffs could not raise a new plea in appeal claiming proportionate rent. 34 C.W.N. 807.

—It would be unfair if the High Court allows a new ground of attack not raised in the Court below. 114 Ind. Cas. 881=1929 A.L.J. 204=A.I.R. 1929 All. 148.

—Where at the time the suit was instituted, the new plea was not open to the plaintiff, and when the relief based on this plea, if granted, would alter the nature of the suit completely, such a relief should not be allowed in appeal. 110 Ind. Cas. 500=A.I.R. 1928 Oudh 424.

—If a certain plea is not specifically pleaded and taken in the lower Court, it cannot be allowed to be raised for the first time in appeal in the High Court. 110 Ind. Cas. 868 (Nag.).

—Appellant is not entitled to set up a different case in appeal as a defence to the plea of limitation from that set up in written statement 109 Ind. Cas. 245 = A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 962.

—Hindu Law—Maintenance—Widow—Expenses of vritham—Question as to allotment was not allowed to be challenged in appeal for the first time. 108 Ind. Cas. 712 = 28 M.L.W. 328 = A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 216 = 54 M. L. J. 530.

—Plea of resale having taken place after reasonable time cannot be entertained for the first time in appeal. 106 Ind. Cas. 10 = 8 Lah. 501 = 28 P.L.R. 542 = A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 693.

—New plea of negligence.

A new plea of negligence apart from fraud and collusion, which were given up at the time of framing the issues, ought not to be allowed to be raised in appeal, as the plea of negligence is one of fact: A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 718, Foll. 104 Ind. Cas. 405 = 1927 M.W.N. 523 = A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 668 = 52 M. L. J. 709.

—Where a case was fought out on the footing that the properties belonged to all the ostensible mortgagors and all the mortgagors were bound by the mortgage, the position, that if all the mortgagors are not found to be bound by the mortgage it should be decided that some of the properties included in the mortgage do not belong to all of the mortgagors, cannot be allowed to be raised for the first time in appeal. 104 Ind. Cas. 833 = 54 Cal. 687 = A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 836.

—New plea—Validity of document.

Where the plea that the re-sale by the plaintiff was invalid by reason of its not having taken place within a reasonable time after the date of breach was not raised in the trial Court and was taken in the memorandum of appeal:

Held, the plea could not be raised for the first time in the appeal. 102 Ind. Cas. 698 = 28 P.L.R. 263 = 9 L. L. J. 125 = A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 795.

—New plea—Appeal.

Suit on basis of lease deed—Execution of deed admitted—Plea as to material alteration raised in appeal—Not sustainable. 31 P.L.R. 273.

—New plea—Attestation.

An objection about due attestation of a mortgage should not be allowed to be taken for the first time in the Appellate Court: A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 513, Foll. 101 Ind. Cas. 498 = A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 662 = 53 M. L. J. 216.

—The objection that a mortgage bond is not duly attested cannot be allowed to be taken for the first time in the Appellate Court, as it raises a mixed question of law and fact. 51 Ind. Cas. 378, Foll. 76 Ind. Cas. 1003 = 18 M.L.W. 620 = 33 M.L.T. 73 = 1923 M.W.N. 789 = A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 513 = 46 M. L. J. 56.

—New plea—Appeal—Plea of improper attestation.

A plea of improper attestation of a document cannot be allowed to be taken for the first time in appeal. 19 Ind. Cas. 430 All.

—A plea of disclaimer not taken by the defendant in his pleadings and as to which no issue has been struck cannot be entertained in appeal. 98 Ind. Cas. 1059 = 8 L. L. J. 482 = 27 P.L.R. 727.

—Validity of mortgage on the ground of want of permission from Court by Administrator cannot be allowed to be objected in appeal for the first time. 97 Ind. Cas. 570 = 24 M.L.W. 842 = A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 185.

—Appellate Courts ought not to entertain points which should have been alleged in the pleadings and made the subject of an issue and of arguments and of decision by the trial Court and also stated in the grounds of appeal clearly and directly. 97 Ind. Cas. 292 = 49 All. 55 = 24 A. L. J. 920 = A.I.R. 1927 All. 231.

—New cases cannot, except in exceptional circumstances, be made out in appeal. 85 Ind. Cas. 1006 = A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 619.

—When once a case is made out in written statement and also in the evidence before the Court of first instance the defendant cannot be allowed to make a new case, altogether different from it, in appeal. 79 Ind. Cas. 354 = A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 541.

—A new plea should not be allowed to be raised for the first time in appeal. 79 Ind. Cas. 902 = 1924 M.W.N. 485 = A.I.R. 1924 Mad. 845.

—The Court of appeal is not justified in exposing a party after he has obtained his decree to the brunt of a new attack of which he never had notice during the hearing of the suit. 33 Bom. 35, Foll. 78 Ind. Cas. 194 = A.I.R. 1924 Nag. 204.

—When a point is not taken in the lower Court, that is a conclusive bar on an appeal in High Court. As soon as it is established that the point ought to have been taken in the Court of first instance the Court should refuse to allow it. 75 Ind. Cas. 612 = A.I.R. 1923 All. 430.

—A plea neither raised in the Court below, nor in the grounds of appeal cannot be allowed to be set up in appeal. 70 Ind. Cas. 1002 = 4 L. L. J. 516.

—A plea not taken in trial Court and about which no issue was framed cannot be entertained for first time in appeal. 69 Ind. Cas. 918 = 15 M.L.W. 99 = 31 M.L.T. 71 = 1922 M.W.N. 67 = A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 697 = 42 M. L. J. 113.

—A new plea which is not raised in the trial court cannot be considered by the District Court. Where the members of a Hindu family put forward a claim to certain property on the ground that it belonged to them by partition and therefore not liable to attachment in execution and that plea was found against, they cannot on appeal put forward the plea that the decree was obtained against the manager in his individual capacity and therefore not executable against the family properties. 68 Ind. Cas. 227 = 3 L. L. J. 392.

—New plea cannot be raised for first time in appeal when there are no sufficient materials before the appellate Court. 63 Ind. Cas. 682 = 19 A.L.J. 672 = 43 All. 652 = A.I.R. 1921 All. 402.

—Appeal—New case not to be made.

The High Court will not entertain a contention at the hearing of an appeal which is not contained in the memo. of appeal and which was not brought to the notice of the lower Court. 60 Ind. Cas. 263=14 S.L.R. 224.

—An objection in an appeal to a suit for partition of a house on the ground that another house was not brought into hotchpot is not sustainable. 59 Ind. Cas. 176 (Pat.).

—New plea—Formal defect.

Objection to a defect in signature on a petition cannot be raised in appeal for the first time. 1 Pat.L.T. 647=59 Ind. Cas. 282.

—New plea—Appeal.

A pleading not raised in lower Court and setting up a new case cannot be advanced in an appellate Court. 11 L.W. 523=56 Ind. Cas. 552.

—New plea—Change of case—Not to be allowed to be made without giving opponent opportunity to meet it.

In a suit for pre-emption defendant resisted plaintiff's claim on the strength of deed of gift which not being questioned in the trial, plaintiff's suit was dismissed. On appeal, plaintiff challenged the validity of the gift deed on the ground of want of proper attestation and that attestation had not been proved. Held, that the plaintiff having by implication admitted the validity of gift at the trial ought not to challenge it in appeal. At any rate the appellate Court ought not to have entertained the objection without affording defendant opportunity of proving the due attestation. 56 Ind. Cas. 179. (All.).

—New plea—Appeal—Change of case.

A party who in the trial Court fails to establish the case which he set up, is not entitled to advance a new case in appeal for he is entitled to a remand to enable him to establish his claim on the new case set up. 54 Ind. Cas. 645 (Cal.).

—New plea—Appellate Court—New point.

An appellate Court ought not to permit a new point to be urged before it which is not founded on facts, and in respect of which no definite issue was raised in the lower Court. 52 Ind. Cas. 1 (Cal.).

—New plea—Appellate Court.

A new case cannot be allowed to be set up on appeal. 4 O.L.J. 731=44 Ind. Cas. 624.

—New plea—Appellate Court—New case not to be set up.

—An appellate Court is not entitled to accept and act upon a case made for the first time before it and not made in the trial Court. 22 C.W.N. 856=43 Ind. Cas. 59.

—New plea—Appellate Court.

A plaintiff cannot be allowed to make a case that turns on the evidence which differs from the case set up in the plaint. A Court of appeal should not reverse the decision of the first Court on a point not set up in the plaint before the primary Court or in the grounds of appellate Court. 43 Ind. Cas. 29 (Cal.).

—New plea—Appeal—Disposal on ground not urged.

A judge of the lower Appellate Court cannot dispose of an appeal on a ground which was not urged by the defence and in respect of which plaintiff had not opportunity of giving evidence. 35 Ind. Cas. 638 All.

—New plea—Appeal—New contention.

Where parties in a suit go to proof only on the question whether the land involved is ancestral and whether a right of alienation exists, the plaintiff cannot for the first time in appeal be allowed to raise a new contention. 69 P.R. 1916=120 P.W.R. 1916=131 P.L.R. 1916=35 Ind. Cas. 335.

—New plea—Appellate Court.

In a mortgage suit where necessity is disproved, the creditor cannot be allowed to ask in appeal for a simple money decree inasmuch as the defendant had not been allowed to prove immorality. 3 O.L.J. 214=34 Ind. Cas. 757.

—New plea—Appellate Court—New case not to be allowed.

When the plaintiff makes a definite case of possession by himself in the plaint he cannot be allowed to make in appeal an entirely new case of possession through co-sharers in order to save the bar of limitation. 34 Ind. Cas. 466 (Pat.).

—New plea—Change of case—No allegation of title by prescription.

A relief which is not based on the pleadings as they stand but on certain allegations which ought to have been made, but are not definitely set up cannot be granted where the suit as brought will be turned into another and a different sort of suit. The fact that the plaint contains a vague prayer to the effect that the Court may grant any other relief which it may deem proper, does not affect the question. 2 O.L.J. 584=32 Ind. Cas. 365.

—New plea—Change of case—Suit on mortgage executed by father—Personal decree against son, if proper.

Where a suit for sale of the mortgaged property against the son of the executant was dismissed, Held, that simple money decree could be given inasmuch as it would entirely change the cause of action. 31 Ind. Cas. 706 (All.).

—New plea—Appeal.

A point neither raised in the Court below nor mentioned in the memo of appeal could not be allowed in appeal. 185 P.W.R. 1915=31 Ind. Cas. 632.

—New plea—Appeal—Setting up different story from that alleged in grounds of appeal.

An appellant cannot bring forward, while arguing the appeal, a matter not alleged in the grounds of appeal. 2 O.L.J. 371=30 Ind. Cas. 374.

—New plea—Appeal—New issue, raising of.

It is always dangerous to allow a new issue to be raised at the appellate stage. 19 C.W.N. 772=29 Ind. Cas. 216.

—New plea—Appellate Court.

An appellate Court cannot decide in favour of a person on a plea not raised by him before the first Court. 104 P.L.R. 1915=40 P.W.R. 1915=28 Ind. Cas. 550.

—New plea—Appeal—Not to be allowed.

A plea if not raised before the 1st Court, cannot be raised for the first time in the appellate Court. 18 Cal. 24 Foll. 84 P. W. R. 1914=185 P. L. R. 1914=24 Ind. Cas. 692.

—New plea—Appeal—Point not raised in the grounds.

A point not raised nor even touched in the ground of appeal, cannot be raised for the first time in appeal. 53 P. W. R. 1914=47 P. L. R. 1914=22 Ind. Cas. 403.

—New plea—Appeal—Ground not put forward in lower Court.

A ground of claim never put forward throughout the pleadings cannot be allowed in appeal to the Chief Court. 133 P. W. R. 1913=224 P. L. R. 1913=19 Ind. Cas. 770.

—New plea—Appeal—New case of status and liability.

Plaintiff's case was that his vendors were co-owners with the defendant. In the appellate Court he tried to make out that the defendant was constructive trustee for his vendors. This being entirely new case—concerning the status and liability to be sued of the defendant should not be allowed. 6 S. L. R. 195=19 Ind. Cas. 368.

—New plea—Appellate Court.

An appellate Court should not allow a new case to be set up in appeal. 57 P. W. R. 1913=120 P. L. R. 1913=19 Ind. Cas. 253.

—New plea—Appeal—New case not to be set up.

An appellate Court cannot decide upon a question not raised in the pleadings or by the issues or the memorandum of appeal. 79 P. L. R. 1913=76 P. W. R. 1913=18 Ind. Cas. 795.

—New plea—Appeal—New grounds of attack.

A plaintiff cannot be allowed to alter the nature of his attack for the first time in appeal. 4 P. W. R. 1913=138 P. L. R. 1913=18 Ind. Cas. 608.

—New plea—Appeal—Partial partition.

A New plea that a suit is bad for partial partition or that the prepositus left a will could not be advanced on appeal. 3 P. W. R. 1913=26 P. L. R. 1913=18 Ind. Cas. 583.

—New plea—Change of case—Suit on proprietary title—Right to management of Wakf

A suit on proprietary title cannot be allowed to be altered into one for ejectment on the basis of a right to the management of a Wakf as it would be to alter the nature of the case. 114 P. W. R. 1913=225 P. L. R. 1913=18 Ind. Cas. 807.

—New plea—Appeal—No materials on record.

The appellate Court will not allow a point, not properly raised in the lower Court to be taken on appeal if the materials on record are too meagre for deciding the question satisfactorily. 36 Bom. 53=13 Bom. L. R. 963=12 Ind. Cas. 543.

—New plea—Change of case.

Suit for enforcement of lien for non-payment of purchase money directed to be paid to a third person was not allowed to be treated as a suit for an account on the basis of agency or a suit for damages for non-performance of a contract. 21 M. L. J. 359=10 M. L. T. 71=10 Ind. Cas. 98.

—New plea—Appeal—Waiver—Validity.

There may be circumstances under which a plea of waiver cannot be entertained by a Court of justice as being contrary to public policy. So it cannot be raised on appeal for the first time. 13 C. L. J. 192=9 Ind. Cas. 698.

—New plea—Appeal.

A plea cannot be raised in Appellate Court for the first time and cannot be considered by the Appellate Court. 8 M. L. T. 247=8 Ind. Cas. 354.

—New plea—Appeal—Defence.

A defence not set up in the written statement or issues cannot be set up in an appeal. 8 M. L. T. 216=(1910) M. W. N. 628=7 Ind. Cas. 757.

—New plea—Appeal—Negligence—Not pleaded.

A mortgagee who in his plaint alleges that a certain partition is fraudulently made, cannot raise in appeal that his mortgagor was negligent in the partition proceedings, if he does not put the point in pleadings nor it is raised in issues. 6 Ind. Cas. 829 (Cal.)

—New plea—Appellate Court—Legal theory.

A legal theory not put forth in lower Court cannot be put forth in appeal especially when it is inconsistent with the facts alleged in the lower Court. The plea that a person was ignorant of the facts is different from ignorance of law. 12 Bom. L.R. 53=5 Ind. Cas. 633.

—New plea—Appeal—New ground whether can be raised.

An appellate Court will not consider the point urged in appeal but not raised in the lower Court. 5 M. L. T. 126=4 Ind. Cas. 1102.

—New plea—Appeal—New case cannot be set up in a appeal.

Where a defendant in the first Court only pleaded that the testator's conduct subsequent to the execution of the will showed that he did not intend to abide by its provision and that the testator's conduct and that of the plaintiff operated to cancel the will he cannot be allowed to set up in appeal a new case that the testator had destroyed the will with the intention of revoking it. 160 P. W. R. 1909=245 P. L. R. 1913=4 Ind. Cas. 1164.

—New plea—Appeal.

Where the plea was that an occupancy holding was transferable by custom without the consent of the landlord, the case of a permanent tenancy or a tenancy in the nature of a raiyati holding at a fixed rate of rent cannot be set up by this defendant, in appeal. 9 G. L. J. 467=1 Ind. Cas. 112.

—Suit to recover possession of property of deceased Mahomedan—Widow's lien for dower—Plea raised in appeal which was not raised by the pleadings.

The plaintiff sued the widow of her deceased brother, who was in possession of the brother's property, to recover her share by right of inheritance under the Mahomedan Law. The plaintiff stated that the dower of defendant was only Rs. 40, which had been presumably satisfied either out of the usufruct of the property in their possession or otherwise. The widow asserted and proved that her dower was one lakh and that she had been put into possession of the property in dispute in lieu thereof. The plaintiff's suit was accordingly dismissed. Held, that the suit was rightly dismissed. It was not incumbent on the court in a suit framed as this was to go into the question of accounts and ascertain how much of the dower debt had been satisfied out of the income of the property in the possession of the widow. 1905 A.W.N. 125=2 A. L. J. 485.

45 (b). Practice—New plea—Late stage.

—Where a plaintiff has not raised a plea in the plaint but raises the plea at the trial, he should be allowed to do so, where even had the plea been raised in the plaint, the defendant according to his own pleading, could not have disproved the plea. 86 Ind. Cas. 357=19 S.L.R. 12=A.I.R. 1925 Sind 241.

—A plea which is apparent on the face of the proceedings cannot be ignored, though urged at a late stage. 66 Ind. Cas. 612=8 O. L. J. 358=A.I.R. 1921 Oudh 176.

—New plea—When can be raised—Late stage.

A court is well justified in declining to allow the plaintiff to embark on a new case at a late stage of the proceeding. 52 Ind. Cas. 47 Cal.

—New plea—Trial of suit.

A fresh plea can be raised during the progress of the suit if it arises out of facts subsequently come to light, and not within the knowledge of the parties before. 5 O. L. J. 179=46 Ind. Cas. 52.

—New plea—No allegation in pleading and no issue.

Where a point was not raised in the written statement nor raised in issue and no evidence was adduced by either of the parties with respect thereto, it ought not to be allowed to be raised later on. 43 P.W.R. 1909=1 Ind. Cas. 478.

45 (c). Practice—New plea—Letters Patent Appeal.

—New Case—Letters Patent Appeal.

An appellant in a Letters Patent Appeal cannot make out a case which was not put forward in the lower Courts. 123 Ind. Cas. 108=A.I.R. 1930 A 466.

—New plea—Letters Patent.

A person cannot be allowed in Letters Patent appeal to raise a new point (i.e.) a point which has not been raised before the single Judge. 123 Ind. Cas. 105=A.I.R. 1930 All. 281.

—A new plea cannot be allowed to be taken for the first time in a Letters Patent appeal. 8 Rang. 233=A.I.R. 1930 Rang. 63.

—No point can be raised in Letters Patent appeal which was not raised before the Judges who first disposed of the appeal. 97 Ind. Cas. 594=49 All. 162=24 A. L. J. 1025=A.I.R. 1927 A 28.

—New point amounting to abandoning of original case cannot be allowed in Letters Patent appeal. 98 Ind. Cas. 291=50 Mad. 10=24 M.L.W. 460=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 1167=52 M. L. J. 259.

—If the lower appellate Court and a Judge of the High Court in appeal allow a new plea, entertain and judicially consider that matter, the High Court will express an opinion as to whether it is in agreement with the decision or not. 70 Ind. Cas. 953=45 All. 21=20 A. L. J. 777=A.I.R. 1922 All. 493.

—Plaintiff having sued all along for possession as mortgagee cannot, at hearing of Letters Patent Appeal, ask for decree of ejectment of defendant as plaintiffs tenant under Punjab Tenancy Act, S. 100. 4 L. L. J. 293=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 326.

—New plea—Appeal—Not raised before single Judge whether could be allowed in Letters Patent Appeal.

The High Court on Letters Patent Appeal reversed a decision of the single Judge on second appeal on the ground that no second appeal at all lay, though the point had not been taken before the single Judge. 17 A. L. J. 875.

45 (d). Practice—New plea—Privy Council.

See also: Privy Council.

—New plea was not allowed to be raised.

Where the parties throughout the case treated the transaction in suit as a mortgage by conditional sale, it was so alleged by defendants in their written statements, no objection was taken by the plaintiff in reply, no issue was stated about it, the District Judge assumed it and no complaint was made of his assumption in the High Court:

Held, that to allow the plaintiff at the stage of hearing of the Privy Council appeal, having never asked for this remedy either before the District Judge or in the appellate Court or by his case as originally printed, to get such a remedy without very careful examination as to what the effect might be upon third parties would be contrary to all reasonable procedure. 109 Ind. Cas. 574=30 Bom. L.R. 852=24 N.L.R. 186=28 M.L.W. 248=32 C.W.N. 1149=48 C.L.J. 570=A.I.R. 1928 P.C. 165=55 M.L.J. 292 (P.C.).

—Appeal before P. C.—High Court's judgment reversing lower Court's decree—Objection to lower Court's decree cannot be raised for first time before P.C. 87 Ind. Cas. 357=1925 M.W.N. 692=30 C.W.N. 601=23 A.L.J. 273=2 O.W.N. 335=21 N.L.R. 50=52 Cal. 482=6 L.R.P.C. 97=27 Bom. L.R. 837=52 I.A. 231=A.I.R. 1925 P.C. 118=49 M.L.J. 173 (P.C.).

—It is not legitimate to raise in the Privy Council subsidiary points which were apparently neither raised nor canvassed in the Court's below. 80 Ind. Cas. 203=29 C.W.N. 461=34 M.L.T. 102=20 M.L.W. 82=1924 M.W.N. 431=5 L.R.P.C. 89=26 Bom. L.R. 631=A.I.R. 1924 P.C. 123=47 M.L.J. 180 (P.C.).

—Interpretation of statute.

A point which relates to the proper construction of a statute may be allowed to be raised in argument before the Privy Council although not raised in lower Courts. A.I.R. 1921 P.C. 228 (P.C.).

—New plea—Pardhanashin lady—Plea, that executant was a pardhanashin lady can't be allowed to be raised for first time before Privy Council.

In a suit for specific performance of a contract of sale executed by a Hindu widow, the plea that the executant was a pardhanashin lady could not for the first time be raised before the Privy Council. 21 C.W.N. 665=6 L.W. 68=41 Ind. Cas. 957 (P.C.).

45 (c). Practice—New plea—Revision.

See C. P. C., 115.

—New plea—Arbitration—Revision.

The objection that an award was illegal as some of the parties interested in the dispute were not parties to the reference is one which relates to the jurisdiction of the Court, and so can be raised for the first time in revision. 42 Mad. 632; and 23 L.W. 769, Foll. 126 Ind. Cas. 735=A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 646.

—New plea cannot be raised for first time in revision if pleadings do not justify it.

Per Fawcett, J. C.—The fact of the contention being raised late, e. g., in Revision need not preclude its being considered if the pleadings fairly justify it. But where to allow it to be raised in revision application would be to permit the plaintiffs to set up an entirely new case from the one brought and tried, the contention should not be allowed to be raised. A litigating party can only succeed secundum allegata et probata and the Courts could check the tendency of defeated litigants to evade their defeat by devising a new case which was never set up when it should have been set up. The fact that if a party's adviser had put his client's case better the party might have succeeded instead of failing, is no good ground for departing from the general rule of secundum allegata et probata. The state of facts and the equities and ground of relief originally alleged and pleaded by the plaintiff should not be departed from. This is, of course, subject to the provisions as to amendment of pleadings. No such amendment can be allowed in revision stage where it would entirely alter the character of the suit nor can a question of estoppel be raised for first time in revision. 83 Ind. Cas. 360=16 S.L.R. 207=A.I.R. 1921 Sind 159 (F.B.).

—New plea—Revision.

A point not raised in the Lower Courts, or in an application for review cannot be raised in the Court of revision for the first time. 8 M. L. T. 85=7 Ind. Cas. 404.

—New plea—Appeal—Revision.

It is not permissible to raise a new point in an appeal or revision, when it is not raised in the pleadings. 252 P.W.R. 1912=14 Ind. Cas. 513.

45 (f). Practice—New plea—Second Appeal.

See C. P. C., S. 100.

(i) When allowed.

(ii) When not allowed.

45 (f) (i). Practice—New plea—Second Appeal—When allowed.

—Where a defendant appellant in second appeal urged the plea of non-liability for mesne profits although no cross appeal was preferred by him in the lower appellate Court:

Held, that in absence of a decree for mesne profits as contemplated by O. 20, R. 12 of the Code of Civil Procedure, when the appeal was pending hearing in that Court, he should be allowed to urge the plea. 83 Ind. Cas. 529=51 Cal. 853=39 C.L.J. 447=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 1010.

—A party is not entitled to relief upon facts or documents not referred to or stated in the pleadings; nor on any ground which has never been considered taken or tried in the Courts below, unless it is a pure point of law going to the question of jurisdiction of the lower Courts and capable of being determined without the consideration of any other evidence than that on the record.

Where the plaintiff sued in ejectment as owner in possession but on defendant denying his possession he applied for amendment of the plaint:

Held, the plaintiff may be allowed to change the relief in second appeal as there was no question of any new fact, and the facts relied on were stated in the pleadings. 78 Ind. Cas. 63=A.I.R. 1924 Nag. 372.

—New plea—Appeal—When allowed.

The appellate Court may take up other grounds of appeal than those given in the memo if they are necessary for doing substantial justice and preventing litigation unless the decision of such grounds depends upon questions of fact not decided in the lower Courts. 11 L.W. 611=57 Ind. Cas. 800.

45 (f) (ii). Practice—New plea—Second Appeal—When not allowed.

—New plea—Second Appeal.

A point not taken in the Court below, whether the omission was by the appellant in that Court or whether the respondent failed to support his decree by taking the point, will not be permitted to be raised, except possibly; (a) where the point may be described as involving a question of public policy, e. g., involving jurisdiction, or involving the principle of res judicata or where the decision of the point would prevent future litigation. In the above instances the point will be allowed to be argued only if it can be decided upon the materials before the Court and does not involve the taking of further evidence of the sending of the case, or any issue, back to the lower Court, or a decision of a question of fact, (b) where the plaint discloses no cause of action or the written statement no ground of defence. It is not a ground for permitting a new point to be argued, merely that it was omitted by oversight in the Court below, or that the materials are all on the record and that the answer to the point is plain. New points, when they lie outside the area of the special classes mentioned above, cannot be permitted to be raised for first time in second appeal. 53 A 65=133 Ind. Cas. 428=1930 A.L.J. 1601=A.I.R. 1931 All. 35 (F.B.).

—New plea—Different titles.

Where the plaintiff in both the lower Courts fought out his case on the basis of his title as donee but in appeal fought to raise his title as heir;

Held that the latter plea could not be allowed to be raised. 7 O.W.N. 1058=A.I.R. 1931 Oudh 7.

—Where the plaintiff a Hindu widow went to Court on a plea of re-marriage in the Brahma form but the Court found against the plea, Held, that it is not open to her in second appeal to set up re-marriage in the Gandharva form. 7 O.W.N. 753=A.I.R. 1930 Oudh 426.

—Attempts to raise in second appeal points which are not even in the pleadings and which the other side has never been called upon to meet are not to be lightly permitted in second appeal. 122 Ind. Cas. 345=A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 197.

—New plea—Objection under O. 8, R. 6.

Where an objection under O. 8, R. 6 is not taken in the trial Court the High Court will not permit the same to be raised for the first time in second appeal. 35 C.W.N. 17=132 Ind. Cas. 195=A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 358.

—Where an objection was not raised in either of the Courts below, it cannot be entertained when brought in second appeal. 113 Ind. Cas. 227=30 P.L.R. 560=10 Lah. 385=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 810.

—Case not set up in the lower Courts cannot ordinarily be allowed to be raised in second appeal. 121 Ind. Cas. 718=7 Rang. 777=A.I.R. 1929 Rang. 341.

A new cause of action cannot be taken in second appeal. 118 Ind. Cas. 613=12 N.L.J. 72=25 N.L.R. 173=A.I.R. 1929 Nag. 274.

—A new and speculative case, never advanced before, cannot be allowed in second appeal. 115 Ind. Cas. 606=32 C.W.N. 778=A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 870.

—A finding of the trial Court not appealed against in the lower Appellate Court cannot be reargued in second appeal. 113 Ind. Cas. 381=30 Bom. L.R. 1099=A.I.R. 1928 Bom. 425.

—It ought to be an absolutely binding rule that no litigant should be allowed to take in the Court of appeal a point which he has deliberately omitted to take in the Courts below. 97 Ind. Cas. 483=A.I.R. 1927 All. 63.

—A point not argued in the lower appellate Court cannot be raised in second appeal. 102 Ind. Cas. 139=8 L.R.A. Rev. 177=A.I.R. 1927 All. 791.

—New point.

A point that was not raised in the first Appellate Court cannot be raised in second appeal. 101 Ind. Cas. 252=A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 200.

—Second appeal.

A plaintiff in second appeal cannot have his suit being regarded by Court not as one based on title acquired by adverse possession but as one for possession after he has been deprived of that possession by a wrongful act of defendant. 1927 M.W.N. 753=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 1185.

—Where the only ground on which a land-lord in an ejectment suit seeks to make out in both the lower Courts that the tenant is a tenant at will, is because and only because he, the plaintiff land-lord, was a pre-settlement inamdar and in that he has failed and the finding is that the inam was a darmila inam, then it is not open to him in second appeal to ask the Court to speculate about any matters which he had not either averred or sought to prove. 106 Ind. Cas. 500=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 1197.

Where a claim to easement on the ground of prescription fails the party cannot be allowed in second appeal to set up a claim based on custom or grant. 100 Ind. Cas. 21=A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 378.

—In the absence of any specific pleadings a belated contention cannot be allowed to prevail at the stage of second appeal, if it exposed the plaintiff to the brunt of a new attack at the stage of appeal at the instance of an unsuccessful litigant. 100 Ind. Cas. 446=22 N.L.R. 175=10 N.L.J. 5=A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 104.

—A new case, the effect of which is to re-open the whole case, cannot be allowed to be set up in second appeal. 102 Ind. Cas. 3=1 L.C. 65=A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 294.

—Second appeal—Construction of document.

A construction of a document not put forward in the Courts below will not be accepted in second appeal. 103 Ind. Cas. 74=39 M.L.T. 217=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 791.

—Where a ground is not taken in the two lower Courts it cannot be taken in the second appeal when it is not expressly a question of law. 99 Ind. Cas. 535=27 P.L.R. 750.

—It is not permissible to raise an issue in second appeal which had never been raised by the parties in the first Court and which the lower appellate Court had refused to raise on appeal. 96 Ind. Cas. 91=23 M.L.W. 709=A.I.R. 1926 Mad. 772=51 M.L.J. 12.

—Namboodri litigants cannot adduce evidence of special usage varying Hindu Law, for the first time in second appeal. 84 Ind. Cas. 973=20 M.L.W. 876=35 M.L.T. 127=1924 M.W.N. 792=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 260=47 M.L.J. 686.

—New plea—Altering nature.

Where the parties went to trial on the footing that an alienation by widow was an alienation of the property itself:

Held, that in second appeal the plea that only a widow's life interest was conveyed cannot be raised. 86 Ind. Cas. 4=21 M.L.W. 69=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 384.

—Where the trial Court refused to permit the setting up of an alternative case but the question was not raised in the First Appeal:

Held, that it could not be raised in second appeal. 85 Ind. Cas. 29=12 O.L.J. 30=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 329.

—Plea of legal necessity cannot be raised in Second Appeal. 86 Ind. Cas. 893=6 L.R.A. Civ. 267=A.I.R. 1925 All. 440.

—A plea that the land in suit was subject to a fluctuating assessment and therefore Court fee was payable under S. 7, cl. 5 Sub-cl. (c) cannot be raised for the first time in second appeal. 8 L.L.J. 316=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 241.

—Impropriety of substitution of legal representative cannot be raised for first time in second appeal. 81 Ind. Cas. 498=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 207.

—Where there is no reference to a plea in the judgments of the Courts below or in the pleadings of the parties, the point cannot be allowed to be raised in second appeal. A decree for a sum cannot be granted in second appeal, when no such relief was asked for in the Courts below. 79 Ind. Cas. 990=A.I.R. 1923 Lah. 56.

—A new plea which if had been raised in the lower Courts might have been met by the opposite party, cannot be raised for first time in second appeal. 79 Ind. Cas. 977=5 L.L.J. 108.

—Party resting entire case on one plea cannot raise in second appeal an alternative issue. 4 L.L.J. 426=A.I.R. 1921 Lah. 284.

—Ground not urged in first appeal cannot be raised in second appeal. A.I.R. 1921 All. 405.

—A new defence cannot be raised for first time in second appeal. 60 Ind. Cas. 753=35 C.L.J. 192=A.I.R. 1921 Cal. 816.

—Where none of the grounds sought to be urged in second appeal were raised in the lower appellate Court:

Held, that the second appeal should be dismissed. 1921 M.W.N. 600=A.I.R. 1921 Mad. 689=41 M.L.J. 332.

—A new point cannot be raised for the first time in second appeal. 1921 P.H.C.C. 357=2 P.L.T. 525=A.I.R. 1921 Pat. 373.

—Where a defendant omits to raise an objection in his written statement, he cannot raise it in second appeal. 60 Ind. Cas. 766=39 M.L.J. 685.

—New plea—Second appeal—Tenancy—Terms of.

A question relating to the acquisition of right of occupancy by an under raiyat or to the rights of a tenant holding over, cannot be urged in the High Court in second appeal for the first time. 53 Ind. Cas. 12 (Cal.).

—New plea—Appellate Court—Not allowable.

A plea which is opposed to that put forward in lower Court cannot be allowed in second appeal. 55 Ind. Cas. 975. (Cal.).

—New plea—Appeal—Tenancy—New basis of claim in.

The contention as to a new tenancy having been created by an amalgamation of occupancy holdings cannot be allowed in second appeal for the first time. 37 Ind. Cas. 862. (Cal.).

—New plea—Second appeal—Notice to quit—Questions to be raised.

Where in an ejectment suit the defendants did not plead any want of notice in the first court and there was no issue regarding it, the plea of insufficiency or invalidity of notice cannot be allowed to be raised for the first time in second appeal. 31 M.L.J. 354=(1916) 2 M.W.N. 180=4 L.W. 168=37 Ind. Cas. 1.

—New plea—Second appeal—Change of plea.

When in a redemption suit, the defendant pleaded that the mortgagor had transferred the equity of redemption to the mortgagee but it was found against him, he cannot be allowed to change his ground in second appeal that there had been a foreclosure to which the parties had assented. 3 O.L.J. 244=19 O.C. 166=34 Ind. Cas. 745.

—New plea—Second appeal.

The points not raised in the lower courts cannot be heard in Second Appeal. 33 Ind. Cas. 975. (Cal.).

—New plea—Second appeal—Point not raised in lower courts—Vague reference to the point in the plaint.

A point not raised in the lower courts can't be taken in the final Court of appeal where there is only a vague reference to it in the plaint. 86 P.W.R. 1916=33 Ind. Cas. 748.

—New plea—Second appeal—New case not be set up.

A plaintiff cannot in second appeal be permitted to resile from the position he took up in the plaint. 2 O.L.J. 601=32 Ind. Cas. 740.

—New plea—Set-off—Second appeal—Questions to be raised.

An appellant will not be allowed to raise for the first time in second appeal the contention that a decree obtained by the judgment debtor against the appellant's father cannot be set off against a decree obtained by him in his own right. 1 L. W. 431=23 Ind. Cas. 923.

—New plea — Second appeal — Questions to be raised.

A case not set up in lower court cannot be raised in second appeal. 1 O.L. J. 38=23 Ind. Cas. 860.

—New plea—Second appeal.

A suit for sale of property on a mortgage cannot in second appeal be turned into a suit for recovery of money charged on immoveable property. 11 A.L.J. 580=19 Ind. Cas. 661.

—New plea—Second appeal — Attestation — Absence of plea.

If the fact of attester's presence at the time of execution is not put in issue in the lower court, it cannot be raised in second appeal. (1913) M.W.N. 400=24 M.L.J. 534=13 M.L.T. 463=19 Ind. Cas. 589.

—New plea — Second appeal — Damages — Quantum of.

A plea not raised in the lower Court to the effect that monetary compensation should have been awarded instead of mandatory injunction and that plaintiff had not proved that he had suffered substantial injury cannot be raised for the first time in second appeal. 2 Lah. L. J. 463=56 Ind. Cas. 1003.

—New plea—Second appeal.

Where a point was not raised in the written statement, nor was any issue framed upon it, and no evidence was adduced by either of the parties with regard to it and the Courts below had not expressed any opinion on the point; such a point could not be allowed to be raised for the first time in second appeal. 7 Ind. Cas. 123 (Cal.).

—New plea—Chief Court.

A point not raised in either of the lower Courts or in the grounds of appeal cannot be raised for the first time in the Chief Court. 47 P.W.R. 1910=6 Ind. Cas. 651.

—New plea—Second appeal.

The High Court refused to consider at the hearing a point not taken in the grounds of second appeal. 5 M.L.T. 210=4 Ind. Cas. 1118.

—New plea—Second appeal.

A party cannot raise a new point for the first time in second appeal which was not raised in either of the courts below. 5 M.L.T. 79=2 Ind. Cas. 618.

—New plea—Second appeal —If can be set up.

A new case cannot be set up in second appeal. 6 A.L.J. 57=1 Ind. Cas. 821.

45 (g). Practice—New plea—Supreme Court.

—New plea—Application for leave to appeal to Supreme Court—Plea of want of attestation in deed of change—If can be raised for first time.

A plea to the effect that a document creating a charge has to be attested in the manner laid down in S. 59, T.P. Act, which was never raised at any previous stage of the litigation cannot be raised for the first time in an application for leave to appeal to the Supreme Court.

Quaere.—Whether such deed requires to be attested in accordance with S. 59, T.P. Act. A.I.R. 1950 Pat. 478.

45 (h). Practice—New plea—Power of Court to set up.

—Court of appeal should not set up an entirely new case for a party in appeal. 106 Ind. Cas. 313=A.I.R. 1928 Lah. 43.

—Court cannot make a new case for the party.

When the case found by the lower Appellate Court was not the case tried and the relief decreed was not the relief sought, in such a case the suit should be dismissed. 106 Ind. Cas. 659=A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 410.

—New case.

Issues framed by trial Court covering all pleadings—Appellate Court could not set up a new case on remand. 98 Ind. Cas. 906=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 42.

—Appellate Court cannot make out a new case.

It is not open to an Appellate Court to make a new case for the plaintiff and decree the appeal on the ground of abandonment which was never pleaded nor was any evidence gone into on that question. 98 Ind. Cas. 835=44 C.L.J. 282=A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 86.

—Judge cannot make out and decree a case inconsistent with that alleged by the party.

A Court is not entitled to make a case inconsistent with or different from that which is presented to it on behalf of the parties, and it is not permissible for a Court to pass a decree in favour of a plaintiff upon the basis of a case which is inconsistent with the case which he himself has put forward. This rule is based upon the question of prejudice to the defendant; therefore where a party alleged purchase from the tenant the Court can find on evidence that the tenant's predecessor left other heirs, but that they had no interest and that the vendor was the only tenant on date of the purchase. 85 Ind. Cas. 753=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 949.

—Courts cannot set out a case for the parties not pleaded by them. 66 Ind. Cas. 620=8 O.L.J. 343=A.I.R. 19 Oudh 259.

—New plea—Appellate Court.

Where the plaintiff's plea is directly opposed to the entries in the record of rights of which they were aware, the appellate Court is justified in setting up a new case for the defendant and dismiss plaintiff's suit on the weakness of his own title. 50 Ind. Cas. 290 (Cal.).

—New plea—Appellate Court—New case—Not to set up.

A Court of appeal cannot set up a case for any of the parties which is not put forward in the pleadings. 51 Ind. Cas. 751 (Lah.).

—New plea—Appellate Court—New case not to be made.

The determination of a cause must depend on the allegations made in the pleadings and the proof. An appellate Court is not entitled to raise new points involving fresh evidence in appeal and to remand the case for the trial of those questions. 31 C.L.J. 354=44 Ind. Cas. 416.

—New plea—Appeal—Whether appellate Court can make a new case on appeal.

An appellate Court cannot make a new case for the parties especially when the other party has had no notice if it and has had no opportunity to rebut it in the lower Court. 33 Bom. 35=10 Bom. L.R. 768=1 Ind. Cas. 456.

45 (i). Practice—New plea—Abandoned plea.

—New plea—Abandonment.

Grounds of appeal abandoned in first appeal cannot be raised in second appeal. A.I.R. 1929 All. 761.

—New plea—Necessity.

Per Boys, J.—In a suit by mortgagee of joint family property against a Hindu father, if the plea of legal necessity, having been first raised is afterwards abandoned in the trial Court, it is too late to endeavour to set it up again in the Appellate Court. 115 Ind. Cas. 775=A.I.R. 51 All. 136=26 A.L.J. 1289=A.I.R. 1928 All. 596 (F.B.).

—Whether or not a plea not pressed below should be pressed in second appeal is largely a question of the nature of the plea. 100 Ind. Cas. 40=25 M.L.W. 11=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 273.

Plea not raised before the trial Court and raised and abandoned before the lower Appellate Court cannot be allowed to be raised in second appeal even if it is a question of law. 98 Ind. Cas. 1044=3 O.W.N. 937=8 L.R.A. Rev. 20=A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 37.

Appeal—Point not referred to in the lower Court's judgment must be presumed to have been given up there. 99 Ind. Cas. 463=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 125.

—Point abandoned cannot be taken.

An appellant ought not to be allowed to take a point in second appeal which was expressly abandoned in the Court below. 69 Ind. Cas. 44=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 541.

—Where at an earlier hearing a party abandons any point he cannot be allowed afterwards to take it up. 70 Ind. Cas. 417=A.I.R. 1922 Bom. 233.

—New plea—Appeal—Technical plea whether can be taken for the first time in appeal—Withdrawal of plea, if can be revived.

A technical objection cannot be raised for the first time in appeal. A party who has once withdrawn a plea in one Court cannot revive it subsequently in appeal or revision. 6 P.W.R. 1917=20 P.L.R. 1917=39 Ind. Cas. 381.

45 (j). Practice—New plea—Adverse possession.

Defendants claimed ownership of the house in dispute as donees from the last male holder or by adverse possession by themselves:

Held, that they cannot be allowed, subsequently to turn round and claim that they had derived title through a female, and her adverse possession should be tacked on to their adverse possession. 91 Ind. Cas. 784=7 L.L.J. 405=26 P.L.R. 778=A.I.R. 1925 Lah. 571.

—New plea—Adverse possession.

The plea of adverse possession being one of limitation the Court is not only justified in raising it sue motu but is bound to raise it. 80 Ind. Cas. 582=A.I.R. 1925 Oudh 182.

—A new plea that the suit is barred by Art. 144 cannot be permitted in appeal since its decision would involve a finding of fact whether the appellant's possession was adverse to the knowledge of the respondent. 80 Ind. Cas. 321=6 L.L.J. 151=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 468.

—New plea—Appeal—Adverse possession—Acquisition of title.

A plaintiff can succeed on a title by adverse possession pleaded even for the first time in the Court of appeal provided such a case arises on the facts stated in the plaint and the defendant is not taken by surprise. 32 C.L.J. 151=60 Ind. Cas. 165.

—New plea—Change of case—Suit on title—Prescriptive title relief on.

Where a person sues for declaration of title alleging title and also possession for a long period, he can be given relief on the strength of a title by adverse possession, especially where defendants denied any sort of possession in plaintiff. 48 Ind. Cas. 448 (Cal.).

—New plea—Adverse possession—Appellate Court—Prejudice.

Where the plaintiff's suit for declaration of title was dismissed on the ground of estoppel and the first appellate Court gave a decree to the plaintiff on the ground of adverse possession, held, that the appellate Court was wrong in deciding question of adverse possession without giving opportunity to defendant to adduce evidence on that point. 21 P.L.R. 1915=236 P.W.R. 1915=28 Ind. Cas. 50.

—New plea—Question of law—Adverse possession not raised explicitly in plaint—When may be allowed to be raised.

If no case of title by adverse possession is made in the plaint, nor is the question raised in any of the issues, the plaintiff cannot succeed upon such a case. But when the question reduces itself to one of law upon facts admitted or proved beyond controversy, the Court should entertain the plea of adverse possession, if such a case arises on the facts stated in the plaint and the defendant is not taken by surprise. The true test is, how far is the defendant likely to be prejudiced if the point is permitted to be taken afterwards, though not explicitly raised in the plaint. 12 C.L.J. 459=15 C.W.N. 158=8 Ind. Cas. 41.

45 (k). Practice—New plea — Estoppel.*—New plea—Estoppel.

Where plea of estoppel is not set up in the pleadings or issues it cannot be availed of later, because estoppel is eminently a matter of pleadings. 119 Ind. Cas. 152 = A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 467.

Plea of estoppel by acquiescence cannot be pleaded in argument when not raised in defence. 94 Ind. Cas. 307.

—New plea—Question of fact—estoppel.

Questions of estoppel which ultimately depend on questions of fact, cannot be raised in argument unless put clearly in issue. 23 C.L.J. 122 = 34 Ind. Cas. 956.

45 (l). Practice—New plea—Further evidence.*—New plea—Further evidence

Question not purely of law, and requiring investigation into facts should not be allowed in appeal after several stages of litigation. 123 Ind. Cas. 649 = 33 C.W.N. 1023 = A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 190.

—New plea making further evidence necessary, cannot be allowed in second appeal. 108 Ind. Cas. 883 = 55 Cal. 1167 = 32 C.W.N. 580 = A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 854.

—It is very necessary that every discouragement should be given to an invention of new points at a late stage—Points which might have been met if taken properly by adducing further evidence. 104 Ind. Cas. 733 = 46 C. L. J. 253 = A.I.R. 1927 Cal. 855.

—Parties to suit are bound by the case which arises on their pleadings and which has been enquired into by the Court of first instance, and they cannot rely upon a point, which has not been raised and which depends upon facts for its determination. 104 Ind. Cas. 418 = 9 L.L.J. 165 = 28 P.L.R. 138 = A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 231.

—A new ground of attack dependent on proof of facts cannot be raised at the stage of appeal. 98 Ind. Cas. 674 = A.I.R. 1927 Nag. 99.

—New plea prejudicing party and necessitating re-framing of pleas and production of further evidence cannot be allowed. 20 O.C. 41, Foll. 101 Ind. Cas. 697 = A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 585.

—A point regarding the application of the doctrine of Musha raised for the first time specifically in arguments should not be permitted to be raised at that late stage, especially when it required other evidence. 97 Ind. Cas. 781 = 8 L.L.J. 374 = 27 P.L.R. 674.

—Appellant cannot make out an absolutely new case on a question of fact in appeal and ask that the case be sent down so that further evidence may be taken on the new issues. 83 Ind. Cas. 610 = 26 Bom. L.R. 622 = A.I.R. 1924 Bom. 457.

45 (m). Practice—New plea—Inconsistent pleas.

See Note: 32 (b).

45 (n). Practice—New plea—Jurisdiction.*—New plea of jurisdiction in revision.

A new question of jurisdiction cannot be allowed to be raised in a revision petition against an interlocutory order in a suit when the suit is still pending in the trial Court. 1949 A. M.L.J. 9.

—Where an objection to jurisdiction was taken in the trial Court but overruled and objection was not pressed in appeal from the decision of the trial Court, High Court allowed the question to be argued in second appeal. 52 C. L. J. 247 = A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 29 = 130 Ind. Cas. 232.

—New plea—Jurisdiction.

Objection to valuation of claim and jurisdiction cannot be raised for the first time in second appeal. A.I.R. 1930 Mad. 541 = 126 Ind. Cas. 730.

—New plea—Second appeal—Objection to pecuniary jurisdiction.

Objections taken to the jurisdiction of a Court due to the increase in the value of the meine profits is not allowed for the first time in second appeal. 14 Ind. Cas. 34. (Cal).

—A tenant sued his proprietor for a declaration of the area and boundary of his holding in a Civil Court. The proprietor did not raise the objection that such a suit cannot be entertained in a Civil Court either in the trial Court or in the lower Appellate Court.

Held, that the High Court could allow the objection to be raised in second appeal for the first time as its decision does not require facts or evidence. 116 Ind. Cas. 870 = 10 L.R.A.Rev. 278 = A.I.R. 1929 All. 442.

—A plea of want of jurisdiction though abandoned in one Court, can be raised in the higher Court. 92 Ind. Cas. 760 = 23 M.L.W. 3 = 43 C. L. J. 1 = 24 A.L.J. 48 = 27 P.L.R. 1 = 1926 M.W.N. 108 = 53 Cal. 88 = 28 Bom. L.R. 211 = 53 I.A. 58 = 30 C.W.N. 577 = A.I.R. 1925 P.C. 290 = 49 M.L.J. 806 (P.C.).

—Plea as to want of jurisdiction may be raised for the first time in appeal. 86 Ind. Cas. 81 = 49 Bom. 152 = 27 Bom. L.R. 56 = A.I.R. 1925 Bom. 162.

—A question of jurisdiction which requires no further enquiry as to facts can be raised for the first time in appellate Courts. 43 All. 18 = A.I.R. 1921 All. 290.

—An objection to jurisdiction not taken in the lower Appellate Court, cannot be entertained in second appeal. 63 Ind. Cas. 255 (All.).

—Jurisdiction question.

Where an objection to jurisdiction was taken in the trial Court but overruled and the objection was not pressed in appeal from the decision of the trial Court, the High Court allowed the question to be argued in second appeal. 52 C. L. J. 247 = 130 Ind. Cas. 232 = A.I.R. 1931 Cal. 29.

—New plea—Jurisdiction—Appellate Court can allow.

The appellate Court will allow a new point to be raised in appeal if it goes to the jurisdiction of the lower Court or if a statute has been contravened. 50 Ind. Cas. 322 (Cal.)

—New plea—Question of law—Jurisdiction—Objection to.

Questions touching the very root of a suit ought, as a rule, to be raised in the pleadings. Though a question of jurisdiction is a question of law which may be raised at any stage, the defendant ought not, in any event be allowed to raise it after the plaintiff has closed his case. 11 Bom. L.R. 1269=4 Ind. Cas. 569.

45 (o). Practice—New plea—Limitation.

—Plea—Stage at which plea of limitation can be raised.

The objection that a suit is time-barred is never too late. It can be raised at any stage of a suit or other proceeding provided that, if raised in appeal, it does not require any further investigation into a question of fact. 1949 R.D. 227.

—Point of law—Raising at any stage of the proceedings.

Where a point of law is such that it requires no further investigation or finding on any question of fact it is a point which can be taken at any stage of a proceeding with the permission of Court. 1949 R.D. 107.

—New plea—Limitation.

The point of limitation though raised for the first time in the High Court can be so allowed to be raised if it does not require any fresh findings. 123 Ind. Cas. 820=1930 A.L.J. 552=A.I.R. 1930 All. 467.

—Second appeal.

The mere fact that the question of limitation was not raised in the trial Court or in the first Appellate Court or in memo. of appeal does not debar the Court of second appeal from going into the question, if it arises on the pleadings and no question of fact has to be enquired into to dispose of the question. 35 C.W.N. 103=129 Ind. Cas. 108=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 703.

—Where a plea of limitation was not raised before the appellate Court on the earlier occasion and the same was sought to be raised at a later stage on a more limited reference. Held, that the plea could not be raised. 51 C. L. J. 283=A.I.R. 1930 Cal. 547.

—Provided a general plea of limitation is taken and facts necessary to come to a decision on the point whether the special rule of limitation applied are gone into and there was no question of prejudice to any party it is not necessary that the plea of special limitation should have been specifically taken in pleadings in lower Court before it can be admissible in second appeal. 11 P.L.T. 197=9 Pat. 788=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 256 (F.B.).

—Question of limitation depending ultimately on certain facts—Other party not having notice with regard to these facts—Plea of limitation should not be allowed to be raised at very late stage. 111 Ind. Cas. 152=A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 38.

—Limitation—Question raised in review.

Where a point as to limitation was raised for the first time in application for review, the party was allowed to raise it but was ordered to pay the costs of that application to the other party. 109 Ind. Cas. 1=5 O.W.N. 479=30 Bom. L.R. 842=47 C. L. J. 510=6 Rang. 302=26 A.L.J. 657=32 C.W.N. 845=55 I.A. 161=28 M.L.W. 207=A.I.R. 1928 P.C. 103=54 M.L.J. 696 (P.C.).

—Even a plea of limitation not made except in argument, while it depends on facts, cannot be allowed where the lower Court might have had facts before it to justify its view, which facts, however, neither party was able to point out. 108 Ind. Cas. 14=26 A.L.J. 505=30 Bom. L.R. 765=28 M.L.W. 354=A.I.R. 1928 P.C. 47=54 M.L.J. 651 (P.C.).

—A plea of limitation although not raised in the trial Court or the memo. of appeal to the Appellate Court can be entertained in appeal. 103 Ind. Cas. 418=29 Bom. L.R. 241=A.I.R. 1927 Bom. 398.

—New plea as to the bar of limitation cannot be entertained for the first time in revision. 85 Ind. Cas. 982=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 986.

—Plea of limitation though abandoned in trial Court can be taken in appeal. 94 Ind. Cas. 611=4 Bur. L.J. 113=A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 313.

—New point of law will not be allowed to be raised if remand becomes necessary. 87 Ind. Cas. 705=26 Bom. L.R. 494=A.I.R. 1924 Bom. 469.

—Plea of, under Special Law.

Although a plea of limitation can be raised at any stage of the suit and even for the first time in appeal, a special plea of limitation ought to be taken in the written statement. The defendant must raise question of special limitation in the written statement where the determination of that question depends upon a finding of fact, e. g., the fact as to when service of notice of the deposit was made on the land-lord. 69 Ind. Cas. 419=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 463.

—Grounds of exemption from limitation may be set up in the alternative—Ground of exemption not set up in Court below cannot be set up in appeal. 69 Ind. Cas. 419=3 Lab. 233=4 L.L.J. 190=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 39.

—Execution proceedings—Limitation—Failure of judgment-debtor to raise the plea in a previous execution application, will preclude him for raising it later on. 68 Ind. Cas. 267=25 O. C. 13=A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 117.

—Defence—Question of limitation—Second appeal.

A point of limitation can be taken in second appeal for the first time if there are sufficient findings of fact on which it could be argued as a question of law. 69 Ind. Cas. 785 (Cal.).

—A question of limitation cannot be raised for the first time in appeal. It must be raised by the defendant in his pleading according to O. 8, R. 2, C. P. Code. A new plea of limitation must be entertained only when on the face of the record there is evidence which was produced in the trial Court. 60 Ind. Cas. 280=32 C. L. J. 236.

—New plea—Limitation—Pleadings.

The plea of bar by limitation under a special Act must be specially pleaded and if the facts in support thereof are not apparent on the face of the record, the appellate Court cannot make an enquiry whether on certain facts he had found the suit was barred by limitation. 28 C. L. J. 216=46 Ind. Cas. 787.

—New plea—Limitation — Second appeal—Plea requiring fresh evidence on a question of fact.

Per Piggot, J.—A plea even of limitation requiring for its determination fresh evidence on a question of fact cannot be properly put forward for the first time in the second appeal. 14 A. L. J. 1146=37 Ind. Cas. 343.

—New plea—Limitation.

A question of limitation can be taken at any time. 1 Pat. L. J. 221=2 Pat. L. W. 374=36 Ind. Cas. 960.

—New plea—Question of limitation—Appeal—Decision on.

An appellate Court can decide questions of limitation, if no further facts than those before it are necessary for that purpose. 29 Ind. Cas. 36. (Mad).

—New plea—Limitation—Second appeal.

A plea of limitation can be set up even in second appeal if it is patent on the face of it and does not require additional facts to decide the same. 34 C. 941=9 C. 635=25 M. 367=12 A. 300 Foll. 1 L. W. 1032= (1914) M. W. N. 921=17 M. L. T. 18=26 Ind. Cas. 369.

—New plea—Limitation.

The appellant cannot be allowed to raise on second appeal, new pleas of limitation which involve decisions of new questions of fact. 5 M. L. T. 262=4 Ind. Cas. 1167.

45 (p). Practice—New plea—Maintainability of suit.

—New plea—Maintainability of suit—Plea not raised in ground of appeal.

Although a plea may not have been specifically raised in the grounds of appeal in second appeal, High Court can allow the point to be argued if it cut at the root of the case. A. I. R. 1930 All. 434.

—The question of the maintainability of a suit if not raised in the first instance before lower Courts cannot be allowed to be raised in second appeal. 50 C. L. J. 543=A. I. R. 1930 Cal. 267.

—Second appeal.

A father of a minor apprentice can in certain circumstances maintain suits against the master of the apprentice. A point, therefore, as to whether a father can maintain such a suit when not raised in the lower Courts cannot be raised for the first time in revision to the High Court especially when it requires facts for its elucidation; 117 Ind. Cas. 304=A. I. R. 1929 Mad. 781.

—Plea of want of sanction under Civil P. C., S. 91 cannot be raised in the Appellate Court for the first time. 105 Ind. Cas. 113=A. I. R. 1928 Nag. 39.

—Though questions of law involving jurisdiction or going to the root of the plaintiff's claim may be advanced in second appeal notwithstanding the omission to bring them forward before the lower Court or even the trial Court, an objection relating to the non-representative nature of the suit is not a question of this character and the appellant must be taken to have waived the right to advance this objection by failure to include it among the grounds of first appeal. 101 Ind. Cas. 375=A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 666.

—A point affecting the maintainability of suit was allowed for the first time in second appeal. 105 Ind. Cas. 88=51 Mad. 76=26 M. L. W. 572=39 M. L. T. 389=1927 M. W. N. 913=A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 1035=53 M. L. J. 688.

—Where the objection, that the plaintiff could not maintain his suit for a declaration that defendant was not entitled to redeem after he had entered into possession on payment of the amount fixed by the Collector, was raised for the first time in appeal, held: the objection could not be allowed. 68 Ind. Cas. 557=3 Lah. 239=A. I. R. 1922 Lah. 363.

—New plea—Plea of bar of suit whether can be taken first in appeal.

The plea of bar of suit under S. 41 of the Evidence Act can be taken for the first time in appeal. 57 Ind. Cas. 612 (Nag.).

—New plea—Bar of suit—Appellate Court.

Although the objection that the suit was barred by S. 66, C. P. C., had not been raised in the Court below or in the grounds of appeal, the question being one of law, it was allowed to be argued in appeal on the understanding that effect would be given to any defence that respondent might have set up had the matter been agitated in the Court below. 2 Lah. L. J. 353.

—New plea—Question of res judicata.

The plea of res judicata being one of restraint of the right of a litigant to have his case fully tried and determined, the judgment which is pleaded in bar of this right must be strictly construed. 31 M. L. J. 311= (1916) 2 M. W. N. 133=20 M. L. T. 228=35 Ind. Cas. 421.

—New plea—Second appeal—Plea of res judicata.

Plea of res judicata though not raised in the first appellate court can be allowed in second appeal. 21 A. 446; 4 A. 69, Foll. 5 Ind. Cas. 294. (All.).

—New plea—Question affecting maintainability of suit—Duty of court to raise and decide.

Where in a suit in ejectment, the defect in the title of the plaintiff is apparent in the face of the documents on which he rests his case, it is the duty of the Judicial Committee to dismiss the suit although the point had not been clearly raised in the courts below. 35 All. 273=40 I. A. 86=25 M. L. J. 301=14 M. L. T. 64=17 C. W. N. 669=(1913) M. W. N. 481=11 A. L. J. 469=17 C. L. J. 566=15 Bom. L. R. 525=16 O. C. 136=19 Ind. Cas. 340 (P. C.).

—New plea—Second appeal—Cause of action—Absence of.

The question whether the facts set out in the plaint show a cause of action is one which goes to the very root of the case and as such may be allowed to be raised for the first time even in the second appeal. 8 A.L.J. 922=12 Ind. Cas. 111.

—New plea—Appeal—Preliminary point—Appeal.

Where a defendant wants to raise a plea under O. 2, R. 2 of the C.P. Code which is not raised in the pleadings or issues, he should not be allowed to raise it for the first time on appeal, except on terms of the other side being fully indemnified by costs, etc. 38 Cal. 629=15 C.W.N. 766=8 A.L.J. 739=13 Bom. L.R. 464=14 C.L.J. 15=(1911) 2 M.W.N. 397=4 Bur. L.T. 153=6 L.B.R. 18=10 M.L.T. 479=11 Ind. Cas. 497 (P.C.)

—New plea—Question of law—Bar—Under O. 2, R. 2, C.P.C.—Second appeal.

An objection that the suit is barred under Ss. 42 and 43, C.P.C. 1882 cannot be entertained in second appeal. 12 O.C. 21=1 Ind. Cas. 327.

45 (q). Practice—New plea—Minority.

—New plea—Minority—Not to be allowed—Second appeal.

A plea of minority which was neither raised in the Courts below nor in the memorandum of appeal before the High Court, cannot be raised for the first time in argument in second appeal. 11 A.L.J. 202=19 Ind. Cas. 55.

—New plea—Minority.

A point that certain agreement was not binding on the minors could not be taken up by the Court of appeal, suo motu 20 P.R. 1913=101 P.W.R. 1913=185 P.L.R. 1913=19 Ind. Cas. 411.

—New plea—Minority—Appeal—When the plea is barred.

If the plea that a certain defendant is minor is not raised in the first Court and a decree is allowed to be passed, the plea cannot be raised in appeal. 6 Ind. Cas. 373 (All.).

45 (r). Practice—New plea—Question of fact.

—New plea—Question of fact—If can be raised in appeal for first time—Whether there was consideration for compromise—When to be raised See C. P. Code, S. 110 (3). A.I.R. 1950 Pat. 478.

—Plea never raised in the Courts below and involving questions of fact cannot be allowed to be raised for the first time in second appeal. 116 Ind. Cas. 903=10 Lah. 694=30 P.L.R. 750=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 318.

—New plea—Question of fact.

A new plea of question of a fact cannot be raised for the first time in appeal. 107 Ind. Cas. 903=A.I.R. 1928 Nag. 273.

—A new plea on a question of fact should not be entertained in second appeal. 103 Ind. Cas. 802=1 L.C. 277=A.I.R. 1927 Oudh 341.

—A party should not be allowed to make out a new case in appeal, if it involves questions of fact for which no evidence has been given. 102 Ind. Cas. 631=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 534.

—A question of fact not raised and made a ground of complaint in the Court of first instance ought not to be allowed to be raised for the first time in appeal. 91 Ind. Cas. 642=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 665.

—New plea—Second appeal—Not to be allowed.

If a point which ought to be, but is not, taken in the trial Court and in respect of which direct evidence is given, it cannot be taken in second appeal especially when it involves a question of fact. 56 Ind. Cas. 844 (Cal.).

—New plea—Appellate Court—New case based on facts, whether may be raised.

An appellate Court ought not to allow a new case to be raised in appeal, when it depends for its determination on facts on which no evidence has been let in. Where the defence in the original Court was that a certain Kabuliyat was not executed at all by the defendants, they ought not in appeal allowed to change the defence and to plead to be that the Kabuliyat was not enforceable against them. 11 Ind. Cas. 940 (Cal.).

—New plea—Second appeal.

A party cannot set up a new case in second appeal especially when the new pleas involve decisions on questions of fact. 5 M.L.T. 262=4 Ind. Cas. 1167.

45 (s). Practice—New plea—Question of Law.

- (i) When allowed
- (ii) When not allowed.

45 (s) (i). Practice—New Plea—Question of Law—When allowed.

—New plea—Question of law—Question as to legal effect of compromise—Express plea not raised—Court's power to entertain point and give effect to it.

The question as to the legal effect of a compromise decree in a suit is a pure question of law, and the mere absence of an express plea on the subject cannot debar the Court from giving effect to it. A.I.R. 1948 E.P. 26.

—New plea—Question of law.

Per Full Bench:—A question of pure law arising out of admitted facts can be raised in the first instance in the first appeal. 124 Ind. Cas. 733=1930 A.L.J. 156=A.I.R. 1933 All. 136 (F.B.).

—A question of law can be raised for the first time in second appeal. 117 Ind. Cas. 100 (All.).

—A law point patent on the face of the record can be raised in second appeal. The question whether such a matter should be allowed to be raised or not in second appeal depends on the circumstances of the case and upon the nature of the point that is being raised. A.I.R. 1927 B. 157 and 31 P.R. 1918 followed. 12 Lah. L. J. 203=130 Ind. Cas. 513=A.I.R. 1930 Lah. 937.

—A point as to the frame of suit is a point of law and an objection as to the frame of suit can be raised for the first time even on appeal. 109 Ind. Cas. 867=A.I.R. 1929 Lah. 94.

—Common law contrary to that pleaded can be applied suo motu or at instance of a party.

A point of law, provided it is a point that can be applied to the facts proved and although it directly contradicts anything that may have been said during the whole case about the law applicable to those facts, can be urged by the parties at any time before judgment is pronounced, and it can be basis of the decision of the case even if it occurs only to the Judge himself when he is writing his judgment. 92 Ind. Cas. 926=A.I.R. 1926 Nag. 265.

—Per Das J.—A Court should allow a question of law to be argued which fairly arises on the allegations made in the plaint though it is not stated in that form in the plaint. 88 Ind. Cas. 141=87 Ind. Cas. 849=4 Pat. 510=6 P.L.T. 634=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 625.

Per Ramesam, J. (Jackson, J. doubting)—Plaintiff suing to set aside adoption by widow and defendants supporting it on the ground of consent of agnatic kinsmen, question of law as to necessity of consent of daughter's sons can be raised for the first time in appeal provided opportunity is given to defendant to prove daughter's sons did consent. 83 Ind. Cas. 59=20 M.L.W. 503=1924 M.W.N. 844=A.I.R. 1925 Mad. 67.

—New Plea — Second Appeal — Question of Law.

Per Broomfield, J.—A new point may be raised for the first time in second appeal, but only when it is a pure question of law arising on the findings of the Court's below and not affected by any facts outside those findings. 32 Bom.L.R. 1001.

—Although a point of law may be taken in appeal for the first time yet it is subject to the well recognized rule that the evidence on the record is complete and no further evidence is necessary to substantiate the point. 78 Ind. Cas. 889=3 Pat. 236=2 Pat. L. R. 53=5 Pat. L. T. 576=A. I. R. 1924 Pat. 446.

—Plea of law on proved facts can be newly raised. 76 Ind. Cas. 172=6 L.L.J. 454=A.I.R. 1924 Lah. 543.

—Where the point is one of law and patent upon the face of the record, it may be raised for the first time in appeal. 80 Ind. Cas. 181=A. I. R. 1923 Lah. 608.

—Question of law requiring no further evidence can be heard in second appeal. 72 Ind. Cas. 230=2 Pat. 469=4 P. L. T. 427=1 Pat. L.R. 201=1923 P.H.C.C. 97=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 423.

—Question of law raised in arguments.

Where the question of a contract, being void as being illegal and as being opposed to public policy was not found in the pleadings but was raised for the first time in the arguments.

Held, that when a question of this sort is raised the Court should take notice of it even though not raised in the pleadings. 72 Ind. Cas. 735=18 M.L.W. 564=1923 M. W. N. 335=32 M. L. T. 330=A.I.R. 1923 Mad. 626.

—Where a new point raised before the appellate Court is one of law to be decided without any further evidence it is the duty of the appellate Court to entertain it. 66 Ind. Cas. 466 (Lah.).

—New plea—Appellate Court—Point of law.

A point not urged in the Court below but which depends on the construction of a statute can be raised on appeal. 1 Pat. L.T. 269=5 Pat. L. J. 359=(1920) P.H.C.C. 193=58 Ind. Cas. 749.

—New plea—Question of law.

A pure question of law, though not raised in the primary Court nor mentioned in the memo of appeal and is not one of jurisdiction of the Court to entertain the suit, can be raised in appeal, if it goes to the very root of the matter and raises the question whether the Court was competent to grant the relief claimed. 31 C.L.J. 259=56 Ind. Cas. 571.

—New plea—Question of law.

An objection of clear law apparent on the face of the record should be given effect to even when not pressed. 25 C.L.J. 354=40 Ind. Cas. 230.

—New plea—Question of law—Trial of suit—Plea not raised in the written statement.

A plea raised on a robkar drawn up at the first hearing though not raised by the written statement could be considered by the Courts. 12 A.L.J. 455=25 Ind. Cas. 408.

—New plea—Question of law—Appeal—Vakalatnama—Pleader's name left out by oversight—Whether presentable.

Where in a vakalatnama the pleader's name has been omitted by oversight there is no due appointment of the pleader and the appeal is not on that account properly presented. This objection can be taken at any stage of the case. 36 All. 46=11 A.L.J. 1015=23 Ind. Cas. 461.

—New plea—Question of Law—Appeal.

The Court of Appeal may allow a question of law to be raised for the first time in appeal when it thinks necessary and expedient in the interest of justice, but not unless the court is satisfied that the evidence establishes beyond doubt that the facts if fully investigated would have supported the new plea. 22 Ind. Cas. 553 (Cal.).

45 (s) (ii). Practice—New plea—Question of law—When not allowed.

—New plea—When allowed in second appeal.

Points which have not been raised in the first appeal cannot be allowed to be raised in the second appeal merely because they are points of law unless good ground is shown for failure to take them before the lower appellate Court. 126 Ind. Cas. 18=A.I.R. 1930 All. 885.

—Questions of law dealing with the admissibility and the legal effect of evidence will not as a general rule be entertained in second appeal if they have not been taken at least at the stage of first appeal. 78 Ind. Cas. 221=22 A.L.J. 153=5 L.R.A. Civ. 44=A.I.R. 1924 All. 709.

—New plea—Question of law—Point of law depending on evidence—If can be raised at late stage of suit.

A point of law depending on evidence cannot be raised for the first time at a late stage of the suit. 7 S.L.R. 11=20 Ind. Cas. 523.

—New plea—Question of law—Waiver—When to be raised.

As a question of waiver is a mixed question of fact and law it ought not to be allowed to be raised at late stage of the proceedings. 13 C.L.J. 192=9 Ind. Cas. 698.

45 (t). Practice—New plea—Remand.

—New plea — Remand — Plea of res judicata raised.

If an order of remand is made by the High Court under O. 41, R. 23, and on retrial the plaintiff's claim is disallowed and plaintiff appeals against the order, it is quite competent for the appellant to raise the plea of res judicata in appeal. The order of remand does not in any way prevent the Court below nor the High Court from holding that the point of res judicata was properly raised and the High Court in allowing it does not in any way go behind the order of remand in the previous appeal. 119 Ind. Cas. 497=A.I.R. 1929 All. 724.

—Case remanded in second appeal—Objection to remand cannot be raised after return of case. 86 Ind. Cas. 445=6 L. R. A. Civ. 117=A. I. R. 1925 All. 369.

—New plea as to bona fide purchase.

Where a defendant's plea of bona fide purchase for value without notice has not been specifically raised in the pleadings or in the issues, the defect may be remedied, if necessary by a remand on terms as to costs, specially as the defence has sometimes been entertained, when it has been pleaded in substance and is a just inference from the facts alleged. 74 Ind. Cas. 975=37 C.L.J. 145=27 C.W.N. 587=A.I.R. 1923 Cal. 538.

—Where there is no indication that a plea was ever submitted to the Lower Court at the remand hearing or had been mentioned to the learned Judges by whom the remand was made, it cannot be raised at the final hearing after remand. 74 Ind. Cas. 804=16 M.L.W. 297=46 Mad. 47=A.I.R. 1923=Mad. 147=43 M.L.J. 406.

45 (u). Practice—New plea—Miscellaneous.

—New pleas—Pleadings essentiality.

No amount of evidence can be worked upon a plea which was never put forward in the pleadings or in the original Court. 58 M.L.J. 7 (P.C.), Foll. 125 Ind. Cas. 33 (Sind).

—New plea.

Where a claim has been never made in the defence presented, no amount of evidence can be looked into upon a plea which was never put forward: A.I.R. 1925 Sind 2, Affirmed. 121 Ind. Cas. 204=31 P.L.R. 150=24 S.L.R. 138=A.I.R. 1930 P.C. 57=58 M.L.J. 7.

—New plea—Fraud.

No amount of evidence can be worked into upon a plea not put forward. The dictum applies with great vigour to a plea based on fraud. 125 Ind. Cas. 33=A.I.R. 1930 Sind 318.

—If the plea, that the suit being for partnership, O. 30, R. 1, Civil P.C., has no application is not raised before reference is made to arbitration, the Court will not go into it after reference is made and award is passed. 117 Ind. Cas. 783=A.I.R. 1930 Sind 40.

—Incident not indicated in plaint but raised before recording evidence—Both parties giving evidence—Case should not be considered to be a new case. 22 Cal. 324 (P.C.) Foll. 111 Ind. Cas. 817=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 44.

—Where the plaintiffs-mortgagees all along made a substantial case as to the consideration for their mortgage:

Held, that they cannot be allowed to shift their ground and urge that the defendant mortgagor had accepted the civil liability of his brother in respect of defalcations made by his brother in respect of plaintiff's accounts. 107 Ind. Cas. 113=30 Bom. L.R. 296=47 C.L.J. 222=5 O.W.N. 226=27 M.L.W. 523=24 N.L.R. 40=A.I.R. 1928 P.C. 39=54 M.L.J. 208 (P.C.).

—Suit for ejectment on actual possession and dispossession—Subsequent case of constructive possession.

Whether it is open to the plaintiff, where he puts forward a definite case of actual possession and dispossession, when that case fails, to turn round and put forward a case of constructive possession depends upon the circumstances, upon the points at issue and the way in which he has pleaded. It is a matter in the Court's discretion. 105 Ind. Cas. 309=31 C.W.N. 806=A.I.R. 1928 Cal. 118.

—New plea—New case.

If a person asserts that he exercised acts of ownership and adduces evidence in support thereof which is disbelieved by the Court, he cannot turn round and rely upon the presumption raised in his favour by the revenue survey map. 104 Ind. Cas. 514=8 P.L.T. 817=A.I.R. 1928 Pat. 36.

—Where a defendant pleads limitation and in the course of the trial something transpires which shows that the plea of limitation is not sustainable, he cannot turn round and say that the plaintiff should not be allowed the advantage of such evidence as he would be prejudiced. 106 Ind. Cas. 229=39 M.L.T. 415=27 M.L.W. 30=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 27.

—Plaintiff co-sharer suing for possession after dis-possession by defendant-co-sharer—Plaintiff failing to prove alleged actual possession cannot be allowed to plead constructive possession through defendant. 92 Ind. Cas. 908=A.I.R. 1926 Cal. 589.

—New plea founded on facts suppressed in plaint—Plea not allowed. 90 Ind. Cas. 766=2 O.W.N. 849=A.I.R. 1926 Oudh 22.

—Memo of appeal urging condition regarding enhancement of interest being penal—Condition conceded to be not penal at the hearing—Compensation under S. 74, Contract Act cannot be granted. 89 Ind. Cas. 879=26 P.L.R. 240=A.I.R. 1926 Lah. 11.

—Suit based on title cannot on failure of title be converted into suit based on possession. 33 All. 174 and 8 A.L.J. 404 Foll. 82 Ind. Cas. 324=46 All. 903=A.I.R. 1925 All. 69.

—New plea.

A solitary statement elicited in cross-examination from a witness of the opposite party which the opposite party had no opportunity for explaining cannot be utilised for the purpose of founding an objection which had not previously been taken or put into issue. 80 Ind. Cas. 1041=45 All. 59=A.I.R. 1923 All. 176.

—Non-objection cures defect.

Marten, J.—Where the issue was wide and both parties led evidence on a point not covered by the pleadings, no party can object to the evidence as being not covered by the pleadings. 77 Ind. Cas. 654=25 Bom. L.R. 945=47 Bom. 843=A.I.R. 1923 Bom. 321 (F.B.).

—New plea—Omission of issue.

A plea that whether a certain partition deed is valid or not, must be taken early and made the subject of an issue. 76 Ind. Cas. 881=30 M.L.T. 168=A.I.R. 1922 Mad. 341=42 M.L.J. 124.

—Partition suit—Change of circumstances—Consideration.

A widow sued her co-widow and her daughter's son to whom half the estate had been bequeathed by will by her husband, for partition of her fourth share. After preliminary decree was passed the co-widow died and plaintiff became entitled to her share also.

Held: that plaintiff should be given a decree for half share in that very suit instead of compelling her to have recourse to further litigation. Partition suits form an exception to the rule that cases should be decided with reference to the state of facts on the date of their institution. 76 Ind. Cas. 632=A.I.R. 1924 Nag. 188.

—New plea—When can be raised—Failure to establish claim—Effect.

Where in a suit for injunction the plaintiff set up his title as owner of a piece of land, but failed to establish ownership and it appeared that he was in possession of a portion of the land as tenant of the defendants on payment of the customary rate. Held, that having failed to establish title set up by him his suit must be dismissed. 75 P.L.R. 1916=36 Ind. Cas. 55.

—New plea—No allegation in pleadings.

Prior agreement of partnership or family arrangement being not pleaded would not be gone into by Court. 13 M.L.T. 102=18 Ind. Cas. 636.

46. Practice—Notice of hearing.

—Notice of motion—Amendment of plaint pending notice—Effect—If waiver or abandonment of notice.

It cannot be stated as an absolute proposition of law that the amendment of the statement of the claim pending notice of motion operates as an abandonment of the notice of motion unless the plaintiff obtains leave to amend without prejudice to the pending notice. As a matter of precaution the plaintiff must seek an order to amend without prejudice. If the circumstances of a particular case warrant that conclusion, the Court is not fettered in holding that under the particular circumstances the plaintiff should not be considered to have waived or abandoned the notice of motion which had been taken out earlier on the bill or statement of claim as unamended. 49 Bom. L.R. 439=A.I.R. 1947 Bom. 424.

—Notice of Hearing.

Where a party is once heard it is no denial of justice if the Court decides against him without hearing him again if, after he was once heard there was no new material before the Court upon which to base its decision. 126 Ind. Cas. 833=11 P.L.T. 799=9 Pat. 240=A.I.R. 1930 Pat. 81 (S.B.).

—Notice—Order without one is illegal.

It is an elementary principle of law that no order should be passed which prejudices a person without giving him an opportunity to show cause against it. 106 Ind. Cas. 487=A.I.R. 1928 Mad. 361.

—Execution of decree.

Objections as to want of notice of hearing cannot be entertained by the executing Court. 84 Ind. Cas. 724=52 Cal. 269=40 C.L.J. 180=A.I.R. 1925 Cal. 57.

—Ex parte order.

No order should be passed against a person without allowing him reasonable opportunity to be heard and to adduce evidence in his defence. This rule is of universal application founded upon the plainest principles of justice that no one should be condemned, punished or deprived of his property in a judicial proceeding unless he has had a fair opportunity to be heard. 81 Ind. Cas. 867=39 C.L.J. 279=A.I.R. 1924 Cal. 806.

—It is the usual practice of notifying to the parties the receipt of the record when it goes back from the High Court in order that the parties may be apprised of it and take necessary steps. 76 Ind. Cas. 49=79

—Notice—Hearing not in the usual place—Notice is necessary.

Notice to defendants is necessary though the other defendants were present where the place of hearing was not the usual place. 69 Ind. Cas. 499=3 Lah. 357=A.I.R. 1922 Lah. 439.

—Notice to accused always necessary.

No Court should pass an order prejudicial to the accused without giving him notice to show cause against it. 59 Ind. Cas. 193=18 A. L. J. 1135=2 U.P.L.R. All. 374=22 Cr. L. J. 49.

—Notice of hearing—Notice to counsel.

Where notice of the adjourned date of hearing of a petition is given to the counsel who said at the hearing that he had no instructions and had returned the papers it was held sufficient. 4 O. L. J. 561=45 Ind. Cas. 481.

—Notice of hearing—Ex parte Judicial order—Power of Court.

A judicial order possibly affecting or prejudicing a party cannot be made without giving that party an opportunity to be heard. 44 Cal. 454=25 C. L. J. 455=39 Ind. Cas. 969.

—Notice of hearing—Transfer of an appeal to another Court for disposal—Procedure.

Before an appeal is transferred by one court to another the case should be called on and the parties informed as to the transfer and the order sheet should show that it is so transferred. Otherwise, a dismissal for default by the court to which the appeal is transferred is irregular and will be set aside. 1 Pat. L.W. 245=39 Ind. Cas. 45.

—Notice of hearing—Setting aside order.

An order in favour of a party got without fraud should not be set aside without notice to the party. 3 L.W. 250=32 Ind. Cas. 897.

—Notice of hearing—Absence of statutory provisions—Natural justice.

In all judicial proceedings where no specific rule as to notice exists the rule audi altaram partem applies as the principal of natural justice. 38 Mad. 1091=2 L.W. 200=28 M. L. J. 204=1915 M. W. N. 181=16 Cr. L. J. 128=17 M.L.T. 164=27 Ind. Cas. 192.

—Notice of hearing—Dismissal for default—Place of hearing.

Where no intimation was given to the parties that the case will be heard in camp, the magistrate was not justified in dismissing the case for default while in camp. 53 P.L.R. 1914=15 Cr. L. J. 143=22 Ind. Cas. 495.

—Notice of hearing — Objections to — Waiver.

Whereby a party having notice of a motion contests it on the merits, he must be held to have waived objections as to irregularity in the issue or service of notice. 25 M.L. J. 281=(1913) M. W. N. 751=21 Ind. Cas. 96.

—Notice of hearing—Judicial proceedings.

Without an opportunity given to a person to say what he has to say, he should not be deprived of his property in any judicial proceeding. 39 Cal. 881=15 Ind. Cas. 176.

—Notice of hearing—Re-trial—Notice.

Neither party is entitled as of right to a notice intimating the date fixed for the rehearing of the case, when a case is remanded for retrial to the first Court. This rule applies both to Berar and the Central Provinces. But in fixing a date for hearing the case, the Court should select such date as will give the parties a reasonable opportunity of ascertaining the date fixed. 7 N.L.R. 172=12 Ind. Cas. 807.

—Notice of hearing.

It is a material irregularity to decide an appeal against respondent not properly served with the notice of the date of hearing. 59 P. W. R. 1909=55 P.L.R. 1909=4 Ind. Cas. 550.

—Notice of hearing—Service of notice of appeal—Respondent in England.

The best way to serve a notice of appeal on a respondent who had left for England would be to make over the notice to the appellant's pleader for service on the Respondent through an agent in England to be appointed for the purpose. 36 Cal. 226=13 C. W. N. 18=9 C.L.J. 244=1 Ind. Cas. 158.

—Notice of hearing—No date fixed for trial—Decree bad.

Where no date has been fixed for trial of a suit a decree on the merits is bad. 9 C. L. J. 367=13 C.W.N. 493=5 M.L.T. 360=1 Ind. Cas. 86.

—Notice of hearing—Parties—Absence during hearing.

Where the presence of a respondent is unnecessary and the parties present do not object, the appellate court can proceed to hear the appeal. 21 P.R. 1909=32 P.L.R. 1909=27 P.W.R. 1909=1 Ind. Cas. 604.

—Notice to decree-holder—Duty by appellant to be present on the day fixed for hearing.

Under C. P. C., no order of review can be made without previous notice to the person in possession of the decree which is to be reviewed. It is the duty of the person who has a case in the paper (notice board or cause list) to be present prepared to support it by counsel or in person. (1903) 14 M.L. J. 7 (P. C.).

47. Practice—Official translation of documents.

—Official translation of documents—Duty of Court to act upon—Translation by Judge—Value of.

It is the duty of the Courts in India to act upon the official translation of documents unless there is expert evidence which justifies the rejection of such translation.

It may no doubt often happen that a Judge in India knows the vernacular in which a document is written, and he may be as well qualified as the official translator, or even better qualified, to render a correct translation of the document into English. The trouble however, is that the Judge is not a witness, and the parties are not in a position to test the translation which he makes; whilst if the matter is taken in appeal to the Privy Council, the Board have no material upon which they can estimate the linguistic qualifications of the Judge. 53 C.W.N. 803=A.I.R. 1949 P.C. 179=51 Bom. L. R. 960.

—Official translation — Departure from—Jurisdiction.

It is not legitimate for the Court to depart from the official translation except upon expert evidence which the parties should have an opportunity of testing. 73 I. A. 264=I.L.R. (1947) Mad. 159=51 C.W.N. 205=1946 O.A. (P.C.) 205=1946 A.W.R. (P.C.) 205=227 Ind. Cas. 12=59 L.W. 681=13 B. R. 36=I. L. R. (1947) Kar. (P.C.) 15=A.I.R. 1946 P. C. 185=(1946) 2 M. L. J. 408 (P.C.).

48. Practice—Parties.

See C. P. C., O. 1. and O. 34, R. I.

- (a) Duty of.
- (b) Addition of.
- (c) Joinder.
- (d) Non-joinder.
- (e) Miscellaneous.

48 (a). Practice—Parties—Duty of.

—Duty of.

A party, who has objections to a proceeding before the Court, must put them forward at the earliest opportunity, and must put all of them forward and not keep back any of them for subsequent presentation. A.I.R. 1929 Mad. 404.

—Duty of.

It is always the duty of litigants in a Civil Case to pay for the expenses of witnesses and procure their attendance. If they should fail to do so, the Court is not bound to do this for them. 99 Ind. Cas. 890=A.I.R. 1927 Lah. 845.

—Duty of.

The novel proposition, that a duty is cast upon every litigant to speak out and set right his adversary whenever he discovers that his opponent has made a mistake, requires very careful scrutiny. 74 Ind. Cas. 770=36 C.L.J. 245=A.I.R. 1922 Cal. 493.

48 (b). Practice—Parties—Addition of.

—Parties—Additional Defendants—Whether can be struck off at any stage—Evidence of—Effect of.

Additional defendants brought on record on an application put in by them and allowed cannot be struck off the record and their evidence cannot be ignored at the stage of an appeal from a decree in their favour after the whole case has been decided. 1 O.L.J. 591=26 Ind. Cas. 547.

12—F. Y. D.—50.

—Parties—Addition of—Second appeal.

Plaintiff who tries his best not to join another as party in a rent suit though his joinder was continually urged by the defendants, cannot in second appeal make a new case and join that person as defendant in that suit. 11 C.L.J. 601=5 Ind. Cas. 105.

48 (c). Practice—Parties—Joinder.

Parties — Religious endowment—Suit regarding—Deity—If necessary party when there is shebait. See Religious Endowment—Suit. A.I.R. 1950 Pat. 134.

—Parties—Necessary party—Suit challenging validity of Provincial Act—Provincial Government—If necessary party as being responsible for Act.

It is the Legislature of a State or Province which is ultimately responsible for an Act passed with respect to the State or Province, and the Provincial or State Government does not become a necessary party to a suit merely because the validity of that Act is challenged in the suit, even if the Provincial or State Government sponsored the Bill which became the Act and piloted it through the different stages of legislation. (1940) F.C.R. 110, foll. A.I.R. 1950 Pat. 527.

—Parties — Pre-emption suit — Hindu joint family—Transfer by father manager—Sons, if necessary parties to suit for pre-emption arising on such sale.

A claim for pre-emption arises on a transfer of property from the vendor to the vendee. The right of pre-emption is a right of substitution, and the pre-emptor is bound to take the property for the same price and subject to the same risks as the vendee has taken. He cannot ask the Court to adjudicate on the title of the vendor to the property sold. He has to accept the position that the vendor had a title to effect a sale and on that basis make a claim for pre-emption. In the case of a sale by a Hindu father, as manager of the joint family of himself and sons, the sons are neither necessary nor proper parties to a suit for pre-emption in respect of that sale. I.L.R. (1949) Nag. 152=A.I.R. 1949 Nag. 185=1949 N.L.J. 81.

—Parties—Suit between villagers of different villages regarding right to take water from an irrigation channel — Government paramount owner of the channel—Government necessary party to the suit.

Where a suit between villagers of two different villages is in regard to a disputed right to take water from an irrigation channel and the Government is admittedly the paramount owner of channel in whom the entire right to it vests and have passed orders adverse to the plaintiffs in regard to their right, the Government is a necessary party to such a suit. 61 L.W. 644=A.I.R. 1949 Mad. 161=1948 M.W.N. 515=(1948) 2 M.L.J. 99.

—In originating summons for the construction of will, trustees should not argue on behalf of beneficiaries or next-of-kin apart from exceptional cases. 120 Ind. Cas. 938=31 Bom. L.R. 511=A.I.R. 1929 Bom. 289.

—Parties—Assignee—Pendente lite.

In a suit for possession of land an assignee pendente lite need not be made a party, as he would be bound by the decree in the suit. 9 C.L.J. 523=36 Cal. 675 =1 Ind. Cas. 626.

—Parties—Suit for money left by family firm—Liability renewed in plaintiffs sole name—Other members necessary parties—Acquiescence of other members not sufficient to cure defect and limitation. 19 M.L.J. 372=4 Ind. Cas. 38=32 M. 284.

—Parties—Revenue registry suit for declaration of title for—Collector necessary party. See 19 M.L.J. 33=2 Ind. Cas. 479.

—Parties—Mesne profits, ascertainment of—Receiver, not necessary party when mesne profits are not in respect of properties covered by the mortgage security.

When the decree for mesne profits is made, the decree-holder may find it necessary to proceed against the equity of redemption to enable him to realise his dues. When he finds himself in that position, if the receiver appointed in the course of the mortgage suit is then found to be in possession of the mortgaged properties, the execution creditor may have to obtain the leave of the court before he can attach the properties, in execution. But before he arrives at that stage it is not necessary for him to bring the receiver before the court; and it is absolutely immaterial to the receiver for what amount a decree for mesne profits is obtained by the decree-holder against the mortgagor. The claim which is sought is a personal claim, and the decree will be a personal decree against the mortgagor. It is only when in execution of the decree the mortgaged property is sought to be attached that the receiver may be affected and leave of the court may be necessary. Until that stage, the receiver is a perfect stranger in no way interested in the matter. 10 C.L.J. 22=2 Ind. Cas. 944.

—Parties—Suit for rent against shebaita—All to be parties.

In a suit for rent due from several shebaita, all the shebaita should be made parties. Else the suit is liable to be dismissed. (1907) 35 C. 182=12 C.W.N. 160.

—Parties—Joinder of parties as defendants who should have been added as plaintiffs—No—Onus of proving refusal to join as plaintiffs.

A suit by one of several persons entitled to the relief, making the others defendants, should not be dismissed on the mere ground that plaintiff failed to show that the other persons refused to be made co-plaintiffs. 26 C. 409; 24 A. 226, Foll. (1906) 29 M. 302. Also 1902 A.W.N. 31=24 A. 226.

—Suit for possession—Certificate of sale not challenged—Secretary of State if necessary party.

The Secretary of State is not a necessary party to a suit where the plaintiff does not want to have a certificate and the sale thereunder set aside, but brings his suit for the recovery of the possession of the property treating the sale as a nullity and he is indifferent whether the sale stands or not. 31 C. 159, 25 C. 179, Foll. (1910) 11 C.L.J. 385=14 C.W.N. 606=5 Ind. Cas. 311.

—Suit to set aside revenue sale for arrears of revenue—Secretary of State not a necessary party: (1906) 7 C.W.N. 377.

But see contra. (1903) 8 C.W.N. 657=31 C. 159.

—Suit to set aside auction sale—Decree-holder necessary party.

5 C.W.N. 10=25 B. 337=27 I.A. 216 (P.C.)=10 M.L.J. 368.

—Suit by decree-holder against successful claimant for declaration that certain property belongs to judgment-debtor—Judgment debtor not necessary party.

See: 1905 A.W.N. 172=2 A.L.J. 491=28 A. 41.

—Parties—Offering sacrifice—Co-owners: suit by one co-owner on obstruction by stranger for declaration.

Two zemindars were the owners of a zemindari within which was an idol. The zemindars were entitled to the flesh of the first goat sacrificed to the idol. One of the zemindars died and his heir, on obstruction by the shebaita to her enjoyment of the right, sued for a declaration of her right. Held, that in the absence of objection by the other zemindar to the plaintiff's right to enjoy the subject-matter of the suit, the suit was maintainable without making the co-owners parties. (1906) 4 C.L.J. 469.

—Parties—Worshippers—Disciples' position of—Not co owners.

The shishyas or disciples of a mutt are not co-owners of the mutt along with its head; nor have they such interest in the mutt property as will entitle them to be made defendants in a suit to recover money or property from a Pandara Sannidhi. (1906) 16 M.L.J. 415=29 Mad. 553.

—Parties—Worshippers—Joinder of in suit for declaration—Possession and damages—Misjoinder.

15 M.L.J. 475=29 Mad. 106.

—Parties—Objection that nobody was on record to represent the estate—Suit for construction of will.

In a suit for the construction of the will, a preliminary objection, viz., that the suit was defective for want of a party representing the estate of the testator, was overruled as all the parties who could be any possibility have an interest in the estate were already before the court and as the plaintiff asked for administration only in case such relief were deemed necessary and the court in this case did not deem it to be necessary. —Parties to suits—Hindu Law—Joint family. (1907) 9 Bom. L.R. 1126.

—Parties—Hindu Law—Joint family—Parties to suit—Right of Manager to sue in his own name.

See 5 Bom. L.R. 618=28 B. 11

—Parties—Partition—Portion of joint estate—
Suit for, if maintainable—Ijardar, if a necessary party.

A suit for partition of a portion of a joint estate is maintainable when such portion is the only property held jointly by the plaintiff and the defendants, although the defendants may be jointly interested, with or without other persons in the remaining portion of the estate. (1904) 1 C.L.J. 40.

—Parties—Partners — Suit by one partner against agent for breach of contract—Collusion between partner and agent.

A single partner cannot sue the agent of the firm for breach of contract unless it be that the other partner is in collusion with the agent and the cause of action against the agent is one that arose after the collusion and consequent upon it. (1903) 27 M. 80.

—Parties—Trustee—How far representative of beneficiary.

The rule under which a beneficiary is sufficiently represented by his trustee does not apply where the contest is between two beneficiaries. (1902) 4 Bom.L.R. 857.

—Parties—Tort—Suit for.

See 6 C.L.J. 383.

—Parties—Mahomedan Law—Suit by creditor of deceased.

The creditor of a deceased Mahomedan has the right to sue such of the heirs of the deceased as have taken the estate and has the right to have recourse to a single heir only in case all the assets are in the hands of that heir. (1902) 26 M. 734.

—Parties—Village Officer—Madras Act 11 of 1864:—Illegal detention of crops after arrears are paid —Suit against village Officer—Secretary of State not a necessary party. (1902) 26 M. 263.

—Parties—Suit by one uralan without consulting co-uralan not maintainable, though his title denied by the other.

One uralan cannot sue alone, even though the other denies his title unless the other preversely declines to co-operate with the other, after being invited to do so and when it is for the benefit of the institution that proceedings should be taken. In the latter case, he can sue alone impleading the other as a co-defendant 24 M. 296.

[But see 26 M. 461; 26 M. 649 (F.B.).—E.D.]

—Parties—Receiver in possession of properties—Suit for declaration of title—Beneficial owners parties—Receiver how far a necessary party.

A receiver in possession of the properties is not a necessary party to a suit for a declaration of title to the properties when the beneficial owners are parties. (1902) 6 C.W.N. 829=29 Cal. 509.

—Parties—Plaintiff's right not to add a party whose title is not necessarily involved in the suit.

The plaintiff is dominus litis and is not bound to join all adverse claimants as parties, and he must be left to exercise his own discretion as to the joinder of a defendant whose title is not involved in that of any other party to the suit. (1902) 4 Bom.L.R. 754=27 B. 31.

—Parties—Receiver—Leave to sue—Suit for possession.

The receiver is not a necessary party to a suit for possession of immoveable property. (1897) 5 C.W.N. 27.

—Suit to eject trespassers from a village—
Competence of one or more co-sharers to sue —Yes.

(1901) A.W.N. 36.

48 (d). Practice—Parties—Non-joinder.

See C. P. C., S. 99 and O. 1, R. 13.

—Non-joinder—Effect—Plaintiff failing to implead necessary party in spite of specific plea in written statement—Dismissal of suit—Suit for eviction—Person in possession of part of property not joined—Effect.

Where in a suit for eviction, the defendant specifically pleads in his written statement that portions of the property were in the possession of his wife under a separate tenancy and produces an amalnama and certain dakhilas and that the suit was bad for non-joinder of a necessary party, it is up to the plaintiff to apply for adding the defendant's wife as a party defendant to the suit. Where she is admittedly in possession of part of the property, the suit cannot succeed unless she is made a party and if the plaintiff does not add her a party, the suit in respect of the portion in her possession must fail. 226 Ind. Cas. 369=A. I. R. 1947 Cal. 73=51 C. W. N. 323.

—Non-joinder—Effect—Party impleaded but not described properly—Effect—Misdescription.

Before a technical plea of non-joinder is entertained and given effect to, the Court must ascertain what the substantial question in issue is. Where a necessary party is joined as a party to the suit, but he is not described as a shebait (as it should be), the mere omission to describe him as such is a mere technicality and a mere misdescription. 223 Ind. Cas. 324=12 B. R. 392=A. I. R. 1946 Pat. 440.

—Non-joinder—Plea open to whom—C. P.
Code, O. 1, R. 9.

Plea of non-joinder of others as plaintiffs can be raised only by the defendants who have an interest in the subject matter of the suit and not by those found subsequently not to have any interest therein. 22 Ind. Cas. 129 (Oudh).

48 (e). Practice—Parties—Miscellaneous.

—Parties—Party cannot adopt one part and repudiate another part of an order—Estoppel.

When an order shows plainly that it is intended to take effect in its entirety and that several parts of it depend upon each other, a person cannot adopt one part and repudiate another. For instance, if the Court directs that the suit shall be restored on the plaintiff paying the costs of the opposing party, there is no intention to benefit the latter except on the terms mentioned in the order itself. If the party receives the costs, his act is tantamount to adopting the order. But if a party receives the benefit reserving his right to object to the order, he will not in that case be precluded from attacking it. A. I. R. 1927 Mad. 1009, Not Foll. 123 Ind. Cas. 337=31 M. L. W. 30=1930 M. W. N. 50=A. I. R. 1930 Mad. 268=58 M. L. J. 137.

—Party adopting an order of Court—Estoppel.

A party who has adopted an order of the Court and acted under it, cannot, after he has enjoyed a benefit under the order contend that it is valid for one purpose and invalid for another. But the principle does not apply where the benefit accepted would in any case be his whether the appeal succeeded or failed. Where in a suit on a money bond payable with compound interest the Court awards simple interest only, an appeal against the decree is not rendered incompetent though the decree-holder accepts the costs deposited by the judgment-debtor on the basis of simple interest, subsequent to the filing of the appeal. 72 Ind. Cas. 554=A. I. R. 1924 Cal. 380.

—Conduct of, relevancy.

It is well established that the parties must be judged by the method with which they conduct their cases. Thus any objection to the admissibility of the evidence of a witness may be regarded as waived by the other party if it indulges in his cross-examination. 73 Ind. Cas. 654=A. I. R. 1923 All. 612.

—Same individual as plaintiff and defendant—Rule—Exceptions.

It is a well-recognised elementary rule of procedure that the same individual even in different capacities, cannot be both a plaintiff and a defendant. The rule, however, is subject to exceptions in equity in cases where it would be possible to ascertain the rights and liabilities of the parties in the event of all the parties being present before the Court either in the group of plaintiffs or defendants. 48 Bom. L.R. 341=A. I. R. 1946 Bom. 516=1947 Comp. C. 21=229 Ind. Cas. 84.

—The same individual in different capacities can be both plaintiff and defendant in one and the same action provided the Court of fact can adjust the rights of the parties. 125 Ind. Cas. 115=A. I. R. 1930 Pat. 231.

—Parties—Plaintiff and defendants to be different—Rule—Exception.

The rule that the same man cannot be plaintiff and defendant in the same suit loses much of its force in India where the Courts or Courts of Equity when all the parties are before the court and when their rights can be determined and adjusted. 2 Ind. Cas. 597 (Cal.).

—A party omitting to defend in trial Court.

When a defendant is served and has notice of the action but does not appear and elects to trust in another defendant for defence, he is precluded from arguing his case for the first time in Letters Patent Appeal. 93 Ind. Cas. 998=A. I. R. 1926 All. 427.

—A party cannot succeed upon evidence which is not relevant to his pleas. 90 Ind. Cas. 58=A. I. R. 1926 Nag. 64.

—Where the process-server was responsible for not serving summons and the witnesses consequently did not appear:

Held, that the plaintiff should not be punished for the negligence of an officer of the Court and the suit should not be dismissed for want of proof. 85 Ind. Cas. 321=6 L.L.J. 418=A. I. R. 1925 Lah. 296.

—Co-plaintiffs must appear by same counsel.

Co-plaintiffs cannot sever at the trial but must appear by the same solicitors and counsel. Nor can the same person be made both a plaintiff and defendant. 25 Bom. 606, Foll. 77 Ind. Cas. 83=24 Bom. L.R. 1111=47 Bom. 349=A. I. R. 1923 Bom. 177.

—Parties — Mortgage — Plea of paramount title.

The defendant cannot in appeal plead that the suit ought to have been dismissed on the ground that he claimed paramount title when the suit is decreed against him with costs. 32 Ind. Cas. 358 (Cal.).

—Parties—Decree—Effect of.

A person who is not a party to a suit is not bound or affected by a decree passed therein. 37 Cal. 239=14 C.W.N. 214=11 C.L.J. 166=3 Bur. L.T. 27=12 Bom. L.R. 234=20 M.L.J. 153=37 I.A. 19=5 Ind. Cas. 151 (P.C.).

—Parties—Declaration in favour of persons who are not parties to the suit.

A Court is not justified in making a declaration in favour of persons who are not parties to suit, on whose behalf no claim was set up, and no issue was raised in regard to it. 9 C.L.J. 421=13 C.W.N. 611=2 Ind. Cas. 641.

—Parties whether can intervene in appeal.

As an ordinary rule, a person who was not a party to the suit in the court of first instance ought not to be allowed to intervene at the appellate stage; but the power is vested in the court to have him as a party respondent. Such power should be exercised with caution. A person who is not a party to proceedings in the probate court in which the validity of a will is questioned, is bound by the result if he was aware of the proceedings and had a right to intervene. Quaere:—Whether the doctrine that the mere circumstance that a stranger has promoted litigation or assisted in a suit, does not make him bound by the judgment applies to probate proceedings. (1910) 12 C.L.J. 91=6 Ind. Cas. 912.

—Parties—Joint vendees, suit by one for recovery of lands purchased.

Per Banerjee, J.—One of several joint vendees can maintain a suit for his share of the property purchased. If both sue and one of them dies, and the deceased man's representative are not brought on the record, the remaining plaintiff can recover his share of the property. Per Richards, J.—One of the joint vendees can sue for the whole property purchased. 1905 A.W.N. 274=3 A.L.J. 30.

49. Practice—Partition suit.

—Partition suit—Prayer in plaint for past mesne profits—Court-fee paid on the prayer—No provision made in the preliminary decree—Subsequent application by plaintiff—Order for provision in the final decree—Jurisdiction of Court to make.

Where a preliminary decree for partition is silent as to the claim for mesne profits, the parties are not precluded from applying or the Court from awarding, mesne profits by its final decree, especially, when the plaint specifically asked for past mesne profits and court-fee on that relief was paid. (1938) 2 M.L.J. 704, foll. 1949 M.W.N. 236=62 L.W. 386=A.I.R. 1949 Mad. 743=(1949) 1 M.L.J. 522.

—Partition suit—Abatement and withdrawal—Second suit—Maintainability. See C.P. Code, O. 22, R. 9. 26 Pat. 304=A.I.R. 1948 Pat. 244.

—Partition.

It is not necessary in a partition suit that a defendant who claims a share in the property should be made a co-plaintiff. 119 Ind. Cas. 656=53 Bom. 472=31 Bom. L.R. 647=A.I.R. 1929 Bom. 345.

—Omission to include certain property.

An offer by the plaintiff in a suit for partition to include other property, not mentioned in the plaint, which may be proved to be joint, is sufficient to cure the defect of omission of any properties from the partition and the suit is not liable to be dismissed on the technical ground of certain items not having been included in the plaint. 117 Ind. Cas. 412=6 O.W.N. 142=A.I.R. 1929 Oudh 162.

—Partition suit—Preliminary decree—Dismissal of suit—Legality.

The Court has no jurisdiction to dismiss the suit after a preliminary decree has been passed in a partition suit merely because there has been delay in producing the Commissioner's fee. 6 P.L.T. 152=86 Ind. Cas. 785=A.I.R. 1925 Pat. 433.

—Dismissal of suit after preliminary decree for partition is bad.

A Court is completely wrong in dismissing a suit after a preliminary decree for partition has been passed on the ground that the lands which were partitioned by the Commissioner were different from the lands ordered to be partitioned under the preliminary decree. 72 Ind. Cas. 916=2 Pat. 432=4 P.L.T. 257=A.I.R. 1923 Pat. 342.

—Partition suit—Plaintiff's title originally defective, perfected pending suit—Suit may be decreed. 61 Ind. Cas. 398=45 Bom. 983=23 Bom. L.R. 391=A.I.R. 1921 Bom. 455.

—Partition suit—Impossibility—Decree for sale.

When there are actual difficulties in partition the court may order sale; otherwise partition may be granted. 20 C.W.N. 1806=1 Pat. L.J. 441=2 Pat. L.W. 383=35 Ind. Cas. 861.

50. Practice — Plea.

—Plea—Suit for recovery of possession on basis of document, property in suit being left out as result of clerical mistake—Suit for rectification barred—Mistake, can be proved.

In a suit for recovery of possession based on a document which contains a mistake, the property in suit being left out through clerical mistake, although a suit for rectification may be barred by limitation, the plaintiff is entitled to succeed and mistake can be proved under S. 92, Evidence Act. A.I.R. 1930 All. 387.

—Where the judgment of an Appellate Court makes no mention of a ground of appeal it must be presumed that it was abandoned before that Court. 117 Ind. Cas. 905 (Lah.).

—Third party made defendant—He cannot impeach a title obtained against the real owner. 110 Ind. Cas. 383=A.I.R. 1928 All. 665.

—Second Appeal—Grounds given up to cause admission of appeal cannot be argued at the hearing. 98 Ind. Cas. 328=24 M.L.W. 764=A.I.R. 1927 Mad. 75=51 M.L.J. 639.

—Plea of payment and plea of set-off.

Payment means that the debt claimed by the plaintiff is not due at all as it has been paid already. The plea of set-off is a request that the debt due to the plaintiff be regarded thereafter as paid by being set-off against another debt due by the plaintiff to the defendant. 84 Ind. Cas. 956=2 Rang. 349=A.I.R. 1925 Rang. 22.

—Failure to raise a plea is not equivalent to consent. 65 Ind. Cas. 345=8 O.L.J. 596=A.I.R. 1922 Oudh 5.

—Plea of minority under special law—Bond executed by person otherwise of full age.

Where a person being of full age at the time of executing a bond and a fortiori of the suit on it and executed the bond as of full age the ground for exempting him from liability such as that the fact that a certain person was appointed his guardian under a certain Act had the effect of prolonging his minority to a latter age
